the matter with Mrs. Pendleton.

May I urge the importance of your turning such subscriptions as you get in the way of the Theological School. I regard it as most urgent that we should meet Mr. Harkness' conditions. I think we would have to retard ourselves, as we would certainly be regarded, as rather weak if we could not meet them.

With heartiest regards to yourself and Mr. Hung and best wishes for your health, prosperity and success, I am,

Faithfully yours,
