PEKING

March 11, 1925.

Dr. Henry W. Luce,
Presbyterian Hospital,
1753 West Congress Street,
Chicago, Ill.

My dear Luce:

I was much disturbed to hear of your accident and know that the pain and discomfort must have been quite considerable. The fates certainly seem to be conspiring to make it necessary for you to take a respectable rest even if they have to upset your equilibrium to do it.

I hope that your recovery will be thorough and rapid and that the "twist of the wrist" that has been of such success in securing financial advancement for causes in which you are interested will not be lost as a result of your fall.

I note that you are able from time to time to dictate some letters and I am wondering if you would not at your convenience, dictate a letter to Mr. Russell Carter sending a copy to me, describing the conversation which you and President Stuart had with the trustees of the Finley estate in reference to their intentions as to the object to which the money sent to the Presbyterian Board should go and indications as to why the money was sent in that way instead of being transmitted direct.

Mr. Carter needs definite indication of the intentions of the trustees that this money paid to the Presbyterian Board should go to the University. He realizes the undesirability of taking it up directly with the trustees and I think a letter from you covering the matter fully would suffice to clear up the problem. At the present time the Presbyterian Board has $5,000 of these funds. I am writing Dr. Smith in reference to the residence matter.

Faithfully yours,
