The letters telling of Aunt Louise came just before I left Karuizawa. We have been on the move ever since but are now to be on the steamer for several days. Just at present we are in Kobe harbor loading on "Ashai Bur" to go to China. We are to stop at Moji and Nagasaki so we'll have a chance to get on land nearly every day. - The news of Aunt Louise was a great shock, but after thinking it all over it seems as if she and we had been spared much. She went the way she would have wished for I have heard her say more than once that she did not wish to live as long as Grandpa and Grandma did, and she was so afraid of being a burden to people. She has been spared both. We shall all miss her more than words can express for she has been a second mother to us all. I wrote a letter to her which you must have received a few weeks ago. What have you done with her household effects? Do you remember the little piece of Delft I brought to her from Holland? It is a little tile with blue on white and framed with Flemish oak. If you have not disposed of it I should like you to save it for me. - We had quite an experience getting settled on board our boat. We were to be allowed 25% off our tickets for missionary rates, but when we bought them the agent gave us only 15%. We were feeling somewhat dubious as our pocket books were rather flat, but we neither dared peep a word. Just before we left port the agent came on board and handed each of us six yen and fifty sen. Wasn't that fine? We actually dared spend a yen in Kobe. We are wondering how we'll get on about baggage at Shanghai. We have eleven pieces- nine of which belong to us and two to a friend in Foochow. I have never heard of any fuss over things entering port in Shanghai so I guess it will come out all right. - Did Stanley ever get the little silver tooth-brush holder I sent him last spring? Mary has written nothing about receiving a wide ribbon which I sent her at Santa Barbara. I have received no gloves yet but hope to find a pair waiting for me at Foochow. My brown stockings came safely to me- Will having forwarded them to me at Yokohama. I have one pair on now- with my sandals. They are just the thing for shipboard. We are on the worst smelling boat I ever saw. These little boats in the East are beyond description. The reason we took this one was that there was a difference of $38 in price and we preferred the money in curios rather than boat hire. As we live all the day on deck we shall be able to stand it. Our cabins are very comfortable, and the food is fairly good. I sit at the captain's right and am cared for as well as the boat can give. The captain is a Japanese but speaks English very well and is a gentleman so I am as well off as we can have. I am wondering how I came to get the seat of honor and some one has suggested it may be my grey hairs. I am trying to get used to being thought to be old. The Chinese think I am very old because of my grayness, and I get all sorts of honors conferred on me, because of it. - We are now in Moji harbor coaling and loading on more beer, soap, condensed milk, etc. This A.M. a 'lighter' load of powder was taken off. Our captain said it was powder for cleaning but I am wondering if it was his way of telling me the truth without alarming me- for this is a great military stop, with every hill shooting into the other with their many forts. Japan is [has] more forts than any thing else. Everywhere the preparations for fighting has been the prominent sight. We see soldiers everywhere, drilling, travelling, getting ready for something. This boat on which we are travelling was built for hospital work during the late war and has been adapted to its present use. It is much better suited to its original use than its present one.

Will you please telephone up to Lucy and Hattie this piece of business? I am sending by mail three shirt waists in separate packages- one to Lucy, one to Hattie and one to Nellie in care of Uncle Will [Lucy, Hattie and Nellie are Beard cousins and Uncle Will (William Thomas Beard, brother of Oliver Gould Beard) is their father.]. I did not know her Oronoque address. Lucy's and Hattie's waists are $1.50 each and Nellie's $2. Nellie's is a linen and if she does not like it tell her not to keep it. It was a great bargain- only half of the usual price- and I thought the novelty of the pattern and the extra cloth would just fit her. One cannot ordinarily get that linen for the price I gave. I happened to find all three patterns for bargain prices. I am sending in the same mail some bulbs of the Japanese gold banded lilies which grow everywhere wild on the mountain sides. They may amount to nothing but they cost so little that I wanted mama to try planting them. They are supposed to be hardy. The Japanese eat the bulbs here. Their blossoms was [were] such beautiful spots in the green of the hills. Some of these I dug up myself. Tell Ruth I have thought over her dress and it seems to me that the Chinese white silk will be the prettiest. I will get a piece and send it as soon as I can after I get back to China. I will send some samples of silk lace for trimming which is cheap and will be quite different from any one's else at home. She can choose her sample and send it back to me and I will order the lace for her. This will probably make her dress cost about $7 gold. She will have a wash dress that will last longer than she may wish. Do you remember my graduating gown of white silk? I was never sorry that I had it for it made over as long as there was a scrap left. I have my lace waist linen with it now. The Japanese materials that would have been pretty are so heavy in weight that it would have been pretty expensive to send them. - I will write again when I get to Shanghai and let you know whether we met a typhoon. As we were rounding the point for Yokohama to Kobe where [we] met the end of a typhoon and you should have heard the copper bars in the hold chase each other back and forth from each side of the ship. We had to stay awake in order to keep ourselves in our berths. It was all over by daylight but the captain said it was a black night and he had to stay on the bridge until daylight.

With love to all- Flora.

Foochow Young Men's Christian Association

Foochow Sept 27- 1908

My dear Mother and all the others in Shelton:-

We are at our Foochow home again. Phebe, Gould and Geraldine had a good time last week Mon-Fri on the house boat trip with Mrs. Worley and the three Worley children. Phebe and Geraldine came down from Kuliang Thursday Sept. 17th- Flora got in a few days previous. P. and G. came down to get the house cleaned for mama.

Don't we feel old- to have children large enough to intrust the cleaning of a whole house to? I was here Fri. and got them nicely started and Flora was here with them too. Sat. Sept. 19th I went back to the Mt. Monday Sept 21. Gould went fr. Kuliang down to the river and met the rest of the house boat party- the girls starting from Foochow. The children went in swimming every day- and I judge had a genuinely good time.

On Tuesday Sept. 22nd Ellen, Dorothy, Marjorie, Kathleen and I came to Foochow. The weather the week before had been very hot in Foochow but that day was cool and cloudy, so we had a very comfortable trip. We left the Kuliang house at 2:30 p.m. and at 7 p.m. we were eating supper in Foochow with the same dishes as we had used on Kuliang at dinner. Kathleen was a bit tired or at least did not settle down for the night till after 9 p.m. but then she slept perfectly all night. Marjorie feels the heat some- prickly heat has appeared on her head, but today is cooler. School begins day after tomorrow.

I plan to take the steamer tomorrow evening for Amoy to look over the ground and see what I can do in the name of the Y.M.C.A. for the M.S. fleet. I must spend only two or three days there now, then go to Nanking to attend a Bible Study Institute – then back to Amoy to be with the fleet. A telegram came yesterday. It read “Nanking, Beard, Foochow. Insfufufe, convening wire arrival.” I knew from whom it came and I knew the general meaning. But Ellen and I took the first word to be a code word- but I could not find it in any of the code books. Then I took it over to McLachlin's and we all looked for it in the Western Union and in the China Inland Mission Code books- but to no avail. At last Miss Bosworth who was calling at Mrs. McLachlin's suggested that if we changed the f's to t's the word read Institute and it was a plain English telegram.

Ellen is very well- so are we all. I got very tired during the Student Conference Sept 5-13, and then took a cold and it has been very difficult to hold up in the work but the last week I have felt much better.

I think of you all as scattered again. We are glad to hear that Bessie Palmer is to be near Mary this year. Stanley seems to be getting indispensable in the Antitoxine [Antitussive- see note at end of letter] Establishment. I judge from what little I hear that the B.N. Beard Co. have all the business they can carry.

Two of the teachers for the Chinese Government schools, who were engaged thru me have arrived and are at work. Last week a telegram announced that a third teacher was found and is on the way. A fourth is ordered- to come next Feb.

I must close now and say good night

With Love from all

Will.

Amoy, Oct 24th 1908

My dearest Ellen:-

After a "kind's" rough voyage we reached Amoy yesterday a.m. We took b-fast on board and went to see Dr. Mark. Then to the recreation grounds. Then back to Dr. Marks and received his $1000. check. Then to the S.S. office- China merchants and received $20- refund on my return ticket to and fr. Shanghai. Then to steamer to find that she did not leave till 4 p.m. Then to Mrs. Beattie's to lunch-wasn't that a half day's work?

In the p.m. we went first to the steamer and I let Roy take the baggage to Mrs. Beatties while I went to the H. and S. Bank and opened an account. Then to see the Postal Commissioner re putting a branch office into the Y.M.C.A. tent. This he is anxious to do. The H. and S. Bank are ready also to exchange the money. All the afternoon we were on the grounds. Most of the tents are up again- all but one was blown down. The wooden building for the officers escaped. The electric dinamoses [dynamos] were under salt water and have to be cleaned. All the cutlery was wet and several tens of men were rubbing up the knives yesterday. Ding Baik Cieng and four friends came down with me. Today the Viceroy is expected, and the Prince will be here in a day or two. Twenty ponies and carriages came yesterday, and a part of the 100 rickshas. A steamer is expected soon with 200 sheep, fifty calves- steers- poultry, etc., etc. Sounds like a barbecue: stones are lying round by the dozen, nice cooking stones- the soda fountain is here. I am engaging 50000 souvenir postals, 10,000 plants are on the grounds- a lot of the dwarfed trees- grand old things. The collection is worth they say 50,000 taels. $75.00 dollars- lots of other things too numerous to mention now. These are the chief- of those which impressed me most.

I am enclosing a check for $800. You will need to endorse it before sending it to the Bank.

We shall spend Sunday with Mrs. Beatties and as soon as the tent is up plan to establish ourselves in it. I judge there will be work enough for all of us.

With lots of love to you all.

Will.

If you think best- you might sent this to Putnam to be forwarded to Shelton, - send to Mary first. It will give them all a view of what is going on here and I may not have a chance to write to all.

[This letter dated Oct. 27, 1908 was written from Amoy, China by Willard to Ellen. He tells her more about the preparations for the fleet's arrival that week. A typhoon delayed some of the preparations. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Amoy Oct 27- 08.

My dearest Ellen:-

Yesterday a letter came from you and I rejoiced to learn that all were well. Today another letter came- the one that was intended to reach me in Shanghai.

Things are gradually assuming shape. Each day a little is done. The typhoon delayed things of course and set every line of preparation back very much. They put up our tent Sunday and yesterday. This p.m. all the furniture that I bought in Foochow was put into the tent. Yesterday I spent the whole day in getting the things thru the customs etc.

Today I have secured Mr. Rankin to take entire charge of the soda fountain, and 20 of his Anglo Chinese students to take charge of the selling of 70,000 souvenir postals. 20 more to distribute to each man each day 5 cigars and 20 cigarettes. 10 to help at the soda fountain and 10 to help at the writing materials. This makes 60 in all. The P.O. is very glad to get into our tent, and they are sending a fine young man named Ross with 4 Chinese assistants to take charge. I had a talk with Mr. Wallace of the H. and S. Bank about exchanging money. At first he was rather inclined to be haughty and lofty- but he came down after a while and this department is all fixed. I believe all arrangements are now made, - unless I can get the caterer to put up an afternoon tea. This of course in not essential.

The fleet is expected Thurs. afternoon. The men will come on the ground Friday. (Pen run dry-house asleep-so must use pencil.) Then work begins. I have thus far gotten someone to take charge of each department so I shall be free to help anywhere. Roy and I have taken a lunch on the grounds- Sat and Monday. Today we were here at Mrs. Beatties. Tomorrow I promise to lead the Wed. prayer meeting. Thurs. a.m. we plan to move up into our tent. The arrangement is like this on the enclosed sheets.

I must stop now to go to bed.

Kiss the children for papa Your Will

Wed. a.m. 6:45.

It was very very welcome news to hear that you were all well when the last letter was written. I am praying continually that you may be spared- yes it does seem that if the children have to be ill they select the times when I am away.

Geraldine's letter in the one that came to me yesterday was very interesting. I learned from it more about the children's riding the pony than I heard while I was home for two days.- I am glad to hear that Ewer has come- Comm??? Sch. teacher. I hope he will be able to make satisfactory arrangements as to board etc. I will try to put a note in this for him.

Very lovingly
Will

Tell the children to write. Love to Flora

[According to the American Fleet Souvenir by Rev. Philip Wilson Pitcher. M.A. of the American Reformed Church Mission:

The coming of the American Fleet to these waters, and entering the harbor of Amoy is to be an entirely different affair from that of the fleet that came in 1841.

The armada, composed of sixteen battleships, and more than a dozen auxiliaries, which left Hampton Roads, U.S.A., December 1907, making its triumphal cruise from sea to sea thro the Straits of Magellan and on up to San Francisco, then across the broad Pacific to Japan, China, Manila and other places, and finally visiting European waters on its return voyage has a far different mission to perform- a mission of peace which evokes the admiration and applause of the whole world.

Amoy is honored as the place where a part of this fleet is to be entertained by the Chinese government. Thus again another distinction has been added to its already long list of notable events by the coming of this fleet of vessels on their peaceful mission.

The following vessels, forming the third and fourth divisions of the fleet are expected to arrive here on Oct. 29th, 1908. Louisiana, Virginia, Ohio, Missouri, Wisconsin, Illinois, Kentucky, Kersage.

Each vessel carried from six hundred to eight hundred men. In additions to these battleships there will probably be accompanying them an auxiliary fleet of several vessels.

From another souvenir program are menus offered to the officers and crews throughout the week. They include: Bird's Nest Soup, Shark's Fins and Crab Roe, Roast Duck, Boiled Ham and Chicken Chop Sui, Mutton Cutlets and Mashed Potatoes, Roast Pheasant, Supreme of Capon, Potage Tortue Verte, Fruits, Cheese, Cakes, and Tea.

Both programs are from the collection of Virginia Van Andel. The program by the Rev. Philip Wilson Pitcher includes many photos and information about the Amoy area. The second program also has photos, but primarily lists the schedule of sports events for the week.]

Y.M.C.A. Headquarters,
American Fleet,

Amoy, China Nov. 2 1908

My dear Mother:-

Eight ships of the American Squadron arrived here last Friday morning. The Chinese Commissioner in charge of the arrangements asked me to use one of the eleven large tents erected for entertaining the 7000 men of the fleet and asked me also to use $2000 or more in furnishing it. I wish you could just look in on us. The tent is crowded all day. As soon as the men came ashore in the morning they steer straight for the Y.M.C.A. tent. Our post office sells only $600 of stamps a day. The first day about $5000 of money was changed by our schroff[?]. In three days we have sold some 30000 souvenir post cards. Yesterday we held services on board four of the ships. About 300 attended. In the afternoon we held a song service in the Y.M.C.A. tent with the men sitting and standing in every available square foot of shade. It does me good to see these boys- many of them young ones writing to Mother and Father and brother, and sisters. It will do them good too. The Amoy people are doing all in their power to help and use the Y.M.C.A. as the medium thru which they work. It is a thrilling sight to see this motion, which is professedly non Christian asking the help of a Christian organization in this entertaining and giving absolutely free hand to use our own materials and spend money as we choose. We have the full confidence of the Commissioner of Arrangements. It also thrills me to hear the Amoy people say continually, "The Y.M.C.A. tent is by far the best patronized and the most useful place of the whole scheme. "This is true."

Sat evening I was invited by the Chinese officials to the dinner given by them to Admiral and officers of the fleet and the other dignitaries. The Prince met me at the door and shook hands as cordially and chatted as pleasantly as did President Roosevelt when he received visitors at the White House.

Very Sincerely Yours

Will.

This letter I wrote and asked my teacher who has studied English since last fall to copy it. Ellen's last letter said all were well. This is Tues. a.m. The Y.M.C.A. tent is packed as usual and the boys are reading, chatting, and all the tables are full of men writing.

Lovingly Will

Amoy, Nov. 4- 1908

My dearest Ellen:-

Last night at 11 p.m. just as I had taken off I wound my watch preparatory to retiring in the Y.M.C.A. tent I noticed a stir near the front of the tent outside and stepped out of my room to see about 5 ft. square of the mat roofing on fire. I ran out immediately and saw that nothing could be done to save the tent, so Roy and I at once carried out all our personal effects. Then I with three soldiers carried out the piano. Most of the bamboo chairs and tables were at once taken out. All the furniture was gotten out of the whole tent. But the electric lights were soon put out by the fire and the soldiers stole post cards, paper cigars with alacrity. Mr. Rankin lost a camera. It was 1:15 this a.m. when we had put our effects into the hands of Major Soon Chi near whom I had sat that evening at dinner and we started for Mrs. Beattie's house in a sampan.

The fire started from fireworks that had been set off on an adjacent hill. I remained outside the tent till I thought all was over and every thing safe. If it had to be it came at the most opportune moment, ten minutes more and we would have been had, and would have had hard work to save much. I had just that afternoon late given all my money to the Banker and all other valuables had been taken out of my room, for three or days and nights many valuable things had been left there. But Mr. Rankin's camera was all that I could learn of that was lost of value.

No one was hurt and as I have thought it all over God has most wonderfully led in all our movements. He will lead still. B-fast bell at 7:25 is ringing.

Lovingly Will.

Dear folks at home:-

Enclosed are some pictures of myself which I intended to reach these people for Xmas but these slow Chinese prevented. Will you please give one to each of the people on the list enclosed? I have as many more of myself taken on my veranda which I will send later, when I get some envelopes big enough for them. I'd like you to keep this list so as to give the others out to them when I send them.

We had a most happy Thanksgiving at the Consulate- sixty-five plates laid and we were a merry company. Four of us went dressed in old fashioned costumes and were the choir for the old fashioned songs which we sung later in the evening. I resurrected Aunt Elizabeth's [possibly Margaret Elizabeth Beard, 2nd wife of James Henry Beard.] old pink chambray and matched it exactly with pink silk, and made it up so that with an old fashioned lace collar of Mrs. Gracey's and some old jewelry with my hair powdered I looked quite like 'ye old fashioned dame.' We sewed some bamboos into our petticoats and had hoops. Mrs. Gracey lent us some elegant old shawls and we made poke bonnets out of my Tamsui hats, which were most fetching. Mrs. McLachlin trimmed hers with real red chrysanthemums-those big blossoms that are buff on the other side of the petals. She was a beauty all in red with two of her husbands red neckties for trimming and strings. We dressed up the two men in some of Mrs. Gracey's real lace and corn-starched their hair and we had a good time. - Now, it is Xmas week. We have but the one day vacation for we are to have three weeks at Chinese New Years. We all go to dine with the Methodists, who always have a big dinner on that day. They simply let all their cooks meet and decide on the amount they can get the dinner up for. It usually amounts to less than the expense of an extra dinner at home- and we have the pleasure of each others company. The children always have a tree afterwards and they fare much better than they would at home, for every one thinks of them first out here.-Last week Grandma Hartwell died. She fell some weeks ago and broke her leg. It was mending nicely but she gradually grew weaker and lost her mind, so that it was a blessed release. - Our trip to Shaowu is off. Mrs. Newell had to have an operation and the doctors thought she ought not to attempt quite so much of a trip until she was stronger. So I am going for a trip off in an opposite direction for about two weeks and then Mrs. Newell is going to have a house party on the mountain in their cottage. - I have not yet heard from either of the ladies about one of them coming to take my place next year. I certainly hope one of them will come, for if one doesn't I shall feel as if I ought to stay. This next term I shall have three more boys and in March a little girl is coming- possible two little girls, so it will pay some one to come. There may be a scattering of the group next year for the Hubbards and Gardners are going home for their furloughs in the middle of the year, but there are more coming on in the lower grades to take their places. I am going ahead in my preparations for coming home until I find out reasons for stopping. I shall hear now within a month, and will write you as soon as I can afterwards.

Tell Lucy I got her letter and will get the waists in time. Don't Vinnie and Anna want some, too? Ask them for while I am ordering them I might as well get them all. Last week I bought 64 yds. of silk and shall buy as much more this next week. By getting such quantities I get it very much cheaper. Nearly all of this was spoken for before I bought it. I am getting a pongee travelling dress, which will be the cheapest one I ever got and will probably be the handsomest.

With love to all-

Flora.

Dec. 20, 1908.

Tell Cousin Carrie I am looking about for her dress and will probably mail it to her, as I shall have so many things of my own that I shall not want to bring many other things in through the customs. F.B.

Dear Mother:-

By the last steamer I sent to you a lot of pictures. In this cover I enclose a key. I trust they will get to you safely. I wanted to register them but was too late that day as it was they day of the races here, so I took the risk.

There are two people waiting for me and the mail closes in a short time so I must make this letter very short. We are all well. Next Friday is Christmas and we are planning to eat dinner with the Methodist mission.

The last mail brought the Christmas cards from Ruth to us all.

Very Lovingly Your Son

My dear Phebe:-

A day or two ago I read one of your letters to Flora in which you write that you wish she would ask you to buy something for her. To help her out I am sending a little job for you. I hope it will not prove too arduous and I hope it will sort of make up for Flora's shortcoming in this line.

First I want 3 union suits for myself. Cotton, ribbed, summer weight, I cannot give you the number of these but my bust measure is 38 in. and my leg 31 in. My impression is that when I bought last I got size 38.

Then I want two more same size only heavy winter ones. I do not want the heaviest but something heavy enough to keep me warm. These also of cotton and ribbed. I would like all to button all down the front. I am not particular about color. When I was at home I bought some at Jordan & Marshes' in Boston. Perhaps you were with me. These are what I am still wearing and they have been very satisfactory.

I will enclose a check for $5.00 on the National Bank of Putnam. Please ask the firm of whom you purchase to mail them to me as follows. Wrap strongly in two bundles. (Address, Mr. Chas. L. Boynton, 120 Szechuen Road, Shanghai, China. For W.L. Beard.) You know the postage to Shanghai is the same as in the U.S. Need not register. Of course you can post them yourself if you prefer.

Yesterday was a perfect Christmas day here. The sun shone brightly all day and it was cool enough so we could wear our winter clothes but not cold enough for much fire. We took dinner with the Methodist mission. Four turkeys did us. I carved one of them. We all went and all but Kathleen sat at the table. Some of the things you sent reached us on Christmas Eve. Flora says more will come. "The Efficient Life" arrived. I thank you very much for it. Mr. Mott sent it to us one year ago and I have read it once and now am reading it again to the family. The copy you sent came just as I was getting presents off for some of our Chinese friends. So I undid the book I was sending to Mr. Ding Ming Uong and put in the copy you sent me saying it came from us and the Family at the Century Farm. I think Marjorie had a tea set. She has already served tea several times. I have had a nice LITTLE drink of her tea (milk) twice. But her doll is what takes most of her attention. Last night we did not know if she would stop rocking it long enough to go to bed. And she did take it [to] bed with her and sang to it until the light went out when the little mother forgot her doll and herself and was wrapped in the arms of Morpheus. Kathleen is just learning to grasp a rattle and flourish it to the danger of her features. When she hits her self good and hard she stops and looks with the biggest of wonder written all over her face.

We have all been just as well as could be all the fall. The children grow like weeds. Ellen says she will have to let down Phebe's dress that was made only a few months ago. I got a tailor made suite for Gould for Christmas- the first one he has had. We gave the children a see-saw for Christmas. They have given it a rest only when they have been out of the compound. It is a good strong one that will hold the whole family. Ellen and Flora are talking of trying it, I want to see them.

I had a great time at Amoy with the Fleet as you have doubtless decided e're this. But the work drags on now. I have not yet got all the accounts settled.

Mr. Ding Ming Uong will be associated with the Y.M.C.A. next year. And we will plan to open the work inside the city walls.

With lots of love to you from all

Will

Dear Phebe:-

Thank you so much for the little tie. I shall proudly wear it because you made it "all by your lonesome." It is a little beauty and may adorn my travelling suit home.

The Xmas gifts all reached here safely and made each one as happy as he could be- even to baby Kathleen- "Cackaleen" - as Marjorie calls her. She is the happiest little mortal you can imagine. She has so many smiles for people that it keeps her busy the whole time to give them. She has grown so much in the two weeks I have been away that she is fast losing her "wee, tiny baby" look. I miss her more than most any one for she is the one free-to-love person in the house.

The corsets I found here when I returned yesterday. A dozen letters and ever so many packages, just filled my desk top full. I have just written a long letter home which I have asked to have sent on to you- as it takes so long to write the description of my trip over. It also tells you of my latest plans for home coming. I think I shall ask the home people to buy my ticket home from Europe and send it to me for if I take the trip north as I wish my money may come short. However, don't do anything about it until I write.

There is one more request I wish to make of you and this is to get some more gloves for me. I would like two pairs of white silk ones and two pair of light tan silk ones something that will look all right with my dresses- the samples, enclosed. I think that number ought to get me home or at least to where I can get some. The size is No. 7.

Our house is getting alabastined and all the rooms are turned loose into the halls and it looks about the same as a dress wrong side out with the seams not overcast. We ought to look pretty fine to pay for it all. Will is away with Gould at some meetings up the Ing Hok. Phebe and Geraldine are off on a trip, too, so we are a very small family just now. I go this afternoon to spend a few days with Mrs. McLachlin and then I shall be back in school on Feb. 9. I close June 4th and shall leave for home the next week, if possible.

Lovingly-

Flora Beard.

Dear Folks at Home:-

I cannot remember that I have written you since Gould and I went to Ing Hok. We started Jan. 27th and reached home again Feb. 4th. Gould was not perfectly well for four days before starting and he has not been out of bed since we reached Ing Hok. The doctors think it is malaria. His fever got as high at 104.6 at Ing Hok once. It has been normal twice since returning. To day it was normal all the morning but rose this afternoon. He is very thin. He says he has no pain and he sleeps well each night with naps in the day time. He has missed two parties and keeps count with precision. Last evening the other children came home from a Valentine party with cakes and pop corn balls. Gould got his mother to put some into a tin hoping to save them till he was well, and he suggested this afternoon that she might paste strips of paper over the cracks to make the boxes air tight. Yesterday morning I arose at 3:30 o'clock and killed and dressed my pig. We were talking about it this afternoon and Gould wanted to know if I had engaged any of it. I asked him what he meant and he said, "Have you promised to give any away?" He said "Oh dear you are having all the good things while I am sick. Can you keep some of the spare ribs till I get well?" I bought the pig Dec. 15th 1908. It weighed 72 lbs alive at 16 cents. I gave my check for $11.00. I have fed it about $12.00. The pork after hanging all day weighed 96 lbs. To buy such pork as I shall have if all goes well would cost here at the very least 50 cents per lb. We never buy foreign ham for it retails at 75 cents per lb. Spare rib can't be bought- neither fresh sausage, - that is such as we eat. I have now on the place three rabbits 1 horse 5 hens 1 rooster and 3 capons (One hen should come off with chickens in a day or two and two dogs. The garden is a daily joy. We have had for two weeks carrots, cauliflower and cabbage, and we have had lettuce for six weeks. Then beets, parsnips, onions, turnips, radishes, tomatoes, and beans are coming on. Our strawberries are just beginning to turn red. We shall be eating them in a month if all goes well.

During the vacation we had some of the alabastine put on the walls. It is difficult to get the Chinese workmen to do good...

Dear folks at home:-

Ruth's letters are here at hand. I have her orders for lace all ready to send but am waiting for one or two from here. The amount of the bill does not matter so long as it is over $10 silver, so Ruth need not feel that I am put to any inconvenience about it. The only trouble that it may be may occur to you people at home as it may be necessary for me to ask you to send me some money. I will let you know very soon for I expect to complete my travelling plans very soon. Now, it looks as if I should take the water trip, for it is so hard to get travelling companions to go across Siberia. Besides, I prefer the water anyway and people who have taken the trip in July and August say it is no worse then than any other time. This will make a difference of about two weeks in the time of my reaching London. I expect now to take a Japanese steamer at Shanghai, which will land me in London.

About the luncheon set. I think your plan of giving it to Helen for an engagement gift is O.K. If you decide to do that I'd like to join in and let it come from us. It would make each one of us five give about 50 cents gold. Is that too much? If you think it is, plan as you think best and let me know. I have a set nearly down and will send them. The pattern is not like the one I sent mama but I think is prettier. I shall send it in two parcels and there will be one centerpiece, six plate doilies, six finger bowl doilies, and six tumbler doilies.

I have written Helen and was sure I had sent a waist home to her, but am having one embroidered for her now, so she will have it very soon.

Mrs. Newell has your dress, Ruth, and she arrives in New York on the 7th of April on the Princess Irene of the North German Lloyd line. I have given her your address and she will visit you on her way up to Boston. She will write you from New York when she is to come so that you may meet her in time to reach her on the Princess Irene as it lies in quarantine and ask her to write a day or two in advance so you would be sure to get it. She has been a specially good friend of mine out here and her husband is the man the Shelton Cong. Ch. helps to support.

A week later. - I am sending next week to Shanghai, some parcels, to be mailed in the U.S. P.O., one to Helen, one each to Lucy, Elizabeth, and Ruth, and one to Cousin Carrie. All are waists except the ones to Century Farm and that is the luncheon set. The rest of the silk for Lucy's waist I mailed a few weeks ago. It is the one for Nellie with the extra cloth she spoke about.

Sometime during this week I shall book for my trip home. I can go from Shanghai to New York via Suez by the German Line for 44 L. I change at Naples. This will give me a breathing space in a country I have never seen. I leave Shanghai about the middle of July and I reach New York the last week of August.

We are feeling very anxious these days over Gould. Over three weeks ago he had a chill and has had a fever ever since. For nearly three weeks the doctors treated him for malaria but they have nearly decided now, since it has not yielded, that it must be typhoid. It has run now for twenty four days and still keeps the see-saw between 101 degrees and 103 degrees. He has absolutely no pain but is a mere shadow. I have not seen him since Wednesday. I can do no good if I go, and it is better for him to be quiet. He rests very well nights and suffers none in the day time but the fever is so persistent. The rest of us are pretty well. Will is looking very tired with the nursing and worry, for he cares for Gould during the nights. He is not doing much outside work.

School has opened very pleasantly and the new boys have fitted right into their classes so well that I hardly think of them as new. To-morrow is Feb. 22, and if it is clear we are to take a long walk and on the way visit a camphor factory, some glass works, and we shall have tea in a grove about a mile out. If it rains we shall have tea at the house of some of the children.

Kathleen is just as sweet and winsome as ever. She is so busy smiling and cooing that when she does get time to cry it is so short that she just does it up as hard as she can- or in other words- she howls. It is usually because she thinks the horn for her dinner has been prolonged too far.

Ruth, you may tell Mrs. Bissell that I have sent her name to the company who makes the silk and lace. She can get it just as well from them as me and even with the duty (which I would not be able to save on the quantity she would wish she will be pleased with their goods. They are missionaries and will be glad to send to her I think. I could send for some lace if I only knew what she wants but it will be too late to get word back now, as I leave Foochow the week following Jun. 4. I expect to call at Chefoo on my way up to Peking and shall find out then what I can do for the future. I am sending an order for nearly a hundred dollars worth of material from up there.

I am going to ask some of you to send me $50 sometime before I reach home as getting all these things somewhat cripple my money supply for going home. I am ordering some silk to go to Miss Plain [or possibly Playne as Willard spelled it in an earlier letter] and paying her bill for her- as all has to be in advance.

I will write again as soon as I decide about affairs and explain in detail about doings and what I wish of you.

With love to you all-
Flora Beard.

Foochow, China Feb. 27 1909

My dear Mother:-

Your good letters of Jan. 17th came very promptly and we enjoyed them greatly. Some from Ruth, and Phebe came at the same time. As to the $300 from Aunt Louise. I should like it put into the Derby Savings Bank.-I have some money there already and I believe you have the book- as possibly it is father who has it. I am not at all particular about what Bank the money is put into, if you people think a Bridgeport or an Ansonia Bank is better I am perfectly satisfied. It may be less trouble for you to just put it into the Derby Bank.

Gould's temperature was normal yesterday at 8 a.m. and 12 a.m. It rose slightly in the evening but is normal this morning. There is still something wrong with his alimentary canal [digestive system] and Doctor thinks he has it now so he can check it. His appetite is improving every day and he takes milk, Mellin's food, Oat Groats and Junket milk and asks for more. I feel that he ought to set up soon.

My work this year is likely to be in the City. I shall likely engage 3 coolies and go in each morning and take lunch there and return in the afternoon. When we shall be transferred to the American Board I cannot tell.

I judge Uncle Will is getting quite feeble. [Oliver Gould Beard's brother, William Thomas Beard, born Dec. 5, 1831, died October 30, 1911.] It seemed quite the right thing to do to have them go down to Nellies. Helen is happy and she has earned her right and I hope for her many years of happiness.

I am just going over to book Flora for New York. She plans to go by N.D.L. the same line that we went home on.-Sails July 10th from Shanghai on the "York."

March 2nd: Things have so piled up on me this week that I still have this letter. I shall plan to mail it tomorrow. Gould's fever has quite left him and he is eating "slops" as Dr. Rennie calls his liquid foods- for keeps- looking forward with pleasant anticipation to the time when he can take "solid food."

With love to all
Will.

[This letter dated Feb. 28, 1909 was written from Foochow, China by Flora to the folks at home. She tells more of her travel plans back to the U.S. in July. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Feb. 28, 1909.

Dear folks at home:-

Mama's letters to us all came last week. I had a fat mail- 9 letters- good ones, too, but I am waiting for some more to-morrow.

Well, Gould is really on the mend. His fever ran thirty days and even yesterday did not stay down to normal the whole twenty four hours. He is eating well- of course nothing but liquids, but he takes a bowl full of something every two hours from 8 A.M. to 8 P.M. He is but a shadow but at the rate he is going his food ought to give him substance. I am feeling much better about him for I had never known of such a long run of fever before. Dr. Renney said one of his patients kept up such a fever for nearly four months and then got well. This climate- and especially just now during the rainy season- produces such things and it is only one's stored-up vitality that brings one out. The medicines did little if any good with Gould, and finally they stopped giving him any and fed him. Since then the fever has slowly subsided.

Well, since I can get none of you to come to meet me, I have booked myself for home. I have decided to try 2nd class on the North German Lloyd and leave Shanghai on July 10 and reach Naples Aug. 15. I do not yet know my steamer from there but shall take the first one home which ought to land me in New York sometime during the first week of September.

I close school June 4th and get away the following week for Shanghai and Peking by steamer. I am to have a week or ten days in Peking and then go by rail to Hankow, thence by boat to Nanking, where I wish to spend a day or two and then get back to Shanghai by rail ready for the steamer home. It is getting me into New York later than I wished but it is an opportunity that I do not wish to lose, while I am in the East.

Now, as to the money. I wish Mama would keep two hundred and fifty dollars for part of my debt to her and send the other two hundred fifty to me- in this way. Ask papa to send $250 to Mr. H.P. Andersen, 124 E 28th St., New York City, and ask him to send it by draft on London to Will. The reason for this seeming extravagance is that I wish to send some of the requests home and I am fearful that the moneys could not reach me in time for my use of them, so I am asking my friends to send their checks directly to papa. I will write late a specific list of each sender and the amount he is to receive from each. I am enclosing the addresses in separate card. Please send this as soon as possible. It will hardly get here before I leave if you can send it at once.- I will write you when I find out my other steamer.

I am glad to hear that Ruth is in the library again and hope all things go together for her good. I believe it will be a good thing.

I had a letter from Helen that did me good, and am answering it at once.

Will write again in a few days.

With love to all-

Flora Beard.

[This letter dated March 14, 1909 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to the folks at home. Gould can now sit up in bed. Rainy weather has delayed the finishing of the Foochow City Y.M.C.A. He briefly mentions the death of the Emperor. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

March 14th 1909

Dear Folks at Home:-

All has gone nicely here since I last wrote. Gould has continued to mend daily. He is now on good rations and is getting strong fast. He sits up in bed to eat and can get from one bed to another without help. The girls are all growing like weeds.

Flora has been laughing at us for talking about a rainy season,-until this year. Since she began her school Feb. 9th we have had only a few clear days. I am getting almost tired of waiting for the new premises for the Foochow City Y.M.C.A. to get dry so we can open up work. The mason the other day declared he had been over one wall five times and the rain had destroyed his work as many times.

My garden continues to be a great joy only I don't get much of the joy first hand these days for I go into the city six days in the week and take my dinner. But it's a great pleasure to see the things grow. I have picked six strawberries ripe and good to eat. This morning all the family but Gould, Kathleen and I went to church. Kathleen and I fed the pony, the three rabbits, the old hen and her two chickens and then we picked lettuce for dinner. Kathleen was interested in it all as if she really had knowledge of what was being done. I tried to set a hen on some eggs which are said to produce hens that never set. But after setting a week she went to sleep not to wake and the eggs were a total loss. The old gatekeeper who cares for the fowls when Phebe does not felt quite cut up over it and today has been home and has returned with four chicks about a month old.

A week ago last night the Y.M.C.A. here held its second annual banquet. The plates were 65 cents each which also included a ticket to the cinematograph show the evening before. 264 plates were set. About 200 ate. The night was very stormy and some were detained.

The foreign Sunday School held a very interesting session this morning when each one gave some part of David Livingstone's life [Scottish missionary and explorer of Africa (1813-1873). Could this man be the inspiration for Willard's middle name?]. We now number twenty.

Last evening we had the pleasure of opening a box from Putnam. I do not know that it was intended for a Christmas box but it was just as good. I'll not try to tell all that was in it. Two things interest me greatly- a pail of Father [Myron] Kinney's honey and two ears of sweet corn. I have already ordered from San Francisco some corn but, this is now here and I shall plant it in another week or so.- There was also some pumpkin seed. An enlarged photograph of the Kinney family which I took just before leaving Putnam in 1904 is excellent. If you do not have one you should write for one to match the Beard family picture enlarged from the same camera.

A cable from New York last week announced that they had found a teacher for telegraphy and I cabled for them to send him at once. I have spent about $75.00 mex and the New York office must have spent nearly $50.00 gold in cablegrams over these teachers for the Gov't Schools. To show how things move here etc.,- I witnessed the signing of the first contract last week. Henry Lacy arrived the first of last Sept. and we have been all this time getting the contract into shape- there was a contract with me previously so there really was no hurry. The work in Amoy and later the death of the Emperor also delayed the matter.

Four ladies from the Branch of the Interior of the Am. Board are here. Two have gone to Shaowu. The other two are looking at Ing Hok and other places.

Trusting that all are well and sending love for all of us here.

Your Loving Son and Brother

Will.

Foochow Young Men's Christian Association

Ngu Ka Mar 22 '09

My dear Mother:-

At five o'clock this afternoon I sit in the loft of a chapel under the Church Missionary Society's mission, 25 miles from the city of Hing Hua. I left this last named place at 7:45 this morning, rode a pony for six miles and have walked and rode in a sedan the rest of the way. I have just finished the Life of Charles George Gordon ("Chinese" Gordon). It leaves a sad stamp on my mind. But I have just written in my diary that his deals are mine.- He had no desire for man's praise and no fear of man's ridicule; he was ever looking to help man- and always the weak ones, and to the last he knew no resentment altho few have had more cause for resentment. In the darkest hours he was sure of God's will and loving providence.

What has been my business in Hing Hua? One of the 8 men missionaries there had been trying to rush thru the opening of a City Y.M.C.A. and the others did not like- and rightly. So I have taken 6 days to get these men to agree on policy. The effort has been entirely successful as far as I can see. A Chinese young man from Hing Hua has been in Shanghai for a year and a half studying the Y.M.C.A. work. When he passed thru Foochow in Jan. I had a perfect understanding with him as to his method of work in Hing Hua and this visit has simply put him back on this old track. I wonder if I shall describe my room,-12 windows 16 in. X 30 in. 1 door 2 ft. wide. Every rafter shows and of course all the roof boards. The walls were fairly white when the line was put on- but they are not white now. The floor has been freshly swept, and the dust that was harmlessly reposing there is flying about in the air and settling all about. For supper I shall have a bowl of rice- a boiled egg, bread and butter, jam and some crullers. I shall have the luxury of sleeping alone tonight. When I passed thru here on my way down last Thurs. night I stopped in a Chinese inn and shared a room with my five coolies. The charge was 50 cents for 1 bowl of rice- worth 1 cents- boiling four eggs at once and boiling a little oatmeal and the use of a bare bed. I prefer to give my money to this Christian preacher.

I have not heard from home since I left last Wed. at 9 p.m. so I expect Gould is improving- he ate supper with us that evening for the first time since Jan. 27. He has had a long siege. But I trust he will be all the better for the rest. He seemed during the last week I was at home to be gaining constantly and rapidly.

The farmers are busy all along the way preparing the fields for rice. Some early ones have rice already above ground. The scene before me when I take my eyes from the paper is restful and beautiful. First and nearest the chapel is a newly plowed field- from which the wheat has just been reaped. It is now ready for peas or potatoes. A woman is cleaning up the wheat from a threshing floor- such as Ruth (not Ruth Beard) knew about in the time of Boaz, while her little girl of perhaps 8 summers holds the heifer as she grazes. The heifer has left the scattered spears of grass on the newly reaped bean field, and is taking a good mouthful of wheat from the next field- still unreaped. The little girl is pelting her with lumps of earth. The girl is victorious. Farther off there is an orchard of some fruit trees- then yellow wheat fields- peach orchards in bloom. Then some 2 miles away the mountains begin and their tops touch the low lying clouds- the mountain sides are bare, while the people "grab" them for a little grass or brush with which to boil rice.

I shall walk about 24 miles tomorrow, take a boat about 20 miles and be at home- And yet as the people talk among themselves here I cannot understand one word in ten. But I am on the line of the proposed R.R. between Amoy and Foochow. I'll sign my name after getting home.

[This letter dated April 4, 1909 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to Oliver, Grace and the Girls. Willard discusses the effect that the death of the Emperor had, and provides a description of his daily work schedule. Original letter is in the archives of Yale Divinity School.]

Foochow, China, April 4th 1909

Dear Oliver, Grace and the Girls:-

Oliver's letter came a little over a week ago. As I may have written before your letters give one a view of conditions at home that I do not get from other sources. I wish you had said more about yourself,- your business- your family. I see you are still in Bridgeport- are you still in the same business there or do you give your whole time to the B.N. Beard Co.?

The Emperor's death effects things thus far about as much as the death of a President at home does,- only differently. Everybody hurried up and got married at once when the death was announced so they could have fire crackers and feasts at the wedding. [Is this done prior to the start of the mourning period?] No one shaved for 100 days. They were a shaggy looking lot for the last ten months. Politically things go on much as they do in a change of administrations at home- only with less changes. Yuan Shi Kai was probably put on the shelf from the personal spite of the Prince Regent, Chen Pi (Commissioner of Post and Communications) was cashiered [dismissed from service] for graft and squeezing. He is a Foochow man, has come down to Shanghai and probably is ashamed to come home at once- may get back in the fall. These are the two big changes in Peking. Chen Bo Ting a big man here with whom I have had more or less to do in different matters will start soon for Peking to help teach Hsuan-Ting his a,b,c's and possible act as Literary Chancellor for the Empire. He gave me $50 for the Y.M.C.A. the other day. It ought to have been $200 and I am lying low to get a chance to see him again before he gets off for Peking. China is doing nobly in the line of education. This does not mean that her system is perfect, but when one recalls that ten years ago there seemed to be no thought of modern education and then sees fine brick buildings rising in different parts of the capitols of the provinces all over China, with teachers- English, French, German, Japanese and not least American, beside Chinese educated abroad, the progress made is marvelous. In the normal school here there are some 900 students- in other colleges 200 and 800 and 400. China has also done marvelously in decreasing the growth and consumption of opium. I doubt if better work has ever been done in the line of temperance in a space of three years.

Your sizing up of the industrial situation at home has not come out in the papers. It is hard work to translate the exact truth from the papers. But if there is no surplus stock on hand to glut the market, better times should dawn in the near future.

When am I coming home again? etc. It's hard to tell. My term is up Feb. 17th 1911. I may have to stay here and in this work until then. My mind is fixed that it will be no longer- The Am. Board is pulling hard both at home in Boston and here in the mission for us to come back to the mission at once. This would please me, but the Y.M.C.A. is not as yet willing to consent and I cannot now honorably resign. I have told Brockman that he must get another man here in the fall. If they will not release me as soon as he comes, they must get him here so I can sever my connection at the very latest at the end of a six years term, Feb 1911. The work grows less and less attractive to me,- not that there is not enough to do or that it is not work that ought to be done. But I feel that others- new and younger men can do it better on the one hand and then the Foochow mission of the Am. Board is now in dire need of men and I can help them. The mission work is fundamental ??????????????[not all of the letter fit the page when copied] ... wanted. But just now I wish the Association would loosen its hold a little.

My daily routine is about as follows. After breakfast at 7:30, work at my desk until 9:45, get with my chair and ride into the city- an hour, talk briefly with Ming Uong about plans and business,- teach English for 1 hr. 15 min., eat my lunch- give directions until 1:40, walk 15 min. to the Am. Board Theol. School teach "Hebrews" in Chinese 1 hr., go back to Y.M.C.A. teach Eng. 4-6- ride home 1 hr.- supper- in the evening write my lecture for next day on Hebrews. I have just received from Mott who is chairman of commission on "Carrying the Gospel to all the World" a list of questions that ought to take a good solid two days to write- to be finished in April. These things are coming to a fellow all the time. I have three such tasks- two of which must be gotten off this week- (Mott's questionnaire is for The World Missionary Conference- Edinburgh June 1910.) Then I must make on an average about two addresses a week beside getting in committee meetings- Well this is enough- I don't often indulge in this sort of writing and I'll stop it now.

Gould had typhoid and malaria that pulled him down well. But he is all right again and will be in school next week. All the rest are well,- except colds. We have been very free from colds all winter till a week ago. These are now getting better. Flora starts from Shanghai July 12 lands in N.Y. Sept. 1. She feels I think that she has had a valuable experience. Financially she has not done badly. She will not bring home any money but she had done a lot of travelling and has spent a lot in curios etc. The Foochow people hate to see her go. She has rendered a service to our children that will last as long as eternity.

Give my love to all

Will

Foochow Young Men's Christian Associations

April 18th 1909

My dear Father:-

Your letter containing Zina's bill came in the last mail. Thank you very much for the present. As most of the goods are eatables, they will be all the sweeter when we think where they came. Your picture of the home and the farm was a vivid and interesting one. I am not sure but the older children will always associate Jennie and the stags with the farm. I expect they would enjoy raising calves for a time. One of the regrettable factors in our life here is that there is nothing for the children to do regularly- that they must do. On the mountain Gould had to take the whole care of his horse or the horse was not cared for. He did very well. But in Foochow there are servants whom he can get to do it and we have one old man who wants to do it and Gould is not averse to letting him. We have corn, beans, cabbages, lettuce, carrots, tomatoes, beets, parsnips, squash spinach, turnips either ready to pick or on the way. O yes and strawberries. Do you remember when I was about 13 years old you left me to plant the S.W. corner of the S.E. meadow next the spring lot, with corn, and that I did the job in an incredibly short time? The corner never came up. I did not put earth enough on it. The other day I left Gould to plant some beans with the gardener's help. Two days ago I was looking at the garden and trying to find the beans. There they were in plain sight. A good rain had washed the little earth off of them

How I should enjoy it on the farm for the next month. I get so tired here at times that I would give a good deal for a month of open work on the farm. I think often what a relief it would be during the next furlough to not be under the Y.M.C.A. or the Board, just be free- But this would not be best I suppose, as society and business is constituted one can scarcely expect to go to the other side of the world and find a job suited to his ability and for a year and a half earn a living for a family like ours, and then step right back in the traces again and go on without losing anything. I shall likely be under the Board during my furlough, and they never ask a returned missionary to work if he even hints that he is too tired.

Warm weather is feeling of us. Last Wed. was very hot and today has been pretty warm. The spring is late. Grass is only starting and the trees that shed their leaves are not full of foliage yet.

Gould is looking very well indeed and is as strong as ever. Kathleen is trying to cut her first teeth, is struggling with a cold, is trying to get used to the change from the mother to Mellin's food all at once. She thinks it pretty tough, but she is standing it well. The others are quite well. Flora got tired yesterday and took a little cold and has a tooth ache. She has definitely decided to go from South Hampton to New York on the "George Washington" North German Lloyd, starting Aug. 22nd fr. S. Hampton. Three of the Foochow Meth. ladies plan to go with her. I am glad of this for her return journey will be so much pleasanter.

I wonder how mother's chickens are coming on. I have 5 a month old.- set another hen last night. Tell Elizabeth that I'd go in for chicken raising if I were she. I'd nurse the hens up and bribe them to lay when eggs were 60 cents a doz.- This is easily written- isn't it? Trusting the Heavenly Father to care for us all

With much love to all

Will.

The receipt for insurance came all right. Thank you. W.

Foochow, China
May 16th 1909.

My dear Mother and the others at Century Farm:-

Last night about 10:30 a big mail arrived, and in it was your letter to Flora and also one from Helen and one from Leolyn. Phebe also had one from Great Aunt Emma of Putnam. So we felt quite up to date regarding our knowledge of home affairs.

In the last mail I sent a letter in Ruth's name- the letter I wrote while away from home,- or some of them. As soon as I got away Marjorie and Kathleen began to "act up." Marjorie tried to have croup and Kathleen took a heavy cold and got two teeth and had to be weaned. All together Ellen had a pretty tough time. But as has nearly always occurred, they were all right by the time I got home. Kathleen shows her hard usage a little and Ellen is very tired. Gould is as fat as he has ever been. I do not think he has ever looked better. Today he has been into the city with me to attend the Y.M.C.A. meeting. We hold it on Sunday afternoon and try to make it a "Pleasant Sunday afternoon." Over 100 were in attendance this afternoon.

The trip to Iong Kau was full of interest all the way. The water in the river was so high when I started that no boat would take me the first five miles where the launch started so I walked up. I staid over night in a Chinese inn. A short distance from the starting place a small rapid is formed by the falling into the river of an old stone bridge. The launch got up this rapid on the fifth trial- it took an hour. About 30 miles up a man fell overboard and was drowned before our eyes. My boat was waiting at the port of the rapids when the launch arrived and we made Iong Bing at 2 p.m. Monday= 200 li or 70 miles up rapids- time Frid. 5 p.m.-7:15 p.m. Sat 5:45 a.m.-7:15 p.m.(The men ate 5 times that day.) Sun 3 miles- (a Sabbath day's journey) Mon. 5:15 a.m.- 2p.m. This is counted very rapid going. I was half a day ahead of time, and stopped to play the rest of the day. Iong Kau is 120 li above Iong Bing. The rapids are steeper and it took Tues. and Wed. to make the 120 li or 40 miles.

We had an eminently successful Conference. 16 pastors and preachers from the Am. Board and as many from the Meth- 32 in all and 10 laymen. They demanded another Conference next year. We met for 4 days. They asked for at least 8 days next year. While there rain fell heavily and the river rose nearly ten feet. On Sat. a boat got untied and turned over and was completely lost with two little girls. That boat was the only home of the family. A contribution was taken up at once among the shop keepers and over $20 raised for the sufferers. On Monday morning I wanted to start for home. The river was so high no boat dared go. We waited till 1:30 p.m. and went 15 mi. down in 2 hours. Just below this was a very dangerous rapid and the water was too high to go over it. When the water is too high the waves are so big that they swamp the boats. And the whirlpools are so violent that they dash the boats on the rocks in spite of all the men can do. The water fell 2 ft. Mon. night and we went down Tues. all night, reaching level water at 6 p.m. At 2:30 Wed. a.m. we were again off. At 9 a.m. the wind blew hard up stream and I hailed the down launch and reached home at 2 p.m. My boat got in the next a.m. about 10. I was gone 13 days- nine days of travel for four days of work.

The garden is still a joy. Yesterday we had a boiled dinner. Corned beef and potatoes we brought from our garden. We had beets, carrots, parsnips, turnips and lettuce, and salt pork from our awar barrel (stone jar). Three rabbits are getting ready for the pot and 15 little chickens are growing fast.

The draft that father sent for Flora came last night $250.

The three boarding children are all down at Mrs. Hubbards over Sunday- It is a great relief. When school is closed and Flora goes we shall feel lonely – although there are eight of us in the family.

While I was up river another man for the government school arrived. This one brought his wife and baby. It proved all right tho for the other two men had to themselves. The whole of the house which we built the year before we left for furlough. The school has rented it for the year of the mission and Miss Wallace is acting as housekeeper.

The family are all in bed and I ought to be so good night- with love and a prayer for the Father's blessing.
Will.

[This letter date about June 1909 was written from Shanghai, China by Flora to the folks at home. Flora has started her trip back to the U.S. and tells a little about some of the other passengers on board. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[Abt June, 1909]

Dear folks at home [Willard's family in Foochow]:-

I am here safe and sound at Mrs. Lacy's. Our steamer got in this A.M. about 5:30. Mrs. Lacy was there to meet me, so we just left my things all on the steamer and her boy is now after them. It was rainy all the way up but the sea was quite calm. I spent one day enjoying(?) a case of "mal de mer", but Capt. Richards assured me that my voyage would do me more good. He was very jolly and I had a good time. I had the cigarette people as my fellow passengers, but got some fun out of them. The American tried to pump me on the missionary side of the question but he did not get much for his trouble. The Chinaman seemed to me to have a big case of swelled head. He had sunk several thousand dollars in that old steamer hulk lying at the arsenal there in Foochow. Some company has bought it for a line between Shanghai and Ningpo. The American got to talking about justice to foreigners in Japan and as an instance of their injustice he told of a case quite similar to what happened in Foochow. I drew my own conclusions.

I am going out to do my shopping very soon and expect to get my ticket for Tientsin on a boat leaving here at daylight Tuesday. This gives me leisure for getting all my shopping and calling done. Mrs. Gammon and her family are now on their way to America so I shall not see them. I am going to call on Mrs. Segerdals and I shall find out some things from her to help me I am sure.

I find that I am short two of my white skirts- one long one (tucked) and a short one that the washman did not iron that last day. There may be two of the short ones, for I cannot remember packing the other like it. I am off without any short one and it is actually cool here. Will you please give the skirts to Dr. Betow?

The German Mail leaves this P.M. for Foochow so you ought to get this by Monday.

I hope Will is keeping better. I want to hear just how he is. Don't forget to tell me. Direct your letter to Peking care of American Board, and I think I'll get it.

Dr. Lacy's fever is not all gone yet, but runs very low. They say he is getting along as well as he can.

With love to all and a special hug and kiss for Kathleen, which Marjorie may give her for me, I am,

Lovingly yours-

Flora Beard.

[This letter dated July 21, 1909 was written between Hong Kong and Singapore by Flora to the folks at home. She talks about her visit to Hong Kong, the weather and some of the people on her ship. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[July 21, 1909]

Dear folks at home:-

We are half way between Hong Kong and Singapore. The sea is as calm as the air is balmy. We are sitting on the very top deck at the very rise of the vessel with only an awning over us. The screw is the only jar to the occasion, and it may make my writing look very unreal at times.

Last Monday, I spent in Foochow with Will. He came down from the mountain to meet me. It was a perfect day and I was up before 5 A.M. to watch the scenery as we went up the river. There were frequent showers which made the most beautiful rainbows that I have seen and would leave the mountains beautifully clear and green. It was not extremely hot up in [the] city and our veranda was most comfortable cool. Will and Henry Lacy came back to the boat and had dinner with me for our steamer would not go out of the river until tide and daylight came.

We reached Hong Kong Wednesday afternoon. There were heavy mists hanging over the hills and mountain tops so that we lost much of the beauty of the entrance to the harbor, but there was enough to be seen to make one imagine its real beauty. We were met by a pilot when we were almost in the harbor, who simply took us to a safe place to anchor as a typhoon was due in a few hours, and it was unsafe to go to the wharf. All the craft were out near us waiting for the same reason. We had the threatening gusts of wind and occasional showers of rain, but between times we had beautiful glimpses of the city with its lights clear to the tops of the peak. It was most wonderful after night has fallen so dark that we could not distinguish the outline of the hills. Then it looked like a galaxy of stars on the horizon. The next morning we awoke just as the steamer was getting under headway for the dock. It was somewhat rainy so that we put off going ashore until after tiffin (or lunch so I must remember to day now that I am headed toward western civilization). Then Miss Corner (one of the members of our party) and I went out to find the ferry for Hong Kong. (The steamer lands at Kowloon just across from the island of Hong Kong.) It was raining a little but the jinrickshas there cover one up so completely that we did not suffer. By the time we were ready to take the ferry back the rain was driving in gusts and the water looked anything but inviting to cross. We got on to the other side and waited for the pour to let up. The longer we waited the harder the rain came and the more fiercely the wind drove it, so we called rickshaws- although our boat was not as far away as our house at home is from the road. We got separated and were landed at different places but I was under cover. I found a Chinese who could speak English and he pointed the way to my steamer. There was nothing to do but to go out into the storm and walk the length of the pier dodging rails, ropes, and trucks- meanwhile getting drenched to the skin. When I got on to the boat it was to find out that the sailing of the boat had been put off till morning. This gave us another fine view of Hong Kong, for by evening the rain was over and we could see the surrounding hills beautifully.

The next morning dawned bright and clear and showed up the surrounding islands well, but as we got out into the sea we met huge waves which put us flat in our chairs for the rest of the day. By Saturday morning the sea was calm and every one feeling fine again. The weather is mild and we have a good breeze. I am dressed in my thinnest clothes and do not need a wrap, even in the wind.

I have bought a very pretty folding steamer chair made of bamboo and twisted seagrass, which I am hoping will last through my travels for the dining-room porch at home. It is very well made and has brass ends to each of its numerous legs so it ought to last. I gave only $3 silver for it, so if it fails me it has cost less than the lining of a steamer chair to England.

There is a possibility that I may not reach Southampton in time for the George Washington. If I do not I will cable you on my arrival in England as soon as I find out what steamer I can get. If you hear nothing from me I shall be on the Geo. Washington in New York on Aug. 29th. We are two days late now, but the officers all say we shall make up the time- which I sincerely hope they may.

There are very few people on board- even in the first class. Our passenger list keeps changing but there are about a dozen of us through passengers. One old army surgeon, three teachers from Manilla, a very blase New York youth in search of health(?) among cigarettes, beer schooners, curio venders, etc., a good looking Austrian youth, a wicked looking rosy cheeked French woman, a wall-eyed German, an English missionary, his wife, and two incorrigible children, Miss Cormer, (a teacher from Shanghai), Dr. Betow, and myself make up the best of the lot. The rest are two Russian prostitutes and nearly a dozen Chinese. The latter I imagine will leave us at Singapore as that is a great rendezvous for Chinese.

July 21st, 5 A.M.- We are at Singapore and have gotten up this early to take a drive before the sun gets too hot. A friend of Miss Cormer's here is to be our guide. We had an invitation to take tiffin on shore but as our boat leaves at noon we cannot have that pleasure.

As it is time for our early breakfast and we are to start for our drive at 5:30 I will tell you in my next about the day.

With love to all my readers, I am-

Yours sincerely-

Flora Beard.

Swatau [or Swatow], China
Aug. 7th 1909.

Dear Folks at Home:-

A week ago this morning at 5:30 I left Kuliang- kissed the children while they were still asleep and started for Swatau. The steamer dropped anchor here Tues. a.m. at 6 o'clock. The Student's Summer conference had been in session already half an hour. It closed last evening. I came planning to speak twice. I have spoken at least ten times. We have had a good conference and organized on permanent lines, with a committee appointed to arrange for next year. I plan to take a steamer for Foochow this afternoon- stopping at Amoy tomorrow at daylight- preaching there in English tomorrow evening- leaving Monday noon and getting to Foochow Tues. a.m. and to Kuliang that evening. All were quite well when I left and we were enjoying our boarders the Wallaces. Kuliang is very full and it is likely that some cottages will house one family in July and another in August. No rain fell during July so rice fields and potatoes were suffering badly. But thus far we have had no typhoon. Yesterday was the anniversary of the big 1899 typhoon and Ellen has always invited the refugees to meet at our cottage in memory of the event. Before I have always been there.

Kathleen is a year old next Tues. and I hope to see her before she goes to sleep for the night. She has the fourth tooth and is fast learning to walk. We think she will skip the creeping stage. The Kuliang veranda has palings like a picket fence around it and she was walking by these when I left. Sarah Wallace 18 months is just 4 oz. lighter than Kathleen and walking everywhere. Kathleen watches her as if she were thinking- "If you can walk I can." It seems as if the children had all taken a growing start in July. Geraldine got up from the measles nicely. The rest are running up so fast Ellen can hardly keep their knees covered. She is trying to lengthen Phebe's dresses, but she grows so fast the dresses stay at about the same mark. Marjorie enjoys "swimming" in the tank as much as any of the children. She came home the other day and said "I swam just like this", and she made her hands fly thru the air.

Phebe said she got under water but was not in the least afraid. There are now 30 shareholders of the Bathing Club and 18 young women holding Annual tickets for bathing. Your eldest son has the honor of being President of the Club. The English write it thus W.L. Beard Hon. President. The Hon. stands for honorary- not honorable as I used to think.

I wonder if you have seen any of the Foochow friends this summer- the Smith's-Hodous's -Mrs. Newell- the Smiths and Mrs. Newell will be coming back soon. The last mail from Boston brought a letter from Dr. Barton of the A.B.C.F.M. saying that he had written the Y.M.C.A. in New York that he would not press the matter of our return to the Board until this term of work was finished. This will be in Feb. 1911.

I think of Phebe, Elizabeth, Ruth and Mary as at home unless Elizabeth is in the mountains. Where will Mary be next year? Wells is most big enough to help Grandpa get his hay.

I must close now to get off for home. I find that a steady pull of 4 days makes one tired and the thought of home is sweet.

Lovingly
Will.

[This letter dated Aug. 16, 1909 was written from Kuliang by 14 year old Phebe Kinney Beard to her Aunt Ruth. She tells her about some of their activities on the mountain. Her father, Willard went to Swatow and she wishes he could stay home more. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Kuliang, Aug. 16, [1909]

Dear Aunt Ruth:-

I guess I have been owing you a letter for a good long time.

Dorothy and I, at, least, I don't remember whether Geraldine and Gould received any, or not, received the postals you sent and thought them pretty. We all have got Post Card Albums and are all trying to fill them so we are all glad for every post card that we get.

Today it is raining about half an hour ago. Dorothy, Gould, and Marjorie have put on their bathing suits and gone out into the rain. Lately we and the whole mountain have been short of water. The rice fields, too, are quite dry and cracked. This shower we hope will fill up the wells so we will have enough water. We put buckets, bath tubs, washtubs and pitchers out into the rain so that we have caught quite a lot of water.

Papa, Mama, Mrs. Wallace, and I, are going to sing in the Sacred Song Chorus. I suppose that some one has told you that we have one up here in the church every summer! We are going to sing in the Cantata of Ruth. This is the first summer that I have gone into such grown up things as this!

I have just finished a tennis tournament. It was played the American way. I and my partner got 51 games. Aunt Flora said that you used to have a tennis court on your place so you must know how to play tennis. Nearly every body out here knows how.

Kathleen was a year old on the tenth of Aug. She is eating back of me at a table now. Her amma or nurse is feeding her. She can nearly walk and has four teeth and jabbars a great deal of baby-talk.

We are going to have an Exhibition this year at last. I am braiding a raffia belt for it. Is that the way to spell that stuff? I braided one in school last spring.

Papa has been back only a little while from Swatau. He seems to have such a lot of "going" to do. We wish he could stay at home more. I guess he won't have to go away again this Summer. At least, I hope not.

We are all well and having a good time. How are the people at Shelton? I hope they are enjoying the Summer as much as we are. Marjorie is such a big girl! She is going to church and Sunday School.

We older children have plenty of children's religious meetings to go to supplies by English S.M.S. Ladies. Sending love to all from all

Phebe K. Beard.

[This letter dated Aug. 22, 1909 was written from Kuliang, Foochow, China by Willard to the folks at home. Rain is lacking and there is concern on the mountain of the wells drying up. Kuliang Foochow
Aug 22nd 1909.

Dear Folks at Home:-

I do not like to think back to when I wrote last. There is however one consolation for you because I have thought of you very frequently for the past weeks, - the frequency has been increased by the fact that I was all the time looking for a few moments in which to write to you.

Flora wrote from Singapore and sent the letter to us to be forwarded to you. This letter I enclose and also a receipt from Chefoo for some silk that Flora evidently purchased in Shong's or from Shanghai.

The summer is most gone. We have had a very dry one this year and consequently a pleasant one for us foreigners on the mountain. But the rice fields and potatoe fields have been seriously injured by the drought. Since the 20th of June we have had no rainy day. Since July 1st until Aug. 5th no rain of any kind, and since that time only showers of short duration. Most people on the mountain have been on the anxious seat over dry wells. Our cottage is so high up that we get all the breezes going and this summer the wind has been so strong that the mosquitoes actually could not thrive here and we have seen very few.

We enjoy Mr. and Mrs. Wallace who are with us as much as ever. When Ellen and I went to Geneseo, Grimmell and Des Moines in 1904 we passed over the Mich. Central from Buffalo to Detroit and went within about 5 miles of Mr. Wallace's home in Simcoe, near Toronto.

July 31st I started for Swatau to attend the Student Conference held there, and got back to Foochow and up to Kuliang Aug. 10th. Steamers were most accommodating. I landed 30 min. after the Conf. began = 6 a.m. Aug. 3rd and took the steamer Aug. 7- the day after the Conf closed. I was detained Sunday in Amoy and preached in Eng. there Sunday evening. These trips are hard work but when I give them up as I shall when we go back to the Am. Board, I shall miss seeing a host of friends in and about Amoy and Swatau. It was very pleasant when the steamer stopped in Amoy harbor at 6 a.m. and while I was still in bed to hear an Amoy friend ask the captain if Beard was on board. He took us off to breakfast and to lunch. Then in Swatau the same thing was repeated. And on the return trip I was on shore 24 hours while the steamer was in port.

This a.m. I have preached in Chinese to a church fitted with Chinese servants, teachers and students. Every available room is full this season. Some are leaving already. Tennis, Public Bath- club house, etc. and absence of typhoons for several years together with an increase in the foreign population of South China are making this a popular resort.

Friday evening a chorus of over 30 voices among whom were Ellen, Phebe and your eldest son sang the Cantata "Ruth" by A.R. Gaul. We are fortunate in having several missionaries from different parts here who are musical. For the instrumental parts Mr. Walsh played the Chello, Miss Bennett the violin, Henry Lacy and Mr. Eyestone the cornets. Miss Ward and Mrs. Nightengale of Sieng In presided at the organ. Mr. Newell led the chorus, Mr. Jones was Boaz, Miss Baker, Ruth. Miss Ross of Amoy, Naomi, and Mrs. Wight of Swatau, Orpah. The whole affair was a grand success. The concert is a yearly occurrence- only in previous years we have had a concert of separate pieces. I think nearly all feel that this years attempt is the best yet. Phebe and Gould are both in the "big folks" tennis tournament. Gould wanted to sing in the Cantata but we thought best to wait till next year. He is specializing on tennis and swimming this year and learning a little responsibility in taking care of his pony. Up here he is compelled to do the whole thing- water, clean put him up a night and tether him out in the morning or the pony is neglected. All the children except Kathleen attended the Cantata- Marjorie had a long nap in the p.m. and sat like a lady thru it all. Kathleen is fast learning to walk. She gets along very well if someone will take hold on one hand, or she walks by chairs or by the walls or the palings on the edge of the veranda. All the children have been well since Geraldine got over the measles. Flora must be on her way across the Atlantic by this time. How you will be glad to meet her!! And how I shall miss the letters you used to write her. There will be only us to write to now and the letters I know must be fewer.

Last night a new little boy to Mr. and Mrs. Main. Last Fri. a new little boy came to Dr. and Mrs. Paton- (Amoy) who are also on the mountain here. I have written names for Flora will know them and enjoy reading them. Tell her that many people speak of her and inquire after her.

All send love to all

Will.

Foochow, China
Sept. 12th 1909.

Dear Folks at the Century Farm, and all who have gone therefrom:-

That is a long head line isn't it? Since I have been in Foochow (from Sept 2nd) three letters have come from Flora. It has been good to hear from her. The first was written and mailed in the Mediterranean somewhere and came via Siberia, and reached us before the one mailed nearly ten days before coming back via Suez. I am sorry her trip was so unsatisfactory from a sightseeing point of view. As I think of our trip we were in Port in the day time in every place except Cherbourg, and we did not know when we stopped there. I hope to hear soon that Flora has reached home in safety. When I think over the past three years and all that Flora has done and the travel she has accomplished and recall that she has escaped illness and accident and has withal circumnavigated the globe practically alone, it seems a wonder feat and a cause for Thanking God. She keeps a host of friends in Foochow who inquire after her frequently. Miss Collier who takes her place arrived just before I came from Kuliang. She is with her sister Mrs. Ford on the mountain until school opens about Oct. 1st.

The Students Summer Conference here opened Sat. Sept. 4th. Dr. and Mrs. Whitney are in our house again keeping house for those of us who are working in the Conference. This work of Mrs. Whitneys is a great lift. This year we have more foreigners than usual to give addresses. Some days there have been seven in the house. They go and come. All I need to do is to say that Mr. Oldham or Mr. Paton will be here tonight and he finds a place at the table and a bed all ready for him.

The Conference has gone especially well this year. Instead of having Bible Classes taught by a missionary or a Chinese teacher or pastor we have decided the students into six groups of from 8 to 12 in a group and asked a student to act as leader, the students at first demurred but the plan has been successful beyond our highest hopes. The addresses have been of a high order. Without exception every man who has been asked to take any part has seemed to esteem it a privilege and an honor. Only circumstances beyond his control have caused any one to decline. The Bishop of the Church Missionary Society gladly addresses the Conference and then came over yesterday afternoon especially to have his picture taken with the Conference.

Mon. a.m. Sept. 13-

The Conference closed last evening. It seems to be generally conceded that this is the best Conference yet. The attendance was the largest. Delegates 49, Leaders 16, Visitors 42 total 107. Every thing passed off nicely, and the men are going away happy and with determined minds about the Morning Watch Bible Study Groups and Personal Work.

It's a bit lonely here this morning and will be more so this afternoon, for the last of the house party = Dr. and Mrs. Whitney leave this afternoon- then I shall be alone in the house.

The family on Kuliang are well. Last week Geraldine had tonsillitis and a fever with it, but is better, and Kathleen had trouble with her bowels and her stomach but she is better. The last letter announced that she had two new teeth on her upper jaw. These account for the indisposition.

So Phebe is to be on the farm this year, and Elizabeth up in New York State. - I do not yet hear of plans for Ruth and Mary.

Lovingly yours

Will.

Kuliang,
Sept. 16, 1909.

My dear Aunt Ann:-

We have had a typhoon! I have been wishing for one for quite a long time, and now we've had one! Almost all the Chinese say it was harder than the one in 1899.

It the typhoon, began about eight o'clock day before yesterday evening. At about 12:30 I woke up, and found Mamma trying to keep Kathleen quiet. I took her while Mamma closed and fastened the blinds. Mamma and Gould had already tied up the curtains. It began to blow harder at about 3:00 o'clock. From that time to about 7:30 was the hardest. Marjorie and Dorothy were both awake and Geraldine, Gould and I were helping Mama. Kathleen went to sleep about six o'clock. We were just getting ready to dress when Kathleen woke up. I was rocking her while Mama and Gould were doing different things, Gould was at the bedroom window when we heard a noise like a table being lifted and Gould said "The veranda's gone!" Mama then hustled us all into the sitting room. Dorothy and Marjorie were about to cry then but were very good all the rest of the time. We grabbed as many clothes as we had time to (for we feared the roof would fall in) and then we all got under the doors and in windows. Finally we all got into the dining room. There we sat all huddled up eating bread. Finally we got a lamp and warmed up some food we had mixed up with cold water for baby. Then we got dressed (we had been going around in our nightgowns) and had a little fruit. Mama's room leaked badly tho all the rooms leaked some. Papa was away so we all wrote to him. Then we went into Aunt Flora's room where Mr. and Mrs. Wallace have been staying and the two skylights were both broken and our paper dolls were all wet. We had put our paper dolls in there to play and they were all scattered around on the windowsills, shelves, and the floor. We picked them up and brought them in and dried them. Then we went out on to the veranda to see the ruins. We had been eating out there so the dining table was all dirty. Tiles, beams, posts, railings and everything was lying all over the veranda mixed up with mud. It was foggy so we could not see what our neighbors houses were like. Mr. Trimble and Mr. Caldwell both had come to see how we were and told us about some of the people. Mr. Trimble's family and boarders were moving out of their house, it was so bad. Mr. Ford's family was moving out because of a hole in the roof of the living room. Our veranda roof was partly gone. Miss Todd's house had most the tiles off and a door sucked out by the wind and a window both blinds and glass windows broken all to pieces so people could walk right in. Mr. Shaw's house had a big hole in the roof. Dr. Bliss's house had a hole in the roof. Miss Lambert's house had a hole in the roof. The Olives and lots of other houses are rather badly blown to pieces. Papa says that in Foochow the junks and sampans were blown against the bridge and broken to pieces. He says that quite a few lives were lost.

It rained quite hard for a while then it cleared in the afternoon yesterday, and we went around seeing houses. But this morning it is blowing and raining again. It rather looks like another typhoon.

The typhoon stopped a lot of people from going down. Today lots of people are going down, both those who planned to go yesterday and those who decided to go just because it will be so rainy.

Down at Foochow several houses have lost their roofs. Mr. McLachlin's house both here and down there have lost their roofs and they are in our house at Foochow.

I guess I have told you about all about the typhoon so I will begin about the family.

Kathleen has six teeth now. Her hair is curly, rather. She is wearing stockings and shoes. She has been a little ill but is over it except that she looks a little pale.

Marjorie is jolly as ever. She likes to swing (so does Kathleen) and sing and etc. She plays paper dolls and dolls (the other kind) and does every thing that we do nearly, to playing tennis to going swimming.

The rest of us are all well and having a rather exsiting [exciting] times. Aunt Flora should have staid one year longer then she would have gotten typhoon enough to suit her. Miss Collier our new school teacher says she has got enough. She was here during the typhoon and unless she has gone she's here yet. There will be a big flood from the rain of the typhoon.

Yours with lots of love. Phebe K.

All safe and sound!

My dearest, dearest Will!

The children say there is something to write about now! Some of them sent rather meager letters the last time for want of something to write about.

Well this almost beats the 1899 typhoon I think.

The wind had been blowing ever since about 3 o'clock, a little, altho it was nearly calm when we took dinner on the veranda at noon. It increased steadily through the p.m. but I did not think of such a thing as a typhoon till about 8 o'clock in the evening when the blowing had become gusty and noisy. We took supper inside thinking it too cool for outdoor feasting. But I did not dream of its severity when I retired so did nothing to the curtains and took no particular pains about locking and bolting windows. Altho I woke at 12 with the children I went back to bed without doing any of the necessary things for a typhoon little suspecting future happenings. But I did not sleep and gradually as it increased I began to realize the situation and at 12:30 got up and bolted and tied and locked up everything indoors that could be made more secure, pulled in the pole from the bathroom window gathered in the clothes and waited developments. And it blew!! At 2:30 I got Gould up to help me tie up the curtains which he did the best he could with the wind enough to blow him off with me holding him on. At about 5 o'clock the first curtain (south one) went and I feared damage to the one who tried to save it so let it go. At 5:30 the second went. Then I determined to save the last one and in a lull of the wind Gould and I went out and he with his knife cut down the third and sawed that. I had dressed and was urging the children to do the same as I tho't it best to be ready for action. Phebe was half dressed and all were up but Dorothy (who was asleep) when a terrible, prolonged crash came and I stood still and looked to see if any roof was to be left over our heads. But fortunately it was only the veranda roof,- one stretch, over exactly the spot Gould and I had stood only ½ hour before, - because boards tiles, everything is down and it broke that stretch of veranda railing down in its fall. Immediately I put lights out and hustled the children into the sitting room and dining room and placed them all on windowsills or in doorways fearing the roof would all fall in. The storm was still increasing but was about its worst at 7:00 or 7:30 when that fell. A half hour previous the ridge in our room went off and it leaked increasingly. Tiles blew off like leaves and far away. We can see the sky through the roof. It is the worst room in the house with puddles of water on the floor and almost streams falling from the roof. Just a place large enough for the two beds is dry. I have covered the wardrobes with oiled paper. The dining room is almost perfectly dry and sitting room leaks only a little; the girl's room leaks some but the beds are in a dry place. Mrs. Wallace's room has lost both its roof lights and therefore leaks. The servants quarters leak badly, Mrs. W's amah's room is bare of tiles and they cannot build a fire in their kitchen- are cooking in ours. Well there we all sat in the doorways and window sills in nightgowns and blankets and prayed, momentarily expecting the roof to fall with the next gust. Dorothy being wakened suddenly out of sound sleep was much alarmed when the veranda roof fell and cried some but aside from that the children all showed remarkable courage and composure. Baby cried for her breakfast but I dared not leave the windowsill to prepare it so Gould ran to the bread-box and got a loaf and a dull knife and I cut(?) bread and distributed to the children while we sat there, baby being appeased with soft crumbs put in her mouth. The back door of sitting room pulled out its eye and went swinging to the wind but Gould and I left our hiding place and tied it with much string replaced the eye in another place hooked that, then went outside and drove in 2 nails to secure it. While in our retreats Mr. Trimble came on to the veranda and asked if we needed help. We went down the hill from here and about 9:30 he and Mr. Wallace moved his wife and lady down to his aunt's then took Mrs. and Miss Pitcher down through our yard. Mr. Ford's people moved down either last night or early this morning and now we are left above on the hill. About 8 o'cl. Mr. Caldwell and a coolie called to see if we needed help, said their house hadn't stirred a tile and we could come down if we needed to and bring all the food we had in the house for as they had planned to go down this morning they had nothing to eat. And I guess they are furnishing refuge for a number of people. He said the Smyth house was badly injured and we can see Miss Lambert's from here, - the middle room roof and part of veranda has all fallen in leaving a big hole. Mr. Boyd's house seems to stand but we can't tell- Main Deng has just been here and says everything in the village has fallen in but just how much that means I cannot tell. He says it is much worse than the one 10 years ago. I guess much more damage has been done to the foreign houses than formerly. About 8:10 o'clock it began to abate and we came out of hiding and finished dressing and ate more breakfast of fruit only and I went to see how the servants got on. The Amah's room leaked only a little.

Geraldine got her pen as soon as she was thro b-fast and began to write it up.

I have not heard of anyone who was injured either Chinese or foreign.

Now I wonder how you have fared? I feared you did not sleep much for thinking of us. Has the house there been injured at all? tiles blown off or any leaks? The rain has fallen in torrents since 2:30 a.m. here. I fancy you will have to come to the foot of the mountain in a boat when you come. The longed-for rain has come at last but so furiously as to do more harm than good. All the rice is flat and torrents pour down thru the rice fields. I hope it will not be a six days rain this time as it was before. We are very comfortable now and will get along nicely if a prolonged rain does not increase our leaks.

I felt as tho we ought to offer the shelter of our house to the Chinese in our landlord's village; but it involves so much that I did not know as I ought; then too you can never tell by a Chinese report of a disaster just how bad things are. We could move the amahs into the dining-room and the men into Mrs. Wallace's room and give up their two rooms to the Chinese in the village if they could get up here,- the aged, or sick or mothers with young children. What would you do? Perhaps they would rather stay where they are than to come out in the wind and rain. It is so difficult to know what one ought to do in such a case, especially when one cannot go personally to investigate their needs.

I am getting a man from the coolie stand to take this to you as I know you will be anxious to hear of our welfare and we are equally anxious to hear of yours.

Where were the fires last night and the night before respectively. They could not have been far from you. We are well supplied with goods as we always seem to be when these emergencies come. And we have all the milk left that baby can eat before it will spoil.

I am eager to get out on a tour of investigation among the cottages. So I hope the rain will stop soon.

I feared you would attempt to come up to us if you realized (from a telegram or from a barometer) a typhoon was coming and feared you would have a very difficult and dangerous journey. I prayed constantly that you might be led to wait for safer conditions altho we should have been so glad to have you here. But I did not doubt our safety in the house till the roof fell and somewhat shook my confidence; so we were not long in a perturbed state of mind only about 2 ½ hours, and I do not think any of the children realized the danger. They thought it an exciting experience of which they should be glad as soon as the strain was over. But we are all very thankful to our merciful Heavenly Father for protecting us and keeping us safely thro the storm even tho our loss in property will be considerable.

Yours with very tender love

Ellen.

I wonder where Dr. and Mrs. Worley's daughter and husband are, - on the sea?

Kuliang Sept 22 '09

Dear Mother:-

This account of Ellen's experience I thought would be interesting to you at Shelton and then to the people at Putnam- I was in Foochow at the time of the typhoon- got a b-fast that a.m. myself went to Mr. McLachlins - found their roof all off and ceilings falling- helped Mrs. Mac and baby into our house then started for Kuliang to see how the storm had used the dear ones up there- waded in water knee deep 2 miles- walked all the way.

There is great loss of life among the Chinese on land and water and great destruction of property all about here. Our Kuliang cottage is still keeping us dry in the heaviest rain fall I ever saw. I am getting a great rest here. Phebe's good letter to Phebe K. came yesterday.

With love to all

Will.

My dear Father and Mother:-

I received today a letter from Sec'y Patton of the A.B.C.F.M. a copy of which I at once forward to you. I have not yet cabled my reply. It seems superfluous to write that nothing in my life has taken me so completely by storm. I definitely decided last spring to return to the Foochow mission here and never make another change- because this seemed to me the most needy work. But just as my mind is at ease on this subject and as I have begun to rather enjoy the thought of getting back into the old work again, this letter comes to upset it all. I shrink from the task. It is infinitely more difficult than any that could confront me in Foochow, and this is the element in the call that won't let me say "no." I wish Hodous or Ned Smith were here so I could talk the matter over with them. But for human advice I have only Ellen and those whom this letter represents. How I wish this could get to you so that your prayers might influence me as I cable day after tomorrow-

With love to all

Will.

This letter from Sec'y Patton I am sending to Brockman, Shanghai with the request that he at once forward to you W-

Dear Papa:-

Night before last, last night and Sat. night we have had thieves. Last night or rather at 5 o'clock this morning we had a thief-scare. I don't think there really was a thief.

Kathleen has seven teeth. Her hair is so long that we have to tie it up on one side with a ribbon.

Yesterday Gould did not get 100 in spelling. Geraldine missed for the first time I think, this term, day before yesterday.

Latin and Algebra are not so easy now as at first.

Yesterday was a very rainy cold damp day.

Marjorie has to read, and do her arithmetic and practice on the piano, and do everything that we do.

Vaseline makes a fine blacking for my shoes. It lasts for about four days then I have to Vaseline them again.

Johnny Carpenter came to Sunday School last Sunday. Mama took your class. Johnny goes with me and if we have time Geraldine and Dorothy stop in for him too, to take him to school. He is a pretty good boy and knows a good deal about reading. Next Sunday I think Mr. Olinger will take your class. I'm not sure, but we asked him for last Sunday but he was going to preach and so wanted the whole morning. It was the first time he was to preach after he got back to Foochow. I am going to ask him to take our class next Sunday.

I got his text too, last Sunday. It was the 13 chapter of II Corinthians and Jesus crucified. I knew it was the 13 chap. of II Corinth. because he said it was the most important chapter in the world. I did a good deal of gesticulating that made Miss Wells smile.

It's getting to be about school time so I'll have to close. Just think of getting up at six o'clock and not getting to breakfast till quarter to 8!

Your loving daughter

Phebe K. Beard.

Foochow, China, Nov. 11th 1909.

Dear Father:-

The last time I wrote was just after the call from the Am. Board to come home immediately. I hope the letter from Dr. Patton has reached you. I have been away from home nearly all the time since I wrote so arrangements for starting go slowly. There is a steamer from Shanghai Jan. 11th 1910, but that means starting from here about the 5th and it will be much easier to start a week later. We plan to sell all the furniture we do not take with us at auction, and board somewhere during the last week. We shall come direct home by the Pacific to San Francisco and across- if our present plans carry. For a few weeks we would like to get into Putnam until we can make arrangements to live in the vicinity of New York. It would be my mind to look up a house on the R.R. toward Conn. in a pleasant town, where the school was good and where there was room and good air, and I could commute.

I received Flora's letter written from S. Orange, by the last mail [see note following letter]. I am glad her freight boxes came so quickly, and I trust the things went safely. We have just unpacked a box of dishes from Putnam. They were some that we ordered to match a set that we bought while at home. Out of $12.00 worth about $3.00 were broken. I hope Flora came out better. I cannot make out what Mary is doing. One letter from Phebe read as if she were in Brattleboro Vt. teaching. But unless another letter mentions it we will have to wait till we get home to find out. Any letters that you write us after receiving this one address care of Rev. H. Melville Tenney, Baker Block, Berkeley, Cal.

My work at home will be very difficult for me. It would be much easier and more to my personal liking to stay in Foochow. But if it is God's call He will give the strength.

With Love to all Will.

Dear Grandpa Beard:-

It is a very nice day today. Saturday was Gould's birthday. He had a nice party. He had four presents. Kathleen can walk the length of our hall. Her hair in front is so long that we have to tie it up with a ribbon. Our pony is getting to be a fat pony.

Monday

I do not think I can write a very long letter because I can not think of much to say. Marjorie is all the time wanting to have me read a story. We are not going to have any school this afternoon. I think I must close now.

Dear Mother:-

There are 5 minutes before I must leave for Foochow City, so I will write just a line or two to say that all are well. The last letters spoke of Fred's death and of your reception of the news that we were planning to come home, soon. I have engaged passage on the "Asia" from Shanghai Jan. 17, - thru tickets to Boston planning to go to Worcester and down to Putnam.

Consul Gracey asked all Americans to take dinner with him at the Consulate Thanksgiving evening- 94 in all. I had the honor to be asked to make the address.

We have had our farewell feast and reception by the Chinese already last Saturday.

I plan to take one more country trip to Kucheng starting day after tomorrow in the evening to be gone just a week or 6 days then I shall give myself to packing.

Lovingly
Will.

[This letter dated Dec. 22, 1909 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his sister, Mary. He has been trying to quickly pack to go back to the U.S. Mary will not be teaching in California again. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Foochow, China Dec. 22nd 1909.

Dear Sister [Mary]:-

I find an envelope stamped and addressed to you. This I must have done with good intentions last spring and it is a sure proof that you were in my thoughts then. In fact you were much of the time for I feared from the scarcity of your letters that you were not perfectly content in Santa Barbara. And from all that I can learn you did not wish to go back. The letters from home seem to indicate that you are not teaching this year. The old home must be full of girls again.

We are tearing things up and getting them into boxes as fast as possible, with all the work there is to do- for I have not yet laid down any of the Y.M.C.A. work that I have been carrying on. And then it is now Christmas time and invitations are too thick to accept all from the churches, etc. three evenings this week are promised and all day Christmas day. So packing goes slowly. All our furniture we shall sell at auction so this will be one big job off our hands. I have three boxes of books packed and our pictures are nearly ready to nail up. The last two weeks here we shall board.

The weather has been superb for two months. The babies are now fat and rosy. We hope they will keep so. As I pack I keep wondering how Flora found her things when she came to open up the boxes- for this matter of packing is always an experiment. Even the exporting houses have to allow a chance for breakage.

I am afraid very few more letters will reach us here from home if any- for you will be thinking we are not here and will not write. Can't some of you send a letter to meet us in San Francisco? Address care Rev. H. Melville Tenney, Barker Block, Berkeley, Cal. and we will get it. I think I have written that we are booked to sail on the "Asia" from Shanghai Jan 17th and plan to go to Worcester straight and then down to Putnam. We stopped at Shelton first before and we will stop at Putnam first this time.

With Love to all
Will.

Dear Dorothy,

Is not Kathleen's grin a happy one? We are having a fine time with the children. They are both growing fat. I took Marjorie to Dr. Peck yesterday. He thinks her improved and has changed the pills. Kathleen wants to take pills too so has a bread one after each meal.

She goes to sleep each night saying over the names of you all. Each one is "way, way too too's". Occasionally she runs into the front room to look for "Mama".

Today we all had our heads washed except baby. Marjorie was very cute. She had seen us so wanted her head "all funny" "without the snarls combed out." We had not winced in the combing process so she did not. How are the measles? I hope you all have them together so as to recover quickly. With love to you all.

Aunt Mary

Postmarked: Shelton, Conn. May 1910

Aunt Mary took this on my birthday. It is my first attempt at printing. Do you recognize us all? The babies are fine and talk about you all every day. In town the other day M. said "There is a suit which I would like to see Gould in". Both are growing and some of their dresses begin to look outgrown but they'll be all right for a while yet. Please tell Mama if it comes off very warm again before you come down the babies would like some summer undershirts if it is convenient for her to send them, otherwise we have everything they need.

I hope when this reaches you you'll all be fortunate enough to be over the measles.

The other day K. kissed me all over when she awoke and said "Mama" so I'll ask you to deliver the kisses, please. She said today when it was raining, "Grandpa all wet". We were so glad to get the two letters. Love to all. R.B.

Marjorie is here at my side and she requests me to write you this from her. Tell Mama she said she was going to housekeeping and I think she had been in Mt. Vernon a long time. She sends her love. She is fine.

Mother, Mary and Marjorie have been to church and S.S. M. was so tired she had a long nap. Kathleen is "full of it" these days and her high spirits can hardly quiet themselves to sleep. We had an hours circus tonight when she retired. She weighs 29 lbs. and M. 46.

Am so glad the sick ones are better and hope you can come out of quarantine soon – for your sakes- but you can leave us the babies. Marjorie is helping me with this card by leaning on my knee and asking questions and blotting each word as soon as it is written.

We all took a walk this afternoon ?? Grandma went because Kathleen was so urgent in asking her. Hope to hear from you soon. Love from Ruth Beard

This card is Marjorie's and she wants me to send it to you. Grandma says tell you all to come down here to see us now. I hope you are out of quarantine to-day. R.B.

Papa was here for a few hours yesterday on his way to New York. Yesterday when Grandma was away K. put some buttons in her mouth and I said, "K. what does Grandma say?" "Grandma no, no. Grandma, all gone". She is so full of fun and the little girl and the big girl are enjoying each other to the full this day. We are enjoying them. R.B.

Dear Geraldine,

Your nice letters and card were very welcome. Marjorie enjoys her letter but resigned the card to Baby who cried for it. Aunt Flora came last night. Baby says to tell "Si Si to come". She is a great chatterbox. We hope to hear that Gould is all right, and to see you down here soon. We look for Uncle Stanley tonight. Give my love to everyone and keep a lot for yourself.

Don't you think this a fine picture. Grandpa suggests that I send it to the "New Yorker". With love,

Aunt Mary

Because Willard and Ellen are on furlough from China in 1911, we have no letters from that year. However, we have this family photo taken at Century Farm. Kathleen Beard Elmer wrote down all the names of those whom she remembered of those in the photo. She identified the infant in the picture as Edith Louise Beard. We know from A Genealogy of the Descendants of Widow Martha Beard by Willard's sister, Ruth Beard, that Edith was born on February 16, 1911. We can therefore determine that the photo was taken in the summer of that year.

From the Evening Sentinel, Tuesday, Oct. 31, 1911:

BEARD- In Oronoque, at the home of his daughter Mrs. Frank E. Blakeman, Wm. T. Beard, aged 79 years, 10 months, 26 days. Funeral services will be held at the home of F.E. Blakeman in Oronoque, Thursday at 2:15 o'clock in the afternoon. Interment in Riverside cemetery.

AGED RESIDENT OF HUNTINGTON DEAD

WILLIAM T. BEARD PASSES AWAY AT HOME OF DAUGHTER IN ORONOQUE

Born in Old Homestead He Spent Nearly Eighty Years in This Town- One of Pioneer Manufacturers of This Place-Returning to Land Later in Life Was Successful and Prosperous Farmer.

In the death of William T. Beard, which occurred in Oronoque last night, Huntington lost one of its oldest native residents, and one of its oldest native residents, and one of the pioneer manufacturers of this section. Mr. Beard was born in the old homestead of the Beard family now occupied by O.G. Beard, at Long Hill, and resided there until in early manhood he engaged in the manufacture of straw paper, with his brother Theodore Beard in the mill at Wells Hollow, now used as a saw and grist mill. The brothers were among the pioneer manufacturers of this section, and for a number of years did a thriving business in the paper which was then used extensively. They built a two family house near the mill and resided there together for several years. Later they dissolved partnership, and Mr. William Beard purchased a farm in Long Hill not far from his old home and until a few years ago followed the pursuit of farming, being as successful in this as in the paper manufacturing business. He suffered from valvular disease of the heart for many years and nearly six years ago suffered a paralytic stroke as a sequence to the disease from which he never entirely recovered, although he was able to carry on his farming for two or three years and market his produce. Gradually falling in health, however, he removed to the home of his daughter Mrs. Frank E. Blakeman, in Coram, about three years ago, and there he steadily though slowly failed until diabetes developed and finally caused his death as stated. He was nearly eighty years of age and was perhaps the most up-to-date person of his years in this section.

Always a great reader he kept fully abreast of the times through the papers and magazines, while he was a constant reader of the best of current fiction. Few men were better posted on current topics, while he knew all the best authors and fairly reveled in their writings. Even after the severe shock of nearly six years ago, he continued to have the same zest for reading and love for the best in fact and fiction, and few better read men could be found.

He leaves three children, Miss Stella Beard, Mrs. Frank E. Blakeman and Miss Hattie Beard to mourn his loss. He was always keenly alive to the interests of his native town, and was an old line Democrat in politics, and while not trying for office he was always in touch with the affairs of the town and his advice was received with attention by both political friends and enemies as well.

From the Shelton Times, dated Saturday, December 2, 1911, page one:

Beard Family Reunion

Mr. and Mrs. O.G. Beard, at Century Farm, entertained a party of thirty on Thanksgiving Day. The ramifications of the "family tree" including Mr. and Mrs. Beard numbered twenty-nine. The children and their children were all present except Miss Mary Beard who is teaching in Godfrey, Ill. After the bountiful dinner the time was passed with music and pleasant talk until quite a late hour. Some of the guests will remain for the rest of the week.

The Revolution of 1911

The Monarchy of China became a Republic on October 10, 1911. The Revolution in Foochow began at 4:15 a.m. November 9.

About 5,000 Tartars (Manchus) were left without food or money in the city. These had each received a monthly stipend from the Chinese Government, which enabled them to exist with doing little or no work. Five years after the Revolution there were less than 1,000 to be found in Foochow. They had moved to other places or had died.

While Willard is working for the ABCFM in the U.S., he and the family are probably living in Mount Vernon, NY, which is a suburb on New York City. A chopped photo postcard of the Century Farm House sent by Willard is addressed to Mrs. W. L. Beard at 146 Vista Place, Mt. Vernon, N.Y. Words that are still visible on the postcard are "N.Y., by Subway Express, Brooklyn, will be in Mt. V".

The following photos show Gould and Geraldine holding diplomas. They did graduate from Putnam High School together in 1916, but they seem too young in these photos to be 20 and 18 years old that they were. In 1912 they would have been 16 and 14. This might be a graduation from 8th grade- possibly Mt. Vernon, NY.

[This letter dated Aug 14, 1912 was written from New York City by Willard to daughter, Phebe. He tells of going to meet a steamer that was delayed by the quarantine officials who suspected a case of cholera. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

The American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions
Rev. W.L. Beard, District Secretary and General Agent
289 Fourth Avenue, New York

Aug. 14- 1912

Dear Phebe:-

Yours was a very interesting letter that came the other day. There was so much news about the hens in it that I have sent it to Gould. That poor old Plymouth Rock mother hen has had enough written about her and enough sympathy expended on her to make her quite a noted character. I confess that my sympathies are usually for the younger members of her family whom I have so often seen her abuse. Perhaps her case it that of the Chinese woman. She had her day months ago and now the others are having theirs. Sunday I was in Kent, Conn. with a Miss Hopson. She is raising white Leghorns. The place was full of them. I do not think they look half as pretty as the Rhode Island Reds. That the hens are laying so well proves the good care you are taking of them. How are the little ones at Grandpa's getting on?

Yesterday was very hot here. I had to go way over to South Brooklyn twice- once in the a.m. - got up at 6 a.m. and found my own breakfast and left the house before Uncle Raymond and Aunt Mollie were out of bed, - to meet a steamer. The quarantine officials feared a case of cholera among the steerage and the first and second cabin passengers did not get up to the dock until 9 p.m. I did not wait as a young Armenian was there to meet the missionaries. When I got back to Mt. Vernon I found Miss Gorham, Aunt Mollie's Aunt from Noroton, Conn. There she will remain a few days.

This morning I saw Dr. Chambers who came in on the steamer last night. He told me that this Armenian had an automobile on the dock and took the whole party and their baggage right over to N.Y. to the Seville Hotel- mama will remember that she and I stayed there over night, when John Slemian Jr. was there and we three ate breakfast together, - and this morning he was helping transfer baggage etc. and getting them off on a steamer tonight for Woods Hole Mass. and paying all bills, Auto, Hotel, car fare, etc. Isn't that pretty good? It is a good proof that these young Armenians are grateful for what the missionaries have done for them.

Gould writes that the army is now right on Long Hill. An officer climbed Grandpa's wind mill to see if he could discover the enemy. I think Gould has gone down to Stratford to see the Aviators at work.

Uncle Raymond is an enthusiastic Rooseveltian and I get all the good points of the New Progressive Party. This noon I lunched with Aunt Mary at Columbia. She goes home Friday or Sat.

Please give mama a good hard hug and a loving kiss for – then kiss each of the sisters for me and give them all my love.

Your Loving Father
W.L. Beard

Pacific Mail SS Co.

Oct. 13, 1912

Dear Phebe:-

Your letter was patiently waiting for me when I came on board yesterday. I have written mamma all about what I did yesterday. The visit with Leolyn and Aunt Leolyn and Dr. Morgan etc. You will be interested in some of my companions. Of course Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard are here. I expected to find Dr. and Mrs. Gillett but they are not here. Miss Brown and Miss Strang are here all right. Miss Strang weighs only about 100, - not as large as you. She goes to Ing Hok- or expects to be with Miss Chittenden. Miss Brown expects to be at Ponasang in charge of the Woman's Training School.

Just now we five Foochowites are sitting on deck on our chairs. First comes Mr. Hubbard- his chair back to the water, facing the middle of the ship. Pretending to read a book of poetry- but he really sleeps about half the time. Next comes Mrs. Hubbard facing the ocean actually reading a magazine. I sit next also facing the ocean and writing- Oh, I have the finest, warmest steamer rug you ever saw- so warm as the darker rug I bought in Shanghai and is now on one of the beds only it is larger. It is gray, black and white. The two sides are different. One small squares, plaid the other layer and the different shades of the stripes and the different widths break the monotony of a regular plaid. Now how is that for a description from a prosaic, matter of fact man? Next me sits Miss Brown back to the ocean like Mr. Hubbard. She is also writing. Next her sits Miss Strang facing the sea also writing. We have just been to the other side of the ship to see the sun set.

Your wishes for a pleasant trip with a smooth sea are thus far successful. I have been all right- taken every meal- slept perfectly last night- nearly 10 hours and today I have been very faithful in walking. It is getting too dark to write.

Tuesday 12:30 p.m. - Another beautiful day. Yesterday I wrote Kathleen before breakfast. All your good wishes for a smooth sea and a pleasant trip are realized this far. I never had such a pleasant beginning to a sea trip. I have felt a few qualms but thus far I have had no trouble in keeping about- at the table four times each day and able to take bullion at 11 a.m. and sleep all night and feel like getting up in the morning. Miss Strang is a good sailor but Miss Brown is not happy. Yesterday there was a little swell on- today more. But the Korea is a large ship and there is not that sense of balancing on the tip of a wave and then gliding down between two waves and almost coming to a standstill while the ship quivers and hesitates. The weather grows warm as we go south.

Now I have your letter before me and am going to try to answer it seriatim [seriatim= one after another]. Yes I reached Aunt Ann's at 6:11 Friday Oct. 4. But this harvest is all over, - even their corn was cut and in shocks. Yes you would enjoy this trip immensely- you would like both Miss Brown and Miss Strang. Our five chairs are in a row, and of course I felt it incumbent on me to get up and adjust the rugs for the ladies. I made some laughing remark about the bother it was and Miss Strang declared I would not help her with her rug again, so I just sit still now and let her fix herself and we all have a good laugh about it.

The trip on the train was quite comfortable until the last day. I had 14 hrs. of steady riding that Friday and it got to be pretty tiresome. I had an upper berth all the way fr. St. Louis to Los Angeles and was very comfortable.

I'll try to get some postals in Japan for Artyn and I must get a picture in Kobe that Mama wants me to buy.

San Francisco is building up all the time, but there is a lot of vacant land yet. I had very little time to go about, so did not see it as much as we did three years ago. A hotel agent came on the train just before we reached San F. and I just went with him to the "Dale" where my room was $1.00 and a nice quiet one.

The Autumn colors were only beginning to appear as I came thru. In one or two places they were fine.

As you will see by the map I sent you that I took the Santa Fe route this time, - south. No I had plenty of time to get each train. You see at N.Y. I had 5 hrs, at Buffalo I had about 15 min. Uncle Willis [Willis Hume- husband of Ellen Kinney Beard's sister, Etta Kinney] went with me to the station- at Cleveland I had an hour- Mr. Tippet took me down in his auto. At Springfield I had only 10 min. but I took dinner only 10 minutes walk from the station. At Chicago I had a wait from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. and so it went. The only place that I felt in the least hurried was at Los Angeles. I had to transfer and get b-fast in 50 min. Yes I have a very vivid recollection of running for that train with the pie and wondering at the serenity with which you all greeted me when I came in.

No my train trip was a very quiet one. I just rested and kept still and enjoyed watching people. I had most forgotten how to talk when I reached Los Angeles and had to make inquiries.

Yes, I'll go over to the new house on S. Side and write you how it all looks when I get there. My! but don't I wish I could have you or some of the children at best with me.- If you could know how I read and reread your letters you would feel repaid for writing.

Every detail of the home life that you and all the others write I shall devour with avidity and long for more.

You all seem very near- not in miles but in spirit. May God keep you and give you His best thing because He finds you so completely in line with Him.

Your very Loving father

Foochow College Description

Foochow College is strategically located in the capital city of Fukien province, Between the South Gate and the Water Gate of Foochow, not far from South Street, with entrance on Guang haeng. Most of the buildings are on the slopes of a hill near the White Pagoda, and have good air and drainage. The elementary school is on a separate campus, with ample play grounds.

History of Foochow College

This school was established in 1853, at first only for Chinese studies. Rev. L.P. Peet, an American missionary, became president in 1890, and introduced courses in English. There was a large increase in attendance, and several new buildings were erected; to one of them prominent men of Foochow contributed liberally. In 1899 the school was given a charter by the Legislature of Massachusetts, and added two years of college work. In 1913 Rev. W.L. Beard became president. Six years later, after the establishment of Fukien Christian University, this school, in agreement with other local institutions, gave up its college work, which was transferred to the new university.

Foochow, China,
March 2nd 1913

Dear Phebe and Geraldine:-

A letter from each of you is in my till unanswered so here goes. Phebe's letter all about the cooking teacher and the Ancient History teacher and Mr. Sargent's present and the Christmas exercises, with Kathleen's piece written out for me in full and the night-gown piece and the presents, and the Christmas exercises at home, with the promise of "surprising news about my connection with the C.E." "in another letter," and questionnaire- was exceedingly interesting. Now for my examination: 1. Yes the Hodous and Kinnear children have grown just as fast as the Beard children. Rachel is a very pretty attractive girl. I have lots of fun with her- telling her she is my girl. She at first refused to admit it, and when I did nothing she said "Well if I am your girl why don't you come and get me?" Girl like- wasn't it? So I pleased her by running after her. I have not been able to find out how Artyn liked his post cards. I asked Artyn but he did not know. Both boys spent one night last week at Mrs. Hodous'.

Geraldine's letter of Jan. 16 came in last mail with a letter from mama. Geraldine tells also of Christmas presents. You must be pretty well stocked up. Her skating account was great. She says it was "rather" funny to see them scramble out. I shall think you would have doubled up with laughing as they were in no danger. I am glad to hear of you and Phebe and Gould being in basket ball. It's good fun and exercise. The Foochow College boys won the banner in basket ball from all the Colleges represented at the Student Conference week before last. I am pleased to see the place you all are occupying in High School and S. School and C.E. Keep humble and God will give you all the work to do that you can do well. But do not take too much in the way of offices- so as to impair your success in your studies. Because for you children your studies in school are your first duty. Take other work as a means to help you put in practice what your studying gives of theory. But make it secondary.

This last week has been a very busy one for me as well as the week before. College opened Wed. We received 177 that day and $2050. + $222.20= $2272.20. Others came in Thurs., Fri. and Sat. so we now have about 245, and have received in tuition etc. $3100+. All in silver. The safe cannot hold it all, and several old students are not back. I have turned away several boys for lack of room, so in this respect the College is successful and has entirely recovered from the trouble of Dec. 1911. Now you must all continually ask God to use me to unite the faculty and lead each member to think more of the success of the College than of his own personal success or advancement.

The weather since I have been in Foochow has been beautiful. No long storms and most of the time pleasant. Last night I washed out another union suit. It is as soft and nice as I can desire. I am to take Mrs. Peet's old cook Gang Bong and I shall have some one to help me then.

I must stop now and go to bed to get rest for tomorrows work. How I long to see you all. I can trust you all to do the right and I tell God all of a fond father's fondest hopes for his dear children so far away, every morning and evening and sometimes at other times. He has been very good to us all our lives and this makes it all the more incumbent on all of us to be good to each other and to others. I pray Him to make you a power for righteousness in Putnam. With a Loving Father's love to both of you, to you all and Dorothy and Marjorie and Kathleen.

Willard L. Beard.

Foochow, China
March 17th 1913

Dear Kathleen:-

All the letters that I have received up to date I have answered so I am going to address this to you. I think after you have read it yourself you will be willing the other's see it.

I have a real nice little baby here to play with and she likes me too. Her name is Frances Beach. She is about nine months old and is a very dignified little girl. She smiles very sweetly to me.

We are making great changes in the city compound. I'll try to draw a picture of the compound as you and the others may remember it indicating the changes we are making. I called a meeting of all the members of the station a week ago tonight and we talked the matter over and were unanimous in the changes.

The wall between Peet and Newell house is all down and every one is glad. The air and light can now come in and there is a pleasant aspect as one approaches.

Last week passed rather uneventfully. I worked each day and night every moment I could spare from regular duties on the receipt of the College for entrance fees etc to get them so they could be audited. This was finally accomplished. We received about $400 in all. This makes it possible to do some very much needed repairs and to purchase some new furniture that is greatly needed.

Mr. Storrs is expected in about two weeks and on the same steamer is expected Miss Margaret Weed who is to marry Dr. Gillett.

The rainy season I guess has started. It is raining every day now, and the rain is very wet.

I am enclosing a photograph of the Foochow College Quartet that furnished music for the Student Winter Conference, and under another cover I am sending a photo of the whole Foochow College delegation to this Conference.

When shall I receive another letter from you Kathleen? That one that you wrote on brother's knee with him holding your hand was one of the best letters I have received since returning to Foochow.

How are the hens getting on? I wish I had a taste of those young roosters and some of Mama's biscuit. I wish also that I could get my lap and arms full of babies- all Mama's and mine. Wouldn't you six, Phebe and Gould and Geraldine and Dorothy and Marjorie and Kathleen make a lap full now. Your own loving lonely Father

[This letter dated March 30, 1913 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his children. He mentions the Eddy meetings (Sherwood Eddy- Eddy Evangelistic Campaign) and talking to 88 boys who wanted to become Christians. Letter in the collection of Jill Elmer Jackson.]

Foochow, China, March 30th 1913

Dear Marjorie and Kathleen and Dorothy and Geraldine and Gould and Phebe:-

No letter has come from you since last Sunday so I have none to answer. The event that eclipses all others in the Am. Board mission during the past week is the arrival yesterday morning at about 6 o'clock of Miss Margaret Weed to be the wife of Dr. Charles Gillett. Dr. Gillett went down on the Chi. Merchants launch Friday afternoon to meet Miss Weed. Mr. Hubbard went with him. The steamer anchored about 5:30 p.m. but the launch was delayed in starting so long that they lost the tide and she stuck on a sand bar and Dr. Gillett, Miss Weed, Mr. Storrs and Mr. Hubbard had to spend the night. Fortunately Miss Weed had bought in Shanghai a rattan settee and two chairs so they had something to sit in. Miss Weed is large like mama and Dr. Gillett thinks she is nice, - so do the rest of us. I have told mama about the Eddy meetings. This morning I asked the 88 boys who said they wanted to be Christians last Fri. evening to meet with me for half an hour. They all came and they seem to be in earnest. I think of you all as praying for me now altho you do not know the peculiar condition that needs your prayer just now. It gives me great help just the same to think of a dear loving mama and six dear children all praying that God will help me every day. And that was a beautiful prayer of the littlest one that God would bless Papa and "make him a good man."

Yesterday I attended the first graduating exercises of the Blind School under Mrs. Wilkinson's care. They were of an unusually high quality. One boy spoke in almost perfect English - an address briefly sketching the work of the school. He also sang "Must I Go and Empty Handed" very sweetly. A Quartet sang "Holy, Holy, Holy" in Chinese very well indeed. Two boys play the cornet, two the violin, and they sang as a chorus a Hallelujah song well. These are only some of the principal features.

Last Monday Geu Cio Dong was packed for the Praise Service. I wrote you that I feared lest the flood would interfere. But there was no water in the streets and the day was lovely. The weather has been delightful all the week. The people on the street near the Club where the Eddy - Robertson meetings were held said that the Christian's God certainly had power and that he certainly loved them for it had rained up to the day the meetings were and had been pleasant all the time during the meetings.

I preach the ordination sermon at Ling Caik Ua's ordination tomorrow and lead the monthly Concert of Prayer Wed. so I must close now and rest. I hope that some "very tender" feeling and bearing toward each other continues that you wrote about just after I left last fall - May our Father bless and keep each of you in your loving fathers prayer.

I had a nice letter from Ann this week.

Ngu Cheng, Foochow
July 5th 1913.

Dear Phebe:-

And as usual this means all the rest at Putnam and it also includes Gould who I suppose has been at Shelton several days already. I'm having a very quiet restful time here. At 8 a.m. I talk for half an hour on the importance of the body and the care of the body. At 10:30 I conduct the Conference in their study of Ephesians and at 7:30 I attend and help in a meeting that is considering difficult questions in the Bible. I find it a great relief not to have callers coming in at any time with all sorts of questions. This is what makes it so restful here. The weather is very comfortable. I can wear a collar and a coat with comfort. I'd like to get into the sea for a swim but at the right time= 5 or 6 p.m. The water is low and we could not walk out over the flats far enough to get the water and at noon the sun is too fierce to think of it.

Only ten minutes from Mr. Bissonnette's where I am staying the men are making salt. I went to see them the other afternoon- most interesting. Every pleasant day two men will make about 150 lbs. As I look out over the grounds they look like the salt meadows near Long Island sound. A portion of this about 50 by 100 feet is cleared of all grass. The surface is pulverized with an instrument like a small harrow. This surface is then shoveled up and a mound of earth made about 5 feet high and 10 feet in diameter at the top. This mound is hollowed out and a stone bottom put into the hollow and cemented so it is water tight with a bamboo tube leading from the lowest point into a well at the side which is about 5 ft. deep and 3 ½ feet in diameter and also water tight. The 50 X 100 foot plot is low enough so the salt water floods it at high tide. The earth is thus saturated with salt. This is carried and emptied into the hollow top of the mound, - dry earth. Then from ponds of salt water near the men carry water and pour into or onto this dry earth which already contains salt, so the earth is doubly saturated with salt water. The water filters thru the earth which is about 3 ½ ft. deep, runs into and thru the bamboo tube and thence into the little well. It is then dipped up and poured with the evaporating vats near by. These are about 6 X 10 feet with floors that look like mosaic work. They are made of broken tile and bowls set in mortar- and are only three inches deep. The water evaporates and the salt crystals are left. This salt is perfectly white and clean only in crystals about the size of these and 1/32 of an inch thick and they are very salt, all the savor is there.

Your last letter and Geraldine's were very interesting. Specially did I enjoy the copies you sent of your school reports and of yours and Kathleen's accounts. If you were to become a business man- to succeed Mellen as President of the N.Y.N.H and H.R.R. I should look with some concern at the unaccounted for balances in some of the accounts but I suppose girls are given some latitude in this and it is well that all of us do not have the same strong points. I have found it very difficult to make my private accounts balance this year. I do want to see the reports of Gould's and Dorothy's and Marjorie's school work.

I wonder if you have written Oberlin for their catalog. You would do well to write at once. There are different courses. You will want to decide on which course you will take. Then I hope you can arrange not to take all the examinations for entrance at once. It is a needlessly hard strain. And I think you can take part at the close of your junior year. That will be one year from now. It may be Oberlin will accept Putnam's grades or they may make some arrangements for you to take the exams without going to Oberlin. But if they do not, I should favor your going out next June to take the preliminary exams. It will cost $50. But I will see that you have the money if you so decide.

Sunday Evening July 13-

Coming home from Ngu Cheng this letter had gotten sidetracked and I had hard work to get the other into the mail with Mama's and a brief note to Gould. One evening this week Thurs. your other letter came with Marjorie's. I also had the pleasure of seeing dear Mama's hand writing on the envelope that contained Marjorie's letter.

That day, Tuesday, at Tai Bing Ga was filled more than full of many duties and I had to turn the last men away. Dr. and Mrs. Kinnear with Morris and Gerald came up - the boys came that evening with me and Dr. and Mrs. Wed. a.m. We had a fuss with coolies as the boys started so we were pretty late- a little over half way across the plain a heavy shower struck us- The boys walked all the way - got drenched- but as they kept walking it did not hurt them.

We are not yet settled in our house- That is two ladies are expected from Canton in a day or two to take what used to be our dining room. Dr. and Mrs. K. have been here till last night. They are with Miss Perkins [Elizabeth S.] over Sunday and go down when the meeting is over- likely tomorrow p.m.

Things are some changed on Kuliang- Miss Perkins has a nice cottage on the pointed knoll between Dr. Lyons and Dr. Careltons. Mr. Main has built a cottage for rent just below his house. Mr. Smith has built one for rent just below the road near the turn after the village back of our hill on the way to Mr. Siemissens. Mr. and Mrs. Beach have built just back of Dr. Taylors and Mr. Adamson just back of Mr. Beach. I think I wrote you that the "Olives" lies a heap of ruins. There is a movement on foot to sell the church to the Club and build a new church. 37 thus far are against it and 36 for. I have not yet seen the Bath. Mr. Billing has a house below the village nearest the church at the foot of our hill. Mr. and Mrs. Hodous have put a new veranda on their house with stone post- looks very neat.

I plan to go to Foochow day after tomorrow or tomorrow evening. There is much work to do in connection 1. with the Press 2. with the College curriculum and marks etc. 3. with painting and repairs on the College buildings. It's very, very lonely here with out Mama and you children. It does not seem natural at all. I felt out of place this afternoon at the church service.

I wonder how are the mumps- you must have been a beauty when you wrote the last letter. Where does Marjorie put her mumps- she is already well filled in where the mumps should go.- What do you all do with yourselves during vacation? I am hungry for another of Kathleen's letters. In this I am enclosing a letter from Mr. Keith of Flatbush and also the Kuliang newspaper. Please send this to Gould when you have read it.

Very Lovingly your Father

Dear Dot;-

We are just in the middle of haying and it is nice weather today. Yesterday and the day before it was rainy and we could'nt get in any hay. I wish you were down here and could see the fine new team of horses that Grandpa has. They are just as gentle as can be and you can play with Billy the same way that you used to Genny.

Do you remember Mr. Wilkinsons farm? Well, that is sold to a Mr. Space. They have twins, both of them are girls. They are a pair of little rascals. They keep their mother buisy taking care of them. They can just walk from their home to ours. Their mother puts little overalls on them during the day and they look just like little boys. They have a little aunt only 7 years old. She is Mrs. Space's sister. They call her Bobbie.

How does it seam there in the Hospital? I should think it would be lots of fun. I just mowed a field of oates. We have our rye all in but our oats are still standing, most of them. We expect to get them in within the next 2 weeks.

Mamma wrote that you had pretty good care at the Bartletts.

If you can not write ask mamma to for you.

Your loving brother,

Gould.

Foochow, China
 Oct. 12- 1913

Dear Mother:-

Yesterday your good letter came telling of your illustrious auto trip to West Hartford, and of the visit of Elbert and Marjorie and a lot of other interesting things like Mr. and Mrs. Armstrong's visit to Huntington and Aunt Mary's vigor etc. It gives me a lot of satisfaction to hear of the good neighbors you have, - almost as much as to hear from time to time of the good work the "Ford" is doing and of the pleasure you are taking with it.

For Oct. 1st we ate supper for the first time in our home under an electric light. I wrote in my last letter that I had it in all the public places in the College. Of course we find it very handy. As to the cost you'll have to wait till the bills come in. 215 students have thus far enrolled. Two Koreans stole out of Korea and reached Foochow a week ago. Yesterday we gave them a room in the College. One of them speaks a few words of Eng. This is the only medium of vocal communication- the written language is the same as the Chinese written language so the converse by writing. They claim to be Christians, - say that the facilities for getting an education in Korea are very poor.- that the Japanese prohibit the Koreans from leaving the country and they had to steal out in the night. They are here with about $50. in money, and scant clothing. I have accepted them after duly considering that should the Japanese government find them and demand them I should be compelled to give them up. It is at least an interesting case.

From Geraldine's letter received yesterday Oliver's girls and mine had a great old time in Putnam. Autos and horses and trolleys got tired all right. I'm awfully glad they could go. The Putnam schools are starting out with a new set of teachers this year and I hope better results will be obtained.

The drought was pretty bad in some parts of the West. I hope long before this that you have had good rains and that the wells and springs are full. We have thus far had a very good year in and about Foochow. All thru the spring and early summer it rained at least once a week and crops were excellent. In Aug. some places felt the dry weather. But crops are good now. The Revolution was the worst thing the people have had to contend with this year thus far that killed business for two months and things are just now beginning to pick up. At the same time I am surprised that there is much building going and it is all of foreign or semi foreign style. There is money somewhere. On account of the depleted treasuries of the government- only a few of the government schools have opened this fall. The American teachers here under the Y.M.C.A. for these schools are doing nothing not even drawing their pay- altho this will come in the future- no one knows when.

Last Monday Oct. 6th Yuan Shi Kai was elected President of the Republic of China, and on Friday Oct. 10th the National Holiday commemorating the establishment of the Republic was kept. We had a holiday then too. I was very glad of it- as much so as the students- for I was very tired. I'm trying to teach Comparative Religions and Ch. Hist'y from Chinese text books which I never before saw and I put more time on the preparation of the lessons than the students do. Then I preach nearly every Sunday, and each Friday morning address the students and teachers of the school for 20 minutes. Last week in addition I gave three addresses before the Women's Conference of the Methodist Mission, and it made rather a full week.

Today I preached and conducted communion at the church for the Manchus in Foochow City. 15 were received to membership. This makes about 160 all joined since May 1912,-and there has been no regular preacher there until a week ago. The work has been done by themselves and students from the College.

Some excellent photos came yesterday of Monticello Sem'y in the newspapers from home. You are quiet again in the Century Farm home, with children and grandchildren back in school. You can scarcely realize the influences that radiate from that home as a center to all parts of the world. If it ever seems lonesome during the winter months just remember that what you did last summer and the summers preceeding is now bearing fruit. And always remember that without that home as a base much of the efficiency of the work the whole family is doing in different parts of the world would be impaired. I am glad to note in Phebe's letters that Stanley got much rest from his vacation. I judge also that Gould got over any weakness that he felt as the mumps left him.

The photo of him in the rye shows off the rye well and people say "He looks like a husky boy." I hope Flora went back to S. Orange with renewed strength and courage. I cannot keep pace with what Oliver and Ben are doing. The work Mary is doing in Godfrey [Mary was the head of the science Department of the Monticello Seminary in Godfrey, Ill.] gives me much satisfaction. What was Elbert's business? And wasn't he proud to travel all alone with his little (big) niece.

With lots of love to all and asking the Father to keep you in all health and success.

Yours Lovingly

Will

Foochow China

Nov 17- 1913

Dear Mother:-

This morning I'm trying a new wrinkle that is- writing as I ride in a sedan chair. It is a beautiful morning- bright, cool 58 degrees and very cheerful- just like a day at home the last of Sept.

We are in the midst of our Annual Meeting and are having a very helpful time. Each morning there is a business session of 1 hr. and a half. Last year I was elected moderator and Friday morning re-elected for three years. All business is conducted in the Chinese language.

There are two very important matters before us this year. 1. The raising of money for the Union Theol. School and for a fund for aged and needy ministers. (2) The adoption of a plan and working out the details by which the money given by the Board at home shall be put with the money given by the Chinese here for evangelistic work and then all put into the hands of a Committee made up of Chinese and foreigners to decide where and how it shall be used. Until now this has been done entirely by foreigners. Both these steps you see are in the direction of placing more responsibility on the Chinese. They are taking the matter up enthusiastically. Beginning Fri. at 4 p.m. the Committee already in two days have $2500 subscribed toward the fund mentioned above. This year a Congregation Pastor from Peking is with us. He is a power,- his addresses are strong- spiritual and practical. He knows his Bible, he knows God and he knows men. He is also in the Methodist Mission Peking, - in the church and these men- citizens of the Republic of China- hang on every word of his. Last Thursday evening they held a social here and the committee asked him to speak. The chairman arose and said there are three things that we want to hear about Peking i.e. the general condition of things there,- the condition of the church there- and the political situation. Of these the church is the most important, so we should first hear of that. At once a man rose and said "No, hear of the political situation first and he was backed by so many that no one dared ask about the condition of the church during the whole evening. When they asked him if they might ask him questions, he said "certainly". "But would you allow me to say just a few words before you begin to ask questions". "Certainly" they said. He rose and in about ten minutes said in substance, "I understand that some people in the south are not entirely pleased with Yuan Shi Kai as President. I want to say just a word about him and the presidency. He is the only man in the country who is acceptable to foreign nations. If Sun Yat Sen had been elected to the presidency the other nations would not have lent us a cent of money. He also knows how to deal with the Ministers and Ambassadors of foreign countries as no other man in China. Again Yuan Chi Kai is the only man in China that can command the army. No other man in China knows the army as he does. He has trained the only real army in China. Again Yuan Shi Kai has about him reliable men who will stand by him and upon whom he can depend. Sun Yat Sen is surrounded by factions that are erratic and undependable. If he had been elected to the presidency China could not have been held together. The government would be a lot of warring factions and this would mean the splitting up of the country and its downfall. Yuan Shi Kai can hold it together and he is the only man in the country who can. You say, here in the South that he is ambitious and that he wants to make himself Emperor. Think a moment when during the revolution the Emperor called him to Peking. Yuan Shi Kai had really the power of an Emperor. The Emperor gave him whatever power he had left- all the Manchus gave themselves into his hands. The army was his. He had trained it. China's money was his. If he had wanted to be Emperor it would have been a very easy thing for him to have taken the place two years ago. But he did not. This is the strongest proof that Yuan Shi Kai is a true Patriot and a true Republican. These few words I wished to say by way of introduction to whatever questions you may desire to ask".

For over one hour the pastors and preachers and delegates asked questions about Peking- about Yuan Shi Kai- about the Assembly, about the little boy who was Emperor- about the stipend given to the Manchu princes and household by the Republic of China and many other things. They asked if Pres. Yuan worked against the church. Pastor Li replied:- "A few weeks ago we dedicated a Y.M.C.A. building in Peking. The doors were so arranged that they could be opened by the pressing of a button by the President. He gladly performed this function himself from his office and then sent his representatives to speak at the dedication. No he does not work against the Christian church. He treats them well."

"How about that request for the prayers of the church in China for the Republic. Did it really come from Pres. Yuan?" "It did not start from him. Some of us pastors were talking with a Christian man, a member of the Assembly and we suggested a service of prayer for the Republic. This was held. The idea grew. Others in the Assembly favored it and Pres Yuan gave the idea his approval and it was ordered telegraphed to the Governors of all the provinces. So the call for prayer really came from the Christian Church, but it had the sanction of the President and the government."

"What is this we hear about Confucianism becoming the State Religion for China. Is it really an article in the Constitution?" "No. It was proposed and earnestly supported by a certain member of the Assembly and his friends. But about $600 silver - $300 gold,- was given some of us to spend in the cause of Religious Liberty. Many telegrams poured in from all parts of the country to members of the Assembly. But these never came to the proper persons and their influence was nil. We organized our campaign, found an assemblyman who favored Religious Liberty, gave a feast to which he was invited with a few of his friends. Then got more men interested and gave other feasts and took the men riding and in this way we carried on an educational campaign among the assemblymen and the probability is that Confucianism will not be the national religion- neither of course do we want Christianity to be the national religion. We want Religious Liberty and it looks much as if this was now assured."

"How many Christians are there in the National Assembly?" "Five or six." "Is Mr. Ling of Foochow known in Peking as a Christian?" "Yes." "Does he attend church regularly?" "No." "How many Christians in the Assembly do attend church regularly?" "Only one. There are thirty or forty who come on nearly all special occasions."

Many more questions were asked about details and matters of special interest to Foochow people.

As I looked into the eager faces of these Foochow men- citizens of the Republic of China- each one hanging on every word of their brother pastor from the Capitol of their country to gain a better knowledge of conditions that affect the whole country, I realized that a revolution had taken place in their minds and hearts during the past nineteen years. Just nineteen years ago I asked some of these very men about the war with Japan "We have no war with Japan." "Oh yes you have. They are fighting now in the north." "Oh, well. That's an affair with Peking. It's none of our business." This is the real Revolution of which the change in government and name that took place two years ago in the outward region.

Nov. 29th

I have held back this letter a long time to get a copy made. Thanksgiving has come and gone. We had a very pleasant day here. I took dinner in the evening with a Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson T.M.-Flora will remember them. Last Sat. a week ago I played Basket Ball- stuck it out thru both halves, and it did not hurt me. I suppose tho that a man of my age ought not to play such strenuous games too often. I was however pleased to see how well I stood it. My weight now with ordinary fall clothing is 177 lbs.

I thought of you often on Thanksgiving day, and the letters telling of your gathering I shall await with pleasant anticipation. I hope some at least of the Putnamites can/did get down.

Where is Elizabeth? Occasionally I hear a rustle and am told that Elizabeth has gone somewhere but she does not write me. If she is merely paying me back in my own coin I suppose I must plead guilty. But the truth is I never wrote so many letters in a week in any of my weeks in Foochow as I do now. But the family or families are so scattered and others- like Mt. Vernon and Flatbush have come into my list that I do not get around very often. This morning a good mail brought excellent news from Phebe K. and Phebe M. and Mrs. Bean of Mt. Vernon. The Lit. Digest is one of my standbys and my thanks go to Elizabeth and Ruth. The Sentinel is always a delight and the postal of the Square is very good indeed. I'm glad to hear of the success of the Beard Co. When they retire I shall expect them to visit me on their way round the world, and put up a nice Science Building for the College. $10000, gold will do it,- All is going very nicely in the College thus far. We still beat everything in basketball, altho this is not the measure of our prosperity. The Press is running all day and until 9 p.m. many evenings.

Can you send me by mail 1 pint (about) of two kinds of sweet corn, one fairly early one later. I want to plant them in March. I should also like some of those hard tomato seeds. God keep and bless you all Very Lovingly Will.

Foochow China
Nov. 19th 1913.

Dear Phebe:-

It is to you I think that I have addressed the letter this week. I wrote Mama's last Sunday evening. This last week all other things have had to wait while we held the Annual Meeting. But it has been worth the cost. Pastor Li Buong Nguong came down from our Central Congregational church in Peking and his addresses on "Prayer" "Peace that passeth understanding," "Conditions in Peking" and other addresses have been most helpful. I hope to send you a copy of his talks and interview on the conditions in Peking. I have written them out and plan to have a few copies made to send to different ones.

The main feature of the Annual Meeting was the Business sessions. Of these I was Moderator and reelected for three years. All went smoothly until they took up the matter of raising a fund for the Union Theological Seminary and for the help of aged ministers. There were several subscriptions in all amounting to $2500 but some had pledged in enthusiasm and on sober second thought backed out, and the session closed rather despondently. But they did vote to appoint a committee to consider the division of all money that is used to help either churches or schools. So now the missionary will not decide alone how much each preacher or school teacher will receive but there will be a committee of 16 to take the whole matter into consideration- I am convener of this Committee.

We should have finished the business of the meeting on Tues. but did not get thru so voted to adjourn till Wed. a.m. Some could not wait and "ran home" but 44 remained. This I considered very good indeed.

Last week Tuesday at 4:30 Henry Lacy was married. I am enclosing his wedding invitation and also Clara Dornblaser's and a clipping about Irving Lacy's wedding in Shanghai just a week before Henry's. I am writing this on Sunday evening Nov. 23rd.

I hope it may reach you in time to bring you my Christmas greetings. I cannot think ahead to these occasions without having to swallow. For a picture of you all at home comes into my mind and I am so far away. But God has been most gracious to us all these years and gave us two years with so many reunions that we must all be thankful to Him- and added to this I can think of you all at home together and well. This takes all real sadness out of my mind, - only the tears come in spite of it all. Next Thursday is Thanksgiving. I wonder where you will eat dinner. I have accepted an invitation for the evening to dine at Mr. T. M. Wilkinsons. - I think it is just a quiet little home affair. People here are very kind to me- too much so almost. They keep enquiring of Mama and you children and evince a surprising knowledge of what you children used to do here- bringing up things that I supposed had been forgotten long ago. If they never said anything I might either get mad at them for their disinterestedness or get cold and indifferent, but with so much that is tender all about me it is very natural to keep tender.

Today a good letter came from Grandma Beard. She says that they have quantities of fruit- apples, pears, grapes and vegetables. Aunts Elizabeth and Ruth went to New Haven to the foot ball game this year. Mrs. Parkhurst had arrived but was detained to be deported. But appeals had been sent to Pres. Wilson to let her come in. It might help the trade in hatchet and also it might give work to the carpenters and masons to let her in. I wonder if any of you will go to New York to meet her?

Aunt Elizabeth had R. Island Reds that dress 5 and 6 lbs. What has become of Gould's fowls? I have not heard a word since he left them in Putnam last June. And what became of those wild duck's eggs that he kept warm and put under a hen? My but I'd like just to spend one evening with you to see how you are in the home. I hear of various things in public life about you all but how about the home life. I hope it is not given up for public functions entirely. I think that no one thing impressed me more while I was at home than the way in which people were losing the idea of home. They had houses where they slept and where they ate when convenient but these were not homes. I missed it more than anything else. I used to plan for days to get an evening at home- only to find that there was a concert or something that spoiled the homey-ness, and my longing for an evening just with my dear ones at home was put off.

I am rejoiced at the good news that comes to me about the Putnam Schools this year and I hope it will continue. I am hoping every mail will bring something regarding your decision as to the College you will attend. I hardly think I need say more than I have said and written.

Yesterday our boys played the Anglo Chinese boys at Basket Ball and beat score 17-89 I believe. Then the foreigners played. And would you believe it I played for Foochow College. They had one tall man just from home- Gilchrist, and the other men were good young wiry fellows. Gowdy did not play. We had only one good man- Mr. Topping. The Kinnear boys and myself and a Mr. Cole from Hing Hua. They beat us 24-10. We felt quite elated to do so well. I have played three times in my life. To day I'm pretty stiff. Basket Ball is most too strenuous for a 49'er.

Mrs. W. H. Topping

A mother of Toppings, a nurse of Toppings, a teacher of Toppings, a friend of the neighborhood. That's Topping! - No, Mrs. Topping.

I wonder if any of you will go down to Shelton for the Golden Wedding [Oliver Gould Beard and Nancy Maria Nichols Beard were married Jan. 20, 1864.]. I very much hope some of you can. I did want to be home for that. And I suppose I found it as hard to give up that as any other one thing in deciding to come back to Foochow when I did.

A postal from Mr. Neff today says he plans to reach Hong Kong Dec. 28. Did I write that we expect Dr. and Mrs. Capen- Pres. of Am. Board and Dr. Wm. E. Strong the middle of Jan?

Our garden is producing lettuce and radishes and we have a lot of other things started. How I wish you could see our compound. I sent a lot of photos last Spring and Summer but you could not have received them. These last few days I have sent off 70 boxes of fragrant tea as Christmas presents and 30 boxes to Miss M.B. Preston, 1615 Newkirk Ave., Brooklyn for which she will send Mama some money. She ordered only 25 boxes @ .25 a box so she may send only $6.25. If she pays for all she will send 7.50. Mama may do anything she likes with the money.

As Thanksgiving approaches I'm thinking of special causes for thankfulness and first comes Thankfulness for the loveliest wife in all the world, next for the six best children in all the world, next that Our Father has kept us all another year,- next that we all know Him and love Him. Isn't that a lot to be thankful for and then add to these that He knows us by letting us serve Him and giving us the satisfaction of seeing that our work does good. Keep in touch with God is your loving father's prayer. W.L. Beard

Dec. 7th 1913.

Dear Gould:-

This is to be a very short personal letter this week. I have had a copy made of these six pages and they will be of interest to you and Mama and the others perhaps can use them.

Last Tues. the Foochow College "Varsity" football team played the foreigners.= Hodous, Topping, Newell, Morris, Gerald, Kinnear Dr., Cooper Dr., Ding Hai Ceng at football. Score 5-3 in favor of "Varsity".

The Monthly Concert of Prayer this week was at Mr. Miners. He spoke only a few words then his son Wallace who has just arrived to do Sunday School work in the Meth. Mission spoke of his work. Then Mr. Ding the Chinese Sec'y of the Fukien S.S. Union spoke. Then Mr. Bondfield agent for the Brit. and foreign Bible Society spoke. The quartette- Mrs. Mac, Miss Wonzer, Misses Jones and Newell sang most beautifully. That day was the first day I have spent away from the College and Press since Sept. 14th. In the a.m. I went with Miss Hartwell and others to see some of the officials to ask them to contribute to the Orphanage. They said they wanted me to go to see one man. They got me to go to see four. At 12:30 just as I sat down to dinner a note came in telling me of a Federation Comm. at 2 p.m. at Mr. Mains- at 3 came the Monthly concert and then supper with Mr. and Mrs. Billing and then meeting of Union Normal B'd of Managers and home at 10:30. I know God is watching over you all, and I trust each of you is looking for His care. Your Loving Father Willard L. Beard

We are in the midst of our Annual Meeting, and are having a very helpful time. Each morning there is a business session of an hour and a half.

Last year I was elected Moderator and Friday morning re-elected for three years. All business is conducted in the Chinese language.

There are two very important matters before us this year (1.) The raising of money for the Union Theol. School and for a fund for aged and needy ministers. (2) The adoption of a plan and working out the details by which the money given by the Board at home shall be put with the money given by the Chinese here for evangelistic work and then all put into the hands of a committee made up of Chinese and foreigners to decide where and how it shall be used. Until now this has been done entirely by foreigners. Both these steps you see are in the direction of placing more responsibility on the Chinese. They are taking the matter up enthusiastically. Beginning Fri. at 4 P.M. the Committee already in two days have $2500 subscribed toward the fund mentioned above. This year a congregational Pastor from Peking is with us. He is a power, - his addresses are strong- Spiritual and practical. He knows his Bible, he knows God and he knows men. He is also in the middle of things in Peking in the church and these men - citizens of the republic of China - hang on every word of his. Last Thursday evening they held a social here and the Committee asked him to speak. The chairman arose and said there are three things that we want to hear about Peking i.e. the general condition of things there- the condition of the church there- and the political situation. Of these the church is the most important. So we should first hear of that. At once a man rose and said "No hear of the political situation first" and he was backed by so many that no one dared ask about the condition of the church during the whole evening. When they asked him if they might ask him questions, he said "certainly", but would you allow me to say just a few words before you begin to ask questions." "Certainly" they said. He rose and in about ten minutes said in substance "I understand that some people in the south are not entirely pleased with Yuan Shih Kai as president. I want to say just a word about him and the presidency. He is the only man in the country who is acceptable to foreign nations. If Sun Yat Sen had been elected to the presidency the other nations would not have lent us a cent of money. He also knows how to deal with the ministers and Ambassadors of foreign countries as no other man in China. Again Yuan Shi Kai is the only man in China that can command the army. No other man in China knows the army as he does. He has trained the only real army in China. Again Yuan Shi Kai has about him reliable men who will stand by him and upon whom he can depend. Sun Yat Sen is surrounded by factions that are erratic and undependable. If he had been elected to the presidency China would not have been held together. The government would be a lot of warring factions and this would mean the splitting up of the country and its down fall. Yuan Shi Kai can hold it together and he is the only man who can. You say he is ambitious and that he wants to make himself Emperor. Think a moment. When during the revolution the Emperor called him to Peking, Yuan Shi Kai had really the power of an Emperor. The Emperor gave him whatever power he had left. All the Manchus gave themselves into his hands. The army was his. He had trained it. China's money was his. If he had wanted to be Emperor it would have been very easy. But he did not. This is the strongest proof that Yuan Shi Kai is a true Patriot and a true Republican. These few words I wished to say by way of introduction to whatever question you may desire to ask." For over an hour the pastors and preachers and delegates asked questions about Peking- about Yuan Shi Kai- about the Assembly. About the little boy who was Emperor- about the stipend given to the Manchu princes and household by the Republic of China and many other things. They asked if Pres. Yuan worked against the church. Pastor Li replied: - A few weeks ago we dedicated a Y.M.C.A. building in Peking. The doors were so arranged that they could be opened by the pressing of a button by the President. He gladly performed this function himself from his office and then sent his representative to speak at the dedication. No, he does not work against the Christian church. "How about that request for the prayers of the church in China for the republic. Did it really come from Pres. Yuan?" It did not start from him. Some of us pastors were talking with a Christian man a member of the Assembly and we suggested a service of prayer for the Republic. This was held. The idea grew. Others in the Assembly favoured it and Pres. Yuan gave the idea his approval and it was ordered telegraphed to the governors of all the provinces. So the call for prayer really come from the Christian church, but it had the sanction of the president and the government.

"What is this we hear about Confucianism becoming the State religion for China. It is really an article in the Constitution? "No, it was proposed and earnestly supported by a certain member of the Assembly and his friends. But about $600 silver- $300 gold, - was given some of us to spend in the cause of Religious Liberty. Many telegrams poured in from all parts of the country to members of the Assembly.

But these never come to the proper persons and their influence was nil. We organized our campaign, found an assembly man who favoured Religious Liberty, gave a feast to which he was invited with a few of his friends. Then got more men interested and gave other feasts and took the men riding and in this way we carried on an Educational campaign among the Assembly men and the probability is that Confucianism will not be the national religion neither of course do we want Christianity to be the national religion. We want religious liberty, and it looks much as if this was now assured."

"How many Christians are there in the National Assembly?" "Five or six." Is Mr. Ling of Foochow known in Peking as a Christian?" "Yes." "Does he attend church regularly?" "No." "How many Christians in the assembly do attend church regularly?" "Only one." There are thirty or forty who come on nearly all special occasions.

Many more questions were asked about details and matters of special interest to Foochow people. As I looked into the eager faces of these Foochow men- citizens of the Republic of China -each one hanging on every word of their brother pastor from the Capital of their country to gain a better knowledge of conditions that affect the whole country I realized that a revolution had taken place in their minds and hearts during the past nineteen years. Just nineteen years ago I asked some of these very men about the war with Japan. "We have no war with Japan." "O yes, you have. They are fighting now in the North." "Oh well, that is an affair with Peking." It is none of our business." This is the real Revolution of which the change in government and none that took place two years ago is the outward sign.

Foochow, China March 15th 1914.

Dear- to whom shall I address this- nothing came from Putnam this last week-let me see whose turn it is to have the letter according to my correspondence register.- it's Marjorie's turn so here it goes.

Dear Marjorie:-

Last week I wrote Gould that March came in very lamb-like. But this last week she took off her lambs wool cloak and put on a water-proof lion's hide, and turned all the water off on to us and gave us a flood all over the plain between here and Kuliang, and sent the thermometer down from 75-54 as it is now in my study. As I write my fingers ache and I have on my heaviest winter clothes throughout. Yesterday I was shivering cold all day.

This past week has been rather interesting. Mama will remember Ding Kai Ceng the Chinese teacher in Foochow College who has taught English for a long time. He married Pastor Ciong Ging Beng's daughter. They had one boy and four girls. Last week his wife's brother came home from the P.O. in Canton and left on Tuesday for Tientsin. Mr. Ding and his whole family went over to Au Long Die and spent several days with Pastor Ciong and then Mr. Ding went down to the steamer with his brother-in-law on Tuesday. He brought his family into the city on Wed. a.m. His oldest child is the boy= Teddy, 15 years old. The next is a girl 12 years old. The youngest was 2 years old. The oldest girl was ill at Au Long Die. The Pastor called a Chinese doctor and she appeared better. But when they reached home she became worse, and they brought her to the Hospital. The doctors here did not know what the illness was nor what to do. We do not take in anything but men, and the doctors urged the father to take her to Dr. Shire's= English Woman's Hospital only 15 min. from here. They took her home and she died before they started for the other Hospital. The Dr.'s were afraid of the plague. I went to the house Wed. p.m. for the funeral service. On Thursday morning Dr. Cooper was asked to see the baby 2 yrs. old. He urged them to take it immediately to Dr. Shire, which they did. I was talking with Dwight about 8:30 p.m. when a note came from Dr. Shire saying that the child was dead and the parents were at the Hospital and wanted me to come immediately for a service, and I went. When the parents went to the Hospital at Dr. Shire's request to be with the child, they had no one to leave the other three children with. Mr. and Mrs. Christian brought them right into our house. I knew of it first at the supper table that evening. The next morning when the mothers of foreign children found it out there was indignation, and to add to the strained situation, all three of those children began to act in much the same way as the two others had acted. The amah or house woman left in a hurry and Mr. and Mrs. C. got the children out and into a Chinese house as soon as possible, and Dr. shut Mr. and Mrs. C. into this house. Fortunately I had not been near the children and was considered all right. But Dr. and Mrs. Cooper and I take meals at Mr. and Mrs. Newell's. My living is sort of jumbled up just now. Here is a plan of our house and its relation to Mr. Newell's.

The Christians can use all the house except my two rooms, and I do not go into the house at all except into my two rooms. We do not look for any trouble now. But on Friday there was a good deal of anxiety. Dr. Cooper says if all goes well till Tues. night he will take off the quarantine from the Christians.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. Hodous gave Mr. Goddard an At Home which proved a very pleasant affair - there was a good crowd out notwithstanding the C.M.S. men had an important meeting that kept all the men away. Dwight is helping Mr. Hubbard balance the books of the mission.

I have agreed to take Mrs. and Miss Pitcher to board in my mountain house this summer. Mr. Pitcher says he will sleep on the veranda if he comes up. I am afraid he will find it breezy and if it rains he will need a rubber blanket over him.

We are building a new school building to hold 100 boys in the Higher and Lower Primary. Mr. Newell has charge of this. [According to a publication titled the Peking Presbyterian Mission 1917, "Unlike American schools, those in China divide what are called the grammar grades into Lower and Higher Primary schools, the first including the first four years, and the latter the remaining three years." Booklet from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Every day I ask God both in the morning and in the evening to take of you all specially to keep you all loving and kind to each other and to others. I ask Him to make our home in Putnam such a sweet pleasant place that it shall make the whole city better. I ask Him to bless dear Mama most abundantly and to make each of you children so thoughtful and helpful to her that she can't help writing all the time. Please Marjorie kiss her just now for Papa.
Your Loving Father

Foochow China

March 29th 1914

Dear Kathleen:-

It is getting to be a bother to me to look up each week to see whose turn it is to receive a letter. I had to go back three weeks in my register to find the last letter from Putnam. It came from Gould March 8. But I have sent one to him since then and one to Dorothy and one to Marjorie, and I believe it is your turn to day. Do you know how old dear Mama is today? And I wonder if Gould really gave her a good loving hug and kiss for me on her birthday. It will be so long before this reaches that you all will have forgotten. But never mind as soon as you read this to here // just put the letter down and go and put your arms around Mama's neck and give her a good hug and your very sweetest kiss and tell her [it] is from Papa way over in China. Here is the kiss * a great big one.

I wonder what you are all doing these March days in Putnam. And I wonder if you were able to keep warm and to keep the water pipes from freezing and bursting in the cold weather the papers and letters are telling about. This last week has been very rainy and cold. Last Sunday and Monday were very warm but Tuesday got cold and wet, was so dark and cold that we had fires in the stoves and lamps lit by five o'clock. Yesterday was a little warmer and today has been a perfectly lovely Spring day- just on purpose to help enjoy Mama's birthday.

Last Friday I taught my class at the Union Normal School at 2:00 p.m. and as there was a committee meeting of the Fukien Evangelistic Campaign at the YMCA in the evening I took supper with Mr. and Mrs. Munson, and in the afternoon I called on Mr. Main. Mrs. Main and Florence are still in Shanghai. Florence took the last treatment that morning and they will be home on the next steamer. I am getting my things for housekeeping on Kuliang this Summer.- I bought 1 doz. soup spoons and four large spoons one day and have bought of Orrin four table cloths, three 2 ½ yds., and one three yds. and 1 doz. napkins. I have picked out knives and forks and tea spoons. I can see Mama prick up her ears as you read this. I wonder how I'll come out- I mean with the house keeping. I'm planning to take up two school boys to do the coolie work, - if they will go.

This last week I had another order for tea from Miss Preston of Brooklyn. I am sending her 30 boxes. She will be sending Mama $5.25 for 21 boxes and then $2.25 again for the extra I am sending. I wonder if Mama ever received from her some money about Christmas time- and how much.

Mr. Goddard is still here and is hard at work on the plans for the new city church. If all our hopes are realized we shall have a very useful church, and it is a very great help to me that he is here to draw the plans.

You and Marjorie must be growing fast, if I can judge from the picture taken at Grandpa Beards at New Years. Aunt Mary sent it and I can see that you are larger than when I left a year ago last Sept. As you grow big do you grow good? That is the most important question, for the good is better than to be big. In what grades are you and Marjorie? Your school will be closed before I receive the reply to this letter and Gould will be on the Century Farm mowing with the new spar. Aunt Ruth wrote that Grandpa peddled with both in the blizzard and they trotted thru the drifts all right. May God keep you all well and good. Very Lovingly your Father

April 5th 1914

Dear Phebe:-

All the others have had a letter since you. There is nothing for me to answer as the last letter came March 8th from Gould. I talk with God about you all by name each night and morning and I trust him to keep you all. I pray specially that He will help Gould in Latin and the rest of you in any specially difficult studies.

The past week has been full and interesting. Tuesday evening the Y.M.C.A. had Quo Vadis in moving pictures 6:00-8:30. I attended and went from there to dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Munson. The pictures were good. I am glad I saw them but I should not go again for the purpose of seeing the pictures myself. There was something so horrible and depressing about the gluttonous reveling of Nero and his court- something so revolting about the torture of the Christians and the unhuman pleasure in Nero and the people! It was true the pictures helped me to realize the depth to which man can fall when he gives reign to his passion in any line- or to his natural desires in any line.

On Wed. I attended the Monthly Concert of Prayer at Mrs. Macs- Mr. Munson led and spoke of the Evangelistic Campaign for this province in the Fall. I got frivolous that day for an old man the father of a nineteen year old young lady. In the morning before breakfast I sewed down the cutlery to the table cloth and tied some of the chairs. In the evening Dr. Cooper, Mr. Christian and I came home from Monthly Concert before the ladies Mrs. Christian and Mrs. Cooper. We did not arrive till 6:45 and there was no sign of supper on the table. We asked the table boy and he said with a smile "Mrs. Christian said there would not be supper." We waited till 7:00 and decided the ladies were trying to April fool us. Going into the kitchen we found the supper on the stove, and proceeded to help ourselves in this way. The dish containing peas, rice, etc. in the little tin cans – you remember how they boil these here – I put into my bath tub. Under the baker we found a meat pie and potatoes. These with a pitcher of milk and all the bread in the house we took and started for the Hospital to have our supper. As we passed under Dr. Cooper's house, we heard footsteps and voices above and so waited a moment- for they could see us from the veranda- even if it was dark, as we went down to the Hospital. Then we changed our course and went over to Mr. Neff's. There we three ate our supper. Coming back home we found the ladies here with little tables set on the back veranda and lanterns hung for light- but no supper. We thought they were staying away late for a joke and that we had turned the joke on them- but the only joke in their minds was to have a veranda supper,- and Mrs. Christian felt badly cut up over it and we all felt sad until a night's sleep took all the gloom away.

Tuesday morning Ling Hok Ngie passed away at 7 a.m. Mama will remember that soon after we reached Foochow in 1894, we attended some exercise in Foochow College-class day I think and one of the students kept all the Chinese roaring with laughter- we asked Dr. C.C. Baldwin who sat next to us to explain the joke and he said, "I do not know what they are talking about." And we thought if after 40 or 50 years he could not understand, what could we hope to do? Well this bright lad was Ling Hok Ngie. He graduated from College, then from the Sem'y and preached till a year ago when consumption made him too weak. He was a devoted, earnest, consecrated man- full of ideas and fertile in plans and with no selfishness. Thursday afternoon over 200 attended the funeral over S. Side.

Friday my usual duties of that day- teach Ethics 8:30-9:30, lead chapel 10-10:30, prepare Pol. Econ. 10:30-11:30 and teach it 11:30-12. At 1:00 start for S. Side to teach Union Normal 2:05-2:50. Then I went as fast as possible to the East Gate tartar church to examine candidates for church membership, and in the evening attended the College YMCA meeting. This makes a very full day. Saturday afternoon was occupied wholly with a meeting of the Board of Directors of the union Medical College.

Wed. and Thurs. were very warm. Yesterday and today I have had a fire in my stove all the time I have been in my room- burned more wood than on any other two days this Winter. I shall look for reports in your letters of extreme cold weather and snow and blizzards. I hope you were able to keep warm, and that the pipes did not burst to cause damage. Mr. Goddard says Mrs. Goddard writes that her pipes burst and flooded parts of the house.

From various letters I judge people are wondering at home if we are troubled with the mandate from Peking making Confucianism the state religion. Not in the least as far as I can see. During the past year there have been changes along two lines that are radical and very noticeable. 1st A year ago the enforcement of law was very lax. Now it is rigid. There is order here now and one realizes that the government rules. 2nd. The government schools are running on a very low scale. Some are practically without teachers or students- some are closed. But business seems good. When I came in Nov. 1912 a foreign building caused us to ask who was building. Now they are so numerous that we have stopped asking. And many shops are being repaired and much paint is being used. These are the best sign of prosperity.

Last night after 9:30 I washed out three woolen union suits. I'm going to shiver now rather than wear them again for I do not want to wash them again this Winter. Last night I had all my blankets on the bed and kept just comfortable warm.

I wonder if you have the Congregationalist to read. Prof Steiner of Grinnell, Iowa has his autobiography in it as a serial this year and it is very interesting and instructional.

Aunt Mary writes that she may come to Peking with Aunt Flora next Fall.

I had a very nice motherly letter from Mrs. Whitney asking me if I had sat down to count the details of keeping house on Kuliang, - had I considered that these "out of port" people had high ideas of style and that a young lady was among my boarders and would "attract" company-and did I have table linen enough etc. etc. It's nice to be looked after-when your wife and daughters are not around to care for you.

Kiss Mama for me and hug her. Miss Pierson of Brooklyn has sent for 18 boxes more of tea 45 in all. The money to be sent to Mama. Last week I asked you to buy me a cheap bathing suit and send by mail starting it as soon after May 15 as possible. If you have not yet sent it put in a pair of tubular shoe strings,-good ones please.

With all of Father's love to his big girls and little girls and to his son. Willard L. Beard

Foochow, China April, 6th. 1914.

Dear Mother:-

It is an experiment using the typewriter to write you. Some people say it is not good form to write your own folks on the machine, but when ones handwriting is as bad as mine I have often wondered if my own folks did not sometimes say mentally, if not audible, "I do wish he would use a typewriter so we would not wear out our eyes trying to read his letters." It really makes no difference to me which way I write. When I first began on this new machine, the key board was different from my other and it was pretty slow and tedious but now it goes all right - - when I strike the right letters.

The weather man has got very much mixed up this last week. Wednesday and Thursday the ther. stood above 70 degrees and white suits came out on some of the new comers. Saturday and yesterday the ther. in my study registered 54 degrees and with a fire it rose only to 58 degrees. I sleep under all my blankets and am just nice and comfortable. Mr. Hodous and Dwight Goddard went off into the country Friday for three days. Saturday night they were cold and thought they had all the bedding they had with them, the next morning on putting the bedding into the baskets to go to the next place they found the coolie in making the bed had put some of the blankets under them instead of over them. Mr. Newell also went off Friday without an overcoat and came back yesterday with chattering teeth. But we shall soon be warm enough.

On last Tuesday evening the Y.M.C.A. showed Quo Vadis with moving pictures, to foreigners only. Tickets $1.00. I attended. Of course it was intensely interesting. But I would not care to see it again just for myself. The subhuman revelry in Nero's court, the demoniacal pleasure of the court and crowds at the sight of human blood and torture were made vivid, but I doubt it very much of this is beneficial or helpful in the development of the best Christian character.

Yesterday I taught three different classes in Sunday School or Bible study, preached and conducted Communion and received seven into the church at East Gate. And finished the day by attending the C.E. meeting. That's pretty near dissipating.

Mary quite startled me in her last letter by saying that she was considering coming to China in the fall with Flora. She did not know at that time whether it would go thru. If the way is not opened and she wants to come to Foochow just tell her to write Dr. C.S. Patton of Boston and I can guarantee that the American Board will find money to send her to Foochow this Fall. Guarantee is a pretty strong word, I mean from anything that I know now.

Tell Father that the "Vindicator" is reaching me regularly, two numbers have come.

Dwight Goddard is still here and will stay another month at least and I am saving a room in my mountain cottage for him to use all summer. He is busy at various things such as drawing plans for a new church which we hope to erect this year, and making plans for a new entrance to the compound here, preaching and giving addresses on various occasions, and buying jade. We laugh at him for this. Mr. Boyce who has been teaching in the government schools is a crank on jade and Goddard goes with him to buy. Neither of them buy anything extravagant so all can have fun out of it.

I am surmising that the reports of the political situation in China have caused you some cogitations. You are asking, "Is Yuan Shi Kai planning to make himself Emperor? Where is the Republic of China? Does the recent action regarding Confucianism sound the death knell to religious liberty? What is the effect in general of the seemingly retrogressive action of the government?"

No one knows whether Yuan is planning to become Emperor or not, but practically all agree that he is now doing the only thing to be done if a stable government is to be maintained. Let me give two instances as examples of what is going on all over the country. Two Foochow men were in Peking, uncle and nephew. The nephew was murdered. Suspicion pointed to the uncle. He was a powerful man, shrewd and a friend of the President. Nothing was proved but the man is still confined, he is safe now and cannot if he wished to, hinder the chief man of the land. Again, some two months ago the governor of Fukien was asked to render his accounts and left for the north. In his place is a relative of the President. And he is governing the people here. A year ago thieves and thugs seemed to fear no one. I have not heard of a theft for over a month. As I go about the city there is an atmosphere of order that agreement with the seeming free hand given to White Wolf in his depredations. Whether the President does not realize the gravity of that situation or he is not yet prepared to overcome him I do not know.

But after considering all sides of the situation the consensus of opinion is that the President is doing the right thing for the country in the present crisis. He may be planning to become Emperor, or he may be planning to first bring order in the country and then gradually give more responsibility to the people. He is playing a very wise game. For he has always before him two courses, so he will never be caught in a corner.

Personally China seems to me to be following the most natural course. The Revolutions revoluted too far. It was going at too great a rate of speed to keep up. The change in names of things and offices etc. was not the real names or methods of punishment or long hair for men etc., will ever destroy. That something you may call by different names. The people have seen a vision. They have had a taste of freedom. They have found that there is more than one way of doing things. Now under these conditions they act differently than Americans would act. For instance two years ago there were five thousand or more students in the government schools in Foochow. Today there may be five hundred. The daily papers would find abundant "copy" in the U.S. at such a time. But it scarcely causes a ripple here. There is perfect confidence that the matter will right itself "tomorrow." And it will.

Well this is a long letter for me. Please be perfectly frank and tell me if you would prefer me to use pen and ink.

I wonder if you received a letter sometime about January in which I asked for some sweet corn and tomato seeds. There is no harm done but if it did not reach you I must begin to keep a better tab on my letters.

Lovingly yours.

Will

Dear Phebe:-

Your good letter dated March 8th came Friday evening May 1st. It is very interesting to hear you talk about "the children" as if you were not one of them- I suppose you mean Marjorie and Kathleen. They used to be "the babies". Life while one is in school must be and should be narrow in a sense, - that is a part of the price of an education. Many a boy could not endure the confinement necessary to get his education and many a girl has chosen society instead of the grind and has thus lost an education. My school days- while in High School were very much narrower than yours. I practically lived between my home and the High School in Derby- never a game of any kind and Saturdays work all day. Sunday brought church and Sunday School. In college there is more of the social life. But there it is, with those who make good, duty= study first, and with me lots of work. I hope you children will have less. I am glad to learn from both you and Gould that work is going so nicely in the Putnam High this year. How I would enjoy looking in on you all as you study in the evening, - even Marjorie and Kathleen study. My only fear for you is that you will begin studying to late and will sit up too late. It shall be easier when you get to Oberlin- where you will have to go to bed at ten p.m. What's this about $5.00 a month allowance- it's all news to me.

How did that Quinebaug Valley championship come out? All these things are good in their place. One of the great benefits of our education is to enable one to keep the proper balance. A basket ball game has its place just as a suffrage lecture or a prayermeeting, or study or music. Any one of these carried to excess is wrong. And I always felt that if one is perfectly honest with himself he has the guide within himself that lets him know when he is giving too much time to any one. I should feel like urging you to attend a ball game and urging Gould to attend a suffrage lecture and to put more enthusiasm into study. I need here to spur myself to more play and physical exercise. I want to add that the good in a ball game comes to the players not to the expectation. I had to smile at your comments on Mama's venture at the basket ball game. I hope she was not seriously contaminated. I should have enjoyed seeing Mr. Hathaway. It would be better than a soda mint tablet.

Latin seems to be the sticker for you and Gould I wonder why. I did not find it particularly hard. In my first year in high school I had it as one of my three studies and without knowing it I stood the highest of 80 students in the four High School classes. To day has been a perfect day- just like a cool day in June. I wore a vest and Prince Albert to preach in this a.m. with entire comfort. Three joined the church here. I certainly want to hear how the debate comes out on the suffrage question.

I cannot express the strength that comes to me as I remember all those in the home land that are praying for me. There are seven in Putnam who I know pray every day, and sometimes responsibilities are so heavy that I could not hear them if I did not know I was not alone,- that God hears the prayers of my loved ones.

I wish you would write more about your Bible reading. Are you following any course or are you just doing original work. I have always preferred Matthew, Luke and John to Mark for devotional reading. But for the background of Jesus' life and works I like Mark, and then take the other three to fill in. Mark is generally briefer. Is it so nice to have a letter to answer that I may have spent too much time in just remarking on the things of special interest in your letter- I'm saving Gould's till next week.

Last Friday I attended the tenth Anniversary of the Anti Opium League of Fukien. The English Commissioner has just finished his tour of the Province and has said that Fukien was rid of opium. So this tenth anniversary is to be the last. I was asked to speak and Mr. Goddard also spoke. Then what do you suppose three women spoke, - right up on the platform before men and all. They did well too. Yesterday I attended the meeting of the Comm. on the Panama Exposition Exhibit.

How I should enjoy being able to stop the "aching or tickling or itching" of your arms. Think of a man who has had a wife and five daughters to hug him- having to live two or three or four years with no one to hug him. It does me lots of good tho to read in your letters that you would like to do so.

With lots of love to each- a hug and lots of kisses to each. I am your very loving father – who brings each of you twice every day to God for his care.

Willard L. Beard.

I'll try to send in the next letter your birthday check. I wonder why you say nothing about Marjorie and Dorothy. Inaung asks after mama frequently. One day he gave me 10 cents to send a letter to her, - said it was hard for him to write- she has his affection (?) all right. Should I be jealous? Mr. Cio Lik Daik is back in Foochow.

Dear Phebe:-

I do not need to look at my correspondence register this week to find to whom I should write for your good letter of April 9th with its supplement of April 28th came yesterday and so I have a letter to answer.

We have had two very hot days- and just now some one of those sudden terrific showers that you will all remember used to come in Foochow. I thought of you children and the way Mama and I used to dress you up to go out in the showers and the fun you used to have. Do you remember one time on the mountain after you had been out and Gould had been rubbed down and was sitting in a chair with his foot in a wash bowl slopping the water over the floor. He said "mama what makes it rain so hard, does God sit up in Heaven and go slop, slop, slop with His feet?"

As the end of the term draws near duties multiply- if this is possible. Last week we were reviewing all the week and this continuing this week then one week and three days of examinations and the boys go home. But on the 19th I promised to begin a nine hours course in Political Economy with about 65 pastors and preachers in the Summer School of Theol'y. In the mean time my boarding house on the mountain is supposed to start up June 20th. Boarders Mrs. and Miss Pitcher and Miss ____ from Amoy and Miss Billing and Miss Vander Linden from Foochow. Won't I be in for a gay time?

I see by the last Flatbush Calendar that Mama was in Flatbush Church last month. I hope she had a pleasant time- did the people much good and that she stopped at Mt. Vernon and saw Mr. and Mrs. Ide "Mother" Bean and Uncle Raymond and Aunt Mollie and DOROTHY and all the rest. I wonder also if she took time to run up to Century Farm or stopped any where in New York- probably shopped if she did. One of the last mails brought a good letter from Mr. Reed of Flatbush, and the last mail brought from Mr. Wittler of Brookfield, Conn. "The Inside of the Cup" [by Winston Churchill]. It is strange but I have been wishing I could get this book and was thinking of trying to borrow it to read this Summer. When the mail came and I saw a book was in it, as I was unwrapping it, the thought came to me that looks just the size of The Inside of the Cup- which it proved to be.

The contractors will be in this week with their figures on the new church and that will take a huge amount of time.

To morrow evening we are to have a social for all the former students of the College who have been here 4 or more years and have good characters. 114 promise to come. These with College course students, teachers, foreigners etc will make about 190. There is to be a feast- a Reflectroscope etc.

Aunt Ruth sent me Gould's letter to her so I have a word from him also. This week- I should have added to the last paragraph that the heavy shower this afternoon makes the Chinese apprehensive for tomorrow evening's weather. We had hoped to eat and have all our sleeping etc on the lawn.

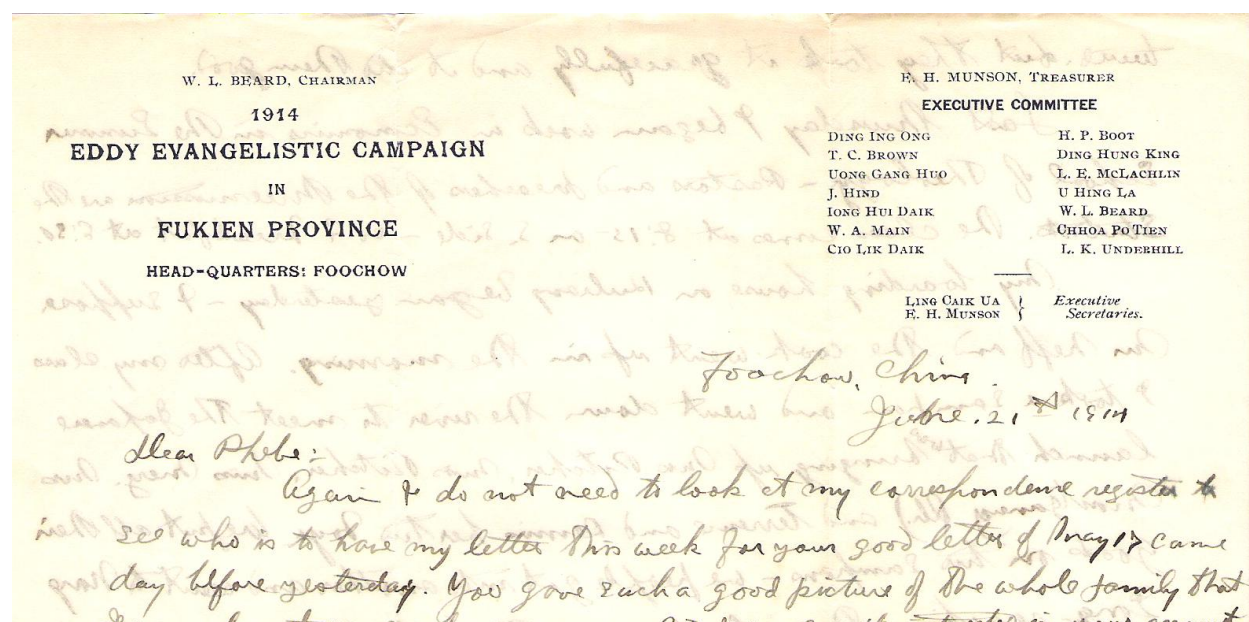

Your accounts of the debates are very interesting, and I need not add that it gratifies a father on the other side of the world to know that his children are able thus to deport themselves well. At the ages of either of you I could not have done anything at all in a debate. I wonder if you have written to Tank Home, Oberlin asking for admission Sept. 1915. Do not put it off too late for I am afraid it is full all the time and late comers sometimes do not get in.

People are getting the Kuliang fever. Mr. Newell and Mr. Hodous plan to go this week. Mrs. Stick of Amoy comes up this week and then there will be a steady stream.

I did not know Kathleen had whooping cough till your letter said she was well and going to school. I now remember in that first letter she wrote there was a sentence that I with difficulty made out to be "I have the hoop-cough." But no one else wrote of it and I wondered at it a little. But it could not have been severe.

May God keep each of you healthy in body and mind and spirit, - tender and sweet and loving in the home. Then I know you will be tender and sweet and loving outside the home and always. I took your "huge hug" in imagination and thank you for it and send one from a 180 lb. father to you and all rest. Lovingly Willard L. Beard

Dear Phebe:-

Again I do not need to look at my correspondence register to see who is to have my letter this week for your good letter of May 17 came day before yesterday. You gave such a good picture of the whole family that I can almost see each individual. And I was greatly interested in your account of the debate. When you wrote me a few weeks ago that it was to come off and that you and Gould were on opposite sides I said to myself- well the Beards are bound to be on the winning side anyway, and one of them must lose. I never considered myself a great debater. But in all my debates the winning was the least of my anxieties. There is something within one that tells one whether he has done good honest work on the debate and whether he has done himself justice. This judge within one's own breast is a higher judge than the judges appointed by the debaters or others to decide who wins. My best effort at debating was during my sophomore year in Oberlin. The question was something about Brutus in Julius Caesar. I had as good a paper as any of the four. But I forgot twice and had to refer to my notes. This lost the debate. But I had the inward conviction that I had done good honest work. I also knew that I had not taken the rest that I needed and when the time came I could not do myself justice. One of the principle factors in success of this kind= in any mental effort is to be able to keep yourself in good physical condition, so that you can command all your powers.

You hinted at one of the most valuable returns for the work put into a debate i.e. Debating teaches one how to take defeat. This is one of the great benefits of athletics. I told the College boys last spring when they were defeating all other teams at basketball that it would be a very dangerous thing for them always to win. At last they were beaten twice, but they took it gracefully and it did them good.

Last Thursday I began work in Economics in the Summer School of Theology- pastors and preachers of the three missions are the students. The class comes at 8:15 on S. Side – so I breakfast at 6:30.

My boarding house on Kuliang began yesterday- I suppose. Mr. Neff and the cook went up in the morning. After my class I took a sampan and went down the river to meet the Japanese launch that was bringing up Mrs. Pitcher, Miss Pitcher, Miss Merz, Miss Montgomery (Dr.) and Terrence and Dennis her two boys. We put all there goods on two sampans- we people got into another and went to Nong Long, reaching there about noon. The load carriers were there and started off at once. But we waited till three p.m. for the chair men. I saw them safely to the foot of the mountain and then came home reaching here at 6:30.

Last night Mrs. Christian gave a farewell dinner to Mr. Topping and Mr. Gold. Mr. Topping leaves tomorrow, via Suez on a German Lloyd. We hope he will come back in three years as an ordained missionary to our mission. The teachers and students like him very much. They are planning to see him off with the band tomorrow and his classes want to go to the Anchorage with him.

College closes next Thursday. But I am held here till June 30th by the Summer Sch. of Theol.

I am pleased to hear of your decision to go to Oberlin. Kathleen and Marjorie will be twins when I see them again- wearing the same dresses- dressed alike?? It also gives me great pleasure to hear that Dorothy is going to unite with the church. I have been asking God for this.

I have copied into my vest pocket diary all the heights of you children and find that I have 28' 5 1/8" of children.

I trust Gould got the best of Latin. It is 10:35 p.m. so good night with lots of love to all from a very loving father Willard L. Beard

In an interview with Kathleen by Jana L. Jackson in the year 2000, she said that her family lived in Putnam, CT when not in China. She remembered visiting Century Farm on the Housatonic River in Shelton, CT and playing "farmerette" in the hay with sister, Monnie (Marjorie). One time, when the dinner bell rang, Kathleen decided to take a quick way down from the hayloft and slid down a rope. She got a rope burn on her hands. Sister, Monnie, was more careful. The farm was a dairy farm and they grew "timothy grass" to feed the cows.

Dear Ben:-

As this is your birthday the home letter from me goes in your name this week. Please send it down to Century Farm as soon as you have read it. I do not know what Phebe M. will say for it is her turn to get this letter. A good one came from her yesterday written just before the Fourth of July. But she'll see this in due time and it will tell her that I do not forget that tomorrow will be her birthday. You must be about 44 today. Phebe 42 tomorrow. Elizabeth 40 Aug. 11th, Kathleen will be 6 by Aug 10, and Geraldine 15 Aug. 25th- quite a month for Beard birthdays.

I think of Flora and Mary as on their way to San Francisco as I have already heard that. The Mongolia was delayed and would start the 8th instead of the 4th- That will insure my postal reaching them at Honolulu.

This past week we have entertained two men commissioners of the Rockefeller Foundation. Dr. Peabody on the staff of Harvard Medical School and Mr. Greene American Consul Gen'l at Hankau. They reached Foochow Tuesday afternoon and came immediately to Kuliang- On Wed. I met them about 9:30 a.m. and was with them until noon. At 2:30 p.m. they met in conference all the Doctors on Kuliang- some 15. After questioning these Doctors for one hour and a half on the need of a medical education for Chinese, and the method of education etc this meeting adjourned. I was present by virtue of being on the Board of Management of the Union Medical College. Then after a little tea the B'd of Management met the two men for a more detailed conference on the work and needs of the Medical College. These men are looking over all China to make recommendations to the Rockefeller Foundation as to the best way in which to spend $100,000,000.00 in China in Medical and philanthropic work. Poor old Rockefeller! He had a lot of fun- such as it was making his millions and now he does not know what to do with them and has to hire men to get rid of them. But just the same I'll help him as much as possible. I gave these men three days of hard work- was with them Wed. in conference all day. Thursday a.m. was up at 5 a.m. and off for Foochow with them. We stopped at the Panama Exposition exhibit in Foochow City half an hour. 70,000 people had visited this up to last Wed. night. Then I showed them the English Mission hospitals and the Union Medical College and our own hospital gave them lunch and helped them buy curios and I hope they will recommend to the Foundation to give us $100,000. for the Union Medical College.

The weather for two weeks has been superb- it is making amends for the bad winds and rains of June and the first two weeks of July. These storms destroyed about half the rice crop and have seriously injured the potatoes. They quite upset the schedules of steamer on the coast.

Plague and cholera are all about but now what is called serious. There are signs that some of the Foochow people are realizing that beating gongs and holding idol processions do not stop plague. The signs are good and in time measures will be taken to stop these ravages. Rats are worth 2 cents a head now.

This week is very full of Conventions, Conferences, Committee meetings and other things. I hope the crowds will leave the mountain about Sept. 1 and that I can remain ten days and have a little rest. I see but very little prospect of getting up to Shanghai to see Flora and Mary. It would at best be a very short "see" with a lot of time and money spent and I hope to have them with me next Summer all Summer.

Well be good to yourself and your wife and children- and other people. I'd pull out a gray hair from my head if you'd drop me a line once in a while yourself. Dr. Wells got my letter all right- Send this down to Mother sometime.

With Love to Abbie, Wells, Daniel and Edith and yourself. Will.

[about Aug. 9, 1914]

Dear Phebe and Stanley,

Phebe's letters and several others addressed by her but not written by her were on our steamer awaiting us. The corset lace I have not yet used but shall find it useful. Thanks for the news also the letter from Mrs. Buchner.

I sent a card to let you know we were off. Leolyn 1st, Leolyn 2nd and Dr. Morgan [Leolyn 1st is the widow of James Beard, brother of Willard, Flora and Mary who died in 1906. Leolyn 2nd is their daughter. Dr. Morgan is Leolyn's second husband. Dr. Morgan is Rev. Dr. Morgan and was the former pastor of the Unitarian church in Derby, CT.] all saw us onto the boat and stayed until 12:30. Miss Steele was with Gwendolyn and she had a sore throat that morning so they felt a little anxious to get home. [Gwendolyn is the daughter of Leolyn 1st and William Morgan. She was born about 1913.]

We arrived in Berkeley just on time and had the train stopped so we would get off at Berkeley. Dr. M and L had gone over to 16th Street Oakland to wait for us. We had our ebolutions [ablutions- cleansing] all over before they got home.

We started early Thursday and did San Francisco and on Friday we had our heads washed and our nails manicured in the morning, and in the afternoon we did the University. Leolyn was a little shy the first morning but if wore off before breakfast was over. I gave her several kisses that night for various people. She said "Wait for I'll have to wash them right off." Then, "Oh, never mind, they'd have to be washed off in the morning anyway." When we got in Friday evening she took me to her "secret place," which is a corner of the attic in which she plays. There we made a park and a hotel out of blocks, etc. We did not finish before the call to dinner came and she mourned because I had no time to help in the morning. She begged us to stay and not go away off for so many years.

So far I have lived above board- eaten 5 or 9 meals a day- and stayed on deck. There are two Foochow families on board- the Fords and Bankhardts, both Methodists.-Already we are making the acquaintance of some future Peking friends and they seem very pleasant.

We have seen two ships so far, one a British Union Saturday afternoon and the other a passenger steamer today. It was too far away to identify the flag. One school of porpoises and any quantity of flying fish have shared our deep with us.

Every morning I have had a swim in the tank before dressing and I hope to continue as long as it is so warm. The men get warmed up by a base ball game on deck. That is fun for spectators as well as players.

I started the contents of the accompanying package for work when invited out. Either I worked too slowly or I was not invited enough! Anyway it is done now. Hope it will prove useful.

With love from Mary and Flora

Mon. A.M. [Early August 1914]

Dear Ones at home,

Nearly two days gone and we have both attended every meal. Flora makes nothing of it. I ate and fled for deck the first day. On deck I was all right. No after meal enures[?].

To go back- We reached Leolyns on time by making up 1 hr 45 min. the last night out. Some of the passengers said we must have gone 100 miles an hour. One man (who is on ship board too) said he was frightened and called the porter who assured him all was well. The last day was hot but we got delightfully cool on the ferry coming from Port Center. We had the train stopped at Berkeley so as to get out to Leolyn's sooner. She and Mr. M. had gone to Oakland 16th Street Station to meet us. Miss Steele let us in and we had time to wash and fix our hair before they got back. We did not see the children that night.

Wed. A.M. Leolyn's first sentence was, "Have you seen my baby sister?" [Gwendolyn] It took nearly all day to wear off the newness of the renewed acquaintance. She was her old self by the second morning. I was taken to the "secret place" the second night to help build a park and hotel. Neither were completed for lack of time. Impulsive as ever she started to cry when we packed to leave but her interest in crossing the bay and in seeing the ship helped to pacify her. As Miss Steele had a headache and sore throat that morning, they were in a hurry to get back to let her go home, so they left us about 12.30.

We had service on Sunday conducted by a young Episcopal rector. He also conducts the baseball of an afternoon and helps to liven any group he enters. The Mr. Franz of whom Dr. Barton wrote is proving a most popular youth and quite a leader. He enters into all the sports and is quite a favorite with the ladies, as well as the men.

Mrs. Kathleen Crane was Y.W.C.A. secretary at college my freshman year and is just as jolly, sincere and whole hearted as ever.

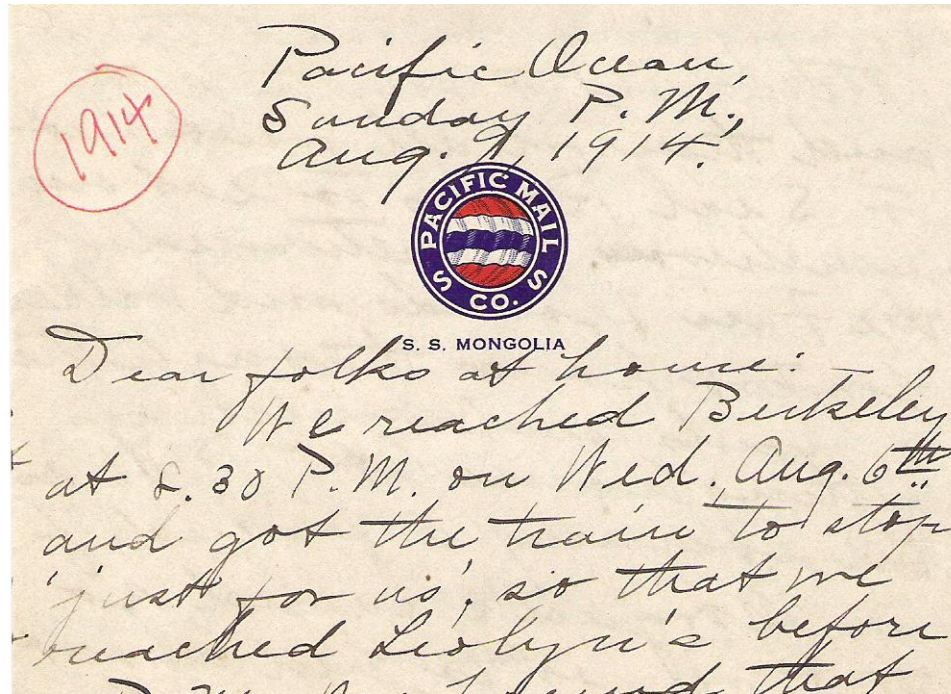

Thurs. P.M.

Mrs. Chisholm Brown, husband and son, Chisholm aged 16 months and I are the best of friends. We take a walk together nearly every day.

The Fords and Bankhardts are here bound for Foochow. I shall have plenty of messengers by whom to send my sheets to Willard. Tomorrow we are in Honolulu. Unless I break my hand in the night, I arrive there without disaster. The men entertain us with baseball in the afternoons. The swimming is interesting also. I bathe before breakfast. This morning I was very select, the only spectators were the captain and 1st Officer. I must go on deck and hunt for my sweetheart Chisholm as we have not had our stroll today. We turn our watches about 26 minutes a day so I have about lost count of New York time.

Ruth's special delivery arrived. It had lots of letters. They were good to read. With much love, Mary.

Dear folks at home:

We reached Berkeley at 8:30 P.M. on Wed., Aug. 6th and got the train to stop 'just for us', so that we reached Leolyn's before 9 P.M. We found that she and Dr. Morgan had gone to Oakland to save us from going over to San Francisco before we returned to Berkeley. I got a little bit freshened up before they returned. After an hour's visit we retired and slept like bricks. In the morning Dr. Morgan, Leolyn and we went to San Francisco where Mary and I did what shopping we had to do, attended to our tickets, and then we all went out to Seal Rocks to eat our luncheon. We returned by the Fair Grounds and walked for two hours through the grounds and building, getting home at 7 P.M. In the evening a friend of Dr. Morgan's called so that we got to bed about 10 P.M. On Friday we got our money changed to gold and each of us had a shampoo- for our hair felt as a chicken looks after it has been wallowing in the dust. After lunch we walked through the grounds and buildings of Berkeley University, and then we had a trolley ride out to the end of the line where we had a great view of the neighboring country and the bay. After dinner another friend of Dr. Morgan's came- both calls were not expected- so that it was late again when we retired.

On Saturday we went straight to the steamer, - this time little Leolyn was with us. They stayed until orders 'to land' were given. I met several Foochow and Peking friends who were seeing off their friends. The Fords, Bankhardts, and Browns (Mrs. Emma Mea Chisholm Brown whom Ruth knows) are on board, also Ray Gardner and the Mr. Franz that we were told of. Between the Standard Oil Co. and Missions, the boat is owned for the war has scared the tourists from round-the-world tours. There are a number of fine young men going out for the Standard Oil. Two of them have traveled with us from Chicago.

Mary is proving a very good sailor. She has not missed a meal yet and seems to find the life on board ship is interesting. There are several children on board who are quite attractive and she is one of those who are attracted by them.

The day has been rather quiet- as it is Sunday. We attended service led by a young Episcopal clergyman, this morning. There was a little shuffle-board played on deck and one couple tangoed a little. Otherwise people walked or read. (More later) Flora.

Thursday A.M.

So far weather and seas have been perfect and every one is on deck. We have a baseball game each day which is very exciting. Yesterday it was between the 'Hams' and 'Bacon', to-day it is to be between 'Soda water' and ‘Seltzer.’ There is a great deal of noise and fun and perspiration about it, and between the actors and audience all get the needed exercise. We’ve met our first steamer this A.M.- since we saw the ‘Rainbow’ just out of San Francisco harbor, the day we left port. The sea has been as calm as the proverbial mill pond, so every one has been well. There is a daily newspaper published on board, containing the wireless news, but we have not subscribed since it is 10 cents per copy. Two extras have been published so times must be prosperous with them.

Fri. A.M.- We’re waiting for inspection so that we can go on land.

Lovingly-

Flora Beard.

Dear Ruth:-

Your good letter of July 5 enclosing a page from Gould came last night. It’s 10:30 p.m. but I wanted to get this letter started tonight. Now I’ll go to bed and finish it later.

Mon. a.m.

You would be interested to see how my time is occupied here on the mountain. I sometimes wonder if it is the best way, and then go on doing all the same. This morning for instance. Before we were finished with breakfast men came to fix Miss Billing’s sedan chair. Well she knows simply that the thing is broken and unusable and says she has no idea what it should cost to repair so I go out and help. Before this is finished Mrs. Worley whose husband died here in June came for help. She wants to sell her mountain cottage. A Chinese with money offers her $500 more than any foreigner has yet offered. What shall she do? All her missionary neighbors will deplore the near presence of Chinese here. They will pack the house full, and laws of hygiene will be ignored and salt fish and sour greens etc. etc. will be in evidence day and night. But will- should she pay (lose) $500 for the sake of her neighbors wishes. I told her to let it be known what she had been offered and if any foreigner wished to buy at that price sell, but if not she had a perfect right to sell to Chinese.-Now comes Miss Funk [Grace A.] of our mission with a leaky roof- Will I see about getting it fixed. This afternoon a committee meeting of the Evangelistic Campaign Comm at 2:30 – at 5:00 entertains a group of missionary’s children with stories. I wish Phebe M. were here. I’d get out of this job. Then tomorrow take the chair at the Educational Committee meeting- a provincial organization and do the same on Wed. – and write home – to two homes each week- and I manage to get to Foochow one day each week and thus far I have spent the night there. Last Thurs. I went down in the morning- Friday morning I rose at 3, started for Kuliang at 4- had to wait 15 min. for the city gate to be opened and reached my Kuliang cottage a little after 7- before the family were all up. I was bathed and dressed ready to eat breakfast with them. Thus far all goes nicely in the family. Sat. evening for the first time we had our family together as we originally planned= Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Pitcher of Amoy, Miss Vander Linden and Miss Carling of Amoy, Miss Billing of Foochow and the “Hostess”, Miss Billing has been absent two weeks for an operation.

Tennis is on with all sorts of tournaments,- a most interesting men’s doubles Sat. afternoon. The Champion of Foochow with the Champion of Canton vs. two good men of Foochow. The champions won with two duce sets. Do you understand what that means? These three weeks are the height of the season. Now over 400 country children. I forgot that Mrs. Worley wished her business kept secret. So don’t tell. Just here I had to leave to act as chairman of the Annual Meeting of Tennis Club.

I wonder if the war will effect the sailing of the girls. I think of them as having sailed Sat. the 8th- if all went as planned, I would like some one to tell me whether or not I shall go to Shanghai to see them. It will be no easy thing to arrange to get off just at that time- with a house full of boarders. What is one to think of the war? And yet after studying history it is not so strange. With all the talk and Conferences on Peace we have almost refused to think of the possibility of war. Ideal conditions are seldom reached over such smooth roads and it looks to me as if the nations would learn from this war valuable lessons concerning peace. Germany is certainly getting experience. There is a daily meeting for prayer over the situation. The Banks refuse to buy any more gold drafts on New York or London. I hope this will soon be changed, for if we can not get any money from the U.S. or Eng. we’ll soon use up our credits. I cannot believe however that God will allow this strife to be long continued. The people who- like Paul and others of his time-thought-think== the world is soon coming to an end, are pointing to the war and the wars about the Balkans and the Mesien? Mix up and their quoting Scripture. - Well I shall keep on trying to help men know God and realize the best of themselves. - No one yet has been able to set the day for the end of the world and I do not know the good of it if they could. I prefer to be found at work.

I hope the weather cleared up and gave Father a chance to get hay. 20 cents a qt. for strawberries makes one glad he is in China- unless he is the man who is selling.

I think I sent you the receipt for the interest all right. I endorsed it on the note. You would enjoy sitting on my veranda of a morning. I have neng-bah =guests and curios of all descriptions are displayed for sale. It costs nothing to look at them. Lacquer, brass, bronze, carved wood, porcelain, embroidery- Mandarin coats- beads- jade, peacock feather-egret plumes and I do not know what not. It is almost an education just to look at the things- if one has self control enough not to buy- or is fortunate enough not to have any money to buy with.

I am glad to learn from your letter that Father is all right. I had heard nothing and simply took no news for good news. The school in Sang Gaing goes on nicely. There are 24 pupils this year in the day school and some 50 come in for Sunday School. Two boys from the Theological College go there for Sunday School. Dr. Lathrop is very thoughtful to send me frequent postals from different parts of Europe. One came Sat. evening. I think it's a great thing if you can send two of your girls to Northfield each year. It will be an education for them-broader than merely missionary. I hope you will go yourself sometime- and take Elizabeth.

With Lots of Love to all

Will

Your cherry was tantalizing-haven't come so near getting me since I left home 1912.

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

Your good long letter of June 30th came last evening. It was the first word I had received from Putnam since July 4th. Gould had written me from Shelton and another line came from him last night enclosed in Aunt Ruth's letter. I have not heard much about how each of you children came out in your marks this past term. I was somewhat concerned about Gould's Latin, but as nothing has been said about it I conclude he passed.

We have held a most interesting Conference on Evangelism here this past week. The Kuliang Convention is not at all the all-absorbing attraction that it used to be fifteen years ago. This past week the Convention occupied one hour five days= 9:15 a.m. to 10:15 a.m. Then from 10:30 – 12:00 came the Conf. on Evang'm Bishop Price C.M.S. was to have led, but illness prevented and I was asked to act in his place. The "findings" of this Conference will be printed in the "Register" so I'll not take time and spare to speak of the here.

On Monday morning I went to Foochow and happened to strike a very comfortable day and a very comfortable night. At 5 p.m. some 30 members of Tai Bing Ga met to consider the raising of about $5000 to supplement the money from home to build the new church, parish house, parsonage and chapel. The contractors want $17000.00 for the whole and there are $13000 in hand. We had a nice little meeting with three or four addresses and then a feast-which they all enjoyed, ten subscription books were passed around and it was suggested that if anyone had to spend money in chair hire to see friends to get subscriptions, that they should charge it up to the committee. Old mother Ding was there and enjoyed it as much as any one. It was rather hot that night. But I arose at 3 a.m. Friday morning and was off a little after 4 for Kuliang, - had to wait 15 min at the East Gate for them to open it, but I reached my mountain cottage before they were up and I had time to bathe and dress and sit down to breakfast with the family- and I got to the church in time for most of the Convention meeting and then I acted as Chairman of the Conference on Evangelism at 10:30. This is the height of the Kuliang season. Tennis tournaments began yesterday. Two new lights appear on the courts this year. Mr. Munson of the Y.M.C.A. is in the first class. This year the players drew for partners. The other new man is Mr. Knipp of Canton Christian College-He and Dr. Montgomery played against Mr. Munson and Mr. Ridler. Mr. Knipp is the champion in singles in Canton. It looked as if Munson and Ridler would beat- first set 6-5 in favor of Montgomery and Knipp. They lost the second set and the third set was 7-5 in their favor-the interest of a large crowd was as intense as I ever saw it. Dr. and Mrs. Whitney are daily interested spectators.

Miss Billing came back to our house yesterday-she has been away two weeks. For the first time we have our planned -for family.-Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Pitcher, Misses Carling, Vander Linden and Billing and the "Hostess." The large family makes the cook happy. Our food alone costs about $100. per month and there are many other expenses. Miss Pitcher has eight kindergarteners in Miss Jewells cottage, and she is also teaching drawing. Helen Smith is one of her drawing pupils.

Your account of the $5 allowance plan is most interesting. How do you suppose the Chinese plan in order to make $5.00 feed and clothe a whole family?

Telegrams come fast about the situation in Europe. It is hard for me to believe that God will permit a long struggle here. Germany is acting strangely, and at this time it looks as if she would pay very dearly for her rash act in starting this broil. Just now we seem to be in the most fearful country on the globe. May God bless and keep you all- and enable you each to add a little daily to the true character which each of you is building for eternity- Your loving Father Willard L. Beard

Dear folks at home:-

To-morrow we land in Yokohama. Our trip from Honolulu has been most calm and monotonous until yesterday. We ran through a storm which rumbled up the sea most beautifully. Mary and I spent some time watching the waves break over the bow and sweep the front deck. Some of the passengers got drenched. The sea was so rough that it broke up the service planned at 10:30 A.M., so we had no Sunday observance. There were no games either. Several had to go to their berths. Mary tried to help out at the children's table but had to flee and finally had to part with some of her own dinner later.

On Saturday I managed to sprain my right ankle so badly that I had to have an ice bag to get rid of the ache and fever. It is much better now and I expect to do the usual sight-seeing on land to-morrow. We expect to go up to Tokio, see some of its temples and parks, and call at our Ambassador's office to get the necessary passes for seeing the palaces in Kyoto. About an hour ago notice was posted on the bulletin board that Japan has declared war on Germany. I don't know how much this will interfere with our fun and progress in our journey. There are several Germans on board and they are trying to take the humorous speeches from the passengers with good grace. The Japanese on board are jubilant. Every one is questioning about what is to happen, but they finally figure it out that no one will want to molest the Americans. We shall write you again before we leave Japan for I think the first possible steamer that we can get leaves Sept. 2nd. I rather expect some communications from China at some of these Japanese ports. Dr. Tallman, I think is planning to go the way we have thought to go, so we may accompany her.

We had a fine day on land in Honolulu. We took the drive out to the Pali (precipice and to Punch Bowl, an old extinct crater), then went to the aquarium and did some shopping. While waiting for a car Mary met one of her Monticello girls who was on her way (with her father and mother) to Manilla. There were five steamers spending the day in Honolulu that day, so trade must have been good. It was rather cloudy so that we missed the brilliant coloring in the water. We managed to see the beauties of vegetation, and afterwards engaged many of its fruits on board ship. We had pineapple day when we had that fruit served in every possible way at the three meals. We have had papaya and alligator pears also, though I do not believe many people care for them.

I've made my waist since I embarked – got the lace to trim it at Honolulu. Am going to wear it on land to-morrow. It is made low necked and with short sleeves for hot weather. We are all sitting here on deck dressed in the thinnest materials and wishing we had thinner. The people in the swimming tank say the water is warm. It is pumped in from the ocean. Mary has been in swimming several times.

It is time to go below to dress for dinner so with love-

Good bye-

Flora Beard.

Dear Ones at Home,

Flora has probably written all the news but I will add some of my impressions. At Honolulu we [unreadable word] a ride and visited the Poli. The view of the sea opens up very suddenly and is very beautiful and extensive. The fields laid off in squares in the foreground, the beach and the sea. The descent is almost perpendicular and about 2000 feet high. It stormed and the wind blew but the driver said the rail along the side was to cling to when the wind was too strong to stand against and we did not need to use it. In the drive down we caught charming glimpses of Honolulu and the harbor. We saw several banyan trees and the famous straight avenue of royal palms also several avenues not so straight. We got out and went through the royal cemetery where the Kamehameha's etc. were buried. The mausoleum was very beautiful so were some of the tombs. The Punch Bowl is an old crater and we drove over the rim into the crater and around to the farther side where there is a beautiful view of the city, the Waikiki beach, Diamond Head and the harbor. The trees and shrubs were very interesting; red and yellow seemed to be the predominating colors, though there were a fun bright blues.

The aquarium was lots of fun. The little black, white and yellow fish had a wonderful white plumed tail. I tried to snap him. The Devil fish performed his best. He changed all colors and navigated in every way he could. The Congor Eel showed tendencies to bite had not a plate glass intervened. The sky blue fish, the yellow fish, the fish striped like a comet, the flat fish colored like the sands, the tubular fish and numerous others were all there.

We went shopping and I got my photograph books just as reasonably as at home. I also got goods for a shirt waist, white crepe with a blue figure in it. Flora calls it spotted.

The days on board have a great sameness but never prove boresome. There are six meals to eat, plenty of babies to play with, a swim every afternoon or morning, shuffleboard, quails, a men's or ladies baseball game and walking. I have mounted about 150 pictures, written a dozen or more letters and twice as many cards and read three books so far. Chisholm Brown is a darling. Mrs. Brown asked me to send her regards when I wrote. The Ford baby (Foochow people) is another dear. There are a score of others but these are my favorites. We have a benefit concert by our Philipino band this evening. This is the second and last time that they are permitted to take a collection. Not one in sight escapes their notice. It is getting rough once more. Yesterday I felt it and one meal went both ways but that is the only one so far. I want to crow before I get on the little Japanese boat. Why? Guess!!

With lots of love

Mary.

Foochow, China
Aug 26- 1914

Dear Folks at Home:-

I am in Foochow to night and its very comfortable. I have been most fortunate every time I have been down from the mountain to spend the night in having a nice cool tune. The weather has been very hot here from all reports but last night it began to rain and this morning as I came down from the mountain I wore a rain coat all the time that I rode and it has been very nice here all day. Rice and potato fields were getting very dry and this rain will help them some.

People are beginning to leave the mountain. By Sept 7th it will be quiet enough so one can get some rest. We have had a delightful season. From July -1-16- we had four typhoons but not very severe. Since then we have had one half day of rain and one shower. Tennis and picnics have had full swing. I have had little of both- my recreation has been committee meetings.

Will you tell Carl Dektor to send me by mail a pair of his "special" shoes. They are marked- if I read correctly 41148475/39. Then on the inside of the right shoes is sewed a tag reading "Carl Dektor's

Extra Special
$4.00 - Shoe"

Please tell him to put in a pair of rubbers to fit the shoes and an extra pair of laces. I think he will know the shoe all right. -Blucher's- vice'prdt with padded sole. I have already bought three pairs of this kind of him- worn out and throw away 1 pair, have another pair almost ready to discard and have another pair good yet. Please take the money to pay Dektor from my next interest.

Tomorrow I am to perform a wedding ceremony for the head Chinese doctor of our Hospital. He has done the business of getting engaged and preparing for the wedding in about three weeks. He wants all the foreigners to attend and they are all away still at the shore or the mountain.

The war is making itself felt in various ways here. Prices of all commodities that come from abroad are soaring and such articles as cloth that is also made here are so influenced by the foreign market that they are running up. Rice is also trying to feel war prices, - for we import rice from the British possessions to the South and they are holding on to their food now. War news is scarce. I expect both England and Germany are strict in their censorship. A month ago $41 gold was worth $1.00 in silver. Now it takes $54 to buy $1.00 in silver and you cannot buy a draft on New York. The tea merchants here are caught with their store houses full of tea and the home offices will not advance money. The merchants have promised the Chinese the money at a fixed date. One man will borrow $80,000 to make good his promise and he has no prospect of getting rid of his tea. One man has his room full of tea that was intended for the German market. What a Hell war is!! I can't help praying that God will make this one so bloody and terrific that men will stop plowing to war and devote themselves to peace.

I think of Flora and Mary as nearing Yokohama now and I keep wondering if I shall go to Shanghai to meet them. It is 9:30 p.m. I was up to attend a musical last night at Ruth Beach Wards and got to bed at 11:30- up at 6:30 this a.m. and have worked steadily all day so I'll say good night and turn in.

At Kuliang, Sat. 29, - I married the couple on Thurs. and came up the mt. in the p.m. and found letters from Mother. Ruth and Ellen and Geraldine. I was glad to hear that all were well. I learned from these also that Flora and Mary were going via Korea- I shall look for a letter from them from Yokohama.

Exchange has gotten about normal again. 44 ³/₄ cents in gold buys $1.00 silver and tea is moving.

My family is now reduced to five. Tell Gould I am proud of his letter- Oh no, he'll be in Putnam before this gets to you.

With Love and pleasant thoughts of you all.

Will.

Kobe, Aug. 28, 1914.

Dear folks at home:-

We arrived in Kobe last evening. We got on to land about 4:45 P.M. and it took from then to 7 P.M. to get our baggage landed and through the customs, so that we could go to our hotel. It was hot and close but we had comfortable rooms and slept well. This morning we have been out and secured passage on the Japanese S.S. Takeshiwa of the N.Y.K. line. It is one of the largest 2665 tonnage. It sails Sept. 2nd and reaches Tientsin Sept. 6th. Yesterday, about two dozen seikhs came in and occupied a lot of the benches. They were a part of that ship load which Canada refused to land. They have gotten this far back and there is some difficulty about their passage further so they are getting free 'keeps' while waiting. They certainly looked contented. Evidently, they were having some fun at our expense, but it did not trouble us. So far our journey has been without any anxiety but with much to conjecture about how the rest of our journeys are to be accomplished. This A.M. when we went to get our transshipping done we found all the Shanghai passengers successfully rebooking themselves. There is only the uncertainty of getting berth room as this is the time when people are returning from the summer resorts here to China.

Did we tell you that we traveled across the Pacific with two Connecticut men-Mr. Wood from Somerville, and Capt. Averill (from Woodbury) and his family? They were very good ship friends.

This afternoon we are going up to Kyoto to stay until our ship sails- or rather until the night before for we have to be here to see about getting our trunks on to the ship. As it takes full two hours to come back from Kyoto and our steamer sails at 10 A.M. we can't very well do it from Kyoto in the morning of the 2nd. While in Kyoto we shall try to find Ruth's S.S. class gifts and send them at once on the way home. She should be receive them within two weeks after this. To-day the Manchuria sails from here so you will probably get all our Japan mail together. The Manchuria has been delayed by quarantine in Nagasaki.-The most interesting excitements that the war has given us on board has been the Japanese supervisor of a young German officer on his way to the German cession in China. A Japanese officer was on the Mongolia during its entire stay in Yokohama, and never let this officer get out of his sight once. He was searched and all his stateroom. This morning he came into the S.S. Co.'s office so evidently he is free to get on board and also feels safe to travel in a Japanese ship. All the Germans were anxious about further travel for them but evidently there is no trouble.- I wonder just how much you people are worrying about us, and I wish I could assure you at this moment how unnecessary it is, for we are getting on all right.

We shall be interested to hear of Dr. and Mrs. Lathrop's experiences when you hear about them, for I imagine they will have some to tell.- We are getting odors from the kitchen and I with I could say that they are appetizing. We have pretty good food though.

Lovingly, Flora Beard.

The Mikado Hotel.
Kobe, August 28 1914

Dear Folks at Home.

I am sitting on my own private porch to my room, overlooking the garden. The garden contains Japanese pine trees, fan palms, one rubber plant and three or four other varieties which I do not know. The English Sparrow help to show that this is the same old world. Just beneath my window is a curious old well under a quaint arbor. There are several bronze figures, a fountain and something that looks like a sundial- and another like a place for worship. Privacy is an unknown term apparently. Our rooms all open by big doors onto a common porch. The porch is divided off by slat doors unprovided with keys. There are six of us from the Mongolia in a room. Eight others were here last night but left at 7:00 by train for Korea. There was considerable excitement about getting steamers across to China but everyone seems to be getting accommodations. Some are having to transfer here instead of going on to Nagasaki.

The Manchuria was held up at Nagasaki in quarantine so is here today and leaves tonight. The extreme courtesy of these Jap boys is interesting. Each gives a low bow every time we pass.

I had my first jinricksha ride in Yokohama. Miss Crane said she had to smile to see me sit on the edge of the seat. I had the feeling that I should not move but have gotten more so I feel quite at home.

Written in album: "In our rickshaws at Miss Sowter's"

We went to Kamakura and saw the Daihatsu temple and famous statue of Buddha. We went into the Buddha and saw the shrines. From there the coolies took us to the Hotel where we had afternoon tea in lieu of a supper. In the evening we took a rickshaw ride around town. We went through the Benton Dorie one of the shopping streets. The stores were closed but the boys opened them for us so we could see the goods. We did not even price much as we prefer to wait and shop in Kyoto. We also rode through Theater Street where are the cheap shops, moving pictures (all foreign in films) tea houses, and crowds. It was like the foreign quarter of New York a settling mass of humanity. On Wednesday we got an early start and went to Tokyo. We went out to Shiba Park and visited the shrine and tomb of the 6th Shogun. In the temple we had to wear "cover-ups" over our shoes. The carvings were wonderful; some bronze, some in wood and some in stone. Birds, lotus flowers and leaves stood out sometimes, a foot or more. We climbed the 86 steps to Atago Park climbed four short flights, - more in the tower and got a fine view of the city and park and harbor. We were about to walk up to the entrance of the first bridge over the mote surrounding the Royal Palace. In returning to the station we passed shops. The ones for foreign trade are not so unusual as those for native trade. Every thing is open front on the streets and many of the streets are extremely narrow. The sewers which border the narrowest street are not always pleasant to the nose. We bought some native fruit which is a pear but looks much like a large russet apple. It is hard, quite tasteless but very juicy.

A man has been cutting the grass in the garden with a pair of long handled shears. Now he is sweeping up the grass with a broom made of twigs, similar to those father's men make.

At Yokohama we had to wait over an hour for the Japanese doctors to let us through quarantine. There was a scare of chicken pox in the Chinese steerage. At Kobe we were passed without even counting the cabin passengers, but the crew had to come on deck.

On the steamer we got our money changed 2 yen for 1 dollar. Here we have to give 50 7/8 cents for one yen. Of $90 we got $176.90 yen. At the bank they said it was the war that put up the value.

How would you like to wear stockings like mittens with a big toe separate? Every one does here so as to be able to hold the shoes on. The clothes are varied from none at all on young children, or full oriental to full occidental the mixtures are funny. Western hats are much in vogue for children and aprons seem very popular.

We are going to Kyoto this afternoon and return Tuesday evening so as to be ready to sail at 10:00 or Wednesday morning.

The short sprinklers are of two kinds; one is a boy plus a pail of water and a dipper. The other is a cart something like candy cars one occasionally sees at home about 4 ft. long, two or 2 ½ wide and 2 high. It's pulled by a coolie and sprinkles a strip about five feet wide. Yesterday I saw a very heavy bulky lead marked gas engine pulled by about 20 coolies. They had bars across the chest and over the arm and pushed against them.

I am getting the money straight now. We had to give 50 7/8 gold for 1 yen instead of 50 as on the steamer.

With love to all

Mary Beard.

The Mikado Hotel.

Kobe, Sept. 2, 1914

Dear Folks,

We went up to Kyoto as planned and went out to Miss Sowter's to stay. She has one lady staying there all the time and a friend from the Manchuria came for that first night so we were asked to take a room together. We kept the room so our expenses were 3 yen each a day ($1.50). Here in Kobe it was 5 yen.

The Brown's came up on Saturday and we visited the East and West Hangwangi's and the Daibutsu in the morning. We went to Miss Sowters for lunch and then to the hotel. In the afternoon we rode to the Palace grounds but the buildings are all closed for repairs and our passes had not arrived so we visited the China shops. We saw them make Satsuma, Cloisonné, and Damascene ware. I will write about the provinces when I have more time. Now we must pack to be off for the steamer. I am all ready but Flora still is unpacked. On Sunday we wrote a few letters, rested and called on Flora's friend Miss Denton at the University. We met Dr. Harrader the president. On Monday we dropped. We got our travelling at a wholesale place and Ruth's card case at a shop on Theater Street. We looked at fans but could get only paper ones for the price. [Unreadable word] one [unreadable word] card case as we could get is all in the money. There will be a few sen over when postage is paid. We'll see.

The war has not affected us so far except that my camera is forbidden so I am getting no pictures.

Off to breakfast-

Dear folks at home:-

Since Mary's letter from Kobe life has run along very uneventful lines. The hotel boy got our six pieces (or rather seven for me bought enough in Kyoto to make another parcel) out onto the steamer so that we had nothing to do but to get on to the steamer ourselves. It would be very hard for us to do this as the baggage has to be taken out by sampan by the passenger to the steamer which lies some distance out from the wharf. We started quite promptly at 10 A.M. and had a perfectly smooth sea through the Inland Sea. The islands make it very beautiful for we have to be continually turning and there are so many of them that we seem to be land locked most of the time. The weather was so warm that we stayed on deck until late enjoying the scenery in the beautiful moon light. I awoke in a dripping perspiration, so I put on my Kimono took my bed and went out on to the deck and slept the rest of the night in one of the long chairs. This is one of the trips when we do not have to pay for a steamer chair. We reached Moji about 9 A.M. the next day and stayed in port until 3 P.M. There is so little of interest to be seen in Moji or Shimoniseki (opposite) that we did not go ashore. Several Japanese came on board, eyed our one German passenger, and asked some of the American men (whose names were suspiciously German) where they were born, what they were doing here in the Orient and why they had been in Japan. It so happens that they men they asked are teachers in the Indemnity School in Peking the head master of which has so spoken of the Japanese that he dares not go to Japan. After the first conversation on board our steamer, the Japanese man came back with two more Japanese men and went through with the same conversations again. Just what they wanted to do with the information we did not know- perhaps it was just their native curiosity. While we were in Moji we were anchored near enough to a Japanese war vessel to watch the drill on board. One of the Japanese men informed us there were 500 soldiers on it. They must have been rather crowded below decks for there were never more than sixty men at drill on deck. Just before we started a torpedo boat glided out the same way we were going. Later in the day we met one which our passengers thought might have been the same one. Yesterday we were nearly the whole day among the island at the southern end of Corea [Korea]. The scenery was beautiful and the moonlight superb on the quiet sea. We had a bit of excitement (to some of the passengers) when it was discovered just in the late twilight that we were being followed by a torpedo boat. It was evidently one of the Japanese fleet looking out for traffic in these seas. Very soon it turned about evidently satisfied that we were harmless. This morning we are out of sight of land again. In about an hour we met five squall steamers and since we saluted none of them they must have belonged to other lines than this, which must mean that traffic is still open. The passengers on board think we have passed much nearer to Corea than usual, probably to avoid the German port in China, where the Japanese are landing. For such a serious situation we have seen very few signs of war. We have heard nothing about the progress of the war since we left Kobe, since we have no wireless on board. We are to arrive in Tientsin to-morrow, but the passengers think it may be too late to leave the steamer. We have to leave this steamer out side the bar since the water is too shallow for the boat to get over. We may be taken in to land by a launch and then go by train from Taku to Tientsin.

Will write you next from our destination which should be in a few days from now.

Lovingly- Flora Beard.

Nippon Dusen Kaisha

Takeshima Maru
Sept 5 1914

Dear Folks,

The captain says we are due in harbor tomorrow evening but we passengers doubt it if his records of the last two days are to be trusted.

My tale of Kyoto was exceedingly brief if I recollect. The Chion-in temple we visited one afternoon. There we went through the apartments. All were lined with paintings and each room was done in a subject; there were two snow rooms, a swallow room, a stork room, a pine room, a cherry blossom room, a wisteria room. The kinkabyi rooms were not so numerous but the gardens were very beautiful. We went in the Gold Temple and fed the carp as prescribed, then we climbed to the tea house. They gave us ceremonial tea which is a most sickening concoction. It is a nice Irish green in color with a paler froth on top. It is thick like pea soup and tasted like tea left on the leaves to boil for a long period and flavored with quinine lest it be not bitter enough. We were so thirsty and hot that we drank part of it. I also ate a mouthful of the rice cake. I was sick in the night and laid it to the tea.

We took the train to Lake Biwa. Mrs. Sowter wrote out the terms we were to use to tell rickshaw men or conductors where to take us. The view of the Lake from Maderia is beautiful. We could see the start of the canal which supplies Kyoto with water. As it was a holiday no boats were running on the canal so we could not come back that way. The 31st was the Emperor's birthday but only a few shops closed in honor of the event.

We returned to Kobe Aug 1st as our steamer sailed at 10 A.M., Aug 2. There are but 17 first class passengers and two are not English. Two American men are travelling second class but having first class meals sent downstairs. We have a Doctor and wife with a 7 month old baby. She is homely but as dear as can be. The wife of the business manager for the A.B.C.F.M. at Tientsin is here with her four sons. Two are young men, one a perspective pupil of ours and the other only five. Another couple have two baby boys under three. A German and a Japanese finish the list. The two men below are teachers in the Indemnity School at Peking and quite interesting. I played deck gold, ring toss and gazed last evening at the moon with Mr. Bruce. The islands and the moon were very beautiful. He went in to play 500 with the other men and I went to bath with Flora and Mrs. Shoemaker. We retired about 9:30. This morning the moon woke me and I stayed awake to see it sink into the water. Alas a hazy horizon swallowed it before the water had a chance. Then I ordered toast and tea and took another nap. As we do not breakfast until 8:30, there is time for quite a nap after 6:00.

This morning there was a fire drill. All of the crew rushed to the upper deck and swung one of the life boats out then the recall blew and it was over.

Such wonderful placid waters as we are having. The motion of this little boat is not much more than that of the big one. The Inland Sea is wonderful. The islands are legion and no two alike in size or shape. We passed one in the evening which evidently was inhabited clear to the peak as it was most beautifully illuminated. Electric lights seem to be much used here in the east. We have met them everywhere so far. A torpedo boat preceded us from Moji and we met it returning the next afternoon. When it was nearly dark we saw it again steaming up behind us but it soon turned back. Whence it came no one knew but the islands were so thick it could easily dodge between them.

Sunday A.M. - This morning I awoke with the rain coming in on me. We were rolling a little but the sea did not look rough. The wind has subsided and the rain is over. We have several swallows and grasshoppers to show us it has existed. The swallow just flew within a few inches of my hand. I have just picked up three moths. This looks like land ahead sometime soon.

We sent Ruth's card case from Kobe- 8 in number. All told they cost 2 yen and 7 sen including postage. The individual cases varied in price from 29 sen to 412 sen. I couldn't tell when we got home which cost the most. We are 13 sen or ½ cents you debtor.

Our cabins on here are very tiny. The arrangement is most peculiar. The upper berth is delightful being right under the port holes. The lower berth is below it and very low. Air is an unknown quantity down there. We have twisted the mattress so Flora has her head out on the couch and her feet under the berth. She slept in the upper on the Mongolia but could not get into it here as the bars are too small to use to pull one up.

I wrote the Literary Digest to send my copy to Tungchow and if extra postage was necessary to send the bill to father. I do not anticipate the same form as shown by the Geographic.

Last night we had beautiful sunset and I exposed one film to it. It is the first picture I have taken since leaving the Mongolia and the Japanese are very suspicious of cameras. I did not even carry it sightseeing for fear lest I lose it.

Aug. 8- We reached the bar at 6:00 Sunday evening, but our boat was too big to go over the bar so we had to be taken off in a tender. We were to take the train at Taian but were too late. We left Taian at 9:00 P.M. to come up in the launch and arrived at the Bund at 1:30 A.M. It was two nights after full moon so a glorious night. Our only seats were canvas stools without backs. The views were glorious- we could see the mud [?] villages, the huge piles of government salt, etc. It was interesting to see sampans rock in our wake. The men were on hand to keep them from going over. Mr. Guinness, the agent for looking after missionaries, met us down the river and helped us get our baggage off. He took the trunks to his go-down but we went out to Mrs. Gordon's. It was 3:00 when we got there so we had a time waking them. Mr. G. followed us out lest we get lost so you see we were well looked after. Yesterday we saw our trunks off by freight and to day we go to Peking for the first meeting of our school board.

Tungchou, Peking, China
Thursday Sept 10 [1914]

Dear folks at Home,

Dr. Ingram posted a letter for us in Peking so you know we arrived there safely. Miss Crane, Mr. Corbett and Mrs. Stelle met us at the train. Miss Crane took an extra rickshaw and piloted our boys to Mrs. Stelle's home, while Mrs. S. took us to the Methodist compound for our first school committee meeting. We were the first to arrive but soon the others came. Mr. Corbett is President and Mr. Galt is secretary. There are three other men and two ladies. Two of the committee had been to look at locations for the school in Peking this winter. They reported that two seemed available and votes were cast for 1st and 2nd choice. We saw the plans for the building and they are quite complete. As most of the children are in Peking this winter, as those in Tungchou are old enough with two exceptions, to go to Peking to board and two new babies arrive here this winter, we are to be located in Peking. Where we live we are not certain, either with Mrs. Stelle or Mrs. Burgess. The foundation of the building is nearly complete and we have visited it twice. It is to be a four story building. In the basement are two dining rooms, kitchen, store room, furnace room, boys and girls dressing rooms and toilets. On the first floor are a hall and four rooms. The second floor is nearly like the first. The third has four rooms with slanting ceilings and dormer windows. The building stands in a large open space and faces the semicircle of seven homes in the compound. It faces north but the rooms planned for assembly and main class rooms at the start are south and east. The building is larger than our present need but of course we hope there is a future.

We had a most cordial reception here in Tungchou. Of course we had two husbands in our party and their wives were at the station with a number of small children. Miss Leavens with whom we were to stay was there also and on the way up we met the older children, so before reaching the compound we had met all of the people here. Our trunks fortunately came on the train with us so they were delivered at once. As this is a temporary stopping place we are not unroping our big trunks. Miss Leavens boy is doing our much needed laundry work. It seemed good to empty my trunk of soiled garments. The last time I was all clean was in Berkeley.

We unpacked the first morning and took a nap after lunch. About four Mable Galt came over to escort us around the compound. We are six homes in a curved row with the College buildings at the east end. Ours is the house farthest west. The church is inside the city wall while we are just outside. We have only a wire fence to separate us from the wicked world; but that wicked world is at some little distance. (A donkey just brayed and I heard the first one after retiring the first evening.) There is lots of space here for athletic fields and three good tennis courts all ready laid out.

Yesterday we washed gloves and silk stockings and did some mending in the morning. In the afternoon we rested an hour then went over to Mr. Galt's for a committee meeting. We went over the plans of the building very carefully then visited the building. We made a few changes of a minor sort.

Today we matched silks to the ties we got in Kyoto and started to make tassels. We shall have a Chinese woman make the others from our samples. I have partially cut out the Philippine waist I brought along, and shall give it to a Chinese woman to sew up.

We are seriously considering taking a few lessons in Chinese to help in the managing of servants in the future. Already I can say yes, no, good, and count to five.

We finished making out our accounts today and find it cost $179.64 to get us here besides the tickets we had sent us from Chicago to Kobe.

When we go to bed we hear frequent shots in the direction of the city and a few from the country. Miss Leavens says they are fired at thieves which are especially numerous now as it is harvest time.

Saturday Sept 12. - Yesterday I had a nice hot bath. Alas, I fear I have rolled over in a tub for the last time for awhile at least. It was hot, pleasant and cleansing, nevertheless.

Yesterday afternoon we walked over to the boarding school for girls of which Miss Leavens was charge. The grounds are surrounded by a wall. One building is for school purposes only. The dining room has square tables and benches about six inches wide to sit on. The benches are quite high and I doubt if the children can touch their feet at all if they really sit.

We went into some of the girls rooms. They are almost 12 feet square. One half of the room is the kahn (my spelling as it really is shuan) where four girls sleep with feet under the window and heads in the center of the room. The bedding was folded and piled in one corner. The bed was covered with two very thin grass mats, over brick. In cold weather the beds are warmed by fires under the brick. Outside the building were the openings from which the fires are fed.

We are trying to find out our Chinese name and whether we can take the same one Will has or not. The only character Flora has here is the seal one which differs from the written one and there is some difficulty about getting it recognized.

Mr. and Mrs. Frame (Alice Brown) were here for breakfast this morning, having arrived from Pei Tai Ho (Be-da-ho is the pronunciation) on the early train. We expect them for luncheon also. Pei Tai Ho is the summer resort for North China foreigners. By tonight it is expected that the compound will be filled. Each day so far has brought one or two so we did not have to meet them all at once.

We look each day for a home letter as it is already two weeks since we left the steamer at Kobe. It seems longer because of the much we have seen.

Mr. Corbett read a letter written in English by a Chinese for us last evening. He ended by saying "I will talk to you about it until we meet."

With lots of love
Mary.

[Sept 12, 1914 from Flora]

Dear folks at home:-

We arrived in Tungchou safely and are feeling quite rested and are looking forward to really getting to work. It will probably take two weeks more to get our building ready for us in Peking, so we shall be out here in this delightful country air while we wait. Our permanent building is up to the ground floor in its process of erection and we have been over the plans with the building committee and suggested some changes which should not make expenses more and still give us more conveniences.

We dined last evening with Mr. and Mrs. Corbett. Mr. Corbett is the chairman of our trustees. They are acquainted with Orange, N.J., and are very delightful young people. They have three little children from 8 yrs. down, so are personally interested in the school problem. This year we shall have only a day school but being in Peking, I think we shall have an opportunity of interesting the business and legation families and so have a better number for next year's boarding school. I think it is going to be fine for us for we can use our spare time sight seeing and there is so much to see. Also we shall be able to have a taste of the social life in the Chinese capital. I am glad that the real school is to be out here for it is most ideal. There is a campus here of more than 10 acres, which is at present producing several crops of alfalfa for the dairy. There are walks both in and out of the compound, and tennis courts and possibilities for other athletics here. The dairy is owned and supervised by the mission so we are sure of good pure milk. There is an artesian well so we do not have to boil the water. They put up ice in the winter so we can have ice boxes and ice cream, and the gardens are full of the most delectable vegetables. So you see there are so many favorable conditions that we must be very contented. It seems as though prospects could not be more promising for our school.

I am sending for two magazines which I meant to have subscribed for before I left home but am able to save $.40 by taking them together which may pay the extra postage on one of them. I did not know how much the two would be- with the foreign postage so have told the "School Arts Magazine" to send the bill to you. The other to be included in the "Primary Education." The club price is $2.85. I imagine the extra may be a dollar.

I am wondering how the war is affecting you at home and how Dr. and Mrs. Lathrop got home. We have felt absolutely no effects from it here- nor on our way. The Mission buyer has taken the precaution to get extra supplies so that if ships are taken off the people may still have provisions. The war has struck the German missionaries very hard- they had to be helped by contributions from the other missionaries; and the English missionaries have been asked to stop all building; but so far the Americans are not hampered. Several of the people who went from here to spend the summer in Europe have had to return via U.S. and so are to be about a month late in arriving.

We are to be out here for about two weeks and then we go back to Peking. We are to board either with Mrs. Stelle or Mrs. Burgess (nei Stella Fischer of Karuizawa, Japan). It is not yet decided which, and I do not care.

We have decided to do a bit of language study so is to be able to take care of ourselves and already we know about a dozen words. Next week we will begin with a teacher. I think just to get the tones- there are only four up here.

Will write more later, for we want to get this letter started home to-day.

Lovingly-

Foochow- China 4:45 p.m. Sept. 19th 1914

Dear Elizabeth:-

Your good letter came yesterday. It was most welcome for this Summer most of my home correspondents have been treating me as I treat them and letters have not been numerous. I'm afraid I've not written home since the last typhoon-(if I have, please forgive the repetition) A week ago last Sunday, Sept. 6th I was in Foochow to conduct communion and receive five to membership. The wind had been strong all day. About 8:30 p.m. it grew stronger. I had finished my Putnam letter and was reading a few minutes, planning to write my Shelton letter, when the electricity suddenly went out. I knew then that the storm was serious. The north window had blown in and water seemed to be dripping from the whole ceiling. The wind blew out my light. There chanced to be one old wickless lantern in the house. I fortunately found a wick and some oil and with this old lantern went into the study. The wind had blown leaves and dirt thru the blind slats, across the room and had stuck them on the opposite wall. All books not in cases or protected were wet, so I at once removed them all, and with Mrs. Christian's table leaves braced the window shut. Other windows continually blew in and I was kept busy for an hour, until the house seemed fairly secure. It is an old house and things are not strong. I watched till midnight. Every gust sent tiles off the roof of my study. But at midnight the wind was much quieter and the tiles had stopped flying. I went to bed and slept till 7 a.m. The rain had then ceased and after breakfast of a dish of Wheatcane[?] with no salt or sugar and only a little condensed milk. I looked over the buildings to see what damage had been done. It was slight, the new school building, blown down in July, and rebuilt was not scratched. The roof over my study was the most seriously injured. I then went out to Ponasang and found little damage. From there I started for Kuliang wondering how I would find things there. Half way across the plain I came to water too deep for my coolies to carry me and I took off shoes and stockings and waded for over two hours in water from six inches to sixteen deep, reaching my mountain cottage at 2:30- hungry. It had stood the storm well. Mrs. and Miss Pitcher, Misses Billing and van der Linden were there. Miss Billing got some scared and none of them slept much. The storm did much damage everywhere. A fire burned up some 100 houses in Foochow in July. These were partly rebuilt. Some 15 or 20 had the roof on posts, and were lying flat in the morning with every tile broken, - one man killed and two injured. I passed several old houses on the plain that had been blown flat. The family were picking their dishes, bedding, clothing, furniture etc. out of the ruins and then sorting out the posts, beams of the house. It was a pitiable spectacle. But this people possess unlimited recuperative powers and they are building before the ashes are cold after a fire.

I moved down from Kuliang a week ago today. Mrs. and Miss Pitcher came to my Foochow house for lunch. Mrs. Pitcher took the steamer that night for Amoy. Miss Pitcher remained with us till Tues. evening and took the steamer for Shanghai where she is to teach in a school similar to the one Flora and Mary are starting in Tung Chow. When I said good bye to her it was the completion of my boarding house venture this Summer which as far as I know has been successful and pleasant. I fully expect Flora and Mary to be with me next Summer. My two other rooms are already promised to a lady from Canton who has been here this summer. She expects her Father next Summer and they will occupy the two rooms.

College opened Thursday with everything promising well. Over 230 students have joined - up to last night. This does not include some 30 who ask to come into the new building. We are to have two new American teachers this term- Mr. Urch who has been teaching in Japan Gov't schools for three years and Ray Gardner born in Foochow graduated from Pomona, Cal. last June.

A week ago on the mountain I met Mrs. Bankhardt who was on the "Mongolia" for about two minutes. She told me the girls were well and that they departed themselves with credit to the family while on board and that they had gone via Korea to Peking. And that they had decided to come to Kuliang next Summer. Then a few days ago I received a letter from each of the girls and last evening I had a good talk with Mr. and Mrs. Ford who were on the same steamer with them. All these talks make me proud to be a brother of them.

Last night after attending a reception to several new and returning Foochowites on South Side, I took berth no. 1. on Sampan #103 went to sleep and woke up near Diong Loh- got up and showered and dressed under the critical eyes of the two women on the boat and took breakfast with Mr. and Mrs. Beach and Frances. I went down to meet the Committee on the new residence for Dr. and Mrs. Gillette. The work was finished before dinner and I started after dinner. The wind was good for me. I had about 3 or 4 miles with the pulling tide out of the creek. Then when I struck the river Min I had the tide against. We came up all right till the river turned. This cut off the wind and I am hung up at the Foochow Arsenal until the tide turns up-before long now. I wanted very much to reach Foochow for a big Chinese feast under the Auspices of the Evangelistic Campaign Comm. of which I am Chairman- to the Chinese Educational Board and the Presidents of the Gov't Colleges in Foochow. But this comes at 7 p.m. It is six now and I shall reach home about 10. So there!!

Here's a good story. It occurred at the Foochow City Church the day I was there Sept. 6th.

Mr. Chai an earnest Christian member came in just before service began and looking all about the church asked, "Hasn't she come yet? Where is she? Have you seen her? She was leading a little boy." Some one asked him, "Where did you see her last?" "I left her at the corner South and East Streets. She was coming straight to this church." Out he rushed to find her." I asked preacher Li, what it all meant and this is what he told me. "Several days ago this woman, a relative of Mr. Chai, came to him with her little boy six years old in an unconscious state. She said her other little boy had died of the same disease a few days before. This one acted just the same. She had employed all the charms, and devices that Chinese doctors and geomancers and idolators knew of with effect "Do you Christians have any methods of driving out these devils from little boys?" "We have only one method" said Mr. Chai. "We pray for them. Will you kneel with us and pray?" "Yes." They knelt and as they were praying the child opened his eye and said "I na" (ee ma) {a as in bad}= mama. From that the child got well". In a few minutes Mr. Chai came in with her and she was leading the little boy. Elisha and John and Peter and Paul did things like this. Lots of love Will

Dear Flora and Mary:-

Your good letters came a week ago. Ray Gardner arrived last Friday. I suppose nothing has affected me just the same as have those photos of the people at Putnam. It has been a year since I have had words in pictures from the family. All but Ellen have changed. I do not know who has changed most, - possible Geraldine- for she still wore her hair as a little girl. Now she has a RAT. I felt like tearing it off. Dorothy's and Kathleen's faces have changed also. This was the first picture of Gould in long trousers that I have seen. My! will I know them then I see them in 1916? I guess so.

I saw Mrs. Bankhardt 2 minutes and I had a good long talk with Mr. and Mrs. Ford last Friday evening and the talk all centered about two girls on the Mongolia and the babies that one of them had captivated. They all said we knew we liked your older sister and we found the younger equally lovable. The one regret is that you were not coming to Foochow instead of Tung Chow.

I have rented two rooms in my Kuliang house for next Summer already. This comes from my expn. as a Hotel keeper this past summer. But I have reserved the room we used to use as a dining room for you sisters. This past summer the house was disposed as on the plan enclosed. Mrs. Bankhardt said you had decided to come down and stay with me next summer. We are due to have a very pleasant summer for we have had seven typhoons this summer. But from July 16-Aug 30 the weather was well nigh perfect. It cut up at the beginning and at the end of the season.

College is running nicely again and we are in full swing. I am sending this letter at a venture. Thinking there will not be so many foreigners in Tung Chow that they will not be able to find you. I am enclosing my letter to Elizabeth. Will you forward it as soon as possible. She wrote me a dandy letter- while she and Father and Mother were at home alone. Will you keep the photo or send it home as you choose. If you do not send it home let me know or if you care for one to keep let me know and I'll send you one.

Write me all about your work and situation and Peking and everything. With my very best and most loving wishes for a pleasant time in getting settled and into the work. I am very Lovingly Will.

Did you get my letters and postals at Honolulu and Yokohama?

Peking, Sept. 27, 1914.

Dear folks at home:-

We have finished our first week of school and have enrolled twenty-four scholars. At present we are occupying three recitation rooms in the basement of the Y.M.C.A. building. We have desks and black boards with an eraser and a box of crayon- all of which we are truly thankful for. The change of plan for our school necessitated finding a house for our day's work here among the Chinese houses. One was found centrally located but is not to be vacated until some time in October, so with our present conveniences we are provided with a place until we can have our permanent house. Then the Kindergarten (which has a teacher and assistant) there will be six of our faculty, for one of the mothers is to assist me with my little first grade pupils. I wish I could adequately describe our students for they certainly are about the most interesting group of children I ever worked with. Mary has nine students in her room and the grading of them has kept her busy all the week. I have the rest and they are by no means settled yet.

We spent nearly two weeks out at Tungchou where our school is to be as soon as the new building is finished, which now will not be until next year. The basement was completed while we were out there and the first story started. It is to be built of gray brick a little darker than this paper. It is placed out across a large lawn but in full sight of all the houses in the compound. As the compound is composed of nearly 40 acres of land you can imagine the size of the lawn when I tell you that fully a fourth of it is about our building and now is covered with a fine crop of alfalfa which is raised to feed the dairy of over fifty cows. About ten of the cows have been brought from foreign lands and the stables for them are the latest most approved steel stanchions and cement floors, with an attendant who removes all debris. It is quite safe to drink this milk without boiling, since the whole dairy is owned by a responsible Chinese, and personally advised and supervised by Dr. Ingram of the A.B.C.F.M. The compound is a beautiful spot for our school for it is so large, open, and safe with possibilities for long walks in the country.

We are to board this winter with Mr. and Mrs. Burgess of the Y.M.C.A. so you can address our letters in care of the Y.M.C.A., Peking, China. Will you tell every one of our change of address? At present we are in the A.B.C.F.M. compound with Mrs. Stelle, but probably we shall move before another week. We have a sleeping porch so we have been investing in clothes for keeping warm at night. We have each given an order for a Chinese wadded garment to wear over our nightgowns which I am sure with all the rest of our blankets should keep us comfortable. I am going to knit a pair of long bed stockings for my feet- as soon as I can get the worsted.

On Friday we were invited to the Friday Club which is wholly Literary and interested this year in poetry. You can imagine the quality of culture we are enjoying when you read the subject of the meeting- "Wordsworth and Coleridge as Exponents of the Romantic Movement. There were two quite lengthy papers, two songs, and a reading all of which filled up nearly two hours. There were nearly fifty women present. I certainly enjoyed the occasion. The October meeting is to be - "Later Romanticism, illustrated from Byron, Shelley, and Keats." Most of the American women here are College women and so we get rather interesting and mature thoughts on the subjects.

Yesterday, we visited the zoo and botanical gardens which the late empress dowager established, but since the revolution they have fallen somewhat from their pristine beauty and wonder. We saw a zebra, an elephant, a lioness, several smaller animals of the feline tribe, a number of species of birds, and some monkeys. The gardens covered a large tract of land where we saw orchards of mulberry trees, peaches and pears (where the trees were trained flat against upright arbors), dates, pomegranates, and persimmons. There were fields of rice, corn, cotton, and cabbage, and lakes full of lotus-flowers, which were all gone to seed now. In the green houses we saw orchids, a night-blooming cereus, several kinds of ferns, begonias, geraniums, asters, and a telegraph plant, which grows such long aerial roots that they had extended the whole length of the green-house and were nearly a yard on their return trip. The whole place was not without its real beauty though the past-maturity of its sights made it look somewhat somber. We walked on and on until we came to the Empress's garden house, where we took down one of the window guards and looked through the glass into the rooms where she evidently took her tea, when she visited the grounds. Not the least remarkable was the giant who took our tickets at the gate. He is seven feet (and a large number of inches) tall and the size of his feet and hands was most impressive. He has a twin brother just as mammoth.

To-day is Sunday, and we are spending the morning quietly in our room trying to get caught up in rest and letter writing.

You will probably be asked how the war is affecting us. So far not at all. The Americans are living and doing the same as usual, but it will affect the medical department seriously as they have bought their medicines and supplies largely from Germany and other countries of Europe. America will not get the orders as American drugs cost more to buy and to transport. Japan will probably get the orders. The German missionaries are actually penniless and everywhere the other missionaries are giving money or trying to care for their work. They are in a most pitiable state. So far the English missionaries are proceeding as usual, but they expect to get word any day that their salaries and supplies are to be cut. We have a daily paper here and are interestidly following the course of the war. The taking of Tsingtao is a tragedy which everyone is dreading. Our own American Consul is remaining there, though just why no one here seems to understand- except that he considers it his duty. His wife is in Tientsin. Our American Minister and his wife are expected to return this week. They spent the summer in Switzerland and had to return via U.S. Their little daughter teased her grandmother so hard to come to the American school that she had to let her come. She attended school in the British Legation last year and did not like it.

Will let Mary tell you her story.

Lovingly - Flora Beard.

Dear Ones at Home,

We have had three home letters since last we wrote. The Lathrops were expected this next week according to last reports so by now you have heard all of their thrilling experiences. At Tung chou we were two lazy people. Breakfast at 7.30, a morning sewing or writing or reading, lunch at 12.30, a nap, a walk, dinner at 7.00 or 6.30 and to bed at 9.00 on the sleeping porch. I nearly finished my Philippine waist, mended everything I had with me and had a sewing woman make a silk petticoat besides darn stockings and put tassels on some Japanese ties I got for Xmas presents. We came up to Peking one day for a school committee meeting. Mrs. Ingram came with us and we had two hours for shopping. The silk shops are fascinating in the gorgeous display of color. I got the silk for my skirt. We took lunch that day with Mrs. Lowery [Lowry] of the Methodist Mission. She has eight children, five of whom are in our school. She planned to send the twins, aged 8 and Irma, aged 11, and possibly Margaret aged 12 for English. Then four came the first day for everything except Margaret's for everything except her Latin. That is a feather in my cap which I hope I can retain. The three older girls are all in my room and are most eager workers. While at Tungchou we had dinner with the Corbetts. Mr. Corbett is the Chairman of our School Board. They have three children, all too young to send up here. The Ingram's entertained us next. Mrs. Ingram is on the committee for school curriculum and furniture. The Galt's next had us for dinner. Mr. Galt is secretary of the committee also treasurer. He forwarded $50 for us so we could leave Tungchou free from debt. Mrs. Shephard, the senior missionary at Tungchou now, entertained us the last Sunday evening. She is the mother of Mrs. Stelle with whom we are now staying. At our meeting for which we came up, we learned that Mrs. Fenn of the Presbyterian Mission was personally offended so refused to attend. I think her objections are over come now. She sent Williams the first day. She also invited us up for the week but we were otherwise disposed of. We did go up Friday afternoon and stay until Saturday afternoon. Mrs. Fenn is a fascinating woman and exceedingly brilliant and wide awake. Just now she is tired from nursing Wilson-through Typhoid this summer. That with a lack of information regarding our plans were the cause of the unpleasant situation. We finally opened school rather precipitately on a five days notice. Everyone anticipates that we will have more community children later. I hope so as their tuition will help greatly to finance the school. Our new building was growing apace while we were at Tungchou and we went out to see it every day.

The last Sunday afternoon I went with Miss Leaven across the city to a little Sunday School. The walk through the city was intensely interesting. We saw everything in operation as on any other day. The carpenters were at work sawing out logs. The little stalls for selling various articles were all set up. We saw some very interesting pottery and brass on some of the places. Miss Leaven was going to send the work out the next day to price them. A foreigner does not stop to shop here because it carries such a crowd and the prices soar so high.

A most interesting shop keeper brought his goods down to us from Peking. We looked them over in the evening then took a second look in the morning before purchasing. I got two fox skins, of a lovely gray color and shall have a muff and stoll made. [See photo with letter dated January 5, 1915.] My old muff is in my boxes, so will not be of much use this winter. Every one cautions us about a trying to go thinly clad. A cold this week, which nearly stopped my talking for two days, makes me feel that it is wise to heed the words of caution. Dr. Loring gave me some tablets last evening that are already proving effective in relieving the hoarseness and stopping the strangled feeling.

Our first four days of school gave a chance to get things to running well. I succeeded in getting in all of my classes on Friday. I have one Arithmetic class in denominate numbers, two Algebra classes, one beginning and one in quadratics; three in History, one Elementary United States, one in the advance book and one in Ancient History; two Latin classes, one just starting Caesar on and one just starting the subject; one Geography class just finishing this year; and three English classes, one in the lost Mother Tongue and one starting Rhetoric. Besides these I plan for a Physiology class twice a week and spelling once or twice. These will alternate with the Geography and Elementary History. Mrs. Malcolm has agreed to take the class in end year German; much to my relief. I dreaded that after one year's preparation twelve years ago.

The Eddy meetings are the all absorbing theme here this week. The different views of them were interesting. Mr. Bryson from down in the country finds each one very inspiring and is in hearty sympathy with it all. Mr. Otello seems to agree perfectly. Mr. Fenn and Mr. Goforth feel that the series is not adequate that the transition from patriotism to the religious side is too sudden. They also shake their heads over the wisdom of the lunch and dinner for those who have decided to take up Bible Study. Both are today, Sunday, hence the question.

Yesterday on our return from Mrs. Fenn's we found a funeral. The funeral chair was borne by thirty or more men and was most gorgeously red. Preceding it were two groups of mourners all in white. They were not mourning very loudly but were beating their musical(?) instruments hard enough to wake up. In the lead were several bearers of black banners and one man bearing an image of a man dressed in black held aloft on a long pole.

We hear that no missionaries are being sent out now lest money gets tied up so salaries can not be gotten out. The members of the London Mission are expecting word every day that no funds are forth coming. German missionaries already have the word. The Medical school is terribly short of workers as none of the recruits have been allowed to come out. We will probably feel it if things get any worse. It was with some relief that we heard of the English landing near Tsing Tau because no one here has any faith in the Japanese.

We had three hours with a Chinese teacher in Tungchou and there are a dozen or two words which I now recognize when I hear them and a few I can use when needed. I wonder if our attempts at Chinese are as funny to the Chinese as theirs are to us! A student was reading an English Bible down at the Y.M.C.A. one morning and not one word was intelligible. I could tell that it was not Chinese. He tried to use his tones in English and the result was quite unfamiliar.

It is time for a Sunday nap. At Tungchou it was the daily nap, but not so here.

With lots of love-

Mary.

Ruth:-

Will you get me a pair of long silk gloves white, ordinarily long- number 7. Get a good quality. I pay $1 usually. You may have to give more now. Flora.

Dear Folks at Home

The enclosed leaflet tells you about a special united undertaking of all the missions and churches of our great province. We have been thinking planning and praying about it for nearly a year now. Our city about which possibly you know from my other letters and from general missionary literature is one of the thirteen centers. Plans have been thoroughly made, and the outlook is very heartening.

What I very much desire, my one purpose in sending you this letter, is to have your prayers with ours behind this undertaking. From the day you receive this letter, especially during the days listed for our city and FOR THREE MONTHS afterward, will you not pray daily and specifically for us in this one thing?

I emphasize the three months for the follow up work as the most critical and searching part of the enterprise. We are making special and careful preparation for it. All the men and women engaged in this undertaking, Chinese and foreign, must succeed if there is a great united volume of prayer constantly made in their behalf and for those whom they would help into the way of life.

There is a feeling rising almost to conviction that we are on the eve of a tremendous awakening and advance in this the most Christian province of the land. Our great need is spiritual power, towards this your special prayers would contribute much.

With cordial personal greetings,

Faithfully yours,
Will.

Call to Prayer

in Behalf of the

Fukien Provincial Evangelistic Campaign

October 22—December 1st, 1914.

Statement:

The marked success which attended the Eddy evangelistic meetings in Foochow during the spring of 1913 led Christian leaders of Fukien to feel that the time was ripe for a great advance on the part of the church among the higher classes. For five days an average of 5,000 men, students, officials, business men and gentry, attended the meetings addressed by Prof. Robertson—scientific lecturer—and Mr. G. Sherwood Eddy, evangelist from New York. Over fifteen hundred men became "inquirers" promising to read the Bible daily, investigate the teachings of Christianity and if they found them true, to accept Jesus Christ as their personal Saviour. All six Missions at work in Fukien, together with the Young Men's Christian Association, have now united in an effort to reach directly the men of the thirteen largest cities and indirectly to extend an influence to all parts of this vast Province. The Mission will be held during October and November of this year. Mr. Eddy will lead the campaign in Foochow and Amoy and conduct Personal Workers Training Conferences in these cities, attended by the leading native Christians of all thirteen cities. Several of the most successful evangelists of China together with scientific lecturers will form teams and visit the other eleven centers. Each of these cities will in turn be a county or prefectural center from which the evangelistic spirit will spread to the most distant towns and villages of the Province. Success in this great undertaking is assured only through intercession. To this task of interceding in behalf of the young men of Fukien that the dynamic of God may rule their lives—to such a task you are called throughout the coming months.

Fukien Provincial Evangelistic Committee.

Meditation

The very substantial results which followed the meetings of a year ago, and the experience which has been gained in the various cities gives ground for the belief that still larger results can be secured in the meetings to be held during the present year. They will have their greatest fruitage in proportion as Missionaries and clergy and Church members are united in sympathetic and prayerful effort. Dr. Mott has laid emphasis on this need of prayer in his recent book entitled "Intercessors—the Primary Need."

"Notwithstanding the great encouragements, the primary need of this vast, potent, and hopeful field is that of more intercessors. Why is it of transcendent importance that more prayer be enlisted on behalf of the work of evangelization in China? Because the most remarkable spiritual achievements in this field have taken place as a result of sincere and faithful intercession. Because the key to the solution of other problems related to the evangelization of all classes and the releasing of their spiritual energies lies in the manifestation of the power of God in answer to prayer. Because those who have devoted themselves most to true intercession are most emphatic in their expression of conviction that the possibilities of such intercession are simply boundless. Because there are so many Christians who know that they should be intercessors, but have failed to master their circumstances and to devote themselves to this most important ministry. There is need of fresh emphasis also on the fact that one of the most Christlike forms of work is that of intercession, for He not only taught and commanded His followers to pray for others, but Himself likewise prayed for others and ever liveth to make intercession. Whatever can be done, therefore, to set forth the urgent need of prayer will be the most highly multiplying service which can be rendered at the present time in the interest of the Christian conquest of China."

Special Subjects for Prayer.

- For those students, teachers and leaders in our province who are Christians in deed and in truth, and to whom comes the call of the great opportunity which these months are to bring: That when the hour of opportunity arrives, they may have courage to venture and grace to fulfil whatever their Lord may then require of them. That they may be endowed with sympathy, wisdom, patience, humility, untiring hope and courage. That the native church in these centers may realize the opportunity presented to it in this campaign and give itself to intercessory prayer as never before.
- For the members of the various Committees and Secretaries arranging the Evangelistic meetings: That they may take time to learn, and may be enabled to know, the will of God regarding all plans and arrangements.
- For Mr. Eddy, Prof. Robertson and those who are to share with them in the labours of this itinerary: That they may be granted a living vision and experience of those aspects of the Gospel which are most fitted to influence their hearers; that word may be given them in that hour, and that they may be clothed with power from on high.
- For all non-Christian Government School Students, Officials, Business Men and Gentry: That their attitude may be favorable and their hearts prepared to receive the message of salvation as given by His servants. That they may decide to thoroughly investigate the claims of Jesus Christ and as they continue in Bible study and engage in forms of personal service for their fellow men they may have grace to accept Him, whom they find true, as their personal Lord and Saviour.
- For ourselves: That the meaning of what we are asking may be made plain to us—its meaning for ourselves and our future duty, for the Church or the Missionary Society with which we may be connected, for the city or district in which we live, and for the land of China which we love.

Dear Phebe and Stanley:-

Don't stop to think when I wrote you last. I've written some of the folks most every week, and altho people say that we have a vacation during the summer months, yet the vacation with me consists in a change of dwelling and of work rather than in cessation of activities. I've had a very pleasant summer. The one thing that I regret is that I have not written more letters. I took about forty up to my mountain cottage and they rested placidly in my desk drawer and came back to Foochow three weeks ago unanswered and with some new ones added to their number. I did one thing that I never did before in my life. I have not yet confessed it very broadly either. I read three novels—"The Inside of the Cup"—"The Goodly Fellowship"—"The Winning of Barbara Worth." I wonder if my time would have been more profitably spent in writing letters.

I am now out in the country about twelve miles from Foochow attending a funeral. The funeral of one of the ordained pastors of the Congregational Church in Foochow. He was something over seventy years of age. His four sons and three daughters have married men who have good positions or who are already wealthy. One son has been in business in the Philippines and is wealthy. Another is there now getting wealthy. The other two are in Szechuen province as Salt inspectors. The better one has a salary of $5,000.00 a year. I am glad that the Christians here are paying more attention to show in their funerals. It seems as we think of it superficially a waste of time and money. But this family for instance are able- well able to do it. They hired three house boats for three days each, and took 40 of the College students and other men and about 20 women from Foochow over. In all there were about 400 at the funeral. All these were given two good meals today and some of them were given two or three days board. The coffin cost $54.00. Well say the expenses were all total $500.00.

All the people in all the county round about here knew of the funeral- they knew who it was- that he was a pastor of the Am. B'd mission- an old man and an earnest Christian. They knew also that the people who came to the funeral were Christians.

Sunday Oct. 4th

We had a great day that Wed. The big procession reached the little country wayside house which pastor Lan had built for his old age about 11:30. There was great shooting of firecrackers and of a kind of cannon something like an anvil and then the people seated themselves and there was a long program of addresses. Hodous and I had to say a word. Then the friends and relatives carried the coffin up the hill to the grave. It is the first time I ever saw this done in China. They always hire coolies to do this. The coolies usually put the coffin down before they get to the grave and demand extra money. This time there was none of that.

After the burial we went to the house again where 250 sat down to dinner. It was 2:30 p.m. - How they did eat!! At 4 we started for our boat. An hour's brisk walk- 2 hrs in a boat, 2 hours more on foot, - an hour in a sedan and we were home. The next day Thursday was Oct. 1 and a double amount of work any way for me. In the evening I ran away to the reception given the new Y.M.C.A. Secretary who has just come back from Nanking where he has been for his bride. She was a daughter of Dr. Beebe of the M.E. Mission there. I remained with the Macs and bride and groom for supper. This was playing.

The Y.M. and Y.W.C.A.'s are feeling the effect of the war keenly. As a means of reducing expenses they are asking the Secretaries to give up part of their salaries.

The weather is delightful now. But with it all the people- both Chinese and foreigners are effected with colds more than at any other season of the year. The Community Doctor says "Every body has a cold. This may be because the nights are quite cool and the days warm. People -foreigners generally dress much the same as in the Summer months. It feels good to be cool they say, and they have to pay for it.

I had a good letter from Flora a week ago after the girls had been in Tung Chou about two weeks. The letter had a happy tone to it as if all was going well and they were looking forward to a year of pleasant work. Who would have dreamed twenty years ago that three of us would be in China in 1914?

I suppose the Big Bug [maybe a harvesting machine] makes its semi monthly journey to Century Farm and the people there are as happy to see its occupants as ever.

The mails I think must be a little upset or else the Summer is a poor time for the people to write letters as well as for me because letters are few the past two months, - from home.

The war drags on and authentic news is as hard to get as ever. Few individuals in the world are not affected [by] it. The world has already become one big commonwealth and what one nation does effects all other nations. The world will doubtless be better for the war. Men realize already the utter folly of such a war, and altho there are still plenty of men to volunteer- even run from the U.S. to Canada to get to go- yet level heads are more and more convinced of the folly and the crime of the hellish business. God will use men to stop it in His own time.

With Love to both you and Stanley

Address- Care of Mrs. J.S. Burgess, Y.M.C.A.

[Oct. 4, 1914]

Dear folks at home:-

We are at last in the home that is to be ours for the rest of this winter- with Mr. and Mrs. J.S. Burgess of the Y.M.C.A. The compound is just back of the big Y.M.C.A. building and the house is very comfortable. We have a room with a private sleeping porch so we have been getting ready for cold weather. We are each having Chinese wadded garments made and the ladies have had two cotton wadded comforters made which besides double woolen blankets and our steamer rugs should make us comfortable. I am going to knit myself some bed socks then I think c-o-m-f-o-r-t should spell my name.

We have finished our second week of school with our two dozen children and are to have our number increased as soon as three sick children get well. We shall be in the Y.M.C.A. building for some time yet as our real destination is still occupied by a Chinese family. It will have to be cleaned and remodeled to fit our needs before we can move in.

Yesterday, Mary and I settled our room somewhat, then went to deposit our gold. We had just $100 left and we got $235 silver for it. Had it been checks we could have gotten four dollars more for it, since there is not call for gold money just now. Tourists are of some use after all. That gold and our first month's salary have enabled each of us to start a bank account with the International Bank, which is really a U.S. bank. After depositing our money, we went shopping and Mary bought silk for a petticoat and thread to embroider it.

I am going to send home in a few days a registered package containing two Chinese woven pictures. They are quite old and are some made to adorn the palace. The costumes in the picture represent the Sung dynasty- I do not know how long ago that was. The pictures cost me $2.50 gold each and I want to get $5 gold for each. If you want one at home you may have it for cost price, but for others $5 is cheap enough. I wish you would let Dr. Shelton see them and if no one at home wants them please send to Mrs. Benbrook, and ask her to let the S.A. people see them. The exquisite coloring is the result of blending with the real gold thread. Few of the people here have seen such things so I am sure it is a real curio. I have two more pictures that I can send if there should be a demand- which I am not expecting as conditions are in the universe just now.

Every thing is going well with us and I hope the war is not affecting home affairs any more. Every one here is economizing for future possibilities. There is so much of the native products here in the north that can be used by the foreigners that I cannot see how there is a possibility of very great privation, since there has been a wonderful harvest this year. We are eating bread made of the native wheat and millet makes one of the nicest cereals for breakfast. I think if some one at home were to parch millet and grind it through a coarse mill and put it on the market with a bit of advertising about its nutritive values it would be a great success as puffed rice was. The fruit up here is lovely. We have grapes that out do our malagas and even the pears and apples are good. The markets are full of good fruits and vegetables all the year around and things are cheap.

What money (if any) that you get from the pictures please put to my account in paying what I owe you.

Lovingly-

Flora Beard.

[Early Oct 1914]

Dear Ones at Home,

The letter and photo came from Will two days ago. We are very busy people these days. It has been rise at 6.30, breakfast at 7.16; to school by 9.00, teach every moment until 12.15; Lunch and back to reopen at 1.45; Close at 3.15, home, dress, have tea at 4.00 and dinner at 7.00. The spare time we spent talking, walking or studying. The short evening left little time for study as we were ready for bed by 9.30 or 10.00. Today we moved up to Mrs. Burgess's where we expect to remain for the winter. We have a nice large room and a sleeping porch like this:

Just at present our furniture is reposing where it was left on delivery and on two big trunks occupy the seats of honor. Our steamer trunks have not come up from Mrs. Stelle's but we go down for them tomorrow or Saturday.

Tomorrow we have a committee meeting to talk over books. We are having no afternoon session. My boys are beginning to show that they are boys. They have obtained bamboo sticks about 6 inches long and are shooting little hard seeds through them.

I have asked them to leave sticks and seeds at home.

The situation at Tsing Tao is growing more serious. To the people here it is most vital as so many of the Germans there are civilians – and are known to the older inhabitants here. Our consul, Mr. Peets, is down there. His instructions were to remain as long as he could and so he is staying on. His poor wife is nearly frantic. The Minister, Mr. Reinsch, arrived yesterday. He had gone for the Peace conference and had to return via America. His German name caused him some annoyance but he was able to prove his identity.

We are to dine with three soldiers tonight. They say they do not know a bread and butter plate from a soup tureen. We will see.

This is only an extra letter to hasten Willard's on its way so I will say

Lots of love

Mary.

Dear Gould:-

I guess it must be nearly your turn to have the letter this week. My ruse of writing of Artyn's accomplishments in electricity worked well. It brought from you the longest and best letter yet. Did I write you that Artyn wired Dr. Lyon's Hospital- the new one this Summer? He came down from Kuliang and spent some two weeks or more at it. The question then was, whether the Company would connect for they have depended quite a bit on the big charges for putting in the lights for big profits. The charges are $3.00 for each light and $1.40 for each switch.

Friday night I had a most pleasant dream. I had just come home and found you all. Oh it was a delightful experience, -too good for a dream, so after I had kissed dear Mama and was going the rounds of you children I awoke before I had finished. Dorothy seemed to me to have changed most. She was very plump and soft- I imagine she is plump but I do not think of her as soft. I think of her rather as having pretty hard flesh.

Last Tuesday at 3 p.m. I started for a brief country trip, - took a wild[?] chair over S. Side and picked up Mr. Hodous at the Theological Seminary, and we walked over to Uang Bieng, took a small boat for Nang Seu, had supper on the boat, arriving at Nang Seu about 8:00 p.m. It was a beautiful night with a good moon. We made our beds on the outside of the boat with only the mosquito curtain for our cover between us and the sky. Three house boats full of pastors, preachers, teachers, students and one of them of women were already there. The occasion was the funeral of pastor Lan Maing Sik. A few years ago he went over near Nang Seu- off in the country about 2 ½ miles and built a house. There he died about two months ago. He leaves a widow, four sons and four daughters all married- and all rich or well to do-except one daughter – the wife of the Diong Loh pastor. One son is Salt Inspector in Szechuen province. He has a salary of $5,000 a year. The funeral was grand. 400 attended. There was a procession nearly half a mile long as they walked from Nang Seu out to the house. At the house there was a long service as several told of the different phases of his life. Then the relatives and friends carried the coffin up the hill to the grave. This was to me a new custom. Always before there have been coolies. But this time there was no haggling over prices-no yelling-all was orderly and quiet- comparatively.

At 2:30 two hundred and fifty sat down to the feast. How they /we did eat!! At 4 we walked back to Nang Seu- took our boat and at 7 p.m. we were back at Uang Bieng, and at 10 p.m. home. - It was a big and expensive funeral-It may have cost $500. But I think it was worth it. I used to deplore the expenditure of so much money of funerals. But the family was well able to do it. And it made a big impression of thousands of people. There are many things that are of greater value than money. This is one of them.

To night is the 15th of the 8th moon and Autumn festival. The White Pagoda has been lit with red paper lanterns for several nights. Tonight there are large crowds all over it. I can hear them as I write in my study. Last night a man tried to go up the stone pagoda- near Black Rock Hill and fell and killed himself.

Thursday I went to Mrs. Macs to meet Mr. and Mrs. Dennis. He is the latest arrival for the Y.M.C.A. here, - was with the Macs this Summer, - went to Nanking about Sept 1st. There he married a daughter of Dr. Beebe of the M.E. Mission. Mrs. Mac gave them a reception and I also staid to supper.

We expect Mr. and Mrs. Belcher- business agent any day now.

A missionary in Africa had a long wait for mail. At last it came- a big mail. He went until he came to a little letter- opened it and, "My dear Father, God bless you." That was all from his little child. But it was enough to give him strength for his work. You cannot realize how much your letters assuring me that you are praying for me help me. I pray God to keep each of you pure and good. Very Lovingly your Father Willard L. Beard

Peking, Oct. 25, 1914.

Dear folks at home:-

It is Sunday again after a very busy week.-Monday afternoon we had a meeting with the book committee in order to decide on what particular shall be used in our school. Tuesday was our 'at home' day and about twenty people called. Wednesday there was on exhibition several thousand dollars worth of Amoy and Swatow drawn work- here in the city, so Mary and I went to see it. I found the drawn work insertion that Miss Brewster has been wanting so much so have purchased a piece for her. I can get almost anything in the line of drawn work that any body wants and of excellent quality and workmanship. I have not yet sent the pictures I mentioned in my last letter but hope to get them off this week.- On Thursday Mary and I were invited to dinner with Dr. and Mrs. Fenn to meet some fellow passengers of the 'Mongolia' who have gotten this far on their way around the world(?). The "Friday Club" met this week so that used Friday afternoon and yesterday morning we tried to see the collection of antiques in the "Forbidden City" but found they were not to be open until afternoon so instead we visited a curio shop and then went out to the 'Temple to Heaven.' It was a fine walk through the groves of trees and I was glad to see the place again, but was disappointed that we could not see the interiors of the building. All furnishings have been removed to the museum in the 'Temple to Agriculture', but there is some fine inside decorations to see. The buildings in the court of the 'Temple to Heaven' were used by the bureau which wrote the constitution, so for a time people could not even get inside the gates of that court. A few weeks ago an athletic meet was held in the first court of this extensive place, so you can see how times are changing some of the old historical spots. When I was there in 1909 there was a bunch of brambles occupying the center round stone of the 'Altar to Heaven' but now there was nothing to prevent any one's stepping into the sacred circle – unless it was the broken piece of marble which some one had rolled there.

This week we are arranging for some Hallow e'en fun on Friday afternoon for the school children and we are to go out to tiffin on Saturday. We must get in a call at the American Embassy if we can arrange it with Mrs. Reinsch. We had planned to call on the day which has been her 'at home' day but heard that noon that none of the Embassies are having any stated 'at home' days and that we will need to make arrangements for any calls we wish to make. I expect this is directly the result of the war.

This last week we added three more scholars to our school and in a week or two we shall have two more- who are almost well now. Two of the three we received this week are the sons of the new advisor to the Chinese Government and the third is a little Australian girl. Our number now stands at 27. There is still one little girl very ill with a fever which is starting on its sixth week and shows no signs of abating. The doctors are puzzled and her mother is used up so that she has a trained nurse now. Her fever stays up above 100 degrees all the time.

To-day we have received an invitation to spend on Xmas vacation with the American Boarders up in Shansi. It sounds most alluring, and we shall think about it. To-day the 'Sentinel' came from Will-telling of Dr. Lathrop's experiences in getting home.-This is nearly my last sheet of writing paper and I fear my boxes were on that German ship which got laid off in Italian waters so I'll have to replenish my stock from out here. Lovingly-
Flora.

[This letter dated Oct. 25, 1914 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his daughter, Phebe. Mr. Eddy of the Eddy Evangelistic Campaign spoke at Willard's church that morning. He adds a little to each of his children. Letter donated to Yale in 2006 by Cynthia Elmer Amend.]

Foochow, China,

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

It is a very very pleasant task to sit down to answer your good letter that came this morning. The Training Conference for the Evangelistic Campaign began Thursday evening last. Our Annual Meeting closed last Tuesday evening. You know I am Moderator of that and chairman of the Fukien Evangelistic Campaign Comm. Thurs. evening I lead the opening of the Training Conference with a prayer meeting. I have been present at every meeting except the one this morning. Mr. Eddy spoke in our church this morning 88 signed cards expressing a desire to become Christians. This afternoon I had our address in the Che Giang Club before the Training conference on "Power for Service" Huk o gi guong-lik. Does that mean any thing to you or to mama or to Gould?

I was too busy to get at your letter till after supper this evening. I planned to go to the meeting this evening, but I'm too tired. I've your letter- all about the Chataugua, the visit to B-port and Shelton, the moving, and this is the only word I've had about that, and the opening of school and the Tank Home letter and the new white satine (?) skirt. I'm greatly interested and pleased to hear that Gould has taken a S.S. class. I was Superintendent of the Huntington S.S. when I was twenty. I shall pray for you Gould and shall be much with you in spirit in helpful sympathy. How did you come out in Latin last term? Phebe says you are pessimistic about your S.S. class. Better let other people to the pessimising- if there's such a word. Save all your strength for good hard aggressive work on the road to success.

Is that weenty, teenty little girl almost too little to go to Kindergarten two years ago when I left home, already in the 2nd grade? Good for you Kathleen. And Dorothy in the eighth grade- that means High next year does it not? I must close now at 9:30 and get to rest. I'll finish this and mail it for the next steamer. Dear Mama's good letter came last Tuesday or Wed. and I answered it at once- partly because I feared today might be too busy to get it all in, and partly because I was so overjoyed to hear that you were all well after such along gap in news. It seems to me a very long time since either Miss Marjorie or Miss Kathleen have written me. I'll not say "Babies" and see if that will bring a letter. One of our teachers last year told his students (who were his fellow students only a few years before) that they must not call him by his given name, and if they said "Mister" his name must have the Mandarin pronunciation- if they gave it the Foochow pronunciation they must not say "Mister" but must add Sing Sung. So I'll have to try Miss Marjorie and Miss Kathleen.

Prof. Robertson gave his first lecture in the Campaign this morning before some 2000 Mission school students and Christians. He repeats the lecture this afternoon and again this evening for non-Christians and officials.

Yesterday morning Mr. Eddy spoke to the Foochow College boys. At the after meeting 88 signed cards to become Christians. The best teacher of English which we have in the College is a fine Christian man- graduated four years ago from this College- but his father is an official's secretary in Amoy,-an earnest Confucionist and commands his son here not to unite with the church. I have written the people in Amoy and they are working with him. I am asking God every day to remove this hindrance so this teacher may unite with the church. His influence will be so much better, - and he will be so much happier himself.

It gives me courage and strength to know that over in Putnam I have a dear, sweet wife and five dear loving daughters and a dear loving son who are praying for me. It helps me to keep near to God and near to them, to commit them by name- each one to His loving care each morning and evening. I am trying to make it possible for God to answer your prayers for me and I know each of you is doing all possible to help God answer my prayers for you.

Most lovingly your father Willard L. Beard

Foochow, China Oct. 29th. 1914.

Dear Mother and all the rest of the Shelton Home Folks:-

My letters have been sent to so many different places during the past few weeks that I wonder how many finally fetch up at the Century Farm.

Nov. 1st. This is the way with my letter writing. I begin and am called of and it is days before I can get at it again. The last three weeks have been specially strenuous with the Annual Meeting of the mission and then the Evangelistic Campaign coming right on top, each with three meetings a day. These are now over and the out of port men gone leaving a lot of extra work for those of us who are to conserve the results. Sherwood Eddy has done good work here. Last Wed. 1600 plus men signed cards saying that they wished to study the Bible to learn what Christianity was and who Christ was and is. Yesterday most of these came again and were organized into Classes. I have the names of 164 students from one college. We shall divide these into four or more classes. The classes will meet in the Government College where the students are. This is a great advance step. It is surprising that the government authorities will allow Christian men to come into their schools and teach the Bible to their students. [handwritten later] This has now been vetoed (Nov. 16)

It is a tremendous task as you can easily see to provide instructors for 2000 men who know almost nothing about the Bible. And this work must be done by men who have their time full already, beside the students there are 140 business men who have asked to be taught the Bible. The Governor and all the highest officials listened to Eddy as he told them that the only help for China was the unconditional surrender of the individual to Jesus Christ.

Nov. 16th. There is no use in trying any excuse. The dates on this tell the whole story. And I do not even have the excuse of too many apples to pick or to eat or to market.

Last week Ruth's good letter on the typewriter came and I sent it right on after reading it twice to Flora and Mary. It made me proud of your attainments as a Typist, if this was really your first attempt with the machine, and it almost discouraged me, for when I think of my work and put it beside your first trial I am put completely to shame.

The Evangelist work goes on in the province. The last we have heard there were 5700 men who had definitely asked to join Bible classes. The real hard work now begins. I am meeting one class once a week. Each week for the last two months I have met the Bible class leaders for a talk on principles or methods. This has been very pleasant but it has been very hard work, much like getting up a sermon a week.

Nov. 18th Results are coming in all the time and from different parts of the province now. Today the figures amount to over 6000. In one city the highest official, the one next to the highest and three Buddhist priests are in a Bible class. The Salt Commissioner for the province, who is one of the highest officials in the province, has let it be known that he is a Christian and that he intends to unite with the church. The head of the river police for the province, another high official, was at a dinner in a missionary's home last evening and for three hours kept the conversation on the line of Christianity, declaring that China's only hope was in the Christian religion. The whole province is agitated as never before by this campaign.

Last Sunday twenty eight united with the church here. One was a man 72 years old. He has been in connection with the church for nearly twenty years, but it took this time of special interest to bring him over the line and into the church. Another was a student in a government school. He was brought into a Bible class at the time of the meetings last year and has stuck to it until this year he joins the church. The others were students of this college. It is not necessary to add that it was a happy day for me and for many others. The only member of the senior class not a church member joined, and one other from the higher classes. Several more are holding back until next time.

The grippe has been going its rounds for a month or more. It gripped me last week Monday. I kept up and did my work until Thursday. I kept quiet until supper time, then got up. Friday I was up for dinner and taught in the afternoon. Saturday I was able to do my work as usual. Sunday I preached and conducted Communion and baptized the 28 who were received into the church. It was a two hours service and was some tiring. I have been at work even since but its no fun. Yet I am getting a little better each day. The Chinese have also had it and they fare worse than we. Three schools have lost two boys each. My college has thus far come off easy. We have had a few boys unwell but only a few and nothing serious yet.

Thanksgiving is almost here. I shall think of you and of the dinner and shall see the table full and shall long to be there. Your thoughts well be very broad that day. Even as they fly toward the far east the angle will be of many degrees. It would be exceeding pleasant to all be together each year once, but I doubt very much if in real satisfaction we would be the gainers. We must realize that whatever success any one member of the family has is the success of all. And I sometimes think the biggest share should go to those of you at the center - in the home at Long Hill.

Do you know it gave me a homesick feeling to hear that the old school house had been moved and put to other purposes. There was always a soft spot in my heart for the old building where I set bent pins, and flirled water from a wet sponge over the slates of the other scholars and got the girls to eat flag root just as they were going in from recess and stole the notes that Ginnie Booth wrote to Fred Ellis and then had my hair nearly pulled out of my head by him to pay for the fun, and played "Keelie Over" etc. etc.

I sent Ruth's neckless some time ago. I trust it reached you all right. The cost to me was 70 cents silver, 35 cents gold. But don't mind about that. I tell you only that you may collect it from the jeweler. One of the jewelers in Putnam ruined Ellen's four metal chain and did not have the grace to even remit his charge for his blunder.

I am afraid this will compare with Ruth's attempt so favorably for HER that she will write all the time on the machine just to show off. I hope so, and please forgive my long silence. I will try to never do it again. I'll send a short letter if I cannot get off a long one.

Very much love to all. And I may as well say a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year, for these dates will be along before we know it. With half the human family tearing each other in pieces it will be a serious Christmas. But Christ reigns and God is working out His purposes even in this seemingly unholy war.

Lovingly,
Will

Nov 1, 1914

Dear Ones at Home,

We have had four rainy days this week and only one really clear one. On Monday we walked down in Teng Shih Kou to complete arrangements for our Friday party. It rained hard Tuesday so we rested at home. On Wednesday it was partly clear so we went for a brief stroll, but I was in school until nearly 6.30 as I had the children make invitations for their mothers for the party. Thursday was very rainy but it cleared almost 6.00 on Friday morning. As it stayed clear and the sun came out, we were able to have our party out of doors as planned. We had a luncheon here that noon with Dr. and Mrs. Hubbard, the pastor of the Union church, and two Chinese couples as guests. All of the four Chinese were American educated and both wives were American born. Mrs. See is here as guest and is a most fascinating little woman. These women who have studied at our home colleges are most delightful. Mrs. See is almost a stranger in her own land and was telling of a wedding which to her was a great novelty. At our party we first had children exchange coats and put on paper faces then march around the compound and come back to pin the tail on a black cat or hit a bag of peanuts blindfolded. Then they went across the compound to play a game while some of the ladies and I hid peanuts in the grass, trees, ferns etc. The children in Flora's room had learned some songs so they sang some of them. In one a brownie and some witches were mentioned so my children were dressed to play those parts. After the songs we served sandwiches and cookies which Mrs. Burgess's cook had made for us- and Mrs. Stelle furnished tea. Then we turned the children loose to hunt peanuts.

That evening we all went over to the Y.M.C.A. to a juggler show. The juggler is quite a famous one and he certainly was good. He had three little boys who helped him.

Yesterday I washed my small pieces to save laundry bills. At eleven Mrs. Grant's carriage called to take us out to West City for tiffin. It is a most interesting ride and most of it was through new territory for us. On one street there was a county fair to which all of the country people had brought their produce. There were baskets, chickens, ducks, old iron, fruit, Chinese food etc., etc. We did not at first recognize the street on our return because it was so deserted. Mr. Grant is engraver for the government Bureau of Engraving and designed the stamp which carries this letter. Also the paper money. The compound is a lovely large one but most unkempt looking. Now the only other foreign family is the Wilders who rent one of the houses. The Grants have some wonderful curios; one handsome carved table, several chairs, fine coats, embroidered pictures, rugs, etc.

Today we went for dinner to the Lowry's at the Methodist Compound. It has rained all day steadily and is still at it. One keeps dry though in a rickshaw with the top up and a rubber sheet in front over our feet and legs. Mrs. Lowry has seven children here and one at home. Five of them are in our school. They are a unique family. Mrs. Lowry makes quite a business of selling the Chefoo drawn work and handles from $6000 to $10000 worth each year. Some of it is grand indeed. I want one of her embroidered crepe-de chine dresses. One was $45 Mexican and contained enough for a dress and a waist if not for two dresses. The others were higher priced but not more handsome. Tomorrow we plan to go up to [unreadable word] (the Presbyterian Compound) to see a sale of embroideries. The Manchu ladies were left penniless and unable to earn anything so the Pres. ladies started this embroidery work and every year they sell it. We will buy something as it is beautiful and is a good cause besides.

We are still keeping warm by grate fires. This morning Mr. B went down to start the furnace and the grate broke when he shook it. He is going to start the fire there as soon as it is fixed.

Mr. Hall next door had an operation on his throat yesterday. The hospital was so cold and damp, that they brought him home today. There is so much sickness about now and all of the people with nose or throat trouble are being operated on as a fine specialist has just come out. We are glad not to be of the number.

We both send love

Mary.

[Nov. 11, 1914]

Dear folks at home:-

This week is half done before I get to our home letter- for it is Wednesday, Nov. 11, as I write this. To-day I have started home two pictures of the gold brocade and I find that I cannot afford to sell them at $5 for it will cost all that by the time the duty is paid at your end. Please charge $7.50 each at least and if you can get it $10 is not too much. They are rare curios for they have been known here for only since the Revolution. If no one wants the pictures pin them up in the parlor or pack them away where they will not get harmed until I get home. I am going to send to Miss Brewster some of the drawn work insertion she has so long wanted to get, and she may pay you. I have her letter and tell her I'll answer it soon, but if she wants me to get things for her I shall be glad to do so and have her pay you for it is getting pretty nearly time for me to be getting some money into the opposite side of my account with you people at home. I wish you would send me an account of my debits (and credits if any) at the first on Jan. 1915.

The weeks go by with just as great a rapidity as they do at home and it seems to me that I leave undone about as many things as ever but I am not so completely 'squeezed dry' when Friday night comes, I find.

Last Saturday Mary and I went to a mission sale of embroideries and then we went to a Chinese fair where all sorts of curios were for sale. We purchased two saucers of blue and white china- the design a five toed dragon. This week on Monday after school we attended the Mothers Club meeting and heard some interesting papers and discussions on how to treat the subject of 'Fear' with children. Afterwards we called on a lady whom we met in Kyoto, who has come over here for a trip. Yesterday we dined with Dr. and Mrs. Ingram and then went to the A.B.C.F.M. prayer-meeting. To-day we called on Mrs. Reinsch (the wife of the U.S. Minister) and Mrs. Willoughby (the wife of the U.S. Advisor to the Chinese Government). Both families have children in our school. The Willoughbys are still living at the hotel but the Reinschs have a whole house at the Legation. The reception hall would hold the whole of Ben's house and the state drawing room must be nearly as large as our whole house. Mrs. Reinsch was not at home so we had a call with her mother who speaks English with a very decided German accent. She showed us the suite of state rooms and some of the wonderful rugs and statuary. Most of the furnishings are provided for by the U.S. government, as they would have to be when the salary is as usual as it is. To-morrow we go to see our real school for the rest of this year. We are to be in a Chinese house which has been used as a club house by the International Tennis Club. This means that we are to have a good play ground too. The tennis club now occupies other quarters. We hope to be in our new compound after Thanksgiving. On Saturday we are to have tiffin with Dr. and Mrs. Dilley of the Pres. Mission, after which we are to visit the Lama Temple near by. Mr. and Mrs. McCann of Paoting-fu have invited us to spend Thanksgiving with them so we have accepted. It will be a fine trip and a welcome break in our work, as well as an opportunity to see some American Board mission work. Paoting-fu is a great place for brass so I expect to bring some back with me.

We are feeling very relieved that Tsing-tao has fallen with so little bloodshed for all sorts of rumors have been flying about that the Germans were going to blow up their houses and were to resist to the last man. The war news here consists of an equal number of telegrams from each side of the conflict and so arranged that each time is either refuted or checkmated. The papers from home-though a month old are the most satisfying to read.

Yesterday's paper told of the sinking of the 'Emden' a little German gun boat that has sunk over twenty merchantmen of the Allies. It has been very daring in its attacks. It went into Penang flying a Russian flag. Its crew boarded a Russian steamer lying at the dock, blew her up and got out of the harbor before she could be chased. Sometimes she had four funnels and sometimes less, and her color was never two times alike so that she did a lot of damage. It is said that she always allowed the conquered crew to land taking them herself if necessary. There were seventy ships hunting for her so the Germans have lost one good fighter. I have been wondering if my boxes are on any of the sunken merchantmen but some one here has said that the June shipment is on a German boat now in Italy waiting for the war to end. We are wondering when we may see our belongings. It was a fortunate day for Mary that her boxes did not get to Boston in time to go with mine.

If any one is thinking of Xmas presents for us tell them that such needful things as tooth brushes, whisk brooms, pins, etc., will be much the best kind to send to us.

Here is an incident in the annals of Pres. Yuan, which has deepened the confidence of the foreigners here in Peking. There is a law on the Chinese statutes that any official who has been found guilty of receiving bribes over $500 shall suffer for the crime by the loss of his head. There was an official here, who was caught at the deed, and owned that he had done things worthy of the punishments. He was tried, but the judge in speaking the judgment said it so low that the prisoner did not hear it. He expected to be deported. He was invited to a dinner, was taken to it in a carriage by the judge, and after the dinner was invited to ride during which he was to know his fate. The judge took him to the execution ground, Pres. Yuan sent the family $1,000 to defray the funeral expenses. To the foreigners this seems to prove that the head of this republic wishes to destroy the evil of his country even if it is deservingly found in his friends. He has depended on this man, but did not excuse him- though he may have been doing it until he was thoroughly convinced- in the final punishment. He has showed his friendship not only by the gift but by going no farther in his punishment than the culprit. The family feared the extinction of itself. I'm at the end of my second sheet so-with love to you all- I am- yours- Flora Beard.

In 1914, the German cruiser Emden tricked her victims. Most German cruisers of its type had three funnels. Because British cruisers had four, the Emden's Kommandant von Muller had a fake funnel made of wood and canvas. In this way, the potential victim would think they were being approached by a friendly British ship.

Dear Ones at home,-

We have no type writer but we can have type writing paper, and it is the cheapest kind we can get too. Ruth's letter was a puzzler until we opened it as I knew I had no correspondent who used a type writer. We are glad you have it and here is the best of success to it and the genealogy. Bessie's engagement was a joy and surprise. I shall write Bess to come out here on her wedding trip once the beaten path for honeymooners (Europe) is cleared. The Pacific is safe now that the Emden is sunk and Tsing Tao has fallen. I am glad that the School home is moved also that it is being useful once more.

We have our building for our school rented at last and now expect to move in the Monday after Thanksgiving if not before. It is a Chinese home of five gen (rooms). They will take out partitions and make ten large rooms for school rooms, one small one for a dining room and another for a toilet. Formally the Tennis Club had the grounds and had three courts there. We plan to have one Tennis Court, a Basket Ball court and plenty of play room besides. On Monday after school we went to the Mother's Club at Mrs. Fall's. The subject was The Fears of Childhood and there were two very good papers and some interesting discussion also. Afterwards we went to call on Miss Wakefield when we had met in Kyoto Japan at Miss Smith's. She had been in Peking a week when we first saw her at church last Sunday. She was leaving Monday evening for Hankou.

On Tuesday we worked after school until 5.30 then had a caller and afterward had to hurry to dress to go out to dinner. We went to Mrs. Ingram's and afterward to Prayer Meeting there at Teng Shih Kou. The subject was Sabbath keeping and the necessity of changing from the old strict laws to something in keeping with the times. For instance, one man spoke of a Chinese merchant who became a Christian. The Christian thought he ought to close his place of business on Sunday and did so. As a result, the employees had no where to go on Sunday (they were non-Christians and very unready to hear Christ preached) except the drinking houses, gambling houses, etc. That Christian considered his subject well and finally reopened his establishment to protect his men from the snares of an evil life. Several similar instances were cited and plenty of food for thought was given us but no decision as to exact methods by which all should keep the Sabbath.

On Wednesday we went out debt paying and book collecting once more. On Thursday we dressed in our best and made two calls, one at the American Minister's house and another on the wife of the American Advisor to President Yuan. We have children of [unreadable word] in school. On Friday we made one more attempt to exhaust the calling list at the Methodist Compound. We were late in starting so made only three calls. I got dressed first so walked down and Flora came later in a rickshaw and arrived just after I did. I love to walk and Flora dislikes it, so I shall try that method again. It serves two purposes with me, saves my coppers and gives me the much needed exercise.

Yesterday was cloudy and very windy. But for the wind I should have walked to Erteow where we went for tiffin with Mrs. Gilly (Presbyterian). We found a party of eight of us and had a most enjoyable visit. Mrs. Gilly has four lovely children and I held the baby of eight months for a long time after lunch. He is good as can be and loves to play. Muriel aged 2 1/2 loves to march and keeps step beautifully. She raises both arms high and waves them so she looks as though she were trying to fly. From Mrs. Gilly's five of us ladies went to the Flame temple and Confucian Temple, then down to Teng Shih Kou where Mrs. Stelle served tea. Then we walked home. Last evening I trimmed my brown velvet hat and I think it quite a success. I will take a picture of it on me someday. After that we played 500 with Mrs. Burgess for awhile. The Hama temples and grounds seem depressing and unkempt. The entering court was hung with long strings of rags to ward off the evil spirits. The priests were chanting and some of the tones are very deep and musical. They keep it up two or more times. The faces were expressionless and the men and boys all fat and flabby looking. The Buddah is a huge figure seventy five feet high and correspondingly big every way. He holds a lotus in his left hand and there are carved wooden lotus plants on the altar. They chant in Tibetan and the barrel prayers are in Tibetan. They are a round barrel of brass or caned wood with the characters of the prayer on them. Instead of saying the prayer they rotate the barrel. The whole place is of ill repute and a man or a gray haired lady is necessary to assure[assurance?] unpleasant remarks and treatment. The Confucian Temple is definitely beautiful and quiet. The feeling of antiquity is there. There are tablets for each year's student who took the brightest examinations. Tablets for all of the 400 books of Confucius and Temples for the worship of Confucius. The old Confucian tablet had Chinese on one side and Manchu on the other so now that has been destroyed and a new one with only Chinese on it erected. The apparatus in the temples for Confucius have the center of the steps on incline because the spirits can not climb steps. At the main Confucian temple yesterday that incline was one solid block of marble about 6 X 20 feet and deeply carved with the dragon. There were similar blocks (not one piece) at the Temple of Heaven.

Yesterday we had a sewing woman who darned our stockings to date and did a lot of other sewing and mending. She was Mrs. Burgesses amah for Junior during his short little life. Mrs. Burgess says the woman always speaks of Junior as "our Baby." Mrs. Burgess has had a severe cold this week and finally gave up and went to bed for a day. Now she is much better. Mr. Burgess went to Tientsin to speak last night and returned this morning to look after his Bible Classes. [See note after letter dated May 15, 1915 regarding the Burgess baby.]

We are both all O.K. I wonder if your mail comes any where near regularly. We try to write every week, taking turns. As boats from Japan are most irregular now we find our mail delayed often and I suppose yours is too.

With lots of love from us both,

Mary.

[Nov. 22, 1914]

Dear folks at home:-

The weeks go by as rapidly as even at home. Sunday is our quietest day and that is seldom long enough. Last Monday we walked to a place where every tenth day there is a Chinese "fair"- a place where all the shopkeepers and curio venders come and display their goods on the ground. I purchased a pair of those carved brass bars that are used for paper weights. They have a beautiful bamboo design on them. Tuesday was our day "at home" and only a few callers came so we had a nice visit among ourselves. Mrs. Reinsch (the American Minister's wife) returned our call, which we had made about a week before. On Wednesday I went with a friend outside the city wall, where all the shops are, - to accompany her for some Christmas shopping. Just at sundown all the shopkeepers spread their wares on the walks in front of the shops, so we spent some time looking at the display, but we couldn't find anything we wanted to buy and we had to ride home after dark to pay for our stay. Thursday afternoon Mrs. Burgess had a number of ladies in to make garments to send to the Belgian refugees. We sewed until 6 P.M., and then went out to dine with Mr. and Mrs. Aiken. Mr. Aiken is one of the Bible translators- I think the American Board member. There is a group of men, one from each mission, which has been at work now for more than a year at the translation. Mr. and Mrs. Aiken live in a Chinese house, and we enjoyed seeing it. These Chinese houses are arranged around three sides of square courts (usually stone paved). The fourth side is a stone wall separating the courts but connected by a doorway. The drawing room and dining-room are facing the wall and the sleeping rooms are in the side wings. One has to go out of doors always to go to bed. A guest often has to go into the adjoining court to go to the spare room. On Friday afternoon we went calling down at the M.E. Compound. There are sixty people living there so we usually owe some one a call.

The crowning even of the week was Saturday's visit to the Forbidden City. We evidently could have visited more courts than we did for the guards told us when we could go. We went through several gates and saw at least four courts. There were several beautiful huge jardinière-shaped bronze or brass caldrons- for they were large enough to hold at least two barrels of water- standing about, and there was a white marble sun dial still doing duty. We felt the stillness and desolation so strongly that almost simultaneously we mentioned it to each other. In some of the courts there was only the guard in view. One of the palaces was evidently the store house for the treasures that are being brought and put on view, for there were a dozen or more men busy with dozens of packing boxes- taking things out. We could see the wrappings only. We shall go again when we can spend some time in roaming about through the further courts. The buildings are arranged in exact balance. The same number and the same sized on each side. Our real destination was the museum of treasures that have been brought down from the late Empress's palace in the Western Province- where she fled in 1900.

I never expect to see more beautiful or wonderful treasures. The stories of Marco Polo, or even Aladdin's Lamp could not exceed what these exemplified. There must have been more than a hundred pots of flowers. The pots were of rare cloisonné, of jade, or old gold lacquer, or remarkable china. Some of them had a row of jewels around the top. The flowers or fruit were made of jade, and other semi-precious stones. The designs and colorings are worthy [of] everything the English language can produce to describe, unique, rare, and exquisite taste and workmanship. In another hall were wonderful old Kakemonos [a banner or wall-picture] of great beauty and interesting scenes. I cannot describe them to you for I have never seen any such things before and of course these cannot be found in any catalogues. We saw whole cases of the most wonderfully carved jade house ornaments, several different kinds of celadon ware, and wonderfully designed both in shape and decorations. We saw a little dish of grapes made perfect in color by means of the different colored crystals and jade for the leaves. There were vases set in rubies, diamonds, emeralds, sapphires, and turquoise, with the most exquisite miniatures painted on medallions set in on the sides. There were small ornaments carved out most delicately of ivory and painted so that they were really pictures. This will be as long a description as I am sure you will care to read, but I can't do the subject justice anyway.

Mary and I are arranging to have the American Board at Boston send father a check of $50 to reimburse him for the many expenses we have each been to him- or are going to be. (I will not arrive before Feb.)

I have not yet heard anything authentic about my boxes, but feel rather dubious about ever seeing them again. A gentleman who was having some things shipped out at the same time by the American Board says they were sent by a German vessel and that vessel is now lying in an Italian port, where it will stay until the end of the war. If, possibly, they had been sent by an English S.S., it would be a miracle to have it escape the little 'Emden', which sunk so many merchantmen in these Eastern waters. I need my books so much, and our bedding. We are using Mrs. Stelle's bed linen and we have bought a few towels. I hate to give a whole dollar for a bath towel that can be bought for a quarter in America.

I am enclosing some Chinese quince seeds for you to plant. The fruit here is about four times as large as the home ones and more delicate in taste, but is very easily made into preserves and jelly. The Chinese scorn them and do not like to cook them for the foreigners. The shape does not suggest quince at home for it is long and about the same size all the way down. Will Ruth please send me a copy of that hand lotion made from quince seeds? Mine is in the box we sent to Boston in August. The weather, the water, and the chalk dust plays havoc with skin out here.

We are to receive our thirtieth pupil on Monday and there are still two more on the horizon.

Mary and I go to Paoting-fu to spend Thanksgiving with Mr. and Mrs. McCann. We hope on our return to move our school into the quarters we are to occupy for the rest of the year. We have a fine large play ground for the International Tennis Club formerly had their courts there. We are to have the courts rolled and use one for our own tennis or basketball.

With love to all-
Flora Beard.

Foochow, China. December 13, 1914.

Dear Phebe and Stanley:-

This is just to begin a letter to you tonight the last thing before going to bed- to say that a mysterious package came in the mail a few days ago. I did not think that it might be a kind of busting machine, but I did have to taste before I could tell what it was and no one else has been able to tell the name of the queer black substance. We had a pie this noon, so it is going the way of all good dried pumpkin.

Your last good letter came Dec. 7th= no I mistook Phebe K. for Phebe M. That makes the date of the arrival of your letter Mon. 28th= Sat. after Thanksgiving. I ate Thanksgiving dinner with Dr. and Mrs. Cooper and played Bunco after dinner which was in the evening. We had school the same as other days. I shall be as interested as ever to hear about the Thanksgiving at home- With Fords (long distance) and Buicks and Mitchells etc I'm afraid the trolleys and R.R.s will not get much this year. Your trip to Pearle River from Shelton in the Ford was most interesting. No tell Edith [probably 3 year old Edith Louise Beard, niece of Willard and daughter of Willard's brother, Bennett Nichols Beard] I wouldn't like to drink the soap [or soup?]. Good night.

Tempus fugits [Time flies] worse this year than ever before. This letter has been on my desk since a week ago yesterday. I've seen it everyday. But "nothin' doin'" in the line of letter writing. The Evangelistic campaign keeps up in fine shape. Over 1000 men have been in Bible classes and the weekly average is about 600. All goes well in College- enough evil in some of the boys to enable one to trace their ancestry to Adam, and keep some of us in the science of patience, tact and firmness to straighten out their quarrels. Christmas is in the air and the ten and over churches in this vicinage are after all the foreigners to attend all the different church exercises. There are to be about five meetings of various kinds here in connection with the College and church and we foreigners are to have a tree I believe. We had to put our mission dinner on Wed. to get in without conflict. I know you will be well taken care of in Peking- or will it be Tungchow.-I'm writing to Flora and Mary. How is a man with five sisters, five daughters, five nieces all Beards beside a lot on the other side of the house to be expected to keep them all distinct in his mind? That is complimentary isn't it- after messing you up with my daughter and then with other sisters. The fact is my mind or conscience bothers me for I've also had on my desk a letter addressed to Flora. It's staring at me now.

Another good interesting letter came from you Dec. 11th. I'm very sorry to hear about Olive. You do not hint at the cause or the name of her trouble.

I am looking any day for a letter that will tell me about the Thanksgiving at home.

Saturday I had a great day. In the morning all went much as usual, - except that a lot of orders for printing came in and of course each wanted his done first and I had to just lay them on my desk and go to dinner at 11:30 a.m. (I have printed over 2000000 pages this year.) At 12 pm Hodous, Neff and I started for Cieng Bang, five miles N.E. of the city. The day was a perfect one- bright, cool and the air bracing. At 1:45 we reached the church, found it full, and found three other foreigners there. It was a kind of joke on us all for we had thought each that he was to be the only foreigner there. When I was invited I received the thought that no one else could go. But we had a good time- a good audience of the best men in the place, a good bowl of vermicelli apiece and then a good walk home. I reached home at 5:30 wet with sweat and had just an hour for a bath and supper. Then in my chair for an hour's ride and a staff committee meeting from 7:30- 10:00. Then another hours ride and in my little bed. - Then up at 7:00 yesterday a.m. Prepare a S.S. lesson for a normal class at 9:00. Just as I was to start up I found I had prepared the wrong lesson. They had "The Ascension." I had prepared "The Reign of Peace" but the boys were none the wiser. At 9:45 I started for Ha Puo Ga. Mr. Ding's father's church- where he used to be- 3 miles, preached, conducted communion, and walked home, ate dinner 11:00 p.m.- got a nap, taught a class of 3rd yr boys in S.S.- then in to talk of plans for next years union work. He left at 6 P.M. - supper- C.E. at 7-8- E.E. Comm. meeting 8-8:30. Letters to wife and children and to bed.

Where I must go now- With lots of love to you both
Will.

[This letter, dated Dec. 17, 1914, was written from Peking, China by Mary to the Dear Ones at Home. They are beginning to move into their new school quarters. She reviews each day's activities throughout the week. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Ande..]

[Dec. 17, 1914]

Dear Ones at Home,-

I will begin with events of last Sunday even though Flora did write so late as to include some of them. We were at Tungchow last week and with Mrs. Sheffield. Mr. Smith (Dr. Arthur Smith author of several books on China) is certainly unique. He has a story for every occasion. Mrs. Smith is away in the country on a tour down near Paotingfu. We called on nearly every family in the line and visited specially with those left out after service. We saw both the new babies; the Love baby is a big, fat, jolly girl but Frances Frame is a wee little mite who has not yet gotten a good start in life. On Monday Flora and I went to our new school quarters to see about the possibility of moving up. We found sufficient furniture to accommodate my pupils but very little for the little mites. As a consequence we opened session on Tuesday afternoon by going bag and baggage up to the new room. It took over half an hour to get us moved but our new quarters were quite inspiring with the newness and sunshine and airiness. The big playground is a joy and the children run there to their hearts content.

On Monday evening three soldiers appeared to play Base Ball. Miss Haas, a YWCA Secretary, just arrived to study the language, came up also. We played until 9.30 when the soldiers had to leave. We gave them the chance of coming often and not having leave to stay out late, or coming less often and staying late. As they arrive at 7.30 we have two full hours for play.

On Thursday we made two calls, then I went to a committee meeting while Flora made another call. Miss Vandershire, Miss Crane and I were chosen to decorate the Christmas table and plan the games afterward. We are going to have some music as several of the party are thus gifted; then we have the company (32 or 34) divided into from groups and each is to give a charade. We end with a Virginia Reel as that has been the custom for several years. We have another meeting to decide the decorations.

On Wednesday Mable Galt came in and cooked till nearly six. I was just going out with her when Mrs. Burgess reminded me of the Chinese dinner at 6.15. I sent Mable home in a ricksha and hastened back to dress. There were 28 of us and we had one good time. The food was good and it was fun to eat with chop sticks. If we keep on, we will become adepts in the art. I can even eat rice if I stick it together a little with some thick soup on some of the strange but good mixtures of meats, vegetables, greens, etc. They had some most delicious walnuts and peanut candies; in which the nut was rolled in sugar (probably a thick sugary syrup.)

On Thursday I rode home with the Lowry girls to play Volley Ball with them. First I had a cup of tea with Mrs. Lowry and Mrs. Grant, then went out to play. Everyone comes out and sides are chosen with an attempt to divide men and ladies evenly. That night the older ones had to leave early for a five o'clock Prayer Meeting but there were ten of us who stayed on. It was a sight worth seeing to watch the students march through from the college grounds in the rear to the chapel at the front. There are over a thousand of them counting big and little.

On Friday the furniture for Flora's kiddies arrived from Tungchow about noon so work was interrupted. We stayed to straighten things out at noon. After school we had to stay because the library of the Mother's Club was being moved up and the carpenters were there to replace the doors of the bookcase. Some of the volumes will prove useful to us I am sure. It was 4.45 before we got home but we dressed and started calling about 5.30. We owed Mrs. Lowry a dinner call so went there first. Then we started for the Legation and stopped at Hartungs for some films I had left on Monday morning. We were told that Mrs. Reinsch was out but met her as we went back to our rickshas so returned with her. We had tea and Mrs. Mosher came in before we left, also two legation men. A wind had arisen while we were at Mrs. Lowry's and the dust was very bad indeed. Everyone tells us that this is only a promise of what is to come.

Yesterday we put up the Christmas decorations at school. Flora had two rolls of Christmas crepe paper, one a series of fireplaces with a little tot in front the other a series of reindeer sledges and steeples. One is in each room. The children made yards of festoons of green and red circles which we have fastened along the side where the windows are. Then the Teng Shih Ku'er[?] children who were helping us, made more and festooned the beams.

This morning I sat perusing my Nov. 2 Digest when a note arrived asking me to assist Mrs. Hall in entertaining four men at dinner this noon. I accepted and quite enjoyed the fun.

By the way, will father please send $4.50 to the Literary Digest for me. My subscription runs out in February. Let it continue to come to Tungchow, Peking China as now, after August 1, 1915 but change the address to Peking China, YMCA until Aug. 1. I have not had the address changed as I thought I would wait until my subscription was due.

My subscription to the National Geographical Magazine, Hubbard Memorial Hall, Washington, D.C. is also due (this Nov. I fear). That will be $3.00 as I am a member of the Association.

Flora and I purchased the luncheon set for Bessie yesterday. We could get only two sizes in doilies but think the whole thing quite well matched and pretty. It cost $10.60 silver and we recurred[?] that at a tentative rate it would be $4.50 gold. Gold vacillates from $2.30- $2.45 these days with an occasional $2.50 or $2.60. We think that

($1) one gold dollar is about our share so please credit me on father's account with $3.50. If ever exchange goes down, I shall send father some more but with the present rate it would be better to draw on my account at home. If father wishes that please write.

I was ever so glad to get the memorandum books. It was like a long lost friend come to light. This week I received two Christmas remembrances. Will's was the first, ten days ago. That was a box of tea.

Look for the luncheon set soon after this letter but not with it. That must be registered and I shall needs send for blanks as we used all we had.

We are looking for your Thanksgiving accounts. What is Olive's trouble? Your accounts sound more like tubercular trouble than anything else. Is it that?

We are both very well. I feel O.K. when I take my daily walk. Flora does not need the walking, so I generally start ahead and she follows in a ricksha. But we arrive together. With lots of love for the new year.

Dear folks at home:-

It seems as though it were one week instead of two since I wrote- the days go by so fast. This week we began by going to the monthly meeting of the 'Mother's Club', which this time was held at the home of a young English woman. These meetings are half formal and the other half a tea and discussion. The mothers are quite free in the discussion and sometimes very good points come out. They also have an 'exchange' at each meeting when people have an opportunity to buy clothing or anything some one has which they wish to turn into cash. Last week a chiffon waist and a winter coat were sold.

Tuesday was our day 'at home' and we had a busy time this week for there were nearly two dozen callers. It was nearly seven o'clock when the last one went.

Wednesday was a red letter day for me for my Arithmetic arrived from United States which means that the drudgery of copying is over.

Thursday evening we entertained seven U.S. soldiers. It has come to be a weekly visit by them and I believe it is time well spent. They certainly do have a good time and we know that one evening has been with right influences. Next week they are going to play for us - for most of these men belong to the band.

On Friday evening was the event of the season- so far. The Friday Club had an evening meeting with Dr. and Mrs. Reinsch at the American Legation. It certainly was a brilliant affair in every way. The gowns were as gorgeous and some of them as low as the most fastidious could wish, but when it came to the display of mental gems, I never witnessed one greater. Brains are the only aristocracy here. We had most delicious refreshments and reached home at 11.45 P.M. tired but content. Yesterday, I was too tired to do much so we just planned out some future work, and spent the afternoon calling.

This last week I started home some drawn-work. The two narrow pieces are each 30 cents per yd. and the other 50 cents per yard. Miss Brewster was trying to get some a year or so ago so she may still be wanting some. I think there are ten yards in all.- This week the cards came- for which you paid 80 cents. I do not think I need to ask for any favors this letter. We are living in hopes of seeing our boxes soon.

This morning we went up to the American Board Church to see the little Chinese children in their Xmas festivities. This coming week is to be full of doings for every one so that we grown-ups will hardly breathe until after the 20th.

We are to begin our Xmas vacation the 24th and it will last until the Monday after New Year's. During that time I must get out the prospectus for our next year's school plans, for people are already enquiring about admittance. There is a censoring committee whose unanimous vote is needed to get into the school, so that proceedings must follow the proscribed plan in order to make no complications. I am finding out the number of approved possible applicants from each mission, and then shall know about the number to prepare for. Next summer I am going to get out a course of study so arranged as to train all children in the primary studies so that they will naturally fit into our school when they are old enough to come.

Yesterday I sent off the patches (mother cut and gave me) to Mrs. Hubbard at Paoting-fu. She would like more if you have them, so save your pieces.

I am enclosing some pictures of our school with Mary in the group. I have written on the back for whom I have sent them. Mary will send you a whole bunch of pictures in a few days.

With love-

[Late December 1914]

Dear Ones at Home,

Such a busy week! On Monday and Tuesday after school I had my older children stay and we made candy to serve on Wednesday. We had two chafing dishes and one dish to hold over the coals in a big stove like our dining room stove. We got ten ?? jars worth of peanuts, shelled and salted them. For the children, both those in the school and the visitors, we made little packages containing, animal crackers, fudge and peppermints. The one large lot of pull candy was the most popular of all the kinds we made. The children had songs and recitations which lasted about 45 minutes. Flora has trained her little people to do some fine singing. My children do not get much of that but they sang very well just the same.

On Thursday we did our Christmas shopping after first getting from our trunks such things as we already had on hand. Mr. Burgess let the boy go out to deliver packages on Thursday afternoon and again on Christmas morning for us.

Before coming to "the day" of the week, Mrs. Burgess decided last Sunday night to go with a party into Shansi for the holidays. Mr. Burgess goes on in two weeks to get her and will be gone one week. Mable Galt is coming to stay with us and act as interpreter if we need one. The soldiers had asked to bring a stringed quartet up to play for us on Tuesday so Mr. and Mrs. Guttery (YMCA) came for chaperone [Mr. and Mrs. Guttery became the parents of Jean Guttery in November of 1915. Jean Guttery Fritz is an author of many children's books. She wrote two books about living in China – Homesick; My Own Story and China Homecoming.]. They all came for dinner. One man played a zither such as Mr. Phenberg used to play; another had a guitar; a third a mandolin and the fourth a banjo. The zither player was ill so went home early, having played only once. The banjo man sang all sorts of songs with piano or stringed instruments for accompaniment but did not touch his banjo. Altogether it was a very enjoyable evening. Several Ching Hua people came in late in the evening and added their share to the entertainment.

On Christmas Day we did up packages first. Then I went to the "Market" at the end of our sidestreet or "Hutung" to get some Chinese candy for the servants, gateman here and at school. We did that up then went over to the Y.M.C.A. to see their exercises and tree for the children of the secretaries and servants. We did not stay until the end because I had to get home to make candy for dinner and Flora had to go up to school to get some decorations and put them up here. We had invited three guests for a 1.00 o'clock dinner. The dinner was quite a success. We had bean soup, bustard, potatoes, peas, cauliflower, corn, tea, ice cream and cookies, and candy.

The guests left at 3.00 and at 3.38 we were off for the orphanage. The YMCA was giving a gift to each child and Mr. and Mrs. Burgess had charge of it. It was a long ride and the homes were all open and the only heat a brazier brought in after we arrived. We were served with hot tea which helped some. We had to wait about half an hour before the children could be assembled as they were at supper. A band greeted us with much noise in perfect time but not tune. There were ten or twelve boys with two drums, fifes, flutes and accordions. The boys were lined up in two rows and soon the girls filed in and lined up opposite them. Each sang for us and sang well. Then Mr. Burgess spoke to them, telling the story of the Christ child and Mr. Cl?? (B's secretary) talked a few minutes. The giving of the gifts was the best for the children were so please and made such dear little bows as they came forward.

It was after six when we got back so we started at once to dress for our second Christmas dinner. I wore my grey silk and Flora her lace waist and white skirt. We all had dinner at Mrs. Stelle's (A.B.C.F.M.). There were 37 and we were at three tables; Mr. and Mrs. Stelle presided at one, Mr. and Mrs. Martin at a second and Mr. and Mrs. Ingram at the third. We had oyster soup from fresh oysters carried from Pei Tai Ho on Thursday. Then a huge Bustard was brought to each table and carved. The vegetables were mashed potatoe, onions, corn. Next came a fruit salad, most delectable; then a plum pudding with hard sauce. We topped off with pineapple ice, cookies and coffee. I had made little nut boxes of red paper in a five pointed star shape; Miss Mishe[?] had made green paper candle shades decorated with poinsettias and then with little Christmas trees made the decorations.

Our fun was at the "Ladies House" so we all got into our wraps and went over there. Miss Crane sang then the party divided into four groups and each gave one charade. According to the custom of several years we had a Virginia Reel and wound up with college songs. It was 11.30 when we said goodnight, but we got in a little before Mr. Burgess who was elsewhere for dinner.

Yesterday was "the day after" and we did precious little. In the afternoon we walked down Morrison Street and visited the Chinese shops. Flora got one small dish but I got nothing. I did up a box of clay images which represent familiar street scenes which I hope to get off this week for Mother's birthday. I will enumerate the contents as far as I can remember it:

- + A Peking cart
- + Two men playing chess

- + A man wheeling a cart with four baskets of water
- + A man wheeling a cart with two flower pots
- + A man carrying two bundles of straw
- A man carrying a small red box (probably food)
- A man riding a camel
- A man leading a horse across a bridge (not a Peking scene)
- A man rowing a boat
- A summer house
- A tiger
- An elephant
- A man carrying an animal home from a hunt

The ones with a cross are every day sights. The whole cost me about 50 cents silver but I am very fond of buying them. I got a new lot yesterday because I had packed all I had.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Wickes came for the night. Today Mr. and Mrs. Stafford of Shanghai arrived for several days sight seeing. Tomorrow evening we go to Tungchou for two days with the Galt family. We come back Thursday to get ready for Friday. On New Years Day all ladies receive and all men call on all the ladies. We have seven men invited to lunch. As Mrs. Burgess is away we are all going to lunch at Mrs. Halls and receive over here. We receive from 8 AM till everyone has called.

It is time for church and my news is running out so I will close.

The collar and cuff set arrived all O.K. It is a beauty and I do thank you very much. The people here treated us while on Christmas. Nearly every pupil sent a gift or greeting. We gave to the parents little pasteboard cases containing prints from pictures of the children at school. It was taken the first week so several were not in it but a later one was not possible on account of absences for chicken pox or scarlet fever.

With lots of love

Mary.

P.S. This is to tell Mother to pull the cotton out of the package with care so as to save whole such images as have withstood the journey.

Peking, Jan. 3, 1915

Dear folks at home:-

A great deal has been taking place each day of this past week. Last Sunday we wrote letters and visited with Mr. Burgess's guests. Mr. and Mrs. Wickes had come up from Tungchou the day before for Mrs. Wickes to give a lecture on some social problem to the Chinese Y.M.C.A. She had written out her lecture in English, translated it into Chinese, had it corrected by her teacher, and then read it over in the Chinese until she nearly knew it by heart. I did not hear it but, if no one else was benefited, she certainly had learned a fine lesson in the language. She has been studying for two years only, so it was something of an undertaking to talk to a Chinese audience of students – in their own language.

Monday we just spent the day getting ready to go down to Tungchou for a few days. As usual, we got to Tungchou and had left behind us some of the articles that we wanted, but we got along without them. In the evening, Mr. Corbett, the chairman of our school committee came in to talk over our 'prospectus' for next year's work, and we talked until after 10 o'clock, but it was a time of accomplishment for we planned the whole thing.

The next day, Mr. Galt, our host, took us all over our new building- clear to the attic. We had to go up and down chicken ladders, which are not the most ideal kind for dismounting. The floors are being laid and the baths are nearly all on, but the stairways must wait as they are being made of concrete, so as to have them fire proof. As long as they can have no fires in the building the cold weather will keep them from laying the concrete.

In the afternoon Mrs. Galt invited in all the ladies, so we served and drank tea, and had a good visit. The next morning Mary and I finished up the conference (begun with Mr. Corbett) with Mrs. Corbett, when we went over the list of needs for furnishings our school. It took nearly two hours. Then it was time to go to a Chinese meal with Mr. and Mrs. Porter. We had 'spring cakes' which are really pancakes arranged thus [her sketch shows one overlapping the other], filled down through the middle rolled up, with the bottom turned up to keep any juices from running out, and then eaten from the fingers. The filling is composed of many delectable vegetables, meats, nuts, etc., - a little of each, with a spread of Worcestershire sauce over the cakes, inside. They were really very tasty. One desert has rice (glutinous) balls fried in deep fat, with strawberry jam over them. It makes a very hearty meal and we were not a bit sorry to take a long walk out to the pagoda at the opposite side of the city. After walking nearly half the distance we climbed the city wall and had a fine view of the surrounding country- now all planted with wheat. It is planted in rows so it gives a corrugated appearance to the different patches as far as the eye can see. The wind had risen so that we had to hold on to our hats. We could see a dust storm away off, and when we reached the pagoda its bells were arraying and tinkling most musically. There are 176 bells on each story of the pagoda and there are 13 stories. When you multiply those two numbers you will know how many bells there should be on the pagoda [2,288]. There were many vacant places especially on the lower stories but we enjoyed the music of those left just the same.

On our way home we stopped to get a dollar's worth of the famous Tungchou malt candy. It took two baskets to hold our purchase and we are still eating on it. It looks like molasses candy but is wholly the product of millet. It is not only pleasant to eat but is really good for one.

That evening (Wed.) we spent with Mr. and Mrs. Galt, talking over plans for next year, so that it was after ten when we went to bed. We had to be up early for our train left at 7.30 A.M. We were on time and left Tungchou before the sun got above the horizon. We reached home before Mr. Burgess was up, but I don't blame him for sleeping late, both because it was vacation and because the furnace was broken, and the house was as cold as a barn. It got mended before noon so that with the grate fires we were comfortable.

Mary was busy making candy for New Year's and I made place cards and little boxes for salted nuts, to be used at our luncheon the next day. It took all day but we were ready for the day of the year. It is an old custom here for all the ladies to be at home all day, and for all the men to call on all the ladies. Our first callers came at 9.30 A.M. and they kept coming until nearly 1 P.M., when a few specially invited men went with us next door where we had a very lovely luncheon. The menu may interest you. It began with tomato bisque, then fish, followed by quail, then asparagus salad, ending with ice cream, coffee, nuts, and candy. We all came back to our house for receiving, and at 7.30 P.M. when our last guest departed we had received sixty men. One of the callers, Mr. Martin, brought us the good news that our boxes were here in Peking. They came up yesterday about 4 P.M. It does seem so good to have some belongings again. This morning we made up our beds with our own coverings, and I am sure they will sleep better, although I have no grumbles to make about my sleeping for it is years since I have slept as well as I have since I came to Peking. We are sleeping on our porch and it takes three nightgowns to keep me warm but I am sure it is a good thing to do.

I have never heard any thing from the one box we sent off to Boston, when we left. Have you had any word that it had been received? I am hoping to hear soon that you got the two silk pictures all right. You may sell them at any price over $5.50 each that people will give you.

We anxiously wait for further news of Olive. Annie Gilbert has written to each of us but not a word about Olive. Her illness is still a mystery to us.

To-morrow we begin our work again and the children really want to go to school again.- Love to all
 Flora Beard.

Foochow, China Jan 5th 1915.

Dear Flora and Mary:-

Yesterday's mail brought your good letters telling about Christmas and plans for New Years. Our mission dinner for Christmas was eaten on Wed. before Christmas at 5:30 p.m. at Miss Dornblaser's at Ponasang. Thirty of us present, four turkeys etc. After that we attended the Xmas exercises of the Girl's School- then daily for over two weeks. There were exercises in the various churches and schools. Christmas was never to my knowledge so much in the air as this year. We dedicated three new churches that have been purchased or built this past year, and ordained two men to the ministry during the Christmas season. I could not attend all the exercises in the various churches but every one I did attend was packed full and every one was unusually happy.

New Years was strenuous. Mr. and Mrs. Christian had invited friends in to watch the old year out. On that Thursday afternoon I had two strenuous Committee meetings, a hasty super, Rhetoricals at the College, social, prayermeeting, oversee the College Brass Band announce the beginning of the New Year, And Then! a home mail to which I sat down at 12:30 a.m. Jan. 1. I finished about 1:30 and got to bed to hear the clock strike 2:00. - Up at 7:00 a.m. and breakfasted with thirty boys waiting to give their New Year's greeting, in the parlor. This kept up till 11:00 a.m. - the boys and teachers coming in groups. They ate up about $10.00 of cakes and oranges. - At 11:00 a Committee meeting on Coll. Catalog. Dinner at 12:30. Over to Ponasang to a Reception to new and returned members of the mission- Mr. and Mrs. Belcher, Misses Ward (Ruth Ward Beach's sister) Cook and Miss Perkins.- Then over the river to dinner with Mr. Jones with a Committee and sat in Committee till 11:00 p.m. home at 12 midnight. And that's about the way it has been - not quite so late at night.

Rev. Cheng Ch'ing Yi Secretary of the China Continuation Committee took supper with me tonight. He lives in Peking, was a pastor of the London Mission. I gave him my card with your names on it. You will likely meet him some time.

You will have received papers re Ben's little pastime. I enclose now his letter and one from Kathleen. Do not return them. I pray for Olive [Willard's niece - his brother, Oliver Gould Beard Jr. 's daughter] and for her mother. It seems so far outside of human reason!! God keep, bless and use you.

I cannot thus far find out any thing about your goods.

Lovingly Will.

Flora do you remember giving me a pair of bed socks? They are perfectly "comfy". I gain many hours of sleep thru them. The photos of Peking came by last mail and I thank you Mary. That book is opened next frequently to my Bible. It is a source of never failing pleasure to me. Lovingly Will.

About the North China American School from the 1915-1916 Prospectus
[From the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

The North China American School is a union institution founded by the American Board, the Methodist Episcopal Board, and the Presbyterian Board for the Children of their missionaries in the provinces of Chihli, Shantung and Shansi. It offers its facilities also to other American and European children under conditions noted on another page.

The school aims to prepare pupils to enter schools and colleges in America, and hopes to render unnecessary the early separation of children from their parents. The school will be Christian but non-sectarian.

The school is located at Tungchou, about twelve miles east of Peking, with which it is connected by three trains each way per day. It is thus conveniently near the railroad center of North China, while it avoids the noise and dirt of a large city. It is situated in the compound of the American Board with its beautiful and spacious grounds seventy acres in extent. A perpetually flowing artesian well three hundred feet deep provides a copious supply of pure water. A dairy conducted in the most approved style under foreign inspection, supplies milk and cream of an excellent quality. A good-sized pond serves as a skating rink in winter and yields an abundant supply of ice. A resident American physician cares for the health of the community and the large staff of instructors of the Union Medical College Peking, can be called upon at short notice for consultation and assistance in case of emergency. There is abundant room for tennis, foot ball, basket ball, base-ball, hand ball, field sports, gardening and other outdoor activities.

A substantial building has been erected on a plan that allows for enlargement as conditions may demand. It is well located as regards to light and drainage, provides several pleasant class rooms of various sizes, as well as bedrooms and dining rooms, and the stairway is fireproof from top to bottom.

Faculty

The Principal and Matron of the School is Miss Flora Beard who came to North China after several years of successful work as teacher and principal in the public schools of South Orange, New Jersey. Miss Beard also conducted a school for English-speaking children in Foochow between the years 1906 and 1909. The associate teacher is Miss Mary L. Beard who spent three years in the Blanchard-Gamble School, Santa Barbara, California, teaching science and mathematics, and four years in the Monticello Seminary [Godfrey, Ill.] where she taught physics, botany, chemistry, zoology and astronomy. The Misses Beard took up their duties in China in September 1914, in the temporary school quarters in Peking, and have won the confidence of a wide circle of friends. The American community in Tungchou stands ready to assist in the instruction of the school as may be necessary.

The school is planned to embrace the upper grammar grades and the complete high school work as soon as practicable, including manual training for the boys and domestic science for the girls. A course of study is being made out for children in the primary grades to pursue in their homes before coming to the school. It is hoped thereby to lighten the duties of mothers and to unify the work in the school and the homes. A list of text-books chosen by the school's committee will be included. It will aid much in arranging for supplies if parents will write early about their school plans for next year.

Admission

For admission to the school, children must be at least eight years of age. They must be of American or European parentage, and of good moral character. In case of inadequate accommodations, preference will be given to the children of the Missions maintaining the school. Applications should be addressed to Charles H. Corbett, Tungchou, Chihli.

Rates

For children of the contributing missions no charge will be made for tuition. For all other children, the tuition fee will be $100.00 Mex. a year. As the Boarding Department has not yet been established, the rates have not been fixed, but board, rooms and washing will be charged at cost, probably not exceeding , $1.00 Mex. per day.

Outfit

Each child entering the school should be provided with the following list of furnishings:- 4 sheets for single bed, 3 pillow cases, 1 pillow, 1 pair of blankets, 2 comfortables or quilts, 6 fruit napkins, 1 table knife, 1 fruit knife, 1 fork, 1 table spoon, 2 counterpane, 6 hand towels, 3 bath towels, 1 napkin ring, 6 napkins, 1 tea spoon, toilet soap, nail file, nail brush, tooth brush. All articles as far as possible should be plainly marked with the FULL name of the owner. It is requested that children come provided with sufficient clothing so that their wardrobes will not require care other than mending during the term.

The Management has made arrangements with Mr. A.C. Grimes of the Union Business Agency, 38 Rue d'Amiraute, Tientsin to look after pupils passing through that city, so parents will please notify him in advance if they wish his assistance. The school will undertake to arrange for pupils when they arrive in Peking and assist them in changing to the Tungchou train, if work is sent in time.

American Board of Commissioners

President's Office

Foochow, China Jan 10 1915.

Dear Mother and all the others:-

It is 9:40 p.m. Sunday night and I have [been] steadily at work since 7:30 this morning. But I must get this letter started to you, and hope to finish in a day or two. Tell Ruth the Bank receipt for $30.00 came by last mail. This credit for six months interest on note for second half of 1914, with many thanks. I am beginning to tell people when they ask about "Mrs. Beard's coming back to Foochow", next year. This makes it seem nearer. The weeks rush by like telegraph poles when you are on the R.R. train.

All goes nicely here, - not just as I would have it- for I could not then say "nicely". I should be afraid that something was not right- It would be like the condition when all men speak well of you. But the College is prosperous- with enough bad boys to be disciplined to make it normal and enough flunkers to make it normal.

Monday evening: - Yesterday we held communion at the city church and I baptized and received nine- five women and four young men, and also baptized two children. At the service I noticed two strangers and upon enquiring I found both were there as a result of the recent evangelistic meetings. Last Thursday with the preacher of the church here and three others I went to the home of a poor sick man who has been in the Hospital and is past help. He was taken home a week ago to die. But while in the Hospital he had heard the Gospel and wanted to be baptized. I baptized him and we received him to the church, administering the communion in his little dark bed room- no window- we took out two boards and let in a little light. But altho we could not then see to read we could pray with him and talk with him.

I went over to Sang Gaing to the exercises of the school for Christmas. Mr. Hodous was there also. We were both very much pleased with all we saw and heard. If you and the young ladies who are helping this school could have been there you would have burst laughing. Three shepherds came into the church on their way to find the Christ Child. They had on farmers clothes and the bamboo hats of the farmers and one of them lead a real live black goat. The goat did not always follow exactly the boy who lead him and he sometimes got tangled up, but the pageant went off very nicely as did all the exercises. The only mishap was my own fault. As I was speaking I knocked over a vase of flowers. The vase went slam bong onto the floor, but fortunately did not break. There are about a dozen very bright boys in this school. The teacher is a young man who has studied seven years in Foochow College. Mr. Hodous remarked as we sat there- "There is not a more promising school in our whole field." A student from the Theological School comes over on Sundays and helps the teacher Ging Ding hold service and Sunday School. It is to this church our washerman belongs- I mean the man who washed for Ellen when we were in Y.M.C.A. work here. He calls on me frequently and always enquires most solicitously about Sing Sang Niong= Ellen. Some time ago he said as he went out "I do not have much time to write her. Please you write for me. Here's ten cents for the stamp." And he laid a ten cent piece on my desk.

I had several Christmas dinners this year- so many that they interfered with my writing you about them. The churches took advantage of the season to ordain pastors and dedicate new buildings. We had three dedications and two ordinations, churches full everywhere. Our mission Christmas dinner was with Miss Dornblaser in the Wed. evening previous. On Christmas evening I went to North Gate for dinner with Miss Massey and Miss Baldwin of the Eng. Mission- a swell party.

I am sorry to hear of Olive's illness and hope to hear better things soon. Every day I remember her at God's throne. That is all one so far away can do.

Flora and Mary in Peking seem to be happy and successful.

I start for Diong Loh tonight- or plan to- to be away four days.

Hope you all escape the foot and mouth disease. I never heard of any thing so serious in that part of the country.

Ruth's good letter of Dec. 6 came today. You are all so good to write.

God grant you all health, peace and success. Remember I want a Genealogy when it is printed. Ruth has had lots of experience.

Lovingly,
Will

[This letter, dated Jan. 10, 1915, was written from Peking, China by Mary to the Dear Ones at Home. Mary and Flora are concerned over Olive Beard's health back in the U.S. They sleep bundled up in the cold on a porch. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

[Jan. 10, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

My turn to write again- and what a full week to write about. Mother's and Elizabeth's letters came and were most welcome. Olive's condition quite worries us. Perhaps Grace would feel that our worry is hindering her recovery, if so let her do something and perhaps we will stop. My gloves, whiskbroom and silver polisher came last night, two days after the letter so they got the same steamer.

After school on Monday we went to Teng Shih Kou to pay our bills at the book store, also to settle for the carrying of our boxes the Saturday before. That evening we went to a Chinese Theater of the YMCA for which Mr. Burgess had given us tickets. The acting was quite good and it was given old style without any setting except a table and chairs. In the home scenes people sat on chairs, in the woods chairs were trees and ??? and travelers sat on their baggage true Chinese style. The play lasted till 11.30 so there was not much studying after that.

Tuesday was our day at home but no one called so soon after the holidays. We had a quiet two hours with Mrs. Hall and Mr. Hall and Mr. Howell each partook of a cup of ?va with us. Mrs. Corbett and Mrs. Porter from Tungchow, were here for the night. Their husbands were elsewhere and called to take them to "La Boheme" given by an Italian Opera Co. I had taken a picture of our old peanut man on the corner before Christmas and on Tuesday I took him a print. He was immensely pleased.

Written in album: "Our peanut and fruit vender"

On Wednesday Mrs. Burgess got home about six o'clock. She and Mr. Burgess are so happy to be together again it is a pleasure to watch them. We all went to Othello by the ?? Opera Co. that night. Our seats were with the Halls and Mr. Howell of next door. The Burgesses were up stairs. The play was well acted and the leading voices were good. The stage setting was some what incongruous because all of the baggage of the company had been confiscated in crossing Russia. Some costumes were quite Chinese like; the chairs were decidedly Chinese and the bed in the last act was draped with a mosquito net. The play began at 9.15 and it was after 1.00 when we got in.

On Thursday I went down town to pay last months bills while Flora went to see Mr. Gibb on school business. I went to bed early but Flora got there half an hour earlier. On Friday I had a visitor- at school all the morning. It was Mrs. McCann whom we visited in Paotingfu at Thanksgiving time.

Yesterday morning I reattacked my books and things that came a week ago. All books not needed this year I packed away in the window seat. Mrs. Stelle came to call about 11.30 and stayed till 12.10. We were invited out to a 12.30 tiffin so we hustled and got there at 1.00. Our letter never arrived as we found our hostess unprepared but we had a good time just the same. It was at Mr. and Mrs. Drew[?] Brown's (Mary Chisolm Brown). Chisolm was shy at first but soon reversed and we had a jolly good time. We all walked up to 3.30 Prayer Meeting together. It was the last one of the Week of Prayer and the subject was Home Missions.

Our bookcases were here when we returned from the meeting so after dinner we had the boys move our furniture around and we put the books in place. I got my things all put away but Flora still has piles and piles around. I just long for a tidy room once more. This muss makes me feel like shrieking sometimes. Tomorrow we get rid of the borrowed bedding which now cumpers the room in three large newspaper bundles.

You should see us when ready for bed. We each wear two gowns under our wadded garments, also nightcaps and robes. I have folded the blanket Mother gave me to take to Monticello double. It does not tuck in anywhere but the one Ben gave me tucks in well all around so holds it in place. Over this is my thick cotton comforter and at night I take out my steamer rug and put that on double. Our porch even then is out like real out-of-doors because it is plastered up just above the beds and enclosed at the top. I open four or five windows around my bed and Flora opens one or two. You are almost as much out of doors in your room, Elizabeth. So far we have not used hot water bottles (or pigs as they call them here). Today the snow of Wednesday is melting. There is still some of a week ago Monday left. This week I mailed some packages of the clay images; one to Olive, one to Edith Louise and one to Edith's Dorothy.

Christmas cards are still coming. Yesterday came one from Miss Lathrop and a calendar from Dr. and Mrs. Lathrop also the New Year's cards from Ruth in the package. I think our friends were like us, waited until the Christmas season before sending. I like the continuation of the season's greetings. We were too busy during vacation to have half appreciated them. This way each greeting gets a warm welcome.

If at anytime during the year you get a chance to get Christmas or New Years cards or little things like memorandum pads, papers of pins, hair pins, etc that are not heavy or ruchings either wide or narrow, white or cream, you can spend from $3 to $5 for me. We had to buy Christmas cards and the cheapest were 45 cents. From that prices soared all the way to $1.75. Some were worth the price since this was silver but some were the 5 cent variety at home.

This letter has rambled on long enough. I hope 1915 is bringing you good health, good spirits and not too much hard work.

With lots of love

Mary.

Mr. W.L. Beard

Dear Cousin,

I have been promising myself- each week- since receiving your "Messenger"-that I surely would get my thanks for the Pamphlet, and the remembrance. I find it is a little more difficult to get settled down to any thing like writing- away from home, than where I regularly belong- and can do things more regular and methodically.-And I have word from my daughter- from Niles of the gift- of some tea- from you- I want to thank you for that also. It is the genuine article, and coming from its Native ground, and from your thoughtful self- makes it all the more precious- I want both of my homes to enjoy it with me- Mollie will take some out and send the rest to me here- I am here in Brooklyn for a time. My son Wm. J. Stark, married last June- and is housekeeping here in B- His business is Telegraphy in Western Union Tel. Office in New York. He prefers B- to live in. Has boarded in B- for some time. They wanted me to come and be with them for a time. I came in October- and shall be here this winter- if all keep well at home- in Niles, and if I am not called back to N- will be here until spring- and hope to take a run into Conn. and see the Cousins. I had a delightful time with them last year and then never dreamed I'd be so near them again- or that it would be possible for me ever to go to Conn. I was remembered by your Mother at Christmas time with a card, also cards from the New Haven cousins Elizabeth and Mary Andrew- and a letter from Cousin Martha Beard Clark. Shall try and peep in on them all if I carry out my plans.

Are your sisters with you or near you? It would be pleasant indeed if they could be- and for them, too, to be near you. Does the war, this cruel, terrible war-disturb China at all- It is so terrible, and I hope peace may soon come- It looks as if the prophecy were being fulfilled- and the whole world be at war with each other.

I have enjoyed your magazine very much and again I thank you for it and your remembrance.

Sincerely you

Cousin

Mary G. Stark.

[January 16, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

I am going to put in a note even if it is not my regular work to nite. A package from home came this week. The towel is beautiful and I do thank you all as much. I shall feel very swell and grand with such towels to decorate my rack. The thread, both [unreadable word] and hair pins that Abbie [Abbie Jane Hubbell Beard, wife of Mary's brother, Bennett Nichols Beard] sent are just the thing too. I was almost out of 60 white and shall open a new spool almost at once.

I have forgotten to ask you to renew my subscriptions. Please send $3.00 to the National Geographic and ask that they surely renew from January. The Digest does not expire until February so the subscription will probably be on time.

Many thanks and a great deal of love from

Your loving

Mary.

[This letter, dated Jan. 18, 1915, was written from Peking, China by Flora to the dear folks at home. It is very cold and blowing dust instead of snow. They sleep bundled up on the sleeping porch. They took a tour of the Union Medical College and were impressed. Flora describes their trip to the Forbidden City. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Dear folks at home:-

It is past the middle of January- so does time fly. Mary and I are alone in the house with the three servants and it certainly is a care free kind of living. Both Mr. and Mrs. Burgess are off taking a vacation in the Shantung province. I think they must be good sports at travelling for the weather has not been exactly like June. A week ago to-night the weather blew up very cold so that when night came we put on everything we owned and then slept cold. The weather was like the great blizzard only that it blew dust instead of snow. When we wakened in the morning the only white places in our beds were where our bodies had lain. Every one says that it is the worst weather that has been experienced here for many years. The paper next day reported the thermometer 17 degrees below zero. There are tales of hundreds of beggars and more than a score of the president's guards being frozen to death. I do not see how people could escape with the lack of fire in their houses. At school I had just four of my fourteen children- those who lived nearest. At noon we sent all the children home to stay, for the wind was still high and the dust clouds too dense for endurance. It gave me a whole half day in which to get some long delayed writing done.

The next day the men came to set the basket ball posts- even if the thermometer was below zero. I wish you could have seen the neat holes they dug, hardly taking out a needless spoonful. Mary said there was two feet of frost in the ground. There is a little snow on the ground but you would hardly know it because it is so dirty. Where it has melted there is a thin layer of dirt.

It has been so cold that we have not been out much and others have been tied at home also- hugging the fire in the attempt to keep warm.

The weather had begun to moderate when Mr. and Mrs. Burgess started on Thursday, and it is very much warmer now. To-night when we came home from school, the jinricksha stand was full of jinrickshas, where there has been either one or two or none. We can't walk anywhere without being importuned to ride and one almost hates to say no, but it is so cold that it is hardly safe to ride without extra wraps and covers.

On Saturday, Miss Leavens, our Tungchou hostess of last September, came up for the week end with us. We went out in the afternoon to visit the Union Medical College and hospital. Fortunately we found Dr. Young at the college, so that he piloted us about showing us the laboratories, museum, dissecting room, etc., then he took us to the fine new men's hospital. It is built as near to being fire proof as any building can be, and everything was as nearly perfect and clean as it could be. I was especially attracted to the operating room. It was well equipped with modern apparatus and Peking is noted for its remarkable surgeons. There are specialists here for nearly every thing and the foreigners prefer to have an operation here rather than to go home. We certainly hear of remarkable cures among the foreigners. We called to-day on Mrs. Aiken (the mother of one of our pupils) who is just recovering from an operation for acute appendicitis, who is making a remarkable recovery. She is in the London mission women's hospital. She has a very comfortable room and has had a night and a day nurse- each are English women. So you see the people have the proper care.

Yesterday (Sunday) was a beautiful day. We began it by sleeping until after 9 A.M. It was after 10 when we were getting up from the breakfast table. We rode over to the entrance of the Forbidden City and then spent two hours roaming through the different courts. The yellow roofs, the large brass caldrons, and the bronze lions and phoenixes were worth the time we had to see them. We found the guards courteous and helpful where they could be. After we had passed through the first huge gate we came into the most impressive court, facing what must have been the "Audience Hall". This is a huge double roofed building standing on the third terrace. Each terrace is reached by a flight of marble steps and there are marble retaining walls, with marble railings above each. The carving on all these is beautiful in design and workmanship. The gargoyles were numerous and beautifully carved. We had to go down all these steps and through a side gate into the court of the three throne rooms. These rooms have been denuded of nearly every bit of their natural furniture and are now used as stone rooms for the treasures that are being brought down from Jehol (the late Empress's western capitol). The guards invited us to peek through the cracks into the inside. In the largest room we saw the whole space taken up with boxes waiting to be emptied of their treasures. The small middle building had still more boxes, and the third one was the most interesting for here the treasures had been taken out and were standing on the floor or on shelves that were placed about. We could see all sorts of vessels made of cloisonné and other remarkable materials, and there was an image of Buddha- probably of gold. We could see a wonderful throne screen of a peacock-blue-green embroidered in gold, and there were huge wall hangings of royal yellow colors. I am beginning to believe more and more of Marco Polo's tales of his visits to ancient Peking. We saw nearly as many treasures there waiting for a place of exhibit as are already on exhibit. There were huge outside curtains to these buildings which were originally yellow and the ropes in the pulleys were made of yellow silk as thick as a woman's finger. This gives you a bit of an idea of China's past glory. On our way back we had to cross two bridges the posts of which were adorned by carvings of lions. On one (farther inside the city) the lions were playful- each one expressing some human fun, but the other bridge (near the outside gate) had lions looking very rigid and fierce- evidently on guard. There are wonderful moats with carved marble railings adorned with conventionalized flames on each post top. It is hard to describe the place adequately. I shall hope to go again in the spring.

After we had our tiffin we all went to bed and slept, getting up in time to go to church. We were all so sleepy that we did not sit up very late. I think Mary calculated that we had been out of bed about ten hours of the day. Anyway I think Miss Leavens went back to her work with something to think about- and rested also.

I am sending an order for seeds to Vicks Sons of Rochester, N.Y. I think it will be in the neighborhood of $1.50. I am asking him to send the bill to father. I wish father would donate to the Tungchow American School about a half pint of Evergreen corn, for planting this spring. It will be ready for us in the fall. Please send it to me in Peking as early as you can get it off!

Ruth, I have been reading in Bushell's 'Chinese Art' of the woven pictures, which I sent in December (and which I shall hope soon to hear have reached you). He describes exactly the same thing and says that they belong to the middle of the 18th century, and they were used to adorn the walls of the palaces. So they are of real value. If no one at home wishes them, will you send one to Miss Mable J. Chase, Nutley, New Jersey. She thinks the Newark, N.J. library would like one. I hope you can get at least $7.50 for each for they are really worth double that. Perhaps the Shelton, Derby, Ansonia or New Haven libraries would like one. You are welcome to keep all that you can get above $7 for each. I have one more here that I will part with if any one wants it. I had eight in all but wish to keep one. Mary has purchased a beautiful Mandarin coat for about $5 gold. We see for sale beautiful coats like those pictured in Bushell's 'Chinese Art'. They have not been obtainable until late years- since the revolution. If you wish us to get one for you we can. It is a very inexpensive dressy coat suitable for summer wear. Mary's comes to the bottom of her skirts. It is a beautiful dark grayish blue, with embroidered edgings and cuffs- in different shades of blue.

We saw Mr. Ding to-day. He has left Tokyo and is here in Peking- looking for a government job- so reports say. He has tried to call on us several times but we have been out. Mrs. Burgess says he always calls on her when she is out. She knew him in Tokyo.

It is getting late and my letter is already too long, so will keep what has been left out till the next fortnightly letter.

Love to all-
Flora Beard.

Dear Phebe:-

Your last good letter came a week ago, - too late for me to get in the reply with my last one to Kathleen. The Che Kiang [spelled Kiang in Oct 25, 1914 letter] Club is the largest hall in Foochow available for such meetings as we held in October. It is situated almost in the very center of the city. It is fitted with electric lights and telephone and has room for 2000 seats. It is owned by business men from the province of Che Kiang [here Willard spells it with a K] just north of Fukien. You will not find the language difficult. Do you remember when you came back in 1905 you could not speak a word but within two months you were saying anything and correcting your parents. The vocabulary you will forget to a considerable extent but you can make the sounds and the idiom is natural to you. The vocabulary will come back fast.

I did not tell Kathleen that I received two dolls for Christmas presents. One a little maid from some very cold country with thick hood and cloak on- the other a little one about 2 ½ in. high that always stands on its round base. I hope some of you whom I can recognize will be around when I get home. Mama does not seem to grow very much as far as I can judge from the letters, and from the photos she does her hair about as she used to, but the rest of you are much changed. I wrote you perhaps that every time I look at Geraldine's RATS I feel like getting my fingers into them and tearing them out- do they bite? And now Dorothy has them. Better get some cats. Gould has on long trousers and wears a hat. And the babies are "developing fast". Yes Mr. Eddy was in Foochow in March 1914 and 1911.

Your sentence "As soon as I overcome one fault there is sure to be another to take its place." This ought to be true and is the surest sign of growth in character. If I find in myself this year faults that I did not realize last year, I am sure that I am growing for this thing did not trouble me last year. I did not recognize it as a sin. I see now that it is not pleasing to God and I must get rid of it. Next year there ought to [be] another one to overcome. I pity the person who does not recognize new faults in himself, and who does not have to keep continually fighting against them. This is our salvation, - only instead of fighting to drive out faults, it is much better to keep ones self so full of doing good deeds, saying good words and thinking true, pure, lovely thoughts that the fault is crowded out. I rather think that debate of the fairy tale question came out right. You used to like them and they helped your imagination. Most or many children's imaginations are dwarfed. They should be trained- all inventors and scientists start with the imagination. If you were as excitable as May Fuller I should hope you would have character enough to keep away from games that took away your power of self control.

College goes better thus far than last year. We had a very interesting and successful meeting of the Board of Directors last Wed. evening. The new Board with the Chinese. This week comes graduation. How I do miss mama at times like this! I have to ask some one to tie the diplomas and invite foreign guests etc. etc. But the time is fast running away and before I know it I shall be home with you all for ten weeks and be bringing mama and Marjorie and Kathleen back away from you four. Then it will be you who are lonely.

Again commending you all to God's tender loving care and sending to each one a lot of love. I am your loving Father

Dear Ones at Home,

Flora's letter left so late last week and we were away for the week end so here goes my Sunday letter on Thursday. We were alone again last week until Wednesday. Mable Galt came and stayed with us two nights but went home Friday. Friday afternoon was the Friday Club. This time the subject was Tennyson and Miss Crane and Miss Craig gave excellent papers on "In Memoriam" and "The Idyls of the King." Mr. Gibb sang a long selection from the Cantata "The Lady of Shalot" and a short song "The Swallow Song" from "The Princess." As usual, we were late but we arrived in time for a cup of tea which is unusual.

As we were at dinner, Dr. Shoemaker from Tsing Hua College came in and asked if we could go out to keep his wife company on Sunday. We said yes and went next morning. We left here at 9.30 for the Tsichichmen (East Gate). It is an hours ride and it was snowing a little. I took my steamer rug and Flora took both our ricksha rugs so we kept warm. We waited 1 ½ hours at the station for a 15 minute train ride. If it has been less cold and windy we should have gotten rickshas and gone all the way. Mrs. Shoemaker had sent her card down by a ricksha man so we were carried first back up to the college. We were not starved, because we had had tea and cookies at the station while waiting. Ann had grown a lot and now walks all around if she has hold of some one; but she makes no attempt at going alone. She has walked this way since December some time. We stayed in all afternoon and talked because the snow continued. We had several callers and Ann was a constant amusement after she wakened from her nap.

On Sunday we lay in bed till 9.00. After breakfast we walked over to the old Summer Palace which was destroyed by the foreigners in 1861 because the Chinese tortured some prisoners they had taken. The destruction took 40 days. There are 4 courts and we visited part of one. The palaces were immense and mostly made of marble. Hardly one stone is left on another in some of them. The carvings even broken as they are, are wonderful. One large screen like structure is intact. There are five tablets each carved with different forms of armour. Opposite was a palace with a large fountain in front. Around the pool on the palace side is a railing with fishes heads for gargoyles. The different colored tiles were many; a dark blue, a light blue, a dark purple, a lavender, two shades of green, a pink, a royal yellow and a flesh color.

Now the place is open to the public. In places the Chinese have small groups of huts and the very courts of the palaces are under cultivation.

The whole place was originally level but now is covered with artificial hills and lakes so it is very natural. It covers miles. The palace we visited showed the influence of early Greek architecture in the mixture of Doric to Corinthian columns with Doric bases.

In the afternoon we walked around the college campus. It is the college founded by the Indemnity fund returned by America after 1900- and occupies an old Prince's palace grounds. In one corner is the palace. The main buildings are used for social functions. One is fitted up Chinese style the other semi-foreign for receptions. Another is a public dining room. The buildings in the side courts are the living rooms of the Chinese teachers. The foreign teachers all live in the farther corner in foreign houses each precisely like the others. Even though alike they are delightfully cozy and homelike inside. The President and his Secretary also have foreign homes which cost more than those of the teachers.

The students live in Chinese style but the dormitories are built of the gray bricks so commonly used here by foreigners.

The athletic field is a fine one. There are 20 tennis courts, Basket ball fields, a foot ball field, an Archery range, a base ball diamond. The 500 students have each one to get out for one hour each day and do something. It can not be the same thing every day.

They have just enlarged their campus to twice its size and next year erect five new buildings besides moving the dormitories of the middle school across the street. (The first students sent home by that Indemnity Fund returned this Fall and the YMCA are trying to look after them.) The course is 8 years and students are admitted only at the beginning of the first year unless there are variances. Just now the Sophomore class of the upper school is small so a few can enter that next Fall. Entrance is by competitive examination and boys come from all over the country. Mr. Ding's brother is going to try I understand. We came back Sunday night and arrived about 6.45. It had been a glorious day, but snowed as we rode in.

On Monday we found Laurence Galt the first to arrive and swelled nearly twice his size because he had a small brother born the Saturday before. Mable did not come up until Tuesday because Mr. Galt had business in town Monday.

Yesterday morning Mr. Ding called at school and invited us to dine with him at noon at a Foochow restaurant. We accepted- and had a most delicious feast. We started with four dishes (1) chicken gizzards, (2) tongue, (3) cabbage and (4) pork and bean sprouts and onions. Of course they were in four dishes in the center of the table and we each fell too with our chop sticks. Next came a piping hot dish of bean sprouts swimming in a blood red mixture. I did not like the red much but the other was fine. That was pushed one side and a dish of cauliflower put on. Next came hot fish dumplings on which we ate a thick dark brown sauce, which did not improve them any. Next a whole fish beautifully garnished and swimming in delicious brown gravy. The next we thought must be last; a hot orange juice thickened with a flour made from some plant. It was food fit for "the Gods" it was so luscious. Lastly, we had a rice dish. The rice was ground and made in long strings like spaghetti. It was served with some ground meat. All the time as we ate, we drank a watery fluid, flavored with fine spices and sweetened, from tiny little handleless cups. Between courses we had two kinds of seeds to eat, both melon seeds. Once was black and spiced, the other light colored and not so highly flavored. We left the table and had a cup of tea and more melon seeds. It took 1 ½ hours so we were late for school. As we left they gave us a chunk of something that looked like a piece of a broken nutmeg and I chewed mine all afternoon. Mr. Fay, a returned student, and Mr. Ding were the only other ones. The table was set for eight but either the others couldn't come or were too late to eat with us who had to be prompt.

These last two days have been less cold so we have played basket ball after school. The children carted sand and covered the snow in order that they might play. The game is getting better all the time and the children are growing more enthusiastic.

This is examination week so I have spent my evenings making out test questions. The correction of papers is waiting for Saturday since a cold has kept us from sitting up too late. Said cold is better.

We expect the Burgesses tonight. It is after seven and we can not eat until they come. I am getting hungry so I hope it is soon.

Mr. Ding enquired for you all and wished to be remembered when we next wrote. He is quite about now, not much like the men who first visited us.

We are hoping for better news of Olive but it does not come yet. I hope the rest of you are keeping well and that you are not having an extra severe winter. Everyone says we are having less sunshine than usual and more snow squalls and gray days. If it would only snow enough to amount to something; but it takes 36 hours for two inches of snow to fall.

With lots of love

Mary

Dear Ellen:-

There is a bit of news that is almost out. It is too important to let you have through accidental ways so I will interrupt you with this note. It has come to be a fact that Myra Palmer and I have agreed to be married. We don't know when as yet, but hope it will be enough for now just to let you know that you are to have a very dear sister and also that Phebe, Gould, Geraldine, Marjorie and Kathleen will some day have a new and very lovely aunt.

With love and best wishes to you all

Dear Girls [Flora and Mary]:-

One way to get your friends to accept typewritten letters and not squeal is to write so infrequently that they will accept anything and be grateful. That is my stunt I am afraid this past few months. (It is so cold that my fingers ache as I strike the machine.)

The commencement exercises of the College were held on the 25th of Jan. This is called vacation. But the only thing that I have vacated is my class room. The exercises passed off nicely. The day was fine. It rained the night before and it rained the night after but just during the half day of our Commencement it was delightful. Instead of having the set essays and orations and an address this year we had three of the graduates give experiments in Chemistry - -Oxygen. The other four had English orations. No officials were invited, only friends of the students and those we really wished to come. We had the church full of these.

Have I written you that Mr. and Mrs. Newell have a little girl? Her two brothers think she is the stuff. My fire is doing well. I have my overcoat off. You would laugh I suppose if you were to come into my study just now. I have washed my own flannels since I came out this time. Yesterday I did a washing- did it at 4 standings between callers etc. I always hang them in the house out of the sun to dry. They are not yet dry so I have a unionsuit hanging over the stove which is a cook stove. Right in the middle of the room stands a big box of books just from Boston. How is your shipment? I hear that that ship is still in Massena and likely to stay there. I hope it is not true. That half day of shopping in St. Louis, Mary was a most profitable one for me. Every article that I bought was just what I wanted and the quality was all right.

Many people inquire after you continually. The Mains are home by this time I expect. I shall be interested to see what Flora thinks of our new compound in the city. We are improving it all the time. Only this week we have become the happy owners of a little temple that stood right in the center of the compound, near a huge rock as big as a small house. This temple is now removed and we are straightening the walk and doing other things to make things look right.

All letters from Putnam are good. I had a nice long one from Geraldine in the last mail. She is manager of the girl's basket ball team and Gould of the boy's. She is carrying a heavy load of studies this term. Gould does not look favorably on the proposition of going to Oberlin to College. He NOW seems to think a course in Engineering is what he wants. Dorothy they say is very fat. Phebe seems to have about given up growing.

Do you take it that Stanley is looking to the lower end of Long Hill with the view of getting some one to take Phebe's place as housekeeper? She, Phebe seems to enjoy her life and the new auto all right. Mother was seventy two years old last Saturday. And I am trying to make it seem true that I was fifty. And I almost jumped to think that I was old enough to be her father. Geraldine speaks of receiving spoons from China. She evidently had not received the letter yet for she was wondering if I had sent them.

Mrs. Jewett of Mount Vernon has a little boy born the day before Christmas. Her Dorothy was a year old in November. Her photo looks as if she was a buxom lass all right. I see the boy Roger Wallace was born Dec. 14th, not the day before Xmas.

With lots of love,
Will

About 1915 in front of the Century Farm farmhouse. This is probably the automobile that Willard is referring to. Oliver Gould Beard Sr. and Ellen are standing at the back. Marjorie is standing in the car behind the lady in the passenger seat and Kathleen may be between that lady and the driver. The ladies near the front of the car are Elizabeth, Nancy Maria Nichols Beard, Ruth and Phebe and possibly Stanley. Oliver Wells may be the boy sitting on the running board.

[This letter dated Feb. 7, 1915 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his mother. He talks about making an English Catalogue for the college. Shaowu has a stock disease among their cattle. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Feb 7th 1915

Dear Mother:-

Your good letter written about Christmas came last evening. This past week two events have taken place or rather two mileposts in the family have been passed. One was your birthday – the seventy second I think, on January 30th. The other my fiftieth. It does not make one feel any different tho. I'm getting young I think- still growing any way. I was weighing a keg of printing ink which I had bought for the Press one day last week and got [on] the scales myself. I pushed the weight up to 180 and on to 181, 182-183-184-185, and still the beam went up, and [I] stopped looking. I had not realized that I was so heavy. I have had a good appetite and have slept well for the past three months and have work enough to give me good exercise. These are conducive to good health.

The past week is called vacation but it means only a change of work. I have one big job on for this vacation, namely to get out an English Catalogue for the College. I have most of the material but it must be arranged and audited. Then I want very much to get in the country for a week. This is going to be difficult to arrange. I am booked for four days in the country not far from Foochow- ten miles out, but I want to get down in the Diong Loh field. Mr. Smith urged me to go to Ing Hok, but that was out of the question.

To day a letter came to me from Ellen's Aunt Ann of Geneseo, Ill. She writes that the foot and mouth disease attacked the cattle on the farm next them. The man had driven the stock along the road that runs within twenty rods of their house and farm. This road was closed. There is now a stock disease in Shaowu. Mr. Kellogg two years ago went up into North China and bought a foreign cow and bull. The bull has just died, and some of the half breeds. But here there is no quarantine and cattle are liable to die any time. Of course the disease is worse some years than others. The farmers sell the cattle as soon as they can after the disease is contracted. The meat is eaten by the people.

We are having the coldest winter in a long time. Bananas are all black from the frost of two weeks ago. And the past week has been very cold, and damp and at night I have to pile on all the clothes I can find and then shiver. Flora gave me a pair of bed socks just as I started for China and they are a great comfort. I wash my own flannels- did a washing Friday and am wearing the union suit today- it is just as soft as new and not shrunk in the least- the first water is a good strong soap suds with a little ammonia in it. The next is clear water with a little ammonia in it and the third is the same. The water is only warm not hot, and I do not rub the flannels only pound or squeeze them and then I do not wring them very hard and hang them in my bath room- not out of doors to dry- of course they drip a lot- but they come out sweet, soft and as large as when they went in.

Mrs. Gillette of Diong Loh is here with her three months old boy, and Mrs. Newell in the next house has a two months girl so we have babies here just now. Did you know that Mrs. Jewett of Mt. Vernon had a little boy born Dec. 14. Dorothy was born in Nov 1910.

How is the big lawsuit coming on? I shrink from writing a word of the war. The English missionaries here are as rabid as any of the combatants. I pray God to stop it as soon as all have had enough of it to be willing to cease from war. The advances of Prohibition in Armenia are most encouraging. Best wishes to all whose birthdays are about now and love to all Will

Dear Geraldine:-

Your good letter came by the last mail. This is the first Christmas letter I have had- I mean letter telling about Christmas. It seems to me so far back now- but your letter is by no means a back number- Since I wrote last I have received a nice little vest pocket diary that is just what I wanted. I am proud of it. I look eagerly in every mail for an account of how my Bible and my other memorandum look- the loose leaved one came to be found. I hope some of you will tell me some time.

I hoped to write this letter this morning and mail it to you today but there seems no use in my trying to do any thing for myself in the day time or evening till after 9:30. All sorts of people are calling on all sorts of business. I have not had one minute today until I began this letter after 9:30. But work is what I'm here for. I wanted to go to Kuliang tomorrow but it is raining now and I am not going to try it.

Mr. Lathrop of Shelton has once or twice said he wished me to write out in detail one day's work. Last Wed. might be an interesting one- only I could not make it all appear.- It would be something like this- rise at 6:45 a.m. breakfast at 7:30. From 8:30-9:30 correspondence and Press business. 9:45 start for South Side to audit the books of the treasurer of the Union Theological Schools. At noon take dinner with Rev. Long Iu Cu at his home on South Side. This dinner lasts till 2 p.m. At 2:15 perform the wedding ceremony for his sister and Mr. Saeng Cieng Li. At 3:00 p.m. be at the Monthly Concert of prayer at Mr. Walsh's -Trinity College. After that go to tea at his house then go to Mr. Hind's house for a meeting of the Executive Committee of the North Fukien Tract Society. This lasted till 6:15. I was due in the city to a wedding feast at 5 p.m. It was 7:45 when I reached the house and the guests were just leaving. But a special table was set for me and the groom and his father ate with me. Home at 9:30. Now that's not very interesting but it's an ordinary day's work.

Yes you improve as you write- did the Parker do it all? Aunt Mollie sent me by last mail a good photo of Dorothy. Isn't it nice that Dorothy Jewett has a little brother. It will help her not be selfish and will help her parents in bringing her up.

[This letter dated Feb. 14, 1915 was written from Peking, China by Flora to the folks at home. Her school has been making valentines and Mary has been ice skating. It is Chinese New Year so businesses are closed. She feels it is a wonderful time to be in China and watching it facing adversity. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Dear folks at home:-

We are now on our last half of the school year. We began with our new scholar so that our number now is 31- going on to forty, though we do not expect to reach that this year. This week has been a busy one in school for we were making valentines and the children got very much interested. We had a little exhibit on Friday and several mothers came in to see the results. Two days I had a visitation of Chinese teachers with some of the American Board ladies to see our primary work. The children were quite unconcerned about being watched so everything went naturally.

Mary has been skating with the Lowries (two of her students) at the International Tennis Club. They flood a part of the tennis courts, cover the rink with these straw mats and when it is lighted with electricity it makes an ideal place for skating. The mat coverings are necessary to keep out the sand that these horrid dust storms blow into every crack and crevice. Mary went just after school and she said it got so warm that they had to open some of the mats.

To-day is Chinese New Years so everything is very quiet and there will be very little business going on anywhere for a few days. Yesterday we went shopping for curios and we had to be careful about bidding for purchases as we got taken up very quickly. I got four little amethyst pendants that have jade calyxes and about that is a pearl as large as this O. I think the pearls are genuine, too. I got the four pieces for $2.00 silver. They asked me $4.00 to begin with. I came very near getting four jade buttons but did not satisfy the dealer with my price. We got silk for a waist, a petticoat, and a scarf- in all we did a big bit of shopping.

I am enclosing some newspaper clippings which speak for them selves. I am especially interested in the "Blind School" editorial, for the school is in the same hutung [alley or passageway] that our school is and I intend to visit it some day soon.

Every one is feeling very anxious for the welfare of China these days, and hoping that 'might' will not prevail. It is very wonderful to be here on the spot at this time, and see how China is being knit to-gether, by this apparent adversity. It is a deep laid scheme and one that the world may never know the whole truth about. I am wondering what the papers at home have been saying about China's affairs. We have a daily paper now, behind which we can drink our morning cup of coffee, just as the people of New York do. It is not full enough of the world's news but I guess gets as near to the real truth as many of the papers do.

Our mails are coming so seldom now and have so little in them that we just, spend most of our time 'hoping.' I have not yet received the first magazine of the "Story Teller's Magazine." It may be a little late in getting the first one to me, so I am hopefully waiting. I have never received any number of the "Primary Education", so I am wondering if the subscription ever got to them. I do wish they would send the subscription from last September, for those numbers would be just as useful to me next year- since I never get my magazines until they are a month old.

I am waiting to hear that you got the woven gold thread pictures, for I feel anxious about them. It is such uncertain business mailing articles home that I am going to wait before sending anything more. There are several parcels that were mailed to me for Xmas which have not arrived, so I think I'll not send any more than is necessary.

Who would have thought a year ago that the present world state was possible! It is kind of a comfort to realize that there are some good things resulting from it and I hope the end will bring about more – and that right speedily.-

Lovingly-
Flora Beard.

Dear Father and Mother:-

I am home for this evening only between two trips in different directions into the country. A week after Mother's birthday I got a letter off to her. To morrow is Father's birthday and I want to tell him I'm glad he has given so good an account of himself for another year. I'm coming after you Father pretty fast. It was only a very few years ago that you were where I am now- at fifty. Last Saturday I opened my eyes at 7 a.m. to see the mountains for the first morning since vacation began. Rain and fog have been holding sway daily for most a month. I got up quickly, ate breakfast and started on foot to Kuliang- to walk both ways. I was off a little after 8:30 and got back at 4:30 p.m. and have felt the effects only slightly. This was a walk of nearly 20 miles and a climb of 2500 ft.

Yesterday morning I was off at 7 a.m. for the launch to go down the river 12 miles and in 6 miles thro a creek to a place called Ku Seu. You couldn't pronounce it if you were given $100. Mr. Neff and I went together. We reached the launch at 8 o'clock and sat patiently until 10:00 when the launch started. We got down about a mile and stuck on a sand bar. One hour more to rest and we reached our destination at 2:30 p.m. We had a good dinner of rice vermicelli and oysters. In the evening they gave us a Chinese feast, after which we had a good long rainy evening with the preacher and six or seven Christians. This morning we planned to visit Christians in their homes till 11:30 then take dinner with one of the leading families and get the launch for Foochow at 2 p.m., the advertised time. At 11:30 we were a mile from the launch, and heard it whistle. Then we started as fast as possible and just made it in time. We had planned to get our dinner with these friends and had given all our bread and cake to the preacher. So I stopped as I went along and rescued what was not eaten for our lunch. We reached home at 5 p.m. and tomorrow morning at 7. I am off again for a flare up in the hills to hold evangelistic services, and back again Friday and Saturday, and Sunday off for another place on the plain for the same work.

Elizabeth's good letter came in the last mail from Pearl River. Let me congratulate you on the engagement of your youngest son to Myra Palmer. I am glad that Stanley has made up his mind and hope that they will have a long, useful, happy life together.

The beautiful tie also came in the last mail. My Christmas this year lengthened out into my birthday so it was a long one and I hardly realized which was Christmas and which was birthday.

I hope the foot and mouth disease has not reached you. Aunt Ann of Geneseo wrote that it was next to them- on the next farm.

I am pleased much with the progress of prohibition in the States. Russia has done nobly in putting away intoxicants.

I have an invitation to- no it is an announcement for or of the marriage of Minnie Vera Hubbard to Albertus Newton Beard [Willard's third cousin]. Is Mr. Bert Beard of Milford?

I must say good night with best wishes for another successful year of life to you.

Lovingly
Will.

[This letter dated Feb. 21, 1915 was written from Peking, China by Mary to the folks. They are happy that their brother Stanley has gotten engaged to Myra. She talks about her busy week and shopping. They had a bad dust storm that week. Sister, Ruth Beard is getting the Beard Genealogy book ready. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Feb 21 [1915]

Dear Folks,

This has been an exceptional week for to us came the great and wonderful news. Stanley withdrew his attention but not his mind for Myra for a season and we rejoice to think he has done the deed. [Stanley became engaged to Myra and eventually had three children.]

To us here it has been a busy week. On Monday I went after school up to Mrs. Hubbards. She took me to call on Mrs. Wang, a German woman married to a Chinese. We had a most enjoyable time. I am going up once a week after school to talk German with Mrs. Wang so as to have a little start in case I have to teach it next winter.

Tuesday was our at home day. We had six or seven callers. Mrs. Stanley of Tientsin came and brought her 18 months old boy. I played nurse and had a fine time. He is absolutely fearless- and has not yet confidence to walk alone so has to be watched every minute.

On Wednesday Mrs. Wang called on me and it was decided that I go up on Wednesday to her for one hour after school. It will give me a fine walk as she lives about a mile out toward the north west city.

On Thursday we were invited to tea at Mrs. Stelles (ABCFM) in honor of her mother. About fifteen ladies were there all much older than I, but it was a pleasant afternoon. They were mostly mothers of my older pupils or mothers of children too old to be in school; yes, two were grandmothers of our children. I had a good time talking to one mother who is planning to send her daughter to Mount Holyoke next year. She expects to enter as a Sophomore.

On Friday we went up in Teng Shih Kou again to see and help at a birthday party for Helen Martin aged six. She is the baby of Flora's school. There were twenty children and a fine healthy, happy lot they were. After dinner that evening we went back to Mrs. Ingrams for Flora to go over the order for furnishing the school with Mrs. I. It took two hours then the food received only a glance.

Yesterday morning I worked steadily from 9.00 till 12.30 on papers, getting work ready etc. and again from 2-3. Then we dressed etc. and again from 2-3. Then we dressed and went out. We walked down the Hatamen and visited Viccagee's, Wanieck's, Talaiti's and Kieroff's to look for dinner sets, beds, toilet sets, kitchen articles, etc; so as to get local prices then compare and find out if anything will be saved by sending to America. It looks as though we would send for some foods and but little else. We stopped and called on Mrs. Drew Brown. All three had just gotten up from the Grippe. Chisholm is as darling as ever and does not forget me now. We tried to call informally a few weeks ago but found Mrs. Brown going out.

We came home via the Chinese Post Office to get a package for Mrs. Burgess. First we were told that the parcel office closed at 5.00. It was then 5.45. Flora begged then we were told to go to the back door. The Post Office was originally an old palace. We were guided out through the court yard, under a very gay pilo, through a circular arch to the parcel room. The man there kindly gave us the parcel because today was Sunday and the office would be closed. We were glad we were late. Evidently in warm weather they have plants in that court yard because one of the side houses was stored with palms, ferns etc.

A week ago was Chinese New Years but it was officially celebrated on Monday because it fell on a Sunday. From Sunday until Friday there were no trains except the early morning ones and the banks of all nations were closed. The streets are still filled with people in holiday attire and I have never seen so many women and children out.

My shoes came -all O.K. They will not be amiss because I walk so much that my shoes are wearing already. Please charge Mrs. Burgess's shoes to me as well as my own and let me know the cost. I was hard up for winter union suits that were warm enough. Mrs. Burgess had Flora write to Leolyn for some medium weight woolen suits. Leolyn sent some too. Mrs. B. already had heavy cotton ones so was saving the ones Leolyn sent to sell next year. I have taken them and will let the shoes help pay the bill.

This week has been like Spring except Friday when a dust storm was coming up. It struck us that evening and I never faced a nose load of dust than the one we met as we turned into our hutung [a narrow lane or alley] when returning from Mrs. Ingram's. Yesterday morning it blew horribly but the wind had changed so the dust was not so bad.

How did you like the names of the stores to which we went? We can have our choice of nationalities when we go trading. There are Germans, Indian, Parsee, Japanese, Chinese all on the lower Hatamen.

I hope Father's boil got well in time for him to celebrate his birthday.

We had the announcement of Bert Beard's wedding this week. How much of a wedding did they have? Enough of one for any of you to be invited?

Tomorrow is a holiday and I am duly thankful. Work has been piling up so these last weeks that papers get way ahead of me. As I have all of the older children's work I have themes etc. galore and even my morning's work yesterday did not see the bottom of the pile.

Ruth's letter sounds as though we might begin to look for a Beard genealogy before many months. I hope so. I wish I could come in and help correct-proof with you.

With lots of love to you all,

Mary L. Beard.

P.S. I had just gotten some rather pretty Chinese things so am sending Myra one of my purchases for an engagement present. Flora is giving Stanley her rug and feels that is enough for both wedding and engagement.

[This letter dated Feb. 25, 1915 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to Flora and Mary. Rumors are flying about relations between China and Japan. He advises Flora and Mary of what items they will need for the summer on Kuliang. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Feb. 25th 1915

Dear Sisters [Flora and Mary]:-

It was very good of you to send me the letters from Putnam. I am enclosing one that came in the last mail from Cousin Stark and I am also sending a Sentinel that came in last mail. Letters speak as if Olive was about the same.

Rumors are flying fast about the relations between China and Japan. I only know how to listen and keep on the same course. You write that you suppose we are all anxiety in Foochow and in innocence of any trouble we read of what is said to be going on in Peking and wonder how you up there are faring. All of which is to say that I spend most of the time between 10:30 p.m. and 6:30 a.m. sleeping.

As to plans for the Summer- your times will fall in with mine beautifully. As far as a man is supposed to know how to plan I think I have every thing you will need except sheets and pillow cases and a mosquito net. If you have these and can bring them as well as not all right- if you do not have them just say so and I will get them. The net I would just as soon get as not for we must have it when Ellen and the babies come. I have two extra sheets- if you brought two it would be sufficient. The furniture that you used to have is all there I believe and you can have one broad bed or two narrow ones as you like. If you can let me know a month or so in advance about - sheets-pillow cases and one or two nets I'll feel as if all was planned. - unless you think of something that I have forgotten. I'm more glad than any if my letters can intimate that we can be together this summer.

To day we are holding exams for students who wish to enter the College. I have not even asked after the prospects until I just now went into the room where the boys are being examined and learned that there were over 70 who had registered for the entrance exams. This is more than formerly.

Lovingly yours
Will.

[This letter dated Feb. 28, 1915 was written from Peking, China by Flora to the folks at home. A Gobi dust storm is making everything gritty. They heard that Rockefeller is to finance the Union Medical work in Peking. She talks about Christian Science affecting her nieces, Olive and Gracie. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Dear folks at home:-

It is the last day of February and I think the March lion has been getting in an extra roar of noise and cold for we have had a fearful Gobi dust storm with a great drop of the thermometer. Yesterday the wind blew so hard that we could keep warm only when setting on the radiator and our house was grit from top to bottom while the front vestibule was a drift of yellow dirt. In spite of all this inclemency only one of the guests Mrs. Burgess had invited to luncheon failed to come. I do not blame her for it was a ride of nearly forty minutes in this terrible gale of dust. One lady who had as far to ride wore two fur coats, and tied her veil over her face. She arrived warm and clean. It has been just such a dirty wind storm when we lunched with her a few months ago and not knowing what we were getting out into we had taken no precautions, so the first thing we did was to repair to the bathroom and wash up. The occasion for all this festivity was the anniversary of my birthday a couple of days ago. The celebration had to wait until Saturday when we could be free.

This week has been rather full of work for we have been getting out the budget for furnishing our school. Mary and I went down to Tung-cho [Tungchow] on Monday and went over the list with the committee there, then I made a revision out to send back, all of which consumed the better part of our one holiday- Feb. 22nd. The next afternoon we call on the people receiving at the American Board as it was their day at home and we were owing every one calls there. It was then (and next day) that we heard the welcome news that Rockefeller is to finance the Union Medical work here in Peking. This means every thing to the College of Medicine for it is in need of equipment and men; and money is necessary for both. The next thing is to find the kind of men needed for the work. It has been suggested that some one of the American doctors be deported to go home in search of the men.

On Friday the 'Friday Club' met in our compound- at the other house. For once we arrived in time to have tea with the others and it was quite enjoyable. The topic under discussion was Browning- the Poet of Action. Both papers were read by English women and were both interesting and able. The discussion was so interesting that it was too bad to have to cut it short because of the lateness of the hour. It was nearly seven o'clock when we came home and the meeting is suppose to close at 6 P.M.

Ruth's letter came with the type-written statements of our debts- for which please accept our thanks. I hope Miss Brewster and Miss Chase have wanted the pictures enough to take them and so cancel my debt.

I have enclosed a letter which I wish you would finish by enclosing twenty-eight cents in stamps and one more stamp on the outside and send it on. I hope the pencils will get here in time for Mary's birthday. Will you also please send me one of the 97 cent two sent stamp books. It is very handy to have U.S. stamps out here. One more request- and I am done. I want a good plain one-piece dress pattern, 40 in. bust measure and 28 in. waist measure. I want it for thin summer wash dresses. I want something that I can use and make little changes. I think the sizes I have given will make the pattern adaptable to both Mary and me.

I expect the news from China and Japan has been quite exciting to you people at home. I'd like very much to hear what the home papers say about it. Our daily papers here are writing some fine editorials, full of feeling and yet with wise admonitions. I sent some to you a week or so ago and wonder if they will ever reach you. Last week we sent over a dozen letters to America, since Mr. Burgess was going to Shanghai, where he could Mail them in the U.S.P.O.

Ruth, you may take down my rug anytime that Stanley says so. I am glad that it is to find its useful spot at last. I think it will have to be my only gift as it is not an inexpensive one. If we can get anything out here for you, we shall be glad to do it. - A letter from Phebe yesterday described 'the ring' very acceptably. We are waiting now to hear when the wedding is to be, - and all its plans.

Phebe also wrote about her visit (or call) at Oliver's. It does seem as if Olive's case is nothingless than a crime. I think Oliver is a marvel- a veritable Job. For Olive herself it seems as though this were the crowing injury to have so brought up the child rather to have let her so grow up that her decision about herself should be paramount in such a time. It is throwing away a great opportunity. No doubt she is being spared many sorrows but no one knows what good such a life rightly lived would have accomplished. At any rate she has been a joy to us these few years she has lived. What about Gracie? Is she looking any better than she was when we left last summer? It will take more than Christian Science to keep her well these next few years, I think. She has lived so closely with Olive and has been so frail.

I cannot help thinking of Oliver and would write to him, but am afraid of saying the wrong thing, and that it might never get to him. Did I tell you about our getting letters from Annie Gilbert at Xmas time with never a mention of Olive in there. It is needless to say that those letters will not be answered in a hurry.

Hoping father's carbuncle is quite healed by this time,

I am,

Yours lovingly-

Flora Beard.

[Early March, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,-

The weeks fly by so fast these days! This was a busy week as usual. We teach every day of course, the same subjects (not) in the same old way (I hope).

On Monday we dressed and called on the Gatrell's. Lillian is in our school and she and her mother had called on us, as their at home day is the same as ours, we had put off the call. Mrs. G. was not at home but we saw Lillian. Tuesday was our at home day and we had a steady lot of callers from five till six-thirty. Both of the Legation families called and two of the Student Interpreters besides representatives from Missionaries, Community people etc. It was as cosmopolitan a group as we have entertained.

I began last week to go up to Mrs. Wang (a German woman married to a Chinese man.) to read German one hour a week. We are reading a little book called "Wilkommen im Knutpflound[?]" by W.E. Mosher. This last lesson I tried to write German and had forgotten nearly all of my alphabet. Don't you think I have reclaimed it well? Mrs. Wang is very charming and I enjoy the hour very much. I go to her and it is about a mile from school so I get a nice walk.

This Wednesday I hurried home that we might call on Mrs. Murray who has charge of the Blind School. Her husband started it and she is holding on to it until her oldest son finished his preparation and comes out to take it. She is Scotch and most charming to meet.

Thursday was another dust storm and a very bad one. The wind was stronger than on the Saturday previous but it was not so cold. We sent the children home at noon to stay. We had just 15 of our 31 present.

Friday was a glorious day after the scouring of the day before. After school we started to walk out to the big side gate of the city. We got as far as Lun Fu Ssl and found it was fair day so we went to the fair instead. We spent all of our change then came home. I got some carved ivory beads and some "white jade" (?) buttons. We hurried home for a six o'clock supper. Just as we were dressing a caller arrived. She stayed until 6.40. It was Mrs. Goodrich, wife of one of the senior missionaries who has the same "at home" day as we, hence the out of season call. That evening Mr. Yelton came over to play games from 9-10 PM so we went down and played too. He is a young fellow, only 19, with fiery red hair, who teaches in night school every night until 9.00 besides considerable day work.

Mrs. Goodrich had invited us up to teach her Camp Fire Girls some of the Minuet steps and to stay for dinner yesterday afternoon. I awfully wanted to go to the Bazaar and so did Flora after she saw the extra notices in the morning paper. Mrs. Goodrich sent us a note offering to let us withdraw and I received it just after Flora had gone out to do errands and stop to see her.

We left here about three for the Bazaar. It is held in a corner of the Forbidden City which the papers have been calling "Central Park." Flora is sending a guide map to show where we went. One tent had this sign on it- "American Band, Conjination [?] and Company, Tientsin. Come and see but no ensnare." In the course of the afternoon we had tea and cake served in very good foreign style. The Wagon Lits, the best hotel here, did the catering. The Park takes in one of the most sacred parts of the old Forbidden City. It is the altar with the five kinds of earth. The altar is square with a yellow square in the center, blue on the east, black on the north, white on the west and red on the south. The larger enclosing square is surrounded by a tile wall, the tiles matching the earth in color. One tale states that this spot was where the Emperors worshipped privately the Unknown God of Heaven just as he worshiped him publicly at the Temple of Heaven. That this spot was the center from which fire works were to be put off in the evening shows the lack of reverence that New China has for Old China. The way was opened so we could go up onto the big front gate of the Forbidden City. First we ascended a long incline then climbed 75 steps. That brought us well up above the trees and we had a fine view of the city. I went out on the little balcony where President Yuan stood to review his troops. The gate where we were looked very far away.

This morning we waked up to find the north all yellow again and by ten o'clock the wind was blowing a gale again. Three dust storms in one week is more than enough to suit me. It seems to be growing colder today too and the boy has gone out so the fire is down.

Mr. Burgess got back from Shanghai Wednesday night. The old cook had done some crooked business at the settling up in January and was to make it right at the next settling. He was impudent, bossy, etc. and so got his walking papers Thursday. We went to the Y.M.C.A. and got a foreign dinner that noon. They have been serving them only this week. We had soup with rice, fish, croquettes, roast beef, fruit fritters and tea. Each was a different course so it was well we had the half holiday. Our boy got the meals until Friday night when a new cook came on trial. He does very well so far, and has most excellent recommendations.

Last night I received the Sentinel with the [unreadable word] and Science article enclosed. I was interested in the note that Japan's demands "in no way threatened the integrity of China." I knew before looking, that it was dated at "Tokio." There seems to be good faith here that America and the European powers, if they can get the truth, will see to it that the integrity of China is not disturbed.

I am sorry to hear that Aunt Ella has a new trouble. I do hope father's boil stops running so he can get well soon.

Today I have written Oliver a long letter. I can't help wondering if Olive is still with us, the last letters were so hopeless. I am waiting to hear of the arrival of the linen for Bessie and of Mother's little mud [?] images. If they get through safely, I will send some more.

Lots of love to you all
Mary Beard.

P.S. The high shoes Mr. Dektor sent fit all right in the foot but the leg is altogether too small. They measure 10 ½ inches from edge to edge outside measure and my leg at my shoe top is 10 ½ inches. I can button one button only and that is tight. My old ones are 39-5-24631. The new ones are 39-5 also. If he can send me another pair larger in the leg I should like it. If necessary he can make them a half size wider as the climate here makes ones feet swell rather than shrink.

I shall try to sell the shoes at Mothers Club tomorrow as they conduct an exchange bureau for just such emergencies. They may be a bonanza to some one.

Hope you got the order for the low shoes and that Mr. Dektor can duplicate mine exactly.

Lots of love

Mary.

A day like this makes me wish I were home.

Foochow, China March 9th 1914 [*should be 1915]

Dear Ruth:-

It is the typewriter this time for you. I like the typewriter letters because they are longer than your autograph letters. I may not use the same argument of using the machine myself. Your last letter was specially newsy. I hope before this that Father has forgotten all about his boil. You probably know more about boils and the care of them than you ever did before. So it has not been without its benefit. I'm most interested in all you say about the Genealogy. I suppose you can never really finish it. For information will inevitably keep coming in. But it is better to stop and print it now. I sent boxes of tea to some of the friends whose names I found among those you sent me and the replies have been interesting and pleasant to receive. Among them was a nice note from Dan Beard.

College opened last week with full attendance. I asked the Monitor a day or two if he could tuck in a boy who was asking to join. His reply literally translated was "If we tamp hard we can get him in." This is just the phrase we use in tamping earth about a post. We have 260 in the old buildings, 63 in the new building and 17 in the Dudley Memorial church. All these would have come here in former years if we had had room for them, so they should be counted as our boys and they make the number 340. The boys we have in the old plant are much larger than in former years because we send the little fellows to the other places.

We are seriously considering the union of the three Colleges in Foochow. We plan to take the two upper years of each and unite them in a union Arts course. As we teach now in the three Colleges, foreigners are giving about 160 hours a week to the teaching of these three sets of boys. If we unite we can do the same work better if anything, with about 50 hours. There are other considerations. We shall plan to make this the starting of the University in Foochow. We hope to start this union Arts course in September of this year.

The weather is a most peculiar product here these days. Sunday I preached and conducted communion in the College church. I never perspired more than when I was speaking that day. Now as I write my fingers are so stiff with the cold that I can scarcely make them mind me. We have had much cold weather during the winter and much rain. The rain has come in spots- not as much at a time as in some years.

I wonder what you are thinking about the reports of the demands of Japan on China. The girls in Peking think we must be living in terror and we here think that they in Peking must be living on a crater. And neither of us sleep with our clothes on or eats in the door way with our eyes on the gate. Work goes on just as usual - - or a little more so.

You have heard us speak of the long journey by chair to the South side of the river. A road thru the fields has already been surveyed, which is sure of going thru. The money is in one of the banks here now for the job. I have seen the stakes all thru the fields. This will at first be a road for rickshas, but in time it will surely sport a trolley. We are also building a large park. And when there is a fire the street is always widened. So things do move with us.

I am enclosing a story of conditions that may seem to belie the last statement but you must remember that a man the age of China rolls over rather slowly.

Who is now preaching at Huntington? I have not heard a word since last fall when Miss Ella Wooster wrote. What is Stiles Nichol's son now doing – he must be out of the Dental College by this time? Mrs. Stark wrote me that she might favor you with another visit. I do not know how to write about Olive and Oliver and Grace. I just pray that God will give to each of them as He sees best under the conditions, and as He in his great mercy sees to be right.

Flora and I are now writing to arrange the details of our summer which we are planning to spend together. The anticipation is great. It is almost too good to come true- if you will allow me to use an expression that I do not like to hear. For to one who believes in God and in His loving kindness nothing is too good to come true for His children. It is pretty lonely for a fellow here after he has been used to being with a large family all his life not to have any of them with him for four years. But I am looking forward with very great pleasure to the company of the sisters for six weeks in the summer.

Did I thank you for the tie that came for my birthday? If not here is the THANK YOU in the largest letters the machine will make. I am also sending under another cover a photo of the gathering in front of the church at Au Ciu on the day of the dedication of the new church. In the afternoon we ordained the preacher Ling Seng Gang, who stands just in front of me, a little to the right as you face the picture, wearing glasses. You will note Mr. Newell and Mr. Hodous in the door, one on one side one on the other. You will also make out Mrs. Hubbard peeking out from under Miss Garretson's chin and Mrs. Hodous and Ray Gardner standing near each other. Mr. Hubbard is sitting a little below and to the right of me. You must not overlook the band. O yes! There is Miss Dornblaser in the right at the back up against the wall. This is a fair sample of the churches we dedicated last Dec. and of which I wrote you.

I must not write more now. I am due on South Side in an hour to attend a committee meeting. Every day I ask God to keep you all and to give each what He in his infinite wisdom and love sees is best and most needed. I ask Him to bless Stanley and Myra in their love and to help them to so plan that their lives may be full of usefulness and then they will be full of joy. I am very happy over the engagement.

With lots of love to all,

Will.

*[I believe that Willard made a typographical error when he typed the year 1914. It should be 1915 because he refers to "the girls in Peking". From many of his other letters, I know he means his sisters, Flora and Mary. Flora and Mary were not in Peking until 1915. He also refers to the demands of Japan on China. This too, fits better in 1915. Lastly, Willard refers to a letter from his cousin Mrs. Stark. This letter is dated January 15, 1915 and is in the Yale archives.]

Peking, Mar. 15, 1915.

Dear folks at home:-

The news of Olive's going came one day this last week [Olive Beard, daughter of Oliver Gould Beard, Jr. b. 25 July 1898, d. 4 Feb 1915. The death certificate states the cause of death as "not determined- probably Valvular Disease of Heart."]. Someday it is so hard to realize it and to reconcile one's self to it that writing anything has been out of the question. We kept the letter only about an hour before we remailed it to Will. The same day came the 'Sentinel' telling of Aunt Mary's death which must have been the same day as Olive's. What a contrast one's feeling are toward each! After all my thinking about Olive, I come back to the same conclusion, that I'd rather have the heart ache now than never to have had Olive. The memory of her will always be of sunshine in spite of everything. ["Aunt Mary" is Mary E. Tomlinson Drew, wife of Wright Drew who is the brother of Nancy Maria Nichols Beard's mother, Phebe Ann Drew Nichols. This Aunt Mary Drew died on February 5, 1915. She was 94 years old, and according to her obituary in the Evening Sentinel, "She had been ill for some time and for a greater part of the thirty-one years in which she made her home with Mrs. Glover (her daughter) she had been confined to her bed."]

The days are flying by here with the usual rapidity. School goes quietly along and plans for next year are maturing. We are now busy with plans for the closing of this year's sessions. We shall give some public exercises probably March 21st, but school will not finish until June 11th. Then we shall have to pack and move our goods and chattels to Tung-chou, and then get off for Foochow.- Mr. Ding is here in Peking taking the examinations for a government position. He is just about now taking the third examination. We have not found this out through him. He has been very reticent about telling his business.

Last week our last box from Boston arrived so that we unpacked it on Saturday. We were glad to get some of its contents.

The weather still stays cold so that we are glad of our heavy covers for the night. I have shed two night gowns but we need all our bed covers. We have had some fierce dust storms. They were really too bad to be out in them. It is remarkable to see how they cleanse the air. The sunshine is as clear and the air as fresh as after a thunderstorm in the summer at home. Mrs. Ingram (of the A.B.C.F.M.) says that the cleaning of the street smells is decidedly a great blessing to the city. Some missionaries here for a few days told of seeing a drift of this Gobi dust high enough to reach the tops of one of the city walls, which they saw on their way to Peking. Tons of this dust fall like snow- or like the ashes from a volcano- covering everything with a yellow dirt quite different from anything here. Lovingly- Flora.

*[This letter dated Mar. 22, 1915 was written from Peking, China by Mary to the ones at home. Today is the equinox and the day President Yuan Shih Kai goes to worship at the Confucious Temple. March 22, 1915

Dear Ones at Home,

As I write at Monday a Chinese band reminds me that today is the equinox. Sometime today Pres. Yuan goes to the Confucious temple to worship. We went up there last Sunday and saw it in it's gala dress; brilliant red silk hangings on every side, marble newly white washed, floor newly carpeted with heavy matting, building newly painted in bright green, blue, red and yellow.

Mar 26- somehow this week has sped by on wings. Last week the Postways[?] were here until Thursday and we had great fun playing with the seven months old baby boy. He was dear.

We have had the girls up three times to sew and already have runners enough hemstitched for four tables besides several seams partly done on the tablecloths. The girls loved the hemstitching but are not so eager over the seaming. We are using the Japanese toweling which we got en-route out.

Mrs. Galt has been in Peking all the week to be with Mable who had to go for another operation. She of course has Baby Wendell with her. We called at Teng Shih Kou Tuesday to see Wendell. They brought him down and he showed off beautifully.

On Wednesday we had a queer day. The air was very yellow but there was no wind. About ten the sand began to settle and it literally rained sand for about an hour. It has been almost too dark to study but the settling of the sand cleared the air. There was a little wind in the afternoon but not much.

I went to Mrs. Wang for my lesson as usual in spite of the weather. It was cold but walking warmed us up.

Today we went to the Friday Club. The subject was Mrs. Browning, and we had two fine papers. We evidently got two rickshaw men who did not know the way and my man got nervous lest he get lost. About half way up my man stopped and motioned for me to change rickshaws. When I refused to pay him off he decided to take me on and got me there safely.

Last Saturday we had a jolly good time. We left here at 3.30 and went down to Mrs. Drew Brown's (Miss Chisholm) for tea. Other friends came in so we were quite long at tea. After that Mrs. Brown and we two walked along the wall to the corner. Mrs. B. turned back but we went on as we were to meet Mr. and Mrs. Hall, Mr. Howells and Mr. Dean near the Astronomical instruments [at the Imperial Observatory, Peking] for a picnic supper. We formed a secluded spot and built a jolly fire. Mrs. Hall had brought her boy and cooked bacon and sausages and coffee. We also had chicken, pickles, bread and butter, deviled eggs, cookies and fruit. Mr. Dean had to leave in a hurry as he teaches in night school. The rest of us walked on the wall back to the Hatamen and took rickshaws home from there. The moon was small and we got off the wall just in time because a bank of sand or water obscured it very soon after we got onto the Hatamen.

There has been in the home a German who claims American citizenship, for over a week. It is interesting to hear him be neutral. Perhaps it is more so as personally I am inclined to favor the other side. In our questions we five are in perfect accordance. You can guess it I think.

The last letter from home was the one telling of Olive's death and funeral. A mail last Saturday brought us nothing. I should think you would be too exhausted physically and spiritually to write or do anything. I can not make it seem real yet and my heart goes out to you all especially to Oliver. Ruth is right when she says he is a saint.

We have had great times with the servants. The cook was ousted and in two days a new one installed. He is proving good. The boy went home for a visit, the first in several years, and left us with a mediocre or poor substitute. Last week Mr. Burgess was called down about 5.00 A.M. to care for the coolie who had had a very bad hemorrhage. "Oneshe" [?] had to be shipped to the hills and we have a very poor coolie in his place. It makes it very hard for Mrs. Burgess because we have had company every meal but two since the boy left.

Flora was yesterday appointed chairman of the committee for topics in the Friday Club's next year program. We are to study "Women in the History of the World".

I have to write a German letter to Mrs. Wang today. That is part of my German work, to write a letter between each two lessons. She corrects it at the next lesson with me.

Mr. Van Wederkend helped me prepare my German lesson this week and it was fun to surprise Mrs. Wang by a perfect lesson. It is snowing for a change, although it has been cool for several days.

Flora is going out soon to the bank so I hope this delayed letter can start off at once.

With lots of love

Mary Beard.

Foochow China

April 2- 1915

Dear Ruth:-

You would be interested to sit with me as I write here. The scene would interest you. I am on the river bank waiting for the launch to take me to Diong Loh. The first thing of interest is the times of this launch. The last time I tried to take it I missed it by about 30 minutes. I was told today that it would start at 11 a.m. - possibly a little later, at the latest 12 p.m. I left a class to come on time. It is now 11:30 and no launch- It stays over night and comes up to Foochow and returns each day. The time depends much on the time of the tide as Diong Loh is about five miles in from the main river and at low water there is no water in the creek. People tell me that I will need to wait another hour. How is that? So I'll get as much pleasure as possible by visiting with you. The second interesting thing would be our near companions. One stands so close to my side that I could not put up my pen when it went dry. There are eight in all. They are now pulling up my trouser legs to see what holds up my socks. It is raining and I am wearing my overshoes that Karl Decktor sent me. The men are much interested in them.-What did they cost? How long can you wear them? Will they crack? What did your shoes cost? He has 2 pairs on, one over the other.

Then we look down at the river. Little boats are waiting to take us almost anywhere,-to the launch- or across the river or up or down. They are as thick as they can stick. Then farther out are groups of little boats at anchor. And here and there a house boat and then the launches for different places, and out in the deepest water the big junks that go to Shanghai, Trenku, Ning Po etc. Every one is talking- many are splitting their throats in the effort to sell sugar cane or candy to get passengers.

In the distance on the opposite bank is the hill on which are the buildings of the English Consulate and Meth. Mission. We see also about half of the Bridge of Ten Thousand Ages.

I have with me my little bag that Stanley bought for me in New York and which I believe all the brothers and sisters had a share in. It has been one of the best companions I have ever had. It is dependable and very handy. Then I have a cloth flour bag with various articles in it to take to D. Loh. Among them a lunch. This will undergo a metamorphosis on the way down.

We expect Mr. and Mrs. Peet any day now. Mrs. Hubbard says they are in Shanghai now. They should bring a big American mail for we have had none for more than a week- two weeks papers are due. - Now a fellow has just sat down in front of me and is smoking a cigarette. I am smoking the same cigarette by proxy, and pay no money for it.

Yesterday and today the Governments Schools in Foochow have had a big athletic meet. I had to close school yesterday to allow the boys to go. I went a little while in the afternoon and saw a good sack race, and a fair Indian club drill, and a sham battle. The Red Cross staff were present and attended a wounded soldier. One of the nurses was a Chinese young woman in a foreign white dress. Her hair was very heavy and she had it done with a big rat and evidently she had not caught on to the latest style of garter for those of her vocation, for when she tried to run her hose and her skirts failed to make connection and with one hand on her hair and the other holding her skirt and her hose down on her shoes. She produced sensations in a foreigner that if unrestrained would tend to lead to a smile. The crowds were immense and the boys had a good time. I had a day off and was able to do some things that have been put off too long already.

I addressed the envelope to you a week ago and put with it a letter I received from the teacher of De Sang Gaing School. He is a student of Foochow College and taught there last year. You will be interested in the letter itself and in the translation which I will make and send with it.

Things look as if we should have a Union Arts Course started this Fall in Foochow. I am not sure that I have written you since I went to Amoy three weeks ago tomorrow. Bishop Price Church Missionary Society of England [unreadable word] and I went to see the Amoy Missionaries about joining with us in this course and we found them most cordial to us. I was "actively" seasick on the way down and not "actively" sea sick on the way home- I wish that launch would come.-

I have bought a drawn work grass linen table cover about 3 ft. square for Myra. I wonder how I shall send it. I think it is a beauty. There is to be a wedding here of a young business man and a missionary of the Meth Mission- Miss Hall- She has been here about a year. He is English- She American. For them I have bought 12 doilies of drawn work. In this work of selecting wedding presents I miss Ellen awfully- if a man is privileged to use that much abused adjective.

College kept filling up till a week ago. We now register 280 in the building called Foochow College. In the new building erected last year we have 70 and at the Dudley Memorial Church 15. So we say Foochow College has 365 this year.

I have written a literal translation of the letter between the lines. This will tell you that the school has this year already 50 pupils with more to come. I purchased some Sunday picture cards for them the other day and the teacher Mr. Hu says the pupils are so many that the cards do not go round. The school is doing very well indeed this year.

At Diong Loh I found all well. We are building a new house there. I am Chairman of the Building Comm. I found all the tiles up in the roof but not tard [tarred]. They should weigh 2 lb. 4 oz. They do weigh 1 lb. 9 oz. I told the contractor we would wait for the proper tiles. He will have to change them.

Spring has come with you and ploughing is begun- spraying will be in progress soon. My how I wish it could be made right for me to be there for it all.

I am making all plans to come home next year- that sounds near.

Give my love to all. It was good to receive Elizabeth's letter a few days ago. Hope fathers boil is all gone.

Very Lovingly

Will

An article by Neil H. Lewis in the Foochow Messenger April 1930, page 3 (American Board Mission, Foochow, China) tells about a new bridge planned. [About April 1915]

Dear folks-

If Dektor has not already sent my shoes will you ask him to put rubber heels on them, please. I have put on my high shoes with rubber heels and like them so much I want some more. If you can without too much trouble, will you get me two pair of kid gloves, size 7 1/2, one white and one black with white backs if you can get them; If not all black. You had best get $1.50 value as they are heavier and near better than a cheaper glove. We also wish two whisk brooms or clothes brushes. We can get nothing of the sort here except a very coarse short bristled affair for 85 cents Mexican. I had no brush to start with and Flora lost hers somewhere en route.

We have met this week two Chinese men who have a wide reputation. One, a Mr. John Bo Sing, (I do not vouch for spelling, but it sounds this way) who is a fine scholar and head of the Sunday School work with head quarters at Tientsin. He and Mr. Burgess went to the Western tombs together for three days. The other is General John who is of the Imperial army. He is a small man and very lame because of being dragged by a horse, but withal very keen minded. He had a Bible Class of officials here this afternoon.

A Mr. Wolff from Shansi is here for a few days and most cordially invites Flora and me to visit them up in Shansi. It takes 23 hours travelling steadily but is an easy trip in two days. The trip is over the mountains must be beautiful and I hope we can go.

Flora probably told of our calls, on receiving day, our dinner at the Fenn's to meet the four Mongolia friends, our trip to the Temple of Heaven etc. I had the experience of being thrown from my ricksha but jumped over the ricksha man and landed in softish dust so did not get hurt. My arm which I used to save my head is lame but that is all. Poor Miss Andrews got thrown last week and cut her head badly. She was unconscious for some time and the policeman had to have her brought to the A.B.C.F.M. as that was the nearest foreign compound. My man shattered his toe on a root of a tree which was hidden under the dust.

I wrote Miss Costikyan today. I know she will understand. It was alright to send Mrs. E the film. I shall write her that she may keep it if she wishes. I intended sending her that one anyway as I shall never need it.

With love

Mary.

[This letter dated about April 11, 1915 was written from Peking, China by Mary to the ones at home. Schools were closed one week for Easter. They visited the Great Wall and the Ming Tombs. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[About April 11, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

You have missed out on one letter because I felt so mean on the Sunday when it was my turn write and it took me until Friday to get the energy. The cold has entirely departed long ere since and this vacation has been a grand one.

School closed March 31 for just one week. We had no celebration except the reading of the first issue of our school paper. That took about half an hour.

On Thursday we served all day. I cut and fitted a green striped seersucker dress which I bought at a Chinese store outside the Tsien Men [probably Chien Men]. Flora made a dress partway and cut a shirtwaist. In the afternoon I took time to go to the Post Office for my Japanese crepe which Mrs. Burgess' mother had purchased for me. It is a beauty, with the chrysanthemum pattern embroidered on both waist and skirt. It cost less than $15.00 silver after postage and city duty were paid. That is about $6.00 gold.

On Friday we suddenly decided to go to the Great Wall and Ming tomb on the 11.15 train so had to hustle. There were seven of us; Mr. and Mrs. Hayes of Evanston, Ill., and Mrs. Harrison of Portland, Oregon who were tourists; then Mr. Price a student interpreter and Mr. Gilchrist who was in Foochow last year working and who returns to American this coming summer.

We gave the hotel porter our baggage when we passed through Nankou and went on up to the Great Wall. The three men and I went to the top of the first spur of the Wall. Flora and Mrs. H. dropped out way down on the wall and Mrs. H. just at the foot of the last long climb. When we got back to the station the train had waited for us twenty minutes. Only Flora and Mrs. H. rode down as the rest of us thought we preferred to spend the afternoon walking in the mountains instead of in Nankou where there is nothing to see. It took us just four hours to reach the hotel. The railroad is entirely Chinese, Chinese construction and Chinese management but done on foreign plans. It is a wonderful piece of engineering and the masonry itself is worth close study. The Great Wall is hardly out of sight all of the way but appears most unexpectedly on a mountain top. I had on an old pair of shoes and wore some bad blisters on my feet. On Saturday we were off on donkey back for the Ming tomb. Our donkeys were as slow as slow can be but we had fun nevertheless trying to walk a race. It was a great effort to make them change the original order but much kicking and much urging could accomplish it. We all got off at the Great Marble Pilo and walked the two or more miles to the tomb.

We counted eleven tombs nestled in the mountain sides. The hotel had put up our lunch and sent a coolie to carry it so we ate in front of the tomb under the trees. The gatekeeper was cranky and would not let us in but we scared him so that a friend of his followed us for a long distance begging us to return. The friend would pay for us and we could pay him half; no, we needn't pay anything; no he would pay us to return only please do so to save the face of the keeper. Mr. Price told him the keeper's face was not worth saving and we went on.

We reached the hotel and had only fifteen minutes till train time. We were home by 6.30 that evening after two fine days. I was so foot sore I could hardly hobble and Flora had fallen from her donkey and hurt her side so we were a sorry spectacle as we came up the walk.

On Sunday we were refreshed and went to the Methodist Church at 11.00 for the Easter Service. Twenty-eight babies were baptized and six men taken into the church. After service we met Mr. Ding and five young men from Foochow. In the afternoon we took naps and almost missed foreign service. At the regular service the choir gave two anthems and after the benediction a short song service.

On Monday I delivered my Easter baskets because my long nap had taken the time meant for that on Sunday. I got a dear little letter from Baby Wang thanking me for her eggs and telling me she had eaten them all.

Monday was so windy that the trip to the Western Hills was doubtful. When I awoke at 5.30 Tuesday it was calm and clear so I arose and dressed. Flora's side still troubled so she stayed here. At Mrs. Ingrams I found they too had decided to go and at 6.15 we were off to catch a 7.15 train at the farther corner of the city. Others met us at the station and 15 of us had a fine day. We had to walk about 2 ½ miles to the hill top where Dr. Ingram has a summer cottage and where we were to picnic. Most of the party took a long walk down to a little village but I dared not lest I disturb my blisters again. The wind came up and blew a gale so we came down to a different station to have the wind at our backs. It was a little farther but much more pleasant.

Today I began by taking two hours to read German with Mr. von Wedeking, then I called on Mable Galt who is still in the hospital. This afternoon I go to Mrs. Wang for a German lesson and back to call on some ladies with Flora about 5.30.

Tomorrow school reopens. I have had such a good time I do not like to have it end, but it means summer is so much the nearer.

When I got home I found Flora had gone out the Chinese Theater with Mr. Burgess, Mrs. Wo and Dr. Lincoln (a lady Dr.). We were relieved to get Ruth's letter and hope she is much better. I am glad the doctors feel that they know what causes the trouble and hope the medicine does dissolve the stones [Ruth suffered from gall stones for 10 years according to her death certificate.]. How are all of the rest of you? We are O.K.

Mary Beard.

P.S. I am sending a gold draft to Father for ($25) twenty five dollars. I do not want to get so badly in debt that I feel oppressed and I know the other life insurance comes due now soon. I will send the duplicate some time later so as to make sure you get one at least.

Lots of love

Mary.

Apr. 12, 1915.

Dear folks at home:-

It is three weeks since I have written home, but you will have received letters from Mary and some parcels from both of us. I sent a bundle of silk scraps which I thought mother might like for her patchwork or for silk bags. Two of the pieces are long enough for neckties if they are suitable in coloring. I found the bunch in a curio place. The designs in the brocade are quite unusual and not to be had in the silks made now. I also sent to you some editorials cut from our morning paper which will give you the Peking side of the Chino-Japanese question. I certainly hope the government of U.S. can do something to prevent this atrocity. It is the old story of the 'Wolf and the Lamb' being acted over again. The overbearing conduct of the Japanese everywhere through China is the common topic of discussion. They are evidently bent on making the Chinese angry so that something may happen so the Japanese can say they have a cause for fighting. The Chinese have done everything in their power to prevent any trouble, but it is also the old story of "The Arab and His Camel" being lived over again. It is exasperating to us foreigners to have to sit calmly by and see the gradual reinforcement of the Japanese forces. They are brought over with very plausible reasons, but when once here, the real reason carries out. It does not seem as though such things could take place in this era of civilization. It seems as if a century of medievalism had cropped out and taken us all by surprise. My faith in Pres. Yuan is just as strong as ever. I believe if any man can steer this huge country through these tortuous rapids he can do it. He has been very wise and dignified so far in the negotiations, tho we hear all kinds of rumors about the results of the conferences. How I'd like to tell you a lot more, but I wish you would be sure to let me know if this letter reaches you! All letters coming from India are opened and read by a censor but are so marked. The Japanese do not take this open way but are so skillful at opening a letter that even a seal does not show it. Consequently, I am mailing this at the Russian P.O. to go via Siberia. I believe letters travelling that way are respected at least. Please let me know.

Since I wrote my last letter we have had a vacation. Two days of it we spent in going up to the "Great Wall" and the "Ming Tombs." They were perfect days and we had a congenial party numbering seven in all. The trip to the tomb is quite a long one and over dried up rocky river beds. It took us four hours to travel it by extremely slow donkeys. The trip back is somewhat shorter since we did not go all the way back through the arches. We saw twelve of the thirteen tombs, though we did not get inside of the one which every one goes to see- Yung Lo's tomb. For some reason the gatemen balked and after he had once taken a stand he would not change, for it would mean loss of "face." When he found that we really were not going to go in, then his "friend" began to intercede and finally offered to pay out of his own pocket the full price which the gate keeper was asking of us. It was then too late for us to go as we had to meet a certain train, so this is twice I have made the trip and not see the real goal. I shall never try it again. I am still somewhat hampered by the fall I got from my donkey, - and that is another thing I shall never do again- ride a donkey. The saddle consists of several layers of wadded pads and there is nothing to hold them on except the one clear underneath which has a narrow strap loosely buckled around the little donkey's body. The others are thrown over and, I suppose, they do make the sitting a little softer. My donkey did not behave very well and I think his master was disciplining him just as I was readjusting myself in the saddle(?) where I slipped right over his head. It was not far to fall, so I was not much hurt.

We are feeling very anxious for one of our scholars. Several weeks ago she had a slight operation on her nose. The doctor had said it would lay her up for four or five days, but it has been at least five weeks and yesterday she had her ninth operation. Mary and I have just been to see her this morning and she is a sorry sight. I do hope this may conquer the trouble. I can't help feeling that it was most unwise doing the first operation during one of our fiercest dust storms. At any rate there is serious infection and it looks as if they are racing with it now. We feel all the more concerned because about three months ago [one] of the doctors succumbed to a like cause. Mable Galt is a girl whose character and gifts make her stand out distinctly beyond any of the other pupils of our school. She has such a mature way of doing everything that comes into her way that she is beloved by the grown people as well as by the children. I do hope this operation yesterday is going to head off all need of any more.

Last Sunday was Easter and Mary and I went down to the Methodist Chinese Church. It is the largest one in Peking probably seating a full thousand. Every seat was full, also the chairs in the aisles. The music is led by two violins, and two brass horns lead by the organ, so the audience kept together pretty well. We saw twenty-eight little Chinese babies baptized. It was most interesting to see these mothers coming up the aisles as their names were called. The little infants behaved remarkable well for most of them just cooed, and only one lifted up his voice to weep. - In our Union Church we had a special song service after the regular church service which we all stayed to enjoy.

On Tuesday Mary took a trip with a lot of the American Board people out to the Western Hills, where they have a summer resort of several cottages. It is a fine place for an Easter rest so she went with several of the people who spent the day with the people out there. I did not go, but spent most of the day sewing. Just about 6 P.M. Mr. Burgess asked if I did not want to go to a Chinese Theater- so quite a party of us went. It was a well built house with a balcony for the women while the men sat in the 'pit'. The stage was a large square with a railing around three sides, and the two entrances at the rear. It is impossible to tell you much about it for I could not understand a thing and the whole performance was so different from anything I had ever seen. The first part was opera and the singers when through simply turned their backs and had tea brought them between the solos. The audience applauded, by means of a shout instead of by hands. The end was a regular melee of clanging cymbals, brandishing weapons, turning somersaults, and shouting. It was interesting to me that many of the audience left before this demonstration they evidently preferred the singing. - Lovingly- Flora.

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

An envelope has been in my desk addressed to you for some time. I cannot afford to look up in my correspondence register to see to whom I really ought to write so I'll just use this envelope this week.

The big event of the week was the wedding of Mr. Skeats to Miss Hall. You know Mr. Skeats. Miss Hall is from the U.S. altho she lived in Canada till a very short time ago. She came to Foochow a year ago last Fall to teach in the Methodist Woman's College. The wedding was booked for 11 a.m. It came off at about 11:30, was held in the chapel of this new building. Mr. Ward- Mildred Worley's husband did the act. The bride wore a white dress and an interminably long veil, I stepped on it but got off before I held her up. That's about all I can write about her. The prettiest part of the wedding were the little flower girls, - Helen McLachlin and Imogene Grace Ward. They were dressed in delicate pink dresses, and preceded the bride, who was led in by Mrs. Trimble, with a large basket of rose leaves. These they strewed over the floor as they went for the bride to walk on. The bridesmaids were Miss Wallace and Miss Hurlburt (new) the best man Dr. Moorehead, others just for looks I suppose, Mr. Hook- in Dodwells with Mr. Skeats, and Mr. Conlin (C.M.S.). The flowers were all Marguerites. When I got home I looked up Marjorie sitting among the Marguerites in our yard on South Side. It was as pretty as any thing I saw Wed. Mrs. Mac sang before the party came in and Ruby Sia played the wedding march.

A Miss Lulu A. Frances -Presbyterian from Soochow wants my rooms on Kuliang this Summer. A letter from her yesterday asked if I could possibly take in two gentlemen or if they could find rooms near. - Wonder what I am getting into. I judge Kuliang will be full all right this year.

This noon there was a Chinese dinner with the Collectors for the City Church and then a committee meeting which lasted till 3 p.m.= S.S. time I was congratulating myself this morning that I could have a good long time to write you today, but it turned out after all that I could not begin. The letter till after the days work was over at 8 p.m. You do not know how hungry I am for news of what you are doing and how you are.

I can only commit you each morning and evening to God and ask Him to help you each so to live each day that at its close you may think over its deeds and words and thoughts after Him. My finite mind may have in it the same thoughts that God's infinite mind has.

For several weeks I have been studying in my morning Bible Study the trial of Jesus. This morning I realized as never before how clearly both Pilate and Herod pronounced him absolute innocent of any political crime and how this threw the Jesus who wished his death back on their own envy and jealousy solely, and made them responsible for his death. Last Monday night the Life of Christ was given in five moving picture films to Foochow City Christians. I am glad to have seen it once- but once is enough.

May God bless you all in the life of the home, of the school, of the church of the playground and at all times.

Very Lovingly
Your Father Willard L. Beard

Dear Mary and Flora:-

A letter came from Phebe M. last evening enclosing others from Shelton all of which I am sending on to you. For two weeks my mails have been very precious if scarcity alone makes for that quality. But I have heard directly and indirectly from or of all the friends. I do not like the reports about Ruth altho I do not know the outcome or the cause of these gall stones.

I have bought a table cover-grass linen-drawn work for Stanley and Myra. Have you sent such things home? I have also bought a silk, embroidered waist and a linen dress pattern- drawn and embroidered. I may keep them till I go home- unless I find a good way to send them. I also have 4 mandarin robes that I paid $14 for and 4 or 5 things of beads.

A Miss Lulu A. Francis of Soochow is thinking of taking my other rooms on Kuliang with friends.

Mr. Ritter of the Y.M.C.A. has been in Foochow for a week. It would make you girls blush if I should quote what he told me of your work in Peking. It made me tremble lest I should feel proud of being your brother.

Last week while Ritter and a Rev. Wang of the Volunteer movement were here 32 boys declared for Christ, - 8 volunteered for the ministry.

We are having abundance of rain and I'm still wearing my heaviest outer clothes.

Tell Mr. Burgess I'm working on that book of his but it will be slow. I cannot spend six or eight hours a day in committee meeting and two in class and also keep up all these other demands.

Did I tell you I have engaged my cook for the summer and his wife is to be with him. We'll have some one to darn stockings then.

The Japan scare seems to have either blown over or the people are used to it.

With Love to both

Will.

[April 18, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

The weeks are going with lightning speed. Lets hope the years go as fast. This last week brought letters from Ruth, Phebe and Mother all by one mail. Mails are very infrequent these days being from 10 days to 14 days apart. It makes nice fat mails when they do arrive.

On Monday was Mother's Club to which Flora went. I struck and went walking instead. I went to the Photographers for nine films I had left last week and came by the Hatamen. A polo game was in progress so I lined up with the Chinese by the fence and watched. It was quite exciting. When that was over I started home and heard the dismal drum and horn of a funeral. To one side was a red and yellow paper structure surrounded by a crowd of Chinese so again I joined the crowd. The group of mourners approached and spread down mats of various kinds. Then they knelt while two of their members carried forward a miniature pyre overlaid with a yellow cloth. This they laid before the paper altar and set fire to it. In about two minutes the whole was only a heap of ashes. Then the mourners gathered up their mats and went back up the street. A few nights later I saw preparations for another and rushed home to tell Flora so she could see it. The pyre was much larger and more elegant. I know because I saw it in pieces being carried to the spot.

On Tuesday we went to "Lin Fo Ssu", the periodic fair. Flora got her big brass tray for which she has been looking all winter. I got a small tray because my offer was taken up and I had to. I also got a "Miguiti" which is a tiny round image on a long wire. He has a "shoot the shoots" arrangement down which he goes bang. I squandered two cents on him. That is about one third of one of our home pennies. By the way, did the linen for Bessie ever arrive? You wrote that you had my letter saying it had been sent. How about the little images I sent Mother for her birthday? Did they get there, and were they in good condition? I have some more to send as soon as I am assured that they are good [unreadable word]?

On Wednesday I did not go to Mrs. Wang's because Flora wanted to go to the meeting of the Old Ladies Home. We did not leave promptly from school so it was 4.38 when we left here. We got down the wrong HuTung and at last arrived just as the meeting was about to break up so did not go in. I have now a pair of new shoes and wore a blister on my left heel. Just as we were getting home I broke the blister. I had to ride to school the rest of the week and could wear no shoes except my pumps. The good care has paid for now it is not at all sore and it is only three days ago that I hurt it.

On Thursday I rode up to call on Mrs. Wang to find out how her little girl was. I found the child out in the court for the first time but quite happy. She had feared scarlet fever but the doctor said no.

Friday afternoon we went downtown. I got some fresh roses for my hat and shall wait for the fresh assignment of hats before purchasing a new one.

We had been invited to spend this Sunday at Ching Hua with Mrs. Pearley. The invitation was recalled because of the death of Mrs. Puckett one of the teachers out there. She had an operation less than three weeks ago and was recovering finely when she had a sudden attack; and finally, on Friday, as a last resort a second operation was done. She died that afternoon. The funeral is today and it is cold and dreary.

Yesterday I did little except keep a woman busy mending, work on some baby socks and go hat hunting again.

This morning I finished rereading "Ivanhoe." One of my classes is reading it and I had almost forgotten the story.

I am wondering how Mrs. Smith is. It sounds very serious when Leolyn is sent for from California. I have wished that she had taken little Leolyn east with her, because she too would be a good tonic for Mrs. Smith. [Fannie Harriet Seaver Smith, mother of Leolyn, died March 25, 1915.] Your letters seem to contain much of sickness. Hattie was better, Uncle Dan recovered, Aunt Ella the same [Uncle Dan and Ella Nichols-Dan is Nancy Nichols Beard's brother. According to Edith Beard Valentine, they lived in a house in the White Hills area of Shelton.]. Ruth writes of slow recovery for herself.

When I sent the shoe order I thought I ordered the size for Mrs. Burgess as the same as mine. She has had trouble with her feet so if you have not sent the shoes do not do so at all. She needs a special shoe and has ordered it elsewhere.

Flora says you did rightly in selling the picture to Miss Brewster. She says anything above $5.00 will do as that gives her more than her money back in them.

Mr. Dailey, head of the Y.M.C.A. arrived yesterday morning and is here for supper this evening. He is a big man. His wife and family are in Switzerland for a year.

Mable Galt is still in the hospital. Altogether she has had 8 operations and probably has one or two ahead of her. Her nose must have been in a terribly bad state. Now they are taking out dead bone and removing the obstacles which cause pus to form.

I am enclosing the duplicate order for the $25 I am sending father.

We send your letters on so quickly that I am afraid some questions may be left without response.

I do hope for better news of the health of friends and family in the next letter.

With much love

April 18, 1915.

P.S. At dinner this evening one of the guests was a Mr. Knipp of Canton. Last summer he was at Kuliang and became acquainted with Willard whom he admires very greatly as a most capable man.

Mon. A.M.

I have just received notice from the Japanese Post Office that my shoes are there. I will go for them this afternoon.

With love

Mary

Dear Kathleen:-

How very pleased and at the same time proud I was to receive your good letter which came in the last home mail. I am sorry that I had so much work on Sunday that I could not answer it then and start the answer home at once. My Sunday work was like this: at 9 a.m. teach a Normal Class of boys in the Sunday School lesson for April 25th. At 10:30 be at Ciu Buo to preach and afterward conduct communion. At 2 p.m. after dinner, take a little nap- do you remember when you and I used to lie down together after dinner for a nap, and how you used to peek to see when I was asleep and then quietly slip off the bed and leave me asleep and run off to play? The Sunday School lasted till 4:30. Each class was allowed to ask a question of some other class and they got very much interested and held over time. I have for my class the third year boys who do not go out to teach in other Sunday Schools. There are about thirty five boys in the class. At 5 p.m. we had a Vesper service at Mrs. Cooper's. Supper after that and at 7:30 I preached at Iong Gio Haeng. Now do you think it was right for me to go to bed after I got home- instead of sitting up to write to you? And yesterday I had time only to write Mama. The foundation for the new Church is going in and the masons wanted to put in the concrete for the foundations of the eight large pillars that are to hold the roof. I had to show them how to mix the broken stone, sand and cement. Then came faculty meeting and at 6:30 a Chinese feast.

Mr. and Mrs. T.M. Wilkinson and the little five year old Chinese girl they have adopted spent Sunday with us. Her name is Dorothy. I let her take a little doll that I received at Christmas. It was one that has a round base and will always stands up- never lie down. I think she must have taken it home. I shall try to find a Chinese doll for you. Altho I do not know just what you want. The real Chinese doll- such as the little Chinese girls play with is made of clay and very fragile. But I think you want a doll dressed like a Chinese. This is what I'm going to try to get for you.

Friday afternoon I went over South Side to a meeting of the Kuliang Public Improvement Committee at Mr. Skerritt-Rogers and took supper with Mr. and Mrs. Mac.

I am enclosing a check that someone tried to forge on me in July 1913. You may like to look at it. I do not want it any more.

About thirty boys are planning to unite with the church next Sunday. This will be the largest number that ever joined this church at one time. One day last year 28 joined.

The weather continues very cool. I am wearing my winter clothes yet. I wonder if you are having a garden this year and if Grandpa's bees are still making honey and if anyone has any hens there still. I want to know all about your school, too. I have asked two or three times if Dorothy joined the church last July!! but no one has yet written about it.

When your letter came-this one is the first you have written all alone with no help at all,- I put it with two others of yours that I have kept= the one you wrote before you could write at all. It went like this [scribbles] all over the page, and the one you wrote with Mama telling you how to spell etc. So now I have three of your "first" letters.

I have so many things that I use every day that you dear people at home have given me that I am reminded of you all the time. I specially enjoy your wash cloths and Mama's rough towel. I expect you will laugh at me but I would not let the coolie wash that. I washed it myself. Then your powdered soap is a joy whenever my hands are specially dirty. I wore the beautiful white silk tie to Miss Hall's wedding.

Dr. and Mrs. Bliss, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg and Mr. and Mrs. Beach are all in Foochow with their children and are all going to Shanghai and next steamer for America Miss Garretson goes with them.

I hope God is in reality a father to each one of you, and that you are His children, and that when people see you they can tell you are His children by your actions.- This is your very loving Father's prayer for you.

Willard L. Beard

Foochow, China
May 2- 1915

Dear Phebe and Kathleen:-

Your good letters came last evening. They were waiting for me as I came home from the reception given to Vice Consul and Mrs. Thompson on the eve of their departure from Foochow to enter the employ of the Standard Oil Co. Mrs. Consul Ponters gave the reception in the Consulate- the day had been very rainy and sour. Miss Perkins and I were the only Am B'd representatives. The affair was very pleasant- Mrs. Eyestone, Mrs. Lachlin=Daphne Remire= Mr. Jones. The new H. and S. Bank Sub. agent sang. Mr. Eyestone played the cornet. Mrs. Greigg played and a gentleman played the violin and I came away, stopping at Mrs. Walter Lacy's to buy some dishes for Kuliang.

The weather is sure strange this year. I sit in my study with winter outer clothes and an overcoat on. We have had a fire in the grate for each meal today. There has been no sun for about two weeks.

On Thursday Mr. and Mrs. Beach and Frances, Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg and two little girls and Dr. and Mrs. Bliss and two girls and little boy, and Miss Garretson went down to the Steamer for Shanghai. All but Dr. Bliss will go to Am. He will go to Shanghai with the party and from there up the Yangste to Kuliang and overland to Shaowu unless I can buy from the foreign dairy here a foreign bull for him. Then he will come back to Foochow and take it up to Shaowu. He plans to spend the Summer alone in Shaowu.

Yesterday I attended a unique funeral. The man who died was the one whom I received to the church last Winter- you remember I went to his house- a poor little two roomer affair- and received him. We all thought then that he would live only a very short time. He has something like dropsy. Dr. Cooper drew off the liquid for him some twelve times. Last Friday he took a sedan and went to the Hospital to be relieved again. He sat down on a bench to wait and just went to sleep apparently without a struggle. His faith was beautiful to behold. He has known for months that he had no hope of living long and has been looking with pleasure to the call to go home.

Another pleasing funeral comes tomorrow. This is of an old man. His son is a very earnest member of the Au Ciu Church. He has not himself confessed Jesus. But just before he died, he told his children and grand children that they must not allow any superstitious rites at his funeral. "My friends will surely send in idol paper. But you must not burn it. Just receive it, put it in a corner and afterward throw it away." All his instructions were carried out. To morrow we are asked to meet for his funeral service.

This morning I had the pleasant privilege of preaching and receiving to membership here 28- seven of them women. I also baptized four children. You would have been interested for two of the children were Dwight Douglass and Marion Jean Newell. Marion is a wee route[?] of a girl, but here eyes are as bright as dollars and she sat up straight in her mother's arms and looked as if she understood it all.

Your marks Phebe are very interesting, and I greatly appreciate them. I wonder why none of the others send theirs.

Yes you will miss Mama when you get to College- but you will still have with you the training she has given you and you will find that your ideals-which are now of course several- will furnish rules that will guide you in specific cases. I have found that my safety in many cases of doubt during the past three years- for I have missed Dear Mama's counsel sadly- has been this maxim- "When I do not know what to do – do nothing."

I am still reading the Life of Christ. Just finishing it I mark my study book until it looks badly used. -Clock is striking 10. Let me hear about your Glee Club- Also will you all talk over the matter of the piano. Do you want to keep the piano. Shall I buy one here and have it ready for Mama and the little girls or shall we bring the one you have out here with us?

As to your loosing the debate to the Sophomores- We show the stuff of which we are made more surely in the manner we accept defeat than we do by success.

I wish I could hear Billy Sunday. He is certainly a rare man- a natural man- a man used of God.

Keep praying for me- I need it physically, mentally and spiritually. I talk with God about each of you by name every morning and night. He is very good to us- let us love so He can continue to be good to us.

Your loving Father

Willard L. Beard.

Dear Ruth:-

Of course that means every body else too. For my letters are so rare and my relatives and friends so numerous that I do not even try to get all around with my replies. As soon as one of your letters reaches me I hustle to get it into the next mail for the north so that the girls will receive it the earliest date possible. The same is true of the papers.

I was much relieved that the last letters said so little of your illness. I took it as an indication that you were better and we all certainly hope you stay so. Kathleen had a writing fever strike her a month or so ago and I had two letters in successive mails from here. She is writing all her own self. "nobody helps me at all". And Ellen adds that the only help she asks is on spelling and not all the time on that I guess. "fore" for "for". And other peculiarities that make the letters valuable. I sent the last one to the girls today. I now have three of her "first" letters. The one she wrote like this - - that had to be interpreted by a mind reading mother. The one she wrote standing by the desk and asking Mama each word to write and how to spell it and how to make the letters etc. And this one - - the first "all alone". Am I dreaming or is it true that father and mother have a granddaughter twenty years old about the time this reaches you? My, it does not seem more than a few weeks ago that I was throwing away ten dollars to telegraph the very humdrum fact that a daughter had arrived at our home here.

Last Sunday I received 28 into the church here. I did it last fall one Sunday also. All churches and schools are unusually full this year. I sent a letter from the teacher on Sang Gaing to you in my last letter. He has now over 50 pupils. One man cannot possibly teach that number. So after talking with Mr. Newell who has general charge of the day schools in this district, I have engaged an assistant for him at $4.00 mex. per month for the rest of the year. Then the house is not calculated to accommodate that number and an extra teacher. It is large enough but it is not all usable as it is so I am going to put in another $20.00 mex. to make it usable.

Day before yesterday I went to the mountain. It was the finest day this spring. We have had an unusually cold and wet spring. The sun came out Monday and on Tuesday it was still out and made all things most cheerful and bright. I am greatly anticipating the summer with the girls. It looks as if I were to have a house full of girls. The war and the relations between China and Japan are filling the summer resorts to overflowing this summer in China. I know of several who thought of summering in Japan, but they say, "It would not be pleasant there now. We would have to be so careful what we said, and we could not help thinking all the time." Then there are many who would not go to the mountain if they had business but the conditions have stopped business for a time and they will go to the mountain while they wait.

A good letter came from Phebe by the last mail I mean Phebe M. altho the same is true of Phebe K. Stanley seems to be in the swim all right just now. I mean businesswise. We are planning to use a lot of Plague antitoxin in Foochow this year. It has never been used in the city to any extent. The Doctors in the Hing Hua region- 50 miles to the south have used it with wonderful success. Not more than 4 or 5 out of a thousand who had been inoculated took the plague.

This is just the season of the year that I get the farm fever. How I should enjoy plowing for corn just now, with the trees coming into leaf and blossom and the grass getting green and the cows crazy for it and the peepers vying with one another to peep the most times a minute and the little chickens skulking in the green, tender grass, and Elizabeth talking to them like Hiawatha.

This is only one page but it is single space and there are a lot of words on it and a lot of love to each word for each one of you.

From Will.

Dear Ones at Home,

Hurrah for the new Ford!! Wish I were there to help run it, then Ruth wouldn't have to hurry up and start in ink again. Not that I don't want the pieces hurried- for the sooner the better. Will sent us a fine collection of letters too and a nice one from himself. I am glad everyone seems to be getting better- you have had such a hard winter! What was the trouble with Mrs. Smith? Neither letters nor papers suggest the nature of her illness. I am so glad Leolyn 1st was there and wish Leolyn 2nd were with her. But perhaps it is better not because she is such a passionate child the death and seemed parting from Connecticut friends might be too great a strain.

We have just heard that China has granted to Japan all she asked in her ultimatum. Some are glad because they feel that she gained much when she made Japan oust the fifth clause; others regret it lest Japan misuse her advantage to demand more when the other clauses are discussed later. I wish the foreign powers who must judge this could have a few real insight into conditions here. The Outlook would have many [unreadable word] unless people took it just to rile their feelings.

We had our first Spring rain on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday. There was a thunder shower the first two nights. The days were comparatively clear but the nights were very strong. It has done everything a great deal of good and settled the dust quite effectually for a season.

On Thursday night we all retired as usual but about 2.30 AM Mrs. Burgess was taken very ill. We were up for much of the rest of the night while Mr. Burgess went first for the doctor then off for various other things needed. Now she has a night and a day nurse. Finally on Thursday they operated and she is now recovering from the effects of that. I shall hardly know how to talk out loud when I get another chance, nor how to walk except on tip toe. This will probably mean that the Burgesses go home this June. If they do I hope they come to see you. You will like them both I know. Their headquarters will be in Trenton, Mr. Burgess's home.

Yesterday Flora went with Mrs. Ingram to Tientsin shopping for the school. They got the dishes and some articles for the kitchen so felt prepared for the day. They left on the 5.40 AM train and got back about 7.30. I worked here all the morning at school work. In the afternoon I went with the people from one of the Presbyterian compounds for a picnic out at the Zoological Botanical Gardens. We called it a Wisteria picnic because we went especially to see the Wisteria arbor. There were six or eight arbors about the size of our large grape arbor south of the home, each one mass of blue. The sight and smell was worth while. The peonies were also in their prime. One large single pink one was different from any I had ever seen. They had a tea plant in bloom. The flower was like a beautiful pink Azalea only larger. One of the sacred bamboos was also in bloom. In the Zoological part the most interesting thing was the family of baby foxes, four in all and about the size of kittens.

When I was up to Mrs. Wang's this Wednesday she asked a favor of me and I granted it although you will be the ones doing the favor not I. She had just received a letter from home, the first since January. Her mother was much worried about her because she had had no letter since September. Now both had written two or three times a week. Mrs. Wang asked the address of some friend in America to whom she could send her letters to be forwarded. I gave her Elizabeth's name and home address, and do hope it will not be too much better. She will send stamp orders for the postage so there will be no expense to you. I think though I will ask her to pay me here and let you put it on my account. If I do I will write you to that effect.

The low shoes are a perfect fit. I rather hope the countermand of Mrs. Burgess's order is delayed as I could use the two pair.

I have my green seersucker dress from the tailor and worn ready for the laundry. He has my white Japanese crepe. He was to bring it for a fitting Friday evening but the storm kept him away. That evening I took my sewing over to Mrs. Hall's for about two hours. It is the first time I have done that this year. It was very restful.

I am getting so sleepy I am going to try to get a nap before church. I also want to walk down to the Post office to mail these letters. This is my eighth today and I must write Willard before I stop.

Mary Beard

[This letter dated May 15, 1915 was written from Peking, China by Flora to the folks at home. They have just heard about Mrs. Smith's death (Leolyn Seaver Smith Beard's mother) and also, of Seaver's engagement (probably Seaver Smith, brother of Leolyn Seaver Smith Beard). They met Dean Fitch from Oberlin College who was there to visit the Shansi Mission. The Rockefeller Foundation is going to support the medical work in Peking. She talks about the Japanese/Chinese political situation. They just heard about the sinking of the Lusitania and said that when the Germans in Tientsin found out they celebrated. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[May 15, 1915]

Dear folks at home:-

This week the letter came telling of Mrs. Smith's death. I cannot seem to think of her being gone. You said nothing about what the trouble was. I wonder what Mr. Smith will do. The news of Seaver's engagement was a surprise to us- and not a pleasant one either. It looks to me as though there had been a quarrel and each were trying to show the other how little each cared. I shall wait for further news. - We have received word that Mary's shoes are on their way and we hope the next mail brings them. I want my pattern very much for I want to get one or two dresses for hot weather done before we go South.

This is to be a very busy week for we have a big wedding to attend on Wednesday and our school entertains on Friday. There are about two hundred-fifty people invited. We have had a stage built out of doors, and we shall also have the tea served outside. The afternoon shadows are just right for us. The children are doing the work guided by us. We had a Chinese carpenter come to build the stage and his interpretation of what we wanted is certainly generous in proportions, for it looks huge.- A week ago I went down to Tientsin shopping for the school- with Mrs. Ingram. We bought a double set of dishes for $49 silver. How is that? At the present rate of exchange that is less than $20 gold. I can't say very much about the design and quality except that it seems like strong china and the decorations are in Delft blue and are Dutch scenes. I think the children will like them.

I presume Mary wrote you last week of Mrs. Burgess's serious illness.* She is well enough now so that the nurse has gone but she does not sit up yet. The doctor came this morning for the last time, so he evidently considers her beyond need of him. Mr. and Mrs. Burgess hope now to start for home the latter part of June. I hope they may visit you. If it should be convenient for you, I think they might accept an invitation to spend a week with you. I shall say nothing to them about this so you will be under no obligation to invite them unless you wish.

Yesterday we were invited to an afternoon reception to meet Dean Fitch of the Women's part of Oberlin College. She is a charming young person. She is out here to visit the Shansi Mission which is supported by Oberlin College. I believe Shansi has just received quite a sum of money bequeathed by a wealthy Oberlin man, so people are interested in Shansi just now.-The Rockefeller Foundation is making quite an excitement here, for it means that medical work here will be put on a basis for excellent work. If the right kind of men can be found to come out it will make Peking the center of a wonderful work. The idea is to use and work with the missionaries and their plants.-I wish you could have had the ride down to Tientsin with us. We got up for the 5.40 A.M. train. Mrs. Ingram and I had the women's compartment all to ourselves all the way down. The country was beautiful. It was really eighty miles of wheat fields. The economy of the Chinese farmer is worth observing. The wheat is sown in rows and just now can be seen in between the rows the tiny sprouts of galiang- a tall grain something like kaffir corn. In this way they get two crops a year from the same land.

I expect you have been interested in the accounts of the political situation here. I have just wished you could know the truth. Miss Brewster has sent me some "New York Suns" and then we have seen the "Outlook." The New York papers have told much nearer the truth. The Outlook is so far from the truth that it shows how biased its edition is. The events of the past three months have made China's friends very anxious for her. The immediate crisis is over but by no means has 'convalescence set in.' No one can quite see how Japan expects to succeed in the end, for 40 million can never expect to digest 400 million, and every enemy of China has been absorbed by the Chinese and it looks as if she wished to chose a like extraction of herself. Certainly the world will not be fooled much longer by Japan's lies.

The whole thing has been a piece of highway robbery. The Chinese have appointed May 7th as a holiday to commemorate the dishonor to their country imposed upon them by the Japanese in their weakness. There is no love between the two nations and the deeds done here by the alien people are such as to arouse serious indignation and hatred. The Chinese have done actually nothing to merit such treatment and when the personal insults are given they have been met with a civility that cannot be misconstrued. China's day is coming and it will be all the brighter for having to wait another generation.

The news of the Lusitania has come with a shock to us. If United States can keep out of the war, I am sure she will be a fit one to hope settle the snarl of questions that will have to be done where peace is thought of. Everyone out here thinks it such a 'stupid' war, -waged for such a trivial reason. The hatred between the Germans and the other nationalities is very strong. The German missionaries refused to accept a single cent from the English when a contribution was taken up for their benefit. When the news of the Lusitania came last week the Germans of Tientsin had celebrations in honor of their success, and when they were requested to be more quiet in their demonstrations there were street scenes between them and the English citizens. It seems to me that such "kultun" is not such as this world needs to make it better.

With love-

Flora Beard.

(You would better address your next letters to Foochow as we expect to be there by July 1.)

[This letter dated May 23, 1915 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his sisters and all the people at home. The original letter is held in the archives of Yale Divinity School. It tells of an illiterate field woman who came to the church to have her two sons baptized after one of her sons recovered from a serious illness. He mentions being inoculated for the Bubonic Plague hoping the rest of the College Faculty would follow suit.]

Foochow, China May 23rd 1915

Dear Sisters and all the Peoples at Home:-

We had a most unique service at Tai Bing Ga this morning. Mr. Lau Buo Ka united with the church and two little boys, brothers, were baptized. There is nothing startling about that bare fact but the circumstances make it the most unique service ever held in a Foochow church. The church is packed as usual. Among the women sits a field woman, with large pins in her hair, without stockings and illiterate. By her side are her two little boys aged six and eight years. The father has been in Formosa for two or more years. Last year the elder boy was taken very ill. They said he had a devil. For days he was unconscious, lying with his eyes closed and from time to time uttering incoherent sounds. The mother tried all the charms she knew of and heaped the votive offerings to the spirits very high but the little boy continued to lie in a stupor with eyes closed and mumbling incoherent sentences. Since the illness began he had neither taken food nor recognized anyone. In desperation she at last went to a relative who had been a Christian for many years. She said, "Can your religion do anything for my little boy?" "We Christians know of only one method. We pray to God."

"Will you pray for my little son?"

"Yes but you must pray with me. Will you do that?"

"Certainly I will."

The boy had been placed on the floor ready to die. As the two prayed he opened his eyes and for the first time since he was taken ill said, "Mother I want a drink of tea." From that moment he began to mend and is now a strong healthy boy. The mother is a regular attendant at church altho it requires a full hour's walk, and the two little boys aged six and eight years are always with her. Today she has brought these two little boys to be baptized. She pledges to teach them to love Jesus and grow up into Christian men.

While this is being done Mr. Lau is sitting in the seat of honor [letter too long for copy page] ..is great. Mr. Lau is the leading citizen of Foochow. He is the Salt Commissioner for Fukien Province. The Civil and Military Governors are higher positions but they must be held by men from outside the province, and Mr. Lau is independent of them. By his integrity and ability he has risen to the highest position possible for him in the province. He is also the commissioner of Finance for the province. He is the leading gentry of the province, - a leader in all the reforms now under way such as the new park, the new boulevard and the widening of the streets. President Yuan calls him to Peking for consultation.

Last fall when Mr. Sherwood Eddy was here this man announced publicly that he had decided to unite with the church. He has been constant in his purpose. Friends in other parts of China have written him bitterly denouncing his stand, other friends in Foochow have urged him to recant, not to go back on his ancestral religion and not to renounce Confucism. In talking with him regarding uniting with the church he made this noteworthy remark, "I hope by uniting with the church to lead the way for others of the official and gentry classes to also join. There are many of these who believe but they are afraid to take the stand,"

[Handwritten until the end of the letter]

It was my privilege and honor to baptize this man and receive him to the church last Sunday. He was the most earnest listener in the room. Tell Mr. Burgess of the fact of his joining the church.

I was inoculated last Monday for Plague (Beubonic). I did it to inure the Faculty of the College to follow suit. There is some in Foochow but it is not as bad as in previous years.

Talk about the fame of the boarding house keeper. The mail this evening brought a letter from Tourane, Annam, French Indo-China, asking if I take a gentleman as a boarder. I have already written "no" to nearly ten.

The weather continues delightfully cool-there is much rain.

Tomorrow evening if it is pleasant the sixth year class are to give the Comedy of Errors out of doors. - Tickets 50 cents 20 cents and 10 cents and also complimentary- 1200 tickets [unreadable].

I thought of you Mary day before yesterday and I hope you had a pleasant [letter too long for copy paper]

[*This letter dated May 30, 1915 was written from Peking, China by Flora to the folks at home. A celebration was held for Mary's 33rd birthday. Flora talks about teaching in Tungchow next year and how their first year in Peking has been a success. They attended the annual missionary concert and discussed the evening attire and some of those who attended. Flora and Mary will be leaving for Foochow soon for the summer. May 30, 1915

Dear folks at home:-

Have we remembered to write you that the shoes, whisk brooms, tooth brushes, and stamps and pattern have come? All were most welcome. This past week Mary has been receiving several packages to help her to celebrate May 26th, though that is not the only way in which she celebrated. The children got up a surprise party for her and served a luncheon at the school- even to ice-cream. They enjoyed it- especially the hour of play that they had afterwards-staying until 7 P.M. The grounds are so large at school and play there does not disturb anyone so that the children often stay until 6 P.M. We do not leave boys and girls together unchaperoned but often the boys stay by themselves, and occasionally the girls ask to stay.

Mary probably told you all about our entertainment which was quite a success, both in regards to the pupils and the number of people who came I feel that our first year has been enough of a success to be a help for coming years. I am glad always when I think of this year in Peking for it certainly has counted for publicity and getting acquainted with the people. Next year will be much quieter from a social point of view, though we shall not be cut off from opportunities for all and more than we can do. The people in Tungchow are going to help us out- as some one will hear to do- for besides the housekeeping, to have to teach all grades from third primary through the third high school, the task is too much for two people. We spent last Sunday in Tungchou, which is a treat from dusty, noisy Peking. The alfalfa was knee high, and the roses were in bloom so that the place was most attractive. The school building is proceeding slowly, but I think will be quite ready for us in September- although the heating apparatus may not reach here in time to be finished before we get settled. We plan to be in Tungchou by Sept. 1st so as to have the two weeks to get things settled by the 14th when we begin. Two of our scholars will not get back from U.S. before October, so I believe we shall manage without discomfort. The weather will be such that we can study out of doors if workmen have to be in the house.

Last Monday evening was held the annual missionary concert which is the one big social event of the year among the missionaries. It was just a recital by several of the best soloists and one pianist, but afterwards refreshments were served and there was a general good time. Evening gowns, and dress suits made the gathering very gay and the number of mandarin coats added most generously to the brilliant colors! It was a very pretty occasion, but was quite a surprise to us for we had not any idea of what we were going to- that is the social part. In between the two parts of the program, a little lady came to speak to me and you can guess how surprised I was when she told me her name- Helen Shulte Tenney. Mother may remember meeting her that year several of us took a furnished house on Ward Place, South Orange. It was her father's house that we had. She was about sixteen years old there. I knew that she left S. O. to be married to a doctor in the West. It seems he is the son of Dr. Tenney of the American Legation here in Peking. Her husband is employed by the Standard Oil Company to go up into Shansi to look after the oil wells and the Standard Oil people there. She (Helen) is staying with her father-in-law's people here in Peking with her two little children, a boy and a girl. They are fine looking children. It does one good to see her so domestic for that was the last thing in which she was interested in South Orange. She has never known the joys of a home until now. I am to go to dine with her to-night.

The weather has begun its heated term and there seems to be very little change - just hot every day. The Friday of our entertainment was the last decently cool day. The children at school act like a coming vacation. We are beginning school at 8.30 A.M. and closing at 12.30 M. so that I think we are getting as much work from the children as we can expect with such hot weather. We hope to go on till June 11th, but shall finish up all that must be done - this week.

Yesterday we began packing our clothes away for Tungchou, and soon as we get the time we shall continue until we get all our things into boxes again. I hope this will be the last time until we get ready to go home. It will not be long now before we leave for Foochow. We hope to get away by June 20th - in order to reach Foochow by July 1st. You would better address your next letters to Foochow and keep on until about Aug. 1st, when it will be time to reach us in Tungchou.

I am enclosing a sample of ribbons, which I need for my shoes. Will you get a yard and three-quarters (1 $\frac{3}{4}$ yds.) of each- both the width of the black. The brown is much too wide. Yesterday Mary and I went shopping outside of Chien Men (Front gate) where all the Chinese shops are. We found all that we went for so we begin to feel a bit independent. Fortunately we found an English speaking Chinese and with one of two samples we got the materials we went after. We found Chinese linens most reasonable- a bolt of about twenty yards for \$4 silver. I have gotten one dress out and have eight yards left.

Ruth, would you like to have me match that blue and white Chinese material of your dress when I go through Shanghai? I can do so and send a few yards to you if you wish? I may get some for myself for I have had an accident with my gown and gotten some kind of furniture stain on it, which can not be stirred. I am thinking, though, of taking off the trimming and wearing it out for I discovered that it is already going to pieces.

Mary had probably told you of the Burgess' home going. They are planning to leave, Yokohama July 10th. I think it is a wise thing to do for Mrs. Burgess is very very nervous and Mr. Burgess needs a rest. His work is so interesting and engrossing that he hardly knows how to stop, but the very man that he had wanted (but not dared to hope for) is coming to take up his work. He expects to be in New York studying at Columbia, so I hope you will see him- and his wife some time. A letter addressed to Mr. J.S. Burgess in care of the International Y.M.C.A. in New York City will reach him at anytime.

Last week Mr. and Mrs. Grant and daughter Delnoce, left for New York. They are to have just seven weeks in the States but I hope you can see them. I have given them your address, and Stanley's. Delnoce is one of our students. [In Mary's photo albums, she prints the name as Delnose.]

Foochow, China May 30th 1915

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

The letter is yours again this week because I received during the past week your good letter written April 18. I am missing all the family councils on economy or perhaps better economizing. I hear so little from any of you about finance that I feel entirely out of it- to use slang. Dorothy and Marjorie have not yet written of receiving the checks for Feb.

Your account of the Easter service was interesting and vivid. Kiss Kathleen for me for being such a nice little seed and waking up so naturally. As I think of my own days in school and college I have to acknowledge that American boys and girls in school are as bad as Chinese students, - perhaps worse in some things. - Yes most of the boys who come to this college come either because they themselves want an education or because their parents or guardians want them to have one. But some who are sent by parents do not at all realize the value of an education and they have to be sent home for various reasons. You are at least having an interesting time with your advisory board. I used to envy a man in Hartford Seminary by the name of Hitchcock. He always had his thesis or sermon or other paper ready and laid up days and at times weeks before it was due. But I have ceased to envy him or such as he. His papers and sermons were like cold storage eggs- valued at about half price. On the other hand it is not well or safe to have the ink on ones essay too fresh or to put off preparation for the debate or address too long. There is a happy medium in this as in all things. Avoid by all means if possible coming to the delivery in a flurry.- Better less preparation and a calm heart and steady mind to deliver what you have. You will be all right in college. One great advantage in College life is that you have a time set apart for every thing. This helps you conserve your time. I await with interest to hear of Gould's debate.

Last Monday I was inoculated for plague, - with most of the other men of the compound and most of the Faculty and others to the number of about 60. That night my left arm into which the millions of dead bugs had been thrust was pretty tender and ached pretty hard. The next day I felt like lying still but that would set a bad example, so I kept up and went over S. Side in the afternoon to a meeting of the B'd of Managers of the Union Arts Course- was electric chairman and conducted the meeting for two hours. The next day I was nearly all right. The plague has begun but not very bad yet.

The 6th year had made all preparations to give to Comedy of Errors last evening. They had erected a stage on the tennis court and carried all the seats from church and chapel and class rooms- to seat about 800. Just as the show was to begin the rain came and it was pitable to see their disappointment. I had allowed them to do this on one condition- that all seats should be returned and every thing cleaned up for Sunday before they went to bed. Well it was done but I worked with them from 9-10.

This afternoon another very interesting service took place in a village not far from S. Gate. A poor man was dying of consunsion. He wanted to be baptized and unite with the church. So Miss Hartwell, myself, the preacher and several of the church members went to his home at 4:30 this afternoon to admit him. Two days ago he became unconscious for the space of two hours. They all thought him dead and began the wailing. But he came to life again and told his household and relatives that he had been to a very large and beautiful house, and they had told him that he was going back and would not leave the earth till the 17th= today 4th month 17th day. He also remembered that one bit of paper used in idol worship had not been destroyed. On regaining consciousness he at once looked on the wall and being too weak to get up himself called on a relative to tear the paper down. As this part of the story was told in the room where he lay this afternoon an old woman standing next to me said with pride, "Yes I tore it down." He has told his wife to become a Christian and three other men- relatives are pledged to become Christians.

The weather is still very cool. Today had been rather warm. The thermometer in my study is now 9 p.m. at 80 degrees. Mr. and Mrs. McGrasham Americans in the Baptist Mission in Swatau are planning to start day after tomorrow for Foochow to go to Kuliang, arrive here Thursday. Next week the Coopers and Belchers plan to go and Mrs. Newell I believe.

Kathleen, papa considers you a girlie of rare good judgment, when it comes to estimating mama's value-yes she's easily worth the "highest number in the world,"- and of course she is worth in addition to this all the love we all can give her. Now you give her a nice good hug and kiss from papa.

May our Father fill you all so full of loving thoughts and plans and words and deeds that you will not need to worry about temptations. May He give you success in this terms work at school. Gould will be at Century Farm before this reaches you.

Your very loving father

[June 6, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

How the time does fly- thanks to enough to do. Only one week more and school is over. We have not decided yet when or how to go south but for me the sooner the better after school is over.

Flora probably wrote you of my birthday celebration. I had literally armfuls of roses brought me in the morning. It was an awfully hot day so I gave up going to Mrs. Wangs for German. I had to go to Teng Shih Kou to telephone her and to see Mr. Martin about the German class. When I got back I found supper for twenty of us all laid out on the tables in our school yard. It was great fun, I knew that something was going but couldn't guess what. Their children had brought the things at noon and hidden them behind the staging which was still up.

This week we have had only one session and the relief has been very great. Last week it was so hot I was ready to stop them but this week I feel fine. I get a nap nearly every afternoon when it is hot and study in the evening when cool.

On Monday we went to Mrs. Kraus's at the Methodist Mission for dinner. It seems Mr. K. was college mate with Mr. Newell of Foochow. That was the evening of their college commencement and we had invitations so went. The exercises were most showy but very very interesting. The President's band played, the American Minister gave the address, a representative from Pres. Yuan gave a short address and presented the college with the President's picture is a token of regard. The seniors in cap and gown marched across the platform for their diplomas. All the faculty sat in state on the platform. It was good to see caps and gowns and boards once again. After the exercises we favored ones went to Dr. H.H. Lowry's for the reception. They shook hands with the 21 graduates and were served with tea or coffee and cake. It seemed almost like a home affair, except that Chinese faces were rather too numerous. Yet the Chinese faces seemed too few when one thought that it was a reception of a class of Chinese boys.

On Tuesday we went to Lun Fu Ssl, the periodic bazaar, and made a few minor purchases.

I forgot what we did on Wednesday but think we walked downtown and did some errands. Yes, I know, I went after my shoes and they were not ready. It was the second call. On Friday I made the third and they were still "not quite ready". I asked, "have you tendered them?" And found that they had not. I was wrathful and asked for the shoes. Yesterday I took them to another place and it remains to be seen whether the Chinese cobbler keeps his word better than the Japanese.

On Friday afternoon Miss Pike and Miss Seeley came in from Chin Hua for a party at Mrs. Edward's next door. We were invited also. It was great fun, there being about 16 couples of us. First we were given pieces of a post card puzzle. We fitted them together, six completing a card. Then the groups of six had to get up some means of entertaining the others. The first group gave a small farce in pantomime. Then our group put on paper masques which showed only nose and eyes and the company guessed who we were. The third group had a magician who read the mind of one of the party and guessed the party chosen when he was out of the room. The fourth had us each give a question to our right hand neighbor and an answer to the left. Then we could ask our question of whomever we pleased and they had to give the answer told them. The questions all had to be "What would you do if _____?" Try it if you get a chance for it is great fun.

Miss Seeley stayed over until this afternoon. Yesterday morning we all went shopping outside Tsien Men (Big Gate). Miss Seeley got several very fine things. Flora got a few and I looked on. In the afternoon we all lay down and slept about 2 1/2 hours. In the evening I corrected papers and wrote examinations until about 10.00.

This week I give the rest of my exams. Flora had hers last week. Already we have lost several Pupils. Two have gone to Pei Tai Ho and one had to leave for home Saturday or cause his parents to make a special journey in for him. This last week we had four pupils out with tonsillitis.

I am enclosing a clipping regarding our school play- also a message of Yuan Shih Kai's which appeared in the same issue, May 22.

We're hoping for at least one more letter before we leave for the south. The last mail brought papers only.

Lots of love

June 6, 1915

P.S. If father will send a check for the $3 as per enclosed slip I will be much obliged. If he sends the slip with the check it will identify it sufficiently- name and address are in the slip. I got it in February and have forgotten all about it.

Lovingly

Mary.

[About June 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

Speaking of living in a busy world!! Last week we were head over heels in work for our entertainment. We practiced all or part everyday.

Wednesday was the wedding. As over half the school were invited we let out school in the morning and went. The church was decorated in pink and white. First in the procession was a lad of five as ring bearer; (then after the bridesmaid two little flower girls, one in white, the other in pink); then the brides maid in a Philippino grass skirt embroidered with pink rosebuds; then the bride in white soft gown and long lace veil. The last little flower girl stopped to smile at her friends in the audience so the bride had to push her. Going down the aisle Mrs. Edwards had to push Katherine again. It was the one thing that kept the event from being too solemn. Of course the ABCFM people felt very badly over loosing Miss Vandershire. This is the third wedding this spring and a fourth one in June. There are these other engagements but the wedding days are not set. Cupid was busy here this winter, but everyone says he gets in most of his work in the summer.

To return to our affair. We had the children send out the invitations and about 350 were invited. Over 160 came. First we served tea and punch (left from the wedding) with cookies of small cakes. We asked each mother to supply 3 dozen cookies. It seemed like a lot but when the children were turned loose after it was over never a cake was left. First we had a song, then a play "Hansel and Gretel" by the younger children, two songs by the little ones, our play "Little Men" and a final song by the whole school. We had a fine write up in the "Gazette."

On Saturday we had to go up to school to start the clearing up process. We had borrowed large bowls for serving punch, and many flowers from Teng Shi Kou (A.B.C.F.M.) and we saw them all safely off for home. Then we came back and dressed to go to Tungchou to stay with Miss Leavens. We had lunch then sewed and talked before going out for a few calls. We had to admire all the babies (3 under one year and 2 two years old) as we met them out for airings.

On Sunday morning we went over to see Francis Frame have her bath. She has grown so fat I did not know her.

Mable Galt had another (and last we hope) operation last Thursday. Dr. Thacker removed all the bone of the nose and part of the eye socket. It was all soft. He hurried the operation a few days as he is to go to England to enter a war hospital or go to the front. He had one brother killed last week and another is at the front.

The tie, Ruth is a dear. I wore it to Mother's Club the day it came and everyone exclaimed over it. If you could get three or four I think they would be dear for next Christmas. Any color velvet will do. This was my package week. First came a large bundle from Mrs. Mason containing ruchings[?], hair pins, needles etc.; then two pair of shoes, then a tiny package from Mrs. Mann with tooth brushes and invisible hairpins. The cards are beauties and will keep nicely.

Last week Flora got a package which she immediately handed over to me, it was three Faber pencils with my full name of them.

I had a long letter from Arousiag Costikyan [concert pianist] Saturday, the first this year. All were well but of course very busy. She is enjoying her school very much. Today came the Round Robin. It hurried around this time to compensate for the nine moths last trip.

The last letter tells of the arrival of Master Space [Robert]. I wonder what the twins [one of these twins, Virginia, will grow up and become the wife of Gould Beard] will say to a brother.

A Chinese of much wealth had become much roused over the sins of China and instigated a big parade to display the same for last Saturday and Sunday. I enclose one of the posters which he had distributed. Mr. Burgess says thousands of people were out. The Social Service Club boys spoke to the meetings.

Hurrah for the genealogy!!!!!! We will begin to save up for we each want one.

Tonight is the great event, the Missionary Association Concert. Every one goes and wears their best. Except me, I am wearing my old blue made overgown. Flora is putting on her all over lace waist and I suppose will wear the white wool skirt.

We got Bessie's wedding invitation just about a week after the wedding. She too was to have a pink and white wedding. I thought of her at the wedding here. Did I tell you that I served punch at the reception? Four of us served.

I have been asked to write a paper for the Friday Club next year- the thought of getting up before that company terrifies me but I can not refuse. I do not want to get the name of being unwilling to serve. A few weeks ago I had to refuse to be on the committee because the work must be done during the same period as the hard work on our entertainment.

Tues. A.M.

The concert last evening was excellent. I enclose a program. Miss Lowerly surprised us. We do not know her well. Her voice is much fuller and richer than I thought. Miss Tenney is only 19 but she has a wonderful voice and one excellently under control. That "Vissarelle" I heard Galski sing once and she did it no better. It is full of hard trills and runs.

Flora met a Miss Sholte of South Orange, (Now Mrs. Tenney) last night. It was a surprise meeting to both.

I hope to get this letter off today. Delnoce Grant and her mother and father start this morning for Shanghai to take the steamer for America. They will be in New York and I should like to have you meet them if possible. I am sure you would all enjoy the meeting. He is engraver at the Chinese Bureau of Engraving and designed the stamps and bank notes now in use.

I hope you mean every word when you say you enjoy all of our letters. I seem to ramble on without any trouble because friends and events are so numerous out here.

Lots of love

Mary.

P.S. Ruth's box started last Wednesday. It contains a little package for Abbie too. I hope Ruth can use the [unreadable word] the Missionary [unreadable word]. M.B.

[About June 13, 1915]

Dear folks at home:-

This may be a short letter for it is hot, we are in the midst of packing and inspiration is lacking.

Friday school closed and I believe every one was glad by [but?] Claire Reinsch. She is not expecting to go down to Tungchou with us and wants to go so much. She was waiting on Friday for her boy to come for her and she said "I wonder how long it will be before I come up here (to the school) again." I said I should like to have her go to Tungchou, and she replied, "That's the only school I care anything about going to." Her father and mother do not wish to have her go away from home. She is only nine years old, though she is ahead of those years in her school work.

Yesterday Mary and I arose at 5 A.M. to go out to the Summer Palace. We started at 6.30 in rickshas and at 8.30 were at the gates buying our tickets for entrance. The place is a huge park surrounding a long artificial lake with an island reached by a most picturesque many arched bridge. The island has a dragon temple on it. We did not go there since the distance was so much and our time and inclinations did not allow. Instead we climbed the hundreds of stairs up into the palace of the Empress, which commands a view of the whole place. We passed through a small summer house built entirely of bell metal, and we looked into the room where the three "great ones" in gold were standing, having descended from heaven. They are made of gold. We descended to the lake's edge after enjoying the view and then walked along through a covered passage which was most wonderfully decorated by paintings- much more beautiful than the famous bridge at Lucerne. Everywhere the woodwork supporting the roofs was finished by paintings, either scenes of some conventionalized flowers. The ceilings of the rooms and the porticos were very gaily coffered. We had to pay 50 cents to see the palace but we have decided it was worth it though it was so quickly seen. There was a most interesting grotto stairway leading up to the lookout.

(To go back to the covered passage). We walked to the farther end there to the right was a fine broad stone walk leading up the hillside. We took it and found another palace, but much smaller in size. It was near the end of the hill so that it gave us a fine view of the surrounding country and the Western Hills. We sat on the seat of a summer house and ate our lunch and then we followed the stone walk on to the very top of the hill. There we found an enclosure with a porcelain temple within. The gate was ajar so we walked in. The whole façade and roof as well as the sides were made of royal yellow porcelain, each tile having a Buddha in the center. We estimated there must have been at least 600 buddhas on the outside of the temple. After resting there and drinking some tea to please the keeper we started down the other side of the hill. There were all sorts of little garden houses and spots where one could stop to enjoy the beautiful scenery and with all the stopping to investigate we used up our two hours. At 11 A.M. we started for home. I was thankful that I was not my ricksha coolie, it was so hot. He ran easily and without too great perspiration. We reached home at 12.35 and were in time for a 1 o'clock lunch with guests. The afternoon was hot but we did some packing. I am glad to have a rest to-day for we shall feel all the more like the big day's work of to-morrow. This week we expect to get moved down to Tungchou on Wednesday. We shall spend a few days there working on plans which need the summer for finishing and then we shall be off for Foochow. I hope we may start by Saturday- at least by Monday.

We are much interested in the news from U.S., which we get each morning at breakfast from our morning paper. The resignation of Sec. Bryan is another of the surprises that we get every few days now. One of the guests at tiffin yesterday is the head of the Y.M.C.A. in China. He has been called home by cable and we are conjecturing whether he is not to be asked to take Mr. John R. Mott's place so that Mr. Mott may be the next Sec. of State. The Y.M.C.A. people out here think Mr. Mott will not accept. He certainly is fitted for the place if he will only take it. [Willard worked with Mr. Mott when he was with the Y.M.C.A.] Lovingly- Flora

Foochow, China June 17th 1915

Dear Elizabeth:-

The reason I am addressing this to you is that I have not sent you a letter in such a long time. In fact it can not be said that I have surfeited any one in the States with my letters during the past year. I get one off to Putnam sure every week and other people get theirs when I can put them in. I sent one to Peking to you home folks two weeks ago. This was the one about the Salt Commissioner joining the church.

Last Saturday evening I attended a very interesting feast. The Y.M.C.A. is in the midst of a membership campaign and I am on the team of which Mr. Lau Buo Ka is the leader. (he is the Salt Commissioner). This team had a feast last Sat. evening. Bankers, ex-officials, lawyers, college Presidents, gentry and men from foreign parts were present. The President of the Fukien Agricultural College was there and I had a long talk with him. He said he saw me in Tokio, Japan eight years ago. He was a student there and I was attending the World's Christian Student Conference. Then he said he met me again at the banquet given to Prof. Paul Monroe last year here. He of his own accord introduced the subject of Christianity. I told him I had heard he was intending to unite with the church. He very humbly said he thought he ought to study the Bible more before he became a church member. Mr. Lau Buo Ka's eldest son was there also and I had a long talk with him. He is a fine clean man and is on the way to become a Christian. It is hard to realize the difference that has taken place in these men and others of their standing in the community, in regard to Christianity in the past five years. On June 27th a young man, a graduate of the University of Idaho, now in the Foochow Electric Light Co., is definitely planning to unite with the church here.

Willard can be seen second from the right. This may be the feast that Willard refers to.

Before this reaches you Gould will be out of school and on the farm. Our reviews in the College close tomorrow and on Saturday the Examinations begin. College closes on June 30th and the boys go home July 1st. No boy will be half as happy as I to see school close.

Here it is June 22nd. I wonder if you believe in telepathy. Only a day or two after I wrote the first page of this letter your good letter of May 16th came. Often a day or so before Ellen's letters arrive I have a feeling that a mail is about to arrive that will bring news from her.

Any day now I am expecting a telegram from the girls telling me that they are starting from Shanghai for Foochow. When I realize how much I am anticipating their visit this summer it makes me feel almost kiddish.

Examinations are in full swing. Nearly every term someone is caught with a pony. And it is strange that the boy is as often as not from the Christian constituency. Yesterday one such boy was caught and sent home at once. This is an advance for the Chinese teachers, for in Chinese school this is not looked on as very bad. In fact most of the teachers in the Chinese schools that have examinations are guilty of telling the students the questions beforehand.

We have just received the papers from home that speak of the sinking of the Lusitania. For over a week now we have had no telegrams. What it means no one can tell. Some say it means German victories. A letter came from the Board the other day asking about the Japanese demands. The papers did make the outlook rather serious. But I have been thru the Japanese scare so many times that it is hard to get excited. All seems perfectly quiet now. In fact it has not been otherwise. The students got a little frisky once or twice but other classes were not effected. Japanese goods are hard to buy, but there is no excitement. All improvements such as the widening of the streets, the making of the new park and the new boulevard are going on as if there was no Japanese or other important question of danger.

I think of you as up to your ears in strawberries, now that the weddings are over. How I would enjoy the next two months at home, - eating venison and all. You will have a comparatively quiet summer with the oldest and youngest sisters away.

The weather is not bad thus far. The ther. says 83 degrees as I write. Tell Ruth I'm ready for the Genealogy any time. And here are my congratulations on having got it into the printers hands. I hope father has picked himself up from where the gun laid him and that [letter too long for the copy paper]

[in margin he writes]

..up over work the muzzle end of the gun did.

With love to you all,

Dear Ones at Home,

Maybe our next letter will come with an American stamp. How near it will make me feel to drop an American 2-cent stamped letter in a box!! To review the week. On Monday it rained so we packed our four trunks and left the boxes till the next day. Fortunately it cleared so we could pack in the back court nicely. Wednesday we had our boxes mailed, did last errands and left for Tungchou. Yes, on Monday night we went to dinner with Mr. Spencer-Lewis who had been giving unsuccessful invitations since Christmas time. We had a most delightful evening. We had at the home time days two guests, a Mr. Mills from Nanking who comes north to take Mr. Burgesses place while away on furlough. The other was a Mr. Bailey who has charge of an agricultural college near Nanking and who is a most interesting and delightful Irish man. He is very enthusiastic about his work and is a pioneer in the venture. He originally came out as a regular Methodist missionary, left the mission, and has returned to this new work.

At Tungchou we stayed with Mrs. Corbett. The Corbetts stay there all summer and have their home beautifully adapted to fit their needs with screens and lienzas[?]. We talked shop almost constantly and got the building mapped out for school rooms and dormitory rooms. We visited the carpenter and decided on school benches. We planned living room and sleeping room furniture. We got money to finance our trip this summer. We talked book and paper orders and got them ready to send off.

This morning we came up to Peking on the early train. By mistake some chairs had gone down so we brought them back. We rode third class in a seatless car and used our chairs.

The dresses which we had left to be ironed [were] all ready so [we] packed them. Then we went and did errands and to Mrs. Ingram's for lunch. Next we had to pack the returned laundry, feed the boys, finish paying bills, get baggage to the station and be off. We felt poor so came down 3rd class. As it was only comfortably filled it was very pleasant indeed. Mr. Fairfield, a Shansi missionary, was with us and entertained us by his baby's pictures. Mr. Guinness met us and assisted our baggage across the city.

The boat is clean, fresh and most attractive; much better than the Japanese line we came from Kobe on. We start at 7.00 A.M. so will sleep on board tonight. I hope to be up for the sail down the river. We came up by moonlight you remember.

Lots of love

Mary.

We will be glad to get letters at Foochow as it is a long time since we had one.

[June 30, 1915]

Dear folks at home:-

We are here in Foochow. Arrived yesterday afternoon (June 28th). Mary sent you a letter from Tientsin so I'll begin my narrative from there. We went on board our steamer Saturday night as she left too early on Sunday to wait until then. The river at Tientsin is so narrow that when the steamer turns around she has to turn from one end and it takes the whole width of the river to make the turn. Our steamer was the "Shuntien" and a very clean and comfortable one, too. Our berths were not under each other and we had a sofa as well with plenty of room in which to store our baggage and also room enough for us to dress at the same time without bumping into each other. Our steamer went to Shanghai via Dalny and Wei Hai Wei. At Dalney we took on over a thousand tons of bean cakes which must have been at least 5 in. thick and as large as a car wheel. Each weighed about 75 lbs. It took from 10 A.M. until 2 A.M. the next day to do the loading. We got off the steamer and took a long train ride to a seaside resort laid out and built by the Japanese (who now own Dalney and call it Dairen). It was beautiful as they make everything. There was one large hotel and several dozen cottages. I heard that foreigners from Shanghai like to spend their summers there. It was so cool that we needed our coats on the ride out and back.-That night for air (we were still in port loading) we left our window open without closing the blind. On this steamer we had small square windows opening on to the deck. We also left our door open just drawing the curtain for privacy. We got to sleep about 10.30 P.M. At 11.30 P.M. I awoke and saw some one sitting on our campstool and fumbling with the suit cases on the sofa. In my half awake state I tho't Mary was getting something, so I asked "What is the matter, Mary?" To my bewilderment she answered from her berth. It was a wonder that she heard me. I could not seem to comprehend and I actually touched the man on the stool at the same time asking Mary to turn on the light. There was but one button and that near her bed. While this was going on all the man did was to duck his head. He evidently did not understand English. The moment the light was on he slunk out of the room. We rang immediately for the "boy" who came at once. We told him what had happened and he went to find the quarter master, who said a Japanese had jumped off the steamer on to the dock and run off. We examined our luggage but found everything, so I must have heard him as soon as he came in. It gave us quite a fright, and we locked up everything carefully before we went back to bed. The next morning we were out to sea again and just stopped at Wei Hai Wei long enough to exchange mails. The place is practically deserted, for the English have taken everything away from the forts. We saw only two or three people stirring on the land. The next day the sea was a little rough and Mary did not feel very well. Afterwards we found that the weather was the edge of a typhoon in Japan. The morning we were arriving in Shanghai the clouds were pouring themselves out in a deluge. The steamer was ordered to the freight docks so we had to get off into a launch to cross the "bund" [an embankment on the waterfront] and there we had to run fifty or more feet to our rickshas. In spite of the terrific downpour our baggage and ourselves managed to reach the hotel not much wet. Fortunately the rain stopped the middle of the afternoon so I got our steamer sailing off my hands and we called on Mrs. Lacey. We had most comfortable accommodations at "The Kalee", evidently a German Hotel. We did not hear English in the dining room except when we spoke with the Chinese waiters. Some friends in Shanghai said that the beginning of the war took most of the Germans from the city and then it filled up again with Germans from Hongkong and other places where they could no longer stay. We saw many German ships lying idle in the harbor. It took all the next day to get our errands done and after dinner we got on board our steamer for Foochow. It was so hot that we simply took off our shoes and dresses and slept in the long deck chairs. There was so much noise of loading that we did not sleep very well but we made it up next day. I don't believe I'll ever be able to make this trip between Shanghai and Foochow without contributing to the sea, for the coast is so stormy and the boats so small. It was hot most of the way and when we reached Foochow it was hot, hotter, hottest. Will met us at the wharf and took us up to the McLaughlin's [McLachlin's] for tiffin so I went to my old home. It is a lovely compound now. Later on in the afternoon we started for the city and arrived there hot, tired, and dirty. A good hot bath and fresh clothes revived us a lot. Mrs. Christian had dinner out of doors on the lawn so we had all the comfort that could be gotten down here in the city. We are going to start for the mountain early Thursday morning and will eat our tiffin in the Beard Bungalow.

Mary and I have just returned from a trip over at South Side and at Ponasang where we had dinner. There are several changes for improvement. The streets are much cleaner, they have been widened, and are lit by electricity at night. The city gate was open so we are free to come and go any hour of the day. The air is much cooler to-day so that one can live instead of struggling to exist as I did yesterday.

Did you never get my letter telling of the date arrival of the lovely towels embroidered? I'll tell you again that I am glad to have them and I am saving them for guests when we get into our school next year. Mary and I will have our own separate rooms then and I hope we can make some arrangement so we may have a friend once in a while for the weekend.

I hope you followed mother's plan of giving the Chinese picture to Elaine Foster for her wedding present.

The events of the Smith family are too frequent and decisive for real enjoyment. It seems as though Mrs. Smith had been entirely forgotten. I can't understand how Seaver so suddenly left his long love and married a woman so different. Did Mrs. Smith ever say anything about it? I can't help wondering if the affair had anything to do with her illness. It seems so mysterious, and I don't like the trend of affairs. I rather cared for Mrs. Smith and at least she deserves a decent mourning. I suppose Mary and I would better plan something for Seaver's wedding present. * We have been so busy travelling since the invitation came that we have not thought to discuss the subject.

I have tried to get the pictures Miss Brewster wished but have not yet succeeded. I shall try here and again when I go through Shanghai. I shall order the handkerchiefs as soon as I can see Miss Adams- in the next two or three weeks. I would like to have her see a long scroll picture I have of a hunting scene. It is fully ten feet long and about 1 ft. wide, painted very well indeed. It would make a fine frieze for any room. I showed it to Dr. Willoughby (the American advisor to the Chinese government) and he was most enthusiastic over it, wishing to own it himself. I am going out to hunt some more of its kind. It cost me less than $3 gold. I think I shall put it up in my room when I get into it next year.

We have been much interested in father's deer hunt and are only sorry that we have to miss the venison. We have so many of such like delicacies so commonly out here, but have never had deer meat. We have pheasant, woodcock, squab, calves brains, and other similar dishes which cost fabulous prices at home, served up cheaper than ordinary home meats, here.

Bessie's wedding must have been a very pleasant affair and one in which most of her friends had a share. I shall be glad to hear more of Myra and Stanley's plans.

How is Ruth? Is she just better, or really where she feels sure of herself- that there will not be a return? I wish you would write more definitely.

We start to-morrow morning early for Kuliang and expect to eat tiffin in our own bungalow.

We have just been out to the first park of Foochow. It is just outside of the city walls and only in its first stages. They have about a dozen rickshas and it was a joy to see the satisfaction on the faces of some field women taking a ride. They are the burden carriers here, and so they know how to appreciate the ride. The cost of travelling here is almost prohibitive and I believe it will not be long before the streets will be so remade that rickshas can be used.

There is a mail out to Shanghai today, so I hope there will not be a longer interval than usual between our home letters. There are three steamers sailing the first week of July and this should reach one of them. Our next letters will be from Kuliang.

With love from us all-
Flora Beard.

Foochow,

[July 4, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

As Mr. Wilcox leaves tomorrow en route for home I hope this letter goes without much delay. We were in Foochow until Thursday morning. Will sent up here for coolies and they arrived about 8.00 A.M. We were already except pulling Flora's bed apart so were off about 8.30. My coolies turned to the left at the gate and Flora's turned to the right so we saw nothing at all of each other all across the plain. It was interesting to ride for miles between rice fields, over a path just wide enough to pass another chair. We had glorious views. I saw the women and children pumping water onto the rice field by the old style fort paddle wheel, and by a hand machine as well. I met several buffalo cows which snorted but were harmless. I was lifted over the stone partitions put up to keep the pigs from wandering.

At the rest house at the foot of the mountain I was put down beside Mrs. Bankhardt with whom we cruised on the Mongolia last Fall. After a 20 minute rest we started on and as I looked back I saw Flora just entering the ridge below me. My coolies had borrowed two short carrying poles. That lowered my chair so that when they lowered my chair on the steep places my feet hit the steps. I played man and extended my feet out on the poles. Fortunately the men decided at the next rest house that two at a time could carry me so that definitely was solved. I walked up much of the way because the views were so glorious I wanted to see them with my glasses. I got way ahead of all the others and finally caught up with and passed Mr. Hodous. I was just 3 ¾ hours coming up and had to wait here a full hour before Flora arrived. Her men made an awful fuss about carrying her.

Miss Francis and Miss Russell were here to greet us. About 3.00 our trunks and bags arrived. It started to rain soon after Flora arrived so the baggage was some wet. In the afternoon after it cleared we walked out and so missed several callers. Friday morning was delightfully clear. The univ men were waiting for us when we got up and we fled for a walk to escape them. Three were on the porch and I could count four more on the way. I got a brass bowl which we immediately put to use for flowers on the table. Yesterday I got some Mandarin squares so as to use one under the bowl by day when the table cloth is off.

We have to look after us three men and one woman. The cook's wife is the amah. The boys are students in the college whom Willard is helping by giving them the work.

These mountains are beautiful and the view from our cottage is one of the best I have seen. We see Foochow, the north end; the univ, the plains and mountains on all sides. We overlook several peaks dotted with homes and I amuse myself sitting on the porch and watching the traffic. Most of the roads(!) are stone paths just wide enough for two and paths on the side hills are steps. It is quite a steep climb up here but already I can take it without getting breathless. The first day Flora and I took a walk over the hills. Yesterday Flora had to go down to decorate the Club Home so I went with Will and again today we went out. Each time we made several calls so soon I shall locate all the people on this side of the hills.

We have had clear mornings but every afternoon has been rainy so far. Yesterday had been planned for the Fourth celebrations. We all had supper together at the club and patriotic songs and a speech by Mr. Hodous afterward. The fireworks are postponed until the first clear day.

Willard has a game left arm. He can not move it from the shoulder and it is painful most of the time especially at night. This morning we went to the doctor and he thinks it is trouble with the water sack between the bones of the joint. He attributes it largely to a tired condition.

So far we are leading a lazy life; breakfast at 8.00, walk, lunch at 12.30, nap, supper at 6.30 or 7.00. Reading, writing and talking fill the gaps. Will got up here Friday night. He had a great time getting the dentist up. He had 3 Chinese helpers, besides quantities of baggage and knew nothing about managing his own affairs. He delayed Will so he took dinner here for his first meal instead of breakfast as he had planned.

This afternoon we went to church for the foreign service at 5.00. It rained hard all the time but a goodly number were out.

It is near 9.30 P.M. - awfully late for us- and time to retire. The mail closes tomorrow and Will is going down to mail letters before breakfast.

Lots of love to all – we will cure Will soon.

Mary.

Kuliang
July 11, 1915

Dear Phebe and Stanley,

Yesterday brought a good letter and some pictures from Phebe and a letter from Ruth. Last week Willard had letters from Putnam so we feel well posted on home affairs. What gay times you are having with weddings. I am glad that Leolyn is to have one more summer in her beloved Connecticut.

Ruth's letter sounds as though she were not well inasmuch as she seems so very tired all the time. How about it? Does Stanley get any vacation this summer? Not a word of any in your letters, so far.

As to our history; we left Peking Saturday, reached Shanghai the next Thursday morning, left Saturday morning and were greeted by Willard at the dock on Monday. It was after 12 when we docked so we went to lunch with Mrs. MacLachlin who lives quite near. We visited with her until about 3.30 then took chairs over to the city compound where Will lives with Mr. and Mrs. Christian. Will had gone on ahead for a faculty meeting.

We went over and met the faculty, a nice looking lot of Chinese and three Americans. Then we bathed and dressed. Enroute I felt as one man has said that if we went through alley after alley we must come to a street by and by. The streets are not much narrower than in Pao Ting Fu or Tungchou but the people seem more numerous and the over hanging roofs give one a shut-in feeling. The continual going up or down steps and crossing of bridges is entirely new. Also, Foochow never knows what wind is because all the streets, little and less little have stone walls. We stayed in the city until Thursday morning. We left about 8.30 and I was here by 12.15. Flora was an hour later because she took a longer route out of the city and had slower men too. It was wonderful crossing the broad plains into rice field after rice field and the mountains rising behind them. When we had climbed part way up the mountain I got out and walked so that I might view the scenery with my glasses. My men followed with the chair.

Finally I got weary and wanted to ride. The men pointed to the next hill so I walked up one more stretch. Then they pointed ahead again. I just laughed and stood still so they put the chair down and next time all I had to do was to wait.

Miss Francis of Soochow and Miss Russell of Hangkow had already been up here a week and made us a welcome when we arrived. It began to rain just before I got here and rained quite hard before Flora got here. She had raincoat and umbrella so was not wet. Our trunks and bags got quite wet on the exterior.

Until yesterday we had continually rainy weather. For two days it was clear mornings then it rained all day. Willard came up Friday afternoon. He had planned for an early start so as to breakfast with us but Dr. Gatellins the dentist arrived and Will had to get him up and it took nearly a day. We had a fourth of July celebration on Saturday and it rained. We all took our suppers and ate picnic style at the Club House. Ice Cream and coffee were furnished at the club. The fire works were postponed until Monday evening when it was fairly clear. On Tuesday our sixth member arrived, Mr. Birckle of Annam, in French Indo-China.

Evidently Miss Francis and Mr. Birckle are engaged or near engaged.

On Monday Mrs. Hodous came down and asked me to help Jerome and Helen Smith with the arithmetic so I go up every morning at nine o'clock for one hour. Twice I have gotten caught in a rain and had to wait for a let up.

On Tuesday we three went to lunch at Mrs. Peets. Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard are there too so we were quite a company. It was an awful day. I waited until 11.30 at Mr. Hodous's before a let up long enough to get off. I dressed and ran nearly all the way to Mr. Peet's so got the between showers. Flora and Willard were already there as they had gone for dentist appointments at 9.00 and 10.00.

Last night was the American Board picnic. We assembled at Mr. Peet's then walked around the hills to the rocks behind Miss Bement's. The view was wonderful, across the valley and over the mountains on one side and nearly all the city of Foochow on another. We could see the white pagoda near where Will lives in the city. [Ink blob on page] (This blot marks a session of talking during which my pen took upon itself to continue unguided.)

Mission meeting began on Thursday so we have really seen little of Will except at meals. He comes back for lunch when possible.

Twice we have had a nice long walk over the mountains. The bits of views under or through the clouds are enchanting. We looked down onto Sharp Peak once, again onto Pagoda Anchorage and often out to sea.

From Little Bellevue the villages and rice fields look very small. The fields look like mosaics.

My field glasses are very useful. I look at views, watch our neighbors who are not hidden by their typhoon walls, watch new arrivals etc. Mr. Hodous says I caught the "Kuliang habit" quickly.

Willard has had a stiff left arm for several weeks. Now the doctor is giving him iodine to paint it and some medicine to take as well. It has been better for the last few days, so he moves it a little and does not wince so hard if it is touched. The rest seems to be somewhat beneficial.

We went over and played tennis on Friday afternoon for a little but have not been swimming yet because the tank is not ready. The water is still dirty.

One of the most important events of each day is a nap from 2-4. Willard is having to omit his until Mission meeting is over.

I find only one Holyoke girl here beside the Peets and Hartwells, but Harriet Bontelle who I knew quite well is to arrive soon. Laura Ward is here but her sister Ruth Ward Beech is on her way home. Evelyn Worthley Sites was here until July 4 but I did not know where to find her so missed her.

Stanley almost three or four weeks ago I sent to you two Chinese lanterns. I hope they get through safely. The people here use them to put over the electric bulbs in hallways or parlors where they want the lights for conversation not for reading. Perhaps you and Phebe can use them until you and Myra are ready.

We have been buying lacquer these days. Flora is buying trays for the school and a set of tea tables like those Will sent to Elbert. I got a small tray because it was so pretty I couldn't resist it, also two boxes useful for gloves. Then we got some vases. We talked of some finger towels done on silk for Seaver but have not decided. We may just go in on the picture as today's letters suggested.

Many thanks for the pictures. Since Flora has started her home photo book we do count as two on pictures.

When in the city I put into Will's book the unwanted photos he has and labeled in my white ink photos already in.

You should have seen our lawns yesterday. It was the first clear day in a week. We had a wardrobe, our suit cases, our six beds, and most of our clothes out to sun. Some were already mildewed a little.

As for world news we are isolated. Willard did have a little printed slip of telegrams but the Germans have stopped that, so for four days we have heard nothing at all. The month old home papers that arrived last night were most eagerly read by all. There were Digests and [unreadable word], Missionary Heralds and Congregationalists.

Last night one of our boys spilled a dish of scalding milk over his foot. He burned the foot badly but we immediately wrapped it in a cloth saturated with olive oil.

What a ramble this is! It is 10.10 PM and time to retire. We have a delightful breeze up the valley tonight. So far we have slept under a blanket such as Ben gets. Last night it was a little warm but only a little.

Lots of love to you both

Mary Beard.

Sunday P.M.

P.S. Willard and Flora join in sending much love.

Mary.

[July 14, 1915]

Dear folks at home:-

Two weeks go by so fast that my turn to write comes very quickly. We have been on Kuliang for two weeks and have done little but get settled and rest. For a week it rained hard and continuously, but now for several days the sun has been shining and the days are perfect. We have been busy this week on school affairs and Will has been in mission meeting. To-day finished that and to-morrow he goes down to Foochow and then I hope we shall have the chance to do some walking and visiting. So far I have read one book, "China Under the Empress Dowager", which is exciting as a novel. I have begun "The Eyes of the World". Mary read it and could hardly lay it down for anything else, so I am trying to get in some necessary letter writing first. To-day finished twenty-five done and mailed, but still there are more.

We are just swamped with curio venders every morning. They certainly have some lovely things and very cheap. We have invested many dollars already and expect many more temptations before the summer is over.

I think I wrote you of the thief in our cabin on our way down to Shanghai. Well, another thief was more fortunate here in Foochow City, for I am now minus my watch. I have not yet decided what I shall do for a watch, but must have one. Will advises a cheap watch which can be bought here but I think I shall probably write to you for one- later.

Do you remember Mary's episode with the woman book agent on our front porch several summers ago? We have met her daughter who married the Mr. Miner of Foochow – also her sister is here. They are those effusive, gushing, aggressive people who make me think of a tiger lily- very showy. The sister's engagement was announced a few days ago. Will's remark I think is expressive of the truth. When it was told at the time they were in mission meeting and his opinion was solicited he said, "She has accomplished just what she wanted to do." Mrs. Newell said, "She may improve, her sister did." We have said nothing to them about having met their mother and I presume we shall not be intimate enough to need to. The sister was on the same committee as my self during the Fourth of July celebration, and in some way found out that I had come from New Jersey. "New Jersey," she said, "why I taught in New Jersey in a chahming little village, suburb to New York- Hasbrouck Heights(!)." Phebe and Stanley will appreciate this. She is just the type who would be content with such "charms."

We are having some fun with two of Will's household. Miss Francis has come from Soochow and Mr. Birkel has come from Amman. Evidently they are engaged for she wanted a place for him near enough so they could see each other every day. Well, they certainly see each other very much of each day, and they can't see a joke when it is aimed at them. The boy who waits on the table gets their orders mixed up and Will said "He can't seem to tell you apart." Not a smile was cracked. We'll have to try again.

The papers (Shanghai) tell of attempting J. P. Morgan's life and of the explosion in the capitol. When will these horrors cease!

We have had the good news of $400 gold to help in furnishing our school. The money comes from some New York City people. Also, Helen Myer wants to know how to send us money and Miss Crisman is seeing about a sewing machine and some maps. I wish we had the view of a good dictionary. I think now we are bound to have a comfortable house. Mr. Galt has written that we may have help in teaching, which we very much need.

With love-

Flora Beard.

[July 18, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

Sundays seem to come much too often because each one marks a week more of our stay here as gone. This is our third Sunday up here already. Our days are full altho we have no set duties. I do have my arithmetic class at 9.00 every morning except Saturday. The children are doing finely and I enjoy the hour immensely. Tomorrow I go from class over to a meeting of the Science Club of Kuliang. I think I will take the study of birds. Three subjects are to be taken up, Botany, Ornithology and Entomology. I am torn between the first two. So far I have gotten over almost 25 chapters of my Beginner's Latin book, written one German letter, read "The Eyes of the World", "On and off Duty in Annam"- and started "Village Life in China". It is such fun to read all I want to and not feel that a duty is being neglected.

Willard was busy in Mission Meeting until Wednesday. On Tuesday- after 5 PM we walked around to Tipping Rock and climbed up the hill. It was hot and the climb was steep so we all had baths and clean clothes before supper. Except that one evening we have been over on the tennis courts for an hour or more. Thursday night I played 7 sets between 5 and 7 P.M so you see I played pretty steadily. Since then there have been so many people we each get two sets and an occasional third. On Thursday and again Saturday three of us were on the courts at 6.30 A.M. and stayed long enough for 2 sets. Since none of us are very good players we match up well and often have deuce games. In the evening the men are out and we have stiffer playing. Willard's arm is getting better so occasionally he uses it unconsciously. As yet he can not lift anything with it nor do any pushing. He says he uses it to help put his collar on and got it up to help with his coat collar before thinking of it. We now wonder if it is the Doctor or the rest that is doing it. I hope he can get in some tennis soon.

Yesterday the men had a swim in the tank. It is the first time it has been used. I hope for a swim soon.

We have in the house a couple either engaged before they arrived or soon after. They are courting morning noon and night. She seems to do her full share and sometimes to over do it. They sit on the porch and talk until 11.00 or 11.30 every night. I am getting so I sleep through it but Flora lets it bother her and never closes an eye until they have gone to bed. I am going to tell Miss Frances and hope they will retire at 10.00 or here after. Last night they sat in the dining room and read aloud or talked. When we had stood it about $\frac{3}{4}$ hour I called out "People, we're sleepy." They took the hint and went to bed.

Yesterday afternoon Dr. and Mrs. Whitney called and fortunately we had not yet left for the tennis- courts. She is very deaf but they are a dear old couple.

The curio men must think us good customers. The other two ladies spent about $50 between them before we came up and we have spent about $40 all told. Hardly a day goes by that we don't invest in something. I have some lacquer, silver, and lace.

Willard and Mr. Birkle went down to Foochow on Thursday, just for the day. They left here at 6.30 AM (just before we went for tennis) and returned about 7.30 PM. It certainly was a busy day for Willard because he had a long list of memoranda.

The last letter from home came with news of Leolyn being with you and going to school. I am so glad you are having this nice visit and wish I were with you. It is interesting to sit here and watch the church goers. When I first came out this morning I saw the 7.30 service people just coming away. After breakfast the people began to assemble for 9.30 Chinese service. They have just disappeared over the various hills when the bell rings for English Church at 11.00. Most of those are men in the church. Then there is a respite until 3.30. The last service is the Union one at 5.00. The foreign Sunday school is at 9.30 in the club so those numbers are added to the Chinese numbers.

11.00 AM.

We have just had great excitement. A Chinese wedding came up the mountain and right up past our home. I was out with my camera inspite of its being Sunday, so was Mr. Birkle. The bride was taken to the little village just above our home and I still hear the music.

This noon we have Dr. Gatellins, the dentist up for dinner. He wrote for Will to take him in and we so planned. Then he arrived with four Chinese helpers and 1500 lbs. of baggage. Here he was to have shared a room with Will!! Fortunately there was an unrented home on another hill and Will succeeded in renting it on a few hours notice. Also Will has gotten a room elsewhere for a lady who was to be here later so he will have his room to himself all summer.

8.00 P.M.

We had a nice visit with the dentist and he left about 3.00. Immediately we scattered for our afternoon naps. It was 4.30 when I woke and Flora was just astir. We were too late for afternoon tea before church and were a little late as it was. After service we walked around the mountain and took a detour to visit Misses Perkins, Funk, Crane and Diehl. They are four fine women. We all got weighed. Will and Flora are twins at 175 ½ lbs. and "the little sister" weighs 171 ½. I think you will still be able to find us if we keep on, don't you?

We are planning for a walk to Kushan Monastery on Tuesday. The four ladies above and five others from another "ladies home" are to accompany us. Laura Ward of Holyoke is in the other home and a mighty fine girl. We will take one chair for each household in case anyone gets "done up" but plan to not use them.

Flora, Will and I are writing at the dining table while the other three are on the porch singing.

One day a linen and embroidery man came along and he had such pretty things we couldn't resist. I got two embroidered dresses, and Flora got one. They are not very fine but very firm lawn and the embroidery is good. He had embroidered sets of underwear. We got a combination and skirt flounce of three yards. I thought of Myra when I got it but do not know whether she would care for it. If she does it is $2.00 gold for the set. If she doesn't and any of the family want it it is $2.00. If sold outside the family it is $4.00. I gave $4.00 silver and have planned to sell for the same gold to any except the chosen ones who get it for first half. I will send them some time and will send a card by the same mail. As yet they are not done up to mail.

Tomorrow I go to a Science Club meeting at 10.30. We have decided to stay in on Monday's for friends to call so I fear no tennis until Thursday. Wednesday is prayer meeting and children's day at the court. We made a mistake and went over this week but will not repeat the error again.

I know the others would send love but they are busy.

Lots of love

Mary

P.S. About 3.30 the musicians of the wedding all stopped on the porch and demanded the pictures we had taken.

[July 25, 1915]

Dear folks at home:-

It is the time for the midday siesta and every one of the household is observing it excepting myself. I am trying to get some of my long suffering correspondence answered. I have just answered a letter dated June 16, 1913. I am afraid she'll almost get a shock when she reads it to think I am really writing again.

This past week I have written over two dozen letters besides a lot of other things. We were missing so many of our callers that we made up our minds to let people know they could find us at home on Monday afternoons. Last week we had eight callers so we felt paid for staying at home. On Tuesday we walked over to Moon Temple- about an hour and a half's walk. We had quite an exciting (and highly amusing time for the rest of the party) when we started across lots over the paddy-fields. I had always wanted to cross on the little paths which bound the terraces here, never realizing that it was only six inches wide- one side sloping down into the watery rice fields the other covering the eight foot retaining wall of the terrace. It was narrow and slippery, and I got dizzy just as we reached the middle where a long step was needed to step over a muddy place. Miss Russell just behind me had grabbed the stalks of the rice and there we were-with Will and Mary enjoying themselves to their utmost on the farther side hill. Presently he came to my rescue and Mr. Birkel helped Miss Russell over and all we had to show for our discomfort were some muddy shoes- which when dry came back to their usual color. We had a fine walk, found the monk at the temple willing to heat some water for us so that our lunch was enhanced by instantaneous cocoa and we got home a little before eight o'clock. There was hardly a dry thread on me- from perspiration. I have lost enough so that Will can notice it since I came to the mountain. It must be perspiration for it seems to me I must have lost pounds in that way. There is so much of our walking taken up in climbing- often a step being a full foot. I am delighted though and am glad for every ounce lost in this way.

On Wednesday we went to Prayermeeting and then called on the Pitchers who were with Will last year. They had only just arrived the Saturday before. Mr. Pitcher was down at the tennis courts watching the games when we met him at 7 P.M. on our return from his house. We had a little chat with him and then went on home to dinner. The next morning we had planned to start for Kushan monastery. Will came to my door about 6 A.M. and said he would have to let us start on without him as Mr. Pitcher had died at 11.30 the night before and they wanted Will to come at 7.30 A.M. for the funeral service. Since one other of our party could not go we decided to stay home. Mr. Pitcher had died of some heart trouble. You can see how quickly things transpire when he died at 11.30 P.M. and at 8 A.M. in the morning they were starting down the mountain with the body. They telegraphed to Amoy- his home- and a gentleman came back on a steamer and will take the body back there for burial. Such events give one rather a shock.

We have been living rather quietly so far but we must begin soon to do some entertaining. This is to be a moonlight week and will be a good time. These nights are grand – almost as high as day.

I shall begin to-morrow on the definite work of my course of study, which I wish to get finished before we leave the mountain. Will gave me a lesson on his typewriter yesterday and I do wish I could get expert enough to use it for that course of study. It would save printing it. I do not suppose more than three dozen people will want it- but those who do, need it to prepare for our school.

I have decided that I must have a good watch. Could you get it for me? I want Waltham works- the best ones. I would like a silver case. If you can get a satin finished plain case and have my monogram carved on the back I should like that best of all. Of course I want an open faced watch. I should like a size small enough to wear with a chatelaine piece. If you can get a satin finished fleur-de-lis pin to match the watch I should like it. I should think the whole thing could be purchased for $20 gold. Mr. Wilder is returning in the fall to Peking and I believe he would bring it to me. I think a letter to the American Board Rooms at Boston would get his address. Don't hurry to get it off by him, for there will be some one else. I would rather have some one bring it than trust it to the mails in this uncertain time. I think the people in Boston will help you.

We are feeling anxious for the people of United States in this war mix up and we hope you can keep out. It all seems like a bad night-mare from our distance. We get occasional telegrams but they tell such fragmentary news that they leave too much to our imagination.

Yesterday we had a letter from Phebe so we had some news from you home folks.

With love to all-

Flora Beard.

[This partial letter probably dated 1915 was written by Willard presumably to the folks at home. He describes an ongoing deadly conflict between two villages and how, although they would like to stay out of it, the Christians to whom they influence are forced to be involved. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[Probably 1915]

...itself felt here, and the heathenism perceives it. There were no less than four cases brought up to be talked over, and the [unreadable word] of the missionary asked, in this three days meeting. I can not give any one of them in full, as it would be too long, and then I do not know all the details. One of the cases is something as follows: - It has been running for three or four years. It began in a quarrel between two villages at the mouth of the Min river near Sharp Peak. These villages each are the houses of many fishermen and fish dealers. Both of the villages send men with boats to the fishing grounds to buy fish of the men who catch them. The custom is for a boat from one of the villages to go out in the morning and attach itself to one of the fishing boats and agree to take all the fish caught that day. Then they sell the fish and in this make their living. One day the men from one village were more than those from the other and when a boat from this village bargained for fish with a fishing boat the stronger party shoved them away. So at night they had to go home empty and with no business. To get revenge these men gathered their fellow villagers and in a few days went out to the fishing grounds and surrounded the boats of the evening, captured about 37 of them, took them home and killed some and beat the others severely, and let them go after a ransom was paid. This made war between the two villages. There was [a] fight and some lives lost. This increased the animosity. So far it had not troubled the Christians. But now one of the leading men of one of the villages wants to lay a tax on all the men of his village to raise money to go and fight the other village, and the Christians tell him, this quarrel is not their business at all. They have had nothing to do with it. This of course stirred up a breeze. The streets near the church and near the Christian's shops were placarded with boycotts on the Christians. One man who had a fruit stand had to get his neighbors to help him take his fruit off to other places to sell it. Another owned goats but he was not allowed to pasture them and could not sell them, - all pasture is common property here- the village well where the Christians drew water was forbidden them, etc., etc. This brings the matter into conflict with missionary work. Then men from one village lay in wait and captured men from the other villages [as] they went out to other places. It made no difference who the men were- whether they were offenders personally or not- so long as they belonged to the other village. One of our bright young men was thus caught and taken to the enemy's village. Here were the wives and mothers of the men who had been killed previously. This young man with two or three others was delivered up to the mercy or rather passion of these infuriated women after the men had beaten them to their hearts content. The women took irons and clubs and beat them just as they pleased. The young man was in a very critical condition last week. I have not heard from him since. One of the 12 chief men of one of these villages- the one which instituted the boycott is said to have boasted that he could kill off a few of the Christians and by paying $300.00 could get off without harm. And if a foreigner came to interfere it would cost only $5000.00 to kill him. This man is now thoroughly scared and was at Foochow to beg Mr. Hubbard and Hartwell to settle up the matter as soon as possible. He was willing to say he was sorry and to fire off some crackers if the missionaries and Christians would forgive him. But he has been the leader in all the persecution and it is thought best to let him be anxious for a little while. We hope to get from the Viceroy of the province a special proclamation giving the Christians freedom of worship and exemption from idolatrous fees. Of course the Christians in these two villages are anxious to have the missionaries help and protect them. The less we as missionaries have to do with the magistrate and ruling classes in these quarrels the better. And yet we cannot sit still and see the men who are following our teaching persecuted and killed for no other reason than that they are worshippers of Jehovah God.

Another case was in connection with my Ha puo church. A woman had become interested in the Truth and had given up her idols and idol worship. The Priest or his runner was collecting fees for an idol ceremony. He came to her and she refused to pay. He became angry but she remained firm. She owned a sow. The man found the sow in the fields a few days after his interview with the woman and beat it severely. Soon after coming home the sow had 12 dead pigs. The woman had positive proof that this man did the mischief, and took 4 of the pigs to him and demanded 12000 cash = about $11.00. He only cursed her. She called the neighbors and the petty official and the man promised to pay 300 or 40 cash. But the last I heard had paid nothing. These cases are very aggravating but they are at the same time signs that the Gospel is working, and these cases only help to spread the knowledge of the truth. They also help to give strength and fortitude to the native Christians. I wonder how near thro haying you are. That new barn will hold a large amount. Are you getting along without oxen? How many and what horses have you? etc. etc. With love to all Will.

Dear Ones at Home,

Another two weeks gone by- how time flies when one is busy doing nothing in particular! Last Sunday night I had a treat sitting here on the porch and writing letters while the rest of the family and other Kuliangites sang hymns from the rocks just above us. It was a clear calm night and the harmony of the voices added much to the beauty of the evening.

11.00 AM

Miss Russell and I have just been to Chinese church. The place was filled even to the front seats. We had a piece [or "phase"...it appears that she wrote one or the other word on top of the other] of New China illustrated when a Chinese girl and man sang a duet. They sang in English and even though the song was unfamiliar I could understand every word. It was the only thing I could understand except the expressions in the faces. Everyone seemed much interested in the sermon.

On Monday evening we all went for a walk part way down the mountain. The moon was just past full and it was like day without the intense heat. The city was not as beautiful to look upon as it would be on a dark night but we could see the whole of it from our stopping point.

On Tuesday evening we had Dr. and Mrs. Gillette and Mr. and Mrs. Dennis for dinner. We had to do up the table cloth because we have but one long one and had been using it. I think all enjoyed the dinner and evening. The first couple had to leave almost at once because they were invited to a musical for the evening.

On Wednesday we attended prayermeeting. Harriet Bontelle (Mt. Holyoke '08) is arrived at last and was there. We all went over to the Public courts and visited with the spectators for while. We had to come around by the house on the way out to dinner and got detained by callers. I was glad not to miss Miss Lambert and Miss Robertson. As soon as they were around the bend we hastened up the hill and over to the Newell's where we were to enjoy a 'weenie roast.' We did enjoy it to the full extent. Mr. and Mrs. Johnson of Canton were there also. They know Harriet Allen a college classmate of mine. He was a Hartford and Oberlin man so he and Will had to reminisce. It was moonlight when we came home.

That was the hottest night we have had this summer- no wind at all.

Willard went to the city on Thursday so we all got up for a 6.00 breakfast with him. Then we went over to play tennis until 8.00. In the afternoon Flora and I made some calls. Willard was already here when we returned. It was a terribly hot day here until after 4.00 when a breeze came up. Willard said he did not find it so very bad in the city and he evidently was not as weary as after the last day down there.

We had planned to go to Ku Shan on Friday. It was very cloudy at 5.30 and more so at 6.30 and occasionally there were dashes of rain. The coolies finally came up about 9.00 and announced that they did not wish to go as there was to be a typhoon. The gusts of rain and wind continued all morning while we sat on the porch and embroidered or read. It was a most mild form of typhoon, surely, and not recognized by many as such at all.

In the afternoon it cleared beautifully. Flora had a headache so Miss Russell and I went to call at Miss Adam's home where the Y.W.C.A. contingents are staying. Harriet Bontelle is of the number. All the ladies are most pleasant and we had a fine call. We came home via the brownstone bend and found the home deserted. Flora and Will had gone over the hill, Mr. Birkle was off somewhere and Miss Francis was in her room.

Saturday was a full day. I had put the long tablecloth carefully under the short one we were using but on Friday we discovered that it was on the table and had gotten several spots on it. Also we were not sure of the laundry coming up from the city, so we had to do up both napkins and cloth.

Flora and I had invited fifteen children and their parents for the afternoon from 4-6. We played games then served cocoa with sweet crackers and little cakes. I had brought down a lot of those mud[?] images like those I sent home and we gave them to the children as favors to take home. We ended by lining up and playing "I put my right foot in, etc."

There was just time to clear away one party and get ready for dinner guests at 7.00, but we were all dressed and waiting when they arrived. This time it was Mr. and Mrs. Hodous and Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery of Amoy.

Willard's arm is better so he plays tennis with full enjoyment. He has used it almost without thinking for sometime the only thing I have heard him say he couldn't do is carry a baby with it. Mr. Munson (YMCA) brought Eleanor Claire (aged 1 yr) over to call on Tuesday and Willard carried her home. She is a darling sunny little girl. Her baby brother is nearly four weeks old. She likes the dog better because he is more responsive to her advances. We called there one morning and saw both children.

The American mail closes tomorrow so this ought to make a quick passage.

We are planning on our trip to Ku Shan for Wednesday. I say we go the first clear day even if it rains so we have to go Sunday. Mr. Johnson said he hoped it rained the four days so he could see if I would go. I told him he was as wicked as I, to have such hopes.

My field glasses are very useful. I look at views, watch our neighbors who are not hidden by their typhoon walls, watch new arrivals etc. Mr. Hodous says I caught the "Kuliang habit" quickly.

The dentist left on Thursday afternoon and had to leave a lot of work undone at that. Willard has several temporary fillings. In October the dentist returns to Foochow for several weeks and hopes to get through them. One thing he has proved and that is that there is work enough here to warrant the missions supporting a Missionary Dentist. The home Boards refused to help the venture until it was tried out. Dr. Getallins is ready to hand in his statement any time, he says. The people are all well pleased with his work.

I must close and wish you all success and happiness. We are looking for letters tomorrow as a boat was in last night.

Lots of love
Mary Beard.

Dear Folks at Home:-

My letter writing has been sadly neglected for a whole month. My register tells of only four letters written for the U.S. These were one a week to Putnam. I felt somewhat easy about you for Flora and Mary were writing and I told them to always send my love and tell you I was here all right. This year more of many kinds of work of a public nature has been put on me by circumstances beyond my control than every before. I am planning to hire a stenographer who is available here now and get off some twenty letters that I must write.

I cannot tell you how much I enjoy the girls. It is the first time I have felt that I could put my feet on the dining table and tilt back in my chair since Sept. 1912. - Which is another way of saying that it feels like home with them here, and that expresses more than pages of adjectives and nice phrases. Both seem quite well and to enjoy the mountain. We have in the house this summer a young man and a young woman who are trying to court specially the young woman and this makes life for the rest of us interesting- specially for the girls when the couple sit up late and talk just outside their window.

The past week we have been rather gay altho I did not think of it at the time. Tuesday evening we had Mr. and Mrs. Dennis of the Y.M.C.A. and Dr. and Mrs. Gillette of our mission here for dinner, and Wed. evening we went to Mrs. Newell's for dinner and Thursday I went to Foochow and Friday evening read China Under the Empress Dowager and Sat p.m. the girls invited some dozen children and their mothers here and in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Hodous and Dr. and Mrs. Montgomery of Amoy were here for dinner. The mountain is full this year and we have had to put extra chairs in the church today. The weather has been fine- too fine for the farmers- we should have rain. Telegrams report a very disastrous typhoon in Shanghai last Thursday.

This next week is full of meetings daily. 9:30 - 10:30 the "conventions" with a sermon each day. 10:45 - 12:00 a Conference on Evangelism. 4 or 5 Chinese Conventions. Then the week after came lots of other things- Associations and meetings etc.

I think of you as just thru haying- perhaps the road still to mow- If all goes well I'll be there for a few days of it next year- the mission has noted to let me go home a little after May 1- 1916 and get back Sept. 1st. I shall plan my stay to get to Oberlin for my 25th reunion. This will be about June 11-20.

Then I must see Gould and Geraldine graduate about June 23 or 24. I must write Stanley and Myra that they must not wait for me to marry them. I might get it in June 20-22, - between Oberlin and Putnam- but they will want it in May and I am afraid that is out of the question for me.

Father must rejoice greatly over the victory of the cause of prohibition. It is interesting to see the growing dry territory in the U.S. The wave seems to be world wide- France and Russian too are influence. England is having a harder time.

War telegrams do not create much excitement here. Wilson seems to be the man for the place- calm, cool, safe, dependable. He has the position of the world today most strategic. I pray that God will keep him cool and clear of brain and free from all selfishness and use him to help bring justice among the nations- this must come first-then world peace.

I have been thinking of Gould as at the farm this past month. I hope to hear from him while he is there and send love to him now.

With love to all

Will.

Dear Phebe:-

This is the last letter I shall address to you at Putnam for a long time-possibly until I see you in Oberlin next June if God lets us carry out our plans. Since last Sunday your good letter just after graduation has come and the last mail brought Kathleen's letter and an envelope containing your graduation program etc. and also Dorothy's graduation program. Your letter is very interesting with its whirl of dizzy rushing just before graduation to get ready in breathless haste for the occasion. I suppose half the spice would be left out of these occasions tho if there was not the hurrying. - You give a good picture of Christine. I am glad she is developing so nicely and I hope she may continue to grow to give her parents joy. Your account of the High School graduation with its picnic, reception, dance, class day, etc. etc. takes me back to 1887 in what was then Birmingham [in Connecticut I believe it is now called Derby.]. We had one evening when each one of us read an essay or delivered an oration, - and it was all over, - but it was a great occasion- the greatest graduation I ever had. College did not compare with it and Seminary graduation was tame. I am glad so many from Shelton and B-port could come. Auth Ruth's letter adds some touches to your account,- auto rides notable, and Leolyn's episode. I shall look longingly for that picture of the family with Gould waiting anxiously to get to the farm.

But the most interesting part of your letter is the philosophical part, which is perfectly natural. Not to desire honors is to be unnatural, and I think to say one does not desire them is in many instances dishonest. Yet most people place a too-high and often a false value on them. You will take away from your work of the past three years in the Putnam High School just what you have put into it, and honors could not have added to or subtracted from its value to you. You have much more than the marks you have received in your different studies. In each of these you have creditable record- more than that- a good record and in addition you have a knowledge of home keeping, cooking, piano, violin, C.E. work and S.S. work, and letter writing. In this letter I should be tempted in marking to give 100+. What shall I do to learn during this next year what is going on at home. Perhaps they will write you and you will send the letters on to me. In college I suggest that you do not take on such work as C.E. and S.S. work the first year. Get well started in the College life first. Keep up your music, but outside of that devote yourself pretty rigidly to the regular college studies. I think you will spend less time in going to lectures and entertainments than you have in Putnam. Above all keep yourself feeling fresh. Don't allow yourself to get all tired out, so your knees shake and you feel nervous. A person cannot be said to be educated if he does not know how to take care of himself so that he has all his powers at his command all the time. Enter the Gymnasium at once and when you go to Gym, have a good time- forget that there is a book in the world and make play of your exercise, play tennis- basketball. Go to bed at 10 p.m. or earlier. Have a definite time for the preparation of each lesson and let nothing steal that time from you- and let nobody steal it from you. Cultivate happy and hopeful thoughts. Don't think of honors, but do each hour's duties to the best of your ability, honestly, - and honors will come to you- not possibly those for which you have worked, but they will come as surprise and be of real value. Then there are honors beside high marks. In my own experience I stood highest of 80 pupils in the first year of high school when I was 16 years old. I was the most astonished lad on earth when I went to school that morning and learned the fact. I did not even know that a prize was offered. But for the other honors- I mean like your Ivy Oration etc. you may have heard me say that I have been chosen as President of my class in every institution I have attended, in my senior year, - High school, College and Seminary. Honors of some kind are sure to come to the person who is faithful in his daily work and who tries to be helpful as he goes thru life, - I must go to church now.

This afternoon we had the communion at the close of the Convention week, - a long service. It has been a full week with the two meetings, each morning and several committee meetings thrown in. Wednesday we of #74 all went to Kushan Monastery. Miss Ward, Miss Blanchard, a Miss Bontell of the Holyoke College and Mr. Storrs went with us. Just as I was out of my bath after getting home a committee meeting was announced at 8 pm at Mr. McLachlins. In the Conference of Evangelism the day before I had suggested a province-wide evangelistic campaign to cover a period of years- say five. And several of the men were meeting that evening consider asking Mr. Munson to be the Secretary for such a plan. He had been to Foochow that day. Mac had just come up with a hard cold. Dr. Turner came in a chair in his Kimono and half sick and I had been to Kushan. But we worked out a plan and it went thru yesterday morning at the closing meeting. This is the largest thing we have ever had before us.

Mon evening Mr. and Mrs. Christian, Miss VanderLinden and Mr. Carpenter were for dinner. Thursday evening Mr. and Mrs. Munson and Mr. and Mrs. Newell were here.

I am much grateful that you are anticipating College- enjoy it, in fact try to enjoy all life, then each year will be better than its predecessor.

I have not written any thing about your studies and I cannot in detail. I would suggest that you plan for the Kindergarten course- unless you have changed your mind. I shall ask God to direct you. May He keep you all

Very Lovingly Your Father Willard L Beard

Kuliang

Aug 15, 1915

Dear Ones at Home,

This week brought two letters from home and two for Willard from Putnam, and one from Oliver. It is the first one from Oliver since Olive left him- and we were all so glad to get it. Phebe and Geraldine both write of your visit, Ruth and Leolyn, and of that of the Bridgeport girls. Geraldine evidently missed Olive keenly and both girls write that Gracie seems to feel the loss very much.

Monday began the week with a swimming party of ladies at 3.30. Eleven of us went in. Mrs. Hodous let her home be dressing room and ours was tea home. It was nearly 5.00 when we finally arrived for tea. Others came in so we served 28 ladies and children and 4 men. Several invited guests were kept away by a rehearsal for "The Holy City." That night it was so calm that we brought our ordinary lamp outside and read on the porch.

Tuesday afternoon we went swimming again. Then we went over to the courts to watch the tennis tournament. We could not stay long because Mr. Jones had invited us over to the bachelor's mess for dinner at 7.00 o'clock. For once men were more numerous than ladies, two to one.

On Wednesday we had swimming before breakfast. After the 4.30 Prayer Meeting we came directly home to dress for the "Immigration Party." Flora and I went as Egyptians and dressed in sheets. Willard was an Indian returning from a trip abroad. The star of the evening was Mr. Jones as a French general. He wore white trousers, black coat and white three cornered hat. His epaulets were bedroom slippers attached by large safety pins. He wore several round marking tags as badges, one curtain panel and one wooden pulley holder. He had a wooden leg and arm as results of bullets so was very stiff and angular. As he is tall and slender and wears a pointed beard anyway he was fine.

Mr. Newell was a Dutch boy and carried off his part well. Mrs. Perkins as a Belgian refugee was a beauty.

Over the door of the porch was a sign "Ellis Isle"- and just inside, at a table, sat the "Inspector." We were motioned to seats and soon the roll was called. After roll call we went out for "eats." Each took a dish of soup and some zwieback as we went to our places. Then we got up and got into line. First we took plate etc.; then we came to a table containing, "Indian corn", "Psaltries", "Macaroni a la' Italian next "Salade a la' France"; then "Weenies", "Sauerkraut" and "Brot". The weenies were roasted for us by the two boys. They also served the cocoa and cake later.

When we returned the "Inspector" examined some of the party and found several ineligible.

Lastly we each wrote a line of a letter to Miss Bosworth and answered a few questions using our initials as those[?] of the answers.

It was 11.30 when we got in. The joke was on us because we could not make out from the invitation whether it was for dinner or not. We ate lightly but some of the guests had eaten a hearty dinner before over.

Willard was off at 6.30 the next morning for Foochow. I was up in time to eat with him and everyone was out to see him off. That afternoon we went over to watch the tournament after stopping at Miss Lambert's sale. We saw some awfully good tennis. I stayed late because I was to eat at home. Flora returned early because she and Will were to dine with the Nightingales.

Friday we again watched tennis but all had to leave at 6.00 because we had guests invited for 7.00. Dr. and Mrs. Lacy came although they had had a granddaughter born at their home that afternoon. Mr. and Mrs. Ned Smith were the other guests.

Yesterday afternoon Willard and I walked over for him to do some business with Mr. Belcher. I visited with Mr. B. and Charles Francis, aged 5 weeks. Later I went in to see Mrs. Cooper a minute. She has been ill for a month and has only just begun to see people. Later we all dressed and went out to super with 5 A.B.C.F.M. ladies. We arose from the table and all hastened our steps to the Club for the "Heathen[?] Concert." There are some fine voices here and the people are most delightful about using them. Yesterday morning we breakfasted with the Ford's on the other side of the hill. Willard had business so Flora and I came home and made calls along the way. Mrs. MacLachlin was out but we sat on her porch and watched a party of transfers[?] make the last stretch up Ku Shan mountain. Then we called at Mrs. Munson's and played with Eleanor Claire and Dora.

Miss Strang was here for a short stay this morning waiting for Willard to return from Chinese church.

Our family begins to scatter this week. The three "not Beards" all leave before another Sunday but Flora and I leave on the first boat after another Sunday. Our "couple" hardly can spare time to sleep now that the time is so short. They take no day nap and sit up until 11.00 or later every night.

Willard thinks he is writing a home letter but his position and snore signify that he is mistaken.

We have clever children here too. Niel Newell put Dwight up to throwing the bucket down the well as a joke on the boy. His parents were remonstrating with them about that and also about a habit of pulling plaster off the walls just as the ice cream man came along. "No ice cream," says mother, "and we will use our money to fix the home where you have harmed it." So Neil says, "I don't like ice cream. Mother didn't you think it would be a good punishment to make us eat some?"

On Saturday began my "sure nuff" vacation because I stopped my class the day before. I had been up 28 times. That means I am in a few dollars to help pay for all the curios I have purchased this summer.

The Educational Convention was held this week. Willard had to preside as Chairman. Flora went down all one morning. I went for part of the time. They met in the club which is small and not well ventilated. We had the best seats, there on the veranda. A Chinese girl gave one of the papers and it was most scholarly.

Tomorrow evening we give a party and have about 28 people in all. We three are out every evening but one. On Friday we go to dinner and there with our host and hostess to an evening party. This is getting to be the gay life!!

I shall mail the suit of underwear from Shanghai as we go thru. I have put in a caned chair which you can keep or give for Christmas, just as you like. It is very cheap out here 50 cents silver, but rather pretty and odd. We leave on the first boat after next Sunday.

Mary Beard.

[This partial letter dated about Aug. 23, 1915 was written from Kuliang, Foochow, China by Flora to the folks at home. All summer everyone thought Miss Francis and Mr. Birkel were either or would become engaged. Both left Kuliang without an announcement of any kind. There has been much tennis playing on Kuliang this summer. Mary and Flora plan to leave for Shanghai within a couple of days. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[About Aug 23, 1915]

Dear folks at home:-

Mother's letter with the shoe ribbons came a week ago. I am very glad to have them for mine have given out and I've had to use what I could get which weren't much.

I am enclosing the memorandum which I kept for our use during the last two weeks here on Kuliang. This by no means fills in the entire day for we did a lot of work besides this.

On Friday Miss Russell and Miss Francis left for their steamer to Shanghai. Miss Francis, who has been spending all her spare moments with Mr. Birkel all the summer, would not acknowledge their engagement. We're all feeling somewhat disgusted with their performances. Mary played a few pranks on them but never the crack of a smile or any recognition could be gotten out of them. Perhaps she has told you so I'll not repeat.

We have had a fine summer. After the first week of rain we had no more except a few showers a week or two ago. It has been a record summer for heat but it has never been unbearable as long as we stayed at home. After 4 o'clock it cools off so that the tennis courts have been very popular. There has been an unusual amount of tennis ability here this summer, and the men's doubles have spent two afternoons from 4.30 to 6.30 trying to win on one side and each afternoon had to stop because of the dark, and each time it was a tie. Some of the playing has been fine. There must have been over a hundred watching and the nice thing about the crowd has been the applause for a fine play on either side. It happened that the sides are divided—two English men against a French man and an American.

There has been a remarkable amount of ability in music here also, and the work done in giving "The Holy City" was wonderful when one knows that the time of preparation was only four weeks. There was a chorus of about thirty voices.

Yesterday Mr. Birkel left. Such luke warmness in a man I've seldom seen. He was perfectly willing to let his lady love precede him by a few hours down the mountain!

We have quite enjoyed to-day by ourselves. We wrote letters all the morning and the two brothers- Neff- came over for tiffin. We heard a lot of very interesting news about Hainan and the neighboring islands, where one of the 'Neffs' has been teaching in an agricultural college. He is going back to U.S. to take up law in Ohio somewhere.

Mary wants you to send to her a pair of soles for her be slippers- No. [# or size not filled in].

I will write some more in Shanghai as we expect to leave in a day or two.

[Any remaining pages are missing.]

Shanghai: Aug. 26:- We have had a fine trip up from Foochow and have two days here before we start on for Tientsin. So far we have dodged typhoons and we hope to be as fortunate the rest of the way.

We left Will well.

Lovingly- F. Beard.

I am sending by this same mail a sealed letter containing six handkerchiefs to Miss Brewster. – F.B.

They are on their way from Shanghai to Tientsin a day later than originally planned. While waiting to leave they visited St. John's college. China Navigation Company's
S.S. Tungchow, Aug. 29.- 1915

Dear Ones at Home,

We are on the second stretch of our journey at last. The steamer finally sailed just 24 hours later than first scheduled but we were comfortable at Mrs. Lacy's with Miss Oldroid as hostess. When we sent our heavy baggage, two trunks, two boxes and four chairs, to the steamer the boy brought back word of the postponement. Flora and I then ordered a carriage- and took a drive out to St. John's college. The driver did not know the way or misunderstood, - and gave us a mile or two extra trip by beautiful homes and two large Chinese Colleges to a French Institution. The St. John's buildings were nearly all closed and we could get into none, but the grounds were beautiful. It was like a bit of home with its green campus laid out with clumps of bushes to divide it off.

The buildings are red brick trimmed with gray and all strutting foreign style on the exterior at least. They look like college buildings. Last evening we went down to the "Gardens" to hear the Shanghai Band play. They gave a concert two hours long and mighty good. The band plays in the garden every evening from 9-11 except Tuesday and Friday. Then it plays in the afternoon, once in the gardens and once out at Recreation Park. We heard it on Friday afternoon at the Park. Both the Parks and Gardens are run by the Shanghai Municipality Council and are strictly for foreigners.

We left the Bund [an embankment on the waterfront] this morning at 10.00 and are now nearing the mouth of the river (4.30 P.M.) The water is just as rough as it was coming from Foochow but the Tungchow is several times larger than the Haeen. Our Stateroom is a regular palace. Instead of bunks we have two iron beds fast to the walls. Each of us has a wash stand with mirror, a special seat for our suitcase, two racks for bundles and a large hook to hang things on. There are two windows and plenty of space.

The boat is full. Children are legion and of all ages. Most of them are going to Cheefoo or Wei Hai Wei for the month of September. All of the little ones have Amahs so are not underfoot of we passengers.

I have been watching our cocoa sea. It looks nice and rich and as we plough through it we make it look as though it was coated with whipped cream. We will hardly get into clear water tonight because the current carries the mud so far out.

We are very swell with our own chairs. We chose the two easiest that we are taking for the school and had the other two tied securely together.

The Saturday night before we left the mountain Laura Ward gave a Holyoke spread. Mrs. Peet, Laura, Harriet Bontelle and I were the only graduates. Mrs. Thompson was there one year and Helen Smith is planning to go. The other guests were Mr. Peet, Mr. Thomson and the four ladies with whom Laura lives. We tried to have a college table- Mrs. Peet was faculty, I was senior opposite, Laura and Harriet were freshmen and waited on table. The boys were relegated to the pantry or kitchen. Helen Smith was interested as could be but very quiet. After supper we played games or talked for awhile. Willard and Flora called for me and Mr. Smith for Helen. They came in and waited while we sang our songs and then some popular ones for them to join with us. Flora and Will feasted out on the rocks that night.

Sept. 2- We are in the Pei Ho and will reach Tientsin in about two hours. We did not even see Wei Hai Wei as we came through because we stopped from 5.30-7.30 A.M. There was great hurrying and scurrying to get the passengers off and new ones on. It was 11.30 when we reach Cheefoo. We staid on the steamer until after lunch then went ashore for two hours. We took a rickshaw ride out past the C.I.M. school for foreign children. It is a very large establishment. Then we went up the hill and home by the upper road past the large vineyards. We stopped at McMullans and I got a silk collar and some lace.

On the way to the jetty we bought a basket of fruit because in Cheefoo they raise fine foreign apples, pears, peaches and grapes. These with the pomolos we bought in Shanghai we shall portion out to our various friends in Peking and Tungchow.

At Cheefoo Mr. Mills and two trained nurses whom he knew got me so we have had company. Fortunately the sea smoothed down so we had energy to do more than hold down a long chair. It was awfully choppy up to there. We were delayed at Cheefoo by the amount of cargo we had to discharge so were too late for the early tide yesterday. We had to anchor outside the Taiku [pronounced tie 'goo according to the ABCFM] bar for about four hours then we came in to Tang Ku and tied up at the wharf until six this morning. We arrived before dark so took a walk out toward the point. It is always a great relief to me to set foot on terra firma. Poor Flora, I do shock her so!! Last night Mr. Mills said there was a cool spot on the rear deck and proposed that we occupy it. We did. Flora was so shocked that soon she sent out a note asking me to come to bed. I am being well looked after you see!! I did not see anything either improper or shocking in my conduct and laughed as did Mr. Mills when I told him the contents of the note.

As we came across the bar yesterday we passed a steamer stuck there. They would have to wait until the tide floated them off.

We had on board a Mr. Odell, U.S. Commissioner of Commerce and his sister and husband. They were so all important that they amused me greatly. They got off at Tang Ku and took the evening train to Tientsin. It made quite a cavalcade as they went off with their baggage.

This will show our safe arrival at Tientsin. Next we will write from Tungchow. Train service is such that we must spend tonight in Peking.

Lots of love. We did have such a good summer with Will. The best part is that he professes just as much enjoyment as we do.

Lovingly, Mary Beard.

#74 Kuliang.

Dear Gould:-

The longer I am away from you all the harder it is for me to wait patiently for your letters. The last two mails brought me nothing from either Putnam or Shelton, and it seems a month since I have a letter from home, when in reality it has been only 17 days since Geraldine's nice, long, interesting letter arrived. The last news from Shelton spoke of you as cultivating corn and of all as just getting ready for strawberries. Then would come haying and then odds and ends of work. The month after haying was to me always the least interesting of the whole year on the farm,- largely I think because I was tired from the unusually hard work of haying, and partly because there was the time to do many little [words missing because of some substance] not show much, and then this I think is the most enervating [words missing] of the year. You are right in it now as I write. I wonder what you are doing. You must have had an interesting time this summer with Frederick. You also knew his older brothers. How does he compare with them? Where is he in school? The last mail brought a good letter from his father who was spending a month at Lake Mohawk I believe.

The summer on Kuliang has been a very full one for me.- But I have gotten a good rest out of it and already feel like a new man. I'm certainly getting rest now- if being quiet is rest. Aunt Flora and Mary left last Monday. I went down with them, saw them on the launch at 10 p.m. Monday. Then went to my house in the city arriving at 11:30. Slept well until 8 a.m. Tuesday, worked till 11, took a nap, ate lunch, started at 2 p.m., called on Ding Ming Uong until 3, then started for the mountain.

My whole force of servants is still here.- But I am taking lunch each day with Mr. and Mrs. Hodous- breakfast at home and supper at home- unless someone asks me out,- which is half the time. Mr. and Mrs. Hodous go down next Wed. Then I shall take lunch with Mrs. Munson in Dr. Bliss' cottage, and I shall plan to go down about a week from tomorrow or next day Sept. 6 or 7.

The Bath has been most popular this year. I had it thoroughly repaired at the beginning of the season and it has been full of water all the time. The ladies have two mornings in the week before breakfast and they say there are 10 or more in frequently. Some mornings there are 12 of us men in, and often there are 10 or 15 in during the day. Tennis has been most interesting. The weather has been perfect for this. As it is well written up in the Register I'll not speak of it in detail here. Harry Worley has surprised all by his good playing. I never saw better singles than when he beat Dr. Montgomery and when he and a Mr. Rentoul of [words missing] Montgomery and Pakenhou-Walsh twice. Henry Lacy is also [words missing] good tennis.

Dr. and Mrs. Wm. Lacy are here. All their sons are in China and Alice plans to come. She is in college now. Walter the eldest is teaching in the Anglo-Chinese College. Henry is in charge of a High School in Ngu Cheng. Carleton is the only minister. He is likely to be somewhere in central China. He was here for a few weeks, preached one of the best sermons we have heard this summer two weeks ago. Did you ever notice that one hears a great many addresses, sermons etc and he really assimilates a very, very small part of them? Think over the addresses you have heard during the past year and tell just what in any of them impressed you so as to make you think. At the time you were listening it may have seemed interesting and pleasing, but did it so take hold of you that it stuck and became a part of you. In the addresses I have heard during the past year two stand out in this way. Mr. Neff preached last summer and I got this to me a great big thought out of his sermon. I must have as my principle business in life- to express Jesus Christ to men,- that as I must be such a man as shall make people think of Him when they meet me- The coolies must think of such a man as Jesus - if they do not know Him when they meet me, and I must be a friend- brother, father and husband of such a kind as to make all think of Jesus, or see something about me that leads them to think of Him- I wrote of this a year ago. It has stuck. Carleton Lacy said that people remember two things about a man, his name and his message. It is not a great thing to leave a big name,- A man may build a college or a library or a tennis court or a swimming pool or even a church or may start a piece of work, that will cause men to remember his name, but that is very different from the message Washington [words missing] all men are born free and equal. I shall [words missing] Lyman Abbott for teaching me that the Life of God is in the Soul of Man. I shall remember the message of Pres. James H. Fairchild of Oberlin during my student days there- Benevolence is the great virtue, and my responsibility is only as great as my ability. I can then always do what is required of me, and if any one tries to make me think I ought to do what is beyond my power to do, he is overreaching his authority. I shall never forget what satisfaction this truth gave me as I realized it. I can always do as much and that which I ought to do- any thing beyond this is not my duty.

Irving Lacy is in Shanghai in charge of the Meth. Book Careers[?] there.

The drought has been pretty bad in the plain. But last Wed. a good shower came and every day since there have been showers on different sides of us and today again we have had a nice shower. This means no typhoon just now.

I am sending mama the printed minutes from our Annual Meeting of the Mission and some of the papers discussed at our Conference on Evangelism and the program of the Holy City and an invitation.

I pray especially that Phebe may be guided by God in beginning College and that you may be given light as you think of your life vocation,- whatever you choose, have a message to give to the world and live that message out as well [words missing] look forward to seeing you next summer when [words missing] talk this over- not necessarily to settle it, that only one person can do- yourself but get all light possible and then go ahead as far as the light shines. More will then be shed. Be perfectly honest with yourself with other men and with God. Follow what you feel you ought to do rather than what you want to do.

May God keep, bless, guide and use each of you to help men and glorify Him.

Your loving Father

Willard L. Beard

Did you remember "Friday afternoons"? F.B.

China Navigation Company's Tungchow,
Aug. 31, 1915.

Dear Will:-

I hope the rest of the night (after we left you) was as comfortable for you as it was for us. The moonlight and the breeze made our trip down river quite delightful. We reached the steamer about midnight and went right to bed to perspire and to sleep (?). They were loading coffin boards- most of the night- boards which weighed nearly a half ton. In my sleep it seemed as if the whole crew were having a regular war dance, when they worked themselves up to a climax and with one concerted shout jumped and landed like a ton of lead. That must have been the thud of the huge board on the floor of the hold. There was no use trying to sleep late so about 6 A.M. I arose and dressed, and went on deck. The steamer was still surrounded by dozens of junks- full. I saw the captain looking over the rail so I ventured (!) to speak to him. He was most civil in answering me, and we talked for a few minutes about the time of sailing, then I left him. He apologized for his costume (I had not noticed he was in his pajamas) - and said, "It's before 8 o'clock." Later on in the morning he came of his own free will and talked a long time with me, got a huge book of England pictures and stood by my side while I looked at them. He untied the chairs (had one of the deck hands do it) that are always roped together on the front of the deck, and they were left free for the rest of the trip! He lent me his copy of the Bryce report on conditions in Belgium and then told me all about his family and showed me the pictures of his daughters! He spent a lot of time on us all and quite redeemed his former reputation. There was a peculiar phenomenon on the water and he came down from the bridge to show it to us, saying, "You have heard of 'painting the town red', well, I'll show you the sea painted red." Sure enough, there was a long irregular stretch of vermillion sea, which we presently sailed right through. He said he thought it was a kind of fish spawn and it looked quite like it. He said whales fed on it. [Crill?]

We enjoyed Dr. Turner very much. He was suffering all the way but was up and around all the time. He helped see that our things were on to the steamer and also to get them off. Our steamer had to anchor out in midstream at Shanghai, so it was a great kindness to be helped on to shore. It was very early in the morning when we anchored and Mary and I got to the Lacy's before they were up. They did not think we would arrive so soon. We left our big baggage for the man to get later.

We had plenty of time to get all our shopping done and to spend all our money (!). When the sailing of the steamer was put off for twenty four hours we did not know what to do with ourselves so we took a carriage and drove out to St. John's College. Our mafu evidently did not understand our wishes for he landed us at the French orphanage much farther on. There we met a 'Father' and he directed the mafu so that we did get to the college. We walked about a little and then returned home- glad that we got to see more than we had intended. In the evening we went to the park to hear the band concert. Each had a chair (like your canvas one at the mountain) and listened to the music while we reclined.

We finally sailed from Shanghai on Sunday at 10 A.M. and we are on the finest boat on the coast. It is only a year old and it has all the improvements. The cabins are large enough so that the berths N.B-6 ft. 6 in. long are on each side of the door and no uppers. We have two windows 18 in. X 24 in. each so there is plenty of air- especially as we are on the windy side. It was all I could do to get on this steamer for every cabin was taken, but they put two men into one cabin so we got ours. There are more than a dozen children on board- fine looking ones. About eight of them are on their way to school either in Chefoo or Tientsin. It seems there is a large Catholic school in Tientsin. One of the teachers of the Kuliang school is here taking four of the Kuliang students to Chefoo. That school was an overflow of the Chefoo school and they have decided to add to Chefoo rather than to rebuild at Kuliang.

This has been a fine trip so far. The ocean was like a "mill pond" much of the way up to Shanghai, but it has been a little rough this way. Mary has not felt happy much of the way- just enough to keep her sleepy. She has eaten all her meals, but has not felt like exercising. The cuisine of this boat is fine. We are having pomelos and Chefoo apples which are quite a little similar to our red astrakans at home. The meats and pastries are very appetizing.

After leaving Chefoo. - We had quite a few hours at Chefoo so we went on land, rode out to the School and back by the vineyards, of which there are acres and acres over the mountain sides. Mr. Mills, whose mother is a Pres. Missionary at Chefoo, was sailing with us, so we have an acquaintance on board now. There is also a Methodist lady from Soochow here who knows Miss Francis. We met Mr. Mills last winter when he visited Peking and stayed in our compound. He is 6 ft. 4 in. tall and has one eye that looks in the wrong direction. He says it has been most useful in discipline for the boys never can tell whether or not he is looking at them.

Since we left Chefoo the sea is as calm as can be and Mary is feeling tip top again. We had to stay so long at Chefoo that we have lost our tide at Taku so must wait twenty-four hours at Tongku before we can go up the river- by daylight. The result for us is that we shall be two days late. We could go on by rail if it were not for our baggage; but as it does not add to our expense to stay we shall not hasten on. I am sorry not to be back when I said I would but it cannot be helped.

It is delightfully cool- almost too cold. We wore our jackets on land yesterday and were not too warm even when walking.

Thurs. 7.30 A.M. - We are nearing Tientsin- will be there in two hours. It is cold this morning, so my thin banana jacket seems hardly enough. We shall get only as far as Peking to-night, and go on to Tungchou to-morrow- three days late- but not our fault.

Mary sends love with me-

Yours lovingly-
Flora Beard.

Dear Kathleen:-

It was very nice last evening to receive your letter telling me that the twins [Aunt Etta's children, Millicent and Harry Stewart Hume, b. 3/16/1911]. Etta is Ellen Kinney Beard's sister.] had come to Putnam. I had been told that Aunt Etta and the children were coming but Mama forgot to write in her letter and I should not have known that they had arrived if you had not written. I wonder also about Geraldine going to Columbia [Columbia, CT]. Did she go? And did she enjoy it? I suppose you will be in school third grade when this reaches you. What are you studying? We thought of you on August 10th when you were seven years old. I am trying to wait patiently until the family picture arrives. Some of you have written two or three times about it and the Shelton people have written about it. All say it is very good except Mama. And she always sees the bad things about a photograph. As she mentioned only a few about this one I concluded it must be a very good one.

This last week I went to Foochow twice. On Tuesday, to see the new church and to do other things that are always coming up. Then Mrs. Dr. Cooper died on Wed. evening and I went down for the funeral on Thursday. This going down twice in one week spoils the whole week. I get tired enough so I want to rest the remainder of the time. And Wed. night I was running all over the mountain from 9:30 till 1 a.m. Thursday morning and up again at 5:30 Thursday a.m.

Mrs. Bankhard's little girl about eighteen months old is very ill here on the mountain with a fever.

I have my house full again. Mrs. Belcher has a little baby about seven weeks old and she was living with Dr. and Mrs. Cooper. The house they were living in is very much shut in and she was lonely over there. So I asked them to move over here. They all came over yesterday. Baby Charles is a fine boy.- sleeps all the time,- This evening his mother and father and I tried to waken him in vain at 6:45 to eat. Now at 8:30 he is still asleep. You will enjoy him and Marion Jean Newell and Dom Munson (and there will be more by the time you get here) when you come out next summer.

Kuliang is getting quite thinly peopled. The church was only about half full this afternoon. And many are going down this week. Every house has been full this summer except the one where Dr. Gracey used to stay way over near Mr. Siemssens. I must go down Tuesday afternoon or Wednesday morning to be ready for the Girl's Student Conference. I am the only man among the leaders and there are about a dozen ladies.

The new church is most ready for the roof timbers. I shall be glad to be in Foochow to see about it for the supporting of the roof is a very important part of the building, and this is supported in a new way. As soon as the Conference closes College opens- Sept. 15.

I have just received a letter from Mr. Bidwell of Kansas City saying that he was sending me a suit of clothes!! and a notice from the Japanese P.O. informs me that they have for me a parcel containing "1 vest 1 coat 1 pant." I shall be greatly interested to see what the clothes will be like - color- quality -size etc. I see they are worth $15.00.

Letters from Aunt Mary say they were leaving Shanghai last Sunday at 11:30 am. All has gone very pleasantly thus far with them. They were staying in Mrs. Lacy's house in Shanghai- only Irving and Dr. Lacy's Secretary were there. They had all business done and expected to start north Sat. But the boat was delayed a day, so they took a carriage and went out to St. John's University. The driver got lost and gave them a nice long ride - without extra cost.

Lovingly your Father
 Willard L. Beard

Sept 10th [1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

We began the week with a home full of workmen. Some started to fill the cracks in the paint with a peculiar pink putty which has a horrid smell like decayed fish or eggs. The next set of men started about 12-24 hours later and washed woodwork, then when that was dry another set started to apply oil and at another interval came a fourth set with varnish. I just wish you could see the oiling done. Each man has a minute rag which he saturates with oil, then they rub over the surface with their hands. The cracks are done by one special man who has a native brush with very short bristles. For applying the varnish they have a brush one degree better than ours.

They are shaped thus. The slant makes it possible to get into small places quite easily. So far two floors are all done, the third nearly oiled and the fourth ready to be washed.

On Monday night four of us went swimming in the fish pond. The moon was glorious and the night was warm and quiet. Mrs. Galt and Mrs. Porter sat in the boat and held a rope which could be used to rescue us but we did not need it.

The water looks clear but I think looks are deceiving because my bathing suit was awfully dirty, so was I. It was good fun anyway. On Wednesday evening we had a special compound meeting to see what aid the members could give in teaching in case we obtained no assistance. I auctioned off a German class which has since returned, a Latin class (in case Mrs. Porter does not also get a request to teach English in the girl's school); a History class and two English classes. Today we heard of one new possibility for assistant so again live in hopes. This lady is in Peking so we will not be long in suspense.

Yesterday Flora spent the day in Peking buying crockery. She did not get much because the stock is so depleted and the storekeepers are getting in nothing new. In Tientsin we found much American stock and at fairly reasonable prices. I got Colgate's tooth paste and could have gotten anything in Colgate's list. Flora got Queen Quality shoes.

Both Mr. Beers and Mr. Gordon appeared on the noon train yesterday. I spent my afternoon settling furniture over at the Corbett home and so was caught unawares in an awfully dirty middy. I never let on that I felt dirty and hope they did not notice too carefully. Mr. Gordon seems very interesting and as though he would be good ballast for our boys. He suggests the position of older brother rather than one of supreme authority. I like it for two reasons, one it will produce a feeling of good fellowship, and second that Flora returns the position of highest authority anyway and doesn't yield even the small details easily. Mr. G. said that he heard that one of the boys was boasting that he was going to keep the men at the dormitory interested. Both men began boarding with us last night but Mr. Beers is ill today so we have seen but little of him.

We had our first regular church service this afternoon. Mr. W?? read a sermon that he had chosen to read last Spring. Illness prevented his using it. It was good but brief.

I am finding Mrs. Porter most interesting on better acquaintance. She "nears" to be better every day. She is going to take a Latin class if her other work will permit. Unfortunately her two children are too young for our school and not near enough together to put into the same work. Hence she must teach the whole gamut of both first and second grade.

We had a letter from Will this week. He was just at Shanghai. The strict quarantine on all steamers from Japan had delayed them in landing. The paper says that Japan will no longer publish the number of cases because it is unduly alarming other nations and hurting her trade.

Mrs. Sweeny is going to be a pleasant addition to our numbers. She is jolly and not overworked. It looks good to see someone who has time to stroll just to stroll, not to get as much exercise into as short a time as possible. She has time to top for a social chat at any home and is interested in us all equally.

Tomorrow we have a compound dinner in Honor of Dr. Smith (A.B.C.F.M.) and his party who are seeing the American Board work here. We are to be quite swell.

I must go to bed. Flora has already gone and we are to begin 7.15 breakfast tomorrow.

With lots of love

Mary.

[Sept. 12, 1915]

Dear folks at home:-

It is Wednesday of the week. I should have written to you. We found some magazines here when we arrived on Friday and Sunday was the first opportunity I had to read- doing of which prevented letter writing.

Probably Mary told you of our trip up the coast- free from typhoons. We managed to slip in between storms. I enjoyed the trip all the way but Mary felt uncomfortable much of the time. If she could have had a good upheaval I believe she would have felt much better.

Mr. Grimes (the business agent in Tientsin) met us and attended to moving our seven big pieces of baggage and getting us off on the train to Peking. We did a lot of shopping between 11 A.M. and 3:45 P.M. when our train left. We reached Peking at 7 P.M. and spent the night at Mrs. Ingram's, coming down here (Tungchou) the next morning.

Sunday, Sept. 12.- (To go on where I left off on Wednesday)- As soon as we arrived in Tungchou we visited our school building and have spent all our time there since. This week has been one of tremendous accomplishments. The way in which things have slopped into place is a compliment to the ones who have been planning the whole thing. Now the rooms are all furnished, our store room full of things to be made to eat our ice box equipped and filled, and to-morrow will probably see the last curtain in place, the lamps, filled and trimmed and we shall take our first meal at tiffin time in our dining -room. Mr. Johnston our eighteen year old teacher is already here. He is just a big fine high school boy but will be a great help to us and our older boys. He is ready to enter college but is waiting a year to go home with his parents on their furlough, when he will stay for his college work. There are two young men here (for the Chinese college) who have just arrived from U.S. who will keep him company, so he will not be lonely, I think.

I don't believe you caught the Wilders for my watch as they are arriving this week. If you have not bought it, do not hurry as I have purchased a cheap one here, which I think will do for a year, if necessary. Either the Methodists, Presbyterians, or American Boarders will have people returning sometime during the year, so you can send it by them.- I bought a rain coat here of Mrs. Burgess and I can't find out the exact price-whether it is $10 or $11. I am writing to Mrs. Burgess (in U.S.) and telling her to send word to you so that father can send her a check for the amount.- Will you please watch the time when the Xmas cards come out and send me 18 or 20 of them- suitable to send to children? If they can get here by the middle of December (at the latest) they will be here in time for me to use them.

Well, this week introduces us to the real work we came to do, and I believe all will go well. I shall write about it next week.

Lovingly-

Flora Beard.

Tungchou, Peking
Sept 12, 1915

Dear Ones at Home,

I just wish you could see the results of our labors this week. Few weeks of my life have had as much outward show as results of labors as this. We started into an empty, dirty building and now every window pane, every bit of woodwork, floors, stairs, etc. have had one scrubbing and all of the furniture is in place. Curtains hang at many of the windows and a pile of curtains returned from the laundry last evening. Curtains hide the open ducts and fill the spaces between dining room and hall. Gen the cook has gotten busy and there are several loaves of bread, a jar of cookies, fruit and vegetables ready for us to start on tomorrow. Poor man he is worried about the bread for such a company. He has worked for a family of three elderly people where one loaf a week was enough! We have given him a foreign stove instead of a Chinese range because it is in the main building and we were afraid of gas at night. The stove is not quite as large as our kitchen range so it is some proposition. He has discouraged moments but is willing to try it. There are several other cooks looking for the job so we do not worry. His last qualification is perfect trust worthiness as well as good cooking so we are not desirous of changing.

The week started with the arrival of a new baby at 4.00 A.M. Monday. We saw him the first afternoon and he is a fine looking little chap. Dr. Tolman who came over on the Mongolia with us was here to receive him because Dr. Love did not arrive until Thursday noon.

Here are a few details of one week's work. On Monday we made five sash curtains and eleven splashers. The cloth-man came and we bought cloth for portiers and curtains and screens and towels. On Tuesday I got my room partly together, then came home and made curtains, then went over and helped put them up. Dr. Smith called to give Flora the list of some 300 books he is giving to the school. The two boys and I covered half of a screen. The coolies placed all the furniture which had been delivered and put up some of the beds. On Wednesday I got my big trunk in my room and partly unpacked. Flora and I unpacked our boxes of books and I got mine all upstairs. Mrs. Edwards was down for tiffin and a nurse who was visiting Miss Leavens was in for dinner. We had a Chinese dinner.

On Thursday we started the coolies on the floors of the top floor. We worked on curtains and many little puttering things that day. Dr. and Mrs. Love and Junior arrived on the noon train and were here for tiffin and dinner. Mrs. Sheffield and Mrs. Andrews left that evening so we went to the station to see them off. We had visited Mrs. S.'s attic and chosen some pictures, cushions etc., that she was willing to let us use.

On Friday Flora and Mrs. Corbett went to Peking with a shopping list nearly a page long. I was over to school all day. The furniture for Mrs. Sheffield's came over. I had books put in cabinets, shelves completed etc. in the morning. In the afternoon Mrs. Galt came over and we had the dining room put in order, Flora's bed put up, the sitting room arranged, shades unwrapped at the windows and strings put in for pulling them down. Every floor was done by night. Yesterday we put hooks on to hold some doors open, having mirrors cleaned the office etc.

I forgot the unpacking of the diner, the food stuffs, the lamp and school books which was scattered along on several days.

On Friday Mr. Beers arrived. He is Mr. Galt's new assistant who takes Mr. Shaw's place. He is just out of Harvard, a great talker, quite a dude and much interested in everything. Yesterday Mr. Johnson, our assistant at school, arrived by the noon train. He is a fine looking lad, very young but so clean and wholesome looking that I know he will be a great help. These three young men should have some good times together this winter. Mr. Woodall, stays at the Galt's, and is some older. As a guess at ages I should call Mr. Beers about 22, Mr. Woodall about 30 and Mr. Johnson I know is 18.

Tomorrow we move over to school and we three faculty eat our tiffin over there. Perhaps some children arrive on the noon train but we hope not. Already we have headed off three people who wanted to arrive early.

As Flora is writing too I think I had best close. Our mail is still returning from Foochow. We have had one nice home letter via Willard since we got back. What busy summer you people did have.

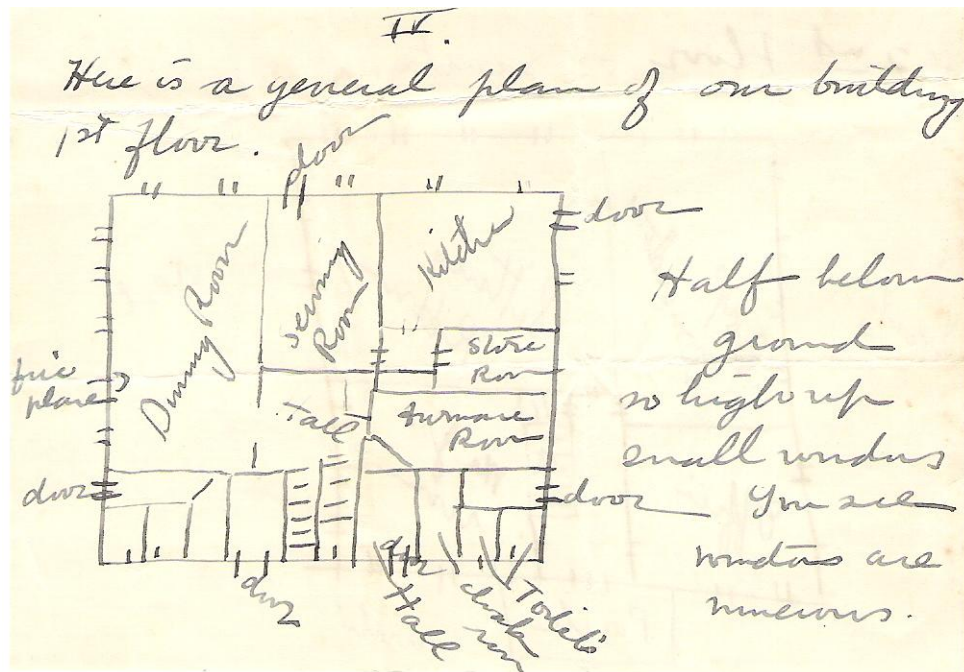

Lots of love

Mary.

Here is a general plan of our building. Half below ground so high up small windows You see windows are numerous.

These rooms have slanting ceilings because they are under the roof. The windows are shaped this way. The bath was an afterthought and is very small and low ceiling.

Foochow, China
Sept 12 1915

Dear Elizabeth:-

It was a great pleasure to receive your letter by the last mail. The girls as you have already heard left Foochow Aug. 23. I am enclosing letters that will tell you of their pleasant and safe journey to Peking. It has been very pleasant for us all to be together this Summer. Of course Flora and I could not help wondering if a typhoon or two would come to upset any of our plans and detract from the pleasure of our summer, and Mary may have had a wee secret longing for a little typhoon just to see what it was like and to add variety- but we have not had anything that even resembled a typhoon. Shanghai got all this year thus far. And we had almost no rain. Since July 10th we could play tennis every day but me on Kuliang. Mary enjoyed this and the Bathing Pool. She easily outswam all the others. The summer leaves a very sweet memory. I have written the girls of events since they left and will not repeat here. They will forward my letter.

I came down from the mountain last Wed. morning to teach a Bible Class in connection with the Y.W.C.A. Conference now in session here. It began Wed. evening. I was the only male representative. In saying a word about my Bible Study course I told them that I had not been given a badge, but that I had two distinguishing characteristics 1. a mustache 2. short hair. There are 104 students at the Conference. There are five Bible Classes and I have 30 in mine.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodous, Frederic and Rachel and myself are the only foreigners in the compound. I am taking meals with them. They came down from the mountain earlier than usual to get Jerome their eldest off to Shanghai to school. He is twelve years old past. The weather is not at all bad now. But it frequently is the case that the first week in Sept is cool and the second and third very hot and muggy.

I wish we could have exchanged some of our sunshine for some of your rain this summer. The farmers must have been much bothered by the excess of rain and I gathered that the rain rather injured the profits on your strawberries. The drought here will destroy some rice. But the rain has fallen all around us, and the first crop of rice reaped about the middle of July was almost a bumper crop so the drought is not serious. We have had some showers so grass and sweet potatoes are all right.

Foochow has had no epidemic this summer. Seldom does a year go by when we do not have either plague or cholera or both. The weather has been excessively hot and many people have had boils. For some time now idol processions have been numerous and have used great crowds and drawn great crowds. I came into the city from Ponasang Friday night a little after nine- just the time when the processions are getting under way. And the whole street for two miles was full of idols in pairs, one tall one- so tall that an ordinary man, on whom the frame was placed, just looked out of a hole in the breast of the idol. He is draped with silk and his face is about 13 in. long. Then walking just ahead of him is a little black idol with as large a face but inside is a 12 year old boy. The superstition and real idolatrous spirit of former years is to quite an extent lacking. The real motive is 2-fold. They do it because their fathers did it and because it is about the only way they have of getting a good time. To them their idol processions with their clanging of cymbals and beating of drums and blowing of horns and torches and gaudy colored figures etc supply what a circus supplies to the small boy and the crowds at home. As I write the air is confused with the sounds of getting ready for the processions for this evening. One street has them one night and another street the next night.

Time flies and the faster it flies during the next eight months the happier I shall be. I feel as I used to feel when a boy and looked forward to Christmas or Thanksgiving- only a few months off, but those few months as I looked ahead seemed ages. I must start from here about May 1st and start back about Aug. 1st. I shall want time to go slowly during the six weeks in the States. I am thinking now of going to Formosa, thence to Kobe, Japan and thence to Seattle and over the Canadian Pacific.

Tell Mother thank you for forwarding Gould's letter and for the lines she added. The newspaper clippings relieve me of all anxiety over Ben's lawsuit. I do not hear whether the boys have much work now. Evidently Ben is going into the Buick business.

The war telegrams are of much the same tenor as ever. I can not help feeling tho that Germany is doomed- that her policy of militarism is against the well being of humanity, and that God is allowing men to overthrow it as an ideal. Might does not make it right and God did not intend one man to rule another.

The cause of Prohibition goes marching on- not in just the was some would have it- but is growing fast, and the U.S. seems to be in the lead among the nations.

May God bless and keep you all.

Lovingly

Will.

Foochow, Sept 12- 1915

Dear Sisters [Flora and Mary]: - Last evening the mail brought Flora's letter mailed at Peking I guess, telling all about the trip up. I am gladder than the mere words indicate to know that you reached home with no typhoon.

I am sending an envelope full of letters and clippings from home that have come in during the week past. Please send Gould's letter back when you write sometime. I was much interested to read his characteristic observation about Ruth.

After you left I planned to take breakfast and supper at my own table and lunch with Mrs. Hodous. I thought not to come to Foochow again until about Sept 6 or 7th and then come down for good. But Wed. evening Sept. 1st at 9:30 Mr. Belcher sent a note saying that Mrs. Cooper was almost gone and asking me to come over at once. I went and she passed away after I had been there about 15 minutes. Dr. Cooper did not want to have anything to do with any arrangements, so I stayed and planned all out with Mr. Belcher and Mr. Christian. Then I went at once to the club for the coffin that I had fortunately bought for Mr. Pitcher in July, and wrote Mr. Mac to get the grave ready for now on Thursday and engaged coolies for all. Then went back to the house with the coffin and stayed till all was done and the coffin sealed. Mr. Christian took Dr. Cooper to my house where I found them when I returned at 1 a.m. Two sisters living at Dr. Taylors next to Dr. Coopers were there at the time. They are nurses and knew just what to do and how to do it.

Dr. Cooper stayed with me and is still at my house. I got to bed a little after 1 a.m. But it was hard work to go to sleep. You see I had had a lot of running about to do and a lot of business to transact. About 1:45 there came a knock at my door and the head of the coolie stand asked if I wanted to go and catch some gamblers. I declined. At 5:30 I was up. At 7:45 Mr. Hodous conducted the service at the house. Only members of the Am. Board and a few intimate friends had been notified. The veranda was well filled. At 8:30 we started, -Dr. Cooper, Dr. Gillette, Messers Christian and Hodous and myself. We reached the cemetery in Foochow at 11:30. Mac had the grave almost ready, and at 12 I conducted the short service with those mentioned above and Messers Fern and Munson and Dr. Moorhead present. We all went to Macs for lunch. And we five went back up the mountain. It was a very hot day. For the first time in my life I took four coolies up and down. But after lunch before starting I went up stairs in Macs hall, lay down on the floor and had a dandy nap. This did not keep me from putting in nine hours that night.

On Saturday Mr. and Mrs. Belcher and the baby moved over to my house. You see she has been pretty well shut in all summer. Mrs. Cooper's illness has kept callers away and Mrs. Belcher has had to watch her fade slowly away and it was a great relief to get new surroundings. Then their house has no view. When she got over she stood looking off the veranda and actually forgot to unpack. They have a fine baby that should make any Father and Mother proud. I plan to go up Thursday and close up the house and come down Friday. They all plan to move down Thursday. The weather here now is quite comfortable. I have had a blanket on me every night. - came down Wed. Sept 8- and have been over South Side to the Conference- Y.W.C.A. students each day from 8:30-9:30 a.m.

College opens this week Wednesday. Mr. Ding Ming Uong is to join the Faculty for this term. Mr. and Mrs. Hodous and children came down Friday Sept. 3. Jerome started for Shanghai on the next steamer via Formosa with Mr. Sam Neff. I am mealing with the Hodouses.

The Conference has 104 student delegates beside leaders I believe. I have 30 in my Bible class.

Mary's $3.00 reached me all right. If you are willing we will call all accounts to date settled. I shall have to write Misses Tramis and Russell that they forgot to pay for the laundry they had done in Foochow before going up. I will do my best to get Mary's futon [futon]. It ought to be all right- no you got it but did not settle-that's the rub isn't it?

I see Oberlin opens Sept. 14, so I suppose Phebe is almost ready to take the train by now. Etta and her children were in Putnam. I do not know whether Phebe would go as far as Buffalo with them.

May you have God's guidance in opening and in carrying on the school, - may all be prosperous. The memory of our summer together will always be sweet to me.

Lovingly
Will.

You might send this home then
I need not write just this to them.
I have one of these photos in my album.

[This letter dated Sept. 28, 1915 was written from Tungchou, China by Mary to the ones at home. She recently received the Beard Genealogy from sister Ruth. School has started and there have already been some illnesses. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[Sept. 28, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

The Genealogy came today and I have just glanced through it. I am proud of my authoress sister and shall scan thoroughly the whole work as soon as I can get time. I went to Peking last Monday for the first time since Sept. 3, and was busy every minute of the three hours I was there; then did not do anything but school business.

School is at last assuming a school like atmosphere. Flora wanted to let the children run wild for a season and they did. Now at last we are corralling them and can get a breathing spell of quiet once in a while.

The servants are all getting into line except the coolie. He is green and a little stupid. At the end of the month he is to get his walking papers and we take on Mrs. Porter's coolie.

I am trying to learn how to play a good game of tennis. I thought I could play a little when on Kuliang but cannot beat anyone here. I knew the players there were not very good except Mrs. Hodous and Mrs. Smith but did not realize how poor some of the others were. Mrs. Peters was so funny. I liked to play with her and could win three out of four sets in an average.

Last week we had a great time with colds and indigestion. I trotted to the Doctor several times with the different girls. Dr. Love takes an interest in us all and follows up each patient until a cure is effected.

Dr. Spear was in Peking last week and came down here for Thursday night. We all went over to Mrs. Corbett's to meet him. It was only an informal evening and we sat and talked.

There were two rainy days last week. I was glad indeed that Mr. Johnson is here to take care of the play. He really enjoys the home and makes his full share. It gets tiresome to me.

It is after the children's bed time, 8.30 and I have yet my two Caesar lessons to get before I can retire. Also I want to go to Mrs. Corbett's and mail this so it may get an early start tomorrow.

The bills came all O.K. Ruth and I think are all right. I will send a gold draft for $25 soon as my next Life Insurance is about due.

You will have to send our parcels to Peking all the time as there is no parcel post service in Tungchou. It is quite the usual thing to have to call for parcels when one goes to Peking.

If you come across a dark wool dress, reasonable in price- and suitable for school wear you can get it. A dress that is a good size too large for either Ruth or Elizabeth ought to fit me. I generally get a 40 in a serge because it wears better if large. Blue serge wears about the best, but I would not mind a brown if you find a pretty one. As to style, get what you like and I will be satisfied. Another thing I want is a pair of soles for the slippers Ruth made me. The tops are still good but the third pair of soles is worn out. I get size 8.

I am eager to get the package you sent and see the things. Mrs. Burgess is also sending a package of things to sell and it sounds interesting.

If you are anywhere near Trenton, N.J. you would enjoy meeting Mr. and Mrs. Burgess. The address is Box 563, Trenton, N.J. I do hope you can see them for we had such a pleasant winter in their home. He is John Stewart Burgess.

Lots of love
Mary.

Tues P.M. Sept 28.

[This letter dated Oct. 3, 1915 was written from Tungchou, China by Flora to the folks at home. Their school has finally been finished and opened with twenty scholars. The school dedication is planned for Oct. 12th. The students study, play and eat hard and they have had to make adjustments in the food. They are happy with their faculty. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[Oct. 3, 1915.]

Dear folks at home:-

We have finished three weeks of school and they have been the most strenuous weeks I ever lived, but they have turned out all right so I am living to tell the tale. We have twenty scholars- seventeen of them boarders. Tomorrow, we expect Delnoce Grant, who has just returned from a summer in America. I expect that will complete our list for the present.

Just now, we are interested in our "Dedication", which is to take place on Oct. 12th in the afternoon. Dr. Reinsch, the U.S. Minister is to give the address and probably Bishop Bashford will give the dedicatory prayer. We had hoped to have Dr. Arthur H. Smith do this, but he has arranged to go South for several weeks and leaves tomorrow, Oct. 4th, so we cannot have him.

Our new building seems to be a very useful place for there is literally not a spot in it which is not in use. The most noticeable inconvenience is the lack of closets. There is no place to put away things that are usually put out of sight, so that we have had to manage several ways. There were too many windows planned for so several were recovered and that space made into cupboards. They are placed above the floor the height of the others so that we have to step up onto something in order to get to the hooks on the shelves. I believe the radiators are to be placed right in front of them, so I am wondering how we are to manage when the heat is on. I think we'll have to make a little stile over them. They are low- only about a foot or fifteen inches tall. The installation of our heating plants is going to be a long slow process and I only hope the weather will be clement so that we may not suffer. A part of the boiler is in place and that is all. These Chinese here in Tungchou are the slowest ones I've met yet, and I know it will be Thanksgiving before we shall be rid of the workmen. It will be cold by that time- about as it is at home.

These children are adorable even if they do do everything superlatively. The first week, I thought they would be the end of me for they were simply irrepressible. They were wild with the joy of being here, and being with each other. They studied hard, played hard, and eat hard. There wasn't a scrap left of anything on the table at the end of the meal and the way these boys ate reminded me of the "Ruggle's party" in Bird's Christmas Carol. They were exactly as hungry at the next meal. The cook at least had the satisfaction of having all his labor count. After a few adjustments we have gotten the food so arranged that I think the children get the proper amount of good nourishing food with some less expense. We are making a pound of butter do double duty by beating (folding) into it the yolk of 1 egg, and a pint of lukewarm fresh milk. The butter needs to be warmed a little, too. Just try it and see how good it is. Nearly every one out here is doing this to save butter bills, which are some of our largest- at over a dollar a pound.

I have written to Mrs. Burgess so father should get a request for $10 or $11 soon. In a month or two I shall be sending home some money, if I do not hear that some has been sent you from the people in U.S. Helen Myer wanted to know how she could send money to me and I told her to send any sum under $25 to father and I would pay its equivalent here and so save the risk in sending it out here.

I was glad to hear of the purchase of my watch and wished Ruth had gotten the pin she liked. I wrote for the other pin simply because I thought it would save the trouble of deciding on one. - I wonder if you are thinking of Xmas presents yet? If so just write for us to send you anything you may think that properly may want from out here. I'll tell you what I'd like for my present. That is- a loose leaved note book, long and narrow, that can be carried in the pocket, somewhere about the size of this upper part of this sheet that I have marked off. I would like some extra leaves for it. I need something constantly to keep notes in for there are so many things to keep track of. Stanley has one the right size.

I am still waiting for the pencils and hope the next mail may bring them. We need them sadly. I think the trouble with the sending of parcels is that Tungchou is not a parcels-post office. You will have to send parcels to us in care of the American Board, Peking. They send them to us, by some one coming down. The U.S. postmasters should be willing to send parcels to us in care of A.B.C.F.M. Peking, China. We shall get the parcels through the Y.M.C.A. all right, but now the more direct way is by the American Board.

I wish you could step in and see how comfortable we are- and are going to be. It is a lovely spot and we are fortunate to have such companionable people to work with us. Mrs. Galt, Mrs. Corbett, Mrs. Wickes, and Mr. Frame are helping. The first two help in the primary and grammar grades, Mrs. Wickes has the French, and Mr. Frame, the German. I think we have a splendid faculty, equal to any anywhere.

Lovingly-

Flora Beard.

Foochow Oct 7th 1915

Dear Sisters [Mary and Flora]:-

The last mail brought the enclosed postal from Phebe.

The opening of school I expect has brought to you very busy days. It has brought to me the usual amount of work and an unusual number of new students. In former years if we had ten or fifteen new students we considered it a large number. We have twenty four this term. The total number for the year will thus be 307.

I think I have written you that Ding Ming Uong was teaching here this term. It is doubtful if he will stay longer than this term- unless his mother should live longer. There has been some kind of trouble in the family between him and a nephew who has money, and he is obliged to stay at home now to take care of his mother while she lives.

The weather has been unusually hot since Sept 15th. Night and mornings are fairly cool but everyone wears the thinnest clothing all the time.

Last evening I attended the Irish-Folensbee wedding. What did the bride wear? I declare I do not know. She had a veil and a tram and the color of the dress was white or cream, and she looked very happy. James Ford was ring bearer. Helen McLachlin and Imogene Grace Ward were flower girls. Wallace Miner married Rev. Harry Worley and Dr. Gowdy offered prayers. Mr. Skeats, Mr. Jones, Mr. Gardner and a new man Torrey were helping around as usher and best man etc. Mrs. Skeats, Miss Clark and Mrs. Miner were also in it somewhere. Dr. Sites gave her away. They started for Hing Hua after the reception about 10 p.m.

I suppose Miss Waddell and Miss Nash will arrive for work in Ing Hok and Ponasang to day.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith and family are still in Dr. Coopers house- getting rid of boils. Foreigners and Chinese are much afflicted by these this fall in Foochow.

The drought is getting pretty bad. No rain to mention as yet and the sun shines brightly every day.

I plan to go to Ding Loh this week Saturday and return Monday. I'll try to get Dr. Gillette's house fixed up at that time. I mean get all the accounts connected with it settled. Mrs. Gillette writes that they are planning a house warming and have a little pig ready to roast.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Billing and Mr. and Mrs. Ward are having a union celebration of their tenth wedding anniversary next Tues. evening.

Well this is a lot of gossip for an old man like me.

I trust all is well with you and that God becomes nearer to you each day.

Lovingly
Will.

Genealogy came in the last mail. Great.

How about the pictures that the old man was to send- did they come all right?

[This letter dated Oct. 10, 1915 was written from Diong Loh, Foochow, China by Willard to his 19 year old son, Gould. Willard mentions that he will see him in eight months. He discusses the choices ahead for Gould. Willard attended a tin wedding for the Wilkinson's and the Irish-Folensbee wedding. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Diong Loh
Foochow, China.
Oct. 10- 1915

Dear Gould:-

Your nineteenth birthday comes Nov. 13th- about the time this will reach you so I address it to you. It seems incredible that if our plans carry I shall be with you all in about eight months. As I have written I hope that dates of Oberlin commencement and your High School Commencement will make it possible for me to attend both. And I hope the Steamship Co.'s will get adjusted to new conditions by that time so we can depend on them.

Yesterday I started at 10:30 from home got to the launch just in good time and was down here at 2:30. The special business is to see the new residence just completed by Dr. and Mrs. Gillette. I am on the committee that built the house. They have a number of western innovations. A real bath room just like a city bath room at home- tub, wash stand and commode. The water is pumped from the cistern into the tank just under the roof. Then they are going to try a furnace, and that with the registers is all here ready to be set up. The windows are on weights and slide up and down. One room has a double floor, the top boards are hard wood. The front veranda is one story, so the secured story windows open over the veranda roof.

The weather continues very dry and very hot. Yesterday morning was one of the hottest mornings of this year. Coming down on the launch I was just nice and comfortable with thinnest clothes- no sun and a good breeze.

The Beard Genealogy came a week ago. Perhaps I wrote of it last week. Aunt Ruth must feel a satisfaction in having completed it, for it is a nice looking book and well arranged.

Every day I think of you in relation to the problems that are before you- 1. The choice of a College which must be decided very soon and 2. The choice of a vacation. The first does not necessarily depend on the second altho it would be affected by it if your choice of a life work were made along very technical lines. The second choice can wait until I get home and we can see each other and have a good talk. It can wait even longer if you are not then sure of the calling God wants you to choose. It would be better for you in many ways if your choice of a College could be decided soon. As I wrote your mind during this year would have one less subject to carry and so much more strength to put into the school studies. Until I hear from you and know your mind better I cannot write more. I talk with God about it every day and I trust you are doing the same. It is not the College that makes the man. It is the way in which the man uses the college that makes the man who is useful to God and a blessing to his fellows. God will help you in thinking on this problem and He will give you the power to get wisdom as you talk with others on the problem and He will give you light in ways that you never before dreamed of and at times that you did not anticipate. Of course you will make a confidant of Mama in this matter.

I have brought the family picture down with me. I am proud of it- not of the picture but of the subjects of the picture, and I ask God more than once daily to help each of you pure and worth being proud of. A mail has just reached Diong Loh from the U.S. so I shall hope to find a letter from Putnam tomorrow when I get back to the city.

The time. - This was as far as I got on this letter in Diong Loh and it is Sunday again and Oct. 17, - and a whole week gone.

Monday evening I was at a big feast given by Mr. and Mrs. Peet to Foochow College faculty and graduates. Tues. evening I went to the Tin wedding of Mr. and Mrs. T. M. Wilkinson [a tenth wedding anniversary- the aluminum or tin anniversary]. Mr. and Mrs. Billing and I met Mrs. Ward (Mildred Worley). Friday evening I went to Anti-Cobweb [This is a group of persons, American and British, who reside in Foochow, and gather every couple of weeks during the winter months for literary and social purposes, their primary aim being to 'clear away the cobwebs which, in theory, gather in their minds.'] I do not at all like to spend so much time at such gatherings, but in each of these there were special reasons why I should go. Tuesday evening the men of the City Compound played the piece Johnny Smoker. Newell had an oil tin made into a bread box as "gleide drumma". I came next with "Meine fifa"- three toy trumpets that I found on the street. I really brought down the house each time I played. Ray Gardner had three large tin spoons fixed into a triangle and a fourth spoon for the stick to strike the triangle with. Ned Smith had an oil pump for his trombone. Belcher had two tin pot lids for cymbals and Christian had three wire toasters for his bag pipe.

A week ago last Wed. Oct. 6th I attended the wedding of Mr. John Irish, Meth of Hung Hua and Miss Folensbee. She is a sister of Mrs. Wallace Miner who came a year ago to teach a year in the Anglo Chinese College. The wedding was given by Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Miner at their home.

I hope to get a letter from you soon with more information about your studies and letting me more into your own personal desires and preferences to the choice of a College and of a life work. It is difficult for you to realize how little I know of your mind. The only means of knowing that I have is your letters. Of course you are thinking and talking all the time and it is potent to you but I am all the dark as to what you are thinking until you write.

I am sending an order on the A.B.C.F.M. in Boston for $19. I do not yet know what you have done with these checks that I am sending yearly but I have faith that you are all using them wisely.

Asking God to guide you each day in all life's details and to make you wise beyond human wisdom in the important choices of life. I am

Your loving Father

[This letter dated Oct. 12, 1915 was written from Tungchow, China by Mary to the ones at home. They had the dedication of the building of the North China American School that day. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[Oct. 12, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home:-

This is the end of a busy day. It was one dedication day. This morning we had no school but fixed the rooms in "apple pie" order, decorated and arranged chairs for seating the guests. Then all dressed and went to the train to meet the guests. Some 20 arrived and we divided them up for lunch. We had three children- and three adults. Then the boys carried the chairs we had used up to the sittingroom.

The service was not long. The children marched in to "Onward Christian Soldiers" and gave the flag salute. Then Dr. Hubbard read the scripture and Dr. Galt a prayer. Then we sang a hymn before Dr. Hubbard gave the address. After that Mr. Corbett gave a word of thanks and gratitude to the donors of building, library, etc. We sang America and had a Benediction.

It was - a tired lot of little girls that I put to bed tonight. One confided that it was much harder work to "just do things" than to study and she did not like it.

Last week we had considerable upset here and a wholesale giving out of Castor Oil. Both of us had our dues. I took mine to forestall and was too late because I had to get Dr. Love to help me recover. Flora took hers as a sanative after several days of bad feeling.

Dr. Reinsch was so pleased with our location that he says he will bring Claire down when she is able. She had an attack of appendicitis similar to Dorothy's this August. Since coming to Peking from Pei Tai Ho she has had a set back but is no [not] riding out.

The Monarchy of China is still much heard of. Today's paper gives the description of the new flag and also inquires as to the position the United States will take if the change is made. I do not feel as lonely in touch with the world here as I did in Peking. We get the paper late in the evening and I do not see it every day. My Digest brings me up to date (1 month old) once a week anyway.

One warm evening I came upstairs when the children were nearly dressed for dinner. Pauline Ramsay was putting on her woolen sailor suit and I remonstrated. "But Miss Beard, we're going to have ice cream, and it is cold", she answered. I let her wear the warm dress.

Do you see the Century? There is a delightful serial story "Dear Enemy" by Jean Webster just started in August. (Excuse the just but it almost "just" to us here). She speaks of not having arms or laps enough to love her kiddies and sometimes I have a little of that feeling. Yesterday my girlies were awfully tired and a wee bit homesick because some bodies mama came and theirs couldn't. I had to have four girls walk with me at one time. A mathematical puzzle!!

I am asked to give a paper on Harriet Beecher Stowe this February. If you know of any good book on her life and could send along soon I should peruse it greedily. I also should like to peruse some of her stories again.

I must off and mail this so it can depart on the early mail and I hope get a steamer soon.

With lots of love

Mary Beard.

Dear Ruth:-

Half an hour lies before me in which to write you- unless someone comes to interrupt.

I came from the city out to Ponasang at 4 P.M. to lead a meeting for the men and women who are to work in the Special Evangelistic meetings to be held in our Gen Cio Dong Church this week. There is another meeting at 7 P.M. and 9 am to take supper with Misses Perkins, Crane, Brown, Nash and Dornblaser. I am now on their veranda writing. They do not know that I have come. I am doing it purposely for if they knew it one or more would think they must sit down to talk with me and that would defeat my purpose of writing. Do you think I am doing right? If a man should treat you so- I mean an old gray haired man like me, married etc. - would you think he was doing right?

I get so little time alone to write that I am almost desperate sometimes. Any Putnam letter has been the most conspicuous object on my desk for a whole week, and each day I have pushed it aside and done the work that had to be done- at least I thought so- and today I finished it and it is ready to send tomorrow.

Flora and Mary I judge have had their hands full getting started in Tungchou. But I judge also that they are successful and that's the goal. Our summer together was full of joy and a joy that lasts long in memory. It did me a lot of real good- made me feel new all through.

The Genealogy came mail before last. Your letter about it came last mail from Peking. I thank you for the copy. It is all I could desire. I am glad you used the good paper and binding. This I had decided in my own mind while I fully expected to pay for my copy. You have done a work that brings credit not only to you but to the Beard name.

Oct 19 Your last letter was a most newsy one. How you people do go galavanting over the country- so do others. I was thinking how life had changed in fifty years. When father and mother married, one horse and a business wagon were good enough for a wedding trip. There was no dictionary with the word Automobile in it. And "Darius Green and his flying machine" was the phrase used if one wanted to express the most foolish scheme imaginable. It is quite possible that some of father's and mother's grandchildren may want to take a wedding trip in a flying machine, and that it will be as easy as inexpensive as natural as it was for them to go way out to "York State" in a horse and wagon. Did you ever wonder if as much progress in invention and discovery will be made during the next fifty years as has been made during the past fifty?

We have had a wedding and a triple tin wedding during the past two weeks. At the tin wedding we had to triplicate our presents. Wilkinson, War and Billing were the parties. The men from the City compound got articles of tin and played Little Johnny Smoker, - only we sang City Compound, City Compound it can speil a, it can speil a, it can speil a glide drumma. Newell had an oil tin with a lid for a bread box and it made a good drum. Mine fifa was three little toy tin trumpets that I chanced to find on the street in a shop. I am afraid I took the prize- for I had to blow three times every time a verse was sung. The triangle was three large spoons fastened together and a fourth spoon to strike them. The trombone was an oil pump a necessary kitchen utensil here. The cymbals were pot lids and the bagpipe was three toaster of wire fastened together- one across the back and one under each arm.

Special evangelistic services are just beginning. Last night about 500 were present at the first meeting. In opposition there were three theaters and an idol procession. It was fortunate for these kept the crowds from us.

The weather is very dry and continues very hot. I am writing in my very thinnest clothes and still I perspire. The mercury in my study now at 2:30 p.m. registers 80 degrees. We have had practically no rain since July 10th. The second crop of rice is light and much will not be cut at all. Wells are going dry in many places. We have one well for the college that has never gone dry. This furnishes water for over 300 persons, and the houses in the compound here all use it.

Have I written that Dr. and Mrs. Kinnear failed to get on the S.S. "Mongolia" in August? That seaman's law is upsetting shipping on the Pacific in great shape. The Pacific Mail has sold all its ships and its docks and offices in Hong Kong, and this virtually gives the Pacific freight and passenger traffic to the Japanese Companies. It also makes our mails irregular and far between.

We welcomed two new ladies ten days ago. A Miss Waddell for Ing Hok and Miss Nash on a two years term for Ponasang Girls College.

Two weeks from this week Friday I have a paper before a Literary Society here called the Anti Cobweb on Pan Americanism or the Latin American Situation. It is most interesting as it must have been for you to work up the Genealogy. Only I can never get fifteen minutes consecutively to work on it in my study. All the work I have done has been when I am traveling - on a boat or in a chair. And my only material is papers and magazines.

Oct. 20th and you are having frosts nightly I suppose. Elizabeth is thinking of how much her roosters will bring. And you have a fire night and morning. Housecleaning is over. Apples coming on- most done by this time I expect. And such days as these must before auto rides! I'm more glad than I can tell that the Putnam folks got down for a look see.

Your words about little Leolyn are pathetic. I had hoped that in the new home she would find conditions so changed that she would find the new environment a healthy one for herself and develop normally.

If all goes well and no more Pacific S.S. companies sell out, I hope to start for the U.S. about May 1st, go as soon as possible to Oberlin for the 25th Anniversary of my class- then get to Putnam for Gould's and Geraldine's graduation- spend a month seeing you folks and others and settling our household furniture in Putnam to etc. and start back for Foochow about Aug. 1st so as to get back here about Sept. 1st.

With Love to All

Will.

[This letter dated Oct. 21, 1915 was written from Tungchou, China by Flora to the folks at home. They have had intestinal troubles in their school and thousands of flies and lady-bugs. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[October 21, 1915]

Dear folks at home:-

Last week was a blue one for nearly half of our school had intestinal troubles just enough to keep us all on the anxious seat. We all recovered without any thing at all serious and we seem to have reached the end of that scare. There were many people in Peking likewise affected so I think it could not have been any local condition that caused it. Our building is in that condition that a dress is in when it is all done but finishing. The weather was balmy so that the flies walked in by the thousands and lady-bugs likewise. It was the flies that scared us but fortunately our Montgomery Ward boxes arrived that week and we had ordered six fly swatters. The boys and Mr. Johnson went to work and literally killed thousands of them. When the screens were put on the windows there were no doors made so when the flies once in they stayed. At last we got our screen doors on and since the weather has grown colder we are not so bothered. It was not all the fault of the doors for the workmen are here putting in the furnace and with doors swinging and all sorts of holes cut in the walls we must expect more or less discomfort. We hope in another week to be rid of the workmen but I expect it will string out a week longer. It seems to me I never saw slower workmen. They certainly are making the most of 'work by the day.'

Written in album: "Montgomery Ward boxes"

In my last letter I asked you to send us some darning cotton and I wish you would send me some white flannel for short skirts. I want it rather heavy and enough for two skirts. I want to make them 27. in. long. I want them to come below my knees for the weather here seems to penetrate through all the wool one can put on. My skirts seem to have washed thin and they feel like nothing. Mother used to get a flannel that was warm and would wear. Was it Shaker flannel?

Your stories of the summer gatherings sound like old times and make good reading. You must have had a fine celebration of Will's and Ellen's wedding-day.

It was a relief to hear of Ella Wooster's going, but it seems to me she never had half a chance in this world. I hope it will be made up to her now.

I am going to send home to you a draft for $25 gold as soon as I can to pay for the numbers of things I have been ordering- and my watch. I shall be glad to get it when it comes for my new one has seemed to be fated. First I dropped it into a pail of water then it fell to the floor, so it has been back to the store twice for repairs- All of which helps me to appreciate the value of a good Waltham watch.

With love-

Flora Beard.

Oct. 24 [1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

Mother's letter and Ruth's came this morning. They are nice- and newsy. What a good time you must have had when the Putnam people came down.

We have thought of a few things to help on the Christmas list and will send them along very soon; just as soon as we can get to Peking to purchase them and again to mail them.

It seems to have turned definitely cold but we are fairly comfortable with two stoves. The stove is in the dining room and the other in the school room.

I enclose list as thought out so far. I have put on the silver prices so please divide everything by two. After each item I have put one of our initials to show you who to credit for each. The articles starred we will send at our earliest opportunity the articles without prices we have yet to purchase so can not give prices.

We may have to send material for the two bags but if so it will be complete except for cords. Monday: - I have put in some Chinese rings which can be used in the bags instead of cords.

Oct 31- This letter got waylaid that I might take the children for a walk and then I was so busy with regular work, helping children make up work missed when ill and working for our Halloween entertainment that I never got back to it.

There were four of us on the committee and we made place cards, a big paper lantern to cover the lamp, fans to put into the windows, two sets of four witches for the table. On the place cards we put two names of foods each beginning with the initials of the people, Flora was Fruit Bread I was Mutton Bananas, etc.

We worked two evenings getting things ready and one to get them up. Others helped us. The "waisas" a kind of dry swamp grass with big fuzzy tops and the walls were practically covered. We put the tables in one long row and each one was called to the dining room and escorted to his place by a ghost. We had the four compound children over so there were 23 of us.

Little Helen Corbett has been ill with dysentery for two weeks now but this morning word comes that she is really better.

My little girls have been having a turn at "getting mad" this last week or more and I have had to sooth, scold, cajole them one after the other. I had my first case of rebellion over a dose of castor oil. It took me nearly fifteen minutes but I got it swallowed at last. Both of us were tired after it.

Our heating apparatus is getting in surely but slowly. All but one corner of the building is done so we hope to be really comfortable this time next week. I am writing in my own room and am a little cool with my woolen union suit, my wool dress and a heavy coat. By the way, if you find a light weight wool dress of my size (large 38 or 40) cheap, when the mark down sales come, get me one. My blue one is already beginning to be the worse for wear and I could use another next year very well.

Last night I got the third installment of "Dear Enemy" by Jean Webster and it was so interesting that I finished it before going to bed.

Flora is supposedly writing today so I must close before I one up all her news.

Lots of love

Mary.

P.S. I neglected to ask for a gold draft this month until too late also will have to send one next month as my life insurance comes due now soon.

Tungchou, Oct. 31, 1915.

Dear Folks at home:-

We are spending another Sunday in our school-room or in the dining-room for those are the only rooms that are heated. I think before another weekend we should be warm for there is just one end of the building to be done. These workmen are so slow, but Mr. Galt has raised the wages and it seems to have hastened them a bit. You would smile at some of the lines these pipes make against the walls and the crooks they take right in front of a window, but these are small matters out here. Fortunately in our living room the pipes go straight up- and we have to have our walls paneled whether we like it or not. We have lived in heaps and piles even since they started to put the heating system in and it is a relief to think that there is going to be an end of the muss. I think when we clean up this time it will be for the rest of the year. The decorating of the walls and the woodwork will be done during some vacation.

This last week has been a busy one for several reasons. The work in our school room made us vacate it one day so we took a walk and drew pictures. When we came back we finished them up and wrote a story of the walk, which the children made into a book. This spent the equilibrium of the school day for two or three days but I believe paid in the end. We did it partly because Mrs. Corbett has not been able to take her classes so I had to see that the time was used valuably. Mrs. Corbett has had a very sick little girl for more than a week. Her little daughter Helen- aged 3 years – has had a serious and persistent attack of dysentery. Although she had several inoculations of the serum to kill the germs there was no perceptible change in the progress of the disease, until yesterday. To-day they think they have the trouble checked. It will probably be another week before Mrs. Corbett should think of leaving Helen, so in the meantime we are doing some doubling up here. This is the time for sending out our first reports of the year, so the grass will not grow under our feet just at present.

The papers say this is the rainiest October for 12 years- in Shanghai. Here we have had very little rain, but we have had several dull days, so that it has not been all sunshine as October is supposed to be. We have had several frosts which have killed most of the flowers and vegetables but the leaves are still on the trees. These willows never turn in color but the vines on the houses and walls are brilliant.

This has been Hallowe'en week which we celebrated on Friday evening. We had a committee headed by Mary and Mr. Johnson who had prepared the fun. We had all the children – day pupils also- at supper and it was like a Thanksgiving table- twenty-three of us. There were several games and the supper which lasted from 5.45 to 7.45 P.M. the children had a fine frolic, and were none the worse for it the next day. Everyone now seems to be quite well and I hope we continue to have good health.

In a few days we shall mail the parcels for Christmas, which Mary mentioned in her letter last week. It is not so easy to mail parcels from here for we are not a parcels post office, so we have to go to Peking.

With love- Flora Beard.

Foochow, China
Oct. 31st 1915

Dear Marjorie:-

It seems a long time since I have had a letter from you. I suppose the mail is somewhere in or near Foochow now. A steamer started Friday morning from Shanghai. During the past week we have had very high winds from the north which ought to make the steamer hurry up unless the sea was too rough. Since the Pacific Mail Steamers were taken off our home mails have been less frequent. And they say we should get our Christmas presents off on the Steamer when she goes to Shanghai next Wed. or Thursday.

The streets of Foochow city are being torn up and widened and nice smooth hard roads made, - not all the streets. Two that run cross wise the city are now torn up and the houses are being taken down to widen the streets and good drains and gutters are now being made. You will not know the place. You may be able to ride into the city in a ricksha when you come next Sept.

The Y.M.C.A. have a new Secretary and his wife- both from Oberlin College Mr. and Mrs. McConnell. They were here for supper last Wednesday evening and after supper Mrs. McConnell played the piano for us. It was a rare treat. She plays something like Mrs. Vincer used to. Mama and perhaps Phebe will remember her playing.

I am writing my article or address for the Anti Cobweb next Friday evening on "The Latin American Situation." It is very interesting work but rather hard to find time to be at my desk long enough at one time to write more than one hundred words. I hope it will not sound as choppy when I read it as the writing of it has been.

The city compound is very lively with children just now. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are still here with three, two Hodouses, three Newells, one Belcher, -nine in all. But you see we have all the children in the mission right here, except Edward Gillette in Diong Loh.

The weather has changed to cool at last. I can now wear a coat and trousers of wool, and feel comfortable. This morning the subject of the sermon was "Hope." For one illustration the preacher said that "Hope" was the cause of our getting changes for the better. As for example man first used three leaves for clothes. These were cold and really made his body shrink up to keep warm. But hope sent him out hunting and he found animal skins warm. Then he kept hoping for a better material and found cotton, but look at Mr. Beard he has something better still-woolen cloth. Again he was using the progress in beds- from stone to bed boards then to rattan beds then to springs and he pointed to me and said do you suppose Mr. Beard is satisfied with those? No he is hoping for something softer!!! He did not know that I sleep on a rattan bed about three months in the year.

I am going to stop writing this now and hope to get a letter in this mail from some of you and I will try to send just a word before mailing this and after your letter comes.

I am all the time committing portions of the Bible. During the summer I committed PS. 34. This Fall I have committed Isa. 12 and now I am working on PS. 19. I find verses 7, 8, and 9 very difficult- to get the right words in the right place. Possibly I have been too tired to retain in my memory what I try to learn. Of course I do not get down to work on it. I just keep my Bible on my desk open to that place and night and morning get a verse.

May God be very good to you all and give you health, and the ability to do good work in school and the ability to discern very keenly between right and wrong and not only the desire but the power to always choose the right. How I do long to hear from Phebe and know how she is settled in Oberlin- what she is studying etc.

Very lovingly your Father,
Willard L. Beard

Foochow, China
Oct 31st 1915

Dear Mother:-

From the home letters I judge rain, sunshine and heat have had conferences this year so as to follow the same rules in China and New England. We had a very wet early summer- a very dry latter summer and a very hot latter summer. The fall has been unusually hot till last Wednesday. I wore thinnest white clothes, and could hardly endure a collar. Last week Friday Oct. 22 I went into the country 15 miles with Mr. Hodous, and wore banana cloth clothes. This is the thinnest, lightest material we have. But now the weather is more civilized and I can wear a woolen coat.

I am trying to be patient while the mail arrives. It is about ten days since we have had an American mail. This is a result of the New Seaman's Bill. And it is said we must get all Christmas presents off on this steamer- to go Wednesday or Thursday, for the next one will be too late for Christmas.

The girls have had their hands full this fall opening a big housekeeping establishment for those children. But their last letters sounded as if the worst was over. They had just held the opening.

Next Friday evening I am to read a paper of the Latin American Situation. It is most interesting preparing. I am writing it out- the first address I have written in a long time. My great grievance is that I cannot get more than fifteen minutes at a time to write. All the reading for the paper I have done in my sedan chair or on a boat while I was travelling.

I think I have written of the evangelistic meetings which have been planned in six centers in Foochow- two centers of each of the three missions. The first series of meetings were held last week in our Geu Cio Dong church. Mr. Newell gave one lecture with demonstrations on oxygen for women with over six hundred in attendance and two for men, with one audience of 400 and one of 600. Then Mr. Cio Lik Daik of the Y.M.C.A. spoke once to women and 74 signed cards desiring to join Bible classes, and he also spoke twice to men after which 100 were asking to join Bible classes. If one half this number actually get into Bible classes it will be a grand result and the workers will have all they can do for the rest of the year.

Nov 9th Tuesday: The mail came at last and brought your letter to the girls in Tungchou and one from Phebe M. The same mail brought letters from Phebe K. and from Gould. - The first from Phebe in Oberlin and the first from Putnam since she left. She seems to be very happy at her prospects- and with her surroundings and thinks she is going to enjoy her work. Eunice, Morris and Gerald Kinnear are with her. She knew all three in Foochow. Gould thinks it is lonely without Phebe. I judge she must have made just a call on her way, at Century Farm, coming up from Bridgeport, altho her most vivid impressions of her Bridgeport visit were shopping all alone. She has never done much of that. Geraldine is the business woman of the family.

I have just sent off 50- boxes of jasmine flower tea as Christmas presents. You will get one or two boxes in time for Christmas I hope. This year I am afraid the Christmas things may be a long time on the way, and some of yours will be late. A lady in the Flatbush, Brooklyn church ordered 50 boxes. They use them there for Christmas presents.

I am having a time with my teeth this year. I have never had much trouble with them before, - compared with other people. But this Spring I realized that there was trouble, that altho they were not aching yet they were not right. A dentist by the name of Gutelius [or Gatellins?] is trying to see what he can do for missionaries in the line of his business. Ten cities in China put up a guarantee fund of $3000 mex. for him to make an experiment. He was on Kuliang a month in July, - is in Foochow now, goes to Amoy and other places. He charges $4.50 per hour for work and extra for gold or expensive materials. Ordinary materials are thrown in with the $4.50. I had about 17 hours in July and will have about 5 more now. But my general health has been much better since his work on me in July. He hopes to be able to guarantee to each missionary all work on the care of their teeth for $10 mex a year and .50 an hour for work. This will be cheap enough. The regular price for dentists in China is $10 mex. per hour.

The last mail brought a letter from Fred Beach. He said he saw Ruth at Broadway Tabernacle, - is now with the Missionary Campaigners and hope to be at Andover Seminary next Spring. Reports of the Armenian Massacres are just getting to us. It seems as if the Devil were let loose in many parts of the world. I cannot help thinking that the world will be better after the greatest war in history is over. As the air is always clearer and purer here in Foochow after a good typhoon and also in Connecticut after a good old nor' Easter so men will be better after this great cataclysm. There was a lot of badness in men's minds- specially all thru Europe. False conceptions of the designs of other nations largely - but it was getting worse with each year and it is coming out now. I fully believe that freedom and democracy will have advance greatly.

Yuan Shi Kai will probably be crowned Emperor before this reaches you. The report is that he has sent to the Governors of all provinces to find out the "will of the people." The "will of the people" every where is that Yuan should be Emperor. It is done in this way, the Governors are to find out whether the people wish a Republic or a Monarchy, and to suggest the best way of selecting the Emperor. There is not a suggestion that the Republican form will be chosen. Yuan has given one of his daughters to the little boy Emperor to wife. The only hard problem for Yuan is [he] has to get the imperial seal, now in possession of the former boy Emperor, without using force. We of the west would make a new seal, and from preference. But it seems from the Chinese point of view that this seal in use for thousands of years and handed down from generation to generation and from dynasty to dynasty must be gotten and gotten without force before the new dynasty is founded. It would be an intricate maze for a westerner to follow all the plans to get the matter done in the right way. The little Emperor will be offered the crown, will refuse. The "people"= a few leading men, friends of Yuan=will then demand Yuan for Emperor and after sufficient refusals he will accept. - Well as long as Yuan lives he is likely to be at the head of things in China and whether as President or Emperor. The government is likely to be stable. He has every thing all in hand here in Fukien. I never knew Foochow so quiet in my 21 years here as it has been during the past year. And more improvements have been made during the past nine months than during they past 100 years. - Streets widened, made smooth, and some troughs and conductors put up. - A Public Park made and a new road built between the city and the river- 8 miles, with the old city streets in some places doubled in width by the tearing down of shops and houses. Soon we will be riding in rickshaws instead of sedans.

Meantime Education has gone backward, but that will come up in time.

You are wondering why I write so long. We have a vacation today- and I'm a man of leisure. But I do not do it often and shall not likely do it again for sometime. The months until I plan to start for home are diminishing in number very fast- less than six months. May God keep us all to see each other then.

Very lovingly your son Will

Dear Sisters [Flora and Mary]:-

The last mail brought your letter with those of Mother's and Phebe M.'s. It also brought letters from Phebe K. and from Gould. Phebe is much pleased with all that she has thus far seen at Oberlin. Her letter was written after she had joined but before she had begun classes so she had not actually got into the work. She had met Eunice and Morris and Gerald Kinnear. The boys she recognized, but she had been too long away from Eunice.

I have kept my eye on little cups for you but have not yet bought for I hope to find some one size smaller than those now in stock. As to the gong I am not so successful. The best I can do is more than $2. I am not sure that you want to go as high as that. This will be a new one. I have not given it up but the way looks dark for a 40 cent one. If you will write me as soon as this reaches you about the gong I will know what to do. The cups I will plan to send by Dr. Wherry. And gong too if you want me to buy at the price.

All goes well here. The people with whom I associate are resigned to what they consider a bad fate i.e. the return of the Empire. The other day in Ethics we were speaking of the Providence of God, and I asked the boys to tell me of some men who seemed to be specially provided by God for some special work. They mentioned Washington, Lincoln and at the other end one said Sun Yat Sen. I asked - - Yuan Shi Kai? "No, no." Last evening the boys had what they termed a Memorial meeting, to commemorate the battle of Foochow in 1911. It was as much to lament the prospect of a return to the Monarchy as it was to remember the past.

At the same time the work of reform goes on continually. The Park is getting to be pretty with trees and grass and flowers and the picturesque little summer houses all about. They want our band to come out and play for them to make things lively. On several streets the houses are being torn down and the street widened. This is a wonderful thing in Foochow. One gate is taken away and the stone and brick are used in the construction of the road.

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis have a fine boy about two weeks old. The Belcher and the Munson babies are doing finely. Mr. and Mrs. Smith are still here. Mr. Smith and Mr. Belcher started this morning for a short visit to Ing Hok. They will be back in a week. The Smiths are much better but not entirely out of the woods yet as far as boils are concerned.

There is lots more to write but it is time to start for prayer meeting which this week is at Mrs. Peet's out at Gek Siong Sang. So good bye. I sent off on yesterday's mail 50 boxes of jasmine tea as Christmas present, and 50 more to a lady in Flatbush for her and others to use as Christmas presents.

Lovingly your brother.
Will.

Dear Gould:-

The letter last week I addressed to you and again this week I'm doing the same thing. A good long letter right out of her warm heart came from Phebe a few days ago. It is not hard to see how Oberlin strikes her. I am very glad she likes her surroundings.

In your last letter you make the suggestion that you should wait a year before going to College on account of finances. I do not like to have you do this. I started for Oberlin in 1887 with less than $300 to my name. I was twenty two years old. I did not know how money enough was coming to get thru College nor where it was coming from. But I went on one step at a time and my father helped me a little and I worked as I could and I got thru. I think that is a very good motto for one's life, i.e. If you cannot see all the way do not wait but go as far as you can see and God will open the way when you have gone as far as He shows you now. I am quite certain it would be better for you to go to College next year than to wait. If God gives me health I can reasonably hope to help you and the girls some, and you will find chances to earn some, and I should not hesitate to borrow some.

Last Friday evening I was at the Consulate for dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Pontius are both very pleasant. They are young people with two small children. Mrs. Pontius is from the Isle of Jersey in England and so is English. I had met her several times before and always supposed her to be an American, so you see she is not very Englishy. I was the only guest from this side the river. They wanted me to spend the night, but as I have classes beginning at 8 a.m. I much prefer to go home at night. I had to honor of taking Mrs. Pontius to dinner, and on the way out she asked me to "offer Thanks." It was a very pleasant occasion- nothing startling except Mr. Pontius' new Pionola. — The only one in port as far as I know.

The great question in every one's mind now is the change in the government. Just now it looks as if Yuan would wait a while. Next week we may hear that he has been crowned.

Miss Perkins has a relative teaching in the Girl's College- just out Miss Nash from Maine. She plays the violin beautifully. Last Friday evening we had the first Rhetoricals of the term by the senior class. Miss Nash came out and played. You should have seen the boys with mouths wide open standing on their toes listening. It was a rare treat. And the applause was spontaneous and the encore positive.

The weather has cooled off a little. I have put on a vest this past week with comfort, but I still wear my thinnest sleeveless underwear.

Annual Meeting with the Chinese begins next Tuesday evening and classes one week later. This will mean not much work in College for me, and I am afraid not much for the College anyway.

The new church is going up nicely but too slowly. There are really two roofs as in the rough sketch. The lower one had the rafters all on and they are beginning to put the roof boards on. The upper one has only two timbers in place. It is slow working so high up. The timbers are made and I hope they will get it closed in two weeks more.

I suppose you send my letters to Phebe .

May God give you all a Merry Merry Christmas and a Happy Happy New Year and keep you all well and good and helpful. Your loving Father

Willard L. Beard

[November 16, 1915]

Dear folks at home:-

My how the wind is blowing to-day! It comes right off the icebergs nearest the Pole I am sure and is blowing into our house through every crack and crevice. We are going to see if we can get along without storm windows this year since glass is so expensive out here. It means that there will be days when we shall not be especially warm. We were fortunate to get our heating system finished so that we were ready just the very day that the weather changed. In ordinary weather we are most comfortable on a very low temperature of the radiators. There are still several leaks but we hope they will rust up and save us the trouble of undoing the joints again. Mr. Galt, who has been the master plumber, says the water usually oxidizes the inside of the pipes enough to close up these spots. We are waiting until the Christmas vacation to paint the pipes and radiators. There will be two weeks then when the scholars will be away. I hope the material will arrive from U.S. so that we can have our blackboards done then, also. Affairs seem to be running along smoothly, although we did not escape the usual amount of dissatisfaction about marks in our first reports, which went out the first of November. One mother thinks it is an encouragement to the children to give them a little higher estimate than they have attained. We have decided to continue along the lines of truth, and hope for a change of ideas in the mother.

Last Monday I went to town (Peking) and bought the last of the things we are sending for Xmas- two scarfs and two lanterns. I am afraid they may not reach you until after Xmas as the boats across the Pacific are so few now. The Japanese P.O. clerk said the things we sent last Monday should reach you two weeks before Xmas. I took up a suit case full of mail, which took over an hour to get properly stamped and registered. I hope everything reaches its destination. I have not yet received the pencils and hope you have already started out the tracer. Please don't destroy the vouchers for the parcels until you hear from me that they have arrived here for now that there are no American boats running I think we need to take more precaution than ever.

Your papers from home are getting quite interested in affairs in China, for nearly every one has an article from the Associated Press representative in Peking. He is a Mr. More and Mr. Burgess though he tried to tell the truth about the affairs here. He seemed to be quite pro-Japanese but I think he wishes to know the truth from both points of view. I wonder sometimes if Pres. Yuan is not allowing this question of a monarchy to be agitated simply because the growth of a national spirit depends on something to keep the minds of his people awake. The menace of the Japanese seems to have lost its effect and here is something else to stir the land. Things look as if there would be a monarchy, but about the only change there will be is in words. It will have to be a limited monarchy for the day has passed when these people will be content to let the government lie entirely in the hands of one man.

I am having my first dress made at a dressmaker here. It is a very soft gray green brocaded silk, I am going to let the dressmaker use her own judgment on making it up. It may be a disappointment but I have no time nor fashion books to help me. She has made such a pretty gown for Mrs. Galt that I hope she will be as successful with mine.

I am still having experiences with my little watch. By the time the year of guarantee is up it will have been made completely over. First I broke the crystal, then it was the pivot, now the stem winder has come out. In between times I have a watch. There should be some one coming to North China soon who would bring my new one, so I am living in hopes.

To-night our box of pads and other school papers arrived, for which we are duly thankful. I hope also the materials for our school blackboards came in the same shipment. Little by little we are getting into order and we should look quite ship-shape. Please tell Miss Brewster that her letter is here and that I will get her one of the Mandarin squares just as soon as a good one comes along. There are very beautiful ones to be had here for about $2 gold- or less. There are the old "Kossu" or woven in figures, with all sorts of emblems in them, each with a meaning.

With love-

Flora Beard.

[Nov. 22, 1915]

Dear Ones at Home,

My Sunday letter has again become a Monday one. This last week I had an attack of Laryngitis and yesterday morning I took a nap instead of writing letters. In the afternoon it was glorious so I went for a walk with the children. Just east of the compound is a very interesting old Chinese grave yard with several trees and many sunken roads passing through it. We walked down through there then out to the railroad back and home. We came across a flock of goats being herded in the graveyard and in it were two baby goats just big enough to be thoroughly firm on their legs.

The fish pond has ice on it about one half inch thick and already the children are counting the days until skating may begin. I too am already for it because I took my one pair of low heeled high shoes up and had them resoled when I went to visit the Lowry family.

The children have finished their weekly home letters and have now gone out for some field sports. They have gone wild over field sports since the day when we went to the field sports of the college.

This last week Monday we had a regular shampoo parlor here. I washed the heads of all four little girls and one small boy. Then Miss Meade came over with Mrs. Galt and accepted my offer to wash her head. My own was the last. While that was being done Mrs. Galt washed Dorothy Galt's. It was cute enough to watch Dorothy. She flatly refused to go home to have her shampoo but was highly delighted to have it here.

Last week Flora mailed several packages home. I sent an extra package addressed to Elizabeth of things that may be useful as gifts sometime. None are expensive. The little cups and tea pot belong with the tray and the little shovel like toys with the round brass dish. The doily I got in the south. The price on the outside covers all. The doily was .75 cents, the top .20 cents and for the two and the carved things only a little. Do what you like with any of it. I sent Ruth a box of images. I could not get many of the little men such as I got last year so substituted the various birds. The large cart with the flags I should like you to keep if you care to as it is quite unique. The st?? I can duplicate at any time.

I enclose some prints of pictures I took this summer. Unfortunately the hot weather was not good for films or camera and many of the best films are spoiled because the film softened. Mr. Birkle sent us some prints of pictures he took and reports a like condition. My poor camera has had to go to be fixed because it has rusted so the spring does not work but one way.

This may be a New Year's letter but I doubt it. Any way I wish you all a happy entrance into the New Year and that God will bless you all through this year.

By the way, if perchance Ruth has some images that she needs, wouldn't the twins like some as a remembrance from China. I fear Master Space [probably brother of Virginia Space. Virginia will become the wife of Willard's son, Myron Gould Beard] is too young to appreciate them, is he not?

Lots of love
Mary

[Nov. 30, 1915]

Dear folks at home:-

Thanksgiving is over and we are now looking forward to Christmas. School closes the 17th so for once in my life there will be time to plan my personal gifts here after school is out for Christmas Day itself. Thanksgiving Day was not so very exciting to me for we had several children here as usual. The morning was taken up in hanging pictures in the living-room and re-arranging the furniture. The children and Mr. Johnson set the football posts and walked out the court so that now they have a change in their sports if they wish it. The Peking children returned from Peking on the afternoon train and we all went to church here at 5 o'clock. Then came the usual study hour and we all went to bed. Mary and Mr. Johnson went to the Compound supper at Mr. and Mrs. France's and had a jolly time.

Saturday the children went home again so it seemed as though the week had been spent mostly "coming and going." Mary and I went to supper at Mrs. France's fully ready for the longer sleep that we get on Sunday mornings. We had three callers on Sunday and went to church which was enough to keep us stirring. On Monday morning I went to Peking for the first fitting of my new dress- a very soft crepe Chinese silk- gray green and figured. It is to be done for our Xmas festivities. I did a lot of shopping and just caught the noon train back home. The weather these days feels like working or playing. Our heater is all that we can ask for so far. It is not very beautiful, but is economical and sanitary which should go a long way toward producing beauty. I hope we may have a more temperate winter this year for the one last season brought with it so much suffering.

Today, I purchased a perfectly beautiful white lamb skin fur coat. It reaches to the floor and has long sleeves, besides a double lap in the front all the way down. I am going to have it as a lining in a winter coat. It looks like a fine astrakhan. It is not quite as short and curled as a Persian lamb. I think it should make me a good evening coat.

Mary and I are going to be quite gay for Xmas. We are going down to Shunte Fu to spend Christmas Day and over Sunday. It is about a seven hour ride from Peking toward Hankow. We have just received an invitation from Dr. and Mrs. Hubbard of Peking to spend New Years with them and receive with Mrs. Hubbard. You remember that last year Mary and I received at the Burgesses' and over sixty gentlemen called. It is the old Peking custom for the men to call at all the ladies houses that day and there they lunch at other houses than their own, so Mary and I have to invite three men to have lunch with us at Mrs. Hubbard's.

During the vacation we are to have the pipes and radiators gilded (or silvered) and I hope a lot of cleaning done. I think we can probably get the kitchen walls and wood work done, also the storeroom. We have two and a half weeks vacation so we ought to accomplish something.

We are expecting Mrs. Reinsch (the American Minister's wife) and Claire down some afternoon this week or next. Claire has been very very ill with appendicitis, and had a very serious operation which she is just recovered from. She is very anxious to come down here to school but her parents have not thought best to let her. Of course she could not have come this fall anyway but I hope this visit may let her mother see that conditions are suitable for her to come here.

Last Monday I sent off home a package containing a lace collar and a little knife for some one. The week before the two lanterns and two scarfs started for America so I hope you get most of the things before Xmas this year.

There is no sign of the pencils yet but hope soon to hear that they are being traced.

The next three weeks are going to be very busy ones.

Lovingly-

Flora Beard.

On the Ing Hok river- going down the Rapids
Dec 6th 1915

Dear Phebe:-

Your interesting letter arrived last week. The weeks since Nov. 16th have been specially busy for me. Week before last I did not get a letter off even to Mama. That was the week of our Annual Meeting, and just as that closed I began a series of four addresses for special evangelistic meetings in connection with the Union Evangelistic work in Foochow. Last Friday I started for Ing Hok to look into the school with a view to coordinating all our educational work. - We have just gone down the steepest rapid on the river below Ing Hok- the one down which Miss Jean Brown went and at once said to me "Oh tell the boatman to pull us up again and let us go down again."

Your letter was most interesting to me for I was so glad to see how pleased you were with all your surroundings, - specially with the teachers, and it pleased me greatly to hear from you yourself that you did not find the work burdensome. I hope you will be able to take piano next term. You should be pretty well prepared for your freshman work. You are fairly mature in years and in experience with the world and this term will have sufficed to make you feel at home in Oberlin and to have dispelled any thing that may seem like nervousness due to the newness of things. I did not know until your letter came that Mr. Ireland's son was in Oberlin. I wonder if he is a freshman. I am greatly pleased that you go to the old First Church. That was my church for four years. I took my letter there. Dr. Brand was my pastor. I think Mrs. Brand is still there. The practice in that choir is a very valuable addition to ones education. I never felt equal to ever trying to get in and then most of the time I was doing so much work that I felt I had not the time. I shall be interested to hear which Literary Society you join and the reason why you chose that one. I was a member of Phi Delta.

While there I lived all the time on N. Prof. St. The first 4 terms way up at 60 I think it was- most out to the old ball ground. The second 4 terms at a house only 2 or 3 doors below where Deacon West lived. #39 I think, and the last 4 terms at Mrs. Stiles- it must have been about #35 I should think. My room mate these last four years was Mr. Addison Lawrence. Mrs. Lawrence is now matron of Talcott. She is also a classmate of mine, and she will be glad to meet you. It was good to read of your having enough to eat. I wonder how you like early suppers and early breakfasts, and regular hours for meals and going to bed and doing every thing. Have you got used to the Library yet?

I am sorry this will not reach you in time for Christmas or even New Years but you will have lots of things from Putnam and possibly other places at that season and this will come to you just as you are starting the second term, and all the others have gotten them with the Holidays. I shall think of you during the Holidays and wonder if you are in Oberlin or somewhere else. The year Mama was in Oberlin she went out to Aunt Ann's for the Holidays.

I expect to find Dr. and Mrs. Kinnear in Foochow when I get there tomorrow. They have been gone almost two years.

I am looking up steamers for going home next May. The permission has not yet come from Boston. But I have corresponded with Dr. Bactorn and he thought there would be no trouble. It is hard to believe that only six months lie between now and the time when I hope to see all my loved ones. Uncle Stanley wants me to go straight thru to Shelton and attend his wedding and come back to Oberlin for the anniversary. I want very much to attend the wedding, and I shall try to arrange to do as he suggests.

God has been very good to us all during these more than three years but I have been away from each other. May He keep us all to see and enjoy and profit by seeing each other next year. Your accounts of class and Volunteer prayer meetings touch me deeply. May God keep and bless you

Lovingly your Father Willard L. Beard

Dec. 13 [1915]

Dear Ones at Home, Phebe and Stanley,

I am going to send this via Phebe and Stanley because it is a long time since I have written them. As to the lanterns they were a combination engagement and birthday gift. It will not hurt them to use them if you want to. The last two of Phebe's letters have contained pictures from which I extend thanks for my share. That camping trip must have been great. Your tales and the pictures made me quite envious for I do love camping. Yes, even the snake and dirt are attractive when out under the open sky for twenty four hours a day!

The vacation is almost here- only three and a half days of school left. There are just six of us here this weekend. Delnoce Grant was having a fancy dress party Saturday evening so all but the little tots went to Peking. They were one excited bunch of children. Delnoce brought out some pictures the other day, picture taken in New York and Phebe was in one of them. It was only fair of Phebe.

Elizabeth I am glad you happened to meet the Porters. They are a fine couple and I wish you might have seen more of them.

Last week we were all formally initiated as member of the "Past Time Club" of Tungchow. It meets irregularly, whenever any one has an inspiration as to form of entertainment. On Thursday there were seven new members to initiate so we were made to do the entertaining. Flora had to deliver a scolding to Mrs. Hubbard who was to represent a naughty little girl. I had to recite poetry while holding the goat's tail for inspiration. We had to crawl under two tables and play cuckoo clocks just at the hour of twelve. Some of the men had to roll peanuts with their noses, play cock fight, debate on "why is a chicken", play a tune on a bicycle pump etc. It was a restful fun evening.

I have been having great times with my girlies; first one sick, then another. Last week I kept Pauline in bed two days and this week I had Muriel there one day. We sent Isabel home with a severe cold and Bethine stayed up two days because of her rheumatism. I am rather relieved when it is the Peking children who are ill so we can ship them home; for, I do not like taking care of sick children all night and then having to rise at 6.45 and work all day. It makes one a-weary.

I have taken Flora's play off her hands so am busy coaching play every night for from ½ to 1 hour. We made candy on Friday night and make some more on Tuesday.

Jan. 28.

Even though this beginning is near five weeks old I am going to send it along as proof of my good intentions. We are having another touch of winter after some very spring like weather. On Tuesday I played tennis and was too warm with a middy and no sweater. The skating was soft and wet but the children went out just the same. Now as late as Thursday we went walking in our thin coats or sweaters only. But Thursday night the weather began to change. It was cloudy and gloomy all morning and the wind began to rise in the afternoon. That night the water in our room froze solid. Again Saturday night – and again last night everything froze stiff. I had several bottles of grape juice in my closet and have removed it to safer more protected quarters, lest it freeze.

We had Dr. and Mrs. Galt over for supper on Thursday evening. They were our first real guests except Dr. Smith and guest for luncheon from Peking. On Friday night Mrs. Sheffield was here for supper. This week we entertain Mr. and Mrs. Corbett and shall go on until we have had all of the Tungchow people in.

On Wednesday I had a card from Mrs. Hubbard saying that she and three others were coming down to Tungchow via the canal that afternoon. I had given them up and was out playing bean bags with the children when one couple appeared. It was already 4.45 so there was no time for afternoon tea. We took a hasty walk to the top of the building- and back and started at once for the station.

Yesterday Mrs. Galt and Mrs. Sheffield received us all at tea. It is fun to get together once in a while for a social chat. We all miss Miss Leavens from the circle but she is still retired from all intercourse with the world. She has seen no one, except the doctor and his wife, since just after Christmas and any little effort exhausts her. I do hope that the Board can send a helper for the woman's work because Miss Leavens is not strong enough to carry the burden of it. Of course all of the matrons help but Miss Leavens has the sole responsibility.

I almost forgot our turmoil here last Monday. Our two girls who were living with Miss Leavens are turned out by her illness as they can not live alone in a home. Mrs. Wickes took them in temporarily but it was a big question as to what we should do permanently. Finally Flora offered to give up her study. That meant moving the study furniture into the parlor; moving Mr. Johnson into the study since it is a very small room; and letting the two girls have Mr. Johnson's room, since it is a good sized room. On Monday morning we did it and now feel quite at home with our new arrangement. Our living room, which was at the start a very barren room, is almost overcrowded with furniture. The change necessitates using the dining room as recitation room for Mrs. Galt and Mrs. Corbett because they used to use the study.

On Friday we had a wedding in the family; the coolie took unto himself- a wife. Last Tuesday he came to Mrs. Galt and asked for a day off on Friday because there was to be some sort of funtime or celebration in the family. He didn't say what it was definitely and she could not make out. She spoke to Flora and they decided to give him the day since he had been so faithful; but they accepted his offer to come early and fix the furnace and again late to bank it for the night. On Thursday, again Mrs. Galt tried to find out what the celebration was to be and got so far as to make sure it was a wedding. But the bride was no relation and he did not know her. "Some one on the other side of the city had spoken for her" said he. Later we found out that Dr. Galt was to marry them. He is about forty and she is at least as old if not older. Imagine such a mix up in America over a wedding.

A big funeral passed on the sunken road on Tuesday. The deceased was the father of Mrs. Corbett's boy. They are desperately poor and let the old man suffer many days before calling Dr. Love because they had heard that he charged fifty cents for a village call. Yet for his coffin they paid $65 and the line of banner carriers stretched about as far as from our house to the end of Donovan's land on the south. The mistaken ideas of values is one of the saddest things we see! That family will struggle under that debt for years to come and yet feel repaid because of the much talk about the beauty of the funeral.

I do hope you are all still keeping well at home. Our vacation set us both up so things run much more smoothly.

With much love to you both and all the home people I am
Mary Beard

P.S. Yes Phebe you sent pictures of Myra's shower, and of Elbert and Will's family. That book cover evidently got lost in the mail together with Flora's pencils.

Mary updated the Alumni records at Mount Holyoke College. In April of 1917 the records show thus:

Miss Beard's heart and interests were with the class of 1905 to which she really belonged. Because she did not have hours of credit, she went to Woods Hole for six weeks and then returned in the spring of 1906 for her diploma. In her sophomore year she began her work in biology and from that time on she became an ardent member of that department, taking everything in that line that Dr. Clapp would permit. "I am not sorry for any of the work I did take but I wish I had been able to add more history and English. I wonder what Miss Hoag would say if she knew that the freshman who was such a terrible poor Latin scholar, is now teaching all four years of high school Latin with keen interest in the subject." A year of teaching in the New Haven grade schools showed Mary that she wouldn't care for any more of that. For the next three years she taught science and mathematics in a girl's boarding school in Santa Barbara, California. After a year at home, she took a summer course at Columbia to brush up on her science teaching. From 1910 to 1914, she taught science at Monticello Seminary, an old institution which celebrated its seventy-fifth anniversary the year after Mount Holyoke did. In the summer of 1912, she took more science courses at Columbia, - not for a degree but to better herself for her work at Monticello.

Early in 1914, I began a correspondence about this opportunity in China. My sister Flora was coming out as the representative of the American Board. An Assistant was wanted and the Methodist and Presbyterian Boards sent me as their representative to assist her in developing a school for missionaries' children. We started with a day school in Peking because our new building in Tungchow was incomplete. That year gave us an excellent opportunity to get acquainted with the people for whom our work was to be done.

Writing at the close of the second year in the real school home, Miss Beard says, "We had only fourteen pupils last year and have grown to twenty-four this. The prospect is good for a similar increase another year. This is the time when I am glad for all the minor committees on which I worked at college and wish they had been major ones so that the experience would have been wider. I wonder if such a specialization in science was wise for I have taught every high school subject except science; for the last three years. At last I have a chemistry class and hope to have one in biology next year."

"If you want a class of students who are an inspiration in themselves just send out and gather in the children of these specially trained missionaries. We have enough proofs of the laws of heredity in our school to offset any number of theories. The children are not only naturally bright but generally have the power of concentration, that makes them work with a will, play with a will and never do anything half-way.

GROUP OF AMERICAN MISSIONARIES PRESENT DURING THE SIEGE

This photo and a group of others showing the destruction during the Boxer Rebellion was probably given to Mary Beard by her friend, Rev. Arthur H. Smith, survivor of the siege and author of China In Convulsion. The same group of photos are included in his book. Arthur H. Smith lived in the same Tungchou compound where Flora and Mary's school was located. Flora and Mary associated with many of the people in this photo.

Te Chou, Shantung, Jan. 3rd 1916

Dear Miss Flora and Miss Mary Beard:

I found among my letters at Christmas time a fat envelope the legend of which certified that it came for you (Ye) and the contents was a very pretty silk scarf, such as is adapted to seize a gentleman by the throat, and keep him from the Wintry Blast. Very many thanks, dear Friends, for your kindness to me unworthy. I shall cherish this pretty and timely gift for itself and for the Givers. And this reminds me all too late that I have at T'ung Chou a volume which is intended for you, and which shall go into your hands as soon as I can return. I am unable to give as yet any forecast as to when that will be, but it may be within two weeks or more. I am sure not only that you (Ye) had a good time wherever you were, but that by a gentle compulsion you made everyone else have a good time too! Mrs. Tucker is about writing you in regard to some of the studies for the coming year, and I think they want to know whether there is (or is not) a copy of Lamb's Tales from Shakespeare in the School Library (there being duplicates here). I seem to remember that this was one of the books that you took over.

With kind regards to all the members of the Station, and in the hope of seeing you before very many days,
I remain cordially yours,

Arthur H. Smith.

[Jan. 5, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

Christmas is over and to-morrow we go to Peking to receive on New Year's Day with Mrs. Hubbard the wife of the pastor of Union Church. We are to return on Monday and that evening all the children return and we shall be off on the next term's work.

Mary and I have been as busy as two bees ever since the children departed for their houses. We have had the building cleaned from top to bottom and I hope now there will be no more tearing up of the walls, so that we may at least be spared the lime dust anymore. We can't escape the dust that every wind brings in from out of doors but it will be a relief if we may be spared the dust raised by workmen inside. We have had all the pipes and radiators silvered and the little circles placed around the pipes on the ceilings and floors. We have had all the counterpanes washed, and our blackboards are being put in place, so that when the children return they will find a much more attractive school.

Mary and I spent Christmas with Mr. and Mrs. Miller [possibly Mr. and Mrs. James Albert Miller according to the Presbyterian Historical Society of Philadelphia] of Shuntehfu [Schunte-fu]- about a third of the way from Peking to Hankow. It is a Presbyterian Mission and there are four houses representing five families. It is rather a new station so that the work is still in its beginnings, though there is plenty to do in each line of work. The evangelistic side is more prominent there than in most other places I have visited. Shuntehfu is a walled city but like most such cities, there are more people living outside than in. The houses in the city are all huddled into the southern half and the rest is just beautifully tilled fields. We walked all around the city wall on Sunday afternoon and it was a fine, clean walk. The wall is in a fine state of preservation and we could see both the city inside and the country round about.

The journey from Tungchou to Shuntehfu took us from 7.30 A.M. till 7.30 P.M., though we had nearly three hours between trains in Peking. We had a good lunch along with us and "T. Tenchbaron" (which Miss Brewster sent me) to read, so with having to satisfy our curiosity about some of our fellow travelers we did not find the ride very irksome. There was a diner on the train from which we saw heaping dishes of rice and eggs appear and disappear. We indulged in several delectable loose skinned oranges which tasted just as they did in Foochow. At one of the stations they bring onto the train chickens cooked to a beautiful shiny brown so that we foreigners call them "varnished" chickens. We saw four Chinese fellow passengers eat three of these chickens after having patronized the diner sumptuously and eaten quantities of chestnuts and peanuts from their own packages. It secured to me a feat for a gormandizer, but on my way back home, when Mr. Miller and I ate two thirds of a chicken between us, I did not feel quite so critical. The chickens are cooked in some way so that they are quickly browned on the outside and then they are steamed until well cooked.

At Shuntehfu we had Xmas dinner with the Millers, then we went to Dr. Hamilton's (where there are two of the smallest children) for the tree. After that several of the people took a walk out to two groups of pagodas- about seventy in all- monuments to deceased Buddhists. I should think the tallest ones must have been about twenty-five feet high. In the late afternoon we went to the ladies' house and had a "Compound" supper, served in a cafeteria style. It was most informal and social- and just the kind of a meal to serve to stuffed- Christmas- dined people.

Later: - It is now a week since we returned from our Christmas trip. We have been to Peking and have helped to receive seventy gentlemen who called on New Year's Day. I'll not describe it in detail as it is Mary's week to write. I can't help adding though, that we had the help of one of New York's most noted families- the Goulds. Would you ever expect one of them to turn up here to try the New York style of philanthropy? She (Mrs. Gould) wishes to start a Montessori School. She has been here for about two weeks and Mrs. Hubbard thought she might like the fun of receiving. She was very glad to come. It was my closest contact to one of the great moneyed people of New York and I must say that she behaved very modestly. She is the wife of Mr. Howard Gould and having wearied of his gay and wild life she has a legal separation from him and is now doing some of the things she has always wanted to. She is a very different type of woman from those one meets out here and I think she must realize it.

I am enclosing in this letter a gold draft for fifty dollars to father. Please let me know if it reaches you. Someway, I feel that mail is not so sure these days, or else it is slow in getting here. I am relieved to hear that the Empress S.S. are again to sail the Pacific. We shall all feel surer about the mail.

This is Wednesday evening and all our flock are back excepting one. We hope to-morrow will bring her.

With all love-

Flora Beard.

Will you please send the money for the enclosed subscription? Did I write you that I have asked the School Arts Magazine to send its bill to father? Those are the only ones that I have contracted so far. I wish Phebe would find out if it is possible to have one of those Pick-up your-bed –and –walk cots like the one you sent out by Parcel Post. If it is not too expensive I would like one. F.B. Wannamaker has them- $3 with the cover. We want the cover.

Dear Ones at Home,

Last Sunday we were in Peking with Mrs. Fenn. We went up Friday noon and shopped until about 5.00 P.M. Then we went to Mrs. Hubbard's because we were to receive callers with her on New Year's Day. We spent the evening talking over plans for the next day but retired about 10.30 because we had need of arising early to get breakfast over before callers should arrive.

What do you think of the swellness of receiving with Mrs. Howard Gould, sister-in-law-of Helen Gould?!! She brought with her her little Chinese girl whom she adopted in San Francisco enroute out. Mrs. Gould is here to start a Montessori school among the Chinese children and her own sister who has married a Chinese, follows soon to assist. She is a very unassuming woman, rather stately in bearing but an excellent "mixer" and nothing of a snob.

Our luncheon party was one of the most cosmopolitan possible; the wife of the pastor of the Union church was hostess; receiving her guests were the wife of a Tsung Hua professor and one of the lady teachers besides Mrs. Gould and ourselves; the men were, the president of the Union Theological Seminary, an advisor to Yuan Shih Kai, three Y.M.C.A. men, two teachers in government schools, one member of the Bible Translation committee, two Salvation Army Men, one English business man, one man just out who are in Peking for language study and whose occupation I am not sure of. How was that for a predominance of men! All we ladies had to do was start a topic of conversation and let it go. Flora had a great time at her table when Mrs. Gould, who is out here for reforms and is especially interested in Agriculture as well as Montessori, and Mr. Thinning, of the Bible translation committee and also a very great reformer, began on reforms. Mrs. Gould suggested that the Chinese were raising a very inferior brand of tobacco and could gather much more valuable crops if they improved the brand. You can picture the rest and the difficulties of getting the topic changed. Mrs. Gould is having the little Chinese girl (who speaks English perfectly and Cantonese but not Mandarin) study German with Mrs. Wang with whom I studied last year. Mrs. Wang is a red hot little German woman and one day Mrs. Gould asked her little Chinese girl to sing Tiparary for Mrs. W. Mrs. Wang was quick enough to remark "that is an American song I believe; yes, let's hear it."

We stayed with Dr. and Mrs. Hubbard for supper then went to Mrs. Fenn's for over Sunday. On Sunday afternoon two Hankow missionaries (both English) arrived to spend several days. One was an excellent story teller and kept us in gales of laughter all the time. We went down to the Union church service at 5.30 and it seemed quite like old times to see all the people once more.

We came down on the noon train in order to put the last touches on the home before having to greet the children on the evening train. Mrs. Lane, wife of the architect just out for Tsing Hua, came on the train to bring her small son Charles as a pupil. She came only part way up to the home then hurried back to take the same train back to Peking. Charles is 7 ½ years old but a bright little fellow. He goes home only every other week so we had a family of twelve this week end.

It was Thursday night before we got all of the children back. I met the train every night up to then and again last night I went to see the children off. The weather has been cold and the skating good all the week. We have the use of the pond until 4.30 so there is a grand rush to get off soon and improve every minute. Last night the pond was horribly slushy and now it is frozen hard again. I wonder if we can use it at all after this.

The little girls have all brought their dolls back so we have these dolls and a teddy bear for play house besides the abundance of easels, paper dolls, etc. that Christmas brought. The dolls are proving a great help in entertaining.

This week we had two callers in school. Mrs. McCann came in on Friday to visit classes and on that same afternoon Mr. Hunter came down to see how Charlie Childress is progressing. Both happened into my English III class at the same time and soon Mrs. Corbett came to do a bit of adjusting in a far corner. It seemed as though we were holding a reception!

President Yuan issued invitations to the Legation quarters for his New Years Reception but Emperor Yuan issued invitations to his own court. There are rumors of troubles in various places. Last Sunday the report had 78 beheaded at Nanking. There is a feeling of unrest in many places. We feel quite secure here because we are too near the capital for Yuan to risk any kind of uprising. Rumor has it that the soldiers who are against the empire threaten to attack the foreigner as they would get Yuan into the greatest possible trouble. The Chinese are more scared than the foreigners in most places as they feel that the Chinese Christians would be called on to suffer too.

Last night we had a high north west wind so the water in our pitchers and bottles was frozen. I was cold under three woolen blankets and a thick comforter. The wind still blows a good gale but I am going to have everyone put on their coats and accompany me on a walk around the compound. This rogue unrest throughout the countryside makes us feel it unwise to go far into the country with a bunch of children but every day helps to relieve the feeling so I hope we can get our ice boat ride to the old bridge this coming week.

Thanks for the card from the Thanksgiving party. The ties and thimble case and slippers came but no other packages. The initial book is interesting and useful. The Life of Harriet Beecher Stowe came this week just as I was getting in despair because of lack of material. I have read about half of it and it is just the thing. The other packages are not yet here but once again I hope because a home mail was in yesterday.

The children are either too busy to desire the interruption I am planning or weary waiting for the walk so I think I must needs close and get ready to start and so close

With lots of love from

Mary.

Dear Kathleen-

I am free to write you and thank you for the box of soap. I have been so careful of the box you sent last year that there is still some left. I have used it only to take into the country- it is very handy for that- and when my hands specially needed it. But now I am getting extravagant and using every day. The washcloth will keep me all right till I get home. You have been my good angel to keep me in washcloths ever since I came to China. I wonder who will do it when you come out here- or will Mama just order them out from some store. It is very pleasing to think of you every morning as I use the soap and cloth you so lovingly sent, and then I like to take that rough towel that Mama sent and scratch myself well to finish off with. I wonder who put in the pretty blue tie with white dots. No more pulling to get the four-in-hand in the right flare- I just fix this one right front on the collar, slip up the loop and it's all right for the day. Thank you and whoever else should have a share for all. I do miss my vest pocket diary and do hope it will come soon.

This past week Dr. Sailer of Columbia N.Y. with his wife and 19 year old daughter have been in Foochow. Dr. Sailer with Dr. Chamberlain who was here two weeks ago and Dr. Gaucher who was here a year ago are a committee of three to investigate the condition of educational conditions in China and report to the Continuation Committee- on their report depends the help Foochow will get from large funds and foundations like the Rockefeller Foundation. These three men seem very favorably impressed with conditions in Foochow. Dr. Sailer had a very wet disagreeable day to see Foochow city, but morning dawned clear and he left in good spirits with a dozen or more pictures.

A good letter came from Uncle Raymond Jewett of Mt. Vernon yesterday. With it also came some photographs of the whole family. It does me good to look at them. Uncle Raymond holds Dorothy and Aunt Mollie ["Mary" according to the 1930 New York census] holds Roger. All look specially well. The children are an honor to their parents. I shall not even hope to go to many places next summer but I do want to get to Mt. Vernon. I had a good letter from "Mother" Bean a short time ago but have not heard from Mr. Ide for a long time.

Yuan Shi Kai is Emperor. The new Dynasty is called Hung Hiong. I cannot now write the characters. All is quiet here- it cannot be otherwise for all is under the soldiers.- They are everywhere and carry fixed bayonets some of the time.

Next Sunday I preach the Baccalaureate sermon for the College. We plan to use the new church altho it is not completed and also to hold the Graduating exercises in it.

Dr. Sailer told us the other evening that he told his daughter that he wanted to have her fitted to pull her weight in the social boat when she graduated from College. This is the same idea that I have tried to express as my ideal for each one of us = live so as to make the world better. This does not mean a large salary or a big reputation. It means being a helper in the place where we are at any given time.- Not merely a hanger on. May God help each of you from Kathleen to Mama to be helpers in the daily prayer of your loving Father. Foochow, China
Jan. 9th 1916

Dear Mother:-

This means and all the rest, as I have written before, when I have written a letter to Ellen and one to some one of the children each week, the time is about us and I realize that my reputation among others is damaged. Last night a good letter came from Phebe M. enclosing one from Phebe K. and mentioning the Thanksgiving party. The mail before brought photos so I feel pretty well up to date on home affairs. Whenever Gould gets down to the farm he is sure to write all the farm news- all about the horses and cows and calves and crops whether he mentions the folks or not. Phebe is sure happy in Oberlin. I hope it will continue. Good letters come from Mt. Vernon. Mr. Jewett wrote last. In his letter received last evening he enclosed photographs of the family. They have a Dorothy 2 years old in Nov. last and Roger one year old about the same time. If the photos are an indication of the real thing the children have come to stay, as Oliver said when he first saw Marjorie and Kathleen.

Christmas and New Years passed off very pleasantly here. As a sign that the church grows, this year each church and each division of the school held its own exercises and mostly on Christmas day. They used to try to spread Christmas over about two weeks and try to get to foreigners to attend each one. When I was talking over the program with the Committee of this city church they feared lest there would not be a mau iek= big time, for said they, before we have had the Hospital, the High Primary, the Kindergarten and the Lower Primary. This year each of these has its own Christmas celebration and we haven't much left to do with. But on that afternoon nearly all the church members had to get up and go out doors to allow the visitors to find seats. It seemed as if the people sat on each other up to the ceiling, this people are born actors. That day the scene in the temple when Simeon and Anna receive the Christ Child was enacted. Of course they had to have a donkey. This was made by going out to a shop and renting a head and neck of a horse life size. One boy put his head into the neck and worked the under jaw with a string while another boy stooped behind the first boy and by throwing a blanket over both boys they made a fairly good donkey. Mary with the baby were put on this donkey and thus they rode in to the temple and after the presentation thus they rode out. Whatever else one may say about it, the whole thing held the attention of the big crowd from beginning to the close. And I was interested.

On New Year's afternoon the College boys hired a troupe- if you think this word troupe is not in the Dictionary, look under troop and you'll find it if your Dictionary is up to date- to play fight the lion. Two little boys 11 and 14 years of age did some good tumbling but the lion show and the grown men's feats were tame. I wanted to give them a ticket to Madison Square Garden when Forepaugh was there. But in the evening the boys themselves gave a Chinese Historical scene which was well selected and admirably well acted- 2,000 people sat in the open air under the stars in the mild evening from 7- 11 p.m. and enjoyed it all. Mr. Ding Ming Uong's mother was the very last person to leave- after 11 p.m. She is mother's age. She was also at the afternoon performance.

Week before last we ordained two pastors. At the first ordination I have the charge to the new pastor. At the second I preached the sermon. A new and unique and very encouraging feature of the second ordination was the presence and active participation of about twelve young men from the highest families in that section of Foochow. The young men are not Christians, but the young pastor has won them for his friends which is the first step in winning them to Christ. Each of these young men had written a complimentary poem for and fitting the occasion. And he sang it himself at the service. Such a thing as this would have been outside the dream world's horizon five years ago. But now the very highest classes associate with the church almost naturally.

Just this past week I have spoken four times in a series of evangelistic services. At the last meeting on Thursday evening, 75 men and boys signed cards signifying their willingness to join classes for the study of the Bible. This past week we also kept as the week of prayer. I was able to attend only three of eight meetings.

Yuan Shi Kai is Emperor altho I suppose the coronation has not yet taken place. The new dynasty is called in the Foochow dialect Hung Hiong. It will be spelled differently in the papers- for they will give the Mandarin. All is perfectly quiet here. No one dare say anything. And I judge this is true of most of China. Of course only a few people in Foochow and in some of the larger centers know or care anything about it anyway.

New roads are being rushed to get them completed before China New Years Feb. 3rd. I expect to ride to the launch, when I start for home next May 1st in a ricksha and an automobile may bring Ellen and the babies in next Sept.

I remember your wedding anniversary Jan. 20th and your birthday Jan. 30th and then in Feb a veritable deluge of birthdays. The Genealogy is a big help to me here. I could never keep up with Cousin Charles Beard of Milford in remembering dates. Then in telling your ages here I must add a year to make them true to Chinese reckoning and I need something to keep on straight which the Genealogy does. By the way as I sat looking at this Genealogy now I notice that Marjorie's birth is down for 1905. It must be 1906.

I sent my heartiest good wishes for a happy birthday to you and all the others whose mile posts come at this season. God has dealt very lovingly with you and with us all. You and father and all your children and grand children have pulled their weight in the social boat. That is they are helpers of men. This is much to be able to say. I pray that He will give us all the pleasure of seeing each other next June and July. Lovingly

[This letter dated Jan. 16, 1916 was written from Tungchou, China by Flora to the folks at home. She received a can of dried pumpkin from her sister, Phebe, and she plans to tell her cook how to make a pumpkin pie. She goes on to tell of previous culinary bumbles by her cook. Flora and Mary have not been receiving some parcels sent to them and she states that it is now not as easy to mail out parcels. Tungchou, Chili [Chih-li], China,
Jan. 16, 1916.

Dear folks at home:-

Last night a can of dried pumpkin came from Phebe. It smelled so good that we ate some tiny pieces of it. Mary and I were invited over to the Galts for supper to meet Miss Mead who had come down from Peking to spend Sunday. She had brought the package. It must sometime have been in a warm place for every bit of the paraffine had been dislodged from its original place. I am going to see about having some pumpkin pies sometime. I have had such delicious results from trying to instruct my cook in the culinary art that I wonder how he would bungle a pumpkin pie. We bought some canned salmon and he never served it, so I tried to explain salmon loaf to him – through Mrs. Galt as interpreter. The dish that came on the table was a platter swimming in a cream gravy with projections of toasted bread occasionally in sight, and right in the middle of it the salmon reposing on its side- in perfect shape removed from the tin. The other day we had an opportunity to get some honey which had been made in the little square frames such as we have in America. I bought six of them. I told the cook to have hot biscuits and honey for desert some day. One day we went down to tiffin and here were the boxes of honey stood up on their sides, each on a separate plate and disposed about the tables according to the “boy’s” idea of beauty. When I asked the cook about it, he simply asked if they could not stay on the table. That noon he served nothing but hot muffins for bread and I wondered what the desert would be. Mary and I had removed the four superfluous boxes of honey, and when the time for desert arrived- it was just some more hot muffins. The children seemed to enjoy the joke so there was no harm done. I wish I had the time to really direct our eating for we could really have some delectable things, like home. We have two excellent cooks, though, and the children have to have their appetites curbed rather than encouraged, so I am not grumbling.

This last week the parcel came which contained my flannel, the hairpins, thread, tooth brush, and Mary’s towel. The towel is a beauty. I wish that you would be on the look out for some great toweling of huckaback and get us a whole bolt if it is not over twenty yards. I want to have the girls do some work next fall which they can use for Xmas gifts and I think this is a practical and interesting way in which to do it. They may darn, crochet, hemstitch, or anything they choose, but it must be something worth while. Do not get too expensive a quality- something about medium, or a little better.

I am afraid the pencils are lost, since I have heard nothing about them. Will wrote that he had sent us a box of tea but it has never reached us. Mr. McCann the A.B.C.F.M. treasurer has lost several important letters so that it is evident that the mails are sometimes molested. We are registering most of our things home now. It is getting to be such a nuisance to mail packages home now. The Japanese P.O. used to do it for us and save us all the trouble of going to the Chinese customs. For some reason they have stopped and so now we have to go ourselves and since the customs are open only between 1 and 3 P.M. it is not always convenient. However, I have some parcels to mail to Miss Brewster the first opportunity I have.

Last week we mailed (registered) the draft for $25 gold, which I hope reaches you safely. I hope also that it will put me at least even with that side of the world. I may want some more things sometime if there is anything to my credit. I wish now that I had a folding cot bed, for if we go camping up in Mongolia next July I shall have to have something of the sort. I think it will be fine fun to spend a few weeks so far away from the railroad that it takes three days to reach the spot- by horse. We shall spend August in Pei Tai Ho for the sake of meeting the people of North China, whose children we shall have some time or other.

I have just received a news paper from Mrs. Burbank, telling of the terrible snowstorm of Dec. 13th- 32 in. in North Jersey. A week or so ago I received Christine’s announcement, and I can’t yet make myself realize that she has married that old man. It is probably the happiest thing for her, and he is perfectly able to give her every thing she needs. Miss Clarkson wrote me that Christine had a serious illness just before her marriage- a hemorrhage. I know that her lungs have not been sound for several years, and she had a slight hemorrhage three years ago. I shall hope to hear from her mother soon.

Miss Simmons wrote last week saying that she had subscribed to the Atlantic Monthly for me. Will you write to them (the At. Month. Publishers) and ask to have the subscription put on to next year (that is if you had already sent my subscription)? I do enjoy having the magazine very much.

We are having such mild weather that there is some concern about getting ice enough for next summer. Last year the crop was more than a foot thick and this year it is not over six inches. Since the holidays the skating has been fine until yesterday when the ice was badly softened by the sun. The wind has several times blown the dust on to the ice badly, but the sun melts the top of the ice just enough to let the dirt sink in so that the skating stays fairly good. We want some way to flood the pond but as nothing but a bucket brigade seems to be handy, the pond has to be endured as the wind and sun permit.

With love to all-
Flora Beard.

Foochow, China.
Jan 23rd 1916

Dear Mother:-

Every mail brings a letter or letters from some of the Shelton family. The last mail brought a number, some direct to me and some thru Peking. Elizabeth wrote of father's acrobatic feat. I was glad that he had the forethought to prepare a nice soft spot to land on, and I trust that no serious results follow. But tell him to wait before he does it next time. It would be worth seeing.

We have had perfect weather here for six months. Only a very few days of rain. And for the past two months almost steady bright clear days and nights. The air too has been specially dry for Foochow. Last night rain fell in showers. We have had two cold spells with white frosts. But since Wednesday the weather has been so warm that we did not want fires. The wind blows hard from the West to day and it is cold and damp.

The past week has been rather strenuous. Last Sunday I preached the Bacchalaureate before the graduates of the College, Union Normal School and Nurse's Course in our Hospital. The new church had the roof on, so we leveled off the earth inside, had the pulpit floor put in and then took the seats from the old church and College Chapel and held the service in the new building. The windows were holes in the walls. But the day was bright so we got along all right. That evening we held C.E. at 5 o'clock instead of 7, because there was no way of lighting the building. On that afternoon we had a business meeting of the church from 2-5 o'clock, and in the evening there was special foreign music at Mr. and Mrs. Newell's. I did not get a moment to put pen to paper that day, and had to wait till Wednesday morning. Then when every body else was scurrying round getting ready for the College Graduation I found half an hour to send a few words to Ellen. The Graduation passed off very nicely. I'll send a program.

On Thursday we had the big Committee meeting of the year, Chinese and foreign- 16 in all to make the apportionment of money to the different centers of work. This means really fixing the salary of every man who received help from foreign funds. We held three sessions 9 a.m. - 12:30 p.m. 2 p.m. - 6:30 p.m. and 7:30 p.m. to 1:30 a.m. Friday. After doing all the cutting we could we tried to get the Chinese members of the Committee to go surety for $600 of the $1800 deficit. But they would not agree so at last we all agreed on a cut of 10% in all the appropriations. If this can be raised among the Chinese the cut will be made up. In all we appropriated about $10000 mex.

The government is no longer a Republic and no one seems to know just what to call it. Yuan Shi Kai has not yet been crowned if we can believe the reports but the name of the new dynasty is decided on= Hung Hiong in the Foochow dialect or Hung Hsien in the Mandarin. If you are interested in the Chinese characters they are

It is good to feel free from daily tasks that must be done between 6:30 a.m. and 10:30 p.m. It was kind 'o good to lie in bed this morning till 8 o'clock and not have to lead a single service during the day. I do not know what I shall do during the vacation. I want to get away from Foochow for a few days somewhere. But there are odds and ends of College work and the details of opening next year, and details about the new church and a lot of other things- among them a nice fat pile of letters to answer, - all of which will keep me from too much mischief for a few days, - O yes I came near forgetting that I have three union suits to wash. Since I came out three years ago I have always washed my own woolen clothes.

Your card with the autographs of the Thanksgiving party came in good time. I was very glad the Putnam people could be present. I am wondering if it will be possible for them to get down again for Christmas. I'm afraid not.

I am doing my best these days to find a steamer to go home on. Thus far I have not made out. I thought the Empress of Asia was the one but she was suddenly taken off to carry Germans from Hong Kong to Australia. Now I'm looking up the Tenyo Maru. I shall make every effort to get to Shelton the first week in June for Stanley's wedding.

May our Father keep us all and bring us together in the Summer and make our meeting help each of us to be more useful to Him as we become more helpful to each other and to others.

With love to all

Will.

I am sending this via Peking.

Jan 23- 1916

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

It is most interesting to receive letters from you from all parts of the Globe. Mama sends them, aunts Flora and Mary send them and Aunt Phebe sends them. I do not see how you find time to write so much and do your college work. Yes I do too. For I know you do not during this first year in College have so many outside duties of things to take your time and you are perfectly safe in giving so much time to relatives and friends.

Be a little careful about attending too many services on Sunday. Do not lay yourself open to the charge of religious dissatisfaction. I am pleased with the emphasis you put on the class that tells you how to get the most out of your course and on Pres. King's class. I hope you will get much out of him. I crave for Gould the privilege of knowing Pres. King and Prof. Bosworth and Prof. Hutchins, and Lyman and one other I have heard much of. I do not remember his name. An education does not consist as much as knowing so many books as in having known men of large hearts and broad minds, and having caught their ideals.

Today is very cold only 40 degrees above, which is most as cold here as zero at home.

Please send mama's and Dorothy's letters on as soon as possible.

Your loving father

Willard L. Beard

[Jan. 30, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

The box with Mary's things and my note book arrived this last week. Thank you for my little note book. It is much handsomer than I had anticipated. I am looking for the pencils to arrive soon. Things are much longer on the way these days than formerly. I imagine the first package of pencils were too much of a temptation to some one on the way. I rather wonder if this package gets through safely. Mary's last "Digest" was soaking wet so I imagine one bag of mail got a bath some where on the way. It is a great relief to us to know that there is to be a line of American steamers across the Pacific again. I am sure mail will go more promptly and safely. The mails are not as efficient or trusty as usual here. "Censoring" is the tactful word, I supposed, to explain the situation.

About two weeks ago a can of pumpkin arrived from Phebe. It smells so deliciously of the homeland that we all had a bit to taste. We were out to dinner, the night that it came with the Galts and they were so interested in it. They had never thought of doing such a thing. It really tasted to me more like Hubbard squash. As soon as I can get the time to talk (through one of the children as interpreter) to the cook, I am going to have some pumpkin pies. They will have to be made when some of the children are absent for it is only then that we have a plenty of milk. We have eight quarts a day for our family of twenty children and it all gets used every day. Our dairy man has just purchased eight Russian cows. He gave $600 (silver) for one which is guaranteed to give thirty quarts a day. I wish father could see his herd of cows. He has good cement floors in all his stalls and steel stanchions in the one for the foreign cows. He has two or three men who spend their whole time grooming the cows and cleaning the stables. The cows are tied to individual stakes, for a time each day, out of doors, but otherwise they are kept in the stables. We pay 20 cents a quart for the milk and the people in Peking pay 25 cents a quart, so you see we have to pay for all these improvements. The cattle have their udders washed before milking and every cow's milk is weighed at each milking. In the summer when the people are away for their summer vacations, he makes butter and sells it at $1.00 a pound. Doesn't father want to come over here and set up business?

I am going to try to get some Chinese cabbage and onion seeds to send you. Both vegetables are far more delicate than ours in taste. I believe even father would like their onions. I am also to have some vegetable marrow seeds, which I will send to father.

You spoke of father's having had a fall through the barn floor. The letter telling of it has not reached us- or you sent it to Will. We are interested to know more about the accident. Please write us.

This is mother's birthday and please accept my hearty congratulations and wishes for many, many more returns of the day. I am beginning to think of the time when I shall be back in American again. I hope two years more at most will see this work done here. Things are moving on in the right direction slowly but surely-which is the way I would rather have things go. We are weekly receiving inquiries about next year's students. One family is thinking of putting in five children. We now have all the children under one roof. Miss Leavens has been ill now for over a month- just given out nervously- so that the girls had no one to stay with them. They are delighted to be here with us, and I like it much better so. Next year we shall probably have to use a part of Mr. Corbett's house. They will be at home in America, so their house here will be empty. They're going to lend us their piano so we are to have some thing to help us in music. The Galts go home the following year and will lend us their piano. By the time they return we hope to have one of our own. Do you think Dr. Shelton would listen to a request for some money for our school? If he could only see the kind of children we have - be with them for half a day- he would feel that any money put into their education would be a good investment. We want a piano first of all. We need rugs for our sitting -room floor. We shall get native rugs and when once placed here we will not have to get any more for many years. We can get them in shades of brown and gray - made of camel's hair. I have two rugs on my bedroom floor about 3 ft. X 6 ft. for which I paid $4 each- silver, so you see they are not exorbitantly expensive. They last a life time. You wanted to know about some small needs of ours so Mary and I have been thinking of the things we most want. We have no U.S. flag of our own. We have a flag pole on our building and we want a big wool bunting flag (an 8 ft. flag) and a silk flag (a yard long) for use in the school room- to salute; we want a good pencil sharpener (like the one I had in my office in S.O. [South Orange, N.J.]; we also are in need of some silver for the table. The children bring their own sets of silver but I have been supplying the silver for the teachers- which I do not wish to do another year. We want to get a half dozen each of forks, knives, soup spoons, teaspoons, and fruit knives. We want the fruit knives very much for we have fruit here so much. We want very plain silver and each piece marked N.C.A.S. If some one wishes to give the fruit knives we shall be glad to have them as soon as they can get here. If any one of these three things appeal to you we'll be very grateful to get it.

With love to all-

Flora.

Dear Mother:-

The last mail brought your good letter of Dec. 19, 1915. It is quite a stretch of the imagination for us here to picture you in snow drifts. We had a few flakes a week ago but only those who were out knew of it. I felt a few strike my face, but they were so fine I did not see them. We have had exquisite weather ever since it cooled off about last Nov. 1st. The time is here for the rainy season to begin. I want a few more pleasant days for I would like to get to Kuliang for a bit of a rest from the endless stream of callers. My College Monitor is leaving to become a minister in a church that now has no pastor and it is up to me to find a man to take his place.

I have written Thom. Cook and Son, Shanghai to engage passage for me on the N.Y.K. Steamer Shidzuoka Maru Shanghai May 1, arrive Seattle May 26. If this is full to get me on the T.K.K. Steamer Tenyo Maru Shanghai May 6 arrive San Francisco May 29. This at the latest should bring me into Shelton by June 6. I want to be in Oberlin June 13 and 14. I am writing this to Stanley. If the wedding could be any day June 6-11 or 16 to the time of the graduation in Putnam I could take it in. As soon as Cook replies I'll write again.

Yesterday the new road was opened. One hundred and eighty rickshas and three horse carriages. All are fitted with pneumatic tires and are all right. There are some six miles of good macadamized road and more in the making. At each end of the road is a nice little park with a pond and boats and little oriental summer houses and restaurants. I was pleased to see how democratic the highest government officials were. I went on the invitation of the Municipal Council. There were only the officials and the leading gentry present. I was taken at once to the General of all the troops in Fukien and Che Giang provinces. He asked me to accompany him on a tour of inspection. As we passed along we soon met the Governor who shook hands cordially and joined us. Photographers were ready for good pictures and both the Governor and General seemed to enjoy the experience. I hope to get some of the results.

It is good to learn from your letter that Father is none the worse for his circus performance. Elizabeth wrote so soon after he fell that I did not know how it would come out.

Some time ago I received the announcement of the marriage of Florence Urania Wells to Ralph W. Beardslee. I do not know who they are and do not find their names in the Genealogy. - Oh! it may be a Miss Wells that we know in Mt. Vernon. I guess that's it.

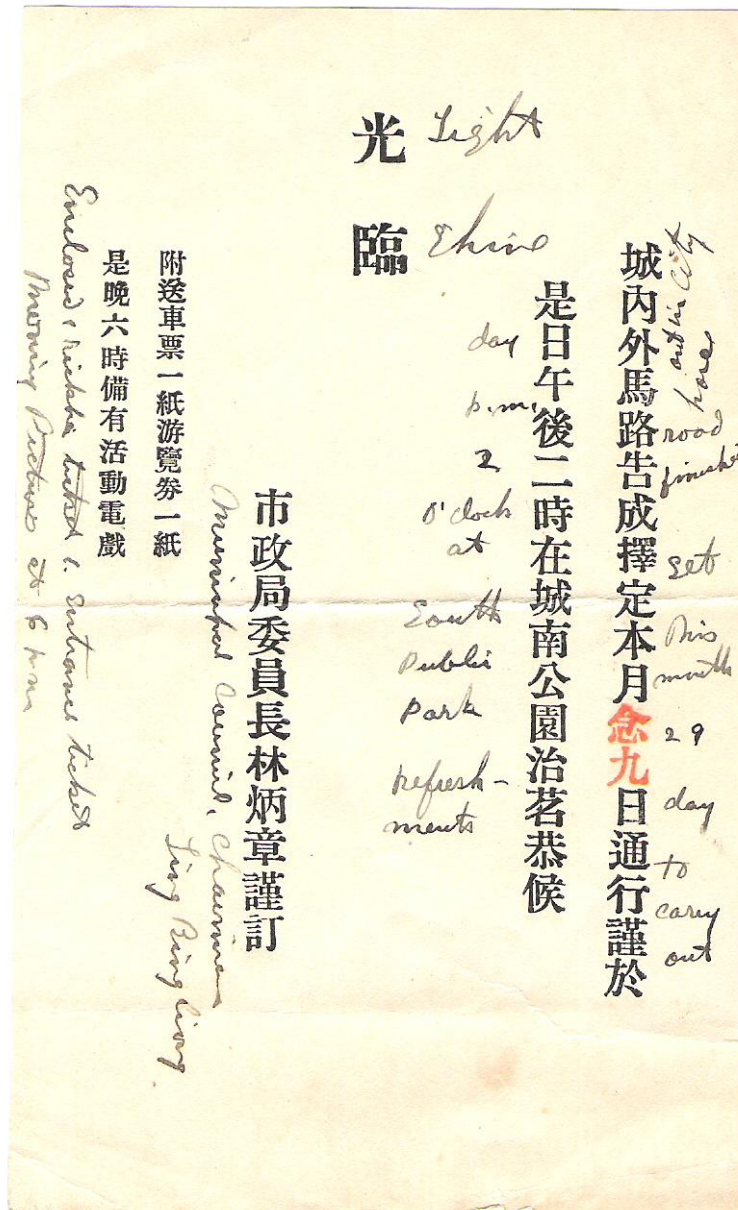

Yuan Shi Kai may be crowned before another Sunday. It makes little difference here. All goes on as before.

This last mail brought me photos of Dr. Ozora Davis of Chicago my Seminary classmate and Etta Hume and the children. Did I write that Mr. Goddard, Dr. Davis, Mr. Sumner and Frank Brewer plan to visit Foochow in 1917?

May God keep us all to see each other in June. Lovingly Will

I wrote this to you today to tell you I had been thinking much of you on your birthday. 1843- 1916. With very sincere congratulations.

Dear Sisters [Mary and Flora]:-

Another good letter from mother. The last mail brought three fat envelopes from 100 E. College St. Oberlin. Two of them were letters received by her [Willard's daughter, Phebe] and forwarded to me. She is greatly enjoying college. And just as she was writing last word had reached her that Stanley was bringing her home for Christmas which was most pleasant to her heart.

I am asking Cook in Shanghai to book me on the N.Y.K. Shidzuoka Maru. Shanghai May 1, Seattle May 26 or if she is full on the Tenyo Maru T.K.K. Shanghai May 6, San F. May 29. This will bring me home for the wedding July 6-12 or if they decide to let me stop in Oberlin first June 16 to time of Putnam High graduation- I wish you were coming too.- Miss Strang is asking for passage on the same steamer and yesterday Miss VanderLinden of Amoy wrote asking if I knew of any one going in May. Do you suppose I could advertise a "Personally Conducted Tour of the Pacific" and make my passage? Only young single ladies need apply of course.

Did I write that we held Baccalaureate and graduation in new church? College is out but work goes on just the same. I want to get away to Kuliang for two or three days- this week- I'll find it quick up there anyway.

We have had perfect weather the past fall and winter. Only a very few rainy days and for a month nice and crisp cold.

The new road was formally opened Saturday. You should have seen me strutting round with the Governor and General and the photographer after us all the time.

Your term is begun and you are already looking to the next vacation I suppose. May God always find you useful.

Lovingly
Will

Dear Ones at Home,

This letter came from Willard this morning- and I do not want to keep it until Sunday lest it thereby lose a steamer.

Examinations are safely over and all my grades in. Everybody passed but that is not credit to me because I have not the few who are somewhat stupid this year.

My dress came a week ago last Monday and I like it immensely. I have not yet gotten it fixed altho it needs but little. I shall shorten it and the sleeves are tighter at the top of the long niff[?]. The towel enclosed is a beauty. I have not yet decided which towel I like best; both are beauties. The other things for gifts I shall store safely for another year.

The pencils and birthday candles are here. Already the children are buying the pencils and are delighted to get such bargains.

We are talking of a trip into Mongolia next summer. I have already purchased khaki for bloomers and short skirt. If you find cotton crepe or seersucker suitable for waists or under clothing fairly reasonable you can send me enough for three waists and three union suits. I shall not mind how much of the material for underclothes you send because I shall need night gowns by another summer.

By the way, duties at this end seem to be levied according to the value of a package not according to the contents. Anything under $5.00 is fine and anything over is taxed, at about 15% Mexican.

The boys got the Volley Ball and court into working order last Wednesday. Now the children are getting proficient enough to thoroughly enjoy it and we play nearly every afternoon as well as at recess and at noon. It gets ones hands very dirty.

Yesterday I played tennis with Mrs. Corbett for an hour. I am hoping to get to play a good game someday. I can keep Mrs. Corbett from getting a love set now, which is more than I could do last fall.

I must get to my Virgil lesson or I will have to sit up late.

With much love

Mary Beard.

Tomorrow is Chinese New Year's and guns and fire crackers are going off all around us.

[This letter dated Feb. 6, 1916 was written from Tungchou, China by Mary to the ones at home. The new school session has begun. Chinese New Year was that week and the businesses were closed causing the school to have to stock up ahead of time with food. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[Feb. 6, 1916]

Dear Ones at Home,

I wrote a note in the middle of the week so news is rather scarce. I think you have not had one of our school pictures so I enclose one which was taken on our Dedication Day last October. I have made out a partial list of the people in it. We are just starting on our new Semester. The children got their reports yesterday. All were happy except three. They had fallen below B for an average; and B is necessary before pupils can participate in any match games on the athletic field. The Tungchou American Athletic Association (12 members) had already voted to challenge the compound people to a game of Volley Ball. It was a disappointment to some that they can not play in the game when it comes off.

Chinese New Years was this last Thursday. The natives began shooting fire crackers early Wednesday afternoon and kept it up until Friday afternoon. All business stopped so our cook had to stock up for eatables two or three days ahead. He brought nearly a bushel of eggs to last up until business starts up again.

Yesterday I received two Sentinels. One containing the news of Mr. Peck's death. The writer gave him a very pretty tribute.

Just here I was interrupted by great wails. One little girl had stumbled on the steps and had broken the heads of two big dolls into small bits. The breaker and one owner were feeling very badly. The other owner didn't care much because she "has one she loves better at home. It is older but lots nicer." I stopped forthwith and went for a walk. We went outside the compound and followed the wall nearly to the next corner and back by the same route. The children amused themselves counting the kites we could see in the air at different times; nine was the biggest number. The walk has not cured the hurt but it has solved the first ache so the girls can play and not lie on the bed and give way to their grief.

I must go call the girls and start the process of getting ready for church. Last Sunday we had "just half an hour to dress and were just saved from being late to church.

Mother's birthday has passed since last I wrote and fathers will come before this reaches you. Willard's was yesterday. I celebrate Flora's by reading a paper on Harriet-Beecher Stowe before the Friday Club.

I must call the children. These blue-gray days produce a like color in ones soul anyway. I would like to break my doll for an excuse to loose my self control.

With lots of love to you all

Mary Beard

Dear Elizabeth:-

Your good letter written last year came all right. It seems as if I had answered it but my correspondence register does not so record, therefore here goes.

First I want to say a great big "Thank You" to you and Ruth for the Literary Digest. It is still the first paper to come out of its wrapper. I can tell in a very few minutes the main thoughts of the world on the great matters that are engaging the ?? of the world. The cartoons are always not merely good but they [are] newsy, - often telling more news than some of the paragraphs.

This past week I have been helping in two conferences ?? Student's Conference of the Y.M.C.A. - taking a Bible Class ?? each day and at 11; taking a class in Personal Work in ?? Study Conference here in the city. The Student's Conference is ?? I have to tear myself away from the bed at 6 a.m. ?? breakfast and an hour's ride in before 8:10 when the Leader ?? comes. Then another hour's ride brings me back here for the ?? Conference. This Bible Study conference closed for me yesterday ??? Student conference closes Tues.

These Conferences are a new thing in Foochow ?? work. I started the first one in Sept. 1905. Now there are a??? do not know how many each year. I recall just now thr?? ??? helped in since last September. Committee ??? are another flock of birds hungry for time and they ?? a lot of it.

Since Thursday morning I have been all alone in the house. Mr. and Mrs. Christian are in Ing Hok. I take breakfast at 6:30 alone at home and dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Belcher and supper ??Here. I'm sitting now at 9:10 alone by an open grate fire with a big knot too large for the fire place. I'm trying to turn it so it would burn better. I took hold of a live part and burnt the middle finger of my right hand- but you see I can still hold a pen.

My passage home is engaged. I leave Shanghai May 26th on the "Shidzuoka Maru" due Seattle May 26. Since I wrote Stanley Jan 30th I received a letter from Gould in which there was a sentence that hinted that Stanley and Myra might [be] planning to be married about Easter. If they are so planning ?? Hope they will not under any circumstances let my letter ?? them to delay the wedding for me. I should feel very [badly] to be in any way the cause of influencing them to put ?? later than they had planned. I shall try to put in ?? a schedule of my steamer. You must not address any letters ?? at Foochow after receiving this. Letters addressed to me at Shanghai Care Mr. Edward Evans, can be mailed up to April ?? May God keep us all to see each other in May.

With ?? see

Will.

36 Center St.
Putnam, Conn.
Feb. 17", '16.

My dear, dear, darling Daughter [probably Phebe],

You have been left an unpardonable long time without a letter and now I am going to write you a long one (for me).

I do hope you are back to your normal health again after that day in bed of sick eyeache. That was not only because of eyestrain but because you were anxious about your exams. It seems as tho they do not mark very high or you would surely have gotten more A-'s and B+'s than you did. I should hardly expect you to get A's or A+'s. But I guess you'll come out in that highest 1/10 just the same. Did anyone get sent home because of falling too low?

I wonder if you have as much snow as we have here, or more. The paper gives the official measurement as 17 inches and I guess it is about that here but it is well trodden down in roads and shoveled from side walks so we do not notice it as being so deep. Sleighing is good now and people are making good use of it. The schools are having rides some, - Marjorie's class went this afternoon with Miss Hall as a chaperone. They started about 3 o'clock and returned at 5:30. It was Marjorie's only celebration of her birthday. The two little girls are going to have a party later. I tried the sleighing yesterday taking Mar, Kath and Edith Pease with me. When we turned to the Woodstock road on Elm St. in front of C. Russell's house our sleigh runner got caught in the trolley track and we tipped over and all spilled out right in the street the sleigh broke, the horse turned around and ran for home and we picked ourselves up unhurt but somewhat scared. Two men caught the horse and picked up the robes and examined the sleigh and tho't I could get back to Elbert's office with it if the children walked; so ended our first sleigh-ride. Now Marjorie will not get into the sleigh; says she does not want to be tipped over again.

I sent your brown waist last week; we could not seem to get it done before. Your green stripe one is fixed as much as Miss Jordan thought she could fix it. If I had time, I could fix it better I am sure but do not dare attempt it with so little time. I think you can wear these a month more but it is a pity you did not have them in Jan and Feb.- Yes, we are sending your letters to Papa. I sent one today and am going to send the rest during the next two weeks. You see I found the letter I had started and have finished it and here it is. I think your green striped waist looks as well on your worn open at the neck as it does worn high closed collar. I am very glad you went to Ethel's. It was just the right thing to do I tho't. I made that plain in my answer to your first inquiry before vacation. You did not write of Gladys or Roy. Lovingly, Mother

Dear Ones at Home.

Edith Louise's [Edith Louise Beard, b. Feb. 16, 1911 to Bennett Nichols Beard, brother of Mary, Flora and Willard] birthday - and father's both went by with this last week. I hope each enjoyed them and will live to enjoy many others. Today is a cold gray day thus far but we are having such queer changes that it may turn out beautifully before night. Yesterday morning we had a heavy snow squall in the morning, then a taste of sunshine, delightfully warm, then some cold raw wind and a final clear in the late afternoon. It is almost as good as New England weather.

I have made quite a study of weather this week because I have been taking a week's rest in bed. On Saturday last Flora and I went to Mrs. Corbett's for the evening. I had some indigestion before starting but a sip of soda water seemed to settle it. We had chocolate, and cookies to eat and I partook sparingly because of my early ill feeling. Almost 10.30 I withdrew hastily and then came home. As I got thoroughly empty before morning I stayed in bed for breakfast and indulged in a dose of Castor Oil as a curative. Well my stomach didn't seem to like anything and kept sending back everything I sent down. Dr. Love has fixed me now though so I shall be all right. Mr. Johnson put up this sign downstairs "Miss Beard is doing her part resting; Dr. Love is doing his part with pills; You do yours, keeping quiet."

The girls were most useful in bringing things up to me, for it is a long way to the fourth floor of a building if one person has to do the trotting. When five or six divide the duties they are not very arduous for any one. My most advanced class of four took my other classes and helped in explaining and correcting papers so the week was not entirely lost for them. I heard the Virgil two days because there are only girls in the class. The English took charge of itself but the Geometry just had to go. I tell the Doctor that I do not see as I am needed except for the Geometry and Virgil!!

Flora finally closed school on Friday night instead of Saturday because of a lot of reasons. My chief reason for advocating it was that I was afraid she would get tired of trying to carry the strain of the whole school and wait on me too. She got two good nights sleep as soon as the children were off and is looking more rested. Since Washington's Birthday is Tuesday we do not reopen until Wednesday. It is almost as good as a vacation.

Last Sunday brought two home letters, one from Mother and one from Ruth. Another letter came from Ruth in the middle of the week. It was good to hear that Mother was better of her rheumatism, Elizabeth of her bronchitis, father of his bruises and that Ruth had no special ailment of which to be better just then.

Several weeks ago our children sent a challenge to the adult members of the compound to play them in Volley Ball. Since then the practice has been most interesting. I used to play every afternoon. On Wednesday they had the first match game. They have two more on the next two Wednesdays. They play three games and the team that wins two out of three, gains the point. It was one noisy, enthusiastic game on Wednesday. The children won the two games and are quite jubilant but not over confident because they had to play all three games and the opposing team ran up quite a score each time.

Ruth we are thinking about your dress but have not decided whether to get it here or in Foochow. The project is entirely feasible and I am sure you will like the dress because the silks here are so soft and pretty. They have good wearing qualities too so it will be practical.

Yesterday I received a cute valentine from Mrs. Burgess. It is a paper doll. When I opened it, it had a long neck, was looking down coyly and hiding both hands behind its back. The arms pull out and shorten the neck and make her look straight at me. She has been a source of much amusement to all of my visitors, especially the little girls.

I have on my calendar a note reminding me that neither you nor I have mentioned the payment of my Life Insurance last November. It will be almost time for the payment on the other Policy in April before you get this.

I plan to try another draft for you next time I get to Peking because my last one would not quite meet my indebtedness without these two items.

The pencils etc. will be almost worth keeping- as souvenirs of much travel when they do arrive. That tale reads like a piece of fiction not like reality.

The church bell has just rung. Tomorrow I too shall have to obey it's summons but since it is Sunday and there are two vacation days ahead, I am being lazy one more day.

There comes Sing Tie with my lunch. I wonder what it is? 3.00 P.M. It was good, a tomatoe bisque (very little tomatoe) toast, chuki[?] jelly, tea- and later a waffle. I chewed it well father, and it tasted all the better for the chewing.

I am afraid once more you have been two weeks without a letter unless Flora was able to get hers off late in the week.

I almost forgot St. Valentine's Day. The children returned on the evening train. At 5.00 Flora called them in to dress, and at 5.30 they had their little party. We had drawn names the week before so it to be sure that each one received at least one valentine.

They guessed who made them and played games until 6.15 which is the dinner hour. They sounded as though they were having a good time. That evening Mrs. Corbett had a valentine party. Flora brought me a little white heart with white feathers pasted on it as a souvenir. It came off a St. Valentine's tree I believe.

Well, this has developed into a long letter without saying much.

With best love to you all

From

Mary.

Diong Loh- Foochow, China
Feb. 20-1916

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

Your good, long interesting letter telling all about your Christmas vacation came by the last mail. I am very glad you had this unexpected privilege of going home for this visit. It was all the more pleasure because it was a surprise and I am glad that you see the value of having friends who can give you not only such pleasures as this visit but such advantages as a College course. I am more and more interested to read your estimates of Oberlin as a College-. I always knew its ideals and agreed with them. Its products also are proof of its good work, - not only in training ministers and missionaries but also business men and scientists and discerners. We have just heard of the $100,000 recently given for the new Seminary, and of the decision to discontinue the Academy. I should much enjoy meeting Mr. Spence but there will be some one to take his place, if not this June, by next fall. I suppose it is almost a selfish gratification to me to read your conclusions on the relative merits of first and second churches of Oberlin. They are my own conclusions, and I judge the churches are going on much the same lines as twenty five years ago. The first church to me, stood for solidarity, - the true, lasting inner life, that would stand all tests and all changes of temperament or of fashion. The second church has more of fashion and there was more about it to draw those who could be drawn by attractive externalities.

Your characterization of Mrs. Ireland was interesting - shall I say amusing. But, dear, you need to be a little careful about deciding on the mental workings of people from their words or even actions. Be with a person a good long time before judging them too decidedly. It will save you much mental strength and sometimes will keep you from embarrassment. All of us are at times misjudged and accused of thoughts and motives that we are not in the least to blame for, and of course at times given credit for good thoughts and motives that we were not to "blame" for either.

My passage is booked on the N.Y.K.S.S. "Shidzuoka Maru", Shanghai May 1. I will enclose a schedule of the itinerary. If Uncle Stanley is married in April, I shall plan to get to Oberlin about June 10th. This will bring me to the Baccalaureate sermon and all the commencement exercises. Can you engage a room for mama and me in Tank Cottage, for the days we plan to be there? If Uncle Stanley waits till June to be married I shall go to N.Y. as soon as possible. Mama will come down to the wedding, and we will come right on to Oberlin as soon as the wedding is over. I have to exert myself not to act like a 17 year old who has just bought her ticket from Oberlin to go home for the Christmas holidays.

Mr. Lathrop of Shelton sent me a very helpful calendar of great thoughts. I turned it to a new week this morning and the words that met me were "Capacity never lacks opportunity. It cannot remain undiscovered." This helps me not to feel sore because I think I am not given full value for my ability or because I think others do not hold me in high enough esteem.

God keep you in health and happiness and usefulness- and grant you a happy and profitable semester.

Lovingly your father Willard L. Beard

[Feb. 22, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

This is Valentine's Day and I am writing this in between times. Mary has spent the day in bed- some indigestion, - but feels much better tonight, so we hope she will be up again to-morrow. It is a little like grippe but without the cold. Several others have had a like attack. A day in bed usually fixes the trouble.

The last few days have been bringing us lots of letters from home- and Will. All seem to have good news in them, for which I am thankful. - A week later. - Mary spent nearly the whole week in bed but is downstairs again. She is busy finishing up her paper which is to be read before the Friday Club in Peking next Friday P.M. We have had two holidays- Saturday because of Mary's illness and to-day because of its being Feb. 22nd. Mr. Johnson and I have been at work on the library books and have two-thirds of them in the Accession Book. We have gotten the fiction all together and the others placed in groups so that I know pretty well what we now have on hand. We need the latest books now, especially on science and art.

To-day the package of pencils came- even to the beans. Everything was in good order but we couldn't find the book cover. My nightgown is a beauty and just what I am glad to get. Up in Mongolia we shall want non-ironable clothes, though I doubt if this one goes.

Miss Leavens has just had the sad news of her mother's death and of her father's and sister's illnesses. The Board at Boston has cabled for her to go home immediately so she is to leave in about three weeks. She has been ill herself now for ever since before Christmas, so it seems as if calamities had poured in upon her. Her home is in Norwich, Conn., and I hope you may see her sometime. She is planning for an indefinite stay at home. There is no one to take her work here, and I don't know what arrangements will be made.

I am soaking out some of Phebe's pumpkin and we expect to have pumpkin pie to-morrow noon. It is sort of a guess as to the quantity to use.

To-day we have one of the little girls sick in bed isolated from the others because we fear tonsillitis. Scarlet fever is raging in the country, but the doctor hopes this is not anything more than tonsillitis. So far there has been no alarming illnesses among the children and I hope we may get through the year without any. In the physical examinations Dr. Love discovered a case of tuberculosis in its first stages. Fortunately his home is right here so that we do not have the responsibility of the case. I have gotten his parents to consent to the dropping of our study so that he may have more time for out of doors. The doctor hopes to conquer the trouble by changing his diet. He has been humored in his dislikes and has not had enough of the carbohydrates in his food. Now he must eat meat, eggs, etc., or there will be little chance of his getting well. I am anxious to get the other physical examinations done for there are one or two cases which puzzle me and I wish to know if there is any physical reason for their peculiar state of mind.

Yours lovingly-
Flora Beard.

Shelton, Conn.
Mar. 3, 1916.

Dear Phebe and Stanley,-

Enclosed are some letters from China which may be of vital interest to Stanley. Will has written Stanley but I thought he might like to re-read the news.

I kept them a little longer than I planned for I wanted to read them again in preparing for a meeting this afternoon.

We are all well as usual. To-morrow Mother and I are invited down to Miss Clark's recit. in Hotel Stratfield and will hear Anna read. We are to dress up in our best "bib and tucker."

Mother and I went to New Haven to hear Dean Brown on Wednesday. Mrs. Palmer also went and we had a very pleasant day.

Yesterday was King's Daughter's so we are on the go every day this week.

Edith is really getting better now they say. When we came out from N.H. the other night Daniel appeared to help me go after the horse up at Allen's stable.

Lots of love to you from all and from

Ruth

[This letter dated March 5, 1916 was written from Tungchou, China by Flora to the folks at home. It is still cold in Tungchou and there is Gobi dust on the ice pond so no one cares to skate. Dr. Arthur Smith (survivor of the Boxer Rebellion) gave a talk to the students on George Washington's life. One of the teachers, Miss Leavens has been called back to the U.S. to take care of her family. They have just had a Gobi dust storm and Flora says she will include some of the dust with the letter. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[March 5, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

This is nearly the end of winter, and the cold still hangs on. Generally the ice is all out of the pond by the first of March, but it is [not] strong enough for skating yet, if the boys chose to go. There is so much dust on it that they do not care to skate and then the edges are unsafe.

Mary is all O.K. again. She read her paper before the Friday Club last week, and we are going to give a tea and ask the compound people in to hear it some afternoon, here, since no one has heard it in Tungchou.

Did I write you about Dr. Arthur H. Smith [survivor of the siege of Peking during the Boxer Rebellion in the summer of 1900] giving us a fine talk on George Washington's life, - to help us celebrate the patriotic birthdays in February? The children are certainly fortunate to have him interested in them.

We are all feeling very sorry to lose Miss Leavens, who is to go home now in three or four weeks. She has been an invalid from nervous exhaustion ever since before Christmas. Now she has had cablegrams from the Board telling her to go home as soon as possible to care for her father, since her mother has just died and a sister is in a sanitarium for a year to see if she can recover her health. Mrs. Corbett and Miss Love are disposing of her household effects and packing her trunks and boxes. It keeps them pretty busy.

Fri. P.M. - This letter ought to have been off days ago but some way the multitudinous details of each day's duties have taken all inspiration for letter writing out of my mind. To-day we are having a Gobi Desert dust storm. I am enclosing some of the dust that I took off the inside part of my window sill. It fell so gently that it was in a little drift like yellow snow all over the window sill. All out of doors was covered with a coat of this yellow dust. About nine o'clock a high wind came up and the air has been full of this dust all day- and is yet at 8:30 P.M. It is strange, but these storms seem to clear the atmosphere just as a thunder storm does in summer. Wouldn't you call it being dry cleaned?

We are very busy planning for our garden, the day of closing, getting out our prospectus for next year, and hunting for a matron. All of these are things that take time, patience and thought.

Some of the details of to-day have been to send eight pounds of butter to Mrs. Galt and seven to Mrs. Frame- and of course the coolie got the orders mixed, which will have to be straightened out to-morrow. -Again interrupted, so will not finish out the "details" as they might be wearying, besides this letter is late already.

With love,

Flora Beard.

She tells about one of their student's toothaches and refers to different epidemics suffered in the U.S. and China. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]*

March 5- [1916]

Dear Ones at Home,

Just guess what I have to do in half an hour from now! I have to take charge of the church service. In an unguarded moment, some months ago, I told Mr. Beers that I would take a service in March. Behold he does not forget it and I must fulfill my promise. Two of the matrons in the compound do it quite frequently but I feel awfully queer before entering on the ordeal. I am going to read a little article I have on "What is Worth While."

Well I went to Peking on Feb 25, and read my paper on Harriet Beecher Stowe. Mrs. Stelle read selections from "Uncle Tom's Cabin" and "The Minister's Wrong[?]" for me so the whole thing was nearly an hour long. The ladies all said they enjoyed it very much and Mrs. Goodrich, whose husband was a student at Andover under Prof. Stone, at once wanted to borrow the paper to read to Goodrich's. Now I have to read it again to the people here sometime. Mr. Beers wants me to read it to the Missionary Association and I at first said I would. After I had consented Flora was so scornful of the people enjoying it that I have withdrawn my consent without giving any reason. I shall however read it at an afternoon tea for the ladies as they whole heartedly requested it.

Last time I wrote I had been ill. I started school that Tuesday and have been a regular attendant since then. I tried to help the children get what we missed during that week and I feel that my classes are very nearly where they would be had I never been out at all.

This week I have played Volley Ball with the children two afternoons, walked with Mrs. Frame one afternoon, helped the girls with their bloomers one day, played Shadow Tag etc. as you see my activities are up to the usual mark. We had a sand storm of a mild sort on Thursday night. It is the first this year. Just a year ago we had three in rapid succession, February 27, March 4, and March 7. The middle one was the worst.

This week has brought no home mail of any sort. I look for letters on every train but evidently there is no steamer.

We have a guest in the home today, little Margaret McCann. She will probably be a pupil next year. She would like to be here this year but she was very ill two years ago and her mother felt that she needed one more year at home. Mr. McCann is staying at the Galt home. I was over for dinner with Mrs. Galt last evening. Miss Wicke is also a guest. And we had a very pleasant evening after dinner.

March 7. Well I got through the Sunday service all right and am glad it is over. Two or three spoke a word of appreciation. One of our little girls gave me a hint in her ingenious remark, "I didn't listen all the time for your voice was too monotonous." I evidently need to strew my arms around and shout occasionally to keep her attention.

March 8. Pauline had an awful tooth ache last week. It swelled and started to come out on the outside so I finally took her to the doctor to have her gum painted with iodine. Now the swelling is all gone and we are waiting for the doctor to return home to pull the tooth. I wonder how our physicians at home could take to being dentist, physician, surgeon, teacher all in one! Dr. Love has all that to do and some of his patients are widely scattered; for instance he had a telegram to come to Tientsin this morning. He left here at 7.30 and will reach Tientsin about 12.00. The Rockefeller College has annexed all of the A.B.C.F.M. doctors in Peking so Dr. Love has to care for the health of that station as well as look after us here and run the hospital here and teach three afternoons a week at the Medical College.

School is just dismissed and I have pledged myself to myself to spend the time until 4.15 (from 3.30) getting tomorrow's work done. If I do that I can easily finish up in the evening after reading to the children and putting them to bed.

I hope our next letter will bring news of complete restoration to health on the part of you all. No rheumatism, bronchitis, lame hands, colds, etc! What an awful epidemic the United State has suffered from this winter! Letters from Connecticut, Illinois, Colorado, Michigan all contain the same note. Just now the Chinese around us are suffering from an epidemic of scarlet fever and diphtheria. One Chinese doctor said he had seen forty children die and his practice was not exceptionally large. We are on the look out for sore throats, headaches or cold these days, I tell you!

The curio man or "silk man" was around last week and I invested in another picture, some squares and bits of embroidery. I just cannot resist if the men come to any reasonable price and I always feel that it is not money wasted as I could easily get it back or more when I get to America. I got a beautiful black satin coat, exquisitely embroidered, thinking to send it to Mrs. Mason, but I can not bear to part with it. The designs are Mohammedan and all done in what is called the Peking stitch. I never saw anything like it before.

Last week Isabel brought me the first hot home lilacs of the season. I have worn them one sprig at a time and shall wear the last tonight. This week Mrs. Fenn sent Flora and me a bunch of sweet notets[?]. They scent the whole living room. I pull out one to wear occasionally for I love to wear flowers.

I must close or I will not get time for Volley Ball.

With lots of love

Mary.

P.S. We are waiting to hear what day Myra and Stanley decide on. Is it to be Easter? If I had an air ship I should come. Nothing could hold me back.

Mary

Tungchou, Mar. 12, 1916.

Dear folks at home:-

It is a brilliant, windy, March day with a promise of spring in both sunshine and wind. Yesterday we awoke in a typical New England spring snow storm- with snow three inches deep on the level and coming down thick and fast- and quiet. It was more snow than we have seen at any time here in North China. By noon most of it was gone and at 3.30 P.M. there wasn't enough left to make a good snow ball. It is surprising how this dry climate can evaporate every drop of moisture available. To-day there is no snow in sight-excepting when the sun has not been able to reach it. Moreover, there is no mud. Just think of having the frost leave the ground without a bit of mud! It is wonderful how the maru spring sunshine makes everything start into growth even though there is no rain. We have very little rain excepting in the rainy season which there is during the latter part of June and the month of July. Then the country gets its fill of water, floods, and mud. Our cistern was pretty well filled last summer and the water lasted until into February. We used it only for baths, but there are twenty of us to be bathed each week. Now the coolie has to bring all the water we use from the artesian well. It keeps our path free from grass- with his frequent trips.

There are some things you would be interested in- in the line of "eats." The Chinese make a most tasty salad from small radish sprouts. I should think they might be about a week old. They have only the two baby leaves. They are served much as we use water cress and taste about like it- only milder. I should think they would make a delicious sandwich filling. I wish you would just try it - when you wish to thin your radishes. I am going to send home some seeds of the Chinese cabbage and onions. Both are so much sweeter than ours that I am sure you will be interested to try them. The Chinese cabbage grows tall and slim instead of round like a ball and the onions do not grow into a bulb but are like our onions in their early stage- only that the stalk is much larger and you can use perhaps six inches up. They bleach like celery, by being hilled up. The cabbages grow as they do at home.

I wish you could see a bit of one of our window gardens. It is a huge flat round turnip tied up by the tail. All around the base of the tail has been cut a ditch as deep as possible (and not cut down to the underskin) and about 1 ½ in. wide. That was filled with water and then hung in the sunshine. The tops began to grow and curl up the sides of the turnip. In the ditch we put beans, wheat, and garlic. They are all growing and blossoming there together- even the turnip- and is quite a pretty sight. We have had peach blossoms for some time from twigs the girls got for us, and by another week, our lilacs will be out.

Dr. Arthur Smith is going down to Shanghai this week and I am sending by him my new watch to be left at Mrs. Lacy's until Will comes up on his way home. There has always been a little catch in it when I had to turn it for setting it which has not been many times, but now it refuses to go. I took it to the most reliable jeweler here to see what was the matter and he says one wheel is out of order. I do not want to put so good a watch into the hands of any one here-for I cannot find that there is any watch fixer here who can be recommended. I shall be interested to know if it has not been tampered with, as it is. All the workmen here are Chinese in all the shops- even the foreign ones. If Will will take it home and have Taylor and Gregory fix it, and bring it back with him to Shanghai, I can get it up from there by some of the Peking people. It may be that some of the Peking people will be coming out on the same steamer as he.

We are busy with plans for next year- trying to adapt ourselves to the resources of Tungchou and our slim finances. We shall have a third teacher, but whom we can find is yet a question. We shall have to use one of the houses and which one is another question. There are fifteen possible extra students enquiring about coming, five of there from our family.

I had a long letter from Christine Benbrook Blakeslee full of good cheer and happiness about herself. She said her father and mother are living about two blocks from herself. She likes Florida so well that she wants to stay on as long as possible. She is doing her own housekeeping in their five room cottage. She wrote that Mr. Foster had been very seriously ill jaundice, grip, pleurisy, and stomach trouble. Had a trained nurse for several weeks and though better was still running a temperature. Perhaps you know all this.

Your letter came yesterday telling of Aunt Julia's going. [Probably Julia Ann Wheeler Beard, wife of Oliver Gould's Beard's brother, Theodore Edward Beard. She was born July 23, 1833.] It will be rather a cheerless home for those two girls now [probably their daughters, Lavinia Maria and Anna Smedley Beard]. I wonder what they will do. It is such a lonely spot for them to stay in. I wish they would go somewhere else to live- a little nearer other people.

An Oberlin college paper came this A.M. with Phebe K's prize theme in it and it is fully worthy of the "Freshman prize." It has always seemed to me that she has a gift of description beyond the ordinary. You perhaps have had the opportunity to read it. Mrs. Burgess sent us the copy.

Lovingly- Flora B.

Foochow, China.

March 12th 1916.

Dear Ruth:-

Your letters have come with frequency both thru Peking and direct to me and from here they go on to Peking. But I shall not get many more. Some time ago I wrote home knowing I should receive no reply before starting for home. I do not know yet what my plans will be after reaching Seattle. I shall come direct to New York or go to Oberlin according as Stanley and Myra are married in June or before. It adds interest to the trip to have this element of a possible choice in it. I am anticipating the northern route as I have been over the other routes once and twice.

The girls forwarded a card from you on which you ask for some work that needs $2.00 or $3.00. All my money this year is going into help to boys who could not study if I did not help them a little. There are two or three boys that I am helping about $3.50 gold each this term. They could almost make it, but lacked just this little. This is one use for the money. One of the boys is preparing for the nurses course in the Hospital. He plans to enter in the Fall. Another use for the money is to buy picture cards for the Sunday School on Sang Gaing, where your day school is. Last year I bought 50 sets for them, paying about $3.50 gold for the year. The cards are printed in England- only the pictures, with the back blank. Here the scripture and lesson is printed in Chinese on the backs. I was astounded the other day when the teacher came in to learn that he has 72 pupils this year. Last year I paid an assistant for him during the last half of the year. This year I am looking for one but have not yet found one.

During the past ten days the Y.M.C.A. Secretaries have been "opening" their large new building. A week ago yesterday they invited the officials and gentry and some of the big business men. About one hundred and fifty came. A Christian dedicatory service with greetings from the U.S.= from the National Y.M.C.A. in China, from Pres. Yuan Shi Kai and many other places and groups were read. The governor general and Salt Commissioner- whom I baptized last June were there. The Salt Commissioner outranked the other officials that day for he was Pres. Yuan's specially commissioned representative. Prayer was offered by David Yu- a Chinese Y.M.C.A. Secretary in Mandarin so all those present could hear and understand. I pronounced the benediction. All the officials have strictest attention to all the service which lasted from 3:30 to 5:00 p.m. They then sat on in the same room until 6 p.m. and listened to a most enlightening lecture on education in six countries- Ger., Eng, Fr., U.S., Jap., China. The ribbons used to express illiteracy in the other countries were from 6 inches to two feet long. That used to show China's illiteracy was nearly forty feet long. This lecture given by a Chinese to a Chinese audience was powerful in its application.

College is running full blast again. More old students are back than every before, for the first time in the history of the College the fifth year class has had to be divided. Last week I turned away seven students for lack of room.

I have written the girls to know whether I shall buy the dress for you or whether they will do it. They know what can be done in both places- Peking and Foochow.

Your letters are most interesting and I have in mind many of the changes I shall see when I get home- May God bless and keep you all- us all for a reunion next Summer that will be both pleasant and profitable - With love to all

Will.

Mar. 15th. [Probably 1916]

Dear Phebe [daughter],

I began a letter to you days ago and thought to finish it this morning but cannot find it so must scratch off a hasty note to go with these checks. I hope you have not gone in debt because of my not sending them but I send them both now for you to cash and you may send me $5. in a letter when convenient.

Yes we received the $20. you sent all right but don't ever risk so much again at one time. Not over $5. should be sent in a letter at one time.

Have you had any more headaches or eye-aches since your osteopathic treatment? I do hope she found the cause and has successfully removed it. Are you perfectly well now? Have you suffered for want of your blankets? Shall I have them sent and store them there for next winter?

I suppose you have had as much snow as we have yesterday and previously. I never saw a winter with so much snow I think. We have had so many storms. One fall does not get trodden down to good sliding before another comes so the children have hardly touched their sled for two or three weeks. And no skating at all.- You know Deacon's store sold out their goods and moved to Danielson; now Champean has moved into Deacon's store and will open next week. Did you know Mr. Wright died two weeks ago, and Eugene King father of the nurse who took care of Dorothy at Pleasure Beach died a week ago? He was thought to have appendicitis and when they operated found a cancer and the operation hastened his death. Mrs. Backus of So. Manchester your former principal's wife died last week. Appendicitis followed by grip, pneumonia, and blood poisoning from the kidneys was the cause of death. She was in the hospital three of four weeks and a report gained circulation here that she had died a week before it occurred.- Uncle Elbert went to his wood-lot which he is cutting off Tuesday last in a sleigh and Emma and I went with him to May's. For Mother

Dear Mother,

I write this separately because you may not want to read it aloud as I know is the custom with our letters. My monthly period has been most irregular this fall, running over from four to twelve days. When my stomach gave out on Saturday night it was already five days past the day. Doctor Love tried to settle my stomach and still it refused one or two meals each day- and still I was having to get up several times in the night as well as by day. On Tuesday he prescribed mustard footbaths and gave me some pills. The pills made me sicker yet and nothing happened. On Wednesday I took a sitz bath and did not get once feeling scalded for a long time. It just about used me up but it did the business or, finished it up, at least. Then Doctor made me stay in bed two days because of my new troubles. Yesterday I sat up and read nearly all day. (I have read all I wanted to in bed all the time. Doctor only demanded quiet and to keep off my feet.) Today I am all dressed. Doctor has discharged me as a patient with the injunction "to go slow." That last is Doctor's "by word" and one he intends to have obeyed. I remember a scolding I got last fall for going to church one Sunday when he did not intend me too!!

I am all right now, only I need a little more strength to run up and down stairs with. I will look out that this doesn't happen again if anything I can do will prevent it.

Lots of love

Mary.

[March 19, 1916]

Dear Ones at Home,

Last week brought us a goodly number of foreign letters, including one from home. It was good to get news but the news was sad because it contained word of Aunt Julia's death and of Mrs. Peck's serious illness. The Sentinels contained news of gripe and pneumonia in alarming numbers. I guess China is as healthy a place as the United States after all. One thing we all know of everybody's illnesses here for we are few and far from home; both conditions tend to make us intensely interested in each other.

This was a gala week for us because we, the N.C.A.S., gave a party. We entertained the "Pastime Club" of Tungchow on Friday evening. The children were divided into committees for entertainment, decoration and refreshments. I was supposed to and the first but all I did was make sure that the games were suitable and not too many for the time allotted. Mr. Johnson took the decoration committee in charge and worked as hard as any of them. Flora helped the refreshment end. Everyone came except Dr. Smith who had a severe cold and Mr. Frame who had to go to Pei Tai Ho. The fifth grade children sat up until 8.30 then slipped out, those below that went to bed before the guests arrived and all older stayed up until the end. The room was very pretty. The hot water pipes were wound with narrow strips of green paper and finished at the top with bows. There were green bows in the corner of the pictures. Little potatoe dolls dressed in green paper hung from various convenient spots. Potatoes lay suggestively in the flower pots. Over the Chinese what-not were an American flag and an Irish flag. For refreshments we had pistachio ice cream, orange ice, cookies cut in the shape of shamrocks, macaroons, and cake with each piece decorated with a tiny green shamrock of icing.

On Thursday afternoon Miss Leavens asked Flora and me to come over to call. It was the first time either of us had seen her since before we went to Shunte Fu at Christmas time. She looked thin but better than I expected. She left on the early train on Friday, and already has telegraphed that she reached Hankow safely. Her brother meets her there and goes to Shanghai to see her off.

I am enclosing Dr. Smith's [Arthur H. Smith] acknowledgement of the Christmas gift Flora and I sent him. It is a characteristic note. I am getting very fond of the man who is always ready with a joke. He and his wife are a strange couple. She has been off doing country touring for some location far south since November. She returns now sometime soon and he is just about to start for Shanghai for several weeks. Once in a great while they are here together for a short while. She is not quite right in her mind part of the time but not much more than queer and does excellent work when off touring by herself.

We have decided to take the Shantung trip to Confucius grave during Easter vacation. What is left of us will get back here to open school on Monday April the tenth. Flora wants to stop and see everyone along the way so we will not spend two nights in the same place all the week. It is good business to visit all the people because they have prospective pupils for the school.

Tomorrow we have breakfast early. I am to take Pauline to the dentist to have her tooth filled if he thinks best. Dr. Love advises it because she is so young and needs the tooth for a few years yet before its successor is due.

Here is love for you all and hopes that you may escape the epidemic [Polio epidemic of 1916] and that God will keep you safe.

With much love

Mary.

Dear Father:-

I have just had to put on spectacles and therefore I have a kind of new sense of the value of a man's eyes, so I am using the machine for the sake of your eyes. I like to see a typewritten letter come from Ruth for it usually means a good long one. She almost always writes more when she uses the machine. A good long letter came from her last night.

The particular business of this letter is to say that if it is so desired I can get a new prince albert coat when I reach home. Ellen in her last letter wrote of your desire to this effect. My coat is only four years old. I bought it in the fall of 1911 or spring of 1912. Allis and Redshaw got it for me. The mark is as follows:-

A. Shurman & Co. Boston

Mr. _____

Date C9030 I am not sure of the last figure

No. 39

I have changed only in my girth. I usually wear the coat now without buttoning it. I suppose it ought to be about 1 ½ inches larger in the place where it girdles the dinner basket. It is possible some are made a little longer than this now.

I wonder if Elizabeth and Ruth will accept my thanks in this letter for the Literary Digest. It seems as if I had said Thank You once this year but possibly my memory is so good that I am thinking of last year so I will make sure.

Did I write that I was to have the company of a young lady home? Well Sunday a telegram came saying her future husband was coming out as a missionary and coming right off. So I shall have to go alone. The steamer is full however. We are all very glad for we can keep her and gain another man for the work. It is as most amusing how many letters come to me from young ladies asking if I know of any one going home and if such ones would be willing to have company on the boat, and also asking if I know of any rooms and board on Kuliang. I have just written "NO" to two such, this early.

I suppose you are reading great headlines about the Rebellion in the southwest of China and wondering about us in Foochow, so far we hear only reports of the trouble. Foochow never was quieter than it is now. The Governor is as progressive as ever. He has just commenced to make over the main street of the city and right in the middle of the city. He is also dredging for a bund. This is river front street. Ellen will not recognize the Foochow she left seven years ago.

I was a little anxious during last vacation lest we should not have our full quota of students this term. There were so many influences at work that were new. But I have just told the tenth boy that there was no room for him. We have in the two school here in the city 375 boys.

A large Sunday School Conference is now in session here with some 75 delegates. They are living together in the same place and taking good stiff courses in Pedagogy and other subjects. The work is not merely sitting and listening to addresses, it is taking notes on lectures and then taking an examination. I have given two lectures and one address.

I hope our plans to see each other in June are in accord with God's plan for us, and that He will prosper those plans and make the reunion profitable for us all.

With love to all,

Will.

The paper telling of Fred Bennett's marriage got here before the letter telling that it so upset the girls, Elizabeth and Ruth that they forgot or rather did not have courage to ask him about it. The same paper also told me of Aunt Julia's death and of the death of Mr. Higgins.

[The following is handwritten.]

I am in a delightful state of expectancy as to the date of the wedding. I may have to wait till I reach Seattle or some port between here and there to find out whether I am to go from Seattle straight to New York or whether I go first to Oberlin.

[March 26, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

We had a good home mail this last week. It had been over a week since the last one. Will sent up some newspapers telling of Aunt Julia's death and Mr. Higgin's, also Fred Bennett's marriage. We are interested to hear more of the last. It seemed from the newspaper notice to be rather one sided.

These weeks go very rapidly and are full to the brim. Yesterday besides our regular work we had five guests at dinner- Dr. Wilder (Will's college chum) and Mrs. Larson with her three daughters (prospective scholars for our school). Dr. Wilder is quite a bird student and came down to give a talk (and a walk) to the children. I had intended to go also but Mrs. Larson's coming prevented. After getting the children off on the train for their week end at home, Mrs. Galt came in to take accounts with the cook. Then there was the last installment of clean clothes to be put away, a bath to take, and don my "very best" for a 7.30 P.M. dinner party at Mrs. Corbett's. We dress for dinner- the gentle men in their evening suits and the ladies in their dinner gowns- as in New York and it really lends quite a festive air to the occasion. We had a fine time. A newly engaged couple were the center of the attraction.

This is the last week of school before our spring vacation, and it is to be rather strenuous. We shall do the ordinary school work for there are no examinations at this time, but we have to get the children packed off home, finish plans for our own trip, and get the building cleaned and shut up. We start next Monday for Techow (pronounced (Deh jow) where we spend Monday night with the Stanley's and Tuckers of the A.B., going on to Tsinan (pronounced Chenan) to Mr. Johnson's home. We spend that night with his people and in company with ten others we start out the next day to climb TaiShan (the sacred mountain). We are taking our beds and bedding with us so that we may spend the night at the top. Won't that be romantic? We come down in time to make the trip out to a famous temple and the Tomb of Confucius. Then we go back to Tsinan and the next day on to Peking.

Please give Helen my congratulations. I know she is happy and I suppose no words can express Drs. happiness. I am glad to hear of Mrs. Peck's recovery.

I am going to write to Vinnie and Anna in a day or two.

With love to all-

Flora Beard.

Dear Mother:-

I am sending you a copy of my annual report in which you may find some things of interest. I wrote father last week to the effect that if it was considered best I could get a new Prince Albert when I reach home. My steamer is due in Seattle May 26th. This should give me time to reach Shelton in time to get a new coat. Of course I am in thus writing taking a lot of things for granted. I have not yet heard when the wedding is to be, and a lot of other details. I may have to wait until I reach Shanghai or even Seattle before I get this information. Time runs by very fast. The weeks come round before I am ready for them and it seems only a day or two ago that I turned the last leaf of the weekly Calendar.

A few weeks ago the Sentinel came to me with a long letter from me. The main item of interest was the news of the change in the Republic to a Monarchy. Saturday morning a telegram came to the Customs telling them to go back to the old nomenclature. So we are again reading The Republic of China Fifth Year. It looks very much as if Yuan Shi Kai had gotten cold feet. The provinces in the south west are not at all loyal to the monarchical idea. And within a few days it looks as if Hunan was causing the central government some anxiety.

Two years ago last summer a man named Hu tried to start a second revolution in Foochow. He did not succeed and he got away. Later he became a Japanese citizen. He was back in Foochow last week and called on the Governor. He proposed to him that Fukien at once declare her independence. The Governor told him that things were quiet in the province and he did not see the use in making the change. Think how humiliating it must be to the officials of this country to be obliged to receive such men who are no better than traitors.

Spring is here with its warm balmy days and bright sunshine. Until Friday we have had rain and cold weather since January. The farmers are preparing the rice fields and sowing the rice in the beds from which they will transplant. May God give us the pleasure and profit of soon seeing each soon. Lovingly Will

[This letter dated about April 2, 1916 was written from the Shantung, China area by Mary to the ones at home. Mary and Flora are on their way to see the Tai Shan mountain and Confucius' grave for a week long trip, then will return back to Tungchou. She describes travelling in a third class train car. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[About April 2, 1916]

Dear Ones at Home,

We are en route for Te Chan (De Joe) and Tsi Nan (Ge an). We spend tonight at Te Chan and go on on the afternoon train tomorrow to Tsi Nan. Mable Galt is with us but she stays at Te Chan all the week and joins us on the return trip unless she can find company to return sooner [Mable Galt is the girl who had so many operations on her nose]. We came up from Tung Chou this morning in a third class car which had no seats. Fortunately we are travelling with much baggage so provided seats for ourselves. I just wish you could see our baggage. We each have a folding cot, a rontan and a suitcase besides a canvas bag containing lunch boxes and thermos bottles. The rontan is a large canvas case, boxes at the corners and one side open through the middle. We have in them pads for our cots, blankets and other things we are likely to need for a night in a Chinese Inn. We will be with Mr. Johnson's people Tuesday night, then we start in early Wednesday morning and climb the mountain (Tai Yan) [Tai Shan] sacred to Confucius. We spend the night up there and descend Thursday morning. From there we go to Confucius grave and temple. Then back to Tsi Nan Friday morning after spending the night until 3.00 A.M. in a Chinese Inn. We see Tsi Nan Friday and leave early Saturday for home. Flora and I plan to stop off in Tientsin to shop Saturday P.M. and go up early Sunday morning. We would have to head to Tungchou Sunday anyway because we reach Peking too late for the evening train. There is a party of eight or ten coming down tomorrow to join us on the trip to the mountain and grave. It is going to be jolly for all eight.

I wish you could see our travelling companions and this car. Less than half of the people have seats; many are reclining on their rontans on the floor. One family have spread blankets and quilts on the floor, barricaded themselves with baggage, and take turns sitting or reclining in the enclosure. At every station there is a great clamor of the natives to buy food from the vendors. There are many kinds of eggs; goose eggs, hard boiled eggs, eggs cracked and boiled in tea. When food or eggs are bought the shells and skins are thrown on the few clear spots of the floor.

The dentist was ill so I had the whole morning to shop. Kieroff is selling out so I went and looked over his shoulder and made several purchases.

Saturday afternoon and part of Sunday were spent packing. On Sunday evening we went to supper with Mrs. Love. Doctor Love was away and we went to keep her company.

The day which is like a Memorial Day [for] the Chinese is approaching and on all sides we see the men out fixing up the graves of their ancestors. They heap them up and put blocks of mud on top like this.

There are one to four blocks on the graves.

This Shantung country is flat, flat, flat. I expect it will be flat for sometime to come as the map shows mountains farther south but not here.

The train is getting more gigly so I guess I had better close.

With lots of love

Mary.

My dear darling daughter [Phebe],

Let me first answer Mr. Beach's question which I fear I have not answered yet. Papa writes we are to sail for China about Aug. first; i.e. start back to C. at that time from here. He will reach home about the 3-6 of June. He will probably go straight to Shelton and not stop here or at Oberlin till after the wedding. I am so sorry that they could not wait till the 16 to 20th of June for the wedding so you could be there too! It is too bad for you to miss it but I don't see how we can help it. If we had only known, you would have preferred to come then rather than Christmas wouldn't you? We do enjoy your letters so much and only wish we were all as voluminous writers to keep you in touch with things at home as well as you do us with things that are your interests.

Now darling daughter, what made you blue and discouraged when you wrote one of your last letters? Was it that the work went so hard or that you are not well; or are you trying to do too much, or was it because we did not send you any letters from home. Do tell me. It made my head ache for you to think of you off there alone from the family so discouraged. I hope you are feeling better now. Do you feel that your osteopathic Dr. has really found the cause of your eye-aches and has she fully set the bone right and cured the trouble? Have you had any eye-aches since your treatment and did you have more than one treatment? How much did she charge you for the treatment. She should have given you the minister's discount as most Dr.'s do to minister's families.

Yesterday it is said we had 5 fires in town. The first was about 5:30 a.m. and burned the inside of Mr. W. S. Johnson's house over near the library. It caught from the heater and was quite as much injured by water as by fire. Partitions had to be chopped into to reach the fire so the house is spoiled inside as well as furniture. The second was Ballard and Clark's store at 6:45 a.m. also caught from stove. More damage done there by water than by fire. Mr. Ballard had been ill almost a week at home in bed and cannot go out now for three days.

You would not know outside that there had been a fire but Uncle Elbert says it was a sight inside from water damage. The third was said to be on Canal St. but don't know what. The fourth was a fire in the woods over by Howard Bradford's house. And when I was coming out of Daughter's Meeting [probably King's Daughters] the engine was coming home up Pomfret St. Some said one of the fires was in a cotton mill. But we'll get the facts from the papers. We heard none of the alarms and only one of the "all outs."

At Daughter's meeting yesterday we had a lecture on books by a North Attleboro Librarian, (Mass.) Very good. Miss Keith enjoyed it hugely. Among other things she said that Harriet Beecher Stowe's "Uncle Tom's Cabin" had been translated into more languages than any other book except the Bible. H.B. Stowe's remains lie in a hillside in Andover, Mass. almost forgotten but her greatest book will never be forgotten. Another thing she said was that "The Winning of Barbara Worth" by Harold Bell Wright had the largest first edition of any book ever printed, - any novel at least. The publishers decided to make 175,000 copies as the first edition but orders came in so fast that they decided to make the first editions 500,000 copies. This required two presses running day and night from June to Nov. and required 265 tons of paper. Had they all been shipped at one time it would have required 31 cars carrying 20,000 tons each. 40 people worked for the same amount of time= (day and night from June to Nov.) putting the gold lettering on the covers of the books. "And all this", said she, "from the one brain of one man."! Other points of interest in her lecture were:-

Daniel DeFoe gave the world the first novel of adventure: = "Robinson Crusoe."

Samuel Richardson gave world first novel of sentiment.

Jane Austen first gave the world home pictures i.e. intimate home life. Her home life pictures are very prominent in her works. She is one of the best humorists of today.

The lecturer said she wondered if we knew how many books were published in U.S. each year. Henry Van Dyke gave these figures 3 years ago. There are about 5000 different books published each year. And counting the whole edition of each different book about 5 millions of books are printed each year in the U.S. alone.

Thackeray knew all the dignitaries and crowned heads of his time.

Dicken's characters show all sorts of people. The psychology of the child was never known till Dicken's time. Earlier novels showed children, but they were manikins= (little men). One critic says of Dicken's works, that, there is not a page of all Dicken's writings that a mother need keep from her growing daughter.

She spoke of another book whose title I am not certain I have right but think I have - "The Man Who Was Thursday". She said this book contains the greatest picture of God that there is in literature. A remarkable book. Fiction, of course.

This closed the lecture very appropriately. But I recall one more thing she said which I will add. Margaret Deland is the greatest artist for telling a story without telling it. Helena Richie the character in the "Awakening of Helena Richie" has done more for social purity than any other character in Literature. "The Iron Woman" by same author, M. Deland, she spoke of as being the finest gem of American fiction. Must stop now and get dinner, for children. That reminds me to tell you what we had for refreshments yesterday. Pineapple salad, 2 whole slices, on lettuce with dressing, a little ball of cottage cheese on the plate beside it with chopped parsley pressed in on top, and nut bread sandwiches, very good. - Well, the dinner is served, Marjorie has been to Ina Aldrich's birthday party. I have been overtown to buy the present, Geraldine has taken her Cello lesson, we have all eaten supper, I have presided at the parent-teacher's meeting all have had a night's sleep, all have gotten up and dressed, some of us have breakfasted, most of us have gone to school and now here I am again to talk to you till the mail man comes. Telephone rings. Short session there, this time.

You asked if it would be proper for you to offer to help Mrs. Beach with sewing for the new baby. Yes, it will be perfectly proper if there is already an understanding that it is generally known that one = baby, is expected, or if she has told you or said anything to you which presupposes that you know it. Probably however, it is self-evident by this time. She probably would not feel selfish about the privilege of outfitting it all with her own hands, especially as it is the second one. That feeling sometimes does possess the mother heart with the first one. As to hemming napkins, as you suggested, I presume she like most women think machine sewing good enough for those and are not as fastidious as your own mama is about those things; in which case she would make short work of hemming 4 or 5 dozen. If however, you see any good opportunity to help, it will be very nice to do so provided you have time. But don't try to do it at the expense of your studies or health. Better buy a little dress or something for a gift, than do that. Is she going to stay at Tank Home for the birth?! She told me about the new comer when I saw her last fall in New Haven as a reason why she would not be ready to go back with us in August which she really wanted to do. I guess that was about as soon as they knew it for sure. She said I was the first one they had told. How do you like Mr. Beach?

Please remember me to them if they are still there and kiss the little girl for me. Also please give Mrs. Garland my very kindest regards and my sincere appreciation of her kind motherly care of you. Assure her I have not forgotten my obligation in correspondence to her and look for an opportunity soon.

What a mountain of work confronts me between now and Aug. 1"! Will you not want your white dress from the aunts made up for Commencement week? If so, send us the fashion sheet with the style marked which one you would like and we'll have it made up. How did your waist fit? Tell me frankly all the misfits about it and we will know then how to use Geraldine as a model for you. If you select a style for your embroidered dress send us also your waist and bust measure. We had your green strip gray flannel waist fixed but the dress maker declared she could not improve it as I wanted her to do altho I know I could have done it had I had time. Geraldine said she knew it would still be too large for you so she said she would wear it and we made up the brown one to send to you. I am sending another thin waist soon which we bought at Providence last week. Geraldine tho't she must have a suit and Dot a coat so we three went. Got a very pretty coat for Dot and Ger. selected a suit at last, - the very last of our time but so late we could not get it fitted so had to leave it and think we will probably go again before Easter. The little girls must have new white dresses. Have you got your new spring hat yet? Tell me what color sweater to get for you? If you see just exactly what suits you there you may get it. If their assortment is small or you want something not seen there I will get it here and send it. Have you been cold this winter without those blankets? Perhaps I had better get them in M. Ward's Spring sale and have them sent direct to Oberlin to be stored for the Summer. - We staid over night at Ella's and went to a Chinese restaurant next noon for lunch. Geraldine and I each bought a new waist. I got Gould's picture of "Lions" framed which Papa sent him from Japan; bought Marj. and Kath. each a school dress; and some "soy" and Chinese candy for our Chinese feast next week to Ger. and Gould's S.S. class. My second cousin, Sumner Kinney [Sumner Parker Kinney, born July 13, 1880], died last week in Albany. Uncle Milton [Milton Horace Kinney, born July 9, 1837] is reported seriously ill. Did we tell you Mr. Packard had left and Mr. Penny had taken his place?

There is to be a Shakespeare night in the High school Apr. 23" and Geraldine has taken an essay to write which she took at my urging which nearly floors her. But I tho't it would help her so much in her College English essay writing and she would have the honor thrown in. - I tho't the other day it would be nice if you could have your violin out there to practice on for the next 8 weeks so you could get up a little something to play to Papa when he comes. If I send it by parcel post can you get time to practice some? Could you get through Eunice or otherwise the names of some very pretty pieces for Violin and Cello about your grade and practice them sending Ger. her part to practice too?

[April 9, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

Since last Sunday Mary and I have "been, gone, and done it"- a trip down into Shantung to the grave of Confucius. The children went home either on Friday night or the early train on Saturday so that we had the full day for cleaning house. We made good use of the time and got all the rooms, we wished to lock up, in good order. Mary and I got ready to leave early Monday morning. Sunday was a quiet but rather busy day and in the evening we had supper with Mrs. Love (our doctor's wife). Dr. Love had gone to Pei Tai Ho to see about his house up there and his wife was rather lonesome. We left on the 7.30 A.M. train Monday for Techow where the Stanleys and Tuckers of the A.B.C.F.M. are stationed. Mable Galt went with us. We had just time enough both at Peking and Tientsin to catch the train that we had to and it was 7.30 P.M. when we arrived at Techow. We found that Bettine Stille (one of our scholars) and Mr. Evans (a very kind man of Tientsin) were also on the train. He was taking Bettine back with him to his home in Tientsin, where he has a wife and baby. All of us with all our extensive baggage got into a huge two-wheeled cart which had a big straw covering like an old fashioned prairie schooner. It was drawn by two big mules- Tandem. It was rather a jiggly ride since the roads out here are full of ruts and there are no springs to the carts. We got out to the Stanley's so that we had to hurry into our best dresses for a dinner at the Tucker's. There we met a lot of the American Boarders- for it was the time for the "District Meeting" and each station had some of its members present. Out here at such occasions the gentlemen were [wear] their dress suits, or tuxedos and the ladies have on their low necked dresses so that with the pretty colored gowns we look quite festive. It was a lap supper and we had a very good time. I met again several whom I had met just once last year in Peking and it was altogether a most enjoyable occasion. The next morning we had time to talk over school plans for the children there and to see the fine new hospital and schools. The houses are most attractive and when all the buildings are finished they will have quite an imposing compound. We hope two of the children from there will be in our school next year. Mary Helen has been through a very serious illness which will probably mean that she will always be a little lame. She had something the matter with her ankle last year and finally an operation was imperative. They took out some of the bone and since then when she has walked it has been with a brace. She seems perfectly well now and has begun to bear a little weight on that foot.

In the afternoon of Tuesday we took the train at Techow and arrived at Tsinan about 6 P.M. and went directly out to Dr. Johnson's house. It was an hour's ride right through the city. The first part of the way was through the foreignized section, where the buildings were of German architecture and the streets broad and smooth. Then we entered the city gate and rode for more than a half hour over clean streets paved in huge stones probably 15 in. by 18 in. The city impressed every one with its cleanliness. We had to hurry into our evening gowns to be ready for supper. Dr. Johnson about two weeks ago had a slight stroke of paralysis and the family are trying to keep him quiet in order that there may be no return of the trouble. So he [was] off to bed early and the rest of us made sandwiches until nearly 11 o'clock. We had a good half bushel of them when we were finished. Besides these there were three chickens, about fifty crullers, seven or eight thermos bottles of coffee, and a lot of other things in the eating line- enough for sixteen people who expected to be quite famished by noon the next day. We arose rather early Wednesday as we had to dress, eat breakfast and ride for an hour to get a 7.30 A.M. train for Taianfu where we were to climb the sacred mountain. We got off the train about 10.30 A.M. and found Mr. and Mrs. Hanson there to meet us with chairs for climbing the mountain. Mr. Hanson belongs to the Methodist Mission, and being interested, he arranges for the climbing of the mountain. There are no hotels there for foreigners, so he keeps tourists and puts the money he gets into his work. He did not take any money from us for we were a bunch of missionaries- and allies. We started off for the mountain as soon as possible for it is a climb of nearly 6000 ft. We had the funniest looking chairs to travel in but the most commodious and comfortable I ever rode in. They looked like so many crabs as they rested on the ground. The poles were quite short and the seats broad, thereby making the plies far apart. The bottom of the seat was just a netted rope and there was only a serving board for the feet. One is just comfortably doubled up when sitting in the chair. We put cushions and blankets in ad libitum so that we were just as comfortable as we could have been at home by the fireside. As our party marched along it looked like a parade of crabs, for we were carried side ways. As the coolies got weary carrying us on one shoulder they would swing us around so that we faced in exactly the opposite direction. It gave us the chance to view the landscape in all directions and there never was any time lost in making the change- as there always is in the south of China. I never was more pleasantly carried in my life and two men did it except in some of the very steepest places. They certainly have their work down to the finest science for whenever there was a change in the ascent of the road they fitted themselves to that particular spot- slow if steep, faster if level, going tandem if narrow. The road most of the way is a broad flight of stone steps, with narrow treads and of about seven inches rise. This makes much of the way a steep flight of stairs. Shortly after we got to climbing we went into a temple where we view the leg and arm bones of a mummy who sat for so many years with his legs crossed and his head bowed in contemplation that he died in that posture. He is shown to tourists for a few tinzers. I forgot to tell you that we had not gone more than a five minutes' walk from the station before we met beggars and all the way to the top they were swarming about us. We walked over them (they would duck their heads under our chairs) and at the top of every single flight of steps there was a huge basket hoping for some money. Every little child had been taught his "Cashie, cashie-ba, cashie-ba", so that the wee-est toddlers would hold out their hands and try to say it too. Many of the mothers had their little children quite naked but their plump little bodies belied their words. There were a few old women, and several dressed up as old women. We could easily tell the shams from their agile movements while bumping their heads- kowtowing. One bent over heap of gray hair and rags was a dummy.

Farther up we hear a monotonous rapping off on the mountain side and there peeping out of one of the beggar huts apparently in an inaccessible part of the mountain was a man peering over his stone wall and watching to see if any of his baskets was getting any cash. The whole mountain side was covered with beggar huts and there seemed to be just as many children swarming there as in the streets of any city. The ingenuity of these beggars showed that they had brains if they wished to use them. The children had many attractive faces among them and the women had some good looking faces. - We climbed steadily until after 1 P.M. when we halted about half the way up for lunch. I had had to ride for an hour because I was too hungry to walk. That basket of sandwiches was reduced to its lowest terms when we were through with it and our coffee was gone. We started on and it was after four o'clock when we passed through the middle gate of Heaven and were on the top of the mountain. The last stretch of 800 steps right straight up to the gate. It is dizzying to look down and much too hard to walk up – for some hearts. There are chairs all the way for the last stretch to help weary pilgrims who go up on their knees. We met many coming down, one man carrying his old mother. Dr. Brown (of the New York Union Seminary) and his son were on their way down. It was so cold on the way and up on the top of the mountain that we were glad of all of our extra wraps. The top of the mountain has many temples. We went into only one- called the Mother temple- for that is where the mothers go to pray for children. Farther on we could see a red wall which had been built where there was a precipice, over which devotees had been want to throw themselves. This wall had to be built to stop that. On the very top was a huge boulder that has a reputation of having fallen from heaven. It looks as though it might have fallen from some place and since there is nothing higher that is the Chinese conclusion. There was ice and a little snow on the top of the mountain. On the way up we picked dandelions and I found something that looks a great deal like the Swiss edelweiss. That is found here on some mountains- up in Shansi and up in Mongolia. - Well, we started on and it was just about 7 P.M. when we arrived at Mr. Hanson's, where we were to spend the night. I dreaded going down those 800 steps for when the plunge was made it was like looking down a precipice. But the coolies are very careful and take no risks. A third coolie walked under my chair and steadied it, and we went down much faster than we could have walked ourselves. The men (of our party) who walked, had actually to run to keep up with the chair bearers and they got pretty tired. When we arrived at Mr. Hanson's we were surprised to find an invitation out to supper with the Browns – a young couple who were on the "S.S. Mongolia" with us. We had a good visit with them and then got back to the Hanson's to get to bed shortly after 10 P.M. The next morning we were to have breakfast at 8 A.M., but it was fully 8.30 before the people got assembled. After breakfast I talked with Mrs. Hanson about school – for she is planning to send three children here for next year. Mary and several others went over to see the Buddhist Hell a Chinese Eden Musee. We reached the station in time to meet the 9.30 A.M. train to go to Chufu where there is a famous Confucian temple and the grave of Confucius. I am going to let Mary in her next letter tell you about the rest of the trip for it makes such a long letter to write- and for you to read- at one time. We have had one of the rare times of our lives and we are both glad that we went even if we are as tired as we can be. For a week we have slept each night in a different bed and not once did we have the proper amount of sleep. The morning we had to get up at 4.30 the coolie made a mistake and woke us at 3.30- and this on top of not having gone to bed until after 11 P.M.

We arrived in Tungchou this noon (Sunday) in a howling dust storm. Now the wind has dropped and I hope we may have a quiet night. My room is nearly buried in Gobi dust.

The Galts went down to Pao-ting-fu for a few days and took all their children except Mable. They had been there but a few days when Dorothy came down with scarlet fever. She is having it very easily but it means quarantine away from home for weeks. Mr. Galt, Lawrence, and the baby came home and Lawrence has it here. It is going to be very hard for them for a month to be so separated. Mable could not go home when she reached here this noon- which was a great disappointment to her. Lawrence is not very sick either.

Well, to-morrow we jump into the traces again by beginning with a big luncheon here for the Mother's Club of Peking which is to have its April meeting here. The children arrive on the afternoon train and then work begins. There will be probably four or five absences and we shall not have Mrs. Galt to help out in the school which will be a big miss for me. She is much needed in helping to run the housekeeping part of the school.

It is two weeks since I've heard from you and I would welcome a letter. We found letters from Miss Palen, and Phebe Kinney here when we arrived to-day.

With all love

Flora Beard.

Tungchou,
April 9, 1916.

[This letter dated about April 15, 1916 was written by Mary to the ones at home. She tells of riding on a Chinese wheel barrow, visiting the tomb and temple of Confucius and travelling back to Tungchou. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[About April 15, 1916]

Dear Ones at Home,

When Flora said she had left half of last of week for me to tell about, I resolved to do it at once but I did not you see. We left Tai Yan about 10.00 AM for Chu Fou. The third class car was one with side seats so we spread out our rontans and cots and made ourselves comfortable for the two and one half hour's ride. At Chu Fu Mr. Scott Corbett's man met us- and he arrived in person when we had lunch ready- at the Inn. The Inn was a single large room opening into a court filled with a crowd of curious Chinese. We had two tables and several Chinese stools. We called for hot water and made coffee from the can of "George Washington" Coffee which needs no boiling.

After lunch we chose our vehicles, either a Chinese cart or a wheel barrow, for the four miles across the plain to the city. Mrs. Wolfe and I balanced each other on a wheel barrow and found it very comfortable. We untied the rontans and spread them over the rope bottom then used rugs and pillows to make the bars soft or for backs. Instead of going to a regular Chinese Inn, Mr. Scott piloted us to a private house which was empty- and which he had rented for our use. We entered the gate and passed through a small servant's court into the larger court. At the left was a large building and straight ahead a somewhat smaller one. The large one had three rooms. The middle one contained a long table spread with a white table cloth and spread with afternoon tea. The ones at either side were for the accommodation of the ladies. The other building was for the men. Mr. Corbett had brought his own three servants and the windows were pasted with fresh paper and the floors were swept clean as a dirt floor can be. It was a hot day and bade fair to be a warm night so Mrs. Wolfe and I decided to sleep in the court. At once all but three of the eight ladies asked to join us and soon the men were putting up cots outside likewise. We ladies, five of us, put our cots rather close together near the home; the men scattered themselves all over the court. Everyone predicted a cold night but I was so warm I had to remove one covering. Certainly, it was a good place to sleep. We were all going to sing after getting into bed but he had one short solo and then a gradual silence.

The next morning Mrs. Corbett disturbed our slumbers by calling out, "Six o'clock, and time to be astir." I forgot to mention that we had a four course dinner the night before. We had first, cereal, eggs, ham, toast and coffee for breakfast. We put beds together, packed rontans and were off for the tomb of Confucius. The entrance is very impressive with its avenue of cypresses. The grave is very like all other graves of importance, a conical mound some twenty feet high with a tablet and table for sacrifices in front of it. The mound was covered with Dog-toothed Violets all in bloom.

The evening before after tea we went to the temple of Confucius in the city of Chu Fu (the tomb is just outside the walls.) The grave was beautiful. The temples are all attractive. The first one has a row of ten carved marble columns in front of it. The raised court is surrounded by a stone fencing with rounded top posts. Two of the posts near the temple give a ringing sound when struck with the palm of the hand. The guide book says the art of making them do so is a lost one or well kept secret.

The images of Confucius and several of his most noted followers are within with altars for worship. The carvings about the statue of Confucius are wonderful. Each figure holds a plain jade septer in his hands. The story is that it is to hold before his mouth in the presence of a greater God. The head dress is flat with about ten dangles in front and back. They are like strings of beads about half an inch in diameter.

Just as we were leaving the temple we saw a pair of herons building their nest in the top of an old tree. The violets and wild radishes were thick everywhere.

When we left the tomb on Friday we went directly to the station. There was only half an hour before train time so we ate our lunch on the station platform. We called for tea so had the much desired drink.

It was six o'clock when we reached Tsi Nan. Mrs. Ruth Johnson and Mr. Clarke were at the station. Our party of fifteen all got into rickshaws and we went out to the East Suburb via the outside of the city so as to see more of the city. We saw the site of the new Medical College, and of the new University of Shan Tung. We stopped at the Whitenight Institute which is unique out there. Mr. Whitenight has had the Chinese make models of model streets side by side with those of the dirty ones often seen; models of a deforested region and one not deforested; models of street vendors who keep flies off their fruits and foot with a feather duster and one who screens his wares; a model of the long bridge across the Yellow River which had to have it's piles driven into shifting sands; a model of our Capitol at Washington and beneath it one of the Institute for compassion, etc. We saw the work room and a model in the making to show how other trees should be planted when a tree has to be cut. There is a large lecture hall and talks on country and city improvement are given daily from 9-4. Monday is Women's day and no men are allowed in the building. The list of visitors sometimes runs up to 1500 or 2000 a day. The city is the cleanest one I have ridden through and the institute is partly responsible for the part.

Five of us stayed with Mr. and Mrs. Torrance. After dinner the Johnsons and their guests all came over. Mr. Clarke read us a telegram announcing the engagement of Miss Margaret Johnson and Mr. Scott Corbett. It was a happy ending to a happy time but not a surprise to us who had been in the party with them for two days. Mr. J. says it is an "awful disgrace to have two sisters get engaged in leap year."

On Saturday morning the boy made a mistake and called us at 3.30 instead of 4.30. Flora got up and lit the lamp and we had to leave it lit because we had only one match. We were up at 4.30 and breakfasted at 5.00. At 5.30 we were off for the station to catch a 6.30 train. The train pulled in at 7.35 so we left at 8.00. How we wished we had known in time to sleep the extra hour! There was no open third class car so we had to sit in proper seats. Even there we were crowded. One old Chinese had sprawled out over a whole seat. Mr. Spiker asked for half of the seat and the fellow wouldn't move. Finally Mr. S. just pushed aside his things and took the seat after asking him if he had two tickets. The fellow said he had the two tickets and lost face terribly when later the conductor came along and assured us that he did not. We talked, ate fruit, read O'Henry stories and took cat naps all the way up to Tientsin. Mabel Galt rejoined us at TeChu and Mrs. Wolfe left us.

Mable, Flora, and I got off at Tienstin and went out to spend the night with Mr. and Mrs. Chandler. Mrs. C. has been ill all winter and was down to dinner for the first time since before Christmas. On Sunday morning we were up and off for an 8.00 o'clock train to Peking. Mr. Hunter and Mr. Bier had stayed at the Y.M.C.A. so we had them for company also Bettine Stille who had been visiting at the Evan's and took that opportunity to be chaperoned home. We were late reaching Peking so had just time to cross the tracks to our Tungchou train.

On Sunday afternoon Flora wrote to you while I went and had a bath and a three hour nap. My but I felt better after a little sleep!

Monday we were up at 6.45 and busy all morning getting the house cleaned. The Mother's Club was coming down and the lunch and meeting were to be here. The dust storm that had begun on Sunday was still on so a floor was yellow soon after it was mopped. Nevertheless we removed the old dust and dirt and had the satisfaction of knowing that the house had been clean. Only seven of the club came, but we had a good lunch and an interesting meeting.

The children came back on the train that the club ladies had to take back. We began school on Tuesday with seven absent members. The two younger Galt children have scarlet fever. The McCann children and Ursula Wilder were exposed. One boy was out at the Hills and another afraid of the scarlet fever. This week we expect to have back all but the two sick children.

On Friday Flora and I went to Peking to hear the Choral Club render the "Messiah". Mrs. Grant had invited us to attend as her guests. They met us at the train with the automobile and we went out to their home for dinner. We had time for one or two records on the Victrola before dinner and one by Melba afterward. The Messiah was very well done unto a chorus of about 45 voices. The solos and everything were by local talent and except for Miss Tenny of the Legation, and two community people the soloists were from the missionary body. That leaves four missionaries. We got out home at 12.10 and retired hurriedly so as not to have to get undressed in the dark. The alarm went off at 4.45 Saturday morning and we breakfasted at 5.15. At 5.50 we were off for the station to get a 6.20 train back to duties.

Mr. Torrance of Tsi-Nan was up for the concert and came down here for lunch yesterday. He is a very young man but very interesting and much devoted to his work.

I had had word that the Symmond's whom we met at Honolulu would arrive in Peking Thursday evening and had written them. Since I had received no word, I telephoned last night only to find that they had not yet arrived. (Do not we sound grand with a telephone!!!) Major Symmonds has been stationed at Manila for the last eighteen months and is now enroute back to the states. The Army sends a body of inspectors every three months to look over the marine station at Peking and he is one of the body at time. I shall call at the hotel tomorrow, hoping that they arrived last evening.

It is nearly three weeks since we have had a home letter. Since you write of our letters being so irregular, whereas we have written every week; I know it is probably due in part at least to irregular steamers. I long for the old days when the Pacific service had at least a semblance of regularity. Now I get two or three Literary Digests in a bunch after a long season of no papers.

Yesterday I mailed to the Natsmail Cloak and Suit Co. an order for two middys, a waist and a skirt for ordinary wear. The bill was $6.18 gold and I asked that it be sent to father.

This compound is beautiful these days with a carpet of violets. The children pick them by the dozen bunches and keep all of our shallow dishes filled. The orchard of natural peaches, apricots and cherries is also very gay in white and pink. We have branches of those about also.

Already the time of Will's going home is too near for us to write him again at Foochow. But we will send him letters care of Mrs. Lacy at Shanghai or direct to the steamer as I have saved that date on my calendar.

It is getting nearly nine and tomorrow I have to go to Peking on the early train to do some shopping, meet a lunch engagement, a dentist appointment at 2.00 and look for the Symmond's. Each week seems to bring it's quota of festivities in spite of the regular school life here.

This will reach you just about the date of Ruth's birthday. Many happy returns.

With lots of love
Mary.

Foochow China
April 22, 1916

Dear Grandma,

April 41 Marjorie Billing and I had a flower show. We put up sings for it. The stage was made of one of Marjories table boards with a rug on it. There was a dolls arch and two still chairs on each side. There was some stairs with a pink ribbon covering them At the head of the stairs there was an arch and at the foot a path of bridle wreath and two arches of the same flower. There were six chairs for the children and four for the grown people. First came the violet with a blue dress and a violet at the back of her head. Then came nasturtian with a pink skrt and nasturtian wrapped around her so you could hardly see her at all. Then came snap-dragon with a pink skrt and a snap dragon skrt and wast. They all spoke pieces and the curtain was closed after every one. After that one daisy then guraniam and then sweed. Then we had tea and went out to play. With love from Kathleen Beard

She expresses concern that Germany is making war inevitable and Yuan Shi Kai's recent deeds. Their trip to Mongolia has been postponed due to rumors of bandits. [April 23, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

At last we have received home letters again. It has been more than three weeks between letters- an unusual length of time. You speak of having to wait a long time for some of our letters. We have written every week, so some letters must have been lost or boats must have been few, crossing the Pacific about that time. It has been a winter of waiting and uncertainty and the coming months do not promise anything much better. Yesterday's paper had over a column on the serious situation of U.S. in regard to the war. It looks as if Germany is making it inevitable. I do hope, though, that she will change her mind-even though it is "hoping against hope." This poor old country is certainly in some kind of a struggle, and it is a true Chinese puzzle to us foreigners. Whether it is caused by internal disturbances or whether the Japanese are to blame. Certainly they want to get their hands onto the natural wealth of this great land, and are doing everything they can diplomatically, by force and individually that they can. My faith in Yuan Shih Kai has been seriously shaken by his deeds of the last few months, but since the papers are hinting very broadly of Japanese pressure, I am wondering if Yuan Shih Kai has not done this for the purpose of keeping China in the lime light in order to make the sinister desires of its neighbor harder of achievement and perhaps a failure by prolonging the time until the war is over and then she will no longer dare to do these things. Whatever takes place my faith in the Chinese as a nation is such that I believe they will come out of all this and be one of the greatest nations this world has ever known.

Ruth speaks of asking Phebe to see about a cot bed for me. Please don't bother about it further as I have already purchased a second hand one here. If you have sent it don't worry as there will be plenty of opportunities to sell it. Our trip into Mongolia is off as rumors of bandits have frightened the leaders of the party. It is just put off for a year. We shall go to Pei Tai Ho and have a quiet (?) summer living with Dr. George H. Lowry's people. You should address our letters after the first of June in care of Dr. George H. Lowry, East Cliff, Pei Tai Ho, China. We shall probably be there until the first of September. This will give me time to get our Course of Study finished – which is the next piece of work to be done. Will you get me a bathing-suit, preferable a dark blue. Please get a plain one and not too expensive. I think I would better have one size 44 bust. Send it directly to my Pei Tai Ho address-parcels post. In a few days – when our next check comes, I will send you a draft for fifteen or twenty dollars. It is now a fine time to turn our silver into gold for exchange is away down (or up) and we pay about two for one. It is very bad for our checks in silver since it makes a difference of forty-five dollars a month, on one hundred gold dollars.

Our school is going on as usual, since all the children who got caught in quarantine are back quite well, and the two who have been sick are really well although they have to be isolated for a few weeks yet. We are busy now with preparations for closing the year's work, and planning for next year's increased numbers. We shall probably be half as many more next year. The greatest problem is to get some one to help in the teaching- to take Mr. Johnson's place- as he goes to America for his college course.

To-day is Easter Sunday and it is a truly beautiful day. Yesterday we had a gentle rain all day- the first rain for months- and all nature has taken a bound. The birds are giving us a truly Easter Anthem. Mary has a new Easter bonnet but I don't believe she will wear it to-day as we shall have no opportunity for such a thing. I tried to get one but couldn't find anything to fit, so am going to stick to my old blue one that was never becoming and ought now to be in the scrap heap. It will soon be late enough to wear my white one.

Stanley's note telling of the day came yesterday. It was the only letter in the noon mail- as if its news should be enough to fill the usual mail bag. It did for us.

In a week Will will be leaving Shanghai. I rather expect that he is on the way up from Foochow now, and his last letter said he might leave as early as the 21st. I think he will be glad to have until the 10th to get across the states. Phebe K. is hoping he can stop to see her on his way East. I suppose you have seen her prize "theme." Mrs. Burgess sent us a copy of the Oberlin magazine which had it, and it certainly is fine. Will had not heard of it until we told him. Phebe seems to be supremely happy in her college work.

I am enclosing a subscription blank which I wish you would send on with the price mentioned.

With love-

Flora Beard.

Tungchou,
Easter Day.

N.C.A.S.

April 30, 1916.

Dear Ones at Home,

The latest and most exciting event of the week was the arrival of Murray Scott Frame, Jr. last evening at 11:00 P.M. Francis sent around word that she has a little brother this morning before breakfast. He is an 8 pounder and both Mr. and Mrs. Frame are delighted.

On Monday and Tuesday the children played Prisoner's P?? and were getting very tired of it. On Tuesday evening I conceived the idea of an informal Track Meet so wrote off all the interesting events I could think of. Then Mr. Johnson added some more and on Wednesday we began. Our thirteen events lasted until last night and the children were thoroughly interested all the way through. Nearly every child entered every event so we had wide variation in results due to wide differences of age and size. The sack-race, wheelbarrow-race, cracker-race and obstacle race were the most fun. Mr. Johnson, Mrs. Corbett and I were judges and time keepers and scorekeepers. The children played so hard that last night they were more than willing to play quiet games or read by themselves.

The girls have been all winter trying to get some bloomers ready for sports and these events added such zest that all were completed and now before the events closed. Jumping was out of the question without them so they had to get busy or lose the fun.

At last the Tennis courts are ready for use again. The men finished rolling them on Wednesday morning. In the afternoon we ceased our sports that our boys might assist in remarking them for play. Not yet, have I had a game because I could not leave the meet since I was the instigator and wished to inspire the children into a real "sport enthusiasm."

I think I hear Miss Chandler coming in and as she is our guest for lunch I must go down and help play hostess. Miss C. is from India.

6:00 P.M. I did find Mrs. Galt and Miss Chandler downstairs. We had a thoroughly pleasant luncheon hour and then took a trip over our building. Miss C. left soon after 2:30 and I took a nap. I pined so sleepy that I did not get up to finish this letter before service.

Mr. Galt read us some articles by Pres. King of Oberlin on Prayer which were very good. One thing that impressed us was the statement that from both spiritual good it is essential that we have an invisible Father to whom to pray; that prayer is a state of feeling not the outward expression only. Mr. Frame was at church and just bubbles with joy over his son. Francis cries over him if he moves or utters a sound.

Flora and I do not want any cot beds as we have found one already out here. The crepe came and I do like it very much. Her waist is a beauty. Since we are to be at Pei Tai Ho I'm planning to make by hand there. The nightgowns I shall have the amah make as she has time. Flora and I have had our last year's tailor down. He made me a khaki walking skirt and a white dress which I bought last year besides fixing a linen skirt which Mrs. Burgess sent out last winter. Flora had a white linen dress and that lavender one you gave her, Mother made up.

I think the bill Ruth sent is all right and enclose a draft for $40 gold which I purchased two weeks ago. This is a good time to buy gold because exchange is so very low- only $80.77 for a $40 draft. It means too that our monthly check is $100 now where it used to be $120 or $125. My bank account grows fat more slowly.

I certainly do not like to think of our Shelton church without Dr. Lathrop as pastor. We of the N.C.A.S. will always have occasion to think of them as we use our tea spoons.- Your "Family" are good to send us so much of the silver. We need it and will be most grateful for the gift. The patterns are most pleasing. Flora has chosen the ones we like best and will send the order soon.

Flora says send the linen if you have purchased it. If not purchased, she will send direct to Ireland as she finds she can get linen toweling there.

Don't worry about my health. I am all O.K. now and have been ever since I took a week off to get rested. Tomorrow I go to the dentist for the last time. He has filled five teeth and tomorrow cleans my teeth and polished the new fillings.

We have decided to give parts from Hiawatha for our closing day. Flora is dramatizing it. The little children take the first scenes and the big ones the later years. We have planned to use every child. Three leave before the end of the term so do not count. The little ones have two songs and the older ones one then there is a song for the whole school.

Tomorrow Will sails for America. The wedding is only a little over a month off. I want to be there. Phebe writes that the dress was to be started and that the shopping had begun in real earnest.

The Sentinels came, telling of Dr. Lathrop's resignation etc. Has any one been taken to find a successor? There is but little time to do anything before he has to go to his new parish.

Today Mr. Biggin (Eng. Pres.) said that one of the country pastors in his prayer reminded the Lord that he had already prayed three times for rain and that it has not come yet. We had our hopes high yesterday but got a dust storm instead, with just a few dashes of rain. The sky is still overcast so it may some yet.

Remember we want to know just what each of you wear at the wedding and all details of every sort.

Lots of love

Mary Beard.

[Beginning of letter missing.]

Yes it was Mary Wright's father who died. He has been failing for a year and more. Kidney trouble. Knew he could not get better for 3 mos. before he died. Confined to bed at least 3 ½ weeks. Don't worry about visiting much for me to answer for I shall not be able to write advice on immediate doings much longer so give me the privilege as long as I can.

And what shall I say if your letter of Mar 26 – Apr. 30? I am so glad you wrote me so fully all about your feelings and experiences. And how I wish I could have been there to put my arms about you and comfort you in your time of depression. But some how I feel that the awakening experience was away beyond human touch or power of sympathy, even a mother's and in your soul was then working a power that is closer than a mother mightier than a father, "nearer to us than breathing, closer than hands and feet. What you strove with only One could know; what you needed only that One could give. I rejoice that you feel so free and can rest nights after your "awakening" and I hope you will never get into so depressed a state again. Do you not think it was slightly homesickness? Do you think it would have come on if you had staid on there rather than coming home at Christmas time? Do you feel that you fully understand the causes of it? Well you need not answer these questions till I see you but they come to my mind as I contemplate it. But this one thing dismiss from your mind,- that "nobody really likes to have you around." That I am sure is all imagination which can run wild when you are tired and nervous and are taking notice of slights or harbor jealousy in your breast. I do hope you will not do too much through the rest of the term and get nervous again. I think you were trying to attend too many meetings etc. But we will have a good talk with you this summer and try to help you straighten out anything that still is not all right in your mind. I think your experience will help the other children in their new experience next year altho none of them are of your sensitive, ultra –conscientious type or temperament and might never have such an experience. However it is a lesson to me as to how better to fortify them against the temptations they must meet and least suspect now. I hope you are well, contented, peaceful, restful day and night and confident in your power through the Holy Spirits influence.

With the warmest most sympathetic love of a mother heart, to a good and noble and loyal daughter, affectionately, Mother.

[May 8 and 12, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

This past week has been one of lights and shadows following each other so fast that it has left us just used up. A week ago Sunday every one was rejoicing with the Frames over the advent of their little son, a fine 8 lb. baby. At the same time we were extremely anxious for little Helen Martin of Peking who had scarlet fever with a temperature of over 105 degrees and a pulse of over 140. That fever raged at that rate for four days before it could be lowered then it developed into diphtheria. The antitoxin brought it down and we began to hope. By that time the little Frame boy developed trouble and on Thursday night his heart stopped. It has not been strong enough to keep him here. The funeral was Friday afternoon. Here the people have to attend to the making and covering the coffins and it has to be done quickly. The next day was the “Triangular Meet” of the three Chinese Colleges of Peking. This meant that about sixty people (foreigners) would have to be entertained here by the foreign community. The train comes so early that it means a breakfast and a tiffin. We had to have all preparations made the day before. We had Mr. and Mrs. Pierle of Ching Hua College (The Indemnity College). They brought their little daughters one of three years and the other two and a half months old. The baby is a darling. - The morning started for a beautiful day with the sun not shining with full intensity but as the day wore on a dust storm (the worst of the season) developed, which whipped our vines and other vegetation terribly and made some of the sports next to impossible. They were so much delayed that the managers of the event telegraphed to Peking and had the evening train held for half an hour. There were over a hundred people (Chinese) here so it payed well. Even there the sports were not finished, so that the teams had to stay here over night. We had two stormstayed foreigners spending the night with us. We got up early that morning and had school begin at 8 A.M. in order that the children might see the “Meet.” They enjoyed it – but you should have seen people’s faces! They were so dirty that it took at least three washings to get them clean. - That day word was brought from Peking by Dr. Wilder that Miss Reed (the young lady who was planning our trip into Mongolia) could not live, since she had erysipelas [erysipelas?] and it had developed into Cerebro [Cerebral?] spinal- meningitis. On Sunday we heard of her death. On Monday morning came word of Helen Martins departure too. The two funerals were held on Monday. The Martins I think have been so terribly afflicted. Mrs. Martin has a little two months old baby boy who has been the one bright part of the house. A little over a month ago Helen took the measles though she had had them once, then Lyman came down with the scarlet fever and he has had a stiff case of it, then little Gertrude Rose was taken with swollen glands, and last Saturday she had an operation for them. Helen has been such a terrible little sufferer that it has taken her father and two trained nurses all the time and Dr. Ingram had to quarantine himself from his family and two or three nights spent the whole time at her bedside. Mr. Martin collapsed from exhaustion and the whole family are simply worn out. Mrs. Martin could not go near Helen because of her little nursing baby and the anxiety has been almost beyond endurance. Right in the midst of all this came the college sports and since Tungchou carried off both cups we had to return from the funerals and rejoice with them. To-day we are back in our natural places but we have not yet gotten to feeling natural.

Yesterday word came from Mrs. Selah Blakeman that the Kellogg Relief Corps was sending us two flags for which we are duly thankful and will write as soon as they get here.

I think it is a lovely gift for you people to give the silver for the school. The illustrated cataloge came a few days ago and I looked over the cuts you had given the prices to. I did not know whether you intended me to make a choice or not but I have made out a list of the ones which seem to fit best with the heterogenous lot of table silver that the children bring. My own silver has been in this year for use because I did not wish to get things in a hurry. You will notice that I have added to the list two butter knives and two carving sets. Please charge the amount of these to me and I will let the house here pay for them- unless you find some one else wanting to help us out. I thought one steel would be enough but if they insist upon not breaking the set let the two be included.

I am also including the little tag from my summer underwear that I have ever had- thin and good fit. If I can get them duplicated I should be very happy. I think the union suits were $1.25 or $1.50 each. I want four new union suits.

Mary and I are planning to send a money order to you as soon as possible-especially while exchange is as it is. It is very bad for us since it is $40 a month less than it was in the winter. We are getting just $2 for $1, but it is just the time to be sending money home.

We have only a month more of school and we shall both be glad to have this first year done. It has been a very strenuous one but has been so full of so many unexpected helps that it is closing successfully and with a brighter outlook for next year.

Lovingly-

Flora Beard.

[May 1916]

Dear Ones at Home,

We have had a real summer week with the temperature way up in the 90's. The dryness of the atmosphere makes it possible to keep fairly comfortable by drinking lots of water. Yesterday it cooled off beautifully and we got a little shower. We all keep perfectly well so have no complaint even against weather.

Already I have started my children on practice for our Hiawatha play the last day of school. The girls are having a tennis tournament while the boys are practicing for an athletic meet with the academy boys on the 25th and 26th. This will be an eventful month because the children are working on their first debate, to be given May 24th. They are intensely interested in it and we are giving them part of the English time for preparation.

The goods for the other two shirtwaists came last Monday- also- a pencil sharpener from Stanley. I hope that the children will bring the birthday presents tomorrow. When there is no duty packages are generally delivered to the American Board Compound and we get them much more quickly than by waiting to call for them. I am saving my waists to make this summer. At Pei Tai Ho I shall want some task to do regularly and I do not suppose that Mrs. Lowry will let me look after fruit as Willard did last summer. It was enough to feel the weight of. I can not imagine two whole months without a single really useful thing to do.

Already we are having radishes from our own garden in such abundance that we are giving to the other families. We have eaten much from their lettuce and it is nice to have a chance to return a little of the favor.

Monday A.M. Last night we had Mrs. McCann and the two children and Mr. Woodall over for supper. Ruth McCann went over to the Galt's and put the children to bed and we talked and visited until nearly ten. The slump in the value of gold is so great that we may not get the third McCann child next year. Twenty to thirty dollars on every hundred certainly makes a hole in ones spending funds.

I have just been cutting out some nightgowns from the crepe you sent me. The amah will make them as she has opportunity. I plan to save washing bills by wearing ripe[?]over at the shore. Please do not worry about me. My letters surely have shown a good amount of health and energy. I weigh more than I usually do at this season (I have not lost at all) and thoroughly enjoy an hour of tennis or a walk of two or three miles nearly every afternoon.

An embroidery and drawn work man was along this morning. His linen was all so coarse or spotted that I did not indulge. Would you people use a pongee or old embroidered silk cover for your dining table when unset? I will get one and send it if you will put it into use. They are not expensive. The man had a very good pongee cover about 7 feet square for only $6.80. The children play near the mote. They went bare legged but wore shoes. Now they are washing their feet to redress them for lunch. They are great youngsters! As usual, Muriel returns spotless; Pauline splashed with mud from head to foot and underclothes too; Adelaide and Ruth mussed and disheveled but not very muddy. The children are quite won on the play thing question. One little girl broke the two dolls of the other two some months ago. Yesterday one of the latter two left the teddy bear of the first at the mote. It was tragic to have them return from their search with only a torn ear of teddy.

We are having regular white snow storms of the seeds from the Wilton trees or brown ones from the elm seeds. The former fly in the windows and roll about the floor in soft balls in a most interesting manner. Just try blowing the enclosed fuzz and see!

Please tell Phebe that I brought Will's photo book at Seeley's Book Store, Alton, Illinois. I tried to get another like it and they had it not but could have gotten me the extra leaves. Will can tell her probably what stamp is in the book and the leaves can be gotten direct from the firm.

Flora is still waiting to hear from Dr. Porter. There has been no word since Honolulu.

Tell Willard that we received his letters from Shanghai also from Nagasaki. I hope he got time at Yokahama. I sent it as a ?? to him at the steamer.

With lots of love,

Mary.

[May 22, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

The events of the week have been few for Tungchou. We have again our full number of children in school, for the Galts got out of quarantine for scarlet fever- on Thursday. The two children have been living in a tent for nearly three weeks and have been perfectly well so that we have seen them- at a proper distance-every day. Every one was glad to have them back again.

On Saturday we had a long promised visit from Mrs. Reinsch and Claire, and we were most agreeably surprised to have Dr. Reinsch come, too. I had not thought that he would wish to take the time to come, but he seemed to enjoy the afternoon as much as any one. Our cook gave us the ordinary lunch- which he had already begun before the telephone message reached me. We had soup, beef loaf, browned potatoes (baked with the beef), new peas, our own lettuce, fresh white and fresh graham bread, and cherry pie. I did not change his plans, for it was as good as we could do. In the afternoon, we invited in the compound to meet Dr. and Mrs. Reinsch, and to have tea with us. The High School girls took the viands into their hands and served tea daintily enough for any one. They even went downstairs and cut and put together the sandwiches. One girl poured coffee and another took care of the tea-ball and every body had a good time. Dr. Arthur Smith came, too, and was full of his fun as usual. When he is in the spirit for it he can give others about as much fun to the square minute as I ever heard any one do. His wit is spontaneous and volumes of it, or else he is as quiet as a mouse.

To-day I received a letter from Dr. Katherine Porter, who Phebe and Ruth will remember in Orange, saying she is in Shanghai and will be here sometime early in June. She is going to spend the summer at Pei Tai Ho with us at Dr. Lowry's. She is looking for some work to do here in Peking and he hope she may find her wished-for-spot in the American Board work in Peking.

Your letter came telling of the silver already purchased, so do not pay any attention to my little slip except to include the butter knives and the carving sets if it is possible. I think the plan to send them out by Will is a good one for he most likely will meet some one coming to North China who would be glad to bring everything right here. With love to all-

Flora Beard.

N.C.A.S.
May 25, 1916

Dear Ones at Home,

This has been a full week. On Monday the children arrived as usual and went to the college bowl for practice enroute from the station. On Tuesday and Wednesday Mr. Johnson and I watched the debating teams. On Wednesday afternoon at 5.30 we all went, arrayed in clean apparel, over to the college for a musical. The college glee club sang also a college chorus; the boy's school, the girl's school and our children also sang. The glee club sang very well, the chorus were discordantly funny, the boy's school bellowed, the girl's school did nicely and our children sang sweetly a tune. As 5.30 means anytime before six we began some after 5.45, so it was after 6.30 when we reached home and dinner was late. Our debate was to be at 7.30 but we were late too. The children did very well. Mable Galt was the star both in the delivery of her prepared speech and in her rebuttal- and to her is the glory that her side won. The boys, her team, did very well. Paul forgot and knew enough to omit the [unreadable word] and take the next point. Then he started at lightning speed and made up time.

On Thursday afternoon the boys started the track meet with the boy's school. The events began at 4.00 and we were home by six. The Chinese boys had 21 points and our boys 15. Not a bad record when one considers that they had eleven boys and we only four. The sports were to continue on Friday but a bad dust storm blew up in the forenoon and one of our boys developed a light case of grippe so we asked for a postponement. The Committees met yesterday and agreed on this Thursday afternoon.

Since we could not have a meet on Friday we had a meeting of the Athletic Association and elected officers for next year and finished up the business of this year.

I ran over to call on Mrs. Frame for a few minutes and had to rush back to dress. We got down to the dining room and lo!! empty tables and no food in sight. We retired to the sitting room for our picnic supper in honor of another milestone for me [Mary's 34th birthday- May 26th]. We had a good time.

We had invited Dr. and Mrs. Hubbard and Mrs. Gould down for Saturday afternoon. Flora has all the children for music the last half hour so Mr. Johnson and I went to the station to meet our guests. The Corbett's had guests arriving by the same train so Mr. Corbett and Hunter were down at the station too. We were late in having lunch and it was nearly two when we reopened school. We closed at the usual time nevertheless because we had invited the adults to the station in to meet our guests and had to get ready. The girls are our hostesses and prepare the sandwiches, cut the cake, make and pour tea and coffee and pass everything. This time I sat and had a fine visit with Mr. Gliystone who was guest of the Corbetts. We shall probably see Mrs. Gliystone and the children at Pei Tai Ho this summer as they will be there all summer. We came out on the steamer with them two years ago. At five we all went to the station and bade goodby to guests and Peking children.

The roses are getting beautiful. The girls gathered pink and yellow ones for the tables yesterday and our dining room looked very well indeed.

The flags came last Saturday night and we had great fun opening them up over at Mrs. Wickes! On Tuesday we saluted the small one. On this Tuesday we celebrate a regular Memorial Day and dedicate both flags to the use of the school. Dr. Smith, and Dr. Galt are to assist and we invite all of the compound over. In the afternoon we are going in a body over to place flowers on Dr. Sheffield's grave and perhaps on the others there too.

The names of our cook and the substitute boy his brother show a very peculiar Chinese custom. The cook is "son-two" because he is the second son. When we asked the name of his brother he gave "son-three". Apparently these are the only names they have.

The wind is still raging. It died for awhile yesterday morning then came up strong about ten and blew furiously all day. Last night it blew our windows shut (they open outward on hinges) and I could feel my bed rock. It seemed as though the whole house rocked. It has blown all day today. There seems to be no dust from Gobi today but yesterday afternoon the upper air was yellow.

It will not be long before we will be getting letters telling of the final preparations for the wedding and then about the wedding itself. Two weeks from yesterday! If my air ship comes along, I will not wait for even a clean handkerchief but I will start at once. That reminds me of Mrs. Gould who was of a mind to motor down here yesterday. How we laughed at her! Flora and I are planning to go to Peking tomorrow morning and back at noon for a farewell luncheon to Mrs. Sheffield, Mrs. Stille and Mrs. Corbett.

Lots of love

Mary.

Dear Mother and all the dear Ones at Century Farm:-

It looks now as if the whole family would come down for the wedding. I plan to reach New Haven at 1:32 p.m. Thursday. This is starting on the 10:33 a.m. from Putnam and going via Willimantic and Middletown. Then I shall likely take the trolley to Shelton and go to Ben's office, and telephone you unless Ben brings me down. I want to get down in time to feel at ease about making all the arrangements for the wedding. I hope Dektor will have a pair of shoes for me. I plan to go to Boston tomorrow and among other things or errands get a Prince Albert coat.

To day I have been down to Norwich to speak at the Eastern Com. Woman's For. Miss'y. Branch meeting. Mr. Kenneston was at the station and as I had to go in the morning and arrive at 10:30 and as my part did not come till 2 p.m. he drove me way over to Willimantic between 10:30 and 12:30. I saw many acquaintances. Mr. K told me the people of Shelton wanted me to occupy the pulpit two Sundays- possibly in July. I shall try to do this.

From the wedding Ellen and I go to Oberlin. We want to be there Tuesday morning and come away Wed. evening.

Elbert will bring Ellen and the children down in the Auto. I am not sure yet whether they will come Fri. p.m. or Sat. a.m. I will let you know when I come. We can also plan about where Ellen and I will spend Sunday so as to be handiest to start for Oberlin- whether at Shelton or Bridgeport. I have no engagement for Sunday the 11th.

This is I see a business letter, but I can tell the other things when I see you face to face.

With love
Will.

Tungchou, Jun. 8, 1916.

Dear folks at home:-

Last week was so terrifically hot that about all we did was to "keep" school. It seemed to me that it would be impossible to get ready for our "closing day" on the 15th, or that anyone would want to come. The thermometer stood 100 degrees in the house and some said it was 130 in the sun. It was so dry that it seemed as if we should parch. Then, too, there are no screens on two of the floors of our building and the flies were beyond endurance. On Sunday I tried to write and gave it up. For the first time in weeks clouds appeared in the sky on Sunday afternoon and just as we were ready to go to church at five minutes to five great drops began to fall and a deluge was upon us. We had to stay at home but we were sincerely grateful for the rain. It broke the heat and the drouth so that since then we have been having as delightful June weather as we ever experience in America. We have our stage up out of doors and are practicing each day on our Hiawatha. A week from to-day we give it. We hope this beautiful weather will last till after school is closed, especially since Dr. Love goes to Pei Tai Ho this week and we shall be in the care of his Chinese doctor.

I am expecting Dr. Katherine Porter to arrive sometime this week or next. She is in Nanking now and I am wondering if affairs in Peking are being so reported down there that she will not dare to come further. She said reports in Japan of the state of this country were so serious that her traveling companion did not dare to come to China.

Yesterday's papers were full of Yuan Shih Kai's death- and life. It certainly is most interesting to be here on the spot and live through these tremendously grave events and see how this people come out of such impossible (for any other country) situations, and go on with their life and government again. It is more like a Shakespearian tragedy than real life, though, for the events are too appropriately placed to make one confident that they are natural.

I wonder what reports you are reading about these days. Everything is very quiet, though there has been a tense atmosphere for some days. Money matters have been almost at a collapse, but Yuan Shi Kai's death on the last day of the truce between the South and the North has cleared the atmosphere remarkable. We hope exchange will right itself now and the financial status get to a state to be trusted again.

Mrs. Corbett was in Peking yesterday and spoke of the extra amount of soldiers patrolling the city- all with black bands on their coat sleeves. All were disarmed. This was to prevent looting. Everything otherwise was as usual. The Legations sent word to their nationals of the death of Yuan Shih Kai, but Dr. Reinsch said he was not expecting any trouble. This did not prevent him from supplying Tungchou with rockets and a code of signals. We have slept soundly these two nights and pursued our daily tasks as usual, besides been busily planning for the future. Rumors keep our eyes open but do not stop our plans or work. Every one thinks now that Yuan Shih Kai's death will relieve the situation and unite China again for each province has been careful in wording its declaration of independence to say freedom from Yuan Shih Kai's government and not the Chinese Republic. The South has declared itself loyal to the Vice President Li Yuan-hung, and now will come the test of their sincerity. I have confidence enough in this nation to believe it will emerge from this chaos nearer its ideal of government than it has been in the past. The Vice President is a man who has stood firmly for the republic and resigned rather than go in for the monarchical scheme, and, when Yuan Shih Kai tried to give him a title refused it. We are more hopeful than we have been for months, but the task is tremendous and the enemies, and intrigues un-countable.

I do hope you people can meet and know the Corbett's while they are at home. Mrs. Corbett's father is the Secretary of the society that publishes the Sailor's Magazine that we used to lend to Eugene Crofut. He is a retired New York minister. His name is Webster. The Corbett's are going to be in New York City for the winter. They are going straight to Cape Cod where the Webster's spend the summer. Mrs. Corbett is going to have a sale of Chinese Curios, the proceeds to go for our piano. If the receipts are not enough, do you think Dr. Shelton and some of the other people of Shelton and vicinity would be willing to add a few dollars?

Our flags came and we had a most interesting Memorial Day celebration and flag raising. Dr. A.H. Smith is a veteran and Dr. Sheffield's grave gave a veteran's grave to decorate. Dr. Smith gave us a most interesting and enlightening talk.
Lovingly- F. Beard.

Dear Ones at Home,

This is our last Sunday of school. I gave my last examinations yesterday but I still have a few classes to meet to finish up translations, etc. Every afternoon we are having rehearsals and I have had special rehearsals with the ones who need extra drill. We plan for dress rehearsal on Tuesday, extra practice on Wednesday and the play [Hiawatha] on Thursday. The men came last Tuesday and put up the mat stage and dressing rooms, so we have had them for practicing. So far things have gone well.

The Presidency has changed hands without any outward disturbance. It is almost pathetic to hear the open expression of joy over the death of Pres. Yuan. At then the morning after he died the new President was formally installed. The soldiers in Peking had been disarmed even before Yuan was gone to forestall looting and none has been done. We were given rockets to send up if they were needed but we slept serenely through the night. One Legation started to sandbag the entrance but the act caused such excitement that they desisted. The others kept careful watch, and the French called their Tientsin troops to Peking. All of the anxiety was for naught. Instead of trouble anew, the old troubles vanished and the government seems more stable than at any time since Yuan accepted the name of Emperor.

This week started, or rather continued the summer exodus from Tungchou. Dr. Smith went two weeks ago to the Western Hills. This last Friday Dr. Love and family and the Frame family left for Pei Tai Ho. The rest of us will be here until near July first. The college and boy's schools do not close until next week.

The boys and Mr. Johnson went over to the mote last evening and went frogging. They caught eleven good sized ones and today thirteen of us feasted (?) off their twenty-two legs. Fortunately it is the day we have waffles for dessert so we do not mind if the meat course is a little scanty. Tonight we have one last birthday celebration. The youngest of the children is eight today.

On Wednesday evening we had a "Compound supper" on the Galt's lawn. It was in honor of the Corbett's who go home this summer for furlough. We had an awfully good supper and some good fun afterward. The children got holly hock blossoms, tore off the petals, split them at the base and stuck them on their faces. They made very grotesque figures into red pink and white appendages in such unusual places.

Yesterday we sent you a telegram. It was greetings to Myra and Stanley and I hope it arrived all safely before the appointed hour. We had a great time figuring out when best to send it so as to have it surely arrive on Saturday morning, not before or after.

On Thursday evening we had Mr. and Mrs. Frame over for super. It is the first time they have been over this year. We are going to be near the Loves and Frames this summer and I am glad for I like them both very much.

We hear that the Burgesses do not return until January instead of in the Fall as originally planned. The Porters return here, leaving San Francisco August 1st. Mrs. Wicke's mother is coming with them for a visit of a year probably. She has no father and her younger brother is just out of college and in business so does not especially need her now.

I have been trying to get to Peking to the bank for another draft now while exchange is so far down but Monday's all seem to be holidays. If you are seeking a snap job as far as holidays are concerned, go into the banking business out here. There being English, American, Japanese, Russian, Japanese, French, and Chinese banks; and all having to close as the same time. They get all the national holidays of all the nations.

The Germans in Peking had a big celebration over the naval victory last week and in the fray started a fire that destroyed the mess home, the barracks and got within a dangerously close distance of the powder magazine. Are all the late conflicting reports only an attempt to keep up courage, I wonder? There still seems to be some doubt as to whether Lord Ritchensen is dead or alive.

I did not realize until I looked on my calendar just now, how close Stanley's wedding day falls to Oliver's. I wonder if this letter will find Willard still with you. I have a feeling of a neglected letter occasionally when I think of him. But I know he gets ones from you. If he lets us know we can greet him along the return route with letters. The last word we had was from Yokahama.

Sunday PM Late this afternoon the man from the telegraph office came out for some further directions about our cablegram. We told him it was too late and to please bring back the money. I am awfully sorry because I wanted our little say at the wedding.

Today my Sunday School class finished to study of the Life of Christ. We have decided to take up the Life of Paul next year. I think we will find it interesting. I have to keep busy to keep up with these children who know their Bible like the A.B.C.s.

I think I wrote a thank you for the linens and the towelling. I do like them all.

With lots of love to every one of you.

[June 19, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

This is in between things, on Monday – and I should have written yesterday. School is over and all the children have gone home- all went last Thursday right after the exercises.

We certainly had a most successful “wind up” of our school year. The children kept well to the very end and we sent every child home in better condition than they came to us. Our closing day was a beautiful June day- as fine as America could furnish. We had had a rain the day before so there was no dust, and earth and sky were as clean as bright as nature could make. Sixty people came down from Peking with their baskets for lunch and picnicked in the shade of the trees on Mrs. Wicke’s lawn. We furnished drinks and ice-cream for the crowd. At three o’clock we started with our program and were through at 4.20 P.M. That gave just time enough for the children to get their costumes changed for the 5.20 P.M. train. It was quite a sight getting the trunks and bundles off to the train. Most of the fathers and mothers were here to see to the final departure, so that burden was spared us. The children did well in their presentation of Hiawatha. Will will be interested to know that Dr. Cooper was one of the sixty from Peking. Dr. Porter surprised me by coming down with them, too. She had just arrived the night before. To-day, I got word that Miss Bement and Miss Funk are on their way to Japan via Peking and Pei Tai Ho. They are coming out here for the day next week. We hope to get off for Pei Tai Ho by the 1st of July.

This morning we went down to the train to see our dozen guests off to Peking. We had a house party of fourteen of us over the week end and I think every one had a good time- even if we were rather quiet- as Sunday should be observed. The nucleus of the party were the people who went down into Shantung with us at Easter time, but we added to it Mr. and Mrs. Price of the Legation and Dr. Porter.- At 4 o’clock this afternoon, I have invited in the ladies of the compound to tea with us to meet Dr. Porter. It is sort of getting the tables turned for I have just put her to bed with a mustard plaster over a sore spot in her back. She caught a bad cold in Shanghai and has a persistent cough with this queer place. I hope the plaster will ease the trouble. I think she has been travelling a little to strenuously. It will do her good to get to Pei Tai Ho where she can sleep in the same bed two continuous nights.

I shall have to write you of a great disappointment to Mary and me. We had planned to cable to Stanley and Myra on June 10th and send the message in plenty of time to reach them by noon. The next day after I had sent it, the man came back to ask in what state Derby was. All the data he could possibly need, I had taken the precaution to write on a separate paper and pinned the two to-gether. It was so late then that I recalled the message and so Mary and I will invest the amount into something and send it home later. Perhaps in the end they’ll be just as glad, though we meant to have been there at the time. We shall be so glad to hear all about it. The invitations arrived on Monday- only two days late. I call that pretty good time from America.

Applications are coming in for next year’s scholars so that we shall have nearly thirty boarders. Did I tell you that Leander Lovell is one of them? He is the son of the Lovell who is a relative of the Gilberts in Plainfield, New Jersey.

With love to all-
Flora Beard.

Dear Father and Mother:-

I am enclosing a general schedule of our plans- rather my plans. This will give you an idea of my whereabouts and the family will fit in somewhere.

This will fit your plans to come up to Putnam next Tuesday, but you are living too fast to come one day and return the next. You must plan to stay over Wed. and get rested to go back Thursday.

Gould plans to go down Monday and Phebe M. plans to go at the same time- so they will come together and you just give over the farm to them for three days.

Grace, Annie and Grace came yesterday. Grace plans to return tomorrow with us at 10:33 I believe. The girls will go Mon.

Commencement is over and things will settle down now- I am getting anxious to begin to get ready to leave- there will be much to do, beside getting rid of the stuff- we must plan for the four children we leave, between our departure and the opening of Oberlin.

With love,
Will.

From the profits of the sale of Chinese curios back on Cape Cod, Mrs. Corbett plans to purchase a piano for the school. Tungchou
June 25, 1916

Dear Ones at Home,

We are enjoying a most delightful thunder shower; delightful for two reasons. One that it breaks the spell of very hot weather and the other that the crops need the rain very very much. The skimpy crop of wheat just harvested made one sorry for the farmers and one wondered what might happen to the next crop just going in unless rain came more frequently.

Flora wrote last week that we were having a home party. All of the guests except Dr. Porter, left on the early train Monday. We did little that day except pick up after the guests and rearrange the rooms. On Tuesday we were off for Peking on the early train for a two day's shopping and sight seeing tour. There were seven of us, Mrs. Galt, Mable and Lawrence, Mrs. Corbett and we three. We visited the foreign stores near the station then went out to the Chinese stores outside Chien Men (Big front gate). The Bazaar the silk shops and the lantern shop were our destinations. Mrs. Corbett is undertaking to get us a piano while home on furlough. She is going to get the money by sales of Chinese curios at her mother's summer cottage on Cape Cod. It is a popular resort where many wealthy people go. I got her some Chinese flower tea, some place cards like those I sent last Christmas, and Flora got several dollars worth of mud[?] images for a children's table. Many of our guests for the Hiawatha play brought [unreadable word]. The material for sale is varied enough to give a fair representation of what can be obtained here in the different shops. Some of the things are articles made in the Mission schools and items show the work done by foreign teachers.

On Tuesday we went by invitation to lunch with Mrs. Ament at the ladies home at Teng Shih Kou. The afternoon we spent at Lun Fo Ssu, the ten day fair of which we wrote last year. Then we went to tea with Mrs. Puie who had been one of our guests. Our packages were all at Dr. Porter's room but we left them and raced a thunderstorm up to Mrs. Lewis' where we were to spend the night. We won too, and the storm lasted just while we were dressing for dinner so we got the refreshing coolness without the wetness. We had a nice visit with Dr. and Mrs. Lewis. They are the Methodist representative on the Bible translation committee. They have been at work nearly 20 years. For 12 years they did station work in the winter and spent summers in it, then they gave full time to it the year round. Next year they hope to complete it when the Lowry's return to Szechuan and all the others to their respective stations. The pictures of Szechuan are beautiful and quite as wonderful as any mountainous country in America or Switzerland. On Wednesday we visited a few Chinese shops in the city and the foreign stores. In the afternoon I mailed two packages to Monticello friends and it cost me nearly two hours to do it. I almost missed my train but I got them off.

Thursday was college commencement here. Miss Minor [Could this be Luella Miner mentioned in The Boxer Rebellion by Diana Preston?] and Miss Mickie and Mr. Martin were our guests for breakfast and lunch. We all went to the exercises. Twenty one boys graduated. Dr. Jenks gave the address and Dr. Galt interpreted. It was an excellent and appropriate talk on preparation for citizenship.

In the afternoon we all went to the President's reception over on the Galt's lawn.

Friday and Saturday we looked over things, sewed, packed etc. preparatory to getting off for Pei Tai Ho this week end. I am getting eager for my first swim and all of the many then that will follow.

On Commencement Day there was a Mr. Luce from Wei Shih here. He introduced himself by saying that he had met Willard several times. I tell you that it is a good recommendation to be Willard's sister!! The report got circulated through Shantung that we had no high school work here so Mr. Luce and some others sent their children to Shanghai. We are sorry, for it means that they wish to complete the High School work there.

If we get all the promised children next year we will have 28 boarders besides the three day pupils from here. Mr. Beers and the Mr. Gordon, who takes Mr. Corbett's place, will take all the boys under their chaperonage over at the Corbett home. We will fill every room here with girls. We are still hunting a helper but have two in sight.

Mr. Biers is planning to go down to Kuliang for the summer. We expect Mrs. Bement and Miss Funk here tomorrow or next day. They are enroute for Japan for the summer. Dr. Cooper was here for our play. All of this brings Kuliang to mind again most pleasantly.

Did I leave my exercise music books home? I can not find it in my folder anywhere. If so could you put it with the things Willard is to bring. It is bulky to send by regular mail.

When we were at Teng Shih Kou this week we received the book covers, Phebe. They are beauties. Thank you so much for mine. I am eager to hear of your plans now that Myra has usurped your place. Do not forget to write every particular about the wedding. I know now something of how Willard got when we had fathers and mothers golden wedding.

Our rain is over and it is cool. It feels good to have a dry skin once more.

Please give love to every one of the Beards.

With lots of love

Mary.

P.S. Have I said thank you for the middy. It almost matches my khaki skirt in color. Just the thing!! M.

Pei Tai Ho, July 5, 1916.

Dear folks at home:-

The weather is getting hotter and the sand flies are like so many hot needle points so between the two Tungchou is a warm place. We have been busy trying to get things ready to go away. On Sunday Jun. 25 we had a caller to show over our building- as we very often do have on Sunday. - On Monday the carpenter came to put in the doors, shelves and drawers we want in order to make use of unused places up under the roof and beneath our cupboards. - On Tuesday the three ladies from Foochow came to spend the afternoon. They had to see the school, and the Tungchou compound, so we did very little on our own affairs. Our own amah is ill so we had to call in outside amahs to finish the necessary sewing for getting away to Pei Tai Ho. - On Wednesday (June 28th) we took the morning train to Peking to witness the funeral of Yuan Shih Kai. We did a bit of shopping and even then (at 8 A.M.) there were hundreds of people on the top of Chien Men to see it. We found ever so many friends there and people of many other nationalities- German, English, Japanese, French, Chinese, Armanese, and others. The Armanese soldiers have just come to guard the French Legation since the French soldiers have gone to the front. They seem much like the Chinese and everyone seems to respect them as they are met in the streets and shops. Their costume is quite a bit different from any usually seen about here. It was an interesting crowd up on the city wall. Mary and I had a position where we could see the procession march down the paved way from the Forbidden City, through the gates which I had never before seen open, and we could also see the arrival at the mat-palace (a temporary structure erected for the final ceremony before the coffin was put into the car for going to Honan). The whole procession and all the trappings were wonderfully in keeping and good taste. There was no noise, and order in the streets was perfect, and there was no demonstration but that of sorrow and respect. The procession started with several mounted soldiers. The horses were beautifully groomed black ones and the soldiers were in full uniform. Then came a corp of soldier marching with guns reversed. They stepped so slowly, that it gave one the impression of great grief. I cannot remember the order of the different parts of the procession but there were three bands at different parts each playing foreign funeral music- but so far apart that the music of one did not interfere with the other. Then there were two Chinese bands each dressed in beautiful blue coats with gold embroidery. One of them wore the regulation funeral hat with one huge red feather standing erect right from the middle of the hat. The other wore mortar boards. When I suggested to Mrs. Mateer that they had copied from our university costume she replied that it was one of the ancient hats of this country. More likely we had gotten the idea from China. In the procession was Pres. Yuan's carriage which was a gorgeous dark red and much bedecked-with-gold affair. It was drawn by four of the glossiest-coated horses I ever saw. There were the offerings on especially made carriers. Later I looked at the contents (through glasses) and on one I saw a whole roasted pig. On another there were ten bowls (covered) and in each corner were symmetrical piles of foreign apples held in place by nets. His empty sedan chair carried his tablet and there was another chair which contained special incense to be used at the grave. It is impossible to explain to you the beauty of coloring, for each part of the procession was of some special combination of colors. The Taoist priests were in several shades of rich yellows- lemon, orange, and vermillion red. Each band had a different uniform and the different squads of soldiers were in different shades- some gray, some in khaki, and some tan. There was quite occasionally the up-throw of the funeral cash (one of which I enclose). [See note at end of letter.] I could not understand how the men managed to throw it so high into the air-reaching close to twenty feet. It floated down like so many birds. Some of it blew up so high that it landed on the top of Chien Men where we were-which is probably fifty feet high. Then came all of Yuan Shi Kai's sons dressed in white robes, with white bands about their heads, marching under a large white canopy. There were many beautiful silk banners embroidered in suitable characters for the occasion. These were followed by the coffin hidden by a gorgeous red satin cover embroidered with the royal phoenix-and-dragon crest and other symbols all done in gold. This was carried by nearly a half hundred men all dressed in deep red coats so that it was a dazzling array of red. This was followed by more than a dozen pure white sedan chairs carried by coolies dressed in white. Probably those were the wives and female members of his immediate household. Then last of all were more than a dozen coupes each bordered by a wide band of white. They probably contained other members of the family. Yuan Shih Kai's band waited at the entrance of the mat-palace and played as the coffin was being carried in and later when the coffin was drawn into the car it played again. At that time one of the Chinese bands struck up, too, and the combinations must have been the very acme of music to the Chinese ear. When all the procession had passed (it took more than a half hour), we walked along the wall and looked down on to the railroad tracks and saw the trains (three of them) which were to take all of the people and trappings of the procession to his burial place. The funeral car was trimmed with rosettes of pale blue, violet, pink, and white. It was detached from the other cars and pushed up to the end of the track. The whole end of the car had to be removed so that the truck could be rolled out on which the catafalque was placed and very impressively rolled up into the car. It just filled the car so you can imagine the width and height of the bier. All the horses, soldiers, banners, etc. were being put on to the train. We stayed until the coffin was put into the car and then we left for our train to Tungchou. It had been a rare June morning, the sun only a little warmer than we have it in America, and our sight of the procession was as good as any one could have had, so we were so glad that we went. This is the end of ceremonial mourning in Peking, though the soldiers are yet wearing the band of black on their sleeves. It is said that the family have so stripped the palaces that it will take some time to put them into order for President Li Yuan Hung. Just at present he is living in a palace not far from where some of our friends are in Peking and one day Mrs. Lewis saw him ride out on one of his official calls. There were many soldiers, his body guard and his state coach followed by more of his body guard and more soldiers. Pres. Li seems to have the confidence of both the North and the South and now more than half the provinces have sworn allegiance to him. All that we hear and know of him confirms our belief that this country will be more at peace and more united than ever before. Pres. Li rides about in his coach or his automobile in quite an ordinary freedom, and several of my acquaintances have seen him on the street.-Thursday and Friday were full to the brim of getting final packing done in order to get away on Saturday morning for Pei Tai Ho. It is an all day railway journey to get here and a five mile trip by chair, cart, or donkey from the station over to the shore so that we were glad to reach Dr. Lowry's. It is delightful here. There has been a fine breeze night and day since we arrived, and the water reminds me of any sheltered cove of Long Island Sound. So far the water has given us only gently sleepy sounds as the waves lap on the sand, but they say that storms change the tone to quite a fierce roar. Perhaps later, we'll have the opportunity of telling you about it.

We are waiting to hear all about the wedding. Ruth's letter greeted us on our arrival here- the one telling about the bridesmaid dresses. How we should have enjoyed being there! Lovingly- Flora Beard.

[Funeral Cash – this is close to the actual size of the off white colored paper.]

[In an email to Peter MacInnis, son of the late missionary and author, Donald MacInnis, I asked if he had ever heard of “Funeral Cash”. His response on February 5, 2006 is as follows:

Dear Jana,

I was an occasional source of feedback to Dad while he was writing his book on missionaries along the Min River, so I got to read most of the material he included, which I found fascinating as you mention you have too. The paper circles with squares cut out of the middle sound very much like funeral cash. If you have any of the old Chinese coins themselves, you will see that they have a square hole in the middle. Funeral cash in China today can be something really simple, like coarse yellow squares of paper with a bit of gold or silver foil on them, or elaborately printed "hell bank notes" that look something like monopoly money, only more detailed. Whatever form, funeral cash is burned to provide for relatives that have died. Big funerals sometimes burn beautifully built model houses or cars made out of bamboo and paper, also to provide for relatives that have died. I've never seen any funeral cash like the off-white circle of paper you describe, but it's a pretty sure bet it was what they used at that time in China. Best wishes, Peter]

East Cliff
Pei Tai Ho
July 9, 1916

Dear Ones at Home,

We have been here a week and one day- and already I feel like a new being. The days are so much alike that it is good someone remembers to count them and remind us when a Sunday is due. We have breakfast at 8.00, sew, read or talk until 12.00, swim at 12.00, dine at 1.00, rest from 2-4, call, receive calls, walk or stay quietly at home, have supper at 7.00 and go to bed between 9.30 and 10.30.

On Sunday last it was hot but Mary, Mable, Mr. Lietzel and I walked over to Rocky Point for church. There was a fine breeze so we really were very comfortable. Rocky Point has more people than East Cliff but less view. The houses are so thick they get in each other's way. We are as yet so scattered that most of the homes are in front lots so all have fine views. The beach is a nice sandy one and the slope is so gradual that it is an ideal spot for children. Not yet have I been far enough out to get over my depth but Mr. Chandler swam out yesterday to where he couldn't touch bottom. Each home has its own pet spot for bathing and it is quite customary to invite other households to come and bathe on the other's beach.

Thursday was the "glorious fourth". We had fire crackers going off at intervals all went over to Rocky Point to the celebration. The civilians played the marines in baseball and won 7-5. Then they had a game of "donkey polo." I laughed until my sides ached. The donkeys were terribly bewildered by the queer demands to stop short, turn quickly, gallop rapidly etc; and never did the right thing. If the ball got knocked out of the group it might be several minutes before the riders could get the donkeys started to chase it. If one started all started like a flock of sheep. Seldom were all of the players mounted at the same time. Several times saddles and all slid and the rider would have to stop to resaddle. They broke so many mallets that finally they had no more and began to use baseball bats instead. We had ice cream and cake and cold lemonade and tea for refreshments. Mrs. Lovell from Honan arrived that morning with her two children. The boy who is coming to us is a fine looking chap and was as eager to meet us as we to meet him. I wonder if ever a child in America anticipated school with the supreme joy that the children out here do?

On Thursday Mrs. Mills, Mrs. Poteet (both Y.M.C.A. wives), Miss Vance (Y.W.C.A.) and I left here at 6.00 A.M. and walked across the sand flats to the sand dunes some three miles north. We wore our bathing suits so as to be able to get home if the tide caught us. We found Dr. Cooper and Miss Brown waiting for us over on the shore near the dunes and stuck inland for the sand. At the foot of the dunes we stopped in the shade of some small trees and had breakfast. Never did hot coffee and sandwiches taste better. I'd hate to say how many hard boiled eggs and sandwiches I ate. Such luxury too! We had a donkey with baskets go along to carry our lunches, towels, extra shoes etc. We strolled along like ladies of leisure. The wind was blowing strongly and there was a drift of fine sand in the air for about two feet above the surface of the dunes. It cut one's face like a sleet storm when we sat down on the dunes at the summit. Dr. Cooper has already won the reputation of being a wife hunter. It was too bad to shatter the air castles of those who thought him a bachelor by telling that he had already buried two wives.

On Friday Mrs. Frame gave a house warming tea to meet Miss Vance. There were some thirty or more ladies present and we had an awfully good time. The Sites and Ravens arrived from Shanghai that evening and we had them over to an eight o'clock dinner.

Yesterday our neighbors came and swam with us so we had quite a party in the water. In the evening five of us and Miss Vance went over to Rocky Point to the first of the weekly concerts. We rode donkeys over but walked over. It is great fun to ride a donkey only I felt nearly as big as the donkey who carries me. The first time I tried to mount at the station I jumped as I used to to mount a horse and landed on the other side of the donkey. I tried side saddle last night but felt to insecure so threw my leg over and rode cross saddle in spite of my dress. The concert was very short and all of the performers were English because Mrs. Poteet was kept home by a sick husband.

Today has been a rainy day. We had time between showers to call at Dr. Love's and walk home by way of Eagle Rock and there have been frequent let ups of varying lengths.

Tomorrow we hope to start playing on the new tennis court back of the house if the rain stops and allows it to be completed in the morning.

Ruth's letter received this last week said that Willard was safe in Vancouver. Now we are eagerly awaiting news of his arrival home and of the wedding. How pretty the bridesmaid dresses would be! I do hope you got a lot of pictures for us.

This afternoon I got good exercise walking the porch with George and Kitty. We played we were walking to "London Town", then we took the steamer for New York and walked to Boston. How is that for an afternoon trip?

The Foochow ladies left early Tuesday morning for Korea. They were over here on Monday for tea at Mrs. Frames and Flora and I went over too. Miss Dorchlasen[?] looks and acts much better. Travelling seems to be good for her.

We have many teachers on the string for next year. First a young lady who has been in Tsing Tao for a year; second a sister of the wife of a young doctor put here; third a young lady, graduate of Wellesley who is on her way out with a new Y.W.C.A. secretary; fourth, a friend of Dr. Porters who lands in Shanghai this month; fifth, Mrs. Hall to whom the Board cabled. All sound attractive and useful and I do hope we get one or two from the list. So far we have 24 applications in which four more possibilities but only two are probabilities.

Please ask Howard and Barber to send me a pair of Warner corsets No. 250, size 25. The price is $2.50 a pair if I remember rightly. (It may be $3.00) They are laced in front.

Just before coming down here I mailed to Miss Mason a coat for which she was to send you a check for $17. To Mrs. Whiteford I sent some tea for which she is to send $1.25. Please credit me with them when they arrive. I had material for bags already but could not get into town to mail them. I'll get them off early after I get back.

I do hope you are all keeping well. Stanley and Myra are married nearly a month.

Lots of love

Mary.

Description of Peitaiho

Peitaiho is the name given to a group of settlements on the coast of the Gulf of Pechili not far from Shanhaikuan about 150 miles from Tientsin. The settlements were founded in 1896 by the Rev. C.A. Stanley, Rev. J.H. Pyke and others who decided upon the spot now called Rocky Point as that most suitable for summer residence for the missionaries in the American Board, Methodist, and London Missions. These gentlemen had investigated the whole coast from Lanchow to Shanhaikuan. They purchased in the name of the Methodist Mission the land which is now the nucleus of the Rocky Point association. At that time Peitaiho was not open officially to foreign settlement, and therefore all persons who bought land had to buy it in the name of some missionary organization.

The settlements of Peitaiho from west to east are as follows: West End, which is largely a German center; Lotus Hills, where are situated the property of the China Sunday School Union and the Lotus Hills Farms, established by the Reverend E.G. Tewksbury; Anchor Bay, established by Messrs. Walmsley, Turner, Summer, etc.; Rocky Point, including the property of the Rocky Point Association, the Assembly Hall, the tennis courts, etc. and also a few houses which are outside the association proper; Legation Bay, where are the premises of the British Legation; Lighthouse Point, where the Russian Orthodox Mission has an establishment and where the Russian Legation is situated; Far View, on the highest hill at East Cliff where there is a settlement established through the initiative of the Presbyterian Mission; East Cliff Land Co.; Eagle Rock, the extreme northeasterly settlement of Peitaiho.

There are altogether about 400 houses at Peitaiho. At East Cliff is Presbyterian Beach, perhaps the smoothest of all. At Eagle Rocks there are two excellent beaches, one very shallow, the other deep. Surf bathing is best at Rocky Point.

Peitaiho is connected by railroad with the main Pekin Moukden line of the Chinese Government Railways. The journey from Tientsin to Peitaiho Beach Station takes about 6 hours, from Peking 9 hours and through cars are run when the traffic warrants. The railroad station at Peitaiho Beach is situated at Rocky Point. Transportation to the various settlements is by donkey or chair as the roads are not sufficiently good for rickshas.

Water is obtainable from surface wells only. The surface water is of good quality, but of course has to be boiled.

Sanitation is under the control of the Sanitary Association in the crowded area at Rocky Point. The Sanitary association used a system of septic tanks. Elsewhere sanitation is left uncontrolled.

The Rocky Point Association maintains a field of 40 mou for tennis, baseball, cricket and other athletics. In the Assembly Hall there are Saturday evening amateur concerts through the season. There are regular Sunday services at five o'clock in the evening under the direction of the Committee on Religious services.

*[This letter dated July 16, 1916 was written from Pei Tai Ho from Flora to the folks at home. Even though they are on vacation, they are learning Chinese for an hour in the mornings and planning for the next school year. [July 16, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

Sunday again: - The days are full though we are having vacation. Dr. Porter and I are getting up each morning at 6 A.M. to be ready for our Chinese teachers at 6.30 A.M. We have them for an hour before breakfast, not because we are so enthusiastic over the study of Chinese but because that is the only hour in morning when we can have teachers. We have breakfast at 8 A.M. and about an hour later we sit down to language study together and it is usually noon by the time we finish. We are getting a good deal out of it and already sounds are becoming intelligible and yesterday I understood two men conversing with each other. It is my ambition to be able to manage the school servants when I get back. I am somewhat doubtful about results but at least I shall be nearer to it than ever before. I shall plan when I get back to school to spend some time each week on the study. - Even here school affairs engage much of my time. We are looking for teachers for next year and every day or two brings new enquirers. We already have twenty four boarders (against 17 of last year for sure and at least five grown ups- to be fed. We are putting the boys out into the Corbett house and they are to be chaperoned by Mr. Beers and Mr. Gordon who will eat with us. The smaller rates for table board will compensate them for their trouble. I am expecting that our number will run into the thirties before we get through. It is but a question of time when we get most of the American children here in North China- over ten years of age. Previous arrangements and, in the Shantung Province, a bit of disappointment, are really merciful providences in sparing us extra labor and equipment during these beginning years. Did I tell you that we had a clear thousand dollars (silver) left after the year's bills were paid? We sent no bills in June, and that made a net balance of over $800. This has been at the rate of a dollar (silver) a day. Next year we are to start out with the charge of ninety cents per day. We buy everything by wholesale and we live largely "off the land." We have two excellent cooks. - Your letters came two days ago describing the wedding. The descriptions gave us the impressions of a beautiful wedding. You have before this gotten my letter telling how we had planned to be there- and were disappointed- I have sent up to Peking to see if the parcels you have sent are there. I think I shall be glad to go into the water when my bathing suite arrives. The water and the beach here remind me much of "Coop Bar", where we used to go when I was a small girl. The shape of the bay and the shallow water with the soft lapping of the waves are much like the ocean. The sun here is very hot but we always have a breeze. To-day we are sitting in the shade of a huge rock down close to the water's edge. Mrs. Lowry has Chinese Church for the servants of East Cliff every Sunday morning from eleven to twelve, so we plan our walks or visits to occupy that time. A little later we shall stay just to see if we can understand anything that is being said. I think a foreigner always speaks and it is easier to understand them for they speak more slowly. - Mary and I are accumulating several small articles which I intend to mail home early in September so as to be in good time for the Christmas giving. If you could let us know what you would like I believe we could get the things to you even later. We have bought quite a lot of tatting and ten dozen little tatted medallions about the size of a nickel. This work wears so well and is so dainty that it is most popular out here. Last Friday there was held a bazaar of the different industries among the Mission schools and there must have been five hundred dollars worth of tatting sold. One lady bought more than $50 worth. - The Oberlin program came which gave Will's name among the D.D's [Doctor's of Divinity]. Ruth's letter had already told us of it. Now I am curious to know the procedure of bestowing the degree. Did they notify Will some time before? I am rather glad that Oberlin did it, not only to save Will from having to deny the title, but because it means that his life has been a success in the judgment of his Alma Mater. Was Phebe Kinney there for the ceremony and did Will have or get a gown of his own for the occasion? This will be too late to get his answer, but you may know. - The other day I was dining with the Wilders. Mr. Wilder was given the same degree last year. I hope we may have Will, Ellen, and the two girls with us here at Pei Tai Ho two years from now. The Wilders will plan to be here then, too. I think we could have a good time if we had run our own house. We are glad to be spared the housekeeping this year, though it can hardly be said to be entirely restful in a house hold of a dozen people. Mrs. Lowry does keep her children quiet every afternoon so that the house is absolutely still from 2 to 4 P.M. Her house is large with spacious verandas and freshly painted and kalsomined [a light colored liquid used to white wash walls] throughout. We live on the very best cuts of meat, the finest fruit, and a home garden, so that we are getting our money's worth- even though we are paying top notch prices. I believe we shall go back to our work built up and refreshed.

One day this last week Dr. Porter pulled out of my leg the piece of needle that was broken off in it about 15 years ago. I am sending it to you so that you can realize how big it was. All these years I have never felt it. About three months ago I happened to notice that the spot where it went in was quite red and that it looked a little festered. It did not feel sore and soon the yellowish tinge went away. Then I could see a tiny black spot like a sliver end and could feel the end of the needle quite plainly. Dr. Porter had no trouble at all in getting hold of the needle as it was just under the skin, but it took all her strength to pull it out. It was so imbedded and rusted in. I kept and application of carbolized Vaseline on the spot for a day or two, but it had given me no trouble at all.

We are very grateful to father for canceling our bills for us but as you will see from one of the enclosures I am still needing more things. Word has come through the mission treasurer that Phebe Maria has paid $2.00 gold for transportation of a cot bed to me. I shall be glad to have it, for I will sell the one that I now have and keep the new one for myself. Nearly every trip we make needs a cot bed and if we do really go up into Mongolia next summer, I shall need one for the time we camp out. Some people have just returned from there and report the weather so cold that they slept under all they owned. - I think our brothers have done a fine deed to make out the dozens in the silver. It will be much appreciated. Also I am glad to have the rug fund [for the school floor] really begun. We shall try to complete it this winter, so that our sitting- room may be more homelike- though, now every one exclaims over the pleasantness of it. We shall have Mrs. Corbett's piano this year, but I am already wondering how it is going to seem to hear the practicing for several hours a day.

With love- Flora Beard.

Dear Mother and all the rest:-

We had a delightful ride into New Haven. Ellen and Dot came in at the time the train was to leave but Ellen could not give up shopping. Dorothy wanted to come home so I brought the six children home. It rained hard before we reached Willimantic and while we [were] there. But stopped when we reached Putnam.

I found mail here and among it the Oberlin Alumni Magazine. I am mailing it direct to you. If you would like to you may keep it, and I will get another. It has in it a verbatim copy of what was read (p. 305) for each of us who received degrees and also what Pres. King said (p. 308) as he conferred the degrees and gave diplomas.

Gould and I have put in a good two hours at the packing.

I ought to add that I am entirely satisfied with what Prof. Wager read as the ground on which the degree was conferred. It is a true characterization of the ideals toward which I have worked. It is not overstated and there is no flattery.

The pleasure of the gathering Saturday afternoon will remain green for a long time, and it was a very pleasant family gathering of being in the old home these various times during the past few weeks has been very deep and precious.

With love to all

Will.

The President and Faculty Of OBERLIN COLLEGE
in the State of Ohio

To all whom these words concern. Greetings:

Be it known that
Willard Livingstone Beard

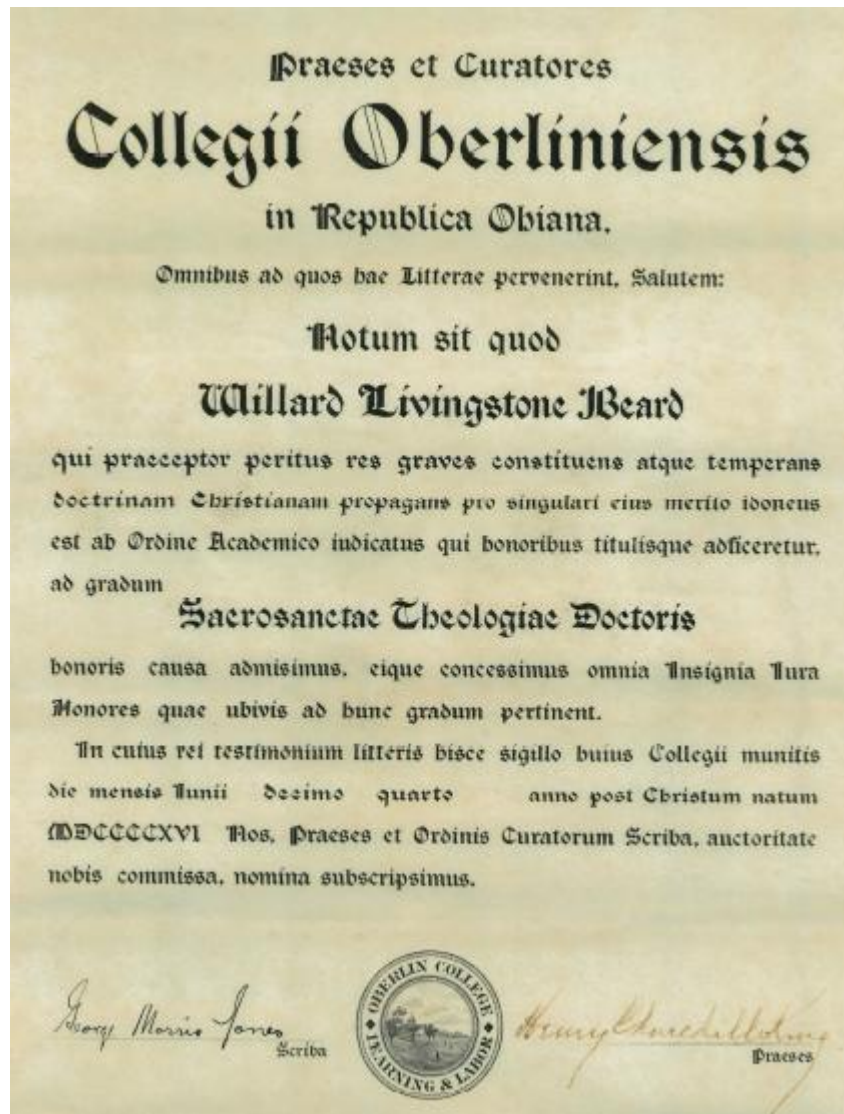

Who is a skillful administrator, guiding and directing important affairs, propagating the Christian doctrine, on account of his singular merit is fittingly designated by the Academic Order to be decorated with honors and privileges, we admit to the degree of Sacred Theological Doctor.

(Doctor of Divinity)
With honor.

The President and Secretary of the Faculty of the authority vested in us and we give to him all the honors and privileges which pertain to this degree.

In testimony of this we have affixed to this diploma with the seal of this College our names, on this 14th day of June 1916,

George Morris Jones - Henry Churchill King

Willard's Diploma awarding him an Honorary Doctor of Divinity from Oberlin College, June 1916.
[Document from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Words "Presented to President King, by Dr. Charles H.A. Wager for degree of Doctor of Divinity as able missionary, organizer, administrator and educator."

Willard Livingstone Beard.

"There are few, if any, posts, Mr. President, in which the sons of Oberlin are serving their generation and bringing honor to their College that are of higher significance, of more critical import for the future of civilization than an educational post in the republic of China. So fraught with possibility is that reticent and mysterious land, so pregnant in consequence are the results of her entrance into the life of the western world, that the man who, in any degree, directs the higher education of her citizens wields a far-reaching and incalculable influence. I have the honor to present to you such a man, a graduate of Oberlin, who for twenty years has been engaged in Christian work in China.

As evangelist and teacher, as a pioneer in the work of the Young Man's Christian Association in the province of Foochow, and as the president of Foochow College, a position which he has held for three years, he has given evidence of such administrative power and such evangelical consecration as have made him a marked man even in a field so rich in talent and devotion as the field of Chinese missions. I have the honor to present to you, for the degree of Doctor of Divinity, the Rev. Willard Livingstone Beard, of the class of 1891."

Katharine Lee Bates, author of the lyrics for “America the Beautiful” was also given an honorary degree at Oberlin College on June 14th, 1916 with Willard. She was given the Doctor of Letters.

Dear Ones at Home,

Mother's letter telling of rain, rain, and yet more rain sounds like what we ought to be writing. Instead everything is dry and we are almost hoping for some wet for the sake of the crops. Perhaps the season is only delayed a month.

I am sitting on the ground out on the tennis court under the mat covering. The breeze is delightful and it is a most quiet spot except for a few flies. The sea is like a mill pond these days and full of jelly fish. They began last week with little ones one or two inches in diameter. Yesterday they were four or six inches big. We gather them and bring them on the sand but it is a hopeless task to try to get rid of them. They sting but the pain is like that of a nettle sting and is over in half an hour or so. Last week we went swimming in the morning as usual and then took a moonlight dip about 9.30 P.M. It was great fun and let us get into bed thoroughly cooled off.

Flora's union suits came this week and she was so low in that article that she was glad to see them. If you have not sent my corsets (or letter under another cover), please send me some stockings. I like the "Everwear" stockings with ribbed tops and $10\frac{1}{2}$ in size. I have been wearing the \$3.00 a half dozen light weight for summer and medium for winter. I should like a half dozen of each in black.

I got some Phoenix silk hose at 75 cents a pair a year before I came out and am still wearing them without a hole. If you can get me (2) two pair of white ones I should appreciate it. I have walked to Rocky Point four times. Twice I wore my silk stockings and twice not. The silk ones stood the test but both the others had to be darned. They have lisle feet and tops so are silk only where they show; but the silk is a heavy quality.

Church for the Chinese servants of East Cliff is just out and the hill side is dotted with figures in all directions. The attendance is getting larger every week and will probably reach its maximum about next Sunday.

On Tuesday we had a picnic supper on the beach under Eagle Rock. It was delightful down there. The cliff protected us from the cool wind that was blowing and the ocean was beautifully calm and near.

Yesterday about a dozen of us ladies went shell hunting over on the beach toward the sand dunes. We did not get any especially interesting ones but we had fun. We wore old shoes or none at all and paddled through the puddles on the flats to our hearts content.

Tomorrow I start in to study Chinese for two hours every morning. I shall not spend five hours a day as Doctor Porter and Flora are doing. Life is too short, and the swimming and tennis too attractive. Neither of them care especially for the physical exercise so use the mental instead.

I am so glad Dr. Porter is here. Flora has a companion for a quiet inactive life who is congenial and who likes the life. I should die to sit still all morning and take a stroll for an hour only in the late afternoon. Since she has company she is no longer scornful of my love of activity and we are both happier.

When we walk over to Rocky Point for Church service I think of home and how hard we would think it to walk to Shelton to service. To be sure our hour is better- 5.00 P.M. The walk over is hot but it is delightful coming back after six.

Both Flora and I have had letters from the bride and groom, mailed at Fairfield Inn. I wrote them a week ago and it was strange to write Mrs. Stanley Beard on an envelope. I wonder if Stanley is getting accustomed to saying it yet. Flora laughs at me because I want to buy everything I see to give to Stanley and Myra. There are so many interesting, useful and cheap things here to get for new housekeepers. I can't get used to the idea that Wells has graduated from Grammar School. How people do grow up!

We are having fresh vegetables from Mrs. Lowry's garden. The peas are gone. Lettuce, endive, potatoes, string beans, beets, corn (the first today) add much to the variety. The tomatoes look fine but last night I went to pick the first four of the season. Every one was wormy and then I investigated. We picked about fifty wormy ones and got enough from the pot for fried tomatoes for breakfast. The gardener was mad and was going to leave at once. Instead he completed my work of picking the bad ones. I only hope we get some good ones for they are badly infected. He is a lazy fellow and does as little work as he possibly can.

Tues. A.M. I stopped for dinner and did not take up my pen again. After dinner we talked for awhile then lay down for a rest. We were all lazy and did not go to church. About 5.30 we were just off for a walk when callers arrived. After they went we went out on the spur of sand to the north of us to hunt for a bird's nest. The pair of birds had made a terrible disturbance every time we walked out there. Five of us went and we were rewarded by finding three eggs half buried in the sand. They look like round sandstones and were very hard to see at first. The parent birds were greatly disturbed and swooped down within two or three feet of our heads. The sharp hissing noise they made frightened us a bit at first. Flora and Doctor retreated because of it the day before but we were so strong in numbers that we went on. The birds even defiled us in their distress. I hated to so alarm them but did want to see the nest. There was no nest, just three eggs in the sand. I think the birds are "Turns." Do you remember them on Penikese Island [off of Cape Cod, MA], Ruth?

Yesterday morning I started my Chinese lessons by studying with a teacher from 10-12. It was a short two hours because [it was] so interesting. I go at it every day now for a month.

The Lowry girls had over for lunch yesterday two girls who are students at the Shanghai American School. They are from Wa Hsien and would be in our school but for a report that got current in Shem Tung province that we had no high school work. I am sorry we lost them for they are charming girls.

We seem cut off from the world here without a daily paper and but little conversation on current topics. The war seems to be going on both in Europe and Mexico. Letters from here sound alarming on the Mexican question until we remember that they are a month old and the paper has already told us the particular crisis is passed.

I must stop for a review of my vocabulary before Chang Hesen (Mr.) Chin arrives.

With lots of love

Mary.

P.S. I enclose some prints. A few are new but most are old ones. If you have them, please, let Phebe have duplicates. I can not remember just what I have sent and find these duplicates in my collection.

With love Mary.

Dear Phebe [sister]:-

Your good letter came yesterday. "Hempfield" came early last week. Thank you for it. I have it in my suit case already.

This noon after church and before dinner Phebe and I sat down to the Diploma- and I am enclosing our product. Did you receive the Oberlin Alumni Magazine? I sent one to father last Monday. It had in it the exact words of Prof. Wager and of President King as they gave the degrees June 15th.

Last week was full of packing and shipping. Gould has told you that I sent off the main part of the shipment Wed. a.m. I have since packed a box and a barrel and have perhaps two barrels and two boxes more to pack. I am writing Gould of the furniture sale.

The girls want to stay to the Chatauqua July 24-31 and Emma and Elbert want them to stay. It looks as if they would come down Aug. 1st. Geraldine has a letter just come, asking her to go to Columbia, Conn. as she did last year. She wants to go and I/we all think it best. She will plan to join the others on the way to Oberlin, or it may seem wisest for her to go back to Shelton. This will depend on the route they take to go to Oberlin. I always went up the Berkshire Div'n. to State line and Albany-Buffalo, Cleveland. It may be just as cheap to go by New Haven, Hartford, Springfield. They will have to look it up.

Mrs. Raymond Jewett may ask Dorothy to come down to Mt. Vernon for a visit- if so we are quite willing she should go. I should think one week is quite long enough for her to stay.

We plan to leave here Thursday afternoon or Fri. morning at 7:30- spend Sunday July 30 with Aunt Ann Paul in Geneseo, Ill.- from there go to Spokane, Wash. For Sunday Aug 6th, - go on from there Monday morning and spend Monday night in Seattle, sailing Tuesday Aug 8th from Seattle, Wash. on the S.S. "Sado Maru" Nippon Yusen Kaisha. We are scheduled to reach Yokohama, Japan, Aug 24th. From there I shall push on by water or by rail as fast as possible to Shanghai and Foochow.

The last eight weeks have been full of deep pleasure for me. I can never think of repaying you all for what you have done for mine and for me. Of course it has been hard to say the good byes and more are to be said. It is hard to leave the children but I realize it is best for them and also for Ellen and myself. It is a great blessing that they have so many near relatives interested in them. I hope they may know how to appreciate and use all this interest. I am leaving them confident in their moral strength to do the right.

With love to all

[Aug. 3, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

We certainly have been having some hot weather. All North China is in desperate need of rain. The usual time for the rainy season has passed without a bit and the sun has been growing hotter and hotter. The result is that the morning and afternoon up to 4 o'clock have been spent strictly at home. I have been studying Chinese all the morning since July 5th and shall keep it up until about August 20th when my teacher goes back to Peking. This will give me a little over a week before we go back to Tungchou. I am learning a lot about the language and can understand a word or two- at times.

We have had several picnic suppers (in Chinese "wild eating") on the rocks or near the water, which have been very delightful affairs. When our family goes out we go near by and always the ice cream freezer is our companion. It goes home with an empty stomach while ours are full!

On the hottest day of the week we went over to Rocky Point (the larger part of the Pei Tai Ho foreign settlement, 3 miles away) to make calls. Dr. Porter had an invitation from Drs. Heath and [left blank], to talk over her plans- so Mary and I chose that day in order for us all to make some calls together. We walked back (we went over in chairs and Mary by donkey) and we were nearly melted to a grease spot though it was 8 P.M. when we reached home. Dr. Porter will be in the American Board Compound this winter and will have the care of the health of the girls in the Union College. She is also planning to do some teaching in the Women's Medical School and take some private cases, the last to help toward her own support. She is a very keen woman and I hope she fits in happily.

This last week we have been quite interested in a nest of eggs that we found in the sand of a beach some little distance from our houses. Because two terns were so agitated when we appeared, we thought it must be a tern's nest, but yesterday, Dr. Wilder (a bird lover) proved that it was a ploer's nest. We found one egg hatched and it took quite a bit of careful scrutiny to find the little chick about 10 inches from the nest standing as still as a mouse. Dr. Wilder picked up the second egg and we heard the faint "peep, peep" of the little one within, but the third egg was silent. As soon as the little chick found himself discovered he ran as fast as he could away from us, but Dr. Wilder caught him, examined him so that by his bill he knew it to be a plover.

We were on our way (6 A.M.) to the sand dunes about four miles from here. On the return (9.30 A.M.) Mary and Dr. Wilder stopped and there was no sign of the birds- only the one had egg left. That Dr. W. blew and took home to add to his collection.

We are hoping for another home mail soon. The last one brought a letter from Will, Ruth's and Phebe's descriptions of the wedding, mother's newsy letter, and my four union suits. I am hoping my bathing suit may come in the next mail. I have not been in bathing yet but have not been particularly anxious to go because the water is nothing but a jelly fish soup. There are thousands of the jelly fish drying on the sands and are most disgusting. They sting the bathers if they happen to touch the skin- very much like a nettle sting. Mary goes in every day, regardless. With love- Flora.

On the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul R.R. just out of Minneapolis Thursday morning 11:00 o'clock.

Dear Mother:-

And "Mother" stands for all the loved ones. All has gone nicely thus far. Elbert took us to Worcester last Friday morning as the girls have told you. That night was very comfortable on the cars. Kathleen and I had a blanket over us all night. But Saturday was pretty hot all day, specially in the afternoon, and we found them complaining bitterly at Geneseo, Ill. 102 degrees in the shade. This continued till Monday night. Tues. night was comfortable and it has been very pleasant since. If we had gone right through without stopping it would have been well nigh unendurable, but we got cooler weather and we also got a good rest. The girlies are a great pleasure to me and they are taking to travelling all right. Ellen had made for them some very thin silk bloomers, in which they are cool. Dressed alike thus they pass for twins. At Aunt Ann's they had a lot of fun riding a gentle old white horse.

Yesterday a thresher threshed out 1200+ bushels of oats for Aunt Ann. It took ten spans of horses and some 20 men. They began at 7 a.m. and finished at 2 p.m. The oats were grown on 24 acres. Last year on the same acreage they had 1300+ bushels. Last winter the price was 48 cents. This year the drought is bad all thru this section. I saw a man in the station at St. Paul who said he had just come from the Dakotas. The winter wheat was much injured by drought and by the black rust, and 1000's of acres would not be cut at all.

Last night we took the 7:42 p.m. train on The Rock Island according to schedule- went to bed soon and woke up near St. Paul- got up in time to leave the train at 7:25- waited till 10:40 and are now off for Spokane,- only two days and two nights.

You will be able to tell when we are going and when we are at a station. I think the writing is a little worse when [we] are moving.

We found Aunt Ann and cousin Addie and cousin Carl as well as usual [Ellen's relatives]. Aunt Ann was 85 the first of last April. She has been in the hospital twice during the past two years. The trouble was an abscess. This still has to be dressed and the Doctor comes every other day now. Her daughter Addie is getting to be a good nurse. The abscess does not trouble her much, but it has to be dressed daily and it will not likely heal as long as she lives. She is remarkably well preserved for one of her years and altho she [is] quite deaf so that she hears only thru a trumpet or if you put your mouth close to her left ear, yet she finds so much pleasure in reading that she is not lonely. She takes much delight in church matters and particularly in missions and she is a constant giver to missions both home and foreign.

The farm on which they live has 80 acres in it and is only 1 mile from Geneseo City. They own another farm of 160 acres four miles from Geneseo City. A farm just across the road from the 80 acre homestead was sold last week for $320 per acre and land near the 160 acre farm is selling for around $200.

8 p.m. All the afternoon we have been riding over a rolling prairie. Oats and corn are everywhere. The big 2, 4, 5 and 6 horse binders are busy in the oat fields. It has been pretty hot, but we are in a Tourist Pullman with rattan covered seats which are much cooler than the wool upholstery. We have two whole sections to ourselves and so are quite comfortable.

The eight weeks which I have had with you all are full of the most pleasant memories. I feel almost selfish in having had so much pleasure- every day was full and nothing to mar it. I feel as if I had very inadequately expressed my thanks. I hope my manners and looks gave forth something of what I was enjoying. I feel also that the children are in the right place for the year and that they will be able to decide during the year the best course to pursue in the future.

May the Father keep us and find us each profitable to Him.

With love to all- Parents, children and sisters and brothers.

Will

Forty-seven people went to Rocky Point for the American Board picnic and another time, twenty-seven went for a breakfast picnic to the sand dunes. Mary and Flora waded in the tide pools while there. Mary mentions some of the games they play to pass the time. It has been dry and the natives have been praying to their gods for rain. [About Aug. 7, 1916]

Dear Ones at Home,

Now, what do you say to me as a Chinese scholar! [See end of this letter for sample of Mary's Chinese writing.] I did them all myself and am sure of the order of strokes except in mein. I have been taking two hours a day with a teacher studying one to two by myself for just two weeks. I shall have but one hour a day for two weeks more then back to the study free life till we leave here.

The mails are most unsatisfactory these days. Never a home letter finds itself into our hands. Ching, ching, hsien!! This week I began on my third year in my diary. It certainly makes the five years seem nearer gone to see only two empty spaces on the page.

This has been a full week socially. On Tuesday we went over to Rocky Point for the American Board picnic out on the rocks. Flora went in a chair and early to do some business. Dr. Porter walked and I rode a donkey while the boy carried the lunch basket. There were forty seven of us and we had an excellent supper and a jolly good time. We had sandwiches, rolls, salad, fried chicken, baked beans, baked potatoes, olives, pickles, coffee, ice cream and cake. Then we went out on the point of rocks and sang. As there were several good voices in the company it sounded very fine.

There were eight or ten of us from this point – to walk home so we had a jolly time.

On Wednesday we were up at 4.45 for a picnic breakfast party to the sand dunes. It was an ideal morning. There were 27 of us, some on donkeys and some on foot. Two donkeys with panniers carried the lunch baskets and water melons.

The tide was so far out that we did not really need to get our feet wet. Since I had my bathing suit on I thought it a pity to stay too dry so waded the pools. I wish you could have seen Flora. She was a "plump little girl" with her skirt just below her knees. The hem was nearly a foot in depth. The rest of us had just as short skirts but did not look nearly so funny as she did in shortened skirts. We slid down the steep slopes and passed about an hour after breakfast before returning. Dr. Wilder came over and we visited our sea bird's nest. The eggs were Ringed Plover eggs not Terns eggs. One awkward, long-legged baby was running about when we went over and two had hatched and were gone before our return. The other egg showed no signs of hatching so Dr. Wilder picked it. It was bad so he took it for the college collection. The Terns surely had a nest near but the babies were off before we discovered our mistake. That afternoon Flora and I went to tea at Mrs. Edwards, our next door neighbor. I had a good time tending her four months old baby who is a dear. It had begun to rain about three so I think our hostess was a little surprised to see us.

On Friday we went calling on our other near neighbors.
 Yesterday we went to Rocky Point for supper with Mrs. Martin and stayed for the concert in the evening. There was a committee meeting in the afternoon so I played with the baby until that was over. There are three darling babies in that household. They do miss dear little Helen, especially Lyman does because those two were near enough of an age to be always together. She was so keen that mentally she could keep up with Lyman in any play.

The concert was very good. There is quite a bit of talent here though nothing very extraordinary. The hall was full last evening although it had thundered nearly all afternoon and the heavens showed hardly a star.

On Friday when it stormed the surf was glorious over here. We could not go far out because of the strength of the waves, but I felt as though I had had a massage all over and not a very gentle one either.

I started this letter out under the rocks but the heavens got so black and the thunder so near that I came in. In about two minutes it began to rain and now it is pouring and the thunder is here too. Chinese church is in progress on the porch corner so I am sitting in the dining room door to see to write. My subconscious mind hears a Chinese sermon near by and occasionally my unconscious mind catches a familiar word. I hear the words for you, he, I, his friend, man, yours, this, that, want, have, are, big sister, Jesus, not, there, water, one-half, etc.

I started this week to collect a few specimens of the flora here. The wild flowers have been very beautiful all summer. Last Sunday I found a tiny orchid on the hillside.

Dr. Lowry is a great chess friend and I have played with him two evenings. The first evening he beat me two games. The next time he won two games then I won one. I had to fight the longest for my game. He played that famous trick of check-mating me in four moves. I had seen it but had forgotten it. He does not catch me again!! "108" is another favorite game here and many an evening we sped at that. We play it with real dominoes but often it is played with domino cards of the size of flinch cards or smaller. I am getting to understand the game so that I fully enjoy it.

One interesting thing to me is the game lovers we find in our missionary circles. Nearly every station has its pet game. At Pao Ting Fu, "Rook" was the rage. At the Methodist mission in Peking, "42" or "108" is all the rage. "Baseball" had its adherents in some places.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant arrived last evening so tomorrow we lose Delnoce from our circle and have a family of thirteen only. Does not that sound like the size family we used to have at home?

Tennis still holds popular since we have our two fine courts. I have played twice this week. The rains put the courts out of use and social duties demanded my attention.

This week we have had a boat out on our bathing beach from 10-1 every day except the stormy one. The children are quite thrilled over diving. I tried it a couple of times yesterday. Really I prefer swimming and am getting so I can swim on any one of my four sides equally well. By changing I can go almost any distance and not get especially tired.

The natives have been praying to their gods for rain all this week. Representatives from every family in every village hereabouts (12 I have heard) – are parading each day, beating tom-toms and holding some form of ceremony up at the temple of Lighthouse Point. Two of the girls were stopped one morning and told to remove shoes and hats before passing through the village. They got through without doing so finally. Each man, woman or child wears a wreath of willow branches and carries one in his hand. They have paraded through Rocky Point several times but have not been over here. The rains of this week are of course thought to be in answer to their prayers and no persuasion can convince them that there is a higher Creator who is looking after their needs.

I have just been reading the Life of John D. Paton and these heathen ceremonies with their superstitions remind me so much of some of his experiences in the New Hebrides. I have sent in my last letters for stockings and corsets. One more necessity confronts me. I need brassiers. I get size 36, preferably the net material so as to have them cool in summer. I should like three (3). I give all the way from 50 cents to $1.25 for them so use your judgement.

Have I written that we pay import duty on all packages valued $5.00 (five) or over, but nothing on anything of less value? So please send more parcels of less value rather than a few parcels of great value. We have tried to pack materials for home so as to save you paying duty. Have we succeeded?

Willard must be already on his way across the continent. How short two months are after all? But how the anticipation and the after thoughts of the joys do seem to prolong them!

I must stop and take a nap for it was late ere I got to bed last night and I seem to be rambling on endlessly.

With lots of love
Mary

Busch Hotel
Seattle

Tuesday a.m. 8 o'clock Aug. 8th 1916

Dear Geraldine, Phebe, Gould and Dorothy:-

We reached Seattle last evening at just 8 o'clock- right on schedule time. I wrote Grandma somewhere on the way between Geneseo and Spokane, so I'll just begin with our stop at Spokane.

First let me say I put Geraldine's name first because I find her letter among the great pile that I found at the office here last night.

We have had an exceptionally pleasant journey across the continent. All have been well all the time. Our schedule has been followed exactly, trains have been on time. Only day has been oppressive- Saturday July 29th. We were pretty hot on the train in the afternoon. But we were very fortunate in stopping at Geneseo at Aunt Ann's the next four days. It was warm there but we could dress as we chose and could find quiet and all the breeze that was going. Then too we got washed up-clothes and all- and such a rest!!! The journey to Spokane was comfortable. We needed blankets every night. At Spokane Mrs. E.C. Stillman R.F.D. #1 met us at the station at 7:50 a.m. We had already breakfasted. At 8:45 we started on an auto bus for Mrs. Stillmans (I knew her in Oberlin as Edith Cowley) and reached there in about half an hour. Every thing there was dry and dusty. Mr. and Mrs. Stillman have some 28 acres of land, a nice modern house, with all improvements, a barn, keep two horses and two cows, hens, ducks, geese, pigs!! They are trying the experiments of raising apples on worn out wheat land. Their trees are dying too rapidly to please them.

Mrs. Stillman's father came to Washington nearly 50 years ago when there was one log cabin where Spokane now stands. This cabin was owned by the Indians. He purchased land then for $2.50 per acre. Spokane began to grow and so did the price of his land. The Great Northern R.R. depot stands on land purchased from him. So wealth came to the family. We had a quiet restful day there Saturday. Sunday we all attended church at the Westminster Congregational Church (Dr. Harper pastor) where I spoke. Then Ellen and the girlies went home with Mrs. Stillman. I went to Dr. Harper's for lunch, spoke at a meeting in one of the Parks there. As I looked out beyond the audience I could see the Merry-go-round, hear the rumble of the Shoot-the-shoots- and other like attractions. My audience however heard me thru. There was no liquor on the grounds and order prevailed everywhere. The object was to give some of the crowd who came there a chance to hear the Gospel. In the evening I spoke again to the united audience of six churches gathered in the open air. Speaking three times- twice in the open air was pretty trying on my voice and I speak in harsh tones yet. Then to add to the strain the man who took me home in the evening carelessly drove past the Stillman place, and found himself 12 miles, instead [of] six from Spokane. He turned round, his lights went out and he found the bulb on one light gone bad. With a copper wire he made the connection and then tried to start his machine. This took another 15 minutes. So when I got to Mrs. Stillmans it was 11 p.m. instead of 9:30 as it should have been. I wore full suit and had an overcoat on beside and was chilly. Yesterday morning we started at 6:45 from Mrs. Stillmans and took the 8:05 train from Spokane and rode 12 hours, arriving here at 8 p.m. Yesterday afternoon the scenery was beautiful thru the Cascade mountains. We were pretty tired when we reached here. You see we rose at 5:45 and it was go and look see for 12 steady hours on the train which is tiresome.

As soon as we reached the Hotel I went at once to the office of the Nippon Yusen Kaisha, which chanced to be open and got my hands full of mail from lots of people. It is very good of you all and of all the others to remember us in this way.

Now I must close and write other important business letters. I cannot tell how much pleasure the girlies and mama are. The girlies are fine travelers and with their silk blue bloomers and blue hair ribbons they are very free and comfortable. Kathleen sleeps with me most of the time and Marjorie with Mama. They have gone shopping now.

The "Sado Maru" is held up by a strike of the Longshoremen. We are going by the "Awa Maru" tomorrow Aug. 9th. On my ticket I have four $5.00 stamps. This is what we pay to help carry on the war. $5.00 for every person, large or small who leaves the country.

With the European war, Mexican trouble, Strike of Longshoreman on the Pacific and threatened Railroad Strike we are fortunate in so little delay or discomfort.

I am sending in another envelope to Gould a check for $50.00 on the First National Bank of Putnam. Use enough to buy your watch and the rest I send for emergencies. Let me know how you use it, who uses it etc.

May our Father bless and keep each of you

Love to you all and to all at Shelton Your Father
Willard L. Beard

I wish you would show this to all the people in Shelton, B-port and Pearl River- then send it to Putnam.

Pei Tai Ho, Aug. 13, 1916.

Dear folks at home:-

We are again down by the waves and there is a stiff breeze blowing in from the sea which is most welcome for it [is] a hot day. I think we have had a hot summer; so many days would have been uncomfortable had we not had a big broad veranda. Even then some days were cooler inside the house than on the veranda. - I have been spending my mornings in studying Chinese, hoping to be able to understand some of what our servants will be saying. There is very little grammar- such as we know it- but the way things are twisted and the lot of-tone- useless, little added muhs, tehe, ti's, etc., make of the language a good stiff study. The tones are not so hard here in the North as there are but four tones, and if we only put an er on the end of a word we can generally be understood. My afternoons, I have spent sewing, reading, and writing, but soon may seem to have accomplished very little. We have less than three weeks before we go back to the strain and stress of life. It looks as if every place would be filled of those we planned to receive in our school. We are not doing a bit of advertising- except for teachers. I do not yet know what we are to do for help. It seems to me that the committee is very slow, and I think I shall offer a suggestion to sign up with some one of the available persons.

Yesterday I sent off a letter to meet Will at Yokohama, in which I have suggested that he be on the lookout for the "S.S. Empress of Russia" on which a lot of Peking people are returning. It sailed two days later than his, but I hope they may meet in some of the Japanese ports. The Porters are returning to Tungchou on it and could bring the package directly to us. If he does meet the steamer he could leave the package at the Kobe College and get some one there to take it to the "Russia". I think, though, that he will probably see the people on that steamer.

We are having a regular Sahara of letters- without a single oasis. It is a whole month now since we have had a letter from you. The last ones were written June 15th. I presume you have more than had your time "full" with Will's short visit. I am so glad that he really did go, and it seems to me that so many events got crowded into it that he must feel the same way.

I hope you people may find it possible to meet the Corbett's while they are at home for you will find Mrs. Corbett a charming little woman to know. Also it would be a pleasure to know Miss Leavens, in Norwich. She is much better in health, and it will be a good thing for her to get interested in the world again. She wrote that Will had spoken in her church but she did not hear him as she had not then been out to church since her return home.

This afternoon we are going to hear Dr. Coffin (of New York City) at the foreign service. We are looking forward to a treat. It is so far over to Rocky Point (over 3 miles) that I have been to but one church service. I think to-day will probably be the last, until the next time (if even) we come to Pei Tai Ho. If Will, Ellen, and the children will come up two years from this summer, we will take a house over at Rocky Point, and spend another summer here. Mary enjoys the bathing and is looking finely. She takes a nap nearly every afternoon, and she should feel ready for her year's work. I think it will take at least two years more to get our school established so that if we wished to go home then we could. I rather want to stay out the five years and spend about six months on the trip home- hoping that the war will have ended by then. We had some N.Y. papers from the Brubrooks and Miss Brewster a week ago with some details of the war but really the news is about the same kind of atrocity that we have been reading now for two years. We're glad to get the papers just the same for other bits of information is in them. Lovingly- F. Beard.

Dear Ones at Home,

Phebe's letter which came this week was like an oasis in a desert and most interesting. What a busy time you did have with strawberries, receptions, etc! Our last letter told of the wedding.

I am not sure how coherent this letter will be because I am writing in our room which is on the corner with veranda on each side. Chinese Church is going on outside. The men sit in front and the women on the side veranda. Mr. Ogilvy is preaching and I am going to stay for awhile to see how much I can understand. I did not get enough of the prayer to know what he was talking about. I can understand the number of the hymns when he announces them.

On last Sunday we all went to lunch to hear Dr. Coffin. He gave a fine sermon. The children's talk was on the little red animal we each possess but keep behind white bars guarded further by red curtains. It runs, stings like an asp and cuts our friends to pieces unless carefully guarded. A pretty good description of an unruly tongue, do not you think? It began to rain just as we started for home and we got soaked. It stormed all night and until Tuesday. The surf was glorious with waves that nearly upset us. The boat was useless as the ladder wouldn't stay attached and it rocked so it would have made us seasick.

On Monday after lunch there was a let up so Flora and I went out to the point to see the waves lash the rocks. Again we got caught and raced for the nearest home until the storm was over. We got wet the third time on Thursday when we went to call on the Grams who live on the top of the hill. We began to think we had a bad effect on the weather.

On Wednesday we had a large tea here with about fifteen guests. On Thursday we had callers again until nearly six then went for the call mentioned above. Friday was the second Bazaar so most of the family was at Rocky Point. I decided to keep my money so did not go over. I did play three stiff sets of tennis that evening.

Yesterday morning Flora finished the dress she has been making and wore it last evening. I worked on mine but still must work some more. We had morning callers. We all took our dip and again the sea was slightly ruffled by an east wind.

Yesterday afternoon Flora and I went to Rocky Point. We called on Mrs. Young where we met a Mrs. Latimore who is talking of sending her son to school. Then we called at the Hoagland's to talk over the care of Charles Childress with Mr. H. Then we stopped at Mrs. Aments and went to Mrs. Martins for supper and attended the concert. There were recitations and vocal music but no instrumental. Oh yes, there was! Mr. Hubbard played "Home Sweet Home" and "The Rosary" on a bicycle pump. Funny? I laughed until I cried. For an encore he sang through a megaphone. That was good but not so very good. Since we were without masculine escort we came home in chairs. It is my first ride here and I had a fine chair and bearers.

I gave up trying to think coherently and went over to the Frames. Francis was awake and in a most gracious mood so it was good fun.

Our Chinese teacher departed on Saturday so Friday was the last lesson. The days seem very much longer without the two hours of study. I hope to get my dress finished in short order now.

I wonder where Phebe will be next year and hope that the Agency succeeds in getting a good position. I am sending a few prints which I have just taken. The Chinese is our teacher, Mr. Yang, but a very poor picture of him. Flora and I are standing near a big rock just in front of our home. The view is of the group of homes on our porch. Our home is the big one just under the cross. The ruins are of a home destroyed in 1900. There are several such ruins here at East Cliff.

This is the view we get as we return from Rocky Point. I will get some more prints of Flora and me when I get back. They are a cent cheaper in Peking and on a large order it pays to wait. Also I like Hartwig's work a little better.

I had the slip for my goods from National Suit and Clark Co. on Tuesday and have sent for them to be remailed here. I want to get any necessary refitting done while here.

I must go out and greet Mr. Spiker as it is nearly dinner time and he is to be here this noon.

With lots of love

Mary

[Aug. 27, 1916]

Dear Folks at Home:-

This is our last Sunday at Pei Tai Ho and the wind is blowing a gale. There must be a typhoon around somewhere. It started about midnight and is increasing now at 11 A.M. The waves are wonderful and are making such a roar that one can't be heard out of doors. Chinese service for the servants had to be given up – and I doubt if they would come even if the preaching could be heard.

This last week has been a busy one with some duties some social doings and getting last things done- or planned for. Several of the teachers from the Shanghai American School have been summering here and at last we met them this week. Several dates had been set previously, but weather or appointments had each time interfered. That school is about four times as large as ours and some years older. If ours should grow as rapidly as that one I don't know how it would be taken care of. We have at last hired the teacher who is to be with us this year- and we hope for years to come. She is a New Jersey Normal School graduate and a chum of the young lady who was my assistant the last year in South Orange. A letter from Mr. Galt suggests that we may have Mrs. Peet (of Foochow) as a possible helper. I am glad for the Foochow people if Mr. and Mrs. Peet can be taken off their hands. Their (Mr. and Mrs. P's) experience and knowledge of Chinese affairs should make them good assistants- if they will try to see things in the right light. It seems to me that being new members and on a temporary arrangement their actual influence should be for good, rather than for trouble. I think four of the men from the mission here have asked me to tell them what I thought about the matter and I have said to each one that it seemed to me quite a possible thing that getting him out of the troublesome atmosphere, he could be of value- educationally. At least it would be worth trying.

This last week we had the lovely surprise of a gift of $400 Mex. to be used for a Domestic Science outfit for our school. It is a course much to be desired out here and we shall begin at once to prepare for it. It will take some time to get it planned, for there is still a lot of organizing to be done this year. We begin the work of the Fourth Year of High School this fall, and that should mean the last "first" planning. This gift is a memorial for a little daughter of some Shantung missionaries, who are planning to send their other little girl to us a year from now.

Among the other excitements of the past week was the arrival of my new bathing suit- which is a perfect fit and quite becoming. I think it had been in Peking for two or three weeks but there was no one to get it until Dr. Lowry went back, and sent it on to me. You can give some information to the post offices at home by assuring them that there is a parcel post, post-office at Pei Tai Ho. The union suits came through quite promptly, arriving over a month ago. There is no post office at Pei Tai Ho except during June, July, August, and September, and then it is a full fledged affair. There are over a thousand foreigners here during the summer and they must receive car loads of stuff by mail, express, and freight. Many of them order their groceries from America to be shipped directly here so as to save bringing them from their stations in the different places about in China. - We probably will not be spending next summer here, but I have little idea where we shall be. Japan, Mongolia, Shansi, Foochow are some possibilities, or we might even be returning home- though that is hardly possible. I think it will need at least two years more to get the school in good running condition.

Our next letters will be sent from Tungchou. We have had just three letters from you this summer- two from Ruth and one from Phebe. We shall be glad to receive more, and are interested to know where Phebe will be.

With love - Flora. Pei Tai Ho,

Tungchou, Sept. 3, '16 [1916]

Dear folks at home:-

We are again in Tungchou in our building, but not settled. Every room in the house is in a clutter, but, by a week from now, we should be in a presentable condition. The screens for the windows and doors are nearing completion and the men are to come in the morning to do the woodwork all over the building. We have a big force promised. We have one more servant to hire and then our force will be complete for the house. Our amah brought back sixty doilies she had been hemstitching for us during this summer and there will still be more than a dozen more for her to get finished before we can set our tables. We shall have a lot of curtains to make- all to be finished by a week from to-morrow. I think things will be ready. - I have just been counting up and if all turn up that are registered we shall have 30 pupils (boarders) and 3 day scholars. There will be five grownups to board, so that our cooks will have to feed 35 people every day. It is going to be some proposition for them, but they will be equal to the job, I think. - To get the duties of all these servants distributed equally, and to accommodate us and them, is not a small task, but that too, will be accomplished during this coming week.- We have not yet succeeded in getting our other teacher and I don't know just where she is to come from. We still have one loop hole and we are hoping we may get out all right.

This last week has been full of experiences. We had planned to start on a trip to the end of the Great Wall, where it goes down to the sea. We were to have started Monday morning, but there had been a violent wind for two days and on Monday it poured- just long enough to keep us home. In the afternoon we planned the trip over and arranged not to return to Peitaiho, but go right on home. So on Tuesday morning we packed our goods and chattels and left the seaside at 2 P.M. to catch a 4.45 P.M. train to Shan Hai Kuan. Everything went just as we desired and we got started (a little after 6 P.M.) for the top of the mountain where we were to camp out in one of the old Confucian temples. It was quite cloudy and there was no moon, and the trip was a two hour one. Fortunately it was a good road all the way and the Temple coolie piloted us. It was so dark that those riding donkeys dismissed their little beasts shortly after they began the climb, but the four loads went clear on to the top. It was so dark that we could hardly feel our way but we all arrived safe and sound, and as hungry as wolves- tired, too. The old keeper got us all the hot water we wanted and the cocoa went right to the spot. We put up our cot beds and tied our mosquito nets to the wide spreading branches of a beautiful old pine tree. The old keeper was sure it would rain before morning, but when I awoke in the night the stars were out in their full glory. We were cold although we were sleeping under two thick steamer rugs, and we had part of our clothes on. We got up, ate our breakfast and then climbed clear to the peak of the mountain, where there was a wonderful view of mountains on one side and a plain and the sea on the other side. We could see the Great Wall wiggling like a snake over the peaks of the mountains and down through the passes. We followed it by our field glasses, down across the plain, clear out to the water's edge. We preferred sitting up there among the views to taking the hot ride out across the plain to see the exact spot where the stones disappear in the water. We spent the day wandering about getting the many beautiful views and ate our supper where we could watch the sun set. Later the young man of our party, who is a fine singer, went up on to the Great Wall. We were on another peak, but we could call back and forth to each other. Then he sang and we heard him perfectly. We went to bed rather early as we planned to get up to see the sunrise. We climbed up to the Wall at 5.15 A.M., and just at 5.25 A.M. the sun came out of the waters of the sea in his fullest splendor. We could not linger long for we must be all packed up and breakfast eaten by 6.45 A.M., for we were to catch a 9 A.M. train for home. We got back to the temple just as the blind priest was making his rounds to the different shrines. There were some in other courts but he did the worshipping, while a young boy made the trips to strike the bells and light the joss-sticks [stick of incense]. The blind priest had a really good face, about the first heathen priest that I have ever seen who looked as though he might be trying to live as he ought to. We went through to Tientsin that day and spent the night there in order to do some shopping. I bought a new hat and a pair of shoes for myself, besides doing a lot of buying for the school. We were impressed with the quantities of American goods displayed in the stores. I bought American shoes, a clock, and some Red Cross adhesive-plaster. The drug stores seemed to be full of American articles. The biggest English firm has advertised that they have positively the last shipment from England until the end of the war.-Willard has arrived in China, but not a word about the silver. I am wondering what has happened.

With love to all- Flora.

Foochow China
Sep. 22 1916

Dear Phebe:

We had no Sunday School today because Mrs. Newell has not come down from the Mountain. Mr. Newell got a letter from Mrs. Newell that that there had been a thief on Kuliang and Mr. Smith told us that Mrs. Nightengale woke up one morning to find her children had hardly any cloths and no shoes. He had gone in behind the mesquite netting and stolen their cloth that they took off the night before. Then he pulled out the box from under their beds and stole the clothes in that all with out waking them up. Then Mrs. Huese had the same done to her and there was another too- but I can not rember their name. When papa came home from the North he brought us some Chinese paper dolls dressed in silk, a lot of shells, a pair of slippers for me and a dress for Monnie and some Chinese dolls for Edith Peace. There were some babies born on the mountain they are Clara Jean Worly, Ethel Vicers Turner, Gorge

Cuthburt Topping and then Frederick Donaldson born down here. We have seen them all except Frederick. I hope you are all well. With lots and lots of love Punk [Kathleen]

Sept 24th [1916]

Dear Ones at Home,

Our ranks are gradually being filled up. Yesterday the Ramsay children arrived and today we had word that the Nelsons are on the way. It takes them 21 days to get here. I imagine most of the way is by cart and that is a slow means of locomotion.

This week things have been going along at a reasonable rate. On Tuesday I met the school lady and we talked over first steps toward student government. The children are to take charge of inspection of rooms, flowers, mailing letters, school room blackboards, playground, arranging living room for chapel and perhaps more later. I have had to prod several committees to get the work done but still hope it will work out when well started. On Wednesday the High School met to consider starting again our school paper. We got out one number two years ago but did nothing with it last year. There was much enthusiasm until mention was made of writing for it. Then a great groan was given. Perhaps they thought Delnoce and I would write it!!

One afternoon I had a thoroughly enjoyable but unscientific game of tennis with three small children. The exercise wasn't much either but the fun compensated in part.

Yesterday I went to the station to see the children off for Peking. Five extra ones went to visit so we are reduced in numbers here.

This year I am taking charge of evening study hall and find that I get my own studying in much more easily and without sitting up so late. When the children have baths I have to leave several times to see about them as Flora never goes up with the children to bed, also I have to send someone to light lamps. Yet I have much more time. Flora says she likes it better too so I hope we continue the arrangement.

I have interesting work this year, even more to my taste than last year. Mr. Gordon has taken my 1st and 2nd year High School English classes. There were no other High School English classes. I omitted the 4th year and put the children in Chemistry instead. By giving Chemistry I was able to omit a History and French class too so it really is an economy of time. Mrs. Porter takes my Latin one class and I am so glad. She is an excellent Latin student and has taught it several years so I feel that the class is most fortunate to have her. Mrs. Wickes continues with the French class which she started last year. That leaves me with Chemistry, Caesar, Cicero, 1st Algebra and 2nd Algebra in the High School and the English and History of the 8th grade. I almost forgot that Mrs. Galt has taken the Ancient History class.

On Wednesday Miss Hill and Miss Knotts came down for the afternoon. They are just out from America to visit a cousin who lives in Peking and came that they might look us over and have Flora look them over. Miss Hill is a graduate of Boston Conservatory of Music and has had two years of university work. Her recommendation sounds most attractive. She will take the vocal music in the grades and high school both and the [unreadable words] pupils of both piano and violin. She will have to be here a day and a half. Miss Knotts is an art student and will come one half day a week for art and perhaps folk-dancing. She suggests the later but we have not yet felt the wishes of the parents to discern if they want it. Both are very young and attractive.

We are having grapes from our own vine. At least it is ours as long as the compound has no single ladies and we support the man who has charge of the garden where the vine grows. The girls and I went over and picked them on last Friday and Monday afternoons. There are a few more but they were not ripe. We had nearly a bushel in all. The bees had eaten many and so we dared not leave them to pick day by day as we used them.

I have at last gotten my school bookkeeping started. I got Robert McCann to help me. He helps his father in keeping the A.B.C.F.M. books when home of vacations. He gave me several pointers and I found on entering my Day Book items in the ledger that we had made only a few errors. Those I was able to rectify. If you hear of anyone coming to the foreign field tell them not to omit a study of bookkeeping in their course. Everyone comes to the necessity of using it sooner or later as every individual school or set of schools has a separate account. Generally the task of keeping them is portioned out so as to not overburden any one with too much mathematics. Mrs. Corbett kept ours last year and she is an expert. My book is most untidy beside hers but I shall strive to improve. I took accounts with the banker last Monday for the first time. Our accounts agreed exactly. He comes out to us about once a month to compare records and receive more money on account if needed. All of our street supplies, wages and local accounts I pay through him. He charges 30 cents discount in $100 for all checks deposited but the convenience is worth it. As treasurer I am doubly assured as the bookkeeping is less. How is that for laziness! Let the school pay to make work easier?

The Frames returned from Pei Tai Ho Friday so now our circle is complete. Francis is as friendly as before I left Pei Tai Ho and came to me at once. She patted my cheek and said "Ai" which is Chinese for love. She is a darling. The Love babies are both sick with colds so will not be at all friendly.

Our girls are not quite as numerous as we thought so we are going to have one of the little rooms here on the top floor vacant. We will let the amah sew there and keep one bed in it for Miss Hill on the night she has to stay. Then we may have week end guests who occupy it. Just now Mrs. Ramsay is using it. Dr. Porter has the room downstairs where the three girls not yet here will be.

Mr. Gordon is proving a good friend of the boys as is Mr. Beers. Flora objects a little (then only to me) because they do not feel it incumbent upon them to have at least one here over Saturday. Both had to be in Peking last night so the boys were alone.

There are two servants there so they are safe enough.

Dr. Hemingway was here this week and had supper with us Friday. He has invited us to spend Christmas in Shansi with them. We will chaperone the girls (Adelaide 11 yrs, and Isabel 9 yrs) both ways. I am going anyway. Flora says she does not know about her getting away except to be there over Sunday and Christmas. As usual she assures me I am not needed here so I am going to take her at her word and depart with the children on the first train.

I have always insisted on staying by and getting told that it is needless.

There goes the dinner bell.

With lots of love,

Mary.

[This letter dated Oct. 1, 1916 from Tungchow, China by Flora to the folks at home. There are 29 children in their boarding school. Flora talks about Mr. Larsen, father of some of her students. Once a missionary, he became an adviser to Pres. Yuan Shi Kai for a time. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Tungchow, Oct. 1, 1916.

Dear folks at home:-

It is four weeks since I have written you, for I skipped my turn two weeks ago- the first time I think since we came to North China. I was just too busy and weary to write.

We have opened school with twenty-nine boarding scholars and two young men who act as chaperones to the boys. We have cleaned and furnished Mrs. Corbett's house and have twelve boys over there. Our own building is full of girls. We have no teacher to help us and there is much to be done. We have added three members to our servant force- which does not lessen the number of things to be seen to. At present we have nine servants, and I don't believe they exactly idle away the whole day. It is taking some time and patience to get them contented and I am hoping that tomorrow may get everything settled, so that the household part may run automatically - or nearly so. I wish you could see our bunch of pupils for they are a keen lively lot, and inspiring. This year we are to have five Swedish children. Three of them have been students at Chefoo and they are only just now opening up, for at Chefoo they were hardly allowed to speak. These three children are a part of a large family whose father is just at present one of the firm engaged in exporting to U.S. all sorts of Chinese products. He has a large ranch three days journey into Mongolia, where he keeps hundreds of horses. It was there we had planned to go to give up the trip because of the threatened bandits- and also because the young lady planning the party died. Now one of the plans for next summer is to go, not only into Mongolia, but to take a trip on up to the border of the Desert of Gobi. Mr. Larson (the man whose children I am writing) was one of the party who took the Ford automobile up to the Living Buddha at Lhasa, which was pictured in the Geographical Magazine a few years ago. The most interesting thing about Mr. Larson is his relationship to the late Pres. Yuan Shih Kai. Mr. Larson came out to China as a missionary in Kalgan and Mongolia. He came to know affairs in that region very well and when Pres. Yuan needed an adviser for affairs in that vicinity he asked Mr. Larson to come to Peking at several thousands of dollars gold per year, which invitation was accepted. He advised the President so well for the Mongolians and told so many truths about the Russian nation Pres. Yuan retire Mr. Larson with the salary of all the term paid in full. Mr. Larson is a wealthy man and is very generous to his mission work. His wife is an American woman but the children I think have the larger sympathy for their father's country. - The other two Swedish children are two girls daughters of Swedish missionaries on the farther border of Shansi. The girls started for our school on Sept. 18th and it will take twenty-one days for them to get here. We are looking for them at the end of this week or the beginning of next. One of the girls was born in America.

To-morrow we are to welcome our teacher of drawing and music. She is a Miss Hill from the State of Colorado. She has studied violin in Boston Conservatory of Music. She will teach violin, piano, vocal music, and drawing, spending a day and a half with us each week. She is just on a visit for this winter with her relations who represent this same company that Mr. Larson belongs to. She promises to be quite an addition to our school, and since we have no one else to help us out, we are glad to have this part of the work taken off our hands.

Last week I started to Mrs. Benbrook a Chinese coat, by way of you, since if there was any duty to pay I wanted it taken out of my own pocket book. I hope the coat reaches her in time to be of use as a wrap. I am anxious about Mrs. Benbrook's health, and am fearful that her usual December attack will prove too much for her strength. If she should not be living when it reaches you keep it yourselves. It cost me $11, which now is nearly $6 gold. When I bought this short coat I bought a perfectly beautiful long coat- a dark blue embroidered in shades of blue and green. I bought it simply as an investment. I am slowly getting together a number of beautiful things which I hope to turn into money when I get home.

Just a few days ago we got word from Will that he was mailing to us the silver he brought out with him. We had gotten the impression that he had not brought it, so are delighted that it is here. I am so sorry that he did not give it to Mr. Pitman who was on the same steamer with him. Mr. Pitman lives in Peking, and we have his brother and sister here in our school as students. Besides, Mr. Pitman came up on the same train with us from Tientsin, so we felt we had very direct and late news of Will and his family. Please have the silver marked in America as I had to pay 30 cents for each letter here, and then it wasn't anything pretty. This half dozen will fix us so that we can get along comfortably for this year, if there should be a delay in getting the rest started.

The other day, I sold my check for $400 silver for $212.30 gold, which means that we shall have $12.30 for extra in fitting out our Household Science department. One of the ladies in the Pres. Miss. [Presbyterian Mission] in Peking has offered to take our work here and I think she will be just the one to help plan the equipment, too.

If you want a suggestion for Mary's Xmas present, I know she would like one of those little gold neck chains used for pendants. I am sending some lace collars now which will do for Xmas present. Lovingly, Flora

[This letter dated October 8, 1916 was written from Tungchou, China by Mary to the ones at home. Some students are still arriving for school. A boy named Charles Childress had to be expelled. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

October 8- [1916]

Dear Ones at Home,

Contrary to all the rules of weather we are having a rainy Sunday. It began yesterday afternoon about four with a hard thunder storm. The sun took one peep at us this morning and retreated behind the clouds. The N.C.A.S. may well be thankful for these unseasonable rains because it means a little water in our cistern. This should make enough to find with a bucket.

On Monday I went to Peking for the day to make an effort to supply my laboratory with chemicals. Dr. Ingram took me to the Union Medical Pharmacy and I got nearly everything I need for this first half year at least. The bill came last night and the prices are much more reasonable than at the other foreign stores. One of the girls is to bring them down tomorrow night because no one had gone to Peking to return so that they could bring them earlier.

Mrs. Hill came down Monday noon to start the music and art work. She has three music classes, three art classes and eight or nine private pupils for instrumental music. It makes her day and a half very full but she says she prefers it so rather than to stay longer.

On Monday night Tina C?? entered. Her mother came down and spent the night. On Wednesday we were all out in the steps when we saw a man, two girls and a wheelbarrow of goods arriving. Of course it was the Nelson girls from the farther border of Shansi. They wrote that it would take them twenty one days but had been able to make it seventeen. The girls are fine looking girls; Large for their ages beautifully developed physically and with minds eager to learn. Owing to lack of facilities for teaching they are way back in their studies. Huldar, aged thirteen today, is in the fifth and sixth grade. Linnea was doing seventh grade work but I am pushing her and expect her to make High School for next year. She is eager to do it so I anticipate no difficulty.

Possibly the type of wheelbarrow that carried goods to Flora and Mary's school - also used to transport people

Mr. Nelson is a little man and typical of the type of missionary who lives very far from the world. He exclaimed with wonder over the beauties of our compound and school. (People not used to civilization often do that.) On Thursday when Mr. Nelson left we sent the girls off for a walk with the other older girls and the little people and I saw him to the train.

We gave a tea to introduce Miss Hill, Tuesday afternoon. If she is to come down every week it will be much more pleasant to know the people here since she must meet them occasionally as she travels.

On Saturday Mrs. Porter gave a tea. The compound ladies have decided to have a weekly tea on Saturday afternoons. We each live so much in our own circles that it will do us good to meet each other at least that often. When I went over about 4.30 it was pouring but it let up before 5.00 so the children and their baggage got to the station dry.

Yesterday was a day of guests. Mrs. Frame has Mrs. Payne down (I took supper with them Saturday evening). Three of the young couples just in under the American Board were guests at their homes. These many new people have filled up the compound in Peking so that there is no unused corner anywhere.

This week marks a new act on the part of the school. We have expected one of the boys, Charles Childress. He is that urchin we took out of pity to see what we could do for him. The Y.M.C.A. men have supported him. He is not amenable to discipline and takes an errand of honor as an opportunity to overstep rules, etc. This last week he lied to Flora a dozen times and she finally got the truth only because she knew it from other sources and he realized he was covered. This was the last straw on a career full of just such rotten material so we asked the committee on pupils to let him go. They noted to expel him and he left on Saturday as usual. Flora and Mr. Beers have packed his things today and we will send them up. That makes his exit less conspicuous and gave him no opportunity to relate his woes on departure.

It is a long time since we have had a home letter. Mails are awfully irregular. My Literary Digests came in bunches instead of singly, yet foreign mails come quite often.

There comes the man to sweep so I will get out. Also it is time to mail this if it is to go this noon.

Lots of love Mary.

Monday.

Willard tells his mother of coming down with Dengue fever along with Marjorie, Kathleen and many others. The College boys have had a week of fun celebrating the Independence Day of China. He thanks his mother for her dressmaking and repairing while his daughters were visiting in Shelton over the summer.]

Foochow, China
Oct. 15 – 1916

Dear Mother:-

We have been in Foochow five weeks and I have not written you. I found the College opened and some 200 boys already back when I arrived Sept. 9th. Of course it was rather strenuous work getting under all the work of different kinds. Then on Sept 28th the Dengue fever got hold of me and has not entirely let go yet. I was in bed thirteen days – got up last Tuesday for the first time. I am only in the very height of fashion tho, for nine foreigners were ill at the same time with me. Marjorie and Kathleen came down with it a week after I did. They are nearly all right now. They will begin school again tomorrow. Mrs. Hodous does most of the teaching. It is a girl's seminary. Marjorie and Elizabeth Billing, Rachel Hodous and our two girlyies. Neil Newell would have been the only boy if he had not died.

We are blessed with almost perfect weather- too pleasant. Wells are getting low. Every day is clear and bright. The intense heat is gone still we are wearing thinnest clothes, but need two thin blankets over us at night.

This past week the College boys have had the time of their lives. Last Tuesday was Independence day for China. The boys wanted a lantern parade on Monday night. As the city officials had officially forbode all idol processions I told the boys I must write and ask for permission to hold the procession. Such a request was a new thing and it took three days!! to get the reply. The boys got restive but as soon as the reply came they at once got busy. The reply was favorable and it was interesting.

The officials told us we could have the procession but must not allow it to appear like an idol procession!! On Monday evening at dark the boys started with band and lanterns and they made a fine appearance. There was a lantern for each of the 18 provinces. Then lanterns carried so as to spell Foochow College. And last came a globe of white paper with the continents marked on it and held by paper images of men about 1 ft. high. With the nice uniforms and lanterns of all colors and shapes they presented a very taking appearance. The Military General stopped the horse carriages from going on the streets the boys took and invited them into his official residence, gave them tea and cake and himself addressed them. On Tuesday he sent in paper chrysanthemums and badges – about 200 for the boys to wear as they paraded Tuesday evening. The Foochow College boys made by far the best appearance of any of the schools and on Tuesday evening several stores were ready with firecrackers to shoot off as the boys passed, and they were invited to stop at seven different official residences. Wednesday the General asked them to go to see a play under his direction. Thursday the boys could scarcely get one foot on the ground. They were walking on air with their heads in the clouds. But they are settled down again now to study.

It is awful nice to have ones own home again here. Ellen has gotten much rested altho while I was in bed she took three classes a day for me in addition to her own three. The girlyies are happy and are a joy forever.

Phebe M's good letter came by the last mail. The same mail brought Phebe K's first letter from Oberlin. Gould and Geraldine had not yet got to Oberlin. I was pleased to hear that Harold was to be in Oberlin.

I do not know how to write of the kindness you all have shown us. I was chagrined when Phebe K's letter came and she told of all the dressmaking and repairing and what not, with visiting that was done after they went down to Shelton. I hope it was not too much for you all at Shelton. If I had known what I know now I should not have dared let the girls go down. But now I can only say a great big thank you. To me personally the summer has most pleasant memories that will never fade out.

I must close now and get a few words off to Oberlin before going to bed. You are picking apples now-how I wish we had a barrel, and some of your good snapping frosts.

May the Father be gracious to you all and keep you

All send love Will.

Dr. and Miss Walker returned to China and within 2 weeks Mr. Walker contracted Dengue Fever. He is staying with Willard and Ellen's house under their care. Dr. Walker is the 17th American in the compound to become ill with Dengue Fever not to mention some of the servants. The symptoms lead Ellen to believe that Geraldine, Marjorie and Kathleen have had it in the past. End of the letter is missing. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Foochow, China
Oct. 22", '16

My dear, darling children all, - Phebe, Gould, Geraldine and Dorothy;

All our family have gone to church but me. Dr. Walker is stopping at our house until after the Annual Meeting next month when they will go to Shaowu. He and his daughter arrived about two weeks ago with Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg, two children and a friend (lady). Miss Walker went with them up as far as Long Kau to do some evangelistic work till Annual Meeting time when she planned to return and take her father up to Shaowu. The day they started he went to Sang Bo to see them off and came back, sick, to our house and Papa found him in the parlor when he returned from class. I was also out. Papa put him to bed and he has been here since. We telegraphed Miss Walker and she is returning. We expect her today. So I am staying at home with our patient, particularly as I do not feel very good myself, - eyeache, headache, bilious and weak. Papa tries to make me think I am going to have the dengue fever too; but I do not think so. It is dengue with Dr. Walker and he is not seriously ill, needs little care and Papa and I are sharing it and carrying on our work in the College. - I can hear the pipe organ in the new church and the people singing as I write. Mr. Newell is playing it today as Mr. and Mrs. Belcher are both ill of dengue. Dr. W. is the 17th person (American) to have it in just our compound here in the city the other 11 escaping. Besides, every house but ours has had one or two servants ill of it. It has been very prevalent throughout the city and suburbs, this fall some schools having to close for a few days. It is closely allied to measles, many cases developing so much eruption that Dr. K. says that were dengue fever not known to be about, any Dr. would unhesitatingly pronounce it measles. I have wondered if Geraldine's case of measles which she kept all to herself that time up at the mountain was really not Dengue fever. It did not prove as contagious as measles should have and we heard of not a single other case at the time. Does Geraldine remember about having intolerable itching of feet and hands in connection with her recovery from that? If she does I think that identifies it beyond doubt. And I believe Marjorie had is too just after we went to the mountain in her second summer. She had an eruption which Dr. Whitney had never seen and could not name; and I recall distinctly how weak she seemed which is one characteristic of Dengue; she had been walking not over 3 mos. and I remember remarking that she would have to learn to walk all over a gain. Dr. and Mrs. Kinnear have both had it at different times and Papa and the two little girls. Kathleen was nearly frantic with the itching of the soles of her feet, as was Dr. and Mrs. Kinnear's.

N.C.A.S. Oct. 22, 1916

Dear Ones at Home,

At least there is a letter to answer and it explains why there was such a dearth of letters. Perhaps Flora wrote last week that Mrs. Porter had a cablegram from her sister that she was coming out the middle of the year. We quite anticipate her arrival both because of the assistance here and for the addition of one more to our community of adults.

This has been a busy week for Flora especially. Two of our little boys were far from well and when a dose of castor oil failed to effect a cure we consulted Dr. Love and put them to bed. Both have well developed cases of Disentery. They are brothers and the mother could come so we telegraphed and she arrived this morning. Yesterday Mr. Gordon gave his whole day to them except for his two hours of teaching. This is the fourth case.

Mr. Frame has been down for three weeks- Little Betty Love has been ill over two weeks- and now these two boys. At the hospital there are several cases and some in the college. Betty Love is far from the road to recovery yet and is a case of extreme anxiety to us all. Where our boys got the germ we can not imagine for there is no least sign of such trouble among any of the other children.

I went to luncheon at Mrs. Porter's today. Mrs. Edwards is there. Mr. Edwards had to go to Peking for meetings this afternoon so I represented him at table.

The children are overcome with excitement these days because they are going to Peking for a Hallowe'en Party next week end.

Monday P.M. I had to stop to dress for lunch – and Mrs. Elmer Galt was here for supper so I visited instead of writing last evening. This morning our two boys are better so Doctor is letting them have doctored milk. Betty is a trifle better and has taken a little food. Neither Doctor nor Mrs. Love will say more but they can speak of her now with more composure so I feel hopeful.

Dr. Smith gave us a fire talk last night. He gave at the end this for us to remember “Pure patience, perfectly persued, presages permanent prosperity.” The children are all trying to remember it because he said he should ask them to repeat it when he returned from his trip. He started today for Foochow and will be gone for a long time as he stays over for the “Continuation Committee” Meeting late in November.

I have spent most of today on school accounts and yet have not finished. As soon as I get a long column nearly added someone asks a question or something and the work is lost.

If you are hunting for a Christmas gift for me I awfully want a sweater either grey or white or blue. Mine is helping some poor Chinese to keep warm. He helped himself to it on our Shan Hai Guan trip.

I must cut this short or it will not get off. I made a mistake in not getting it done on Sunday for these busy days offer little opportunity for letter writing except on Sunday.

Lots of love

Mary. I want to get the next letter to hear again from Elizabeth and whether Phebe gets a position.

[This letter dated Oct. 22, 1916 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his daughter, Geraldine. The original letter is held in the archives of Yale Divinity School. The letter starts off with Willard talking about the Dengue fever that has afflicted them and their friends. Marjorie and Kathleen have recovered. He requests that his children at Oberlin send financial statements. Willard has sent a Mrs. Davis 200 boxes of tea which she will be paying for.]

Foochow, China

Oct. 22nd 1916

Dear Geraldine:-

This letter I am beginning before church in the morning so as to be sure it gets finished by night. All goes on much as usual. The chief item of interest to us is the Dengue fever in spite of any thing we can do. The girlies are entirely recovered as far as we can see. Mr. Belcher had it rather hard. I have been over and bathed him several evenings. When I was in bed it felt very good to have Mama bathe me. Dr. Walker does not want to be bathed. He started last Thursday to see Mr. and Mrs. Kellogg, their two children, Miss Goodwin and Miss Walker off for Shaowu. But when about half way to the river he felt so badly that he turned around and came back, - came to our house. I found him in the parlor, almost shivering. I asked if he would like to go to bed and he said yes. So I put him right into my bed. We have not a lot of furniture. In fact we are using a bed of Mrs. Belcher's and one of Mrs. Newell's. Before night we had his room fixed up and got him settled. Miss Walker had started up river Friday. I telegraphed her with Dr. Kinnear's approval that her father was ill. She will likely return from Cui Kau this p.m. Dr. Walker is over 70 years old and his daughter ought to be here if he is unwell.

I have done all my regular work and some extra this past week. But it is hard work to set myself to work. I feel lazy. On Friday evening the Anti Cobweb met at Consul Pontears. I had the paper on The Political and Industrial situation in the States. Mama and I attended. It was the first time we had left the girlies alone. But they did not make the least fuss. The amah stayed with them and Dr. Kinnear sent up a Chinese nurse to stay with Dr. Walker.

Last Tuesday Gould's letter undated arrived. The P.O. stamp on the envelope reads Sept. 13th. This letter has Gould's financial statement, but none from the girls. He has just arrived in Oberlin. Phebe and Dorothy are there. You are in N. Tonawanda hoping to get to Oberlin by the end of the week. We talked about you with God. On those very days when you were with Aunt Etta we asked Him to take care of you. But now we just tell Him that we hope you are all well and in Oberlin all right. We shall look for a letter in the next mail with eagerness hoping for good news.

I am enclosing Gould's financial statement made out as I want each of you to make yours out on the first day of each month. The form in which Gould's came is not a credit to him. The account is not balanced and some of the figures I cannot be sure of. You ought to have an account book and keep the account carefully and balance once a week or at the very least once a month. Send an exact copy of your account to me once a month. You will have to rule this and send it on a separate sheet. I want to know also where the money you have on hand is, - whether in the National Bank or in the Postal Savings. Gould must have a lot of money that belongs to you girls I should think.

Did I write that I had sent 200 boxes of tea to Mrs. L.L. Davis? I wish one of you would take a walk out to her house and tell her. Tell her also that in paying for it she might just as well give the money to you as to send it out here. I do not know what she paid Mr. Christian, but if she pays the same for the first 200 boxes it will be all right. I may have to add a cent a box after that for exchange is way up and paper, thread and string have doubled in price.

Every night we tell God that our hearts first desire for you in that you may realize His presence and be kept by Him. May you be healthy in body, mind and spirit, be kept from all anxiety and enjoy your work

Very lovingly your father Willard L. Beard

Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Tungchou, Oct. 30, 1916.

Dear folks at home:-

Two weeks ago was the second time since school opened that I let my turn to write pass by undone. The days are not long enough for all there is to be done, but we have relief in view for Mrs. Porter's sister has cabled that she is coming as soon as she can get here. We hope that may be by Xmas time. This has certainly been an eventful six weeks. We have had a washman to be dealt with who is a man with a mean spirit. If he didn't get the clothes as clean as he does, we should not tolerate him. I am in hopes his mean spirit may die a natural death because it does not meet one in me. Otherwise our servants seem to be trying to do their several duties. My amah, who has to do her mending in my sleeping room took the opportunity when I was away to open my trunk and take some of my money (about $25) so she was sent off in a hurry. We have one now who belongs to one of the better families- as her long finger nails on the left hand testify. She used to be addicted to opium and I should judge uses tobacco (or something like it) now. She is a very quiet demure little woman and is an improvement in the way she keeps her person, though her serving is more slowly done.

We have excluded one boy for misconduct. He was being supported by several Americans and since he left we have found that it was a wise thing to do, for he has been making the soldiers his chums and even they said there was not much he did not know or had done. His influence here was not good- especially on the boys younger than himself.

Last week two boys came down with serious cases of bloody dysentery. Fortunately their mother was within reach by telegram and was here in thirty-six hours. The boys have had several injections of eucentine[?] and have made steady progress so that now one of them is feeling too lively to enjoy staying in bed. They are eating toast and milk, so we hope to have them back with us in a few days. This makes four cases of the same disease in the compound. Where these boys got it and why no one else has had it are mysteries, but every one seems to be keeping well, with the exception of colds.

This Sunday we are down to our last year's Sunday number- twelve- for one of the Peking girls is having a Hallowe'en party and the different families of Peking are entertaining the boys and girls over the week end. It seems good to have so small a family.

Next Monday, I expect to go to Peking and if I do I shall mail to you several lace collars to be used for Xmas presents. We had an opportunity to get them rather reasonably this summer at Peitaiho.

We are so glad to have the silver. Every one likes it and I certainly enjoy having a decent knife, fork and spoon to eat with. Our silver is quite a heterogeneous lot running thru entire length from German silver to Sterling, and some times one place represents each kind. I have trained our servants to give this particular kind of silver just to us grown ups.

I am enclosing a draft to help out Mary's and my accounts at home. I hope my account may show a little credit for a short time. Will you please put the money required into this envelope and send it on. I hope to get the things for Xmas but may not. Lovingly – Flora Beard.

Tungchou
Monday morning.
[November 1916]

Dear Ones at Home,

Thanks to the fact the China has been taken into the postal union our home packages come via Chinese Post and are being delivered here at Tungchou. The two packages containing corsets came on Friday and yesterday my stockings and brassiers came. Everything of mine is fine. The corsets are identical with what I have so I speak without trying them. The others I tried and like. Many thanks for all of your trouble.

Flora says she was so busy last week that she could not find time to write. I do not wonder for I just had to give in to an attack of the grippe and go to bed for three days. I was back at my post before the end of the week so the pressure is removed. I got well just as three more cases of chicken pox broke out. One we shipped home to Peking post haste. The other two I have as next door neighbors. They are not very ill but have to stay in bed as long as new spots continue to appear. I have the caring for them down to a science and the boy or amah do nearly all of the stair climbing for me now. One patient is a small boy. I just wish you could have seen the dignity and shocked expression of the eleven year old girlie when I suggested that they might talk back and forth across the hall. I chuckled inwardly but dared not even smile outwardly. The shyness has disappeared.

We are so enjoying the NCAS silver. Everyone who comes speaks of the pretty pattern and of the decorations of the monogram. So those four letters are getting admiration enough I think to help pay for the great expense that they were.

We are getting something of the real experiences of boarding school life this year. One girl especially has her head full of the book stories of boarding school and is trying the tricks. Flora has not had experience of that sort and thinks the girl a much worse type than she is. Wait and we will find out (maybe) that she really is a fine specimen of girlhood but just at a silly age. On investigation I find that your statement received a few weeks ago said 2 brassiers but I got 4. Is the two dollars ($2.00) for the four? Or for two?

We are getting all excited about Christmas presents these days. The children started on Saturday to plan what to make. Miss Perkin is getting some things in Peking to send down and Flora is going to take the children into the city today to get others.

By the way, Miss Perkin is coming down on Friday nights and staying for twenty four hours. She takes entire charge of the laundry off of Flora; takes Flora's class so F. can give the small children and extra music lesson; takes all of Mrs. Galt's Saturday classes; looks after getting the children off for Peking; helps with the serving and Christmas preparation. It is a busy time but she says she likes it and finds much good variety that it is not tiring. Miss Hill comes on Monday noon and stays till Tuesday evening for music and drawing so by piecing out we are getting a lot of help.

We have had definite word that Miss Margaret Ann Smith is on her way for women's work in Tungchow and we are hoping to welcome her for Thanksgiving. There is a possibility that Miss Dudley, Mrs. Porter's sister, is with her but we hardly hope so. Miss Dudley is to be our assistant.

I wonder how Elizabeth is? That first report was most encouraging. This seems to be the Beard's busy season. Willard is head over heels in work. Mrs. Smith was over this morning and gave a suggestion as to the many doings down at Foochow. Dr. Smith was indirectly awaiting an opportunity to get out for he spoke of a story at Foochow as an indeterminate equation.

You are extra busy with Elizabeth away and the strain of having her ill again. We are trying to do alone what three of us had difficulty in accomplishing last year. So it goes!!

Flora had a letter from Mrs. Palen yesterday telling of Mrs. Benbrook's death. It is hard for Flora because of the long friendship but I think a relief too to feel that she is free from suffering at last. Poor Christine has had a sad year with the loss of both husband and mother. Her letters to Flora have sounded full of a courage and trust beautiful to see.

I do want a home letter but the packages and newspapers at least bespeak of a busy life for you all. Exchange is still going down so I will send another draft when I can get to the bank for it. It is only 180+ now. Just think of 260 two years ago. It makes salary checks look small.

I must get to work for it is Monday the only day with opportunity to catch up with myself on studying, sewing etc.

Lots of love and wishes that God may keep you all well.

Mary Beard.

[This letter dated Nov. 5, 1916 was written from Tungchou, China by Mary to the folks. They have a case of chicken pox and two with dysentery at the school. China now has a Vice President. They had a pretend vote for U.S. President and Wilson won. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

4th floor N.C.A.S.
Nov 5. [1916]

Dear folks,

I just wonder what the next event of great importance will be. The last is a case of chicken pox. Yesterday morning I found Pauline Ramsay all broken out and called the doctor. Of course we isolated her and also her sister who was her roommate. Fortunately most of the younger children have had chicken pox- and all of the little girls who have been her special playmates have had them. The only suspect is her sister. Pauline is not very sick so the care is not so great but that I can do it easily.

Yesterday noon the two dysentery patients came over for lunch and they will now be regular boarders at our table except that they have special diet.

The compound patients are also better.

The many children who were in Peking for the party last week Saturday afternoon returned a weary lot of youngsters. By Thursday they were ready for good work again. Oh what a task it has been to establish the right sort of spirit this year. Many of the new pupils are not seriously inclined and youth was too strong for the ones that were. I think strong pressure from many sides will do it.

I have had three good games of tennis this week and one long walk on the wall. The wall is an extra fine picture this year because the compound is so beautiful. The trees have more brilliant coloring than I have seen before in China and the leaves are staying on extra well too. From the wall we look down into the piles of yellow tree tops.

The Sentinels came. I was glad to read Father's article for my 8th grade History class were wanting to know who were candidates for President on the Prohibition ticket. Our local papers give little or no American politics.

China at last has a Vice President after months of talk and discussion. The man chosen was a leader in the Revolutions and is a strong military leader still. He is from Nanking.

I guess Willard found his from month's work waiting for him for we have had only two letters since his return.

Friday AM. Flora mailed to you on Monday three packages which contain things we thought you might use for Christmas. We do not care to whom you give them. The collars we bought at Pei Tai Ho from vendors who came around. The silk embroidered sleeves I got from a silk man last spring. I sent the rings to use as handles. If I get a chance I will still get silk for lining lest you be unable to match them at home. If you want more of the doilies we can get them here quite frequently. I never dare promise to get anything at a definite time for we have to wait for the right man to happen along.

Pauline is better and was up and dressed yesterday. She seems perfectly well but of course she is still quarantined. Muriel is out of quarantine but has to be watched from two weeks yet.

We had a straw vote for President on Tuesday. My American History conducted it and we allowed everyone, big and little, to vote. We had them all register on Monday and swore to them American nationality and only registered voters were allowed at the polls on Tuesday. All but three of the compound adults voted with us. There were 37 votes cast; two were thrown out as improperly scratched; Wilson had 25, Hughs 8 and Benson 2. The children took it most solemnly and the polls were a most proper place. We got the real returns Wednesday evening about six o'clock by telephoning to the Peking legation. That is we got the result but not the majority yet.

I must get this off or Flora will think I have trespassed on her time too much.

Will you please renew my subscription to the National Geographic Magazine.

Ruth, the shipping list sounds perfectly satisfactory. We have some of the goods yet. Flora did not have time to go to the Post office on Monday so we do not know if the packages are in Peking or not. Do not spend too much time hunting for the stockings. I am not so particular as that. The kind had worn well and fitted well so I thought to save (not make) trouble by asking for something definite. Generally I thought it easier to shop for another if the order was quite definite. What a bother this war does make.

I do want to hear from you all. Is Phebe still at hire? Does Elizabeth improve at Saratoga? I do hope you are all keeping well.

With lots of love
Mary.

[This letter dated Nov. 5, 1916 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his daughter Phebe. Willard is writing from the gate house of the College waiting to surprise 6 boys when they return who left the premises without permission. His sister, Elizabeth is in Syracuse, NY in a sanitarium for illness. Their Annual Meeting will celebrate the 70th Anniversary of Christian work in Foochow. Dr. Arthur Smith from Peking will be there. Geraldine has been sick in the states and Ellen's sister, Etta, took care of her. The 6 missions in Foochow want to combine the different schools to form Fukien Christian University. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Foochow, China.
Nov. 5th 1916

Dear Phebe:-

You will be interested to know the circumstances under which I am writing. Until today the students of this College have been required to attend meetings as follows: 9 a.m. Sunday School, 10:30 a.m. church, 3:00 p.m. Sunday School, 7:00 p.m. C.E. We have cut out one compulsory service= the 8:00 p.m. S.S. This gives the boys a whole afternoon free. We are right in the heart of the city and it is not wise to allow the boys to go out of the grounds. But the gatekeeper came up to the house to tell me that six boys had gone out in spite of him. So I am in the gate house. It is interesting. Some of the boys who went out without permission are coming in and it is interesting to see the expression on their faces as they see the President's eyes on them and as he asks them for the little ticket which lets them out and in.

To day we had a good letter from Aunt Mary. The school this year is full- twenty eight boarders and two day pupils and the Aunts are doing most of the work alone. It keeps them pretty busy. In Aunt Mary's letter was enclosed one from Aunt Phebe. Aunt Elizabeth is in Syracuse, N.Y. at a Sanitorium. Aunt Ruth and Miss Cora Bennett went up with her. She will remain there some time. Aunt Ruth had not come home when Aunt Phebe wrote and she did not know just what the plans were or just what the Doctor said about Aunt Elizabeth. She intimated tho that Aunt Elizabeth would be all right in a few weeks with rest and care. She had not been perfectly well since her illness last winter. Aunt Phebe has learned to drive the "cheap, cheap, cheap." But the day she was writing she could not start it, so she and Grandma did not go to church. Hence the letter.

We are still trusting that all is well with Geraldine. The mail this afternoon brought nothing from America. Mr. and Mrs. Beach, Francis and Ethel arrived last Tuesday – all looking well. They went to Diong Loh on Thursday. Mr. Beach brought Aunt Flora's watch. You knew it was repaired at Taylor and Gregories and did not run. A Mr. Dodd, son of the Dodd in the B.N. Beard Co. was on the steamer with Mr. Beach and had the watch and asked Mr. Beach to bring it down to me.

Our Annual Meeting, which this year takes the form of a 70th Anniversary of the opening of Christian work in Foochow, begins on Tuesday evening and holds for a week. So this next week will be a very busy one. People are beginning to assemble for this already. Five are down from Shaowu (Chinese). Dr. and Miss Walker are here. Dr. Walker came out to dinner today for the first time. Dr. Arthur Smith and a Chinese pastor are here from Peking and a Miss Davis up from Canton.

Sunday evening: - Just before supper the mail came in as I wrote and just as we were finishing supper another mail came in. This brought Phebe's letter to Kathleen Cynthia Beard with letters from Aunt Etta and Geraldine. We are very thankful that Geraldine was getting better. It was a siege and I wonder how Aunt Etta ever stood it. What can we do to thank her? I sent her 30 boxes of tea and can refuse to let her know the cost of it. You have money enough to meet all bills I am sure. I have sent $30 to you since reaching China and $100 to Gould. Again I want to tell Geraldine how much I have thought of her these weeks. I have thought of her as at College with all those lessons to make up. But you will do it all right dear girl, and you will not worry over it. You were always a most patient patient. I remember when you had something here in Foochow- was it chicken pox? You were as quiet and patient as could be- never a word or act that could be interpreted as complaining and Aunt Etta writes that you are the same still.

The missions in Fukien (six) have got together and are definitely asking for the incorporation of the Fukien Christian University. This will be done by uniting four union institutions – Arts course (College) Theological School and Medical College and Normal School. These institutions have all graduated students except the Arts course. Delegates came from Amoy for the Comm. meetings on Fri. p.m. and Sat. a.m.

We have just finished all the letters- Phebe's to Kathleen with its full account of the doings of the week. Gould's with its setbacks and its happy surprises and football news and Aunt Etta's about Geraldine and Geraldine's own letter. I want to hear from Dot now- and I want the financial statements of you girls. But no doubt they will be here before this reaches you.

The girlies are both quite well and growing like weeds. They are writing to you today. I wonder what we leave out of our letters that you want to hear. The girlies both are almost intemperate in eating pumeloos and in wanting to hold and carry the babies of the compound.

May God give you His wisdom for all things, keep you well in body, with healthy, pure, clean minds and daily growing to know Jesus better as a personal friend.

Very lovingly Your Father
Willard L. Beard

[This letter dated Nov. 12, 1916 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his daughter, Geraldine. The original letter is held in the archives of Yale Divinity School. In it he expresses concern of Geraldine's illness and gives her advice on what to do about her studies because of it. He talks about receiving boxes from Putnam-plates, saucers, etc. He is looking forward to using opening and using the Grafonola, a record player of the time.]

Foochow, China Nov. 12th 1916

Dear Geraldine:-

Your letter to Mama which came this past week brought much relief to me- altho it brought disappointment, for I had hoped that we should hear that you were in Oberlin and studying. When we read your letter I thanked God that it was no worse, and that you were on the road to recovery. It is with a good degree of certainty now that I think of you as at Oberlin resting. I am writing Aunt Etta. No words can adequately thank her for what she did for you. Deeds of that nature are not done for the thank you's to be received, or any other kind of compensation. I do not see how Aunt Etta does all her household work and sewing and church work.

But the question now is what you are to do during the remainder of the year. I am afraid it will be hard for you to find studies for next term not having had this term's work. If you can take studies next term and have them count in the regular course that would be one solution. If you cannot take such studies I think of two plans - one go to Shelton where you could help enough to pay for your board and get a good rest. The other is to stay in Oberlin and take cello lessons and a course in the Business College. Such a course would be useful to you always. It would make one more possibility for you to earn some of your way thru college. If you took this course you would need to use it all the time- take notes during your college course in shorthand, so as to be fresh in it all the time. For this term I rather hope you are in Oberlin taking lessons on the cello and having a good time.

It is a very difficult thing to advise in a case like this. We cannot know all the circumstances. A full month has elapsed since we knew how you were and another month will be gone before you will get this. Naturally and rightly you would rather have parents to consult with than any one else. But you have had them for eighteen years and have learned how they look at questions. You know the principles in which they decide questions. And none of these principles is of more importance than to talk the whole matter over with God- not once or twice but keep praying about it until light comes and you feel pretty certain that the course you decide on is the right one. In matters of great importance my practice is to talk with God just as I would with the most intimate friend on earth. There is one great advantage in talking with God about any matter.....[letter too long for copy paper]

...and honest with myself and everyone else. Then you have sisters and brother and Mrs. Garland, and friends in the East in Putnam and Shelton,-and you have one other source of great help=you have the prayers of Mother and Father and shall I not add little sisters. Your common sense will use all these help and you will decide to do the best thing.

The Annual Meeting for the Chinese church has been in progress since Tuesday. The 70th anniversary of the opening of Christian work in Fukien is being held in connection with the Annual Meeting. The meetings are held in the new Lau Memorial Church. Last Thursday afternoon nearly 2000 people were in attendance filling the church quite comfortably. This evening a dozen foreigners sang parts of "The Prodigal Son" to a large audience.

Our boxes from Putnam arrived Thursday. Yesterday we unpacked the big box of beds and the dining table box. Every thing in these two boxes came all right. The glass doors for my book case were not cracked or scratched. We also opened the three barrels of crockery. One pitcher was broken, one saucer, two dining plates and one handle was broken off the slop jar. All else came all right. The glass cans of oatmeal came all right except one. That was broken. These six are the only ones opened. We want to open the Grafonola [record player] tomorrow, for on Tuesday we are to entertain about twenty five pastors and preachers at dinner, and would like to try our new records.

Yesterday afternoon two fires burned up a lot of houses in Foochow. One got into the Y.M.C.A. building in the city,- not the new [one] on the river but one inside the city in a Chinese house fixed[?] area. It burned only about one fourth of it which was covered by insurance.

Dr. and Mrs. Walker are still with us. Dr. Walker is better- spoke for a short time this afternoon at the communion service. They plan to leave for Shaowu next Friday.

I see this letter is almost all about you- but "there's a reason" and Phebe and Gould and Dorothy are in our minds and prayers always. We are all well. I think we are all growing fat,- we ought to with the best of pumelo, persimmons, oranges, pears (Chinese), chestnuts and other things. The girlies went to Chinese feast last evening and enjoyed it.

God keep and guide and use you all

Very lovingly your Father

Foochow, China
Nov. 19th 1916

Dear Ruth:-

Altho it is most 9:30 p.m. I am going to at least start a letter to you. Friday afternoon Ellen, Marjorie, Kathleen and I visited the school at Sang Gaing. We just happened to go, that is we went to see the ruins of our Ha Puo church that was entirely destroyed by fire last Wednesday night, then we went on a little way to the river to see Dr. and Miss Walker off for Shaowu. We were then on the river just opposite Sang Gaing and took a boat and went over. It was a fine site to see the school filled with tables for the pupils and the pupils sitting in good order, at their lessons, and the two teachers on their job. Did I tell you that the assistant teacher has had about six years in the English course in Foochow College? He knows English so he could teach it about "to M," as the sign over one school read "English taught here to the letter M." The reputation of the school is very good indeed. There are 72 pupils this year. One boy is thinking of trying to enter Foochow College next year.

A week ago yesterday a fire destroyed part of the Y.M.C.A. premises inside the city- not the new building. The loss was covered by insurance. Last Wed. night another fire burnt 1400 houses including our Ha Puo Ga church. Mr. Ding Ming Uong's father was preaching here while he was in the U.S. in 1897 or 98. There was insurance to cover this also, the members are already negotiating for more land and plan to enlarge their plant and rebuild.

Our goods have come from Putnam and I am putting every minute possible into unpacking and setting up the chairs. I have set up 4. The things came thru in good condition.

We have not heard from Geraldine since she left Ettas. We think of her as in Oberlin resting and getting strong. It is difficult to advise from this distance. But the children know on what principles to decide all questions and they are together for consultation and Mr. Garland will help and I doubt not that they have written you people in Shelton and then God will guide. We hope Geraldine will rest this term, perhaps take Cello lessons. I suggested that she might take a course in a Business College in Oberlin if it seemed wise. This would help her in earning her way thru College.

Ellen has a little cold that affects her nose some, otherwise we are all well. The girlies are both rosy and fat and growing fast. Mr. Beach, - (Ruth Ward's husband) brought Flora's watch from Mr. Dodd and I have sent it on to Tung Chow.

You are thinking of Thanksgiving. It will be a small one for you compared with some recent years. But you will have the satisfaction of thinking that altho we are scattered, we are each in useful work. I hear from several sources of the good work the girls are doing in the north. Apples are all picked by this time- how about corn?

The letter takes our very best Merry Christmas to you all and our Happy New Year also. Pass them along to Oliver, Ben and their friends and to Stanley and Myra.

If I can tell from Phebe's letter where to address Elizabeth I will try to get a letter to her at Syracuse.

Very lovingly to Father, Mother and all

Will

[This letter dated Dec. 1, 1916 was written from Tungchow, China by Flora to the folks at home. She and Mary have been very busy doing more work than two people can handle. The children have been mischievous, they had to have one expelled (Charles Childress) and now, one child has tuberculosis. They had a Thanksgiving dinner at the school and one on the compound at Dr. Love's. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

[Dec. 1, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

It is a month since I have written you. There simply has not been a spare moment for such writing for even now I am leaving undone every day more things that I am doing and I am doing all that can be crowded between the hours of 7 A.M. and 9.30 P.M. I have to go to bed early in order to be ready for the next day. Even Sunday is full. The hope of having Miss Dudley arrive within the next four weeks has been the one thing that has kept me going, for there is more to be done here than two people have any right to attempt to do. The lack of supervision alone has the most serious result here. The keen wide awake children have to be up to something and their heads are not yet wise enough to carry their own affairs to success without an older one to guide them. Each week this fall there has been some sort of escapade to settle and it wasn't until a week or two ago that we could get any kind of responsibility out of the children. The last prank was that two girls took the notion to take a midnight walk in the compound. They found a side door from which the coolie never takes the key at night, unlocked it and stayed out about five minutes. It was a pitch dark night and they had the (mis?)fortune to run into the night watchman. They think that he told me, since, when they could no longer keep still about it and they came to confess. I told them I already knew about it. I had found out from another source. When they realized how such an action placed them in the minds of the Chinese they were rather serious. Both girls promise this to be their last misdemeanor, and I believe it will be. One of the girls has come from the Chefoo school where the girls are chaperoned to annihilation, and it is perhaps a natural consequence of being placed under almost no restrictions. I believe she has good material in her and she is doing her best since that time to prove her promise good. We have been having all sorts of experiences with our students this fall. First we had to expel the boy who was being supported here, and I am more thankful than I can say that we are rid of him. Since he went I have heard (from one of the people helping him here) that some of the week ends he did not even go home but spent the days among some Chinese women out side the city. Two of our boys had serious cases of dysentery. Another lad has left "to be fattened up" but will never return. His mother is a "peroxide" blonde and his father is the architect of Tsing Hua College. I am afraid we never get all that is due us on their bill for "peroxide" generally means lack of reality. The latest calamity is the worst. We had a boy and girl here whose house is near the sea. Mary Lee is a little shy, fascinating piece of mischief. She was so full of her "pretty gowns", the "boys" and "having a good time" that her lessons never were gotten. She played in every game- one of the most enthusiastic and strenuous. All of a sudden there were serious signs of over exertion and then we teachers insisted on less activity but it did not cure the trouble and since she has gone to her sister's it has developed into tuberculosis and she has had two bad hemorrhages. This of course takes her out of school and probably her brother, too, as they may go at once to America.

Yesterday was Thanksgiving and it was a busy day here. We had most of the children with us and that meant supervising them in their plans. A committee planned the dinner and helped at getting it and setting the table. Then, in the evening there was the Compound dinner at Dr. Love's- so we had two dinners. At noon we had had goose and when we had two big bustards [a type of game bird] to attack at 8 P.M., my appetite was lacking, but I enjoyed the evening just the same.

My watch arrived last week- apparently dropping out of the sky and it was not until Ruth's letter came that I knew where it had come from. I will write to Mr. Dodd and thank him for his care of it.

I will be on the lookout for a coat for Miss Brewster but I do not know how much she wants to pay for one. They cost all the way from $11 to $50 silver. The cheaper ones have embroidered bands around the edges, the neck and the sleeves. Those for about $20 have embroidered designs on them as well as the bands as on the others. I have one of the $11 coats which I use in early fall for a wrap.

Do you realize that one half of our five years is up. I shall be ready to go home anytime after this year, but shall probably stay one year more, - for no one has materialized yet to take our places.

This letter is late in getting off so I am going to close here. As to the silver don't worry too much about it, tho' we shall be glad to have it whenever it comes. We use it for ourselves here and it is good to have decent forks, knives and spoons.

It is almost a relief to think of Mrs. Benbrook at rest for she has been so tired for so long.

With love to all-

Flora Beard.

Dear Ones at Home-

Thanksgiving has come and gone since last I wrote. We had a real American celebration. Breakfast was later, 8.00. At 10.30 a party of almost twenty of us started out for a long walk. We cut over lots and visited cemeteries along the way and ended up at the old stone bridge. Then we took another set of by-paths home. Our appetites were good after the exercise of nearly two and a half hours. Several of our family had not joined us because they were busy getting dinner and decorating the tables and dining room. We had appropriate runners from Vantines (things Flora brought out) on the wall. Our place cards were turkeys that stood on white cards. We had menus made by a second art class. The other decorations were two large squashes to represent "horns of plenty". All sorts of vegetables were overflowing from them. In the afternoon we all took a rest. Flora and I had shampoos instead. Our regular service was at 5.00. The children sang for us. The men here have very good voices, in general superior to those of the women. The compound had a Thanksgiving dinner that evening at 7.30 and we four adults were all asked to partake. Two Thanksgiving dinners in one day is quite filling!! The table was decorated with a black ship modeled after the Mayflower and a model of the structure over Plymouth Rock. The rock was under it too! After dinner we played a game in which we named 10 generic nouns; then someone gave us a letter and we had to write down an illustration under each, as flower- pansy. We counted the number of people playing and scored by subtracting from the whole number those who had written those who had written the same illustration as ourselves. If we were the only one to write a name we scored the total number present. If one other wrote it we scored two less, if two had it, three less, etc. In accordance with Tungchow custom we ended with the Virginia Reel.

Did Flora write that Miss Margaret Ann Smith arrived last Tuesday noon? Mrs. Porter gave a tea for her that afternoon and we all had our formal introduction. She is very nice, quiet, sincere, interested in things etc. She is athletic so will help to keep alive the tennis spirit. Already she is out with us for Volley Ball and the children are quite in awe over her quickness in learning to play. She is going to stay with Mrs. Frame until January the third when she goes to Peking to enter Language school. The Language school is independent of the Y.M.C.A. this year and they do not want student's to start the study of the language until they enter because they get into bad habits. Their next new class starts just after the first of January.

Last night Mr. and Mrs. Malone of Tsung Hua came to spend Sunday with the Galts and we were invited in to meet them last evening. We played charades and had a most enjoyable evening.

The Biggins, English, are moving to Peking. We will miss Madam Biggins from our social life for she was and is such a social lady. Mr. and Mrs. Biggins will be missed from the work. Neither had entered any foreign enterprise, but each has given every bit of strength to work with the Chinese. I have not even seen Mr. Biggins this fall.

Little Isabel Hemingway has been down here since Wednesday evening and has had a grand good time. I shall take both her and Adelaide into Shansi when I go for the holidays. A letter from Mrs. Hemingway received today gives directions for the journey. I am quite anticipating the trip. We will be there nearly two weeks. Flora has an invitation to Tsi Nan which I hope she can accept.

Our latest development is a suspected case of Scarlet fever. Robert McCann either has an exceptional, very severe case of chicken pox or else Scarlet fever. We are still hoping for the former but are taking every precaution lest it be the later. I wish now that I had scarlet fever instead of Pediculosis [lice] when Ruth had it. Fortunately Robert's grandmother came last night to visit the Galts! She has gone into quarantine with him so he is getting proper care without danger of exposure to the other children.

We were glad of a home letter to help make us thankful on Thursday. Please write more about Geraldine and her condition.

You had a busy fall, I do think and did well to get some cleaning done so soon with it all. I wish we could ship some of the Chinese servants to you. They are horribly inefficient but much better than nothing. Ours are doing fairly well this year.

This will be a little late for a Merry Christmas greeting but not for a Happy New Year message. Please accept both and my earnest prayer that God keep you all safe and well during the New Year.

With much love

Mary Beard

[This letter dated Dec. 3, 1916 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his sister Phebe. They had 13 in their home for Thanksgiving dinner and played their Grafynola. Geraldine was sicker than Willard realized. Fires have been destructive in Foochow and about 2000 families lost their homes. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Foochow, China.

Dec. 3rd 1916

Dear Phebe (sister):-

You must not ask me to tell which one of your good letters this is a reply to. It is just a letter to you my sister to be shared with all the dear home folks. You may be sure I and we thought of you last Thursday. We were talking of the gathering at Century Farm a year ago. It was different this year.

We had our Thanksgiving in this compound in three companies. At our home we had thirteen at the table- all the children and their parents came to us. I got our dining table and chairs set up just in time. The table held us nicely. Turkeys were 45 cents per lb. live weight= about 25 cents gold and geese were 20 cents per lb. live weight. We had two geese. And we had the cranberry sauce, mince pie, pumpkin pie, sweet potatoes, olives, apple sauce etc. etc. Then after the dinner the others came in and listened to the children in the play "The Landing of the Pilgrims" and to our new Grafynola the gift of the Putnam church.

It is bed time, so good night. I have begun the letter and it is now pretty sure to get finished.

Monday 3:45 p.m.

I have a little suit of Chinese clothes which I want to send to Edith. I plan to send it to some of you and ask you to give it to Abbie for her. And I plan to send it in two mails- the trousers in one mail and the coat in the next. So, when you get it do not be surprised or think it for some of you grown ups. We just happened to run across it and it came reasonably cheap so I got it with Edith in mind. I am sorry it will be too late for her Christmas present. She will have to play that her Christmas has been extended.

I wonder how that benevolent old gentleman on the school board decided about you. I could not help having a sort of fellow feeling for him because I am continually up against such propositions, = which one shall I take? Only last week I had to give the contract for the building of a house to one contractor and I shall have to tell the other one he cannot have it. In this case both are equally good, my leanings are toward the one who will not get it and he was the cheaper of the two.

The last letter about Elizabeth gave us very good news. I look to see figures about her weight that mount up into the 140's or 150's.

A good letter or rather good letters came from Oberlin in yesterday's mail. Geraldine must have been more seriously ill than the first letters indicated. She will lose this term's work at least and perhaps a year. I am writing that her very first business now is to get well. The other three seem all right. Dorothy is having a good time I judge. Gould is sailing along finely with A's in Science and Bible but his language bothers him. It was just the reverse with me in College. I got along in language but Science- chemistry and physics were difficult- largely because I did not care for them.

I shall be interested to learn who the Mayor of Shelton is. The paper yesterday- Sentinel- told who the candidates were.

Politically all is quiet in China so far as we can see. Here in Foochow everything as far as I know is running smoothly. Fires have been very destructive but that we expect. They have run into our work more this fall. Three weeks ago a church and parsonage burned up in a fire that destroyed 1400 numbers on houses, that meant over 2000 families burned out. A week before that a fire destroyed a part of Y.M.C.A. property near us- not the new buildings. Both were insured to cover loss.

Mr. Goddard- with Sumner, Davis and Brewer start from San Francisco next Saturday if their plans are carried out. They plan to reach here about the middle of January and stay only two weeks.

We are all very well and all getting fat- Marjorie is growing very fast- so is Kathleen, only she says "I can't get fat. My old stomach won't let me." Meaning that she eats a lot but it does not go into fat.

Here's a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to you all from us four.

Yours lovingly

Will

Foochow, China
Dec. 10th 1916

Dear Geraldine:-

It is hard to realize that I have written all the others since I wrote you but so the record reads. And still each week I write to one about as much as to another only the name at the head of the letter is different. It was just a week ago that we received letters from all of you and those have been answered.

We are having a very dry Nov. and it has been cold some of the time, but always sunshiny, and you may remember that Foochow weather is very cold only a few days at a time. We have burned only five or six bundles of wood this year, and have not yet bought any coal. A year ago I did not put up a stove in my study at all- I just put on clothes instead of using a fire. As I was writing the last line Mama was brushing my coat and the result is apparent.

Yesterday we all got over South Side to see people for the first time since our arrival last September. There was a piano at a Mrs. Whitmarsh's. She lives where Mrs. Geo. Greigg used to live. We wanted to see it. I had a committee meeting in the new Y.M.C.A. from 9-11:30 a.m. Mama and the girlies came over to Mrs. Macs. The girlies stayed there with Margaret and Helen and Mama and I went to Mr. and Mrs. McConnell's to lunch then we went to see the piano. It is a fine one from Shanghai. This lady rents it for $13.00 a month. I want to buy it. Mama is afraid it is too high priced for us. But we'll see. Exchange is way up in the sky. Mr. Christian sent me $100.00 gold this last week. I sold the check $169. Last year at this time it would have brought me about $250.00.

There is a movement on foot to unite the three congregational missions in China. We here in Foochow are taking the initiative. The Y.M.C.A. is doing good work still in the line of union as well as in other lines. Yesterday I spoke at a social for students from the government schools who have attended Bible Study Classes during the past term. 83 boys between the ages of 14 and 20 were there. They were there for business and when asked if they were ready to think of confessing Jesus and uniting with the church nearly every one put his name and address on a card.

Mr. Goddard and his party were to start from San Francisco yesterday. I am writing him that he plans to get here just after all the schools have closed for the year and I should be pleased if he could get here for the closing.

We are planning to go to Diong Loh next Saturday to spend Sunday. Mama has stuck pretty close to Foochow and to this city compound since we arrived. If we have this beautiful weather continued until then it will be very pleasant. We take the launch Saturday at noon or before or after or when it goes- if we are not too late for it and it is a ride of a little more than two hours. After leaving the launch we walk about 15 minutes to the Am. Board Compound. We should come back Monday.

A thief got into Mr. Billings house here in our compound last Wed. night and took away over $80.00 worth of things. Of course Kathleen got pretty well worked up over it but she also got over it in a day or two.

We shall anticipate every mail now to see what you are doing and to hear that you are entirely recovered, and also to hear what you plan to do next term.

May you have that greatest of all satisfaction- the sure knowledge that you are in line with God. I can wish no greater happiness for any of you than this. We are all well and getting fat. Lovingly your Father Willard L. Beard

[Dec. 13, 1916]

Dear folks at home:-

Yesterday brought another good letter from Ruth, telling all about her visit in South Orange. It was good to hear about some of the people again for I have not heard directly from Mrs. Powell or Miss Crisman in a long time. I get about one letter a year from Miss Palen, but that one is such a good long newsy one that I do not feel like complaining. Mr. Foster writes in answer to my letters, but as I am owing him one now I cannot expect one from that source. Miss Clarkson writes to me once in a while but she is homesick for South Orange, though she is being quite philosophical.

We are waiting for newspapers telling about the particulars of the election. It was nearly a week of see-sawing news here before we finally heard that Wilson was elected. I am glad he is in again for I feel that U.S. may be able to keep out of the war.

Someway news seems to be rather scarce here. Our days have been pretty full for we are still observing quarantine for two boys. Robert McCann is peeling so I think there is very little doubt but that he has had scarlet-fever as well as chicken-pox. He has been moved to an empty house here in the compound. The other little boy is Leander Lovell (a relative to the Plainfield Gilberts), and he is nearly well of the chicken pox. I am hoping this vacation may break this "spell" of illness and give us a chance for a new and clean start. To-morrow sees nearly every one off home. Mary starts for her trip into Shansi with Dr. Hemingway's two little daughters to keep her company and to be her interpreters, where she needs one. She has prepared warm clothing for the trip and I am glad she is getting away from everything for two weeks. She needs the rest very much. This has been a more than strenuous term and I think it would be the wisest decision to refuse to undertake another without proper help. Mrs. Porter received a cable two days ago that her sister sailed from San Francisco on Dec. 8th, so we shall have help after she arrives. I am enclosing a draft for $50 gold which I wish you to put to my credit some where. I know it is more than I am owing- or perhaps more than I may be owing in the future but exchange is so very favorable that I thought I would send some money home for future emergencies. Exchange is disastrous to our salary here for it makes a difference of $60 silver each month in what Mary and I get. We are not buying many curios these days.

With love to all-

Flora Beard.

Dear Folks at Home All:-

Just in the midst of the Commencement there came a parcel from the U.S. that made us all very happy. The girlies opened it and such shouts of joy as they found the work bags all perfect in their equipment. Why Ellen can't keep them from going to them on Sunday. And the pumpkin, I do not need to use adjectives here. Honestly it's the best thing of its kind that I get during the year. THANK YOU.

I am writing this on the card that we sent out here for Christmas time.

Lovingly

All of Us.

Friday morning

[Before Dec. 25, 1916]

Dear Flora- Your letter enclosing Phebe's and Mary Helen's has just arrived. You must have gotten my letter soon after sending yours. I am so glad you are going to the wedding and to hear Miss Ackerman and the Messiah. This is a grand place for a vacation and the people are just grand. I have a cold sleeping room and a warm bathroom at Mrs. Fairfield's and have breakfast here. Then I have lunch in and supper with Mrs. Hemmingway.

On Monday I went over and saw Winifred have her bath then came back and saw Margaret Fairfield have hers. On Sunday a telegram had come for Dr. H. to go to see Mrs. Vannion[?] who was quite ill. He left here at 3.00 AM Monday to catch an early train from Yu Tze. He was gone until nine o'clock Tuesday evening. On Monday afternoon Mr. H., Mrs. F. and I walked into the city to see the chapel and the big temple around the big white pagoda. I climbed up one story of the pagoda and got a fine view of the city and mountains. The temple and grounds were exceptionally clean. We came back and climbed the tower of the girl's school for another fine view. Then I helped Miss Hebner stir some nougat candy she was making and had the fun of helping the children lick the dish.

On Wednesday Mrs. Fairfield and I walked over to the Flower Garden and Mr. Fairfield and Mr. Kung took us around. It is a beautiful spot and must be quite wonderful when the shrubs and grass and flowers are all green. The Wolfe's moved to Foochow about a month ago. It is 50 miles over there so I fear I shall not see them. In the afternoon Mrs. Munger and I went for a horseback ride out toward the mountains. I rode Mac and she the red horse which Mr. Kung has let us have for the week. It was great fun.

Yesterday I went to Mrs. Munger's English class. She is using the natural method and the girls were intensely interested and eager. After dinner we dressed as quickly as we could for another ride. We two went around three sides of the city and in the West Gate while the Hemingway family walked the one quarter way round. Stephen rode the donkey. We all went to the city pond in the north west corner of the city and had a fine skate. The ice was very smooth and the pond is a good big one.

We left soon after three because Mrs. Corbin, whom I had not met, had sent word that she would be in between three and four. She is a very pleasant lady and was much interested hearing about our school. The girls are very fine looking girls. Both are larger and better developed physically than most girls of their age and pictures of health.

We have noon prayers here every day and last night regular Prayer meeting. I dined here last evening as did both the "single ladies". From five to six I went over and held Winifred. She is a darling baby. I got her first smile on Tuesday by ducking as we do at home to make the crone[?] go. She has smiled several times since for her mother or Adelaide.

This morning Mrs. Fairfield and I each had a shampoo. Travelling in Shansi evidently is dirty work for my head was awfully in need of the washing.

I hope this reaches you on Christmas day. Please write all of the people a Merry Christmas for me.

I brought along some little trinkets for the children here and am putting both our names on the cards. We used only two napkins so I am wrapping the children's gifts in those. It makes them very attractive and I think the children will like the wrapper as well as the gift.

I must close and write to Willard so as to send on Phebe's letter.

With love and Christmas greetings.

Mary-

Dear Stanley and Myra:-

This afternoon I am "vigilating"- get the Dictionary and see what that means. The missions in this province have a Union Educational Association, and each year at this time this association gives uniform examinations. The questions are prepared and printed beforehand, dates and places decided and two persons appointed to be present at each examination to see that the students are tested fairly and do not cheat. So here I am watching 48 youngsters. The questions in Geography for the Lower Primary students were sealed in this envelope. There are 35 taking this exam, and 13 taking an exam in Physiology. There are examinations in other places here in Foochow at the same time and in other cities of the province also. The Lower Primary corresponds to our Grades 1, 2, 3, 4, and Higher Primary to our grades 5, 6, 7, 8. Then comes Middle school and then College. Foochow College now means 4 years Higher Primary and 4 years Middle School. Then the students go into the Fukien Union College and the Union Theological School or the Union Medical College, each of which is of College grade. In all these mission schools in Fukien province there are 25,000 pupils. Yesterday I saw a chart with the map of Fukien province drawn on it and marked off into squares. There were 130 squares each representing 100,000 people. One square was of a different color- indicating that one out of 130 persons in the province were Christians. The estimated population of the province is all the way between 13 and 23 million. This map took the lowest estimated pop'n.

The other day- last Saturday evening the College boys gave a play. An audience of 3000 sat quietly from 7 to 10 p.m. Then some of the women and children quietly withdrew and about 2000 sat for another hour. It is very interesting to see the progress made in the orderliness of crowds in Foochow during the past five years. Only last year the boys gave a play attended by about 2000. It was very difficult to handle the crowd, both at the gate and during the performance. But there was no trouble this year. The boys too are learning self control.

On Christmas Day in the afternoon we had our Field Day. Pulled off 21 events in about two hours- not a kick from a student except in one event where the judges got two names mixed. 3500 people watched the events- we had a perfect day. The Governor General, the Mayor, Salt Commissioner, Police Commission and Tau Tai were present and promised $150 to the students in prizes. This crowd of nearly 3500 was perfectly orderly from the beginning of the events until all was finished. Eight years ago when I was in the Y.M.C.A. we tried to have a Field Day. - The first trial of the sort in Foochow. The crowd did not know what the thing meant, and after one or two events they broke over the lines and practically broke up the meet. In the "Sport Spirit" of the boys too there is great progress. They are learning to "play the game" even if they are beaten, and not worry over the loss of "face."

We had a very quiet Christmas- I mean we did. The only celebration in which we missionaries indulged was a tree for the children at 5:00 in the afternoon. But we had enough of the Christmas with the Chinese, - exercises daily for about a week.

It is awful good to have ones own home. The girlies are a joy forever, and they are very little trouble. They play like two kittens and fight just enough to prove they are human, from 8-12 and from 2-4 they are in school five days in the week. They have as teachers, Mrs. Hodous, Mrs. Billing, Mrs. Scott and Mrs. Beard. These teachers are not held to as close accountability as teachers in the public schools at home.

We are only partly settled yet. It takes time to get things= furniture made here. We should have about all our heavy furniture by Feb. 15th. Most of this is being made of oak boards we had in boxes in which our furniture came. We brought our own dining table and chairs and beds. It is nice to have some things that are homey, - if they are old.

Mr. Goddard and party are expected in Feb. They were coming the middle of Jan. - but a telegram came to say that they were going by way of Manila.

Examinations began yesterday. They end Jan. 8 and commencement comes Jan. 10. Six men graduate. This year we unite with the Union Normal School and the Ponasang Girls College.

The political situation here is very quiet, as it is all over China, for any thing I know or hear. I doubt if the country is better governed now then it was twenty years ago. There is probably as much political corruption now as ever. With the coming of the Republic there has come a certain license that is deplorable. Purely Chinese schools are very difficult to manage. The students rule. The "Red Light" districts in large cities used to be relegated to an out of the way suburb. In Foochow now it is in the midst of the busiest part of the city and on the new road- easily accessible from all parts of the city.

Improvements continue to go on. Each week sees a mile or so of macadamized road opened and new buildings of three and four stories are all the time going up. We can now go to most of the important places in Foochow by ricksha.

The girls in Tungchou have had a very hard term, due to illness among the pupils, but they are now resting in vacation.

My visit to your home is as fresh in memory as it was the next day. I am very glad I was there and can now see you in my minds eye as you are now- getting dinner- and eating it- and washing up the dished- and wiping them. May God's richest blessing rest on your home.

All of us join in sending love.

Will.

I hope you'll consider this a very special letter. I never use this kind of paper of any one else.

Will.

Tungchou, Dec. 31, 1916.

Dear folks at home:-

This is the last day of the old year and we have had a real New England Christmas weather. For three days it snowed incessantly and the result was about five inches of lovely fluffy snow. It lay so lightly on the leaves and branches that it was a beautiful sight. It is the only real "western" snowstorm that we have seen here. Then the night before Christmas the thermometer went down to zero and a high wind came up thus spoiling our beautiful world of pure white snow. It blew the fields bare and covered the drifts with dirt so now we have the usual mud colored snow known too well to us in North China. The Chinese are very happy to have the snow for they say it is worth gold to them in furnishing moisture for the spring and it also helps to prevent disease and to save their trees. The Chinese do very little protecting of their own plants. Here in our Compound they bury the grape vines 'in toto', and most small plants are covered with dirt.

To tell you about my vacation, - Mary got off for Shansi the very night that school closed and the next day saw all the rest of the children depart excepting the two in quarantine- one for chicken-pox and the other for both chicken-pox and scarlet fever. The latter was in another building. I spent a few days cleaning house and then on Thursday went up to Mrs. Ingram's to attend the wedding of the couple who made their announcement last spring on the trip we took down in Shantung. You can imagine the surprise it was, to have the mother of the groom attempt to introduce me to the best man who was Carl Rehberg. He said he had been out here for a year under the employ of the Standard Oil. He has just lately changed for the China-American Trading Co., which he thinks has much more promise for his future advancement. The next day he came and had lunch with me at Mrs. Ingram's and he says he hopes to be married within the next two months. I did not have time enough to enquire about "her", but imagine she is some one here. - In the evening of the day of the wedding I attended a meeting of the Friday Club held at Dr. and Mrs. Reinsch's at the Legation. There was a musical program and a lecture by Miss Jessie Ackerman of long lecturing reputation. She was quite witty and told us of a few things that women had done in the past decade for furthering the causes of better living. Afterwards there was a social time and re-freshments which kept me busy for there were so many people present whom I had not seen for a long time. Among them was Lawrence Seymour, one of our South Orange boys and a nephew of the Damrosch's of New York musical fame. - Our Christmas there was a successing of good things. I was at Mrs. Ingram's and she had guests for breakfast among whom were Dr. Katherine Porter and Mr. Green, who is the 'head' of the Rockefeller Foundation for China. I had lunch with the Fenns of the Presbyterian Board and we had antelope for our 'goose.' It was my first taste of venison and it was good. In the evening I was back at Mrs. Ingram's where we had turkey. None of us was hungry enough to really 'hanker' after the meal but it certainly was homelike and Christmasy. In the evening all the American Boarders came in for games and we certainly had a good time. It was eleven o'clock when we went upstairs to go to bed. - On Thursday Mrs. Ingram invited Lawrence Seymour and two other young men as well as two young ladies in for dinner and then we all went to hear the Messiah given by a chorus of about sixty people. It was done well- much more smoothly in the choruses than last Easter time. This was quite a dressy occasion and I wore my old black Japanese silk gauze. I think I will have to have it made over for it is getting too ancient. I think mine was the only 'train' out. I am trying to get some silk to have my white lace waist usable again, but have not succeeded in finding what I want.

Now I am home again to stay. The first thing that I did on arriving was to attend the funeral of Mr. and Mrs. Frame's little two year old girl. This is the second child they have lost within this year and now they are childless. Mrs. Frame is so sad and they are worried about her especially as there is another little one on the way. We all feel that she is indeed going through deep waters. Her husband was ill for two months this fall with dysentery and that was the cause of her baby's death, though the disease had been conquered so that her death was rather from heart failure than the dysentery.

Some two or three weeks ago I sent a letter to you with a $50 gold draft made out to father. Through the bungling of my servant it did not get registered though that word is written on the envelope just below the stamp. Will you please let me know if it reached you so that I can have the duplicate made out for you if it should be lost? A few days ago I mailed a draft of Mary's to you but the letter was registered so it should reach you safely. The corsets and corset covers came safely some time ago. I must have made a mistake in giving you the size for the c. covers for they are one size too small for me. I am re-mailing them to you and wish you would send the next size larger- size.

I am expecting Mary to-morrow though word has come through a friend that her plans have changed. She has not written me so I am still expecting her.

With love to all- Flora Beard.

Foochow, China
Jan 7th 1917

Dear Geraldine:-

This is the first letter recorded in my new correspondence register for 1917. I am not writing many letters these days. The past week has been filled with examinations and meetings of Boards of Directors, and Commencements. It has been one of the coldest weeks I remember in Foochow. Friday morning I was examining a class in Biblical History in the same room with another teacher. I corrected the papers of my class as they came in. My hands nearly congealed and the boys had to blow on their hands to keep them limber enough so they could write. These cold mornings it takes courage to get out of a nice warm bed and take ten minutes exercise in pajamas and a cold splash all over. The girlies keep it up too but Kathleen does not exactly enjoy it. We saw snow yesterday on Kuliang.

Commencement is to be held next Wed. at 2 p.m. With that over another school year is finished and then at once must begin the planning for the new year. Exams for this begin Feb. 1st. I may have written that the Girl's College at Ponasang and the Union Normal School are uniting with us this year for Commencement. It will save me the time and trouble of attending these two commencements.

Last Friday evening the Anti Cobweb Club met at our home. The cook had gone home and Mama had lots of examination papers to correct. The evening was quite rainy and very cold. I told Mama that 20 would be the largest possible number that would come. But there were 25,- a large gathering for a pleasant evening for this club. Mama had to go into the kitchen and prepare some of the refreshments herself. We had an interesting paper on Russia's past by Mr. H.E. Dennis from C.A.[?] and very interesting "personal impressions" by Prof. Scott who has lived there.

This morning I preached the Baccalaureate sermon before four schools graduates. Foochow College - Girls college- Normal School-Bible Women's Training School. This afternoon I sat thru a church business meeting (from 2-5:30 p.m.) and this evening I attended the Y.P.S.C.E. meeting of the College- the last of this year and spoke 15 minutes- I am weary, so I shall say good night and crawl into my little bed- where Mama and the girlies have already gone.

The last we heard from you was the letter received from Phebe Dec. 23- two weeks ago.

I am enclosing to you a check for $100- on the Putnam Bank. Phebe and Gould will need it. You and Dorothy may have enough. Turn it over to Phebe and Gould as they need it and they will report to me in their monthly statement. Of course if you need part of it you will take it. I wish you could all make out a budget and send me of your probable expenses up to July 1st.

I think of you as starting College tomorrow Jan 8. May the Father keep you all in such bodily health as will make possible the best mental work, and may he give you interest, enthusiasm and concentration in the college studies that will ensure satisfaction and success

Your Father

Dear Ones at Home,

It is a long time since I have written you from here. My trip into Shansi was one good time from start to finish. En route out we went to Taiyuan Fu, the capital of Shansi, and spent Sunday with Dr. and Mrs. Edwards. (They were our next door neighbors at Pei Tai Ho last summer.) I thoroughly enjoyed the visit and I think the little girls did too. One of the English ladies had to come out to Tientsin so joined our party. At YuTze a Chinese girl joined us en route to study medicine at Peking, so we were five. I completely forgot that it was New Year's Day most of the time. I read to the children every bit of reading matter I had along, and that with eating and playing filled the eight hour journey well. At Shu Un Chiang we went again to the [unreadable word], had supper (Chinese food) and slept from 8-10.

Then we got ready for our train which left at 11.10. The third class afforded the most room so we came up that way and were quite comfortable. We had had a nice warm comfortable journey until we reached Peking. It was cold and windy there and we were glad to get to Mrs. Ingram's nice warm home, and get some breakfast.

I left little Isabel and Adelaide and I came down on the noon train. Most of the Tungchou ladies were on the train because they had been up to receive on New Years Day. I had hoped to see Flora there but she received here at the school all who did not go to Peking. I ran over to see Mrs. Frame almost at once and found her just as [unreadable word] and sweet as can be. Little Francis' death seems doubly hard after loosing the baby last spring. Just now the Frames are in Peking for a change because Mrs. Frame's heart is very bad.

School begins to seem easier with Miss Dudley here although as yet I have handed over no classes. She is young, pretty, enthusiastic and a sort of inspiration to have around. She is not effusive enough to be insincere but genuinely interested.

This week the Porter's received word of Mr. Dudley's death. I was so sorry for Miss Dudley but glad that she had gotten to know us all before this sorrow came.

On Friday Flora went to Peking for the afternoon. Miss Dudley took her room. Mrs. Porter and I gave examinations yesterday afternoon and now I take back the Cicero class and start them on the Manchurian Law.

Robert McCann is ready to come out of quarantine when he stops peeling. Parts of him have peeled their t? already and are still at it. He is working on his Algebra so as to have that off his hands when he comes out.

Monday A.M.

Ruth's letter arrived by the morning mail. The packages have not yet arrived but we no longer worry because we know now that all parcel post is held at the western coast of the U.S.A. for American ships. This is because of the censoring of the Allies and our objection to it. As far as I know no one had yet received Christmas parcels, not even mine mailed as early as the middle of October or November first.

I am very eager to receive my sweater for I need it in the laboratory every week. It is too cold to resume all wraps and too hot with my big coat. Many thanks, Father for it.

I am off soon for a piza ride with a bunch of children. We go to the canal and up to the old stand[?] bridge or down to the pagoda. It is a glorious day for such a trip. The skating is spoiled for a few days because the compound is harvesting ice. How[?] these trips must now intervene to keep the child happy and out of doors.

I am so glad Elizabeth could come home for Thanksgiving and hope she could join you at Christmas also. The reports are most encouraging.

Your brown suit must be most in keeping and becoming of Ruth. I should like to see it.

A week ago or else on Thursday Flora mailed a package to Edith Louise for her birthday. It is an embroidered dress which I bought at Pei Tai Ho last summer. I hope it is big enough. Please write me regarding her size some day- as to height and weight.

I still picture her as the little sprite I left but I know she has grown and I try to gage the size by her years.

I have another namesake out here, Mary Louise Price. Whether the name was for me or not it is after me at least. I have not seen her as she lives in Tientsin.

We think the cost of living is high here but it is higher with you evidently. What is going to happen if it continues to rise?

I must close my things and be off so as to have the good sunshine for [unreadable word].

Lots of love

Mary.

Dear Flora and Mary:-

From your last letter you have had a very strenuous term. The same has been true here. Altho our strenuousness has not been due either to illness or to roughishness of the students. If Miss Wiley had been here Ellen and I would have had an ordinary terms work. The term has been more than ordinarily successful. More students got on the honor roll= 90 and up, and less students failed than usual. Then three, with commencement four. Events have put into the school a good esprit d'corps. On Oct 10 and 11 in the evenings the boys had a lantern parade. The officials invited them into their yamens and addressed them and gave them tea and cakes. Then the Saturday evening before Christmas the College gave an amateur play. Three thousand people were admitted by ticket. This was a big success. The boys did well and the order of the crowd was all that could be desired. On Christmas day we had a Field Day. To this more than 3000 people were admitted. The Governor-General and four other high officials came. They promised $180 to the boys as prizes. $80 has come. This Field Day was a big success. Perfect order was kept all thru. All the events were carried out, and Miss Ponters= Am. Consul's wife gave out the prizes.

The fourth success of the term was our Commencement. This came last Wed. afternoon. Three institutions united, Foochow College, Ponasang Girl's College and Union Normal School with graduates six, three and eight respectively. A graduate of Foochow College and one of the Normal School had orations, and we had an orator= a Foochow man, a graduate of a Japanese School and formerly head of the B'd of Education in Peking, - now returned to Foochow. He spoke on Education very well. The address was clear in thought, and diction. Many have voluntarily spoken of it to me. After his address General Li "poured out his heart" in a fine address. The officials came to our house with some of the other gentlemen, Chinese and foreign for a little "feast". This gave us a chance to tell them of our educational system, The Union College etc. and I had a good talk with the orator on Christianity.

I hoped to get the toaster to work and eat some of its toast before I wrote our thank you for it but reviews and exams and a multitude of Committee meetings have been too much for me. Here's the thank you just the same. I hope you both got all the change and rest you anticipate during your vacation and that you go back to school duties in good fettle [condition of fitness or spirits].

We are ready to go to Ing Hok tomorrow morning- the whole family. The girlies have never had a country trip and they are naturally much interested.

I am sending an envelope full of letters from Shelton. Things seem bright there. Elizabeth is giving much encouragement to all by her improvement. Geraldine is getting better all the time, but her face is not perfectly normal yet. Dorothy seems to be having a very good time and to be winning every ones good will. That seems to be a strong point with her. Geraldine will likely go into College now- is likely there now, altho of course we are not certain. [It sounds as if Geraldine might be suffering from a case of Bell's Palsy which began in October or November of 1916. Nancy Butte remembers her mother-in-law, Marjorie, mentioning that Geraldine did have Bell's Palsy at one time. Kathleen Beard also had a case of it in her early married life.]

Dr. Edward Lincoln Smith and Mrs. Smith= my successor in the N.Y. office are due here about Jan 20- to stay about a week or ten days. Mr. Goddard and Frank Brewer and Mrs. Brewer are now in Manila or Mindanao. They plan to be here about March 1st.

With love from all to both of you

Dear folks at home:-

This is the day before Chinese New Years and we feel the excitement among our servants. It is a time when they reckon with each other for all their short comings and up here in the north they stop up the mouth of the kitchen god (a paper one) with a round ball of malt candy. It is most delectable stuff and most healthful to eat. We have it once a week with English walnuts for dessert. They have a way of making perfectly round- but hollow- balls of it which are very popular at this time of year. When I wrote "they" above I hardly think it should apply to our servants but rather to the heathen Chinese. This year there seems to be much more "stir" in the celebration. The day after New Year;- Yesterday was quite like "Fourth of July" with all the firecrackers going off. We had one less train each way between here and Peking, and instead of having to wait for an hour or two while a number of cars were being unloaded the evening train pulled out from the station ten minutes too early. I was walking down leisurely with our music teacher to see her off on the train and it took a hard sprint to reach the crossing, but we were in time to hail the engineer and he stopped the train. It was a five-foot jump for her to get into the train but with the help of a gallant Chinese gentleman we got her on a third class car- she had a first class ticket. However she was on and that was the chief thing. I expect the trainmen were in a hurry to get back to their celebrations and did not expect any foreigners to be travelling on this holiday. The Chinese travelers arrive and wait hours for the train so that there really is no one but us foreigners who think of "just making the train."- This year the name has been changed from Chinese New Years to Spring Festival. To us this seems somewhat rushing the season since we've not yet even had the January thaw. The ice cutters are putting up ice that is over a foot thick and the place from which it was cut is already safe for skating. Is this a step toward counting their time from our calendar? Things are certainly moving along more democratic lines when the President goes in person to a neighboring city to attend the graduation at a Government College.

This is our examination week and we shall all be glad when it is over and we can start on our new program with Miss Dudley. She has been doing a lot of things to help but we could not give her some of the classes until we began the new term. She is fine and I hope we are to have a more satisfactory half year. It seems as if the past few months had been a bad dream, they have been so full of too many things to do. That Mary and I have come out of them without a breakdown is due to our good constitution. Mary got a fine rest up in Shansi so I hope with our new help that she will keep well all through the winter. I imagine we have had nearly all of the worst cold that this winter will give us for the weather seems to go in steps here- each step increasing until the "period of greatest heat" or "cold" is reached then the steps move nearly regularly in the opposite direction. This winter we have had very unusual snow which has made the natives very glad but it has nearly vanished now- not melted but evaporated. However it will make some difference with the spring crops. The Chinese are very careful in cleaning off the snow to heap it up around the trees so that irrigates them somewhat in winter. There are mud troughs made around each ornamental tree so that water can be poured in and made to water the tree. The snow is piled in and as fast as it packs down more is piled on so it answers two needs at once-clearing the streets and watering the trees.

I have not yet sent the waists but will the next time I go to Peking.

News has come from the Home end of the Union work in College education in Peking to hurry negotiations so that the work may be opened in Peking next fall, so there is a possibility that the personnel of Tungchou may [be] much changed next year. The college will be moved up to Peking and the Peking American Board Boy's Academy may be moved down here. This will make some of the Peking people move down here and some of our families move up there. I am glad that it means an exchange and not empty houses as it looked for a long time to be.

There are other letters to be written to-night so I must close. I am enclosing Will's last letter to us.

Yours lovingly-
Flora Beard.

N.C.A.S. [North China American School]
January 29, 1917

Dear Ones at Home-

Yesterday I finished my letter to Stanley and Myra and wrote one to Willard so did not get one off to you. You see, I know I will get yours in if it gets left out on Sunday but do not feel so sure of the others.

Last week was the last of the first semester. The examinations came in the last three days. I took charge of all mine except on Saturday afternoon when Miss Dudley did so that I might go over to the laboratory with Mable and Robert to make up lost work.

On Monday last Mrs. Porter, Jean Dudley and I went to Peking "just for fun". It is the first trip of the kind I have made this year and it was fun. We went to the Chinese City and saw the sights although we did not purchase much. It was the day before New Years so the streets were gay and the crowds great. We had to clutch our purses tight and carry our rugs instead of leaving them in the rickshaws.

On Tuesday I shampooed my hair because it was in such desperate need of a shampoo. It was not a cold day so there was not much heat on and it took a long time to dry. On Wednesday after school I took the small children to walk off into the country. The next day Mrs. Galt gave a tea for Miss Ingram, so I went to that. I have one of the towels Ruth sent out that I am hemstitching at teas. One end is nearly half done and the threads pulled on the other. I pulled those when in Shansi. On Friday Mrs. Frame, Mrs. Porter, Jean and I took a long walk. I was so tired of children that we ran away from them. On Saturday came another tea at Mrs. Howard Smiths. It seemed strange to go to a real tea at the English home because the Biggins never entertained en mass. We were urged to drop in anytime for tea but Madame Biggins could not stand the excitement of entertaining and Mrs. Biggins gave all her strength to her Chinese[?] work so we seldom ever saw her. The new people come to church with us, to Prayer meeting and every social event.

The oldest little girl is coming to our school and the younger goes to Mrs. Porter and is in the classes with Elizabeth Porter.

We have had word that a second lady has been appointed to Tungchou, a Miss Huggins, sister of the one already out here. Mrs. Smith is delighted at the prospect of a colleague.

Did I write you that the thin stockings came all right? Thank you for getting them. I can not remember whether I have asked you to renew my "National Geographic" and "Literary Digest" or not. If I have neglected it will you please do it and ask them to make good any numbers that get left out so that my files may be complete.

This week we had a nice letter from Willard, enclosing ones from you, from Elizabeth and from the Oberlin children. How good that Thanksgiving dinner sounded! I wrote Willard on plans for summer and urged him to come North. I do want to see him and Ellen and the children. We expect to take the Mongolian trip in this year. The plans are more definite now than last year; and it's not a party of women only, hence we will not be so easily scared off. Then too, the country is in a more settled state and robbers and bandits are not so much to be feared.

We are having glorious weather. The dust has spoiled the ice so we can not skate. Even the new ice, frozen after the ice crop was harvested has a thick layer of dust on it. The noonday sun melts the surface so the dust sticks fast. You see we get in good exercise just the same by walking.

This afternoon I have to go to Peking for errands. Our local bank has closed because the head man got tired of his job. Consequently, I must go to Peking for money to pay the servants in cash also to pay weekly expenses in cash. It means keeping a lot of money in the home and I do not like that.

It is nearly ten o'clock and I must stop and get ready to go to Peking.

I hope for good news again regarding the health of you all. Please send this with Elizabeth if she is still at Saranac [Saranac Lake. See letter dated November 1916. Elizabeth may have also been in a Sanatorium in 1906 according to a letter dated June 17, 1906.]. I have meant to write her personally but even with Miss Dudley I manage to keep busy. But she is such a bright cheery person that we get in a good laugh every day and that does us good.

Lots of love to all

Mary

Foochow, China
Feb. 4th 1917

Dear Geraldine:-

The mails are certainly taking their own time. No word from you this last week- a whole month since a letter came from any of you. The last mail brought a letter from the Board at Boston mailed Dec. 9th 1916- almost two months on the way.

Yesterday we heard that Germany had given out word that she would sink anything on the surface of the water that she could find at any time- the interpretation we put on it was that she wanted to force the U.S. into the war. The Am. Consul had just telephoned to us that the U.S. has broken off diplomatic relations with Germany. I can not see how the U.S. can help by entering the war and I cannot see how she will benefit herself by so doing. It is all right to sever our relations with Germany- but we would be playing into her hands if we joined the Allies. Our part is to wait and help in arranging the peace. My prayer is and has been that God will make President Wilson, his Cabinet and Congress very wise- with God's own farsighted wisdom, and that he will keep the people sane. Then I pray that the war may cease, but not until man has had enough of war so that he will never be willing to start a war again.

On last Friday afternoon about 2:40 o'clock Dr. and Mrs. Edward Lincoln Smith came in quite unexpectedly. Their steamer left Hong Kong earlier than it was expected to. Fortunately Mr. Neff was in Amoy and came up with them and piloted them to our house. The next party will be Mr. Goddard, Mr. and Mrs. Brewer about March 1st.

Thursday and Friday we held examinations for entrance to College. About the usual number came to be examined. College opens next Thursday, then regular work begins for Mama and me.

Our beautiful weather continues. Every day is cold, bright and clear with frequent frosts- just good first of November weather at home. I have never had to keep fires in the house so continuously since I have been in Foochow.

Feb. 4, 1917

This morning I went with Mr. Newell about two miles outside the city to the home village of one of the College boys. He had made preparations to have a school started in his village. We had a nice meeting in an ancestral temple- sang, had scripture read, prayer and two Christian addresses. The head man of the village was there and all looks auspicious for a good school there this year. This all started in the mind of this College boy about 17 years old. This morning he took the leadership of the meeting as naturally and easily as the President of the U.S. Senate take his work. In the audience were the village elders and the important men of the village- some of the young men in government institutions in Peking. I mention this to call attention to the benefit of the training in this school. Very few boys 17 years old would feel competent to take the chair in such a meeting in a village of 1000 people at home.

Last Tuesday Mr. Ding Ming Uong was married [Did his first wife die? In 1902 he and his wife had a baby girl.]. I went down the river to see if Dr. and Mrs. Smith had arrived so could not attend the wedding but Mama went. And both of us attended the feast in the evening.

How we long to know about you all,- what you are doing. Especially what you are doing this term and we are waiting to hear that all traces of your trouble have disappeared.

I will enclose a $1.00 this week to be credited to one by any one of you. I feel very much in the dark about your financial matters.

We are all very well. May God keep you all well in body and mind and soul. I came across a good, helpful thought the other day. "Spiritual power is simply the capacity to receive." This means to receive from God. May you all have that capacity in large degree

Very lovingly your Father

Dear Ones at Home-

Ruth's statement of my finances came this week- I note that I owed $6.95. Since then you have received a draft for $25.00 which leaves me a credit of $18.05. I think I have never sent the account of the articles I sent this fall so I include it now. On one of Willard's letters Mother asked if she could use some doilies he sent for a sale. If you have not given away those square doilies I sent, please do put them into a sale and check them from my list as my gift toward the same. Would the place cards be useful that way? If so I will send a box of 100 for such use next year. I used to give 25 cents a dozen for them in Santa Barbara and counted them cheap. The little ones would be about 15 cents a dozen.

The box of pumpkin came all safely and I am waiting for a fit opportunity to partake of the delicious pies. Flora has taken it into custody as she is housekeeper, and does any ordering of meals that is done.

On Monday I took all the children into the city to visit the candy shop and to invest their three cents each. We had a fine walk and a good feast of candy. Wednesday was a birthday and we had Mr. and Mrs. Porter over for supper that night. My sweater arrived about 6.00 P.M. so I put on a thin dress as an excuse for wearing it to dinner. I do like it very much and it is much easier to walk or play tennis in than a coat that is partly fitted and does not have the give to it. Thank you again, Father, for it. It fits perfectly.

According to our new assignment of duties I have two evenings a week free from study hall. I feel like a child with an unexpected holiday. I celebrated the first night by going to Prayer meeting. The people asked if I were reformed and I appreciated the joke since it was my second appearance at Prayer meeting since coming to Tungchou [unreadable word].

On Wednesday we had Mr. and Mrs. Porter over for dinner. It was a birthday night as well so quite a festive occasion.

Mrs. Porter and I were out for tennis on Friday. It was our first game since long before Thanksgiving. Of course, I got beaten but I managed to get a few games.

Saturday was a red-letter evening. Mr. Green, head of the Rockefeller work, and Dr. Stearns a doctor who came out this fall and is in the language school were spending Sunday at the Porters. Dr. and Mrs. Love gave a dinner party and I was one of the favored guests. It was a most interesting occasion and I learned a lot. We discussed the Japan-China question, the Korean question, the status of America now etc. so you see we were not frivolous.

When we came out to return home, the ground was white with snow. It was calm so everything looked beautiful in the veiled moonlight. Yesterday I took all of the children for a long walk. We had an awfully good time jumping in the "snow banks, the deepest of which was about two feet deep.

Last evening we all went over to the Porter's for the Sunday night sing as has become our custom. We had music on the victrola, a male quartet, a piano solo, a violin solo, a male solo and hymns by the assembled company. It is entirely informal and we call for anything we like. The older children go over with us and stay until nine o'clock. We older ones leave about ten, so you see we are not badly dissipated. Flora has not been over for various reasons but I do hope she goes next week for it is such fun.

I want to hear from you as to the real success (?) of Annie's debut on the stage. Elizabeth's letters are still encouraging but no mention of returning home permanently yet.

I didn't say that I am glad to have mother and any of you keep for yourselves anything you fancy in what I send home. I have not had any one in mind particularly for any of the things but have sent things I thought interesting or pretty. You are at home and know better than I what is suited to individuals at any time.

Miss Hill is going to take this and mail it for me on the Asia as a friend of hers sails on her. So do not be alarmed at the American postage.

I am glad to get Arousiag's address again. I was using her brother's office address which is always good.

Tungchou, Feb. 18, 1917.

Dear folks at home:-

This is an anxious day- even here in China. The papers yesterday told of President Wilson's action toward Germany. I think everyone here approves, but wishes that it did not have to be done. One can't help thinking, "What next?" I do believe we are more free here in China from the sufferings caused by war than you people at home. It seems to me that New York will be an anxious city. We are all eager to get each morning's paper to read the latest news, and our "Current Events" morning in the school is an interesting time. - Nearly two weeks later: - We are still anxious to get our morning paper to hear about home affairs. Circumstances do not seem to be clearing.

Last Friday the Christmas parcel arrived in perfect condition and we both feel very happy over its contents. Everyone admires my beautiful work bag. It matches my afternoon dress and all the paraphernalia of my little work bag, so I am fitted for little or big work. My stockings I shall enjoy when the time for low shoes arrives- which will not be long now. Yesterday I noticed that the tops of the willow trees were getting yellower and even turning greenish. Our dust storms started in on Saturday so that today we have had a perfect day. The air has been dry cleaned. To-morrow our servants will have to spend getting this Gobi dust out of the house. It drifts even on to the bed, so that where our head lies is the only clean spot. There is a peculiar odor to it, so that when things have to be shaken out we can smell it. The next time we have a dust rain (dry) I am going to send you some of the yellow stuff.

I have decided to keep the waists I wrote you I should send home. I can wear them although they are small. Mail is so slow and not too sure these days so I feel that possession is better if the size is a little too small. - Does father want to make another gift of sweet corn to us? If he does we should be most happy to get about a pint of evergreen corn or the yellow sweet corn that Uncle Dan raises- or both. We do not plant the corn until about July 1st here so I think there is time for it to get here. I am having to rely upon native seed or those from England for our garden this year, as I did not get any order off to U.S. for home seeds.

This week comes the annual meeting of the Trustees of the N.C.A.S., at which I have to give my first report. There will be a number of important discussion and decisions, and I imagine it will take about all day to get them done. We have been in existence long enough so that people are finding out that we need to have some lines of procedure arranged if possible to convenience people wide distances apart. I am looking forward to this meeting with many anticipations- the results of which I hope may make future dealings with problems much easier. This year has been one in which experiences have come in deluges and not having any precedents we have had to leave some things till this meeting for settlement. So far all has proceeded amicably with one exception and when I tell you that we are dealing with a "peroxide blonde" you can imagine what our problem is.

We have just had our mid year examinations and their showing has not covered us with honor. The bad beginning in the fall has had its harvest. Most of the children will get to work and pull themselves out of the hole.

The Sentinels have been most welcome. I noted in one of the later ones that Mrs. Tuttle of Naugatuck is still living and that she is spending some of her money in the town where it was earned. I am glad she is that kind of woman.

With love to all- Flora.

Dear Ones,

The Christmas package came last week. My chain is a beauty and I do thank you so much for it. I feel so very grand with a new sweater and a gold chain. Ever since coming out I have wanted a chain and have refrained from purchasing any of the pretty little dangles because I had nothing to wear them with. Congratulations to father from us both on this his birthday. Many thanks again. With much love

Mary.

Foochow, China Feb. 22nd 1917

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

Kathleen has had a letter written to a friend in Putnam for some time. She keeps asking me from time to time if I have sent it. It is getting rather awkward for me so I am enclosing it in your letter. I have put on it a two cent stamp. Will you please mail it. She has also taken one of my envelopes and addressed it to you. I see there are some valentines inside. I am using this envelope today. Kathleen's letter she wrote on the typewriter so I am leaving it unsealed for you to read if you want to.

The last mail brought lots of letters from you and Geraldine. Geraldine had not then fully decided on what she would do this term, but I thought from her letter that she would plan to enter College and take some work. I was not certain that she could find subjects so that she could work profitably this term but I judged from her letter that this would be possible. I quite agree to the nice present that you gave to Aunt Etta. Give another for Easter as good. I wish I could find out how much Uncle Elbert gave her I would refund him. I wrote a week ago or so that I wish each of you would make out your budget for the rest of this term. I do not want you- any one of you- to write to any of the uncles or aunts for money. You must look far enough into the future to see what you are going to want and either let me know or get it from the Bank. I judge Phebe has drawn $90 from her account in the Putnam Bank. I want to know about this also for I am taking into account what each one of you has in the Bank as well as what I have myself in the Bank and what we can spare from our salary each year. Keep me informed as to all of your finances and we will work out your education in some way. This year is a hard one for me for exchange is worse than it has ever been since I have been in China. $1.00 in gold brings only $1.65 now. One year ago it brought $2.40. I am pleased with the efforts and the success which you are making to get work to help on the financial problem. I want to make one caution. Do not do so much work that it will injure your scholarship or your health. Early to bed and fairly early to rise is a rule that it pays not to break. I wish that I had had some one to tell me some of the rules of health when I was in college. One rule that I continually broke was the go-to-bed rule. Another was the exercise rule. Another was the rule that would keep me from constipation. The first two are a pure matter of the will. For the last there are several methods. For the past few years I have found that a glass of cold water at bed time and another a half hour before breakfast with one about ten in the morning and one about four in the afternoon, helps keep me greatly. In short I drink a lot of water. You might try at bed time a cup of water as hot as you can sip it. I sometimes take a cup of boiling water in the morning instead of cold. I very much prefer methods of this kind to drugs. Exercise that uses the abdominal muscles is of great help. I take ten minutes every...

Feb 25th ...morning for exercise then a cold bath.

Last Sunday I could not get a moment with you. Dr. and Mrs. Smith left Thursday evening Feb 15. Several of the mission went down to the steamer with them on a special launch. We took a picnic supper, a part of which was a leg of venison sent us by Dr. Gillette from Diong Loh. Mr. and Mrs. Brewer arrived Friday the day after Dr. and Mrs. Smith left. Mr. Goddard got left in Amoy but fortunately got a steamer so as to arrive last Sunday just in time for lunch. He is staying with the Newells. The Brewers are with us. Last Sunday I had a funeral in the afternoon. This Sunday I had a Committee meeting and am finishing this after bed time. Mr. Goddard plans to go to Shaowu. The Brewers go to Shanghai, Peking and home. Goddard will likely go back to the Philippines from here. I shall seal this and try to get it into the home mail tomorrow.

Lots of love to each of you, - Dorothy's letter came Friday. How we all did enjoy it! May your fellowship with God grow more real with each day.

Your Father

Willard L. Beard.

February 25, 1917

Dear Ones at Home,

This has been a much broken week. On Tuesday I omitted my Chemistry class and took the children to see Dr. Love dissect a dog before they advanced Physiology class. It was most interesting and not one of the nine children was a bit squeamish about the sight. We shall go some day this week to see the nervous system all shown up. On Wednesday Flora was in Peking all day for a Board of Trustee's meeting. Miss Dudley and I held down the fort. Mrs. Love had two guests for the afternoon so I went over for tea before train time.

Flora did not get back in the evening because the meeting was so long. The older children had a party at the Galt home. Mr. Gordon and I played games with the grade children until nine o'clock.

Flora arrive by the first train on Thursday. It was a holiday. I spent two hours in the laboratory with Robert making up work.

The children had arranged a Syklamer[?] for the afternoon. It was most successful. All of the compound people were out for all or part of the time and entered into the sports with spirit. The events were supposed to take a little over an hour but the enthusiasm ran high and they lasted nearly three hours.

I had a good game of tennis at the end of the afternoon with Mrs. Howard Smith. Then Mr. Beer and Mr. Renig came out and we played doubles. Mr. Renig was up for the trustee meeting and came down with Flora. He stayed until Friday noon so as to see school in session.

The American Board have been having Mission meetings since Friday. Mrs. Porter had to miss one Latin class to attend and Mr. Sue[?] was away for one day's classes also.

Flora invited Mr. Lawrence Seymour, a South Orange boy down for the week end. He is quite a musician and played for us at Prayers on Saturday evening. He and I had great fun telephoning to Peking for a receipt [recipe] for divinity fudge. We got the receipt [recipe] and made the candy successfully. We went over to Mrs. Porters to make it. Mr. S played for us some more and Jean played her violin too.

Hartwell Ayers left on Friday and today starts for his home. In almost a month he leaves for America. It was his sister who was taken with intercalosis[?] last fall and it is for her health that they go.

There were just six of us adults at lunch today. The twenty four children swelled the audience to a reasonable size.

I have not worn my chain yet because I have not a dangle for it, but I feast my eyes on it occasionally. My calendars arrived on Wednesday so Flora got hers for her birthday. I just reversed the Christmas and birthday remembrances. Everything is here now except my sheets for my album.

At the Trustee meeting they voted to make our salary 2 for 1 hereafter. That will make fifteen or twenty dollars a month difference in our salaries at the present rate of exchange. Exchange is surely on the downward road still.

We are anxiously reading the papers these days for home news and are unable to interpret Germany's silence. Our discussion was a most heated one a week ago but there was little to say this week. We had had no home papers and the local ones are not satisfactory.

Mrs. Sweeney leaves this Wednesday for America. She has not been well and the unrest at home has made her more homesick to get back to her son. She has lost over thirty pounds this winter and is still losing.

There was a curio man along this last week. The first for several months. He made several sales so may be encouraged to come again.

I think I shall have to go to Peking tomorrow for more chemical supplies. I had an interesting experience this week. We tried to make some Chlorine gas in the laboratory and got some hydrogen sulphide instead. I used some of the same manganese dioxide that failed to produce any oxygen last fall. I am going to try some new material and hope for better results.

I am sleepy after my fun of last evening. We had great fun making divinity fudge and eating the mess. The fudge did not get quite hard so we had to eat it with spoons.

Lots of love
Mary

Dear Mother and all the others:-

The last mail brought good letters from Ruth and the Oberlin children. You know how thankful we are that Geraldine is getting on so nicely. We have not yet heard just what she is doing but her last letters sounded as if she could find subjects to study this term. If so it will be best. Dorothy seems to be having a very happy time and doing well in her studies. She always was a favorite and this seems to be her lot in Oberlin. Gould's letters sounds as if he was full of work and as if he was doing it. Phebe feels her position as the eldest and is conscientiously trying to be a big sister. The newness of College life has somewhat worn off but it is still full of interest for her.

We are having our fill of visitors this month. Dr. and Mrs. Edward Lincoln Smith were with us two weeks from Feb. 2 to Feb. 15. We took them down to the steamer for Shanghai Thursday evening Feb. 15. The next morning Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Brewer arrived from Hong Kong. Mr. Goddard got left in Amoy, but fortunately there was another steamer that brought him to us on Sunday Feb. 18th. Dr. and Mrs. Smith were our guests. Mr.

and Mrs. Brewer are now our guests. They will likely leave the last of this week for Shanghai. It's very pleasant to have these friends here but it all takes time. Dr. and Mrs. Smith came during vacation, and were here when College opened. Mr. Goddard knows Foochow and can talk enough so he can get about alone and he is taking Mr. Brewer with him some. I am writing this on South Side at the Union College on Mr. Neff's desk. I left home this morning at 8 o'clock to meet a Chinese gentleman who was to give us notes for $22.00 mex. - the first Chinese gift toward the Union University. I plan to meet Goddard and Brewer at the launch and go to Diong Loh, returning tomorrow. I have also just purchased a piano. We have been looking for one ever since we came back but those that we have found were either too good or too poor. I am to pay $300. mex. for this, - it was made in France specially for this climate. We should now be well supported with music, with the piano and the Grafonola [record player].

College has opened very auspiciously. We are fuller than ever. Over 400 have registered. There is a good spirit also among teachers and students and realize that it is only the beginning of the term and that there is time for lots of things to happen. I write only the outlook at the present time.

Sunday March 11.- Thus Tempus fugits [Latin for 'time flies']- Mr. and Mrs. Brewer were with us until last Tuesday March 8th. They were thus with us for three weeks lacking one day, and they had a lot of experience.- They felt our cold rains and our hot spring days. I think they will remember us chiefly for the cold. Then when they were ready to leave the steamer served them as it did me when I started for the U.S. last year. It went Thursday, altho it advertised to go Tuesday. Mr. Goddard is on his way to Shaowu with Mr. Belcher.- He plans to go back to the Phillipines after leaving Foochow, and go to Davao. From there he will make the Am. Board meeting in Los Angeles the last of June. We have had the coldest winter I have ever known in Foochow. Our mosquito nets have been out of use since Jan. 1. The frosts have left the grass and Formosa trees and other shrubs very brown. But the cold weather has been healthy and we have enjoyed it. I am rejoiced at the good reports of Elizabeth's gain. Her letters make good reading.

Marjorie gets fatter. Both girls are growing like weeds. They began studying German last week.

Have I ever said "thank you" for the pumpkin and the records? I have "ate" thank you several times. There is a quality about that pumpkin that I do not get in anything here. We had a pie for dinner today. The records are a great pleasure and the Grafonola is a good one. I never saw Ellen enjoy anything more. The girlies run it.

I see Dr. Day of Los Angeles, Cal. has gone to the Union Church in Bridgeport. The Union Church is fortunate. My time has been so completely filled since last Christmas that I have neglected lots of things- among them the sending of that little suit to Edith. This afternoon is the first free Sunday afternoon I have had in two months. I actually had time to go to sleep in my chair. Phebe M's letter after the trip came in the last mail. The mails are more and more

[This letter, dated March 7, 1917, was written from Tungchou, China by Flora to the folks at home. School is going well and they received their Christmas presents. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

[Mar. 7, 1917.]

Dear folks at home:-

My turn again! The days go by like the Gobi- dust-storm that is on now. Certainly March came in like a lion and is still roaring- the 4th of March.

School is proceeding as fast as it can and as well as it can. Every one is keeping well so far and I hope we have no more epidemics, also that we may be able to close up the year's work in good shape.

I wonder if you have received my draft of $50, which I made out to father, I think. I am sorry that the other was not right. I just did as the banker here advised me to do. I'll not repeat it. I wrote months ago asking about the coat that Miss Brewster wanted. I cannot get another as cheap as the one I sent Ruth for that was one that I got snapped up in the bargain. It was a bargain and I am glad I got taken up. The least that I can get one here is about $11 silver- and then it will not be like that one. I shall be glad to get it if you can tell me what she would like. I hope you have sent the coat to Christine Blakeslee. I had a letter from her telling of the death of her aunt, Miss Schumacher. Poor girl! She is certainly having a sad experience but I hope the air there in the West is going to be beneficial to her, so that she will be able to rise above the melancholia she seems to be suffering.

Since I wrote you last time there has been a meeting of the Trustees of the N.C.A.S., in which a whole lot of business was transacted. In the carrying out of it all, there will be a lot of work but it will be interesting. We are to spend $50 on interior decorations, we are to have another teacher, we are to get out a new "prospectus" - which is just now engaging every spare moment- and we are to have some money each year for purchasing books for the school.- Since beginning this letter we have had the first letter from you for a month and it told me that you have received the $50 draft. This should put me quite decidedly on the right side of my house accounts. All our Xmas things have now arrived and thank you for the lovely bag. It has been admired by every one who has seen it and it has been in use ever since it came. There is one thing I wish you would buy and send to me, and that is a pair of bed-room slippers. Mine were in the bag that got stolen on the way home from Pei-Tai-Ho last summer. They were getting old, but answered their use. Now I have none but my travelling slippers and they are not much good as they are getting rather old.

Will write again soon, for this isn't much of a letter, but will let you know that we are well and busy.

Yours lovingly-

Flora Beard.

N.C.A.S.

March 11, 1917

2:00 P.M.

Dear Ones at Home

This is a glorious Spring day so we have the windows and doors all open. There are many guests in the compound because of the Debate-to-be of yesterday. We all assembled over at the college to decide whether the individual marriage system of the sort or the family system of the sort were the better. All the announcements as to time of speaking etc. were given then a correction on the program. The latter caused consternation on the part of the Tungchow team and cries of "No, no." On investigation we found we had present two teams both prepared to debate the negative side. There is a triangular debating league and Tsing Hua had sent us the wrong team. Hence at Tsing Hua they had two affirmative teams. In Peking the debate went on all right.

I went over to dinner with Mrs. Wicke's to meet Mr. and Mrs. Robothern[?] of Tsing Hua last night. Dr. Porter arrived unexpectedly last evening and is full of news from her trip to Canton. She and the Wilders and Flora have now gone down to see the rejuvenated hospital. Later a lot of us are going for a long walk.

On last Monday Robert McCann and I worked accounts for about six hours. Delnoce Grant has stayed down to catch up on some algebra missed by illness. I helped her for almost one hour and off and on as she needed suggestions. I was tired that night after study hall was over. On Thursday evening I went to Prayer Meeting while Jean took study hall. Mr. Porter read a paper on the bogey or beliefs of China by which they determine good sites for homes, cemeteries, etc. It was most interesting. One story which illustrated the absolute faith in these beliefs was this. At the Western Hills was a grave most ideally located as to all the curves of hills etc. and it belonged to the ancestors of one of the old ruling lines. The new ruler met reverses[?] and laid them in the influence of the spirit so perfectly guarded, so he said he wanted to honor this ancestor of the descendants. He asked the men who read the sign what could be done to destroy the influence of the spirit and learned that the spirit could be kept in the grave if a sufficiently heavy weight were put in it. Hence he erected a huge monument. Also he learned that the grave was guarded by the curved lines of the mountains and the absence of any straight lines. (Evil spirits always travel in straight lines.) Hence the monument has only straight lines to act as guides for the evil spirits. Another grave has the good spirits led away by a ditch three fat[?] yards long and a yard deep dug just behind it. This prevented the good spirits from sliding into the grave and drained them off down the hill to keep the enemy of the deceased.

There is a rather unsightly old brick kiln and a deep hole nearby just south of our compound. The suggestion that the appearance of the locality would be improved if the brick kiln were leveled into the hole met with great consternation. A cemetery of a prominent family is located to the south. The direct north and south line passes through this elevation and the city pagoda and the "good luck" of the sight would be destroyed if the mound were removed. The term used to indicate this spirit means when literally translated wind-water, hence signifies the action of the air currents and the earth currents. This might be called climate religion.

There have been only two other events and there were two good tennis games with Mrs. Howard-Smith. She beats me but not nearly so badly as Mrs. Porter does.

The people for the walk are assembling so I must be ready to join them.

Two weeks ago Miss Hill mailed for me in Peking a package to Mother. It was an embroidered dress which I got in Pei Tai Ho last Summer. If Mother does not want it let who wants it must take it. If you want more let me know and I can get them in Tientsin or better yet, Willard and Ellen can get them at Foochow. This was made there and brought North.

Monday A.M.

We had a fine walk. Mr. Porter acted as guide and piloted us to the "Temple of Heaven" of Tungchow, a small carved monument to the South of the gate; to a temple which disperses 1000 lbs of cooked cereal per day to poor people during severe weather; to pretty views of the river that serves as mote for Tungchow on the west and south and several other objects of lesser interest.

We had a fine sing at Mrs. Porters last evening. Mr. Congdon sang many tunes and we do like his voice.

Doctor Love is here today for a wholesale vaccination party. There is much small pox around hence this precaution.

Two packages of Sentinels have arrived recently. Thank you. Mr. Fitzgerald's death came as a great surprise. I am wondering who succeeds him.

Lots of love
Mary.

Foochow College,
Foochow, China.
March 12th 1917.

Dear Mother-

I do not think I have sent to you my yearly report for 1916. You may find something in it of interest.

The records came thru in perfect condition. All packages mailed for Christmas were very long in coming- most two months some of them. The pumpkin is still making us glad and there is enough for two more pies.

Dr. Cooper started for France to work in connection with the war- if not in the war. He took with him several Chinese to act as nurses and interpreters. He goes from here to Shanghai and from there to Wei Hai Wei. From there he does not know what his orders will be.

Mr. and Mrs. Hodous are starting for furlough in about three weeks. We have two pretty high floods in three weeks- we chanced to hold the mission prayer meeting out at Ponasang both Wednesdays of the flood, and it was great fun for the girlies when we had to take a boat to get thru the South gate. There was about 2 ½ feet of water for a distance of 10 rods and we had a little bit of a boat that would hold only 5 person. We had to stand and when our boat bumped into another boat it was joggety and all the more fun.

The College is preparing for a little Field Day next week and I am going into three events- tug of war, sack race, putting the shot. How's that?

Does it ever make you almost jump when you realize that for us life runs along comparatively smoothly while over in Europe is being acted a drama such as history knows nothing of? I wonder if human nature is getting callous- and I think not. For myself I tell myself that I cannot help matters by worrying or fretting. My duty is best done by performing daily my humble tasks.

All are well and all send love
Will.

I am sending this in an envelope addressed to Ruth because I happen to have an envelope addressed and stamped to her. W.

March 18, 1917

Dear folks at home:-

This has been a beautiful spring day with the birds singing, the grass showing green, the leaves budding, and violets found by the dozen. The first one was picked on March 16th. This morning all the small boys appeared dressed in their Sunday white summer suites, but they were promptly requested to put on their usual clothes. Then the girls came down to church in their thin, low necked, and short sleeved white dresses for church and four of them were likewise pressed to put on something warmer. There is still a chill in the wind and with one sick boy, I feel like taking the ounce of prevention. Robert McCann (our scarlet fever patient at Christmas time) is ill with pleurisy at present. He has been in bed for a week and it will be another before he gets well enough to go home. He certainly has had his share of illness this winter. We sent for his mother so he is getting better care than when the boys and I were taking care of him. To-day we got him out on the upper porch in his bed where we home the sun and the fresh air got in some killing hits at the pleurisy "bugs".

We are watching the papers most interestedly these days to read of the "next move". The revolution in Russia has just been spoken of and I shall be keen to know what next. Dr. A.H. Smith preached to-night and he said in his sermon that we are living at the end of one part of the world's history and that a new order is about to begin, but just what it is to be no one can yet say. It seems to me that it must be a freer and more democratic era.

You may have read about the running away of Premier Tuan for Peking to Tientsin and of his return. His going was rather like a child's saying "I won't play, because you won't do as I want you to", but he has come back to business and the President succeeded in passing the proposition to break off diplomatic relations with German in proper and lawful style. This republic, I believe will succeed though it is bound to do things in a way not exactly to our fashion.

This week Peking and vicinity have been much excited over the flying of Miss Stinson from the Temple of Agriculture. To-day she was to drop a bomb on an imaginary camp and so show the Chinese how such things are being done in the war.

Will you get me a pair of bedroom slippers? I had mine stolen last summer and I do need something to replace them. I think mine were No. 7's.

I have never heard just what Miss Brewster wanted in the line of a coat. I can't get any more as cheap as that one of Ruth's but I can get one for $5 or $6 gold, which is quite a bit prettier. I am using one for a summer or house wrap but it is of the kind that some people use as a kimona. Let me know and I'll see what I can do though the curio men do not come as often as they need to do. The state of exchange makes us think twice before we spend our money.

With love to you all-

Flora Beard.

March 24, 1917

Dear Ones at Home,

You will think us gay society butterflies when you hear that we have had three teas this week, two of them elaborate ones. But I will start at the beginning of the week and fit them in where they belong. On Monday Flora went to Peking on the noon train and did not return until Tuesday noon. I saw that all the children were properly engaged then had a most informal cup of tea with Miss Hill and Mrs. Howard-Smith. (This is not one of the three.) Mrs. Smith and I were dressed and ready for a game of tennis. We played two sets and part of a third. The scores were 6-1, 3-6, 4-2, naming her score first each time. The next event was a tea at Mrs. Love's on Wednesday. She had two guests and we all went in to meet them. I walked to the station to see them off so got some little exercise. On Thursday, Mrs. Porter invited men and ladies in to meet Mr. and Mrs. Fred [Frank?] Brewer. Flora and I especially enjoyed that as they had just come from Foochow and were full of news from Willard and Ellen. Flora had supper over there afterward so saw quite a bit more of them.

On Friday Mrs. Porter and I had some tennis. I was getting to think I could play because I beat Miss Smith, but Mrs. Porter took both games 6-2, 6-0. It is a good thing to get beaten and have to work to get even two games.

Yesterday we drank tea again at the Love's home but Mr. Woodall was the real host. He had a real fruit cake which came out from America in his Christmas box and we were asked to help eat it. He gave a "high tea" as Mr. Beers calls it and several chocolate cake, doughnuts, lady fingers and [unreadable word] besides the home cake. Further we had a choice of tea or coffee. None of us were ready for supper at 6:15 after that feast.

We have gone quite enthusiastic over anagrams. Last evening the children played them all evening and I sat down to it the last hour or more. It gets exciting when we get the required six words and have to work to get them away.

Some of the children went to Peking a week ago to see Miss Stinson [Katherine Stinson-4th woman to get her pilot's license, known as the "Flying Schoolgirl"] fly and report some wonderful feats on the part of the 'bird girl'. They had the chance to meet and talk with her and enjoyed the novelty of that. She flew on Monday with her machine illuminated, President Li paying the bills so that "all the people of the capital might see her."

The war situation now that the official news of America is censored so closely seems ever more ominous. Before this reaches you there must be some change but what will it be. The break may already have occurred for we have no word since Friday.

Next week we are to have a home full of guests for the week end. Tomorrow I take the High School children out to see the Bureau of Engraving in the morning and to see the winter palace in the Forbidden City in the afternoon. I do hope you are all well. Elizabeth's picture is fine. Lots of love Mary.

Dear Phebe (daughter):-

It was just a month ago that I wrote you, Feb. 25. Your letter to Marjorie came Friday evening with a lot of other mail. - Three weeks had gone by with no home letters. I hoped in that mail we should know what Geraldine was doing. But here almost April 1st we are entirely in the dark.

This afternoon is cold. We are by ourselves, sitting in the parlor because it is easier to heat a room with a stove. We have only a fireplace in the dining room, and a nice stove in the parlor. Mama sits at her desk in one corner. Monnie is drumming on the piano. Kathleen lies on the floor before the stove writing (?), at least she has paper, pen and ink and is doing a lot of talking. - "I don't know what to write." "What was that you told me to write Monnie?" "Oh dear. This pen is awful blunt." etc. The mail brought nothing from Shelton. It brought a nice letter from Aunt Ann and one from Mr. Ireland and a fine one from Mr. Christian. He mentioned seeing you all occasionally and that you looked well.

The Basket Ball team of the Union College came over and played our boys Thursday afternoon. We beat by about 13 points I believe but the game was a good one and was watched with much interest by over 250. The 4th yr. class numbering nearly 80 boys are planning to go to Kushan Monastery this week, - go up one afternoon and come down the next day. They have been at work for six weeks with no vacation and that is as long as Chinese boys can work on a stretch without blowing off in some way. I would rather they would go off on a hike than get in quarrels here in the school.

Telegrams these days try to point to the beginning of war. I am glad to see by the papers that came Friday, that the country has confidence in Pres. Wilson. He has seemed to me all thru this crisis to be a very sane, level headed man. He will not declare war unless it is useless and wrong not to go to war. The Russian change and the great Eng. and French victories I had hoped would so strengthen men's faith that the war would soon end that we used not enter the strife. Did I write you last week that the Chinese are proud that China has followed the U.S. in declaring that relations with Germany have been severed? One of them said to me "America declared neutrality and then we declared neutrality. America declared relations with Germany severed and China did the same. We two nations have the same mind! He looked pleased. Another one said when I asked him if all Chinese did not sympathize with Germany- "We used to."

Last evening a stranger came into the compound and claiming to be a Formosan and to be representing the Bank of Taiwan= Japanese. He came into our house. We were all with him. It was just as darkness was coming in. When he left we could not find a pretty little glass clock that stood on the mantle in the parlor.

The box sent from Putnam came this last week and we opened yesterday= lots of "finds" in it. We have not had letters from any one about it. I suppose Uncle Elbert and Aunt Emma know as much about it as anyone.

We are a very quiet compound to-day. Mr. and Mrs. Hodous and Mr. and Mrs. Newell and their children are away for the Sunday. Mr. Belcher reached home from Shaowu last Thursday just in time to see the Basket Ball game. Mr. Goddard is still there- may start from the farthest station of that district tomorrow for home.

We had our first taste of green peas from our own compound garden Friday. They were delicious. Cabbage, lettuce, and beets are also very nice. Strawberries, not yet. Fruit is just now the scarcest of any season of the year.

Rev. Li Nguk Luk pastor of our church here gave us a very good sermon this morning. His theme was something like this:-Great men do things with no idea of profit to themselves. Great things done in this way bring renown to the doers. He cited the woman with the Alabaster box of ointment and he used personification with marked effect. Turning to his right he asked the woman why she did it and he replied for her "Just because I love him." "Did you get any profit from your act?" "No, except a feeling of joy." Then he added but this woman's face has gone all over the world and has come down to us.

It is very interesting here to watch young Chinese. Of course our ideals for all of them are that they should know the joy of service and that they should be willing to serve with a fair recompense. But most of them are looking for large financial returns for small services, and most of them want pay for what they do. The number of young men returning from the U.S. with degrees is increasing. It is very difficult for them to accept positions for even $100 per month. I do not know of one who is doing anything for less than this, - altho many of them have been educated at the expense of the mission, Y.M.C.A. or Christian friend. $100 per month is more than an unmarried missionary receives. Mr. Neff receives $525 gold per year. This is about $840 mex per year or $70 per month. But his is the story of the world. And it is the few who really catch Christ's ideal of service, and I suppose this is right, I mean natural instead of right. In all groups in the world's history the real work has been done by a few, and those few have been of altruistic mind- not seeking a reward, but deserving to be helpers.- Such were Moses, Noah, Abraham, Isaiah, Jesus, Paul, Martin Luther, Gladstone, Confucius, Washington, Lincoln, and I think Wilson will be one of them. To some of these has come also wealth. That is not incompatible with a spirit of altruism.

May the Father keep you and bless you and make you great in the true sense- may he give you success in your studies and in being.

Very lovingly your father
Willard L Beard

Dear Ruth:-

Letters keep coming from you and Phebe and Mother and Elizabeth either direct or some other way and we hear of the difficulty of getting help and of the putting up ice and of Elizabeth's pleasing improvement and visits here and there etc, etc. My letters have not been as frequent as I wanted them to be. Until this last week I have had a sort of snowed-under feeling ever since I got back last September. I have just got my correspondence caught where I can see the end. I was almost afraid for a time to open the mails for fear of the correspondence it might involve. Dwight Goddard almost expressed my feelings when he said as I gave him several letters that had accumulated for him "Well that means more work to answer them." But his never applies to a certain class of letter that I call friend letters.

Last evening just at dusk a young man walked into our parlor, dressed in foreign style and with rather a smart appearance,- said he was a Formosan, representing the Formosan Bank. When he went he took off a pretty little green glass clock that stood on the parlor mantle. He was not alone more than two minutes.

Last Thursday the Basket Ball team of the Union College came over and played our team. It was a fine game with the score some 13 points in our favor. But it was a good clean, manly game. I have been working for such games between Foochow College for ten years, and it gives me much pleasure to see the great improvement in the self-control and manliness of the boys.

Have I written that the Fukien Christian University has purchased something over 50 acres of land half way between Foochow and Pagoda Anchorage? This looks like beginning to realize our hopes for a University. The Arts course which opened last year Feb. 1916 with 85 students has 90 this year.

Today one of the teachers told me that a rich man who has been holding a piece of land about 40X50 feet, which the College has been trying to buy, - but he held it at about four times its real value-is ready to make the College a present of it. I hope this goes thru. It will mean more of such gifts. We ought to get such from men of means here in Foochow.

Before this you have asked- "Why does he not say anything about the war?" We get daily telegrams all about breaking relations, special session of Congress, offers of various kinds like Henry Fords, etc., etc. I am still praying that God will be able to keep the U.S. from actually fighting. It seems to me however that Pres. Wilson is a sane and safe man. I trust him to be used by God. He will not fight if he can help it. If he does the country will stand by him. He has won the confidence of the people by his saneness.

Letters from other places tell of very cold weather in the US! Our cold weather continues. Today is colder than usual. I have dressed as warm as at anytime this winter and we have had a good fire all day.

Girlies and mother are well so am I

All send love and daily prayers.

Will

Dear Dorothy:

As Marjorie told you her mocisins were too small for her. But she stretched them out and now she can wear them.

There are fifteen kinds of roses in the compound. They are just in their beauty now.

We have some silk worms and they are quite big. In May they spin. In a book it says the Chinese eat the silk worm after they have taken them out of their cocoons. I wouldn't like to eat them would you?

Last night we went to a feast at a restaurant. There was a big mirror that at the bottom you were short and fat and at the top you were tall and thin. It was very funny.

Tomorrow Marjorie Billing and I are going to have a flower show. It is a secret from Marjorie Beard and Rachel. We made signs for it. We are going to have it on Mr. Billings porch. And the flower children are all dressed up in cloth dresses. We are going to put on their flower dresses later.

With much love from Kathleen C. Beard.

Dear Elizabeth:-

I am sending this to Saranac Lake at a venture. But I am addressing it so it will go on to Shelton in case you are there. The last letter from home brought a good photo of you to the girls in N. China and they sent it down to me. Is that your new fur lined coat? It looks nobly and you look nobly in it.

Winter holds on here with great persistency. We have stopped building fires in the fire places but we say once in a while, "How nice it would be to have a fire."

Mr. Goddard has been here since Feb. 18th - almost two months, - not in Foochow all the time. He was away on his trip to Shaowu for a month, and on a trip to Ing Hok for nearly a week. So he was here for only about three weeks. He left this morning. From Foochow he goes as fast as possible to Davao, Philippine Islands to see the work of the American Board there. Then he must get to Los Angeles, Cal. by June 26th for the Am. B'd Annual Meeting. He has made money and his pleasure now consists in spending it. He has helped many different parts of the work here. Often a check for one or two hundred dollars mex. at just the right time gives a big boost to the work. His money mostly has been given to permanent parts of the work, - like building churches or school buildings.

On Ellen's birthday [her 49th] Mar. 22, I gave her a surprise, - helped by Mrs. Hodous, Mrs. Newell and others. Fortunately on that day the ladies of the Y.W.C.A. had a tea to open their new house and I asked them to invite Ellen to preside over the tea pot. This took her away from home a little before 4 p.m. - being a man I did not want to go early and hang around two hours so I went late to come home with her. But as soon as she was out of sight there was some hustling to get two rooms thrown into one, two large tables up from the College, the table cloths on- twenty seven chairs in place and the flowers placed so as to cover up various unsightly things in my study which with the dining room was to provide seats for 27 diners. But I did it and got to the Y.W.C.A. reception in time not to cause comment. I had asked Mrs. Hodous to provide and prepare geese, Mr. Belcher to provide the birthday cake and Mrs. Billing to provide the salad, so as not to arouse suspicion. I told the girls just after dinner all about it and they kept the secret. The people were to be in our parlor singing as we came in. They were there all right and Ellen knew as she heard the singing that something was up. When she saw all the people there she said first her thank you's then she started for the dining room saying "We must prepare something for these friends to eat." But I assured her that their homes were nearby and they could easily go home if they felt hungry. Just then she spied Mrs. Hodous with an apron on, and guessed that she had been helping about a dinner. Still, as she confessed later, she could not figure how I could arrange the dining room to accommodate all those people, and she was completely surprised when she saw the long table in the tea room with 27 places- we had a good time.

The telegrams the past two weeks have not been very exciting. I cannot make out that the U.S. is really fighting altho a "State of war is declared to exist." The Allies seem to be gaining ground steadily. My boys want rifles= "Real rifles" to practice, but the General says he does not have any to spare, - for which I am secretly glad.

Foochow College has played two basket ball games with Union College and won both,- good clean games.

China seems to be quiet now and the new President seems to be uniting the country. All are still proud to call China and America No. 1 friends.

College is going very well,- altho Ellen and I are fuller of teaching than we ought to be- add to this that we have had someone in our guest room most of the term for the past ten weeks and you can see that we are busy. I am greatly pleased at the good reports of your improvement and trust you will keep on being good- We send love- May God be the best friend of you all

Tungchow, April 16, 1917.

Dear folks at home:-

This has been an exciting week and full to the brim. The opening of school again after our vacation brought all the children back and we are on the last lap of the year's work. School opened on Wednesday and "District Meeting" began on Thursday. Now "District Meeting" is the annual collecting of delegates from the four stations of this part of the North China Mission. They hold morning, afternoon, and if necessary evening sessions and thrash out and settle all the problems they can. All sessions are held in the Chinese language and more than half the delegates are Chinese. There are education, religious, financial, and several other problems to be handled. It goes without saying that some of the occasions are rather warm. In the end all things get into a working condition for the next year. Mary and I have had two of the ladies with us so we have had snatches of the meetings from them. On Thursday the meetings began and on Friday little Rosamond Frame arrived. It was Friday and it was the 13th, but she looks and acts as though she meant to stay. Mrs. Frame has lost two children within the year and was in a very morbid state of mind, so that everyone was anxious for her. This baby arrived in much sooner time and better condition, than either of the other two, and her mother is in wonderful spirits. We all hope she continues to be vigorous. I saw her to-day, sucking her fists as though she were starved. - Well, on Sunday, Tungchou church celebrated its 50th anniversary and installed its new pastor. To-night the college gave a concert at which our children sang two selections. We waited for a government school (in the city) to arrive but after twenty minutes gave up. The school arrived just an hour late, but I wish you could have seen the little fellows. I am sure some of them were not more than six years old. They were dressed in black coats, pants, and caps- with yellow stripes that would delight every small boy to wear. They came walking in in apple pie order. I am sorry that we could not stay to hear them sing, though I know that it would be ear rending.

This week Friday the children of the Peking Primary School are coming down to spend the afternoon with us- and the violets. This is the time of the year when the ground is a cloud of violets. The children pick them by the bushel and then not one can be missed. It is remarkable that they come out of the hard dry ground and grow in such profusion. Here it is the 16th of April and we have had no rain, yet we are eating asparagus from our garden and we have peas up two inches. We have to resort to irrigation, but we are hoping for rain.

We have heard from Will definitely that he is not coming North this summer so we are planning for Kalgan and Mongolia this summer and to have him with us next summer.-We have our fourth teacher hired for next year, so there will be no repetition of this year's experience. With love Flora Beard

Dear Ones at Home-

We have had two nice letters since I last wrote four weeks ago. I fear Will's old saying that vacations are disasters to letter writing was true in my case this spring. We went down to the Western tombs for three days and had company for two [unreadable word]. School closed Thursday March 29. We had a houseful of guests arrive by the evening train on Saturday and the last left Monday noon. We had an awfully good time with a musical both Saturday and Sunday evenings and a long walk Sunday morning. We visited the East gate and saw the three iron chains hanging on the city wall then the pagoda over near the north gate and came home- as far as we could on the top of the wall.

I spent Tuesday and Wednesday looking over my clothes to get them in repair for the Spring. But nearly every afternoon I got out for a game or two of tennis. We left here Wednesday evening for Peking and put our cot beds up in the living room at Dr. Porter's for the night. We were up [unreadable word] Thursday to repack and get the 7.30 train for the south. We had to make one change and arrived at the entrance to the tombs about 1.30 A.M. There were five of us, all ladies, one cook, and beds and "rontans" and suitcases and lunch baskets and boxes.

Three of us went to call on Dr. Meng, a Chinese surgeon to whom Dr. Ingram recommended us. He was not there but his wife served us with tea and cakes and gave us a few directions. Our baggage went into a cart. We took two donkeys so that we could take turn about riding and started on our five mile trip to the Yamens (official home) where we were going to stay. The walk led us through low hills and finally into a large pine forest. The forest was all planted to protect two of the oldest and largest of the tombs and the Yamen was in the heart of it only a few hundred yards from the tombs. We were hardly settled when the magistrate sent for our cards. Upon receipt of it he made us an official call of greeting and gave us each a deep bow. Almost at once Dr. Meng's card came in. He had followed us to see of what use he might be and useful he was! He took us then to the two near tombs and we were able to get into all parts without difficulty under his guidance. The tomb is made up of two parts, a "square city" in front where is the spirit hall for worship, and the "round city" in the rear where is the high mound covering the chamber holding the coffin with at least thirty feet of earth. We walked all around the mound and saw the little pile of yellow earth just placed there that morning. The date was that of the "Spring Festival" and the special sacrifices and worship had been at six that morning. In some of the urns the ashes were still hot.

On Friday some of us took a walk down the long approach to the tombs and saw the carved stone elephants, lions, horses, military men and officials that in pairs guard the entrance. Then beyond the three beautifully carved marble pilos with five arches each. At ten Dr. Meng arrived to escort us to some tombs about four miles away. We took our lunch with us so as to not be hurried. These tombs were of a later date being 100 and 60 years old instead of 160 and 180. There was only the round city and the court yard. But the spirit building was wonderful in it's simplicity. The pillars were plain polished wooden ones instead of carved stone. The carving in the panels of the doors was wonderfully done and stood out over eight inches- when the deepest. The second tomb was that of an Empress. The rough temporary stairway which was used to convey the bearer of the yellow earth was still in place so we went up. Behind the tomb was a court containing about seventeen small mounds and at the side one mound nearly half as large as the main one in which we stood. They were graves of the other[?] wives and concubines of the Emperor. Probably only two were real wives, the large one and one small one which was covered with a yellow glaze, while the others were red.

The graves were wonderful. Dr. Meng estimated the number of trees to be over 3,000,000 in the parks. Some 25,000 are just young trees set out around the tomb of the last Emperor of China. We visited the tomb on our way out on Saturday morning. It is new and glaring beside the others and evidently less well built because already after two years there are many signs of decay. The marble is not the white variety but the gray granite covered with white wash to produce the effect. The urns[?] give a tin-like ring when struck and are dented in places while those 180 years old or even 60 years old are perfect and ring [unreadable word] heavy bronze.

It's the only tomb not erected by the present inhabitant immediately upon ascending to the throne and kept in readiness against the day of death. The Empress Dowager got her tomb ready at the Eastern Tombs but the Emperor was too well guarded to do like wise for himself.

We got to Peking too late Saturday to get here so again camped with Dr. Porter, and came down Sunday noon to get clean and get the house ready for service. It was Easter and I brought down a lily. It is my first Easter Lily since I have been in China and I have enjoyed having it so very much. It had four blossoms or buds and one is still good.

I tried to shop the next day, Easter Monday, and found even the drug stores closed. All business homes took three days vacation because of Easter. I think I have mentioned the fondness for holidays out here before!

This week April 15-22 has centered around the big children's picnic on Friday. We had over fifty guests, mothers and children, down for a basket picnic and gave a half holiday to entertaining. The school furnished grape juice and hot coffee but everybody brought their own lunch. We visited Mr. Gordon's goats, the dairy, and the school building besides sitting around and talking a little. The children played games and picked violets.

On Monday last I worked on accounts all day and had some tennis late to clear my brain for work. Except Friday, I have played every afternoon. Monday evening we went to a concert given by the college and our children sang twice. The girls school showed the greatest improvement. They marched up onto the platform to sing for the first time and I think that probably was one reason for the great improvement.

Thank you for the Sentinels which came this week. I can't quite get used to seeing "City of Shelton" even yet. [The Huntington area was re-named Shelton.]

Elizabeth's last letter recorded less improvement. I hope the state was only temporary and that she continues as she began. Geraldine is much better as Phebe Kinney writes and starting with light work. That was good news. Stanley sent Flora pictures of the wedding party last week because she had had a birthday. They are very good except that everybody looked thin and somewhat tired. Myra looked better after a part of a wedding trip in the wilds, than on her wedding day.

That sweater, Father, is doing good service. It is just right weight and so good looking that I like to wear it. It goes everywhere for walks, for tennis, to the tomb, to breakfast, school and dinner. The chain I have used with a piece of white carved jade that I bought my first year and had forgotten that I owned. I shall get a colored drop but this looks very well until I find what I want.

I do hope you are all well and are having a glorious spring. Ours is glorious by spells into dust storms and wind generously sprinkled in. Lots of love to you all

Mary.

P.S. I enclose a draft for $50 gold. Please deposit half of it to my account if my account with father is large enough so that the $25 will leave a good working surplus. Did the $17.00 ever come from Miss Mason of Monticello? She got the coat and was to send it to you. I am writing with my gloves on while waiting for my draft at the bank.

Lots of love

Mary.

Foochow China
April 22- 1917

Dear Geraldine:-

It is 8:45 a.m. The bell is just ringing to call us to Sunday school. We have just finished breakfast- the girlies have been reading over their lesson and are on the jump now to get off to their little S.S.

After S.S. I wish you could see our flowers just now. The roses were never more beautiful, and we have them in such profusion. Every day Mama ought to cut nearly 150 to keep them out of the way of those that want to bloom. Callas also are luxuriant. One of ours has six large beautiful flowers on it and two buds. Margareutes [Marguerites] are also in their prime and another flower- a highly colored flower- cineraria is most luxuriant just now. We also have an orange tree in the yard in bloom. Palms and camphor wood trees are putting out new shoots and are beautiful in their new bonnets. The camphor wood trees have already grown a foot this year.

No mail has come from you or from home since Apr. 13- from you none since Mar. 31 when we had a very large mail in which your good letter came and Dorothy's and Phebe's.

The weather is still cool – some of the foreigners and of the Chinese have jumped into summer clothes at the first ray of warm sun and many are suffering from colds. Mr. Belcher can scarcely talk loud.

I am having our Kuliang cottage fixed over as I wrote you last week. It will cost something over $100, but I shall not feel safe if a typhoon comes with the house as it now is.

I would like just now a talk with President King on the subject of refractory boys. One of the rules of this College is that all students shall attend Church on Sunday. Today nearly half the school were absent. What shall we do? And these things never come singly- for more than a week the boys have been kicking on the food. The culinary department is run by the boys with the monitor as treasurer and with the Faculty as sort of backer, guarantor. Yesterday morning the cook declared he would throw up the job after breakfast this morning. It took a threat from me to arrest him to keep him at the job until the boys could find another cook. But all this is not very edifying to you- still it lets you into a side of my life and into some of the problems that take much of my time.

This last week the Y.M.C.A. have been celebrating the tenth anniversary of the opening of the Y.M.C.A. work in Foochow.- The circumstances are much changed from those that prevailed at the opening. Then the crowd met in the open air and scripture reading and prayer were not allowed and the Christian character of the institution had to be- or was concealed. Now we meet in one of the finest buildings in Foochow with the highest provincial officials on the platform open the meeting with prayer- during which the Governor stands with the others, and then addresses with Christianity as the theme follows. The new openings that face the church bring new and difficult problems. One is the problem of the governmental school student who knows idols are false and wants to give up idolatry. But he is active- wants to do something. The pastors and preachers are practically all from the poorer classes- too many of the sermons are for the poor and uneducated. The student does not care for such sermons. The pastor finds it hard to meet these men socially and harder to put them to work. But here they are, many of them ready to join the church and we must find a way to help them.

Mama and I find little time for anything but College work. She has over 20 essays to correct weekly and I have 70. Then we have to help a class of 24 prepare for an evening of rhetorical. We find our great task the finding of declamations and plays. If you know of or can find any books with plays for High School pupils- with from ten to 15 parts they will come very handy to us indeed. There are such books in paper covers that cost little.

War news is getting very common again- hardly worth reading. The prayer meeting last Wed. turned on war topics- what is our personal attitude toward war and specifically toward this war. Would I go into this war if I were called? How will I treat the Germans now in Foochow? This last question I am perfectly clear on- I shall treat just as I always have. Would I go to war? I am quite sure I would first let all those who are anxious to go, go. I should try to find other means of showing my patriotism. I fully believe that the time is very near when it will be right and duty to refuse to fight.

I have been studying Luke's Gospel for the past several weeks. This morning the question was presented- "What aspect of the character of Jesus has been made most impressive to you?" and I wrote this "Jesus was sincere and true always, -entirely. Circumstances or environment never changed this. Before friends and enemies he was sincere."

I can talk and work with a man who is true and sincere. Even if he is tiresome and blundering and often mistaken- but it is very hard to work sympathetically with one who I feel is untrue or insincere.

We are having lots of rain these nights for it is often remarked that it rains nights- but little in the day time. We hope it will be pleasant next Saturday for the whole family plans to go up to Kuliang.

I enclose a $1 bill this week. I should be getting acknowledgement for the money I sent at first in this way. Give the $1 to Phebe for her birthday gift from me.

May the Father be very gracious to you all,-point the way in every choice of yours so that you will know His will, and then may He give you the strength of body, mind and will to do it.

Very lovingly your Father
Willard L Beard

Foochow, China
April 28th 1917

Dear Stanley and Myra:-

I addressed an envelope to you long ago- but the days filled with things that seem to be necessary to do keep slipping by and they count up into weeks and even months before I realize it. There is always some special reason- this year it has been guests. Dr. and Mrs. Edward Lincoln Smith- New York Sec'y of the A.B.C.F.M. were here two weeks in Feb. The next day Mr. and Mrs. Brewer- my classmate in Hartford Seminary,- arrived and spent three weeks. Then Mr. Goddard was here. School work is almost as exciting as Laboratory work, and Ellen and I each have four classes a day and 60 or 70 essays to correct each week.

Today we threw off all care and the whole family went to Kuliang. This is about ten miles and 2500 ft. up. We went economically- two chairs to the foot of the mountain and one chair up the mountain. The girlies wore straw sandals just like the chair coolies. We had a delightful time- got good and tired- now at 8 p.m. all but me are sound asleep and I will be shortly- so good night.

Sunday afternoon-

Just as I was leaving for church this a.m. a home mail arrived. Of course had to leave it until after church and that meant till after dinner. The mail brought good news from Oberlin, Shelton, Putnam and from Cousin Fannie in Meriden.

Kathleen's letter I see gives me away completely. I have had her letter in this envelope for two months. Thank you for the gloves. I wore them the first time on Ellen's birthday. I planned a big surprise for her- had all the people in the compound here when I came home with her from a Y.W.C.A. house warming. They were in the parlor singing as we arrived. This was her first surprise. She began at once to worry about feeding them -27- But I told her their homes were so near that they could easily go home if they got hungry. They all agreed to this expedient. I had got her engaged to pour tea at the house warming and thus had a good excuse for coming late myself. As soon as she was off I got busy and opened up two rooms and put in two long tables from the College and arranged 27 chairs about the tables. So Ellen sat in the parlor and gracefully waited till all were invited to the dining room when for the first time she had her riddle- how could we feed all those people?- solved. Of course Mr. Hodous, and Mrs. Belcher and Mrs. Billing had helped about preparing the dinner- I'm telling you all this so you may appreciate the augustness of the occasion on which the gloves were first worn.

A month ago I purchased a piano- had to buy a little more than you did for yours- $300 mex. but it is a good one and has been tried out in this climate. We all enjoy it and Marjorie and Kathleen are making good use of it. These girlies are a delight. They are growing like weeds, and full of energy and sunshine. Yesterday we all dropped dull- but I wrote that last night- today they have been writing different friends about their trip.

I cannot make out that the U.S. is as yet actually fighting. The news that we get here is that there has been very severe fighting for several days with heavy losses for Germany and big gains for the Allies. But the news has been of very little interest since we heard the U.S. had broken off relations with Ger. China seems to be getting on her feet and the new Pres. seems to be pulling all forces together and to have a hold on all parts of the country. The Japanese also are treating China with much more respect than formerly.

Today I had a nice long letter from mother and one from Ruth,- also one forwarded from Elizabeth. Things seem to be going well at Century Farm,- only help is very dear. Phebe writes of very high prices in many articles. I am telling the people here that the U.S. is in a very dangerous condition with prosperity in so many lines and so much power being placed in her hands in many ways.- as the financial center of the world has moved from London to the New York.

Myra, you would be interested in the silk worms which Marjorie and Kathleen are raising. They have been eating for almost a month now and last night one began to spin. Tonight he has shut himself up in a cocoon. The girls were picking them up and handling them as if there were so many jack straws tonight to see which were yellow and which were white.- Some will spin yellow silk and some white.

All goes much as usual in the College. The Basket Ball team has thus far beaten every thing it has met.

The picture of your home is still vivid in my mind and I like to think of it. May God dwell there and may His blessing rest upon you both continually.

With love from us four

Will.

Tungchou, May 3, 1917.

Dear folks at home:-

We still have enough to do to keep us out of mischief. This past week has been rather full. We made an attempt to have a clean-up week and got a few places a little better looking, though the big part of keeping clean takes care of itself- as far as the lawn is concerned. About a half dozen times during the fall and winter the whole compound gets raked over with a "fine toothed comb" for the stuff that can be gotten in the raking- to be used for fires. We had planned to have Friday for Arbor Day but a Gobi dust storm delayed our plans. We had been hoping for rain as the earth is as dry as powder since it is months ago that we had our last rain storm.

Last Saturday night the College Club of Peking had a big dinner at the Foreign Business building at which there were four hundred diners. Mary went up and enjoyed it much. This club is composed of American and Chinese college men and women who have been educated in America. It includes most of the Chinese who are in the government and educational circles- of Peking. Pres. Li's private secretary is one of the numbers. The speakers were ex-ministers Wi Ting Fang, Mr. C. T. Wang, and some American. Mr. C.T. Wang is perhaps the most influential Chinese in everyday walks in China. I don't know as that explains his position for I have heard it said that he is the kind of man that would make a good president when he is older. He is a Christian man and known all over the land.

On Sunday morning I arose early and took the morning train to Peking to attend the President's reception. It was requested that people should not dress in reception gowns or high silk hats, and the hundreds of guests obeyed very generally. It was rather thrilling to walk into the gate between the two rows of soldiers and then walk by the lake under the trees and feel that we were treading on soil older in history than anywhere I had ever before walked. It was a glorious, sunny morning and we had lots of good company. Although it was Sunday, there were scores of missionaries in the crowd. I do not believe a single ticket was wasted.

We went into the building where the body of Yuan Shih Kai had lain before his burial. It was really a great square court with a raised dais all around three of the sides. Right ahead was the door out of which the President came and on each side were long rooms with glass partitions. At the proper moment Pres. Li appeared with several of his military guards and his private secretary. Pres. Li had on a suit like the soldiers only that the cloth was a little richer brown and his gold hands a little redder yellow. He wore white gloves and used his sword as a cane while he stood on the dais and spoke to us. Those who understand Chinese thought he must have spoken in his native Hunanese since they could not understand him very well. His secretary translated it for us and I hope some of the papers at home will copy it for it was certainly worth reading. He stepped down to our level for the introductions and just before the line was formed Dr. Reinsch spoke for the members of the club in such a way that I think every one there felt that his own feelings and thoughts had been expressed in just the way each one would have wished to say them. There Pres. Li removed his right glove and we each had the opportunity to shake hands with him. I was much impressed with his dignity, his sincerity, and simplicity. He understands English enough so that he did not have to have Dr. Reinsch's speech interpreted, and his dignified bow in acknowledging the compliments Dr. Reinsch paid to his character showed a lot of reserve force behind his quiet demeanor. After the handshaking was over cakes, tea, and some other drink (I did not see what) were served in the long rooms behind the glass partitions on either side. After partaking we were allowed to roam anywhere in the palace grounds, which we did, for a while, then we had tickets for the North Lake a beautiful park situated around a lake. We climbed up to the top of the Indian dagoba which I think must be the highest point in Peking unless Coal Hill should be higher. From there one has a marvelous view of the Forbidden City and of all Peking. It gave me the grandest view of the yellow roofs of the Forbidden City that I had ever seen. The place was dazzling with the morning sun on the roofs. Among them was one small roof of real(?) gold. Dr. McElroy (one of the advisors to the president) was standing near me, and he spoke of it with the added remark that at Marco Polo's time all the roofs were said to have been covered with that same gold a half inch thick. The little emperor lives in the same corner of the Forbidden City. We wandered about getting the views of the city then climbed down through a remarkable grotto to the lakeside. We were too tired to stay to see more so took our jinrickshas and went home arriving at Teng Shih Kou about 1 P.M. The excitement and the sun had given me a headache so I spent the afternoon in sleep getting up just in time to go to church. I spent the night with Dr. Porter since I was to spend the next day in town on business.

Yesterday (May 2nd) we had our Arbor Day and set out 23 spireas, 24 yellow roses, 17 lilacs, 14 geraniums, 6 ivies and 7 honey suckles. How was that for celebrating! It was all done in two hours and the rain finally drove us in. It rained all night so that we hope our efforts will be rewarded by the extra drink the plants got.

I must close here for it is time to go to bed.

Yours lovingly-
Flora Beard.

Dear Ruth:

The last mail brought your good letter with the business re life insurance and mother's good letter and one from Elizabeth. It is very pleasant to receive these good letters from you all. Every letter tells of Aunt Ella [Ella Nichols, wife of Daniel A. Nichols who is Nancy Nichols Beard's brother] being weak and unwell but it also speaks of her going about to various places. The news of Fred Wooster's death was a surprise to me as it must have been to all of you at home.

I am making the "warrant" payable to you = $1 86/100. The dividend of $9.60 I am also making payable to you. I spoke to Mr. Johnson last summer and told him that beginning with 1917 I should want to draw the dividends instead of letting them go to purchase more insurance. I think if you take this to him it will be all right. After taking your commission out of the amount please put the rest in the Derby Savings Bank for me.

We have a perfect day here today. Yesterday afternoon it rained and the wind blew cold. We went to bed early saying that we were in for a rainy Sunday but the morning dawned clear- or at least it was when I awoke at 6:30. A strong west wind was blowing. We expect to have it pretty hot by this time but I have worn full length union suits and a vest right along and have put on a pith hat only a few times this year. Our flowers continue beautiful. I wish mother could see them. Roses of all colors and in such confusion. Callas with eight blossoms in one pot, margaruettes, almost white with blossoms. Cinerarias of all colors, pansies, wisteria, geraniums, orange blossoms, pumelo blossoms, etc. etc.

I preached in the new church to-day and assisted the pastor in conducting communion. Eight young men united with the church, four from the College four from the Hospital= nurses. Three of these are starting this week for France to help take care of 1000's of Chinese coolies who have gone to France to work with the army. Dr. Cooper of our mission is going with them.

A business man who some twelve years ago was an active Christian member of this church- but who fell away was readmitted to-day. When I was with the Y.M.C.A. I used often to go to Amoy and up in the country to a place called Chang Chow. I had to talk in the Foochow dialect there and a young man named Ding translated for me. His father was a Prefect of Chang Chow,- but an earnest Christian. I met him several times. A second son became Provincial Treasurer the first year of the Republic- in Foochow. In my audience this morning were the Provincial Treasurer and his father who is visiting him. Both men are in official circles.

I must say good night and get to bed and finish this before Tuesday- when the mail closes for Shanghai.

College is like a Kaleidoscope- something new all the time. Last Friday evening while we were having Rhetoricals someone stole six blankets and some clothes from a room occupied by eight students. Sunday afternoon one of the students who lost things received a letter containing three pawn tickets that covered all the stolen articles.- It will cost about $5.00 to get the things out of pawn.

Mrs. Hodous has closed the Girls Seminary [see previous photos]. This leaves Marjorie and Kathleen with no teacher. Just now Ellen and I are so full with College duties that we cannot do much to help them. We are planning to help them on the mountain. It will be good for them to have some regular work there. The Hodous are starting for home in about a month.

How I should enjoy being at home now. You are just about planting corn. The apple trees are just in bloom are almost there. The days are balmy and the night too cool to set out of doors but just right to sit in doors. The roads are good for automobiles. It was sad about Dr. Phillips son. I judge from all I read that the church is growing with him as pastor.

Every day we talk with God about you all asking Him to keep you in peace- and make you each useful. What times we are living in!! May God bring order out of this chaos as soon as possible- with men as they are and may He teach all men never to countenance war again.

Very lovingly Will

[May 8, 1917]

6:00 A.M. Tuesday

Dear Ones at Home,

These glorious days I have been making the most of the early hours to do some reading but today I prefer a chat write you. I was naughty and read the latest "Red Pepper" story on Sunday instead of writing letters. Then yesterday I spent all day at making out bills and writing up accounts. Next time I have accounts to keep I shall keep them myself all through. Robert supposedly helped me last Fall but has things in a more muddle than I ever dreamed of.

A week ago Saturday night I went to Peking to the college dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Porter. The dinner was held in the government building of Foreign Affairs. The space, halls and side rooms, is so large that the four hundred and fifty guests were not at all a crowd. Mr. Porter got in from Shanghai at 8.00 so was quite late in getting to the 8.00 o'clock dinner. There had been a mix up on tickets so only two could be found. I took Mr. Porter's place until he came at the Yale table then changed over to the California table. All but two of my near neighbors were Chinese, but foreign educated and most interesting. Over half of the guests were Chinese and there was a goodly number of ladies among them. One Chinese who is a Tungchow man and who was in America and went to Mexico for Y.M.C.A. work was there with his fiancé with his mother as chaperone. That is new China!!

Flora took the tickets and visited the President and palace and has probably written all about it. I came home and took a nap in the afternoon and decorated the sitting room for lunch. Last of all I took the children for a walk around the compound after supper.

Miss Hill was down last week for the last time. We had a game of tennis on Monday afternoon. On Tuesday the children asked to give her a send off and gave a fine one. One of the girls who had a birthday the day before received a belated cake that morning so we had that. Jean Dudley and I made some Divinity Fudge and it was a hustle to get it cooked and cold between 3.30 and 4.30. The children hired a rickshaw and decorated it with flowers. Then they put a wreath on Zana's hat. When she was ready to go they called her out to get her picture taken and crowned her with the flower decked hat. As she descended the steps they all threw flowers. Then she was helped into her rickshaw and the older boys played rickshaw boy. The real boy was at first alarmed for his precious vehicle but he laughed with the rest before very long.

Several times I have been in to see Alice Frame and baby Rosamond. Rosamond is a darling fat rosy baby who eats, sleeps and lives altogether as a baby should. Alice is getting up and around but is not yet down stairs.

There goes the rising bell so I will continue my chat later in the day.

Recess- The air is so full of the seeds and cotton from the willow trees that it looks almost like a snow storm outside. With the temperature so low that we have a slow fire in the furnace the illusion is accelerated.

Last Wednesday we had an Arbor Day and started some shrubs and ones around the school. At the back of the school is a steep bank. We have had a coolie grade the east end of it. Along the top we set a row of yellow roses for a hedge. In front of that is a long narrow bed of geraniums. On the lower level and next the fence are rows of lilacs and spirea. Fortunately we had a rain the night after we set them and several cool cloudy days with frequent showers. As far as I know every plant is alive and only a few ever withered badly.

There is a funeral going on over in the village and we get frequent sounds of beating drums to enliven our work. A band and some standards went by not long ago. When the funeral passes I suppose we will all go to the window to watch. Some way there is no solemnity about a Chinese funeral to me. I see the gay colors, hired movers and hear music to all intents alike for all occasions and it seems more like a gala day than a sad occasion. The richer the funeral the more festive it is. Yet Yuan Shi Kai's funeral was so stately that it was solemn in spite of the color.

5.45 Since school I have been over to Jean's and read the last installment of the "Red Pepper" story and played two good games of tennis with the girls. If our neighbors want us to play tennis when I get home, I shall be more than ready.

You have not written the news of the Space twins and their little brother in a long time. Automobiles seem to be quite the style. Nearly every letter from home or friends mentions a new one. I have had one ride this year- about two miles long.

A letter from Will with enclosures from home has just arrived. Our local papers have said nothing about Copenhagen so I wonder if Anna Rachton[?] Ward is still there or not. After supper:- I do hope that Elizabeth's improvement continues without any more set backs and that Ruth's side is behaving so she can regain those many lost pounds.

Evidently you had a cold spring such as we had and are having. Most of the younger children still wear their winter flannels, here on the 8th of May. It is most unusual but every cool day lessens the number of very hot ones.

This is my evening to go to Prayer Meeting while Jean takes study hall so I must say good night and end this lengthy epistle. In my last I enclosed a draft for $50 but mention it again lest it might have gotten lost in this day of uncertain mails. We had a letter from you direct about a week ago and lately they have been pretty regular.

There go the others to Prayer Meeting.

Lots of love

Mary Beard

BEARD- In Derby, May 6, Miss Ruth Beard of Shelton, aged 36 years. Funeral on Wednesday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock from her late home on Long Hill avenue. Interment in Long Hill Avenue cemetery.

MISS RUTH BEARD.

Shelton Lady Died at Hospital on Sunday Morning Following Operation.

Miss Ruth Beard, aged 36 years, daughter of Oliver G. and Nancy Nichols Beard, of Long Hill avenue, died in the Griffin hospital, Derby, on Sunday morning following an operation which was performed on April 27. Miss Beard's death came as a shock to the community in which she was born and lived.

She was a member of the Shelton Congregational church and was active in many good works. Miss Beard had a beautiful character and was beloved by all who knew her. She is survived by her father and mother, four brothers, Rev. Willard Beard of China; Oliver G. Beard of Bridgeport; Bennett N. Beard, of this city; Stanley Beard of New York, and four sisters, Misses Flora and Mary of China, and Elizabeth and Phoebe, of Shelton. The arrangements for the funeral are in charge of C.E. Lewis & Son.

School is coming to a close and they are doing end of year examinations and clean up. There is unrest between the present government and a rival one. They will be travelling to Mongolia within the month. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]*

Dear Mother, Father and Phebe and Elizabeth,

Phebe's letter came on Saturday evening and Ruth's telling of the operation to be, on Sunday morning. In the letter were the two Kodak pictures and Ruth's birthday gift for me, a handkerchief, most dainty and sweet. I can only send a thank you in a prayer but know that Ruth will understand. To Phebe I say many thanks for the snap shot of Ruth in that pretty dress and for the one of Edith which look so very natural.

June 9- This week has been such a full one that I have hardly had time to know whether I felt sad or glad. I closed my laboratory on Thursday, brought home all extra chemicals and packed them away in a closet down stairs. The note books are almost ready to sign or not to sign awarding to them merit or lack of merit. Robert McCann and I have spent the last two afternoons reading the Cicero which he missed last winter and had never had a chance to makeup with the class. We found a cool spot by the mote and worked there. It was much better than any spot in the home. We have such a quantity of [unreadable word] unprotected from the intense rays of the sun that even our dining room is not always cool.

I am not giving but one examination now as I gave them last week. But in Caesar and Cicero we are reading hard to get the requisite numbers of books completed. It is a hurried reading but not wasted time for we do much at night and that is useful. I have played tennis three times each time with a different partner. It has been hot and I have gone to bed by nine at night so as to study early in the morning. It is a great sch? and an [unreadable word] in the morning is worth more than one at night for work, besides being cooler and free from bugs and willers[?].

Twelve more pictures which I have had for sometime but neglected to get printed for you. I labeled us on the bathing suit one for it is in fear I feared we might not be recognized.

On Thursday I borrowed Mrs. Frame's scales and weighed the family. The children have gained all the way from 1 ½ lbs. to 16 lbs. this winter. I have lost my usual amount but no more and Flora is just about the same. I thought she had lost but the scales do not share it.

A new baby was born to Mrs. Galt last week Friday. Mr. Galt was out in the tent with Scarlet Fever and has only seen his little son through the window.

The political condition here certainly is interesting. The Tu Chu's (Promise governors) are trying to set up a rival government in Tientsin but are quarreling as to who shall be the head. The leader of the "Pig tail" forces of China arrived in Peking yesterday with some 8000 troops to try to bring almost a remediation between the present government and the rival one. Today's paper gives Dr. Reinsch's message to Dr. [unreadable name] begging for the end of int'l strife.

In spite of the unrest a party of nine started this morning for a month's trip out to the eastern tombs, Jehol, and other points of interest. They start from here so as to get the cross country roads; altho neither points are nearer as the bird flies but with steep monotonous parts.

My pictures of Rosamond Frame were both blanks so I shall try again tomorrow.

Tomorrow Dr. Smith gives us the talk in church. He was chosen as the best speaker for this our last service of the school year. Last Sunday they had a song series. I did not go down but listened from upstairs.

I think of you people all the time and how every thing at home must speak to you of Ruth. Yes, we will miss her even out here. We will miss her letters and the thought of her alone awaiting our return which is only two years off now. Sometimes I want to make it one but have no good reason for leaving except I lack courage to stick it out and I won't be a coward.

School closes next Thursday then we stay about two weeks to clean up and are off for Mongolia by way of Kalgan. There is to be a large party of us and a large number are from the N.C.A.S.

I must close so this can get out tonight. I do not know about steamers but always feel that there is a chance of a letter leaving the country.

May God be good to you and comfort you and keep you safe.

With lots of love

Mary.

Dear Sisters:-

You have doubtless got letters from home before this telling you that Heaven is becoming more precious to us. Ruth's growth in all the graces that make a beautiful Christian was to me very marked during the past seven years. Last summer she seemed to be getting so much out of life. She seemed to understand people and she was very helpful to people and was enjoying it. Phebe M. has put it very nicely in her letter.

The mail came in last night while I was away and I did not get to it till nearly ten o'clock. God was very kind to lead me to open the letters in the right order-unwittingly so the news came to me in proper sequence. I am not sure but Griffin Hospital is in Derby is it not? And I figure from the letters that Ruth went home Sunday, May 6th at 10 a.m. I know they will all miss her greatly at home- we will miss her frequent, newsy, always cheerful letters. The tears will come but they are not tears of sorrow and sadness. Heaven has seemed very near ever since I read the letter. Ruth's being there will make it more real.

Ellen's knee mends very slowly. The weather is hot and moist and sticky- with a shower every day,- too much water- Newell's had a house warming last evening.- Hodous goes to Peking until Oct. he thinks and children go home,- you have word that Gould and Morris Kinnear are at Century Farm and Geraldine is there.

With love from all

Will

Dear Mother and all the Rest at Home:-

The last mail brought your letter and Phebe's letters of the first days in May, and a letter from Elizabeth and one from Gould- I had been away all the evening and did not get home till almost 10 o'clock. The mail was a big one. Phebe, you will be glad to hear that all your letters were in the same mail and that God guided me to open and read them in the order in which you wrote them.

The news of Ruth's death [born May 12, 1880, died May 6, 1917 of acute pancreatitis and operation for removal of gall stones according to death certificate] came as a surprise to me. Her letter- the last one she will write me here- I read before I opened any of yours. She spoke so confidently of the success of the operation in her own mind that I was ready for only good news in the other letters.

I was much impressed with Ruth's development in womanly graces and in a beautiful Christian character, both during my stay at home in 1910-12 and again last summer. I realized more fully that her pleasure was in helping others more and more. I was much interested in reading in Gould's letter one time last summer-or was it in 1915.- "I have been talking with Aunt Ruth. I tell you she's a pretty nice little aunt." Of course the tears flowed as I read the news and for hours afterward- in fact till the clock struck two next a.m. All the next day heaven seemed very near. Both you and Phebe put it very nicely. That Ruth had gone to be with James and the rest. We have known her as a loving, lonely girl and we are better because we have known her. She made the world better- not only while she was here but for all time. I have sent your letters all on to the girls in the north [Flora and Mary]. They will find it hard. I am asking God to be their comfort. I shall look in the next mail to find the rest of the news- and also news about Gould and Geraldine. For two weeks I have had a lot of trouble in the College. First the 6th year class walked out of Chapel in rebellion. That was just fixed up with 20 very humble penitent boys returning with confessions, when day before yesterday ten boys went out on the street and played rough house with a policeman. One of the boys who was least to blame was unfortunate enough to get into the hands of the police.- Well it makes a lot of work and unpleasant work.

Ruth's last letter from me you will receive. I am afraid there is some business in it that will have to come back to me- perhaps you can do it for me- I hope so.

Ellen's knee is improving very slowly. It was May 19th but she sprained it. She is in the wheel chair every day since. All are otherwise well.

Very lovingly

Will

[Before June 10, 1917]

Dear Ones in Foochow,

Phebe's letter telling of Ruth's death came tonight. I just can't make myself believe yet that Ruth is gone. She was so much a part of home and of the most beautiful part of love that I can't picture home without her. Some way Ruth's going makes Heaven seem nearer than did that of James, Aunt Louise or Olive. Perhaps because she was nearer to me or rather because we were always playmates and seemed to understand each other. Dear girl, she was ready for Heaven, if ever a girl could be! I never saw more devotion to duty, loved ones and things beautiful. And it was not always easy either as we know for her to be so cheerful and happy.

I do hope that this does not retard Elizabeth's progress but it will be very hard. I am glad she went home for it will always be easier to have been there.

Don't you feel awfully lonesome and far away off out here in China? I thought I was getting over it but Ruth's death makes me feel it more than ever. It might not, because she is nearer now than she ever could be when alive. I know I ought to rejoice for her because she has not been well for so many years and was seldom entirely free from pain. But I can't feel much joy tonight- God and everybody seems so far away and I want some one near.

We are well but weary with the work of the year and the extra ?? of closing school. Our closing day is June 14. Miss Carl who painted the Empress Dowager's portrait and is painting that of President Li is to give us a talk and the children give some music.

Written in album: "Listening to Miss Carl on 'The Empress Dowager'. June 1917"

The revolting of the premiers, the disturbances at Peking and all make me wonder of the advisability of the Mongolia trip. I shall be skeptical about planning it again if it does not materialize because last time it was the Yuan Shih Kai trouble that scared us.

Why is Gould in Shelton in May? Has Geraldine had to give up her College work? Who is Maurice? Maurice Kinnear? I can think of no other. We will miss Ruth as a correspondent out here because she was ever so faithful a letter writer.

Lots of love to you all
Mary.

Dear Phebe:-

This is specially to thank you for writing about Ruth's going home. I received the letter you wrote to the girls in the North, today from Mary. I sent all your letters to me on to them at once. Mary's letter is so good I'm sending it to you. It is very interesting and most comforting and encouraging to read the testimony from everyone that Heaven seems nearer when we think of Ruth. Where is Heaven? Why do we say it is nearer? I have a class of Sunday School teachers each Fri. afternoon at 4:30. The lesson today is Jesus Crucified. One of the topics was the penitent thief and his confession. These boys are all Christians. After talking about Jesus promise to this penitent man that he would be in Heaven with him that very day. One of the boys remarked "He got into Heaven very cheap." Ruth's life came to me at once, so I spoke briefly of it and of her abundant entrance into Heaven- her many friends and acquaintances there,- her familiarity with the laws, and customs and work of Heaven,- the at home feeling that she must have had from the very first- in fact I think the change for her was not very great- she had been living in Heaven's atmosphere.- Every thing was natural to her at once. But think of what it must have been for the poor man to whom all the sights, sounds, language, customs, laws, work and all were strange. He had all to learn. The boys all agreed that it would not do to say he got into Heaven cheap.

Since Wed. there has been a big flood all over the Foochow plain. The rice is having a hard time this year.- This is the third flood. The weather is not yet bad- we find it comfortable at night.

This next week will see most of this compound away for Kuliang or off for the U.S. Marjorie was saying this morning, "Next Sunday only Dr. Mrs. Kinnear and we will be left. College closed June 22. We shall likely get off for the mountain the next Mon. or Tues.

Will you find it a burden to take care of my business with Ruth (I mean the note of Ruth's for $1000) and the Bank? I believe that is all. If it is too much for you or if it is not convenient will you ask Ben to do it.

Ellen's knee is mending very slowly. It is discouraging for her but it is just as the Doctor said it would be and there have been no pull backs. We have an electric massage that I use on it every night.

Conditions change so fast in the U.S. that it is impossible to write anything like advice to the children. We had written the girls not to go East this summer with the intention of visiting. Both Ellen and I thought it would be much better for them to get into some useful work. But if they can be of use at home and you all agree to let them work it will be all right,- if they keep their part of the contract.

May we all know the blessedness of fellowship with God.

With love to all

Will.

Dear Uncle Elbert and Aunt Emma,

Friday the compound had a supper over at Mrs. Newells new house. There were tables for the big people and one big table for the little people. We began with singing the blessing and then someone got up and told us to select our knives and forks. On the dinningroom table were all sorts of things to eat. And we took the things we wanted. There was chicken, chickenloaf, egg salad, chocolate pie, pumpkin pie, and dried apple pie. I can't tell you all the things we had. After supper the big people had some talking and we children toled stories in the hall.

A few days ago Mrs. Newell had a house warming it was also an Anniversary. Marjorie and I and two other children sang some song and made a translation. Three of the little folks of our compond did some things one was about the Muffin man. Then we sat down and we had ice-cream straw-berries cake and candy. After it was all done we went out and played and the big people talked on the porch. Now I want to ask how Billy Dodge is getting along and you too [I believe Billy Dodge is Elbert's nickname for his car.]. In a little while Mr. and Mrs. Hodous and Rachel are going to America. Excuse me for not writing to you before. With very much love from Kathleen B

Dear Dorothy:-

This letter is almost Phebe's by right for tomorrow is her birthday. She is twenty two years old, - as old as grandma was when I was born.

I am sending this to Shelton, not knowing where else to send it. We have had to ask God to take care of you "wherever they are" since we heard that Gould has gone to Shelton and from our best hear say Geraldine had also gone, and you were going and Phebe might go.

The past week has been examinations in the College- from 9-12 a.m. and from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. This is always very confining. The weather has been very warm which does not decrease the burden for either teacher or student.

It was four weeks ago yesterday that Mama sprained her knee. Last night at midnight she was awakened with a severe pain in her back and right side. Anto cannia did not stop it. The osteopathic treatment- pressing with both my thumbs on each side of the back bone eased it while it was being done. Applications of hot cloths did most good. But not till Dr. Kinnear came up about 8 am and gave her some pills and they got to work did she get any permanent relief, and not till about 5 pm did she get any rest. That night she slept well. But she is still very sore in the region of the gall bladder. Dr. Kinnear said that Dr. Dennis would call it "chill on the liver."

This morning I preached and conducted communion at Long Gio Haeng in the city. It was to me a very hot morning but the church was full and extra seats were brought in and placed near the pulpit to accommodate late comers. The Electric Light Co. has a monopoly of its business in Foochow. It has been using its power and coining instead of making money, - charging $3.00 per light for installing, and $1.60 for a switch and 9cents a foot for extra wire and $1.00 per month for meter rent and 28 cents a kilowatt for electricity. We cannot kick very much for even at these prices electricity is not more expensive than kerosene. It is much safer and more convenient. But the Assembly got to discussing government ownership of the plant and to stop the discussion the Co. suddenly reduced the price of installing to 85 cents per light and 60 cents per switch. This church at Long Gio Haeng have decided to put in electric lights. They raised $10 in as many minutes this morning.

One man was admitted to membership and two children were baptized.

College closes next Thursday morning. Examinations are over on Tuesday. On Wed. we are to have a meeting of the College to feel good over the gift of $180 from the officials last fall during our Field Day. The boys have spent the money for spike shoes, clothes for Basket Ball teams, a shield and buttons for those who entered the sports. These will all be displayed on Wednesday.

I do not know when we shall get off for the mountain- as soon as Mama feels like going most likely.

Politically Foochow is all very quiet. We have had no plague or other bad disease thus far this year. There is much complaint about hard times. It is difficult for shops to collect bills. Taxes are getting more and more burdensome,- more things are being taxed. But the standard of living is raising. The business men and their families and the better-to-do are living much better as to house accommodations. Clothes-food- and pleasure than formerly. People are spending much more in travel than formerly. There are over 1000 rickshas- and they are busy,- where there were perhaps 200 sedan chairs. There are also some 50 carriages busy all the time.

Miss Preston writes that she sent Phebe $12.50 for tea that I sent her. She should have sent $12.50 twice- once about Jan. 1 and again about March sometime. When it is convenient I hope you all will write me about the bills $1.00 and $2.00 and $5.00 that I have been sending all the time for six or eight months. The last $15.00 of bills I sold to Mr. Hodous.

June 20th. We spoke of and thought of Phebe several times on Monday June 18th. I think I have sent the full $22 for her birthday. If she keeps on getting older and I keep on giving her a birthday sum of dollars equal to the number of her years, she will get some money bye and bye.

June 21, Another mail arrived yesterday but nothing from home.

I must close this now for the mail closes today. Mama is up in the wheel chair today and feeling much better.

May God keep you all and in all the strife and unsettled state of the country and of the world may He keep you all sane, cool headed and right minded. May the war make every one so hate war as to render it impossible to have another war.

Your loving father Willard L Beard

[about June 1917]

Dear Ones at Home-

Tis Monday afternoon already- but this has been a most happy weekend. Miss Theresa Severin was down with us for a visit. Mr. Gordon had Dr. Stearns down- and the Loves had Mr. Bergomine. So all we hosts and hostesses and guests got together in our dining room on Saturday evening and made some Divinity Fudge. It was the best I have made yet, white and smooth as could be.

Sunday morning we talked awhile then Theresa and I went over to see Rosamond Frame at her bath. Then we went with Mr. Gordon and Mr. Beers to see Mr. G's goats. I had to leave soon and return for Sunday School,- at eleven. After dinner while we six grown ups had at a table by ourselves, we talked and ate candy for awhile. Then we went for a walk on the wall and got back just in time to dress for church. Theresa and I went to Mrs. Love's for supper and found Mr. Gordon a third guest. The two men had returned by the evening train because they did not want to miss "drill" at 6.30 this morning.

There are some seventy to ninety American men who go to the Legation every morning to drill under the regular army officers. Just last week they were given ten muskets after several weeks of drill militant [unreadable word]. Some of the men have declined all evening invitations because they can not lengthen the day at both ends. This summer there is to be a Summer Camp for all who are to go into regular military camp for a month or more. Everyone has his own place in a special squad but late-comers are not allowed to enter their own squad but must join "the late squad".

When I wrote two weeks ago I neglected to mention that I acknowledged the payment of the $6.41 on my $500 Life Insurance policy. I wonder if you at home are anymore full of war news and spirit than we are here?

Some of the men long to start at once for Armenia and the front. I understand that two of our gun boats are interned at Shanghai and the others have returned to American waters or harbors.

The political status of China is most interesting. The Premier seems to be ruling with a high hand and so far is successful in preventing the Parliament from taking any action in the war question. As he is able to control the army it is a serious condition. The latest mix up with our small neighbor sounds very serious.

At latest reports we are likely to have all of our Missionary neighbors for at least one more year. There is a serious obstacle in the way of pushing the Union scheme which may keep the plan from culminating in the fall as hoped. Whether Flora will want to board either of the young men next year in that care, I do not know. A letter from the Corbetts says that they plan to spend one more year at Tungcho anyway. Mr. Corbett will commute if the College moves.

Flora has been in Peking all day on business. She returns on the evening train and I leave on it. The Missionary Concert is this evening and I am going up to attend and shall return in the 6.10 tomorrow morning. I hope it is as good as it usually is for then it will be well worth while. The only number on the program that I know of is Jean's violin solo. I shall stay with Theresa Severin.

I must go now and see to leaving the last few geraniums set in our flower border. That was to be one of my today's tasks as outlined. My suitcase is packed so I am ready to go away all except dressing.

We had a fine letter from Hattie Beard this week, the only letter in two foreign mails.

Lillian Burr writes that her father has joined a regiment and that Morris has volunteered but not been accepted as he is underage. The guarding of the railroad bridges, new aviation centers etc. are most interesting.

Lots of love. I do hope you are all well and I do want to hear of the war preparations around here.

Mary.

June 24, 1917

Dear Ones at Home,

How these vacation days do pass by and how little I seem to accomplish! This is the tenth day of vacation and we start for Kalgan this week Saturday. This week came Phebe's letter telling of the last earthly tributes to Ruth and how kind every one was; also we received the Sentinels. My heart aches for you dear ones for whom every object and art speaks of our loss. But what blessed memories we have with us- and what a comfort to know that she suffers no more but is well.

We had a dinner party on Monday noon with none of us at table. Flora had word that the three Princeton men were coming on the 20th for lunch and got mixed on her dates so prepared for them Monday. It was a "rehearsal lunch party" as we called it, and we make much fun over it. We played "Rook" most of the afternoon and a thunder storm prevented the tennis we planned. F. and I are all alone here and she is afraid to come back to the home after dark so we had to miss the College play Monday evening- also the discussion of Industrial work on Tuesday evening. I wish she were not so tired because I had counted much on the play of which I had heard so much.

On Wednesday we again got all ready for our guests- even the salad was out on plates. Mr. Beers returned alone from the station and there was no explanation. Ester Irwin[?] and her mother had come down for a picnic lunch by the mote and to see the place. We sent a messenger to urge them to eat the feast prepared and a second note to Mr. Woodall to please come fill up the ranks. By one o'clock we had our fourteen ready and started. Just as the salad plates were served (That was lucky as I had only 14 plates and no more nuts or pineapple.) We heard footsteps above us. Two of the men had come but when they saw "Pao Tung Ssu" on the station sign they sat back in their seats and waited for "Tungchow". The station marked Tungchow is two miles beyond here and is the end of the line. They got off and, not knowing that the train returned at one, hired a cart and came back. We crowded together and had a jolly time of it. After lunch we visited the dairy and at 4.00 went over to the Corbett house for some music. We were having too good a time to listen for the train so went to the station at 5.00 as usual. The train was not yet in and was held up at the station above by a broken engine. We stood and waited until it began to rain. Then we went into the ticket office and there we sat til 6.45. It was a fine chance to visit and we quite enjoyed it. On Thursday I was up to see the Porters off on the early train. We had made Divinity Fudge the night before so I took them a few samples for lunch.

On Friday we had Dr. and Mrs. Love and the children over for breakfast and lunch. Their servants went in the morning to Pei Tai Ho and they were going at night. We saw them off that night.

The Trustees of the Union College of Peking had a meeting Friday. They are going to ask a Mr. Loganstein[?] to become President. His is chairman of the China Continuation Committee, a Presbyterian, and has a fine reputation among all denominations. Old Dr. A.H. Lacy, Methodist, has been made President Executive but he is too old to be acting President of such a young and alive institution as this must be.

Dr. Galt is out of quarantine now and was to eat with his family today for the first time. The theory now is that Scarlet fever is carried from the germs in the throat not from the skin as it peels off, so the term of quarantine is generally about three weeks instead of six. I should like to hear Stanley's opinion on that subject.

I do hope we get another letter from you before we go north and hear that Myra is better. In turning over my calendar I noted June 10th marked Stanley and Myra's Wedding Day. I go through my new one every year and mark all the birthdays and wedding days. Oliver and Grace's came just two days later.

The postman has just left me two letters. One from Tientsin encloses the freight order for my saddle which I have bought from Mr. Kung of Shansi so that I can ride up in Mongolia this summer. The other is from Jean Dudley and encloses a check which I gave the tailor for making a dress and two hats. I absent mindedly dated it July 11 and since I gave it to the tailor he could get no money on it even by holding it until the date on the face. The banks have no Chinese signature and are awfully particular about checks presented by Chinese.

On Monday night we had four inches of rain full in about three hours. It just seemed to come in sheets not drops. It has showered nearly every day since. Yesterday it sprinkled all day and likewise all this morning. Since so few people are here we have no service today. I took a fine nap instead.

Did Flora write you of the two babies who have come down for the summer? The Lyons have a fine big baby boy, James, aged seven months, and the Wiley's a dainty little blue eyes girl, Ruth, aged eight and a half months. They are bright wide awake children and I have had great fun with them. Both mothers offer me a recommendation as amah if I want it so perhaps I will hire out.

The political situation seems to be quieting down without any upheaval. The Te Chows[?] are swearing allegiance to the government and expressing regret over their declarations of independence.

We are looking forward to the coming of Mrs. Corbett with the rest of our silver. Also our piano comes with some of her freight I suppose but that is already on its way. Flora must have written all about that for it is her special piece of ?? now.

I hope you all keep well and that God has given to each of you peace and comfort.

Affectionately

Mary Beard.

Mary and Flora were not able to take their trip to Mongolia because of Mary's bout with a mild case of dysentery. They went to Pei Tai Ho instead. Because of some political upheaval, they had difficulty making the trip to Pei Tai Ho. Chang Hsun's troops were holding the railroad and fired on the train. Rocky Point

Pei Tai Ho

[July 9, 1917]

Dear Ones at Home-

Here we are at Pei Tai Ho again and most comfortably located in the heart of things at Rocky Point. We changed our plans because about a week before we were to leave for Kalgan and Mongolia I developed a slight attack of dysentery. I had a diarrhea for a few days then it changed to dysentery. It lasted only two and a half days and I have had no return of the trouble. Dr. Love is the cautious kind and advised a lazy summer at Pei Tai Ho instead of the horse back riding and cart riding and walking on the Mongol plains. We were very fortunate and Mrs. Porter found us a room almost immediately although the first of July is a time when rooms are most scarce. We brought our own boy who takes care of our room does our washing and breakfast dishes. We take lunch and dinners at Gould Cottage where five of the American Board single ladies live. It is very near so it will be no trouble to go out even when it rains.

We came down on July the second in the night train and we were lucky to get here.

On the fourth we had our American celebration with baseball, donkey tug-of-war, ice cream, cake and lemonade. This year only neutral and allied nations were invited because of our state of war. That night we heard that connections with Peking were cut off at Feng Tai. Chang Hsun's troops held the railroad and we were in doubt as to whether they had torn up the rails or not. They did not tear the rails up because one train has been through. It takes four hours generally but this time it took eight. Chang Hsun's troops fired on the train at Feng Tai and the passengers were made to be flat for a long distance. Only one man was hurt and that was a Japanese who got a bullet in his leg.

Everyday someone gets a telegram from Peking (since the first day when we were entirely cut off) and everything is safe there. Yesterday there was fighting at Feng Tai and Chang Hsun retreated to the Chinese city of Peking. The report is that the gates of the Tartar City are closed and no one can enter or leave.

Several men have gotten in but the foreign troops that went from Tientsin are still this side of Chang Hsun. Communications with Shanghai are open again but I have not heard what became of the troops which were blocking the way. Now we are cut off from Mukden by a general who is trying to join Chang Hsun.

The first concert of the season was last Saturday night. We went because Miss Hill was to play her violin. She leaves for America before the next concert so it would be the last opportunity to hear her. It was a very interesting concert. In the middle of it a thunderstorm came up so the man in charge sat at the piano and the crowd sang popular songs while it lasted.

It was terribly hot in Tungchou the last week we were there. Sometimes it did not cool off even at night. Up here it is delightfully cool. Yesterday I had to wrap up in my steamer rug when I lay on the porch and I have been wearing my sweater all the morning. The wind seems to blow hard from off the water all day and die down at night. Thus it is always cool.

We are not so near the sea as last year but hear the waves breaking on the rocks whenever it is rough at all. We both sleep on the porch with the lienzas down and use our room for store house and dressing room only.

This is a fine room home and every room is taken by independent people. Next us and shares in the same lovely big porch is Mrs. Camron with a month old baby. The other three rooms are taken by Canadian Presbyterian people from Honan. The lady who has charge of the home has a sixteen months old boy but he seldom visits us.

This noon we received mail from Peking so I hope the trouble is abating somewhat. It is the first mail for several days.

Just before we left Tungchou Mother's letter came and I sent it directly on to Willard as I had a letter all written. It was good to get a letter from Mother herself, and such a nice long one, too.

There is one thing I still need that can be much better gotten from home and that is white stockings. My only good ones are the two pair of silk ones Ruth sent out last fall. I need some for common wear, and a half dozen ought to last me until I come home and maybe longer. It is too hot on one's feet to wear black shoes in the hot weather so I wear white most of the time. I shall have to buy some to last through this summer even.

I enclose a draft for one hundred dollars ($100) made payable to father. ($50) Fifty is mine and the other half is Flora's. Please deposit twenty ($20) to my bank account and put the rest to my account with father for me to draw on or for you to spend for me. Exchange is so very low that I am sending now even though I must have a goodly deposit with you already.

We are hoping for more home mail soon and hope to hear that you are well.

Flora says she will write before the end of the week again to make up for the last week. She was awfully busy that Sunday as we had to repack nearly everything. The wardrobes for Mongolia and Pei Tai Ho are quite different.

Lots of love
Mary.

They travel to Pei Tai Ho instead of Mongolia because of Mary's bout with dysentery. They are staying at a different area in Pei Tai Ho than before although they prefer the other place better. Flora goes into detail the events playing out with Chang Hsun in Peking and at the Forbidden City. Flora sends in the letter a draft. She is trying to send more money to the U.S. while exchange is favorable. She mourns her sister, Ruth. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]*

[July 15, 1917]

Dear folks at home: - [very beginning of letter started in May 1917]

Sunday again and only four more before school closes. We are having a delightfully cool spring- fine for us but the fields are progressing very slowly. Not only the cold but the lack of rain is telling on the wheat and other vegetation. Our strawberries are in bloom. (Two weeks later). Again it is Sunday but this one is hot and dry. (One week later + 2 days). Phebe's letter telling of Ruth's going came Saturday (June 2) on the evening train. Another of hers and Ruth's letter came Sunday morning. This is the first mail from home to speak of for a month. We also had two Sentinels that Ruth had directed, and a New York Times from Miss Brewster, besides a lot of magazines. There had been such a dearth of news from home that I had begun to think "why?" but had laid it to war conditions. I have noticed in each of the pictures that have come from home that Ruth's face has showed marked sign of suffering, and I have felt, from what I knew of her case when I was at home that some day she would have to undergo an operation, but I had not anticipated this result. Think as hard as I can, I am not able to make myself realize that she is not with you. - Sunday, July 15, at Peitaiho- I would not send this scrappy beginning only that it is all the writing I have done for more than a month. Both of us were about used up, and the weather at the end of June was so hot that we felt good for very little. On Thursday, June 14th the thermometer reached 103 degrees and Miss Carl, our speaker, nearly gave out during her talk. After the children got off there were things to be done about the building and orders to be sent which took over two weeks to see to. Then every one- as each family got ready to leave for the summer- came over to us for their last few meals. In the midst of this Mary had a diarrhea which developed into a mild attack of dysentery. Since Dr. Love was taking his meals with us he knew of it in time to stop it at once. All he did was to give her a teaspoonful of salts three times a day until the stools were without mucous and blood. Of course her food has had to be of small variety and mostly liquids, but now she is branching out more into the normal diet. Her illness made us give up the trip into Mongolia, since Dr. Love tho't she shouldn't take that strenuous three days' trip in the saddle, while she was getting over her attack. So here we are again at Peitaiho for the summer. This time we are at Rocky Point, where the larger part of the summer population is. We have a room and a kitchen. We get our own breakfasts and go out for our lunch and dinner. This gives us the maximum rest and quiet, with the minimum of care. We bro't our second washman with us and he has proven himself to be an excellent boy of all work. So we spend our days mostly in sleeping and then sleep well at night, too. Mary is better and stronger each day so that I hope by the end of this week she will feel like bathing in the sea. She has not let her illness interfere with the few social affairs so you can see she is not very weak. With six or seven meals a day she ought to regain what flesh she has lost soon.- Rocky Point is more fun than East Cliff but we are so close to our neighbors here that noises at night are more or less disturbing and the views here cannot compare with those at East Cliff. It is a convenience to be able to go to affairs at the Assembly Hall without reaching there drenched with the perspiration of an hour's walk through this hot sun or having to pay $1 ½ to escape the perspiration, but I miss the homelike atmosphere of East Cliff where we all knew each other last year. We do not even know the young couple who are occupying the room next to us and from whom we are only separated on the veranda by a curtain. However, we are getting a grand good rest and that is the principal thing.

The last two days we have been visiting with Foochow people. First a lady from the Methodist Mission and yesterday with Mr. Hodous. He told us a lot about our Foochow friends and especially of Will, Ellen, and the little girls. He said there had been a little school of four little girls in their compound this winter which every one had enjoyed. Then he told of an entertainment that Marjorie and Kathleen arranged and gave with the other two girls. There were nineteen numbers and they carried it off perfectly even to printed programs and with Will as master of ceremonies. He told us also just how Ellen came to get her knee injured and that she had managed to carry on her work at the college and the care of her house just the same. It was more serious than an ordinary break would have been but she is better now.

Everything has been eclipsed this past week by events here in Peking. When Mary and I left, Peking last week the city was gay with the old dragon flags and the first news after reaching Peitaiho was that of Chang Hsun's waking up the little emperor at 2 A.M. on Tuesday and proclaiming him emperor. Every one seemed to have been intimidated and some of the people kowtowed so long and so hard that their heads bled with the prolonged ceremony. The little emperor remonstrated even to kicks with Chang Hsun for waking him out of his sleep and his family begged to be let alone but to no purpose. The empire (?) lasted just about a week, and then the five colored flags came out again. In the meantime the railroad between Peking and Tientsin was torn up at Feng Tai Junction and there was a battle there in which Chang Hsun's troops were driven back to the city and a little later he fled to the Dutch Legation for refuge. He wanted to flee, as the Tartar royalty has so often done, to Jehol but he was not sure of his reception there so he had to take up with the foreign legations. President Li is still at the Japanese legation. Just what will be done with Chang Hsun no one knows. He has broken the 1901 treaty with the foreign countries by tearing up the railroad between Peking and Tientsin so I should think this would give the legations the right of influencing the decision. To show you how the Chinese can squirm themselves out of a hard corner, Chang

Hsun is saying this. He tho't he could help his country to solve a problem and he could pay back a good turn to the Empress Dowager's family, by coming to Peking, but since no one likes what he has done he will go back to Shantung and be good. Down there he has 30000 troops. Mr. Hodous says he thinks there is a bit of truth to this. Tran Chi Jui had promised his support – as also some others- but when Chang Hsun came to be the No.1 man and they saw numbers below they realized too late that they were left out and so now every one is in a fix. There has been fighting near Peking with bullets flying over the city. Some spectators on the wall got hurt- two Americans and an Italian. They had no business to be there- except for curiosity. The legations have ordered all foreigners who live near the Forbidden City to move into the legations or extreme eastern part of the city. There are over 2000 people in the Methodist compound. This must be some more than usually live there, but it is a huge place with large college buildings. The largest part of these must be Chinese seeking refuge among the foreigners. Word to-day says everything is again quiet. We are waiting to hear more from the people who got through from Peking this morning by train.

Enclosed is the "duplicate" draft of the one Mary sent last week. I hope that reached you safely. We may send some more home if exchange stays where it is for it is an excellent time to change our silver into gold. A dollar gold can be bought now for about $1.51 and we have had to pay as high as $2.40 for it. As soon as the war is over the silver situation should swing back some, though perhaps not to the other extreme.

I am also enclosing a list of things and purchases that I do hope you will not find too much to attend to. Will you please send the things out by parcel post as it is just as cheap and much more rapid. I should like to know the prices of the things you buy so that I can credit myself here with them.

We have heard that Mrs. Corbett has visited you, and are delighted. Didn't you enjoy her? I know Ruth would have liked to know her. It is the hardest thing to try to realize home without Ruth. I sometimes awaken at night rather suddenly with the thought that Ruth is not there, and even the obituary in the paper seems an impossible truth. I am glad Will's children are with you both for their sakes and yours. It is a great comfort to think of you all together.

I do hope not to miss any more turns for writing to you from now on. It seems as though with the extra help in school we ought not to be so pressed with work during this coming year.

With love to you all and kindest remembrances to Morris Kinnear, I am,

Yours- Flora Beard,

Peitaiho

Kuliang, Foochow, China.

July 15th 1917

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

Letters came this past week from Gould, Aunt Phebe, Grandma, and Mrs. Bean. Mrs. Bean mentions the letter you wrote to her and the joy it gave her. I have been so very busy the past year that my letters to her were less frequent than formerly, and the three weeks last Fall while the Dengue had me in its grasp made my silence then longer than usual. I am afraid she gets lonely at times. She misses Mr. Ide who was very faithful in calling on her when she was shut in. Writing to such as she is or doing anything to bring sunshine into their lives is the nearest to a work of merit that we can do here on Earth, and it pleases me much to learn that you can find time and have the inclination to write her.

I had two letters from my friend in Kansas City in the last mail. Each letter contained a $5.00 bill. I was in Foochow when I received them and I put them into the safe. The next time I go down I will try to send them on to some of you. This is my best way of sending money to you, - it saves all loss from exchange.

I went down to Foochow last Wed. a.m. Mama went with me- she to see the dentist- There is no dentist on Kuliang this year. We were off before 5 a.m. and in our Foochow house about 7:45 a.m. Mama came back that afternoon. The girlies were awake when we left in the morning. They took breakfast rather early and as we had arranged went over to stay with Mrs. Belcher. (Mr. Belcher has purchased Dr. Bliss' house.) They got over to Mrs. Belcher's before they were up. I had a Comm. meeting at 4 p.m. which lasted till after 6 so I had to remain over night. I was ready to start up at 4 a.m. next morning, but the coolies did not come for me till 5:15. However I found the girlies in bed when I arrived about 8 a.m. The wind was blowing and the Chinese were asking if there was to be a typhoon. Friday night the wind blew faster than the Zepher rate and rain fell. Our house was all right. But Mr. McLachlin's house, now sold to Mr. Hughes of Amoy and rented to Mr. Leafe of the Y.M.C.A. leaked very badly. I went up to see them yesterday before breakfast. They were pretty wet but happy. The storm has done comparatively slight damage to houses here. I am afraid the rice on the plain is injured. They were reaping one field as I came up Thursday morning. To have such a heavy wind and beating rain at the time of harvest is damaging.

Kuliang is getting a modern if not a model settlement. We now have the Kuliang Council in place of the Kuliang Improvement Committee and a lot of other committees. This council has charge of Roads, Bath, Club, Coolies, -tests milk- collects garbage- in fact has charge of all Kuliang interests except the Public Tennis Courts. We buy, sell and rent cottages on commission also repair them. O yes we do not have charge of the church.

Kuliang is not full this year. Two houses are not rented and several rooms are for rent.

We have our cook and two students here this summer to help us. One of the students is doing our washing and ironing- and doing very well.

I wonder if the muddle in Peking is disturbing you. I hope that you all have gotten used to reports from China and do not allow what the papers say to disturb you. It is a fact I think that Kang Weu Wei the reformer of 1898 went to Peking and had something to do with shelving President Lu Yuan Hung and getting the 13 yr. old boy Emperor to accept the throne. But that seems now to be over and China is again a Republic.

There was fighting in some places- just how much no one knows now. A battle took place between the soldiers of Gen'l Li of Foochow and Cantonese soldiers- near Swatau and the report is that some 500 were killed, - Foochow is quiet.

Marjorie is an inveterate reader. She has just finished The Winning of Barbara Worth. She is a good thinker also. The fact that she is oldest girl on the mountain makes her a little bit embarrassed sometimes. I am trying to help both girls in Arithmetic. They are not natural mathematicians, and Kathleen does take naturally to anything that means close application. She is the baby and uses that fact for its full value to get her own way. I hope this will not lead to her developing toward selfishness. It seems to be helping Monnie to be less selfish.

In the last mail I sent to Gould two orders to draw money from his account in the Putnam Savings Bank.

We are very happy as we think of you four at the Beard home- happy because we believe you are of use there in material and spiritual ways and happy because in this time of stress and unnatural conditions we believe you are in good company and surrounded by good influences.

We tell God all of our hearts desires for you often each day, and we hope He will make it possible for you all to be in school again next Fall. Very lovingly your Father

Willard L. Beard

Give our love to all the folks- Grandpa, Grandma, Aunts Phebe, Elizabeth, Uncles Oliver, Ben, Stanley- Aunts Grace, Abbie and Myra and all the cousins when you see them.

July 22, 1917

Rocky Point, Pei Tai Ho.

Dear Family-

We have been here nearly three weeks. This last week we had the edge and part of the middle of a typhoon. It began Sunday with a cloudy day- and a heavy rain in the evening. We all slept(?) outside but way round on the protected end of the porch. How the lienzas did rattle! How the surf roared and the wind howled! How the rain did beat in on to me altho I was fifteen feet from the edge and barricaded with chairs covered with a large oilskin! Soon after daylight we moved in beds and bedding while the storm raged all day and a second night. It was Thursday before we slept out again and that night it rained a little. Today is a clear and drying day for the first time, altho we have had considerable sunshine off and on.

Flora probably wrote of the tea for Miss Clarke of Foochow to which we went a week ago Friday. Miss Clarke called on us on Wednesday and we had a fine visit. I was just getting ready for my afternoon glass of milk so got out cookies and served tea to all hands. On Friday Mrs. Cannon had a cup of tea with us.

I am feeling a whole lot more like myself and am even venturing to eat a few things like ordinary folk now. Flora dictates (no suggests) and I partake. Generally it is all right and if not I steer clear of the article next time.

Wednesday A.M. Our clear sky was short lived. It seems to rain these days without any effort at all. The clouds just hang over head all the time and periodically open and let the water descend. It is our first real experience of a rainy season because two years ago we had exceptionally dry weather in the south and last year almost no rain here in the north. We dodge showers in going to and from meals.

We have had fun playing "Rook" one or two evenings. I have discovered ways of playing solitaire with my Rook cards and have done it a few times.

Last Sunday evening we had Mr. and Mrs. Corbett-Smith for supper. She was Miss May Corbett, sister of Mr. Clark Corbett and taught music at the American Board Academy for five years before her marriage. She was official interpreter for the legation and went with parties into the palace to the court on an average of twice a week during those five years. She told us of some of her experiences and it was fascinating.

She was after the days of the "Old Buddah" and the baby Emperor was only two years old. On her first visit she said he sat in Royal regalia almost lost in the huge throne chair. But he was not afraid and watched with interest all these foreign ladies as they passed before him and bowed deeply. They were entertained by the Empress Dowager and the Princesses and had a feast spread for them. The six Princesses ate with them but the Empress excused herself. Mrs. Smith said that sometimes the questions she was asked to translate and the remarks were so rude that she was put to it to know what to say. Once she got some exceptionally rude people and could not repeat anything they said so she said she took them for a trip through the Mediterranean stopping at various places in Greece and Italy and the court ladies enjoyed it immensely. Another time she took a party of sixteen in and had a stupendous task to translate and play the part of sixteen separate individuals. When they went from the legations, official chairs were sent out for them. Closed ones would meet them and take them to the palace gates. There a guard was stationed and also open chairs because now they were away from the gaze of the public. At the door of the palace the Princesses met them and conducted them to the audience room where would be the Empress and Emperor ready to receive them. The Republic was established before Miss Corbett was married and Mrs. Calhoun, wife of the American Minister was leaving for home. She wanted to make a goodbye call on the Empress Dowager, so Miss Corbett sent to one of the Princesses and asked for an audience. She said it was most touching to see the gratitude of the Empress because Mrs. Calhoun considered it worth while to call on her in her fallen state.

Yesterday morning I was wakened about six by the jolting of a heavy cart. The jolting waned and instead I heard frequent snaps of a long-lashed whip. Finally I sat up and saw a cart loaded with stone stuck in the ditch just below our house. The driver was whipping the horses unmercifully. I couldn't stand it so I got into kimono and slippers and went to the steps. I shouted in Chinese "Stop! They can not do it. Put some things outside." (I do not know the word for stones.) They caught my meaning and took out several stones. Still the horses couldn't move the cart and the thrashing recommenced. That time I went down the steps and started toward them and shouted, "Stop that" in English. It was magical. The driver threw his whip away and began piling out stone in a hurry. That time they got away.

Miss Payne amused [or consoled?] me by saying that they probably thought I was reviling[?] them when I talked English at them so fast. When they talk rapidly under like conditions they would say things but not indistinct.

Last week we received letters from Mother and from Mrs. Corbett telling of Mrs. Corbett's visit. I am so very glad that she visited you and that you liked her so well. I knew you would like her because she is such a very fine young woman. She is a fair sample of the friends we have at Tungchow so you see we have friends worth while. Mrs. Corbett wrote so sweetly of you all and how bravely and nobly you are all during these hard days when Ruth's place is so terribly empty.

Willard has sent us Gould's letter telling of his plans, to help Father till the crops are safe then to enlist somewhere from the aviation core down. I can not realize that he is old enough to really be off to the war but he is.

It is Thursday morning and a letter from Myra and Stanley has just come. I am so glad that Myra is so much better- and that they have so much cause for happiness. A post script told of the arrival of Rebecca Mary Haviland on June 20th. I fear my little cap did not arrive on time to welcome her because I mislaid it and so could not send it when I intended.

Are you people searching for a Christmas present for me? My poor old Bible which I had in college has a broken back and I have had to paste in several loose sheets. It is a revised version of 1881-1885- and I would rather like the same version again as I am used to it. It has seen hard wear because I have used it in school all the three years I have been here and it has been the only one I had.

I told Flora I was debating as to whether I preferred a Bible or a fashion magazine for Christmas. A queer choice, is it not? As I can borrow fashion magazines I decided on the Bible.

The sun is out again and I have gotten my books and other things out to "sky" them. They need it for there is a fine crop of mold in the books.

Lots of love to you all. I hope to hear that Uncle Daniels' heart and Aunt Ella's colds are better. Keep well please and may God bless you all.

Lovingly
Mary.

Kuliang, Foochow
July 22nd 1917

Dear Dorothy:-

We are having a Writing Bee this afternoon. Marjorie and Kathleen and Mama have all been writing. The girlies are still at it writing to Aunt Etta's children and Rachel Hodous.

We are having a wet season on Kuliang this year all right. Last week we had a typhoon and another is just getting thru now- we hope. Mama and the girlies had a beautiful Sabbath the first Sunday they were here. Since then every [day] has been rainy and windy. Mama has not yet been to church. The girlies and I have been two Sundays and I went today- alone for the weather was so bad – about 75 out. Mama is walking all over the mountain.

Last Wednesday we all went over to Dr. Walkers to the mission picnic and Mama walked both ways.

Did I write you that we all went over to the Bath last Monday and the girlies and I went in bathing? Marjorie can swim pretty well. If the typhoons let up and she gets a chance she should be a good swimmer by September.

We have two ladies in our extra room. Miss Ehly and Miss McClurg of the Meth. Mission. Mr. Leake had rented the house Mr. Mac used to own. The typhoon ten days ago blew off a lot of tiles and the water came in all over the house. Mr. Leake knew that those ladies wanted to rent half of their house. But he wanted a whole house so he could take in Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw Y.M.C.A. of Amoy. So the ladies came up to us and rented their whole house to Mr. Leake. We are very fortunate in having had our house newly roofed this spring. In only one corner of the room back of the amah's room has it leaked at all.

Mama and I have both promised to sing in the choir!!!

Your photos came all right and we thought the one of you especially was very good. Before this reaches you Mama's letter with the photos of the girlies will have been received by you.

These rainy days are good for rest. This is the third day I have done nothing but read, write and play flinch. It is interesting too [to] see the younger men taking hold of things on Kuliang. Mr. Belcher is a very efficient Sec'y of the Council, and people are placing confidence in him. He is a good business man also.

A year ago we were spending every minute to get ready to say good bye and put the world between the two halves of the family. God has been good to us all the year. Our plans may not all have been carried out just as we thought to carry them out but He has prepared good things for us all the way. Geraldine was with near relatives when she was ill and she is recovered. Mama's knee seems to be going to be all right. She has been and still is very careful of it and she does something new and natural with it every few days and we hardly notice a limp as she goes about the house. She does not yet kneel. It seems strange to her to be on the mountain with no amah, but it is one less servant to have around and thus far we have made our own beds. The girlies are to receive each two cents a week for making the beds.

I have been able to help so that no one's bank account has been diminished during the year- unless Phebe drew some. The mission has asked the Board to reckon exchange at 50 that is give enough salary so we can realize on our f?? salary of $500-gold $1000 silver. This last half year we have had to take our salary at -604 that means only $827 + [unreadable number]. If the 2 for 1 rate that we ask is granted we shall be all right.

You are right in the midst of haying now on the farm- how I should enjoy getting into that work for a month. One of the things that I had anticipated doing while at home last summer was to get into the hay field as one of the workers but weather, other business and every thing else seemed to conspire to keep me off the mowing machine, horse rake and hay wagon. I wonder if you girls are riding the horse rake-or do you find enough to do to feed the men,- and yourselves.

This is probably the Century Farm "horse rake" that Willard refers to. Unidentified man sitting on it.

There is no change in the political situation that I know of. Did I write that the last letters from Phebe and Geraldine brought their detailed accounts up to date. Thank them for these. They are very interesting to me as well as helpful to them.

Mr. Ding Ming Uong's mother passed away a week ago today. I have heard no particulars. She had her 76th birthday=75 years old-last fall. She has been comfortable all the time. She simply went to sleep. She has been one of the most- if not the most active of any of the pastor's wives in Christian work. She used to stand before large audience of men and women and preach as effectively as her husband, and in personal ministrations to the poor especially of the Christians she was always at work. In their early life they were very poor. She had twelve children. All of them except the youngest have been in Christian service. There are only three living. Min Nong, a daughter with eight bright children and the youngest son- a nice Christian boy with a wife and two little boys now in the employ of the Standard Oil Co. in Foochow. He and Ming Uong were with her.

Give all of our love to all in the home

Lovingly your Father

Kuliang Foochow, China

July 29th 1917

Dear Geraldine:-

The weather here reminds me of our last week in Putnam a year ago. Only we have had more rain here. In 8 days 15 inches fell. We have not had a pleasant day or an hour of steady sunshine in two weeks. Houses on the mountain are leaking badly and it is impossible to fix them while it rains. Our house is all right- one leak in one corner of one room.

Our boarders came back yesterday. I went to Foochow Thursday. Of course I got wet. I expected to. But a graduate of the College had set Thursday as his wedding day and he wanted me to marry him. He wrote me that 3 pm was the hour. I went to the house at that hour and after sitting a short time he said the bride had not arrived and it might be 5 pm before she got there- her home was just around the corner in the next block, two minutes away. So I went back home and worked and got together all the things that Mama and the girlies wanted and went again at 6 pm. But the hour was again put to 8 pm so I returned and got supper with Dr. and Mrs. Kinnear and went the third time at 8:30. This time the bride was there and the wedding came off. I sat thru the feast for sociability altho I did not eat much after having had supper with Dr. and Mrs. Kinnear.

It rained whole water from 9 to 11 pm. I got a rickshaw home- to the foot of the steps that lead up to the compound. As I stepped out of the ricksha a young man met me. Some four inches of water was flowing down over the steps the whole width of the street. I had on my new Karl Dektor shoes. But I had to wade. Friday morning I came back to the mountain. It did not rain across the plain but the last half of the way up the mountain it rained all the way. It was sad to ride for over an hour thru the rice fields and see the people in rain hats and rain clothes reaping the rice. They had to pull it out of water and carry it home to thresh it. I should say fully half of it was sprouted with sprouts over an inch long. This of course makes food- rice very dear and fruit very cheap for it is difficult to market it in rainy weather. Dikes and house walls have broken and fallen in several places.

I was much interested to see by the 'Sentinel' that came from the aunts in the north, this last week that the people over in Huntington had hopes of getting Mr. Kenneston to be their pastor. I hope it is true for I think he could help them. He knows them and they know him.

The rainy weather has not been very hard on us. People from out of port and young people here for the first time think it is pretty tough to be so confined for so long a time. But we have had a tight roof over us and it has been quiet. I have greatly appreciated the rest. Each day I have had an hour or more to help the girlies in Arithmetic and we have played flinch- at which the girlies are quite expert. And how we all have slept. Our breakfast hour is 9:30-10 a.m. and our go to bed hour 9 p.m. We all came up tired and we are getting nicely rested. This is fortunate for next week work begins.

This year I find myself President of the Fukien Education Association and chairman of the conference on Evangelism and with one of the addresses in the Kuliang Convention. These with the other work as member of the Kuliang Council will take some of the odd minutes after I finish each day with my Arith. pupils.

While in Foochow last Thursday I heard a small canon roaring away up on what we call temple hill, near the compound. On enquiring the cause I was told I Poh Tieng= they are shooting heaven. Why? To make heaven stop sending rain. But the heaven was not greatly scared. There was also another rumor that Sun Yat Sen was in Canton trying to get five of the Southern provinces to form a new Republic and that the Cantonese army was coming to fight Fukien. Poor China! If she can hold together against the senseless, selfish, enthusiasts inside her own borders she need fear nothing from outside.

We shall anticipate reading Phebe's account of the Y.W. Conference at Eaglesmere, and her visit in Mt. Vernon also Dorothy's account of her interesting trip from Oberlin to Shelton.

I received from President King a very interesting and sane letter urging the young men to continue their college studies in preparation for reconstruction work after the war ceases. I have thought along the same line. This letter is so sane and takes such a far look with the future as well as such a broad look for the interests of the world that I am sending it with this in case you have not seen it. The young men who go to war now are not the only patriots. Others who stand by their preparations and hold themselves ready to help build up the world when this storm of destruction stops will be doing their country as great a service.

It is still a great pleasure to think of you all at Century Farm and I ask God every day to make you each a helper in all ways. No one can fill Aunt Ruth's place, but you can help to keep fresh and ever present that spirit of loving service and good cheer which she always personified.

I am still asking to be with you all. How I should enjoy two weeks at the farm.

Mama's knee improves all the time- slowly. She cannot yet kneel,- walks all right.

May God be with you all to bless, keep, comfort guide and use you. Give our best love to Grandpa, Grandma and all the uncles and aunts

Lovingly- your father Willard L Beard

[Aug. 2, 1917]

Dear folks at home:-

These are rather uneventful weeks here in our quiet house by the sea. We go to bed early and get up late. The babies cry occasionally; we go to our meals and down to the store (Sun Mow's) for our breakfast "bus"; we do some reading, very little writing and make a few calls- then it's time to go back to bed again. It is having the desired effect on both of us, for Mary is again eating like the rest of us and is going into the water again. We are going to be a little more lively from now on because the whole place takes on a more social aspect. People are beginning to get rested and want to do something. I have been reading several books and have just started "The Love of Cathay" by Dr. W.A.P. Martin. We have often seen Dr. Martin in Peking, and it was only last winter that he died- nearly 90 years of age. He has not been at all active- mentally- since we have known him, but he has attended all meetings, social events, and graduations just as punctilious as in former times. One book I have enjoyed is Mrs. [Sarah] Conger's "Letters from Peking." From them we can see how greatly China has progressed since 1900- especially what rapid strides were made in the first three years after the siege [Boxer Rebellion]. Her glimpses of life within the "Forbidden City" supplements the books I have been reading- China Under the Empress Dowager and Court Life at Peking, both by [John] Bland and [Edmund] Backhouse- in a very interesting manner for one gets a very opposite side of the "Old Buddha", but read from Mrs. Conger's letters in the lights of the B. and B. chronicles one can see truths in between the lines. The character of the "Old Buddha" is well worth studying even if it does not inspire one with a deep love for the woman. She certainly will be reckoned among the great women of history.

Mr. Hodous of Foochow is spending the summer here in Peitaiho so we see him occasionally. He is studying Mandarin, but it is rumored that he is writing a book. He has told us a lot of Foochow news.

The excitement occasioned by Chang Hsun's coming to Peking seems to have died down in the city. We hear of disquiet farther away, but we hope it is just the natural dying out of his cause. The paper says that he is still in Peking but virtually a prisoner. Yesterday's paper says that the Vice President has finally accepted the invitation to come to Peking and be president. Some friends leaving Peking saw the trains bringing him and his retinue. Also I see in the papers that Parliament is to be reconvened, which is another score for democracy. If these men can go on now and finish drafting the constitution then these may be something to help keep affairs more stable. It is remarkable how we proceed on our ways exactly as though there were no unrest. No one seems to be disturbed except the people directly concerned. We were anxious for a week or two, but when we asked how our friends felt who were in Peking, it was their curiosity that had been aroused, not fear. One of our missionaries, who was supposed by his wife to be safe in Tungchou, was in Peking riding about on his bicycle seeing the sights. - even though the bullets were whizzing over his head. He would return every hour or two to the Amer. Bd. Compound to let them know of his safety and then be off again. The Chinese shot almost entirely into the air so the list of casualties was extremely short in comparison to the amount of ammunition used. Some one who saw Chang Hsun says that he seems quite broken so that it looks as if he might be willing to let affairs alone now. I think he ought to be dealt with in some manner so conclusive that there would be no possible chance of his interference again. For some reason he has had a tremendous influence in China since the Boxer uprising and every time he has moved Chinese authorities have been paralyzed. The outcome of this revolution should give the democratic parties courage to proceed in their plans and hopes.

A friend is just going in the direction of the P.O., so I will close for this time.

With love to all-

Flora Beard.

Dear Home Folk,

How these weeks are flying! It is five weeks today since we arrived here. I feel like a new woman- and am eating everything and lots of it, swimming, walking, playing tennis and omitting none of the summer stunts. It is a good thing that we got our rest in early in our stay because now there are so many folk around that we have but little quiet. Mrs. Grant and Delnoce have taken a room in the other end of the house, Mrs. Adams is here with Mrs. Cannon and her brother, Mr. Stiles is also with her. It keeps our porch horribly noisy and unrestful.

Aug. 15- Well our household still grows. Two friends of the Grants are here now. Mrs. Reeds, the owner of the home, yesterday told Mrs. G. and Mrs. A. that she wanted the house to be quiet every afternoon during nap time so that any who wanted could rest, also that it was hardly fair to have eleven people camped on our porch all the time. We are grateful and yesterday we were the quietest yet. The swimming has been most glorious this week. For two days it was very rough with glorious breakers against which we could hardly swim; then the last two days it was like swimming in a sea of glass. It was a grand chance to practice new strokes and I have at last gotten the so-called "scissor-stroke" with my legs and feet. Mr. Porter told me yesterday that I had it perfectly. On Saturday I went in twice, before breakfast and before lunch and swam out to the boat twice each time. Yesterday being Sunday I went only for my early dip and not for a good long soak and swim. We have great fun diving off the boat. I have found out a way of swimming all the way to shore. I flop onto my back and swim over the sandbar where the water is too shallow for either side or face swimming.

On Saturday a week ago we had the usual concert. It was good but not so fine as some of the others. This last Saturday was one of the finest yet. Several of the artists were new to me. A Miss Christiansen has a wonderfully fine soprano voice and we encored so vociferously that she gave us two encores. Mrs. Wilson came last and gave us a single encore. We begged for a second but she was obdurate.

Last week two large parties went off for a long trip to the mountains. The Porter party had what they term "a perfect trip". The other party brought one young lady home on a stretcher overcome with the sun and one of the men had a sprained ankle. One of the mountains had to be climbed by chain ladders at the top because the cliffs are so precipitous.

The tennis tournament is on and we went over and watched a wonderfully fine match one afternoon. It was between the two men who have each been champion here at different times. Some of the plays were very spectacular. Once the ball nearly hit the back line and bounced very high. Mr. Hubbard ran way out of the court and sent the ball back when his back was toward the net and he had to jump for it too.

We had a fine letter from Willard last night. They were having "rain" and had been having it for two weeks. We could sympathize for we had rain too awhile ago. Now we are having hot weather with an occasional thunder storm. The rain cools the air and makes us ready for the next hot spell. Last night we were so cool that we had to sleep under blankets. Did I write you that I bought a quilt just like a regular old fashioned kind, at the last "sale". It has been just the thing for cool nights.

The Mongolia parties are at last heard from. The second party got in all right, but were nine days making a three day's trip. The bandits were more afraid of them than they of the bandits and so fled when their coming was heralded. Both parties were safely back in Kalgan. The experiences would have been thrilling and I almost wish I had been there with them. There was a long article in the paper about some soldiers going up to rescue them from bandits. They saw the soldiers and directed them toward a fine bunch of antelope they saw the day before and that was as near to a rescue as they needed.

Little Alice Wickes arrived this last week. She was six pounds and is a beautiful baby, dark hair and skin and only a pretty pink not red. We called on her when 18 hours old and I saw her again when three days. Their nurse had to leave when the baby was only two days old and they had a hard time getting another. Now they have a Chinese nurse.

Written in album: "Fanny and Alice, aged 2 months"

[Fanny and baby Alice Wickes, about October 1917. Photo from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Dr. Love had been ill but was out in time to care for Mrs. Wickes.

We are looking for a home or part of a home which we may rent for next season here in the hope that Willard and his family will be able to come north. We thought of taking the two rooms here where we are this year but have decided against it because the court for the servants is so very small. A Chinese family have let the other end and we are advised against having to mingle our servants so closely with theirs. As neighbors they would be most pleasant I am sure as we already know them.

Please extend my congratulations in the growing Space family. I suppose the twins are grown to where I would not know them.

I'm going to walk to East Cliff this afternoon with Jennie Payne and we start in about one hour so if I am to get any rest I must be at it. I also want this letter to be off tonight. We are so glad to get each and every one of your letters, Mother and Phebe send. They are such a comfort altho they always bring the tears to the days. Willard sent us a letter of Gould's written partly on May 6th and finished on the 13th. What a man with a man's understanding he is going to be.

Lots of love and may God bless and keep you all safe.

Mary.

Foochow, China Aug. 22nd. 1917

Dear Elisabeth:-

The last mail brought your letter of July 16th with its enclosures re my Life Insurance. This business I will send direct to Mr. Johnson. The nine dollars for this year I will let go and ask only that beginning with 1918 the dividend be paid in cash to Phebe K. About the mortgage, I am not anxious only when you decide what to do let me know. There is no reason why Phebe K. could not do all my business at home now, or if Gould goes back to school he could do it. If he goes to Europe it would not be well to trust such things to him.

The one hundred dollars I would like put in the Putnam National Bank to my account there (First National Bank of Putnam). I have done this way with money from the states this last year. It is easier for me to do this and use other money for the work here. Then there is no loss or bother from exchange. From your letter I judge there is no stipulation as to what work I am to use it in.

This came to me as a complete surprise. I have not thought of this side of Ruth's home going at all. Every letter that comes from home has some new item of interest regarding Ruth. Stanley's remark that she thought of too many things before going to the Hospital, is very true.

I have written Gould every week this summer since we heard that he had any thoughts of going to the war. I have not told him not to go, but prefer that he should go on with his studies. If he gives up his study now it is very doubtful if he ever takes it up again. The country will need men in all branches of commercial, scientific and educational life to help reconstruct the world when this war is over. If all the young men in the schools now leave and go to the war the country will simply have no men fitted for these large and essential tasks. England is already experiencing the loss of arms. These young men are no more. In any call such as has gone out in the U.S. for volunteers there is sure to be a great rush at first. Sentiment runs high and a man feels as if he were mean, selfish, cowardly not to be the first volunteer. But the more level heads think into the future and they see something in patriotism beside loading a gun and shooting another man. The young men who in the present confusion keeps his head and thinks the problems through will see that there is no dearth of men offering for the war. He will see also that in the near future there will be great need for men in all lines of constructive activity. If there were now an urgent need for men to fill up the ranks of fighters I should feel very differently about Gould's enlisting. But after all is said I do not want to say to him the parental "must." He must decide the question for himself. I can only help him by suggestions.

I did not intend to give such a dissertation on the advisability of a young man's going to the war. But here it is for you to read and criticize- if you want to.

The summer is fast drawing to a close and we are counting the days till we leave the mountain and go back to Foochow. We have had a pleasant summer - with two weeks of rain at the first but since then we have had fine weather. We have been rather quiet, not a day off anywhere yet. One picnic for Kathleen's birthday. But the being absent from the mountain last year and other circumstances have put me into the chair for practically all the conferences, conventions and public meetings. I tell people that I will never be absent from Kuliang for a summer. Tennis has been more interesting than ever. There are more good players here this summer and the games have been very even. We never had more interesting conferences on Evangelism and Education.

The girlies are into all the life of the foreign children. They have their D.T.P. i.e. Doll's Tea Party, that takes more planning than a big folks dinner. They are both learning to swim. Marjorie is leaving the water wings and going alone. They come home from the tank with eyes aglow at the big dives they make. When I ask particularly as the special kind of a dive it resembles a jump feet first or a tumble on the stomach but they are really learning to swim.

We have Miss Ehly and Miss McClurg with us still. They are good company and help to keep things lively. They like flinch and the girlies count it a great treat when the young ladies and papa and mama will give them an evening with the game.

Mr. Christian writes that they are starting from San Francisco Aug. 21, yesterday, to arrive in Shanghai Sept. 14. This will bring them to Foochow just about the time of opening of school. They are to bring with them Mr. and Mrs. Leger for our mission.

Did I write that Mr. Hodous is staying in North China for study of China's religion? He will likely go to the U.S. in October. Mrs. Hodous and the children will likely be in Oberlin this fall. Hodous had a call to leave the mission and join the faculty of Hartford Seminary. I do not think he will change.

As far as we know here the political situation does not greatly affect Foochow. General Li of Foochow has sent 3 or 4 thousand soldiers to meet soldiers said to be coming from Canton. There are said to be spies from Canton in Foochow who are trying to work up sedition here. I was in Foochow last Saturday. I was told that two of these spies were shot Thursday night.

I suppose before this reaches you the children will all be gone. At the farm the family will be Father, Mother, Phebe M. and You. I hope Father will be able to find help for the work.

A letter from Mr. Frank Brewer in the last mail says that he has resigned from Talladega and will now take a church. He says that while they were in the south they heard little of the war - - there was very little interest in it there. But as soon as they got north the war was in everything. Here it is never absent. It stays in ones subconscious. May God guide and so guide that this may be the last war and so that nations may learn the Golden Rule.

With lots of love to all
Will.

Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

[Aug. 26, 1917]

Dear folks at home:-

It is just a week too late for me to be writing this letter but since Mary's and my letters for these two weeks will be about totally different experiences I am going to make up for my apparent neglect by writing just the same.

Two weeks ago we had a series of remarkable lectures by a remarkable authority on Mohamedanism. I was quite ignorant on the subject so his words found virgin soil in me. Probably you have heard of him- Dr. Zwemer, who is in the theological school at Cairo, Egypt. He is the author of the most important books about Mohamedanism. One remark of his has a big source of comfort in it in relation to the present war. He says that this war has opened doors into countries that have been locked to all outside religions and that the Mohammedans realize that the bottom has dropped out of their faith and growth. He also exploded that common statement that there were no Christian converts among the Mohammedans. His lectures covered three mornings and he gave besides a good sermon on Sunday and led the weekly prayer-meeting. I did not go to all of his meetings but know that I missed illuminating talks.

Mary and I tried to get some of our calls made up and we looked some at houses for next summer besides having company during that last week so our days were full- and perspiry, for the weather was hot, hotter, hottest!!! Chinese weather is some what more dependable than our New England kind. It gets steadily hot or cold, to a certain limit and then changes as decidedly as one turns at a corner. The corner came one day the week following and now though the days still warm up the nights are comfortable cool and then will be no more stuffy nights this season.

On Monday Mary started off for her trip up Shan hai kwan and I began to pack for Tungchou.

Mrs. Young (whose husband is the Dean of the Rockafeller Medical School in Peking) wanted me to spend a few days with her so I did not have to sleep alone at our room. I spent Tuesday with her and her children and then on Wednesday got packed up for home and took the night train to Tientsin, where I spent two days in shopping. I bought the material for a new silk suit and I will enclose a sample. It is Chinese taffeta and will wear until I get tired of it. I made my last blue silk Chinese taffeta skirt into bloomers to wear on horseback up into Mongolia. They came in quite handy for the donkey riding at Peitaiho. The silk is still as good as new- after eight years of constant wear. I am having a dainty little Japanese woman, in Tientsin, make it. She was born and brought up in Helena, Montana and learned her trade there. She is more than busy and she said she has never advertised. I think I am to have one of the handsomest suits I have ever had. I hope it won't be too much out of style to wear home two years from now. I am also having made an evening dress using the handsome lace waist that I had, to be combined with some light silk. I had the tailor make over my black Japanese silk muslin so that I can wear it with it's black silk slip or a colored one. My wardrobe was at so low an ebb that I have had to stay at home from several functions just because I had nothing to wear. I have had very little new since I left home, and do not intend to spend much more until we start for home in two years.

In Tientsin I met Carl Rehnberg and had tiffin with him and his wife at his home, the next day. He called for me at my hotel and we had a pretty ride out to a newer section of the city where he lives. He wife as a New York girl of the type I do not often meet. She is used to smoking with her husband and the boy passed the cigarettes to me with the ease of an accustomed duty. They have a very pretty home with several fine curios in it although they have been married only since last April. They have stayed in town all summer and the heat has told on Mrs. Rehnberg.

On my ride up to Peking from Tientsin I shared a couple with Dr. Chin. Perhaps you have heard of her, since she has been lecturing in and about New York and several of the papers have been "writing her up." The government of U.S. has sent her back to China to make a study of the "soy bean." We spent some time talking about it and its possibilities, and if I could only have remembered her recipes we might be making some experiments here. It is the commonest bean raised here- and there are many varieties used in China. I would like to send some seed home for you to try if Father would care to experiment. We have one tiny bean which is used to make bean sprouts. These sprouts are very tasty and nourishing. We eat them cooked and in salads and the children are very fond of them. The soy bean can be used for milk, cheese, and curd which is the foundation for a lot of the Chinese dishes. I have eaten it mixed with tomatoes and corn baked. A bit of history of Dr. Chin may interest you as Dr. Arthur H. Smith told me. She was taken to America when a very small girl and was educated by a lady in Madison, N.J. (whom she told me was 91 years old while she was in America this time). While there she became thoroughly American and wore the foreign dress. She returned to China and married a Portuguese from who she was divorced and took again her Chinese name. She was for a time at the head of a government training hospital for women in Tientsin but it was closed and she was dismissed a little over two years ago. We met her on the steamer when we went to Shanghai in on our way to see Will that summer. She was on her way to America. She knows very little about her own country and is thoroughly American in her interests though she poses as a Chinese woman from China. She can talk most glibly and has a very "catchy" vocabulary, but some way there is something about her that does not quite ring true.

I am sitting here in the front hall of the school building where I have a fine breeze which dispels the heat of this warm day. The building is perfectly quiet as I am its only occupant. I spend my nights with Dr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Smith. We three are the only foreigners in the compound. This rainy summer has produced a huge second crop of hay in the compound, which is so tall that only the shoulders and heads of passers by can be seen. Unfortunately the floods drowned out our corn field so we shall have little or none of all that we planned. I have saved back seed enough for another year, when we will try again in another place. We are going to have quantities of tomatoes which I am going to have the cook begin to-morrow doing up into catchup and canned tomatoes. He has done up over a hundred quarts of summer fruits and I shall not allow anything to be wasted this fall. We shall have to live "off the land" more than ever now that the U.S. cannot help us out.

In two weeks we shall be open again and evidently we shall have as many pupils as last year even though the war has taken home two families unexpectedly. It is queer that the applicants seem to be mostly girls. Affairs have been so upset here in the vicinity of Peking that people have hesitated to send their children where there may possibly be trouble. With love to all-

Flora Beard.

[Pei Tai Ho, China]
Sept 2. [1917]

Dear Ones at Home,

I am trying to write and keep balky clock going at the same time. The clock I fear is losing time in the process as it is too much trouble to lay down my pen the instant it stops.

The last letter I received from you was the one from Mother that Flora left here when she went away a week ago last Wednesday. She may have one awaiting my return.

Last week Monday six of us ladies started for a trip to Shan Hai Kwan [Northeast of Pei Tai Ho. Mary spelled it also as Shanhaigwan in her photo album.]. It was a covering morning but we started just the same and it cleared fairly well before we arrived. We stayed four days so had a chance to take some trips. The day we arrived we explored the peaks near the temple where we were staying. In a "tinger" (summer home) near the wall we found a couple who had spent their honeymoon there several years ago and were back for the sake of "Auld Lang Syne". The night's were all stormy; the first one some of us slept on the porches and did not get very wet; the second time three of us were determined to sleep under the old pine tree but about one in the morning we moved in to get dry; the third night we did not even try but all stayed inside.

The days were more clear and on Tuesday we descended into the deep valley behind us. The climb was steep so we slid down and crawled back on all fours. The valley is glorious with it's river flowing over a very rocky bed. In places it spreads out over a broad area covered with small rocks and stones and again it flows through a narrower gorge and forms deep clear pools. In one such pool we went for a swim. The water was perfectly clear, cool and most refreshing after two or more hours of climbing and tramping. Our lunch was eaten under a cliff so perpendicular that it "strutted" and we sat on square flat stones that had fallen from above at some previous date.

One could not help wondering what would happen if one should try to fall when we were by! But it was wonderful to be on one's back and look up, up a sheet rock for about five hundred feet.

On Wednesday we started to explore and found a path which took us along the Great Wall into a valley and up a steep mountain side to a "look-out". It was raining hard by spells so we could not [take] any cameras for pictures. I do wish I had snap shots of us as we climbed up like quadrupeds over the rocks. Where the rocks were two sheer steps were chiseled out- and we pulled ourselves up by clinging to the wall at the side. One spot made me hesitate about going on for a time. It was solid rock at an angle of about 45 degrees from the perpendicular. A six inch path was chiseled out for us to cross on. My, but I am glad I went on for the views were worth it. From the tower we looked to the south across the plain where we saw the Great Wall zigzagging out to the ocean and to the east we overlooked a series of peaks each a little lower than ourselves and tapering to nice hillsides. On the north was a steep descent into the valley where we had been the day before and beyond four or five ranges of mountains. To the west was the valley we had ascended from and the mountain peak around which was the temple where we were staying. Way off to the south west was a curve in the short line and we knew that "East Cliff" lay out near the point. We were so glad that the clouds lifted and showed us all these beauties during the few minutes we stood on the "lookout" and tried to imagine the use the Chinese made of it way back some thousand or so years ago. I wonder why it was thought necessary to build a wall up that steep mountain side at all for without the made steps it is quite impassable.

We came home on Thursday and I found that Mrs. Reed had seen Flora off all safely the night before. On Friday morning I got our "boy" off to meet Flora in Tientsin that evening. It was a very rainy day but I had a glorious sea bath bathing with the waves. In the afternoon I went to tea at Mrs. Mathers, a Holyoke girl about eight years before me.

As the gay crowd was still inhabiting our porch I accepted Mrs. Young's invitation to sleep at her home for Thursday and Friday nights. On Saturday Mrs. Wickes asked me to come to her for the week. Her husband had had to go to the "Western Hills" near Peking for a conference and she was lonesome alone. Little Alice Wickes was not quite three weeks old so she was also a little nervous. I was there just a week and did enjoy it although it was a very quiet time. Little Alice is a treasure, pretty as a picture and very good.

On Thursday morning I went with a party of ladies for a breakfast picnic to the Sand Dunes. It was a fine day to go because the sun was not very bright. We went in bathing suits and it was well we did for in one place we waded nearly up to our armpits. If our snapshots which I took are good I will send you some so that you may see what a "kid" I am when I get a good chance.

I expect to return to Peking this Tuesday so as to be organized while Flora spends Thursday and Friday in Tientsin. Last night I returned, bag and baggage, to my old room here at Mrs. Reed's because Mr. Wickes came back. I am going to take two meals a day up there but get my own breakfast.

The London Mission Lady, Mrs. Howard-Smith, who had been our neighbor at Tungchow last year, is lying fatally ill here. She has uremia and meningitis both and neither disease will respond at all to treatment. There have been three doctors and four nurses on the care. For over a week she has been unconscious even though her temperature has been as low at 99 degrees. Generally it has been above 105 and even 107.

Mother's last letter was very newsy. I am so glad that Mr. Kenneston has accepted the Huntington call. It ought to be good for him and for the church both and he already knows some of the people.

I wish we had some of your fine cherries. The ones we get here are natural fruit and very small and sour. They are good when canned but not out of hand. We each had three "White Orchard" cherries from Mr. Corbett's tree this spring. A feast? Yes, out here.

I look to hear that Uncle Daniel [Nichols] is better. Please give my best love to him and Aunt Ella. I always mean to write but it is such a lark to get all my correspondence done.

I hope that Mr. Palmer's fall proved no more serious than you thought before.

I will write Abbie soon a word of sympathy. I am glad to know that Mrs. Hubble can stay in her own home and not have to move off somewhere.

I wonder where Gould will be when this reaches you. His plans for being off for service our country were quite sure. Will Monnie go too? When did the girls return to Shelton and is Geraldine quite recovered? Gould's letters to his father have been so appreciative of you all and your bravery. I feel that he must have been a comfort to you as well as you to him. How is Elizabeth? I do hope she continues well, with no setbacks.

May God be good to you and keep you well and give you comfort is my daily prayer.

Lots of love

Mary.

Sept. 2, 1917

My dear Phebe:

I was not a little surprised to have a letter from you follow me all the way out to Japan. It was a huge treat and I consumed it with real greed!

What a time you must have had at the Conference! My dear girl, did you know that Mrs. Eddy, the mother to Sherwood and Brewer, is one of my earliest foster mothers? She has taught me everything from Arithmetic to Geography, and she did her best to make an honest girl of me! I am so sorry I didn't tell you about her when I was in Oberlin. She was the one who held me up in New York and shortened my Oberlin visit that way! But I never dreamed that she was going as far away as Eaglesmere to lecture on Missions! She is surely the eighth wonder of the world. I am positive that she discovered, and took a good draught of the Fountain of Youth sometime in her life time.

I surely do appreciate your efforts to write me a letter in the inspiring atmosphere of a depot! I am so sorry if you didn't get the card I mailed you before leaving U.S., and have had any anxiety about the letters you returned. They reached me quite safe and sound.

Your accounts of the conference and the personalities you met there are great. You dwell on the greatest thing created- PERSON, and they surely form the most vital of all our experiences. I am so glad you have come in touch with such a wealth in that line.

I am interested to know what it is that impressed you to say India was the most needy field? It is meaning so much to me to come in touch with these countries, - even in this superficial way. In some ways we would have done better to have come at some other period than vacations time, for we might then have seen more of the work, but as it was we have had a great time in the missionary resort of Karuizawa, and seen many old friends as well as many new ones.

The Armenian Delegation arrived while we were there, and we had a few glimpses of the Comptons and Walter James.

Besides that we climbed Mt. Asama, the active volcano near there, and had some other delightful mountain climbs.

I have been hugely interested in visiting Japanese hotels and village streets. It ought to make quite an interesting point of comparison with China and India in the bargain.

I want to mail this at Shanghai, which we are nearing very rapidly.

Will you give the enclosed note to Mrs. Garland, for me? Thanks. Much much love.

Always your loving Pauline- P.S. Give my love to Eva, and tell her I can imagine how she made things home at the Conference.

....do so, and I hope Gould will also read it. I will quote only one sentence. "The fact that you are not in the first call raises a presumption that you are needed in the reserve for a future call; but if you are eager- go! It is better to be in the service with a satisfied ambition than at home with a restless ambition." I am not at all anxious over what Gould has decided to do. He will under God's direction do right. But it is natural to want to know where he is, and what he is doing.

It was just one year ago that we arrived in Foochow. How many changes have taken place in our world since then! I do not see how a person with no faith in God and His overruling care can look into the future with confidence. To my mind God is preparing the world for the greatest advance in all lines that man has every made. Never in the history of the world was man doing so much for man as this year,- never was man doing so much to put down unrighteousness and exalt righteousness as now,- even in the face of- yet it is because of man's madness. Think of the Red Cross- the voluntary work of the Y.M.C.A. and the voluntary gifts of money and time and commodities to help suffering men and think of the efforts put forth in Christian countries and in the war zone for tempted young men. Add to this the fact that gifts of men and money for missions do not abate. Never were so many people planning and working and praying for good to conquer evil, for the world to become better.

Have I written that President King's Baccalaureate sermon reached me two weeks ago? Two people have already borrowed it to read- one of them a brother of Mr. J.H. Oldham Editor of the International Review of Missions. It is a most thoughtful and helpful discourse in the world crisis, and it gives hope. I must drop a line to President King to let him know how much it [is] appreciated here. If you have a natural opportunity you may express to him the help it has been to me and us. I must also drop a line to Mr. Vander Pye. I am honored to have him remember me.

God give you all wisdom to plan and execute in His wisdom, - may he keep you healthy in body, mind and spirit.

Very lovingly your Father

Dear Phebe [daughter],-

I am sending Gould's letter to you. Please forward it if he is not in Oberlin. We are prepared to hear that he is in Long Island or some other place in an aviation camp and if he is sure God wants him there it is all right.

I am greatly pleased at your attitudes toward his going or not going to the war and I have not felt anxious about it at all. Mama had felt rather strongly that she did not want him to go at all – and when your letter came last night it looked as if he had practically decided to join the aviation corps. She said “Well that is not as bad as the U-boats.”

Please let me know how you are off for money. I do not get any reply from Geraldine or Dot as to their being able to live on the allowance from the Board. I should like to know how they stood Sept. 1916- Sept. 1917.

I am enclosing $10- for Geraldines birthday present.- I sent $2.00 last week.

All are well and send love

[This letter, dated Sept. 30, 1917, was written from Tungchou, China by Flora to the folks at home. They have received the expected piano and are very happy to have it. North China has been having terrible flooding. Mrs. Corbett returned to China with many things from the U.S. including the school's new silver ware. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

[Sept. 30, 1917]

Dear folks at home:-

We have been in session at the school now for two weeks. They have been more than busy ones but the “busy-ness” has been of such a hopeful type that it has not been too fatiguing. With our tinted walls we seem to have partaken of more homey ways, and the children do really appreciate the change. Yesterday we were quite excited over the arrival of our new “Mason and Hamelin” piano. It is a beautiful one both in case and tone. It was rather a sorry sight as we unpacked it for the under front board was loose, the keys were every which way and the upper front board was askew. There were only about six notes that could be struck. We were about to send for a man from the Tientsin music store to fix it, when I met Mr. Porter and Mr. Corbett. In about ten minutes they had it all in proper shape and there are only two notes that show even a bit of strain from the long journey. They are almost unnoticable. The case has very few scratches, so we are very happy to have such a fine piano in our school. We have opened another room for a class room, which is making some more work for us. There has seemed to be innumerable ways for the spending of money this fall, but we had to expand (or bust!) and since we had over seventeen hundred dollars left from last year's household account we have had the permission to spend some money for needful alterations.- School has opened so much more happily than last year and the experiences we went through with them will be good capital for preventions this year. We have a younger group of children here and an adorable set. Our new pupils are mostly 8th graders.

We are having and hearing about the terrible floods all over North China. In the summer the railroad running from Peking to Hankow was so badly washed away that it is taking four months to mend it. There are miles of space where there is no suggestion of ever having been a railroad. Tientsin is surrounded by a huge sea and part of the railroad trip up from the South has to be taken by boat over the flooded tracks. The Grand Canal burst its banks and so badly flooded that hundreds of villages are completely submerged. Some of the Tientsin homes have their drawing-rooms under water, and the American Board Compound has needed a boat to get around in, ever since the 20th of August. All this means misery to thousands of people especially with winter coming on. Some of the villages have lost everything and have nothing to eat but the fish they can catch in the floods. If one stops to contemplate on the misery in the world just now, one gets swamped, and gets to feeling mean if one has a bit of enjoyment. It seems almost wrong to be having all the things that seem to be coming our way this year, but so far we have done nothing that was not necessary. – Miss Bostwick arrived two weeks ago, and it is a joy to have some one who has the time and the knowledge for taking care of the business end of the school. She knows lots of the people here (she spent three years, 20 yrs. ago in Tientsin) and has some knowledge of the language. She went to church to-day and was able to understand quite a bit of what the preacher said in Chinese.- To-day the darning cotton, stockings, bedspread, and thread arrived in perfect condition. I am looking for the pencils, erasers, etc. which I ordered last July and asked you to pay the bill. I would like you to deduct the amount from my money at home and I will credit it to my account here. I think I will send some more money home since exchange is so bad the other way. A dollar gold brings only about $1.17 silver. This is pretty tough on most people here because the cost of living out here is constantly rising too. The Chinese feel the strain of the higher cost of living, too. I am enclosing a list of materials which the school needs for starting the Household Science department. If you find some one who wants to pay for the permanent materials, the school will be glad to say “Thank you”, but send the bill if no one turns up.- The silver came with Mrs. Corbett and was on exhibit for our callers the day we introduced Miss Bostwick to the people of our compound. It was much admired, and helps a lot to help make us feel that we are here permanently as a school. (You sent no bill, so is this a part of the gift?) Mrs. Corbett brought Ruth's beads and shawl. The beads are too short to be becoming to Mary. I think there should be at least six added to it. I do not suppose you can remember the size so as to match them and send out a half dozen? I have not mentioned such a thing to Mary, so if you should be able to get them it would be a surprise to her, and I will be glad to pay for it. - I am in need of some black stockings and do not remember having asked you to send me some. If I have don't mind this. I like those having half white feet and the size is No. 10. I used to get good stockings three pairs for a dollar (I'd like 6 pair). That may help you to know what to pay for them now- accordingly.

The paper just came from Will telling of the death of Mr. J.W. Peck. Is it possible that he was only 66 years old? He has been an old man for a long time.-I was also much interested in the accounts of the trolley accident that killed Grace Wanning Day.- What a wonderful escape Gould and Maruice had! I should think it would make them sure that their lives were saved for something worth while, in the future.

Yours with love-

Flora Beard.

Foochow China
Sept 30 1917

Dear Folks at Home:-

I do not dare to look at my correspondence register to see when last I wrote you. I am a little comforted by the thought that the children were with you during the summer and you in that way hear directly from us nearly every week. I know however that this was not exactly like a letter all your own. I have come to the conclusion that there is always enough to fill the time of every man who is willing to work. At least I find this true in my case.

We have been well all summer. Ellen was limping badly when she went to Kuliang, but she is nearly all right now. The girlies are growing all the time and are quite well. Marjorie tends to grow fat. Kathleen keeps about the same but grows tall. She says "My old stomach won't let me get fat." The clock struck ten some ago so I must say good night and finish this later.

Tuesday Oct 2.

Yesterday was the day of the celebration of the Autumn festival- Sunday was the real day but as we are a Christian School we celebrated Monday. It was also the birthday of Governor- general Li's mother. So we had a good lively time all day. The College had prepared a fine silk banner- much like the large purple one I brought home in 1910, only it was a very bright red. $11.00 it cost and the paraphernalia to present it will cost some $4.00 more. We were going to start at 8:30 to take it over. 1st was to go the College Band, then the faculty. Then the students- ahead of all were two coolies carrying the banner, candles etc. We telephoned that we would come at 9:30 a.m. Within five minutes came a hurry up telephone message that the General would not be ready to receive us at 9:30- we must not come until 11:00 a.m. as they could not get ready before that hour. So we went at 11:00 and were received in proper style by the General himself with his blandest smile and warmest hand shake and also by the General's mother also- all dressed in her best and looking proud of her son. She is a little bit of a woman, while he is a great big man. You would have been interested to watch us as we performed. Being a foreigner we shook hands with the General and bowed three times to him, then bowed three times to his mother then three times to his family. I then spoke a few words of congratulation to him, referring to the very friendly relations that existed between the College and himself. You remember he gave us $100 for athletics last year. Then I stepped aside and the faculty bowed three times to him and three times to his mother. Then came the students they lined up about sixty at a time and bowed three times,- the College Board and General Li's Board dispensed music alternately. Then the Faculty was asked to sit in a reception room a few minutes. Then we were invited to see the Theater- the best troop in China-from Peking. We foreigners watched it for a time and retired. The Chinese members of the faculty were invited to remain for dinner. This faculty from a Christian school were given the seats of honor in a hall crowded with the best of Foochow's political, educational and social life.

In the evening ten of us from our city compound attended the dinner which General Li gave in honor of his mother. Some 100 foreign guests- Consuls, Customs and P.O. officials, and missionaries, and about 1500 Chinese guests were present. Then we had to attend the theater again. We went in great style- taking horse carriages,- the costs of which amounted to .325 cents each.

Two things about the whole affair interested me. 1st to see the great change that has come over customs in Foochow during the past ten years. Then years ago the ushers and attendants would not have known anything about receiving foreigners- I doubt if more than some of the Consuls would have been interested,- perhaps not even then. Last evening the ushers were six young Chinese- five young men and one young woman,- four of these- 3 men 1 woman were Christians and leading Christians. Mr. Ding Ming Uong was one.- Mr. Cio Lik Daik Y.M.C.A. was another. And these young people were asked to help care for- not only the foreign guests but the Chinese guests also. It is an honor to Foochow College that Prof. Ding Ming Uong should be invited by the highest official in the province to assist him in entertaining his guests at such a time. I hope he did not find him so efficient that he will want to get him away from us.

The weather has been very hot all of Sept. It just turned a little cooler last evening. I wore a Prince Albert coat in the morning and was wet thru when I got home. But in my evening dress last evening I was just comfortable.

We are still waiting to hear what Gould decided to do- so we are in the dark as to whether he is up in the air or in some college. I am not anxious. If he is sure that he is in the right place for him to be in- where God wants him it is all right. But I could not from this distance write him arbitrarily what to do. Such decisions must be made by him. We can tell him our wishes and shed light on his problems but the real decision, he must make himself.

Oct. 10th= China's Day of Independence. But it is a day of disappointment for many all over China- you doubtless know more of it than even we do here. You may remember that last year the boys had a big lantern procession. Well they have made large preparations and had big expectations for a larger parade this evening. The lanterns are all ready and calculated to call forth praise.

Yesterday at 3 p.m. one of the officials telephoned to ask if we were coming to his yamen as he wished to prepare to receive us. At 4 p.m. came an urgent letter from the Police Commissioner stating that a telegram from Peking told them there was trouble there and we must not have the procession. This morning a policeman came in to say we must not go tonight. This was because last evening several schools paraded in spite of the request not to- So there are 250 very disappointed boys here. Until 3 p.m. all the officials were planning a big celebration. But last evening all was more quiet than usual even somber.

The papers say that another attempt is being made to restore the monarchy. We must expect these attempts for years. It may be that the attempt will succeed for a time. The world has been making immense strides toward democracy during the past few years,- too great strides for permanency- in my opinion. But it is not reasonable to believe that China can exist for long as a monarchy.

The mails here have been very dilatory lately- nothing from the U.S. since Sept. 18, so we do not yet know where Gould is. We think of the girls as in Oberlin.

I hope to hear good news from you all soon, and that Dr. Shelton has paid over the $10.00 he offered to the parents of the next Beard baby.

Very Lovingly

Will

I enclose $2.00 = $14.00 in all thus far toward the $19 for your birthday

Foochow, China
Sept. 30th 1917

Dear Geraldine:-

The mails are again very slow. They have brought us nothing since Sept. 18th from home. Last week I wrote in Dorothy's name enclosing two $5.00 bills for Geraldine's birthday. I hope you will write me as soon as you receive them. That letter I registered on Sept. 9th. I sent $2.00 in the letter addressed to Phebe.

I do not know whether it is the fault of the mails or what but we are having trouble with the answers to letters. On July 23rd I wrote the Board asking them to give us Dr. Cooper's salary for a Chinese American doctor,- asking them to cable reply. I waited until yesterday and sent a cable. The reply came today "use Cooper's salary." I do not know whether they ever received the letter or not.

Exchange has gone up, up, up until $1.00 gold brings only $1.18 silver. Those last few days it has dropped a little.

The past week has been very ordinary. I went over South Side Thursday afternoon and took the girlies. They visited the Billing girls while I did a lot of business, - took Mr. Leger over and introduced him to the consul for one thing.

We have been planning all summer for a visit from Sherwood Eddy in Dec. and Jan. and one from Mr. Buchman in Oct. But this past week cables have come asking us to postpone Eddy's visit until next Spring and Buchman's until Nov. This is not at all disappointing for it has seemed to me that the Chinese were not quite ready for the work either of these men planned to do.

General Li's mother has a birthday tomorrow. Tomorrow is also the day we celebrate the Autumn festival. In the morning we plan to go over to give the venerable old lady a silk banner that is costing the College $11.00. I am trying to get the Chinese teachers to go but they are so afraid that their clothes will not be fit, that they do not want to go. Then in the afternoon some of us foreigners are invited to a feast at the home. So Mama and I have got to go. General Li is the highest official in the province. But I wish someone else would do this kind of work for me. I am glad to take care of the College, but I do not at all enjoy this fussing with officials.

You girls have been back in Oberlin for nearly a month we suppose. How we do want to hear where Gould is. And we want to hear how you are. It seems to me it ought to be most time to stop osteopathic treatments. We hope you are all right.

Have I written that I was gardner this year? Mr. Billing has moved over S. Side. I have already up and most ready to transplant tomatoes, beets, lettuce, turnips, radishes, cabbage, carrots and celery and chard are planted and I will plant peas soon.

News that comes to us of the greatest and most cruel war in history seems to point to a long time yet before the end. Someone remarked today that if Russia failed up the struggle would go on for five years. It is impossible for us here to realize the awfulness of the fight. The slaughter continues and more and more are drawn into it. We had a letter from our Dr. Cooper- a Quaker- from France where he is in charge of a hospital. He writes "We can hear the booming of the canon and see the flashes. At times it seems as if I must grab a rifle and rush to the front and help in the killing." But God is still the ruler of the world and He is only allowing men to suffer for their own folly, and when the folly is over there is sure to come a time of reconstruction during which the human race will make greater advance in all lines than it ever has before. Just now all of the knowledge of world- all the great achievements of scientific discovery- except in the line of medicine in surgery- are being used to destroy men and things. As soon as the war is over it will be a great big job for men of science and learning to turn these scientific discoveries into channels helpful to mankind.

May God help us all to think straight and to keep sane in this time of insanity, and may we each keep in such close touch with Him that we shall in each decision of life be guided by Him. Your loving father

Willard L. Beard

Flooding is becoming more serious and ruining crops so their watchman fires gun shots occasionally to ward off thieves. Flora hasn't been feeling well all summer but is fine now. Letters from home for all are slow. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]*

October 7 [1917]

Dear Ones at Home,

How the days do fly. We are already on the fourth week of school and it seems but yesterday that we started. Our piano is a great great joy. I tell Mrs. Corbett that there is something nearly every hour of the day to remind us of their good work for us when on furlough. She brought over vinegar cruets and pepper shakers yesterday to add to the collection.

This is a "company" week-end in the compound. At Mrs. Porter's tea yesterday there were seven guests. Two small boys who are down did not attend the tea. We had fifty two at church service this afternoon.

Mrs. Porter, who was an American Board missionary in Peking for many years, gave us a little talk. She spoke on "Little Foxes" or "Tall Goats who eat the roots of the Banyan Trees"- and held the attention of the children beautifully. She has been here all summer with her brother who is much older, not very well, rich and who travels extensively. She resigned to care for him. They are most generous givers as the Foochow people, Peking, TeChow, Tungchow and other stations can testify.

The floods are getting more serious instead of less. You probably have read the telegrams which Mr. McCann has been sending to Boston regarding TeChow. The water has risen so that there are about two feet of water in the homes of the foreigners. The women and children are in their way here in houseboats. The men are staying to help the natives. As the foreign compound was in the highest plot around, it means that the natives must be nearly all homeless.

Letters from the Nelsons in western Shensi speak of excessive rains still falling, so probably these floods are the result of that. The Yellow River has broken its bank and is seeking new channels. When I studied Geography and saw dotted lines to indicate the old route of the Yellow River, I little understood what it meant to have a river change its path.

In Tientsin many of the streets are flooded and are traversed in boats. Some of the people returned to PeiTaiHo as the drawing rooms had two feet of water in them. The A.B.C.F.M. compound is flooded but the homes are set so high that boats deliver the people to unflooded first floors as yet.

We expect a new twelve year old girl this week. Three other girls are registered but the railroads are still not so they can not get here without much difficulty.

This week Thursday Mrs. Fenn and William were down for a farewell, as they sailed from Tientsin this morning en route for Shanghai and thence to America. We do miss William for he is a fine boy and a good influence on the younger boys. Two years ago William and Ursula Miller each won in the tennis tournaments but we had never given them our school letters which they became entitled to wear. On Thursday Flora gave them in front of the assembled company who were in for tea.

Did I write that I had had my room freshened? My lamp of two years ago scorched my wall terribly and I never could get it clean so I had it done over. The color is rich cream for the side walls and pale cream for the ceiling. With green closet curtains, my green skin on my table, grayish rugs and creamy curtains at the window it makes a very cheerful room. I can not get used to the joy of having colors about instead of the dead whiteness of everything! It is a relief.

We have been getting packages from you of late- three now. They contained 6 pair of stockings which I take are those I ordered as Flora says she asked for some; darning cotton by the dozen for the school; hairpins for Flora and two bedspreads. We are each going to take a bedspread for ourselves as we have but one each now, so please so change them on our accounts.

Dr. Porter is down for this weekend with Flora. She has been ill most all summer and fall but now thinks she is fully recovered.

We have had no letter mail for weeks but everyone else is in the same state so we know that it is the fault of the mails not the writers. I wonder what Gould and Maurice decided and hope to hear that they are fitting themselves for more efficient service later. Are the girls all returned to Oberlin? Is Geraldine better so she will be able to carry full work? Is Elizabeth standing the strain of being home all right? How are Mother, Father and Phebe? Oh, a doz other questions come to mind that those delayed letters must answer.

I wonder if you would sit as quietly as I, if you had just heard a gun fired beneath your window or at least within a few rods. I do not even jump now for I know it is a watchman's way of telling a probable or possible thief that he had better desist. With the many ruined crops and the cold winter coming in, the temptation to thieves is greater than usual and it seems to me that the shooting is more frequent. I do hope that America will be able to send some food out to be dispensed by her own people; for the hunger suffering will be terrible unless outside aid is given.

May God grant to you all many blessings.

Lovingly

Mary.

The College boys planned to celebrate China's Independence Day with lanterns in a parade but the Chief of Police got word that there was trouble in Peking, so they did not want any demonstrations for the Republic. Foochow China

Oct 14, 1917.

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

The delay in our mails is getting to be a serious thing for us. Since Sept. 18th we have had no word from the U.S. either by paper or letter. This is saying that we have not heard from our four dear children in America since about Aug. 10th. And it is the same with the Board letters and letters from other friends- and papers. When they do come there will be so many- specially papers that it will be hard to digest them all.

Last week I did not write. Mr. Neff and I went down to the Arsenal where we now have a church, starting at 7:15 a.m. and it was 6 p.m. when I got back. This past week China's Day of Independence came. The boys of the College had prepared lanterns for a big parade Wednesday evening. But about 4 p.m. an urgent letter came from the Chief of Police to say that the General had just telephoned that he had just received a telegram from Peking that there was trouble there and to make no demonstration for the Republic, the Chief of Police told us to stop the lantern procession for Wed. evening. There was a pretty sore bunch of boys I can tell you. It took a good part of Wed. a.m. to quell their turbulent hearts and then we had to do some more quieting work. The political situation is very uncertain. This produces an unquiet state of mind in the whole populace- altho outwardly all goes on as usual.

From time to time there are events that indicate very clearly the growth of new ideas here in Foochow. A few evenings ago the Presidents of government and mission schools met together to see what could be done to help the students of Foochow understand better sex hygiene and the laws of personal purity. It was the first time that such a meeting has taken place here and all expressed themselves as greatly pleased. Things were done also. A sub committee was appointed to arrange for a course of lectures and steps were taken to suppress obscene literature.

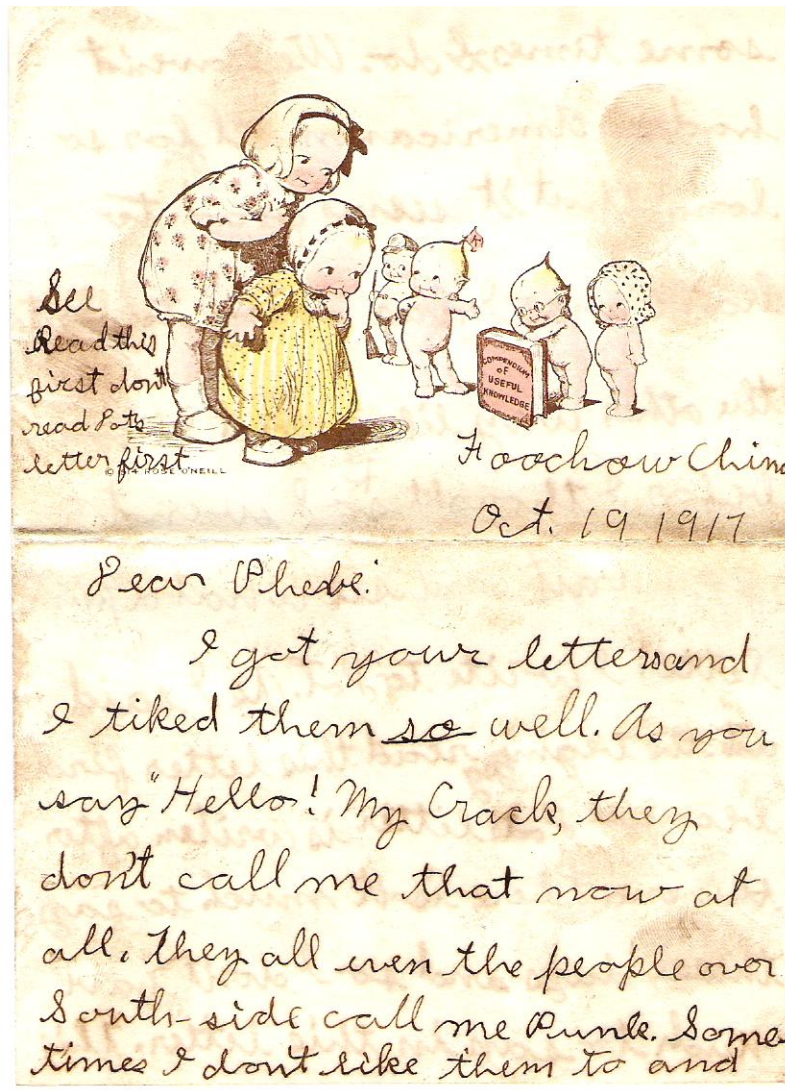

Yesterday I attended the memorial service of the wife of an earnest Christian at Upper Bridge. I baptized this woman three or four days before she died. After several had spoken, the husband arose and spoke very nicely. He said he wanted to bear witness before his neighbors to the true character of his wife. He said he knew it was not customary in China for a husband to talk in this way but he wanted his fellow villagers to know that he loved his wife and thoroughly respected her. Then he referred to a remark I had made that she was alive because she believed Jesus, and he explained quite fully that it was her soul that was alive. This was a very unique testimony and came – not from a paid agent of the mission but from a successful business man to his friends and neighbors. It was a fresh living testimony.

Marjorie and Kathleen are getting quite a variety in their schooling. They have three kinds, - or sometimes four. Once a day they go to the College with Mama for Am. History. Once a day to Mrs. Newell for Geography, and Mama has them in spelling and other studies. I fill in sometimes.

You will think it stale if I write again that I do want to hear about what you all are doing this term, - specially do I want to hear about Gould. It is a test of my faith in God and also in Gould that I am compelled to wait thus, for I must say and believe that Gould is doing the wise thing- and is where God would have him be.

Did I write that Dr. and Mrs. Bliss and Elizabeth and Edward were back. They brought five fine Swiss Goats with them for milk and some Barred Plymouth Rock and White Leghorns. Miss McReynolds also came with them for Ing Tai [previously known as Ing Hok].

Very Lovingly Your Father

Dear Phebe:

I got your letters and I tiked [liked] them so well. As you say "Hello! My Crack, they don't call me that now at all. They all even the people over South-side call me Punk. Sometimes I don't like them to and some times I do. We haven't had an American mail for so long that it seems good to have one. I was going to write the other way like this [the word "this" she wrote perpendicular] but I began befor I thought so I went on. You wait and see what a funny letter I write to Dot. As I said at the begining read this letter first because Dot's letter is written after this one. There isn't much to say these days and so I don't have much to say in this letter. This letter may not be very interesting but you know I have nothing to say so you see. That lovly baby doll's eye is out. The damp weather up at Kuliang took it out. I think I will have to get a new one. I wonder if I ever toled you about anything we and Rachel used to do together, well lots of times we used to go down to Rachel's and play with her dress paper dolls and she would make us laugh to beat the band. We couldn't make her laugh but she did us. And she said the boys used to make her laugh but I don't see how they could make such a girl as her laugh. I have been sitting here for almost half an hour writing this letter I think I will have to close because I got to write a letter to Dot now. With lots and lots and lots of love from Kathleen

Dear Dot,

I would have liked to go under Niagara falls and Oh how I want to be home with you. We would have lots of fun together. Mrs. Dennis has a new little baby, her name is Margaret and they call her Mony just like Marjorie's name. She's an awfully darling little thing. I have held her quite a lot. Bobby Dennis won't come to me any more. I got a birthday card from Aunt Molly. Edith Pease wants one Japanese doll and one Chinese doll. So we are going to get the amah that you used to have to get them. Mrs. Dennis had some things to sell that a lady up North gave her. Did you know that I could comb my own hair. I comb it most every morning. I comb it the way Geraldine [Geraldine] always wanted to comb it in back. I use Mamas old baret and she uses her new one. I am writing with red ink because it looks pretty. I forgot to before. When Mrs. Christain came our woman went to her so we had to get a new one. This one has a little boy that used to come every morning and after noon, but he doesn't now. We hear Dwight crying most all the time. He was crying just then.

Most every morning I wake up about five o'clock and stay awake. And I always think I hear thieves in the parlor. This morning I thought I heard a thief tapping on the glass and I talked aloud to mama to scare him away.

Another night I thought I heard lots of them going up the hall one by one. With lots and lots and lots of love from Kathleen.

Dearest Dot and Phebe,

We got a lot of mail last night, (because we haven't had any for about a month) and your (Dot's) letter was in it. I was so delighted with it that I read it over twice. I was glad to get Phebe's too. Mamma is teaching us reading, writing, arithmetic, history and everything except geography. Mrs. Newell is teaching us that. We go to history with mamma to college with the Chinese college boys. Just think of girls of nine and eleven studying with boys in the teens and twenties! But it's lots of fun. At first Punk cried and made a fuss and I didn't want to go. But when we had been two or three times we liked it. There are three children in the compound, now, besides us. They are, Dwight Newell, 5, Marion Jean Newell, 2, and Charles Francis Belcher, 2. Francis is so cunning. He has a little yellow curly head and his curls go bobbing up and down whenever he runs. Everybody thinks the world of him. Mr. Ray Gardner just loves him. Mr. Gardner is engaged to a very stylish young woman who isn't pretty and whose name is Miss Adelaide Thompson.

We are learning the duet that Geraldine and Phebe used to play so fast, "The Awakening of the Lion". It is very easy for me and Kath. says that it is pretty easy for her. It's awfully pretty, isn't it? We can play it quite fast but not as fast as Jug and Freaky used to play it. We might go over to the Southside school next year. There are quite a lot of children over there in that school. It will be such fun boarding with Marjorie Bi. We have a bureau all to ourselves now. We had it made. It is painted white.

Well, I'll tell you how mama's knee got well! We had some summer boarders. They were ladies from the Methodist Mission. One, Miss Grace McLurg was a Hingua missionary and the other was Miss Emma Eiley. Miss McLurg was tall and slim and the other was short and fat. Miss Eiley loved Punk because she reminded her so much of her niece, Ruth when she was Punk's age. Miss McLurg liked me because-I don't know why. Well, one time we all went to the tank and went in swimming. Mamma was standing with one foot up and Miss E. was standing by her. Miss E. saw mama's foot and it was such an irresistible temptation to pull her big toe, so she took hold of it and pulled. Mama felt something snap in her knee and she was afraid Miss E. had done something to her. But when she was walking home she said that her knee felt lots better than it used to. She had never had any trouble since, that I know of except that she can feel a storm coming in it. I guess that I shall close now.

With lots and lots of love to all,
Your sister Monny

Dear Ones at Home-

I am the guilty one who did not write last week- no this Sunday either. Last week I took all the children for a walk to see the "Altar to Heaven" of Tungchow. Then we ??ed over to the railroad track and followed that line. It was a glorious day and the children had begged for several Sundays for a walk. This last Sunday I sent them off for a walk alone and made the most of the quiet home to get a nap. Naps are a luxury- more so than ice cream even for we get that every other night while naps do well if they get in every other week. We are still gathering in the children. The big TeChow floods brought two. They are fifth graders whom their parents were keeping home for one more year. A community lady has put her 12 year old daughter in. Not yet have the Ramsays arrived although the road is practically repaired and others are travelling back and forth at will. They are not eager to come and are probably later or earlier in carrying out duties than others. We are 29 in our dining room already and will be 32 when everyone is here. The cook is acting terribly mean and offish so I expect any day to hear that he has gone a step too far and received his walking ticket. He waxes insolent or saucy and takes such monstrous "squeezes" that we are continually trying to curb him.

A week ago Monday I took my first trip to Peking since school opened. I went up at noon and met Miss Bostwick. Then we went to Lun Fu Ssu, the big temple fair that is held every ten days. We had great fun visiting all the stalls and made a few purchases. There were many foreigners there whom I knew. It was a day for brasses evidently and I never have seen a finer display. I wanted them all but bought only three pieces.

Last week I mailed the two packages to you at last. If I remember I sent a list of the contents in my last letter. I get into Peking so seldom that I have made but few purchases suitable for Xmas. Did the embroidered dress I sent in Mother's name ever reach you? I sent it in the spring sometimes but am no sure of the date. I thought to get it home so it could be made up for the summer if anyone wanted it.

Wed. P.M. Still it rains! Today has been a very dark day with no sun and occasional showers. Such weather for us to have now! This afternoon all of us pupils and teachers too gathered in the dining room to prepare tomatoes for pickles. We fixed 21 pounds of the ripe tomatoes for Chili Sauce and 14 pounds of green ones for Chopped Pickles. It took us just one half hour. Then we teachers measured and weighed the tomatoes and other ingredients. I had two good weeps over chopping the onions and a sneeze over using so much pepper. It was fun to do it all.

Mrs. Fenn and William sailed for America October twelfth. Almost Christmas time they will be passing through Connecticut to place William at school in Mount Herman. I do wish they could stop and see you in Shelton. Mrs. Fenn is one of the finest women I have met out here. She is clever in the superlative degree and humorous "Billy", as he is generally called has been one of our first boys for three years and we miss him very much. He is like his mother in being clever; has an excellent mind, in fact is almost too much of a genius to be willing to get down to hard work; but is true boy in line of fun and play. That is enough of a eulogy for one boy, I think! They were here for an afternoon just two days before they left Peking. Our ladder tennis tournament is on. I have played three matches and gotten badly beaten. My one consolation is that I was not beaten much more the last time than the first and I was playing a better player. Mr. Beers has consented to crack [or watch?] me and I hope I can improve my game. We have had a fun good sets of doubles, but these are not tournament games.

I must close and get at my evening's work because I already have spent part of the time in a private lesson and I determined that this letter should be off before another day was past. Phebe's last letter came after I wrote last. I hope you are all still well.

Do you know anything about anyone sending me the "Independent" for a period of three or four months? One copy has arrived, but I know not whom to thank.

Lots of love to you all.

Mary.

P.S. Willard forwarded a most interesting letter from Elizabeth. I was so glad to get it. We do appreciate each and every letter, I assure you.

Mary.

Dear Ones at Home,

A hand-drawn floor plan of a building, likely a school or institutional structure, showing various rooms and corridors. The plan is drawn on a grid-like layout with handwritten labels in cursive script.

- Top Left: A large rectangular area labeled "Court". To its right is a smaller area labeled "2 gals. run" (2 girls' run).
- Top Center: A small square area labeled "1 gal's run" (1 girl's run).
- Top Right: A rectangular area labeled "Kitchen". To its right is a small square area labeled "entrance".
- Middle Left: A rectangular area labeled "Therapist's room". To its right is a rectangular area labeled "Corridor".
- Middle Center: A rectangular area labeled "1 gal's run" (1 girl's run).
- Middle Right: A rectangular area labeled "Chin. Room" (Chinese Room).
- Bottom Left: A rectangular area labeled "Court". To its right is a rectangular area labeled "Dining Room".
- Bottom Center: A rectangular area labeled "Guest room".
- Bottom Right: A rectangular area labeled "Enal's room" (Enal's room).
- Far Right: A small square area labeled "gatehouse".
- Far Left: A vertical line with the word "Shed" written vertically next to it.

The plan includes various lines and arrows indicating the layout and flow of the building. The handwriting is in cursive and appears to be from a mid-20th-century document.

The last week brought a letter from Stanley and Myra. I am glad they were so well when they wrote. Their letters always have such a ring of happiness that I rejoice to receive them.

Monday P.M. I have been in Peking all day. Miss Bostwick and I went up this morning. She intended to return at night but I was to get back at noon. Alas errands were too long drawn out and I missed it. About two weeks ago I bought the fur for a coat. It is commonly called "Leopard skin" but is really Mongolian cat, which is a small species of leopard. Today I bought the goods for the outside- for I shall wear the fur inside. I enclose a sample of the goods I purchased. We had luncheon with the Wilders. The more I see of Mrs. Wilder, the more I like her. They are both quiet people but very true and sincere.

Wednesday P.M. We are having glorious weather, clear and crisp. So far our family of thirty has enjoyed splendid health and so have the natives round about us. Doctor Love says his hospital will begin to feel our prosperity unless he gets a few patients more.

I must close and get outside for a bit of the clear crisp air of which I spoke.

Mary.

Foochow China
 Nov. 17th 1917

Dear Mother:-

This is Saturday night. The children are in bed and all is quiet and it is only 8:30 p.m. and no prospects of callers. I must get to bed early for tomorrow I plan to walk five miles, preach and conduct communion and eat a Chinese dinner and walk home again.

Mr. and Mrs. Ned Smith arrived back from furlough last Monday. They brought Helen as far as Shanghai and left her in the American School there. Eunice 11 and Margaret 6 are with them. Both Mr. and Mrs. Smith were "quite seedy" as the English say when they went home, but they seem very well now. Of course Marjory and Kathleen are putting in every minute playing with Eunice and Margaret. You see with Rachel Hodous and the Billing family away from our compound our girls feel lonely and the coming of Eunice and Margaret must be utilized to the full. They have been playing specially hard all day today. After supper we had prayers and both girls were ready for bed at 7:15. The Smiths will stay in Foochow until after Annual Meeting Nov. 20 to 27, then go to Ing Tai.

We are having superb weather. Until three weeks ago the weather was very warm. We wore our white wash shirts and were still too hot. It was also very dry. But then we had a good rain and since then we have worn ordinary clothes with overcoats at times and at night we need four blankets. The days are bright and not hot, - ideal weather- like ours in September just before the frost comes. I think of father with his apples most all in barrels by this time. Corn picking is the order of every day. I wonder how the crops turn out this year and if it is possible to get help.

I received your good letter on Nov. 8 and one from Elizabeth Oct. 18. Elizabeth's account of a day at Century Farm was not only very interesting but it was most illuminating. We saw all of you at work, play and rest- even saw you pick out the blackberry pricklers. With five young people you must have been kept busy to keep them busy. The children write that they had a delightful summer at the farm. I hope they were useful.

Gould was twenty one last Tuesday. I suppose I ought to feel old to be the father of a son 21 years old., but I do not yet begin to feel old. You and father must feel some big to have grandchildren of age. If I had been as smart as you or if we had been Chinese you would now be trotting your great grand children on your knee.

Uncle Dan had better give over his wild bulls and fractious horses to other young men. We are looking every mail for news from Pearl River. The Am. Board mission here is very flourishing – in prospect. There are prospects of seven new missionaries [babies] within the next few months. As they will all be milk eaters we are wondering if it will affect the price of milk.

Improvements continue to be made in the streets of Foochow and they improve in quality as the people see the advantages. At first the narrow streets ten feet in width were broadened to twelve or fifteen feet wide, and they are talking of going over those widened once and making them broader. It is a pleasure to walk on the smooth streets – we do not need to continually look to see if our foot is going into a hole or if we will stumble against the next stone with its edge five inches above the other one. The sun gets into these broad streets and kills the bacteria so the city is much healthier.

I am putting this into an envelope addressed to Phebe M. – containing a letter to you from one of the girlies written some days ago.

Sunday evening: This morning at 8:45 Ellen and I started for a place in the country about five miles from our home. I walked all the way and Ellen walked and rode. We arrived at 10:30, just as the bell rang for service. I had to get right into the pulpit. When the preacher asked the audience to rise while he prayed I remained seated to let the molecules in my legs readjust themselves. Then I preached and conducted communion. We ate dinner with the preacher and his wife. Ellen got away with about half a bowl of rice while I devoured two bowls. Then to even things up with the preacher Ellen left all the lunch we took, for them.

Last Thursday evening we had the College Faculty in for dinner. Thirty one sat down. This is only the Faculty for the Middle School. Would you like to know what we gave them to eat? = 1st course, fried fish, native cabbage, mashed sweet potatoes, 2nd course chicken with biscuit, onions, crabapple sauce, 3rd course pudding (steamed) with egg sauce – bananas, pumelo, tea. In one end of the room were four squashes raised by Dr. Gillette and sent up for the compound. After dinner I rolled the largest one the length of the table and some of the Chinese tried to lift it. It weighed 72 lbs.

We are all well and happy and busy. May God keep you all, use you all and make you all a blessing – Lovingly Will.

Feng Kwo Chang and the Imperial City. Envelope is labeled "Censored No. 34 VR". Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

[Nov. 18, 1917]

Dear folks at home:-

The days go by so rapidly that it is only by looking back that I can realize that a full month has gone by since I have written you. Mary has been faithful to her bi-monthly turn, so you know that we are well. We have a fine school this fall and every one has kept well so far. The quality of work compares with that of our first year and the spirit of the school is sympathetic to our ideals. Our new piano is a joy. The new sewing machine arrived yesterday. It is a Wheeler and Wilson. It seems the Singer S.S. Co. has bo't the W.W. Co. out. This was one with the W.W. Co's name on so they gave it to us for $45 silver. They guaranteed it for five years just the same as their own, so I hope we have a bargain. They assured me that the S.S. Co's "parts" fitted this, so I can't see why they haven't done us a good deed.

On Wednesday a party of us teachers and pupils to the number of twenty-seven are going to the palace to be received by Pres. Feng Kwo Chang. This a great day for us for it is what I have been wishing for the school. These children will appreciate the opportunity of seeing the Imperial City. We hope to see the palace on the island where the late emperor was imprisoned and a number of other historical spots. The whole of us will have to spend the night in Peking and we plan to get up at 5 A.M. and take the 6.10 A.M. train back to Tungchow where we arrive in time for breakfast at our own table. We have all the children placed out in different houses for the night. Isn't this fine!

I am nearly destitute of winter under flannels and have forgotten to ask you to get some for me. Will you please purchase for me four union suits – long-legged, elbow sleeves, and low or Dutch neck. (I like the Dutch or square neck best). I do not care for the very heavy ones and I want all cotton. I used to give $1 each, but they are probably more now. If you can get size 7, I should like it, but I can wear size 6 comfortably, if you can't get the other. Did I ask you to get me some black stockings? I need a half dozen pairs, of the heavier weight of the quality that one used to purchase at 3 pair for #1. It almost seems to me that I have asked you for I think I remember having included my wish to have the half white footed kind.

Did I tell you that I have been having a new dark blue silk suit made, and an evening dress in which I have used my white silk lace waist? It is to be a dream. I have a Japanese dressmaker who is a marvel at fitting, making them. I expect this will last me to get home in.

Did I write you that the thread, darning cotton, and counterpanes got here all right? Everything seems to be getting through, tho' a long time at it. I hope to get a few parcels off to America within the next few days. I fear they will hardly get there in time for Xmas but I hope they may.

I have been so busy with storm windows, Household Science furnishing, caring for garden materials, etc., that time has slipped by more rapidly than I have thought.

With love to all-

Flora Beard.

Dear Ones at Home,

A fine long letter from Phebe came this afternoon. I fear there was one more gap in letters- this time because the letter did not start. It is almost Thanksgiving and we are planning for a school dinner at noon. Then we teachers are all invited to the compound dinner to be held at Mrs. Corbett's this year in the evening.

This last week has been one of interest. It started very common place but glorious as to weather. On Wednesday- a party of thirty of us went to Peking at noon to join the Language School for a call on President Feng and a visit to the grounds. There were about 170 in the party. We went directly to the audience room where we waited almost fifteen minutes for the guards to get in place. Then Pres. Feng came out with two more guards and his interpreter. He welcomed us as foreigners interested in his country and here to learn his language so as to help open up the interior of China. Then Dr. Arthur Smith responded by a Chinese parable to the effect that we are all children of the same great parent therefore bound to each other by the ties of brotherhood. Pres. Feng invited us to sit down ("Ching Tzoa") and motioned to the side rooms. We found tea and cakes there and refreshed ourselves with the same. Then we visited the island where Kwang Hsu was imprisoned for seven years. It is a beautiful little spot but I should not like so long a sojourn there. His king (bed) is beautifully padded and the furniture is of mahogany or the heavy dark wood of which the Chinese are so fond. The mottoes which the Empress Dowager had written in various parts of the room are still there. They assure the reader that the world is full of happiness, beauty, blessings etc. What a ?? in that place! All other places of interest were closed but we wandered about the grounds and looked longingly at exteriors. No wonder we saw little! Premier Juan resigned the next day and Pres. Feng was left alone without cabinet or helper. All this had been brewing for some days and we had feared lest our call be called off.

We were scattered all over the city in twos, and threes for the night but all met for the 6.10 train the next morning. We again had our private car and were safely returned in time for breakfast.

Thursday night Mr. Gordon and Mr. Beers gave a dinner party. Jean Dudley, Mr. and Mrs. Porter and I were the guests. We had an excellent dinner then made divinity fudge for entertainment. I resided at the stove as usual. We did not stay late because of the early rising of the previous morning- 5.00 A.M.

Yesterday Mr. Barre, father of one of our girls and member of a private concern for advance of the American agents located at London to look after the Belgian Relief work when it was started and he worked with them for a year or more. Hoover and Stalker were the men he spoke of as heads of it. He had charge of the finances. One morning he received one check for 500,000 lbs. also one for 12 pence[?]. Every one gave according to his means. His was the task to help supply ships for transportation, invest the funds in food, receive the pay for foods as sent back for Belgium and reinvest. The details of the work were and are stupendous. They have over 70 ships. Spanish and Dutch men are doing the distributing now beyond Rotterdam but Americans still do all the rest. America now supplies the $15,000.00 monthly for ??.

The TeChow floods have receded so that several families have returned. The Cadys go soon with their little new baby. Mrs. Stanley hopes to get home for Christmas but is not sure of doing so. Their home has only half of a second story and so far everyone is living in the second story.

Certainly there have been some narrow escapes at home- Gould and Monnie in the barn and now Stanley and Mr. Palmer from the dog. We have real cause for Thanksgiving this Thursday in that these four lives were so miraculously saved.

Mon. A.M. It got to be 10.30 so I went to bed and left my letter to finish this morning. I wonder if your man and wife did return. Would that we could either have strength to do our own work or get responsible help. We are having troubles too. The head cook is squeezing way beyond reason- and is suspected of being implicated in some opium smuggling which has been going on. The watch man of the compound is already in prison on definite charge. Our boy may also be implicated as the three are known to be friends. Vacation may see a change in our forces. Both are good in certain ways, but we can not sanction any such acts provided we can prove anything. One of the servants sprained his knee and has to be laid off for six weeks. Fortunately three of those will be vacation weeks.

The tailor was down last Thursday and I gave him my fur coat to make also the two blue dresses to make into one.

The dress will be like this.

The drawing looks as though I were very fat and I am weighing as much as usual but not quite so portly as the sketch. My coat is very plain with large arms size, broad belt and deep collar that buttons up tight or hangs open as I wish.

Mrs. Burgess tells me that you have to pay a war tax of 60 cents on every parcel received. I almost hesitate to send much under that condition though I suppose you could not begrudge that extra to help on the cause.

I must get busy on papers and study as I have to go to Peking this afternoon to get some money for Miss Bostwick to pay off the servants during the week.

Here's another set of wishes for a Happy Christmas and 365 bright days in 1919 [1918]. They ought to arrive for New Years but I fear that a month is too short a time to get them home for Xmas. How we will miss Ruth this first Christmas! I wonder if Myra and Stanley will be able to get to Connecticut? Lots of love Mary.

Foochow China
Dec. 9th 1917

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

A week ago I wrote Geraldine and in the letter I enclosed a $5.00 bill for Gould. I did not register this letter. We are momentarily expecting the home mail. As Nov. 19th was the date of the reception of the last home mail you can guess that we are hungry for news of our loved ones.

We have had superb weather for two months- just one light rain- every day bright nights cool and cold,- frosts the past two nights, but my garden is all right as yet. We are having delicious lettuce – and had one dinner of turnips, beets coming on soon, peas in blossom, tomatoes also in blossom.

Day after tomorrow we expect a party of evangelists- Messrs. Buchman, Day, Tewksbury- Turner, Blackstone, Pugh with two or three Chinese. They plan to meet only selected groups- such as pastors, preachers, students etc. twenty five in a group. Then after four days with these groups all the groups will meet for a final service. And for this final service each of the members of the groups must bring with him a man who needs help.

The ideal of the groups is to get men to go to work to evangelize. The church is not a live evangelistic church, and we hope to help Christians to become alive.

Dec 13 – The Buchman party is here and the group meetings are going nicely. Of course this small group idea is the strongest incentive possible for the students and others to want to join the groups. Men are much like cows. Cows may have all they can eat placed before them but if they can see grain or other food- perhaps not as good as what is given them, fenced away from them they will break down the fence to get it.

Last night over one hundred missionaries met with Mr. Buchman. He talked with them for about an hour then all had supper together at the Y.M.C.A. Mr. Blackstone paid the bills. And after supper Buchman talked again for an hour. He sits as he talks and uses a conversational tone. His method is not to make an address. His object is to help people to see the importance – the necessity of dealing with men as individuals, and helping them to become Christ's followers. To do this we must first win the confidence of men. Then win their confession. Then will follow naturally conversion and conversion. The missionaries need this help to keep them doing his personal work. I sometimes think that the reason for the decline in personal work among the Chinese is due almost entirely to the decline in the same work among the missionaries. We have had duties = things to do= so multiplied and our time has been so filled up with administration and teaching that the personal dealing with men as individuals has been neglected. I wrote someone a week or so ago that I have often during the past few years felt as if my time was so taken up with doing things that there was none left to just be, which is the important thing. And I am afraid that this is the case with very many people. Do you ever feel that way? It takes satisfaction out of ones life and gives one a burned feeling and a sense of not getting things completed. One is apt to get to sitting up too late and thus gets tired and generally behind. My only way to rectify such wrongs in my own life is to stop short- often with work undone and go to bed at nine o'clock, then I can get up at six and feel like going to work.

Last Sunday we all four went out to a village near the foot of the mountain for communion. It was a beautiful bright fall day. We took lunch with the preacher and got home about 2:30 p.m. On the way out in the morning a Ford car passed us and then we met it- we had to go by the new road part of the way. When we came back, the poor little car lay in the bottom of a creek on its side- no one was hurt. But it made us feel sorry to see the nice little friend so humiliated.

The mail came Sunday night about a 9 o'clock, and brought a letter from Gould. He did not mention any of his sisters so we take it for granted that you are all "developing fast" and are all right. By the time this reaches you it will be vacation with you and possibly another term will have begun. Your best source, and a never failing source, of council is God. Keep his confidence and be sure that He has yours.

Very lovingly Your Father

Willard L. Beard.

We are all well.

[This letter, dated Dec. 11, 1917, was written from Foochow, China, by Willard to the girls (Flora and Mary). He mentions many missionaries and what they are doing. Gould is trying to get into aviation for the war. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Foochow

Dear Girls [Flora and Mary]:-

The last mail-Sunday evening brought Mary's good letter with Phebe's enclosed. I have had this envelope addressed to you for- a long [time] with the letters from home in it. I actually thought it had gone until a day or two ago I found it on my desk. The coolie has taken a fancy recently to clean up and straighten out my desk and this envelop he covered up with other papers. Well now isn't that a plausible excuse?

It seems as if time grew scarcer every year. This year much of Hodous' work has come on me and my odds and ends of time are fuller- really there are odds and ends of time now.

The annual meeting with the Chinese was over Nov. 28. We had one session of mission meeting at the same time. Mr. and Mrs. Smith, Eunice and Margaret got here just in time for the annual meeting and left for Ing Hok two weeks ago where they are as happy as ever.

Mr. and Mrs. Storrs are here now. Dr. Bliss wanted Mrs. Storrs to go to Shanghai for the birth of the child. They plan to go up on the boat that will take this letter.

We had a very pleasant Thanksgiving dinner in Mrs. Newell's new home. All the Foochow people were present except Mr. and Mrs. Hubbard and Miss Garretson. They may have gone with Mr. and Mrs. Peet.

Messrs. Buchman, Day, Blackstone, Turner, and Tewksbury and Misses Paxon, Davis and a Mrs. Adams have just arrived to hold meetings with select groups for personal work. Mr. Tewksbury is to stay with us.

Gould is bound to get into line for the war. He found the aviation field full in New Haven. His letter that came Sunday said he had tried to enter in Cleveland the Signal Officers Reserve Corps. Aviation Station. They could do nothing about that there but referred him to Washington D.C. I hope the war will close soon. It seems to me a young man is every bit as patriotic if he keeps right on studying and is prepared to help rebuild the world when peace comes.

I am wondering when we shall hear that Dr. Shelton's gold piece is claimed by Pearl River. The last letters report Myra as quite well and planning one more trip to Shelton.

Isn't it nice that Mr. Kenneston is in Huntington. I hope they treat him well and that he will stay there several years. He ought to fit.

We are all well and full of things to do- which we call work. It sometimes seems as if I was so full of doing that I am in danger of not getting time to just be.

The Board has just granted us an exchange of two for one which quite eases up the financial problem with us. This is for salaries of missionaries. We had it for general work from Jan. 1- 1917. The new rule for salaries begins July 1- 1917 and holds for 1918.

All send love
Will.

Dec 16, 1917.

Dear Ones at Home,

I wonder if you too are getting a "cold wave". I have been watching our thermometer at 7.15 when we go to breakfast. On Thursday it was 28 degrees; on Friday, 18 degrees, on Saturday 10 degrees. This morning at 8.15 it was only 14 degrees so I judge it was about 10 degrees at 7.15. We had a high wind Thursday to start us off. The wind is rising again now as I write and the thermometer is low- 16 degrees at four o'clock.

"Four days more and then vacation." Every last child is going after all so we three teachers will be alone. The vacation is planned full with the Christmas Day festivities, an "Old Home Day" the last Friday of the month and dress making, and dentistry to get done.

Yesterday was my social day. About 10.00 I received a note from Carol Love asking me for lunch. Dr. and Mrs. Stifler (Union Med. People) were coming for luncheon. Mrs. S. was Susan Reed Holyoke '07 and I knew her slightly. Fortunately I was giving a written lesson the first period so could accept without missing work here. Carol later had tea so that all the people could meet her guests. Mrs. Corbett asked if I would come to her dinner party on an eleventh hour invitation as one of her guests did not arrive. We were twelve at table and had a jolly good time. We stayed and played games until nearly eleven- a very late hour for a ?? festivity.

Today our service took the form of a Christian song service. Jean certainly gets spirit and beauty into the children's singing. We had ten or eleven carols and the children did very very well. I thought of Ruth on this her first Christmas in Heaven and of you on this first Christmas without her here among us.

The good road from Peking to Tientsin via Tunghsien seems to becoming a reality. Mr. Bailey has been coming down every day now for about two weeks. They have some 15000 men already at work and expect a force of 5000 soon. These are men who are destitute because of the floods last summer and fall. Instead of supporting them for nothing, they (the Government) are using them in this way. It is a project talked of periodically for some years. The present floods presented a new argument- the need of immediately employing thousands of men. Mr. Bailey got the government to promise as much as the Red Cross would give. Dr. Reinsch telegraphed for $50000 and got it. The Relief funds of Tientsin gave another sum. Mr. Bailey is entrusted with the funds and a Chinese engineer who was trained at Tsing Tau under the Germans is helping boss the job. Mr. Stelle has just returned from a tour lasting nearly three weeks. He went out to pick out 1500 men from his district: men who needed the work. He took tags, which our children helped make, and gave one to each coolie chosen. As the man came in, they show these tags for identifications. Mr. Chandler has gotten men from Tientsin, and Mr. Hubbard from PaoTingfu.

At last the question of Mission Agent is settled. Mr. League withdraws for other work. Mr. McCann takes the work temporarily but Mr. Grimes returns in February to be the permanent head of the work. It has been a terrible mix up because of the inefficiency of Mc L. and his determination to hang on to the job at any cost.

The tailor still has my combination dress and fur coat. He is slow but can be forgiven since he has such a lot of work from us Tungchowites this time. The shoe man also is slow about getting shoes done. But the new men are not slow. They came in battalions almost. A tatting man was along this week. Another day two different curio dealers came. I made some purchases altho I am not sure of the wisdom of buying in these lines of war. The men are most anxious to sell and prices are fairly reasonable. I make an offer which I consider fair to us both and they can take it or not as they please. I tell them "pu yao chin" (It does not matter) and let them decide whether I get my goods or whether they keep them.

I wonder if I have remembered to ask you to renew my Literary Digest and Geographic Magazines. I find them useful and know of no better to replace them. The Digests are read by all the school. Lately I have removed all the covers and good pictures from the advertising pages to help make scrap books for the little children in one of the Sunday Schools and for the hospital. Dr. Love says that the men are very fond of picture scrap books.

Monday P.M. Dec. 14

I am going out skating for a while. We have to make the most of the ice before the dust spoils it and these few days are the time. The children were out all morning but I was busy taking off screens and pasting up cracks to keep the cold out. It took so long that I did not have time to dress to go to Peking.

I enclose a few pictures which I have taken recently. The one of us faculty is very bad of all of us but I let you see us at our worst. Miss Bostwick and I seem to be sticking out our tongues.

Do you remember the plate holder that Ruth sent out two years ago? I am having 'Lao Cho' the tinker make me some more which I shall give away this year. I forget what she gave but I am giving 40 tungzers (cents) each for them uncovered.

Did I write of the fine music I heard in Peking? A large party of us (ten) went out Friday to hear Mirovitch and Plastio in piano and violin. They were both wonderfully good to hear especially after our period of nothing of the kind. The next week Jean and I went up to hear Marie Lart sing. She was also very good. We sang the praises so high that several from here went up to a concert by all three a few nights later. We thought we had caught the 6.00 A.M. train enough times for a while so stayed home.

I have just had a Chinese shoe man make me a pair of high shoes. I gave him the last pair that Dektor sent out as a model. They fit well now and I am hoping that they will retain their shape. The white canvas ones are a success as I have found but these are my first leather ones. With shoes so high at home it seems best to try this way. These are $10 mexican with rubber heels and those from Dektor cost me $12.50 or more before I got them in hand.

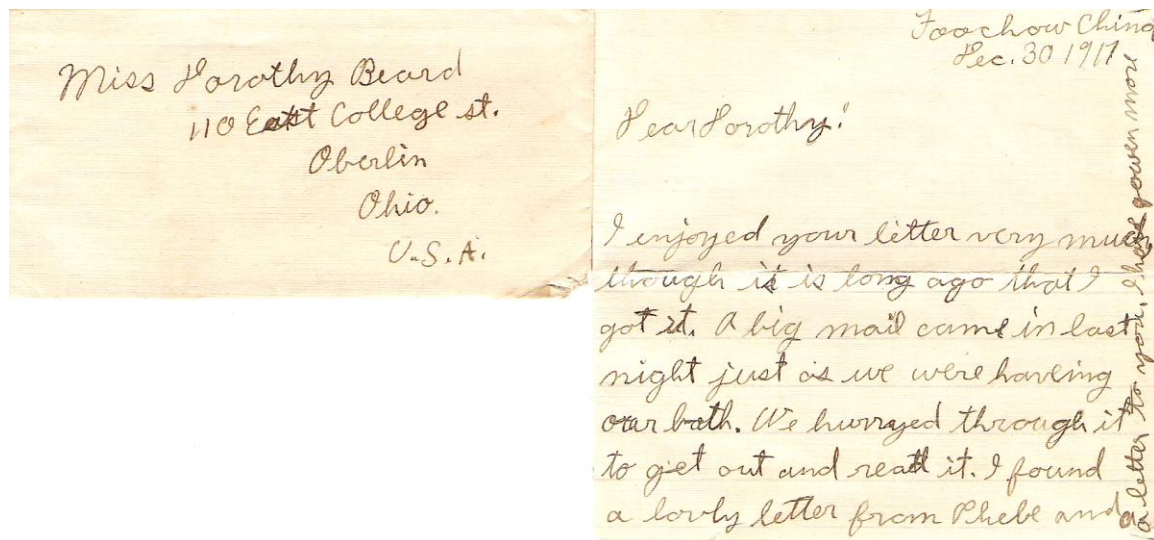

This will reach you about the time of Father and Mother's Wedding Anniversary. Best wishes and greetings to you both. How well the anniversary in 1914 returns to memory!

The sun has descended and the wind still blows so we are in for another cold night. It is impossible to keep our thermometer even as high as 65 degrees and mostly they are 56 degrees or 58 degrees. Flora longs for the new underwear you are sending. I have my heaviest out to put on tomorrow.

I do hope you are all well. It seems like a long time between letters sometimes. We are delinquent too these days I fear.

There goes the supper bell and I must close this without another sitting.

Lots of love Mary

History of the North China American School
From: Bulletin Number Two [or Prospectus] of the North China American School
Tungchou, Chihli [Province]
[From the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

During the month of January, 1914, the North China American School held its first sessions, when children from the Presbyterian, Methodist, and American Boards met in the school taught by Miss Tennant in a building near the Union College in the American Board compound at Tungchou.

At this time correspondence was going on between China and America which resulted in the Misses Beard coming to take up the work of organizing the school. They arrived early in September, 1914, just in time to see the walls of the new school appear above the ground. Since there could be no home for the children until this building should be finished, it was decided that for one year a day-school should be held in Peking. The finding of a place proved so difficult a task that for more than two months thirty children attended school in two of the basement rooms of the Y.M.C.A. building on Hatamen Street. Just after Thanksgiving, the school moved to the compound on Kan Yu Hutung, which had been previously occupied by the International Tennis Club. Here were sunny rooms and a large playground. At Christmas time the parents and friends came to the house-warming. In April the whole school and friends made a trip to Tungchou to see the new building. Dr. Reinsch made the day doubly enjoyable by providing a special car for the railroad trip. The school year was closed with an outdoor program, to which more than one hundred fifty guests came.

During the year thirty-four pupils were enrolled in the school, representing the first two years of the high school and most of the grades. The faculty consisted of the Misses Beard, Mrs. Charles Young, and Mrs. Harry S. Martin. After the expenses of the year had been paid, a sufficient sum was left for opening the day-school in the fall.

September 14th, 1915 saw the arrival at Tungchou of fourteen enthusiastic children to be escorted by the four residing there to the new home of the North China American School just across the field of alfalfa in front of the foreign residences. Later in the year three more pupils joined the number, making a total of twenty-one. The joy of companionship did not lessen during the year, but added spirit to every event.

On October 12th came the dedication of the building, the American Minister, Dr. Paul S. Reinsch being the speaker of the occasion. At Christmas time several guests attended the children's Christmas entertainment, and the closing of the year's work in June was celebrated in company with seventy parents and friends. There was a picnic lunch on the lawn inside of the hedge, and later the children gave "Hiawatha" under the trees.

The work of the year was carried by the Misses Beard and Mr. Hosmer Johnson, with help in some subjects from Mrs. Galt, Mrs. Corbett, Mrs. Wickes, and Mr. Frame. A good balance in the treasury for the second time provided sufficient funds for opening the work in the fall. Several gifts came to the school, including over four hundred books, two United States flags, some table silver, and funds for Household Science and Manual Training equipments.

The children's health made it possible to reach the mark of 98% for attendance at school sessions, and the average for their scholarship was 89%. The development of outside interests manifested itself in the formation of a School Magazine, the Athletic Association, and the Household League, all of which are exerting important influences in the growth of character.

The present year has seen large growth along all lines.

Tunghsien, Chihli
January 5, 1918

Dear Ones at Home-

Two letters have come to give us holiday cheer this last week. The Nov 24 reached us by Dec. 28; the Dec. 3 on Jan. 3- so you see they made good time. The Christmas parcel did get here before Christmas but Flora kept it until Christmas morning. Many thanks for the Bible. It seems strange to not have to keep a look out for stray leaves or to hold both covers firmly because of the broken back.

When you write of the shortage of sugar I hardly dare make candy any more. But our native supply is good and as yet plentiful, so I have indulged twice in the luxury of doing so. Last Wednesday two of the Y.W.C.A. girls, Mrs. Williams and Mrs. Holmes, walked down via the stone road. They lunched with us and we persuaded them to spend the night. For entertainment we invited in the three young men and made Divinity Fudge. We had a great surplus of milk and the bottles were increasing alarmingly so we had crackers and milk for supper. That is a great luxury here and one seldom indulged in because of the impossibility of obtaining the milk.

I must go back farther for news for Flora said she had not written since school closed. On Christmas day we had one side of the breakfast table covered with parcels and cards. When we were through eating we began and opened them. Flora gave me a lunch dish to match some napkins which she bought for me at Pei Tai Ho last summer. It is a beauty. The Bible was among the parcels too. After breakfast I visited nearly every home in the compound on various errands for our little play or the games of the evening. Incidentally I watched the two littlest babies at their baths, enjoyed a glimpse of the ecstasy of the Love children over their tree, and said a Merry Christmas to Helen Corbett who was in bed with a bad cold.

We three were invited to Mrs. Stelle's for dinner. Mr. Stelle was ill with an infected sore on his arm so was not with us. I played "pillow duck" with the children before dinner and we had an hilarious time.

After dinner we had to leave soon. Miss B and I to help set tables for our compound supper which was to be held in our dining rooms. I worked until 3.45 then came over here to complete final preparations for our play at 5.00 P.M. We made paper chains and stars, put snow on the floor, lit the lights etc. The actors and actresses were ready promptly but we had to wait for our audience. The play lasted only twenty minutes but the children were very dear and sweet. The littlest ones were in high glee in the new kind of game and quite unconscious of any spectators.

We had a short delay before supper, that the small babies might be fed and the older children redressed after the play. The eleven children were together at one table which was decorated with a Santa Claus drawing a sled over the ice (a mirror) surrounded by snow banks. In the sled were sticks of candy tied with red ribbons, one of which extended to each place. Small individual candlesticks with red candles added to the future appearance. There were twenty five of us adults at four different square tables.

After supper we progressed again and went to Mrs. Love's for games. Mrs. Corbett read a Christmas story then we played "Question and Answer", "Stage Coach", and "Virginia Reel." It was only ten when we broke up, after a full but happy day. For "Question and Answer" the party sits in a circle. Each person gives a question to his right hand neighbor and an answer to his left. The question starts, "What would you do if ___" and the answer starts, "I would". When all are ready the leader asks his question of someone in the group. That person gives in reply the answer that has been given him by his neighbor. Then this second person asks his question of someone else. Some very amusing combinations occur sometimes.

Your cold weather came a little earlier than ours and was nearly if not quite as cold. Our coldest was 6 degrees above zero as far as I know. We had three days in succession when it was 10 degrees above at 7.15. It was interesting that every morning the temperature was 2 degrees while we were at breakfast. I laid it to the fact that the sun rose during the time. It is a little warmer now so the thermometer at 8.00 or 8.30 when we go to breakfast is 16 degrees, 18 degrees or 20 degrees above zero. We are having so much wind that it seems even colder than it is. Mr. Porter was counting the windy days and the number in succession was 19 last I knew. We have had wind every day but one since then.

The Friday after Christmas (the 28th) was the day of our Tungchow Old Home celebration. It was a better afternoon, cold (12 degrees) and very windy. Several guest did not come because of the weather. We had a lap supper at Mrs. Stelles- 39 of us. Then we adjoined to one big sitting room for a musical. The program was arranged in three parts. The first and last were musical. The middle one was reminiscences of first days at Tungchow. We began with Dr. Goodrich who arrived 51 years ago-then Mrs. Sheffield, 48 years ago and ended with Mrs. Huggins who reached China last Fall and comes here to live next Fall. After the program we had a Virginia Reel and ended with a Grand March.

Saturday morning we played Rook part of the morning to entertain the girls. In the afternoon some of the people took a long walk but I was not equal to it. Mrs. Corbett gave a tea so I went there instead, and walked to the station to see the guests off. Dr. Porter arrived that evening to spend Sunday with Flora. I went to church at the Porters. There were ten of us. After dinner we had games and ended with "Letters" so it was late before we departed.

On Monday Dr. Porter, Miss Bostwick, Flora and I all went on a "Bat". We put up sandwiches, after returning from Mrs. Corbett's Sunday night. (We had had supper there). We went outside Chien Men (big front gate) in Peking and poked around in Chinese shops; curio shops, silk shops, brass shops and any kind that took our fancy. For lunch we went to the Bakery where they serve hot drinks and fancy cakes. We had chocolate and cream puffs to supplement our sandwiches.

On New Year's Day Flora and I made the "One Egg Cake" in layers and Mocha filling. This we served with coffee or tea to all adults who were in the compound. We were twenty because there had been a breakdown on the morning train and only Mrs. Love had thought to go to Peking at the late hour of 11.30.

Did I write that I have my fur coat and like it very much. The sleeves were too short but the tailor lengthened them. I have worn it to Peking twice and it is good to be able to keep warm. My blue coat did not keep out the wind in spite of its weight. The Chinese have a saying that neither wadded garments nor woolen ones can keep out the wind, only fur can do it. I believe it now. No woolen garment could be warmer than my blue coat made from one of Ben's blankets, but I have been cold in that many times. We got a black fur for a coat when outside Chien Men last Monday. We got it for Mother's next year's Christmas present and perhaps the next two. Now we are debating how to have it made up. We will have it made with a white covering so that the real covering can be changed. We do that because it is so very expensive to get fur sewed at home and so cheap here. (I gave $10 to get mine made.) The covering will be more reasonable at home unless you want a silk one. Jean Dudley will take it home for us next June and remail it to you from her home. Flora and I will get a little wear out of it this winter. I wish you had it in hand to protect you against the cold of which Phebe writes.

I did not intend the lace for anything in particular. For Christmas if you decided, or for yourselves or for sale. I bought them because I considered them very pretty and most reasonable and I knew you girls could either use them yourselves or find a user. I have a slip with the insertion and lace to match in the flounce and like it very much. Do you want more? A lace man visits us here at irregular intervals and has very pretty patterns.

We are still watching the mails for news of Susie-John's arrival. I was glad to hear that Myra and Stanley could get up for Thanksgiving and that they returned all safely. It is too bad that Frank has been ill again. We had letters and handkerchiefs from Hattie this week.

How I should love to see Ben's children, Helen's babies and all of you. I call on Carol often for a romp with Jenn and Betty. Betty reminds me of Edith Louise when her age very much. I try to picture Edith as a big girl and wonder if I should know her now.

I am glad you are keeping Ruth's room as she wanted it. I hope Aunt Ella and Uncle Dan still keep well. They must feel that the extra care last winter paid.

I shall write Seaver soon at that lengthy address. Please send me Thorpe Sturgesse's address when you get that, so I can write them a note too. I wonder if Leolyn and Dr. Morgan are East yet. They were expecting to go East I heard since they could not go to Europe as they had planned.

It is 9.00 PM Saturday and the latest I have sat up except when we had company or were out this vacation.

Sunday P.M. This morning was glorious, calm, not very cold and dear. Miss Bostwick and I decided to make the most of the good day and walk to the river. It is about two miles east of us and used to be the head of navigation where all the tribute rice was unloaded for storage or for reshipment to Peking via the canal or stone road. The wind rose and when we reached the river it was blowing a gale. The sand was blowing like a Gobi dust-storm. The river was frozen and the dust so thick we couldn't see even the boats drawn up on the banks until we almost touched them. We came home in the lee of the city wall so got out of most of the wind. The dust was not bad except for the half mile next the river. It is time to dress for lunch. Lots of love and wishes for the new year, that it may be full of joy and blessings for you all. Mary.

Dear Mother:-

The last mail brought your god letter. Phebe's came also. I'm sending them to the girls. How we should enjoy some of those apples! And how you would enjoy some of our roses that hang in profusion on the bushes, and more yet some of my lettuce and turnips and fresh beets, and in another ten days or two weeks green peas. The weather has been very cold for a month. Each morning in the dining room the thermometer says about 40 degrees. One morning last week Mrs. Kinnear sent up a cake of ice ½ in. thick. That's pretty cold for this place. We are wearing our thickest clothes. But the days are bright and clear and the air dry. This is much better than the damp cold and ten degrees higher.

I have just written the girls that Ellen tells me to spend next Summer with them. She thinks it is too much for her to go and take the girlies so I may be in Pei Tai Ho next Summer.

Ray Gardner wants to get married in the summer and wants me to marry him, but there are plenty of others.

Did I write any thing about the visit of Mrs. Frank Buckman and party to Foochow some three weeks ago? Their message was very simple and given very quietly and informally to small groups of twenty five. Lead Men to Jesus was the message= do personal work. To do this one must get right with his fellow men. To feel hard against another makes any body shrink from speaking personally to others urging them to accept Jesus and be saved. There was some confessing while the party were here- they spent a week in Foochow- but the greatest results with us have come since the party left. In the College there were nine men of the graduating class who had not joined the church. To day I baptized these nine men. From the Higher Primary here twenty one united with the church and there were three from the government Silk School, making in all 33. Many of the boys have made confessions of wrong deeds. In one of Ellen's classes the boys of their own accord confessed that they had agreed to unite and say they were unable to get all the lesson,- a boy who for three years has declared he would never become a Christian, rose the other day and said "I believe in Jesus and I am going to be a Christian."

After thinking the matter over very carefully for several days I went over and had a talk with Mr. Peet. You knew the Board recalled him in 1915. He did not go home. Then the Board got the N. China mission to call him up there to join that mission to be supported by the Board. He refused to go. Then the Board wrote definite instructions to stop his salary Aug. 1st 1917. Since then he has lived in his own rented house and is doing odd jobs as he gets a chance.

I have felt pretty hard against him for several things that he has done that were against me personally and for others against me because I was head of the College. Such thoughts and feelings against any man are not right. A man cannot properly express Jesus to others while he is allowing such thoughts and feelings to find a place in his heart. So I went to Mr. Peet and told him that I had felt hard toward him and that I was going to stop it and that I should treat him as a friend. I have so written the Board, and I have told him that I would remove all objections to his returning to the mission as far as I was concerned, and that if he returned I should work with him in peace. So far he has not in any way acknowledged that he has done any wrong. So I do not know what the result will be.

All the members of the mission are trying to make it possible for him to return. As far as I can see all has been done that can be done until Mr. Peet himself does something.

We look for news that Dr. Shelton has his promised gold piece to Pearl River. Every week brings a new American to Foochow and there are more to follow. Gillettes in Diong Loh a boy. Charles Gorden. Then Elizabeth Waterbury Beach came. Then Pricella Belcher. Then Kathleen Twiley McConnell Y.M.C.A. Storrs, Leger, Kellogg-McClure are to follow. Oh I forget one or two down in Hinghua.

Gould is I suppose somewhere in training for the war. I pray that he may not only resist temptation but that he may while in camp and always be aggressive in helping other boys to resist and keep straight.

May God be with you all. Ruth's spiritual preserves is a great blessing. May God bring peace in His time. Thanks much for pumpkin- and other things came OK-Stanley and Myra gloves. Lots of love Will

Dear Ones at Home-

Hurrah for Nancy Nichols! Phebe's letter came this week Wednesday. Mrs. Corbett had been enquiring for her so I hastened to announce her arrival. To day is Father and Mother's fifty fourth wedding anniversary. Therein lies another cause for rejoicing. I do hope Father continues to improve after Phebe wrote last. He has my sympathy for I had to be careful of what I ate and not to exercise too robustly for so very long. My wish is that he recover as fully as I have so he can eat what he likes and do the same with impunity.

Is Mother's rheumatism better? I was glad to read that your stoves are all up for the steady heat would be beneficial to Mother. We have a Christmas present for Mother for the next two years which ought to be good for rheumatism. Jean Dudley will bring it in June so you will get it out of season. Even though it seems too heating when it comes, save it till December and try it.

This week our second piano arrived. This is an American one but much cheaper than the one Mrs. Corbett got for us. We were paying $5 a half hour per year for practice pianos and renting every piano in the compound for as long as the owners would let us. If we charge tho some and have our own piano we will soon pay for it. Then too we can use it all day instead of only at certain times when the owners are away and will not be disturbed. Eight men were supposed to carry it down but they got tired of their job and hired a cart for the last two miles. Their reason was unique. "The road was so rough we could not carry it, so we hired a cart to bring it." Remember, Chinese carts are without springs of any sort.

Flora was in Peking last Monday to read a short paper before the Mother's Club. Yesterday Mrs. Porter gave a tea and invited her to read it for us here. It was on Moral training of children of early school age and I am sure we all enjoyed hearing it.

We had Mrs. Ballon in for lunch on Thursday. Her baby is better and she went to Tientsin on Saturday. Dear little lad, he has had a hard time getting started, but is gaining his five to eight ounces a week regularly now.

Last night we had Miss Margaret Smith and Miss Huggins (Mable) in for supper. They will be here regularly and live in the West end here next year. Miss Smith is here now and lives with Mrs. Love.

The news for the plague district is most unsatisfactory. The three doctors who went up have returned. The authorities worked against them on all points so they felt they were doing no good. There are no trains to the north of Peking except specials to carry mail or officials who are authorized to go into the district. The quarantine in Shansi is as strict as they can make it, but that is not very good. At one place the station master was quite incensed because two troublesome foreigners were interfering with his business of selling tickets. [The "Report of the Shansi Plague Prevention Bureau 1918" is in the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Dr. Smith preached for us today and gave a rousing talk. "Wisdom is better than the work of war" and "A little bit of foolishness will spoil the whole" were his themes. He is most graphic and vivid in his pictures. He illustrates well. For instance "One hornet can break up a whole assembly", "one pin carelessly dropped on a loom spoiled 1800 yards of cloth before it was discovered", "One feeble minded ancestor gave a whole line of feeble minded descendents in the Virginia family while the good blood of Jonathon Edwards gave a less multitudinous but more useful one in Massachusetts. He is speaking more slowly these days and, I think, more impressively.

I go to Peking tomorrow on the early train for a final appointment at the dentist. It is my first (the three visits) Dentistry in nearly two years and I had not a great deal of work. I hope this finds you all well once more. Soon we will be hearing that Nancy Nichols is developing. I went in and played dolls with the children tonight just because I was hungry to get hold of Nancy. A doll is a mighty poor substitute, I tell you! I shall give young David Burgess an extra squeeze tomorrow.

With lots of love

Mary L. Beard.

P.S. I enclose a draft of $25 to be put on my account. Life Insurance policies have been paid and I fear my acct. is low. Written on back on Monday. Lovingly Mary.

Foochow, China.
Jan. 20th 1918.

Dear Parents:-

As I write here by my fireside you are just getting up on this the fifty fourth anniversary of your wedding day. I send my heartiest congratulations and hope there may be many happy returns of the day. I can not realize that within a few years I shall be fifty three years old, and that I have a son in the army. Gould wrote a week ago that he was to take his last examination for the aviation corps the week after he wrote. I could write pages about my feelings but it is needless. I am content and happy if he is where he believes God wants him to be. There must be a tremendous wave to pull young men into the war. I have wandered far in this paragraph from where I began. It only shows that the war is the all absorbing topic and will not [let] down. I must stop now and get to bed. More later.

Feb. 1st

The days between Jan 20 and today have been more than full with examinations, committee meetings, Commencements etc. It is necessary for all the schools to have meetings of their Boards of Management near the end of the year- just before commencement. I find myself now Chairman of three Boards of Management of Union institutions and Treasurer of one, and Chairman of the Board of Management of Foochow Coll. We held the Union Commencement of all our Mission schools in Foochow on Wed. p.m. Jan 30th. The array is somewhat impressive.

Foochow Girl's College	4 graduates
“ College	9 “
“ Girl's College Higher Primary	9 “
Woman's Bible School	4 “
Kindergarten Training School	2 “
Foochow College High School	16 “
“ “ Higher Primary	11 “

The orator of the day was Miss Lawrence Thurston President of the Girl's Union College of Nanking. All passed off very nicely. The day was perfect. In the evening of the day came the Alumni dinner, with some 130 to sit down. This year it was a coed affair with some 30 alumnae of the Girl's College present. This was a big innovation for us in Foochow, but all seemed to enjoy the innovation. There were present a young man, an alumnus of Foochow College and his fiancé just graduated from the Girl's College. A few years ago these two would not knowingly have attended the same church at the same time- lest they should see each other.

I am writing now at 7:30 a.m. in a boat on the river= waiting. I am on my way to Diong Loh to marry one of the students. The launch was said to be starting at 6 o'clock or a little after. I got here at 6:45 and am told it will start about 9 o'clock. After the momentum reached in the rush of the past month, it is just a bit queer to find myself so surfeited with time.

Letters come from some of you all the time, either by way of Tungchow or direct. The last letter brought the glad news that Nancy Nichols had come, and that she and her mother were both doing well. Just as examinations were closing at the College Mr. Ding Ming Uong sent me a note saying that a son was born to him that a.m. and the next day Mr. Ding Kai Ceng another teacher had a daughter. During the past five weeks our mission has been increased by girls in the Beach, Belcher and Storrs homes and a boy in the Gillette home, with Leger (Feb. 5, a girl Kathleen said “Why papa, you and Margaret Leger are twins). Kellogg and McClure to yet to hear from. - Boats are arriving from the shore with passengers, when we are full- this boat I mean- not us passengers- we will start.

Last Saturday we had, for Foochow a unique treat. A sister of Miss Daisy Brown is here visiting her. This sister graduated from the Oberlin Conservatory of Music last June in Pipe Organ. She gave a Recital last Sat. p.m. to about 80 foreigners and 200 Chinese on the new Pipe Organ. It was a rare treat for it is very rare in Foochow- or even in China that we can get the organ and the artist together. We have two men to pump for all ordinary playing. But for her we had to put on four, and it made them sweat. We also had her to play for Commencement. (The boat is filling with men, women and children- and tobacco smoke.-They say I am doing examples in Arithmetic.)

We plan to go to Ing Tai for a part of the vacation, - starting Feb. 8 and getting back Feb. 20. This will be a long time for me to be away. In April I shall plan to go to Shanghai to attend the Annual Meeting of the Continuation Committee of the 1910 Edinburgh Missionary Conference. And I am seriously contemplating spending the summer with the girls- somewhere.

The weather continues cold and dry. Each morning the ther. is at 40 degrees above in the dining room. The days are getting a little longer and the sun warms things up in the middle of the day but at 4 p.m. it begins to get cold. We have had no rain since the first of Nov. Wells are getting dry everywhere and people are paying 10X for ten gallons of water in some places and in other places they are drinking muddy water. Small pox is worse- owing to the drought. Business is very bad. Political conditions are in a state of uncertainty. We do not know just what they are. General Li here keeps himself very close, and his soldiers are in evidence everywhere. I suppose there is fighting about Swatow. Canton province is against the Peking government and therefore against Canton. There is a report that the President Feng has left the Capitol for parts unknown.

This is the season of birthdays in the Beard family. Mother was 75 if I reckon correctly on Jan 30- the day of my commencement- I will be 53 in four days. Marjorie 12 on Feb. 17. Father 76 on Feb. 18. Stanley 35 Feb. 20. Flora 49 Feb. 25. Dorothy 17 on Feb. 26. -That is all that I think of just now. I wonder how many mistakes I have made.

Do you remember how cousin Charlie Beard of Milford used to tell dates? It seemed as if he could remember the date of birth, marriage etc of all his relatives and neighbors.

Your letters telling about Thanksgiving came not long ago, telling how war conditions changed the dinner. We have made changes in our table fare also- not as compulsory or radical as you have been obliged to do tho. American flour is about 12 cents gold a pound here. I looked up native wheat and an old mill and since Nov. we have used this native wheat ground in our own mill and made into gems.- We have had no raised bread for three months. I did the same for sugar. The granulated was costing us about 12 cents per lb. gold. I buy the native- like coffee sugar at home- a little brownish and soft and damp, for about 8 cents gold. It makes a big difference in the price of living. We are better physically too for eating the coarse flour. It is turning things up side down tho for you to have wheatless days and us to add more wheat to our diet- both for the sake of economy.

We are filling up- at 8:30- still filling up. Why did I not quietly take my rest till day light and get up as usual- instead of rolling out at 5 o'clock and starting before day light? It is warmer. I write without aching fingers.

I'll close now- the longest letter I have written in a long time. We think of you and talk of you often.

Did I thank you for the pumpkin? It came all right and is as good as it is every year. The girlies and Ellen's things came by last mail.

May God bring peace among the creations in His own time and make us all loving.

Lovingly

Will.

[Jan. 21, 1918]

Dear folks at home:-

Again it has been a long time between my letters. It seems to take so much time to attend to my school duties and to the looking forward for future expansion. In fact there is hardly a week without some new plan or development. We are well settled for this year but there is absolutely no room for next year's growth, and there are already four children more booked for next year- than the number going to America.

The latest sight on the horizon is the interest that the Rockefeller Foundation has taken in us. Our trustees invited their China Medical Board to come in on the union basis and Mr. Roger Green who is the diplomat directing the Rockefeller affairs out here has written to the American office recommending it so probably there is little doubt but that they will come in. We hope they do- and as generously as their superior pocket book should allow them. Mr. Green is also one of the members of an interesting association of American business men who are trying to help China and America- in several different ways, to be mutually useful to each other. Mr. Green spoke to the association as one of their banquets and said that one of the ways in which they could further their usefulness was to get behind this school and the one in Peking and give them a good backing. So-we are about to be discovered. Three gentlemen are coming to visit us. One, a millionaire bachelor business man, one who represents the "Herald" (New York), and one belonging to some banking corporation. We are going to let all these granders sit at our table and eat of our school fare. They are to see us with as little of the show side as possible. Mr. Petters of the Union Language School in Peking is to report to the Executive Meeting of the Association next Friday night and then we are expecting our trio of visitors. Mr. Petters is to tell them of our equipment and of our needs, so here's for hoping for results.

School has moved along so pleasantly this year, since we have more teachers- even though we are still short. We are asking that our staff next year may be as many as six all time teachers. I do hope we may really have this number for I would like to have one year of a fairly normal amount of work to do, in order to let the people here realize that I am acquainted with something else than the pots and pans of a school, but I can forego that if there is no opportunities.

The last letter that came from home told of little Nancy Nichols Beard's arrival and Mary and I are clapping our hands for Nancy, both because of her safe arrival and because of her appropriate name. We are hoping for more news.

Will's last letter says that he is really going to spend the summer with us here in the North. We have not had time so far to plan what we shall do, but we want to show him some of the sights and then go to Peitaiho for the rest of the summer. I did hope to escape Peitaiho this summer but it will be worth the while for him to go and we shall enjoy it with his company. Mary likes it tremendously because of the bathing. Will will enjoy that too, besides meeting all the people. Ellen and the girls are not going to come. Ellen thinks it will be better for them not to travel so far in the summer time. Perhaps she is wise, but we are sorry that they are not coming.

Did I tell you that Mary's Bible and my hand mirror came safely? Both are in daily use! We are very happy to have each.

All North China is just now much concerned because of the epidemic of the pneumonic plague. It is slowly inching its way toward these parts, but there are several doctors doing all in their power to stop its spreading. It is more fatal than the bubonic plague, but by quarantine can be stamped out entirely, as it is carried only by man. Several foreigners in Peking have left, but I wonder how much these who have gone to Shanghai are bettered as there is a big epidemic of small-pox on down there.

Hope I shall not let so long a time elapse before I write you again.

Yours lovingly-

Flora Beard

Dear Stanley and Myra-

We received news of Nancy Nichols just one month from the date of her arrival. Please receive the congratulations of this Aunt and give my best love to the newest niece. Stanley's letter and Myra's note arrived on Sunday. We are glad you like the lunch cloth or tea cloth. It was instead of the cable message that never got off on your wedding day. I tell Flora it will be more practical and lasting than an air message.

We are in the midst of our mid year examinations and I am guarding four industrious students. Today was the heaviest day so several have but little need of hard studying now.

Tonight Flora has gone to the weekly compound supper. The ladies are taking turns entertaining on Prayer Meeting nights. The first was last week. It was my night off so I went. It was a success both as a supper and as a Prayer Meeting. We had some delicious croquets which Myra may like to try. Two cups mashed potatoe, one cup ground peanuts, a little onion mixed and rolled into croquets which were fried in deep fat. We are very sociable with a second weekly gathering – The Journal Club- at which we discuss current events. I have not been free to attend one of those meetings yet. Our teas are becoming more often and men are often admitted within the ?? circle. That was because we discussed that said men wanted to come. Dr. Arthur Smith is a tea devotee.

Here's my best love for Myra, Stanley and your daughter Nancy Nichols. I rejoice in her and in her name too. I hope to hear again soon that all continues to go well with you all.

Lots of love
Mary.

Dear Ones at Home,

The above address is not correct because I am in Peking spending Sunday with Alice Frame. I came up last evening with the children. Tomorrow we are to have a Holyoke luncheon. Caroline Smith is up from Tientsin. Dr. Striker, Mrs. Stiffler and Alice live here and I have come so there will be five. The sixth, Helen Hopkins, was at college one year only and unfortunately is at Tan An[?] for her New Year holiday.

Tomorrow is Chinese New Year and the church this morning was very sparsely filled because the men and women are home getting ready for the festivities. It is a very great day for the Chinese who have not as individuals yet adopted the foreign New Year.

At the Tientsin meeting of our Board Miss Dudley was asked to return for another year and has accepted. We are to have at least one new teacher and two if the Y.M.C.A. Business Man's invitation etc., enter as submitters in the funds. Their entering will bring more funds also more pupils. The American man has promised us the same cottage we had this year for at least another year with the probability of its being made ours permanently. Our last news from Willard is that he will come north to spend the summer with us but that Ellen and the girls will not come. We are home hunting at Peitaiho but have not been able to make settled plans yet.

Last week I fixed our electric bells down at school. All that was needed at the cottage was new batteries but I found a broken wire at the school home. Flora had the promise of a college student to do it but we were weary of waiting.

On Thursday two of the girls and I made a record trip to the malt candy shop. Mrs. Lyons wanted candy to take home with her and we went after it. We walked out in about twenty minutes and generally we take thirty five or forty.

Last week Monday we had our second Past Time Club meeting of the year and initiated four new members. Of course it was a good time and a gay one, but time to Tungchow customs not a late one. I had supper with Mrs. Wickes last Sunday evening and went over early to watch Alice be put to bed. Alice is a darling and coos and laughs for the sheer joy of living. Again on Tuesday I was there to the Compound supper and Prayer Meeting. Alice was crying lustily at first but I did not see her. Mr. Porter was to lead but it was nearly eight o'clock before he arrived. Dr. Smith started the meeting and wondered why some of us were embraced with laughter. The words of his first ?? were "Though he seems to linger long, He never comes to late."

Thurs. P.M. We had a Holyoke luncheon of four on Monday and a fine time. I returned that night. On Tuesday nothing particular happened. Yesterday I took a walk with Mrs. Love and had tea with her afterward. Today she gave a tea for a guest. We were a large company with seven guests here. I enclose an order for some new corsets. I fear you can not get exactly what I want for Ruth wrote the last were a chance since the make was old style. Please get the nearest.

Lovingly Mary.

...have to go to school until July to broke[?] it up.

I went to church today and saw Wells, Daniel and Edith. Also one of the "Twin Spaces" as Edith calls them. They are holding service in the Sunday School room because of fuel conservation. After church I took Cousin May[or Mary?], Howard's mother, and aunt Abbie home in the Maxwell then returned for Aunt Phebe and grandma.

I suppose you are having lots of fun out there. Can you play tennis yet? Aunts Mary and Flora write that Pappa is to spend next Summer with them.

I suppose I will be on the farm until about the first of or the middle of March when I will be called to Conf. Give my love to Father, Mother and Punk,

[This letter dated Feb. 11, 1918 was written from Ing Tai, China by Willard to his daughter Geraldine. The original letter is held in the archives of Yale Divinity School. Willard talks about the combined commencement exercises of the American Board Schools in Foochow, his surprise birthday party and the latest births on the compound.]

Ing Tai, Foochow China
Feb. 11th 1918

Dear Geraldine:-

I have just written Gould and am putting it into your letter to forward to him. We suppose he is by this time in some aviation camp, and you will doubtless know where to send this letter. We have not had a letter from any of you girls for a long time and my letters have not been as regular as I want them to be, for the past two months.

Our commencement took place Jan 30th at 2 p.m. I do not have a program to send from here so will have to send it in the next letter. We had a union commencement of all the American Board Schools in Foochow.

Foochow Girls College	came	first with	4 graduates.
" College	"	2 nd "	9 "
" " Middle School	"	"	16 "
" Girl's College Higher Primary	"	"	9 "
" Bible Wanan's Training School	"	"	4 "
" College Higher Primary	"	"	11 "
" Kindergarten Training School	"	"	2 "

We had a good audience that remained till the benediction was pronounced and the band began to play. Mrs. Lawrence Thurston President of the Union Girls College at Nanking gave the address. There were no orations by the graduates. The girls schools had one representative to reply to the “Words of the President” and the distribution of diplomas, and each of the boys schools had one representative to reply. The 55 graduates sat in the body of the church in the front seats and came up one by one, passed across the stage and received their diplomas, down the other side of the platform, around to the front door of the church and back to their seats. This was as interesting to the audience as to the Oberlin audience on these occasions. There is so much political disturbance in China and General Li is in the civil war, with his soldiers fighting Cantonese soldiers near Swatow that none of the officials attended. General Li and one other sent representatives. General Li’s representative was a man who had spent seven years in England and spoke English well. It was interesting after the exercises- the foreigners and these two representatives were invited to our house for tea. I sat to talk with these two with one of our teachers- Mr. Nga as interpreter. These two spoke mandarin only as I thought after we had conversed thus thru an interpreter for half an hour or so I chanced to learn that this men had understood all the English I had been using before Mr. Nga had put it into mandarin.

We had the pain this year of refusing graduation to two boys from the Middle School course and of holding back diplomas from several others- some because they had to make up one or two subjects and some because they had borrowed money and must refund it to get their diploma.

Mama gave me a surprise on my birthday – or tried to. In the afternoon I was at a Committee meeting and Mr. Eyestone said to me that he was sorry he and Mrs. Eyestone could not come to dinner that evening in response to Mrs. Beard’s invitation. I saw it at once- that Mama was getting up a party. It turned out that only those in the compound could come. Word about an hour before dinner Mr. Leger came up to say that he was afraid that he and Mrs. Leger and Dr. and Mrs. Kinnear could not come. So we had us four. Mr. and Mrs. Scott, Mr. Gardner, Mr. and Mrs. Christian. Just as we were thru dinner Mr. Leger wrote up that Margaret Elizabeth Leger arrived at 7:40 o’clock- weight not yet ascertained. Kathleen at once said, “Why Papa, you and she are twins aren’t you?” This makes six babies in our mission within about 5 weeks.

On the last Sat. of the term Mr. Ding Ming Uong had a son born and the next day Mr. Ding Kai Ceng, another teacher had a daughter born on commencement day his eldest boy graduates.

I am not writing in this anything about Gould’s success in getting into the aviation corps. You will read his letter and know our pride in his achievement. You will be much to him- you and Phebe and Dorothy.

Ing Tai is full of guests this vacation. We four- Mrs. Newell and Dwight and Marion Jean and Misses Steinbeck and Steel Brook.

May God keep us all in His love

Very lovingly your father Willard L Beard

[This letter, dated February 23, 1918, was written from Tungchow, China by Mary to the ones at home. They had a school Valentine party with Kupie decorations. They saw many intricate lanterns at the Chinese Feast of Lantern Festival. The board of trustees voted to continue the school. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

[Feb. 23, 1918]

Dear Ones at Home-

The Valentine party was a thing of the future when I last wrote. We teachers worked hard to make it pretty and lots of fun. I enclose the menu and place cards which tell their own tales. The Kupie will stand it you give her a push. Kupies two feet high with huge red crepe sashes wee most effective in the sitting room. Several games demanded hearts so we used the strings of hearts as part of the decoration. Red strips of crepe paper twisted was fastened from the center to the corners and centers of the sides. In the dining room we attempted no decorations except on the tables. The menus, place cards, ?? strips of paper with hearts at the corners and a flowered center piece on which stood a large Kupie with a red ribbon bow bigger then ?? made the room very festive. We had only candle light, from three lanterns hung and shaded candles on the tables.

On February 8th I attended a luncheon of the College of Man of Peking at the Hotel de Peking. We voted to start an American College Woman’s Club and talked of aims[?] and membership and needs etc. The next Saturday was a business meeting at which the constitution was adopted. We have the H.C.A. basis of membership- only graduates of accredited colleges for active members but associate members may be anyone who had taken any college work. We wanted it broader but the Friday Club felt that would be encroaching on their premises so we became exclusive. The luncheon was a most enjoyable affair. We had no morning train then we had to take the noon one and be late. Moreover we had to leave early to get the afternoon one back. I sat near five neighbors- Mrs. Danton of Tsing Hua College, Mrs. Dotson who sings so well, Mrs. Arnold wife of the Advisor to the government, and Mrs. Reinsch, wife of the Minister. As we returned we met Mr. and Mrs. Reed just leaving for Peking. Mrs. Reed was Holyoke 1917 and a teacher of Lyman Martin last year in American. We had tea at Mrs. Martin's and a birthday party for Shattons third birthday.

On February 12th I took back the Student's League which I had handed over to Miss Bostwick last fall. She could not manage the children and the League was getting to be a mob meeting for entering complaints of all sorts and making forth motions about affairs that are none of the children's business. Mrs. B. said she always felt she had no right to interfere or speak out for it was the children's league. I fear I am not so afflicted with fear.

Saturday February 15 was the Chinese feast of lanterns festival. Dr. Fenn was down to speak for us the next day. A party of 16 of us including six adults and all the high school children. We walked into the city that evening. We found the silk shop beautifully illuminated. The fronts were solid thin silk lanterns made flat and painted with figures. Dr. Fenn said the paintings were historical but he could not interpret them. Inside was a splendid array of fancy lanterns all lit and graphophones grinding out the loudest music obtainable. Several lanterns had inner figures that revolved with the heat of the candles. The crowd was so great we made an individual line and passed in and out too rapidly to get details. Our boy went as guide or we never would have found these except by the crowds. The first we saw were two fishes hanging outside a store. They were about two feet long and had huge black eyes and pink scales. We decided they were ice when we saw a spectator put out his hand to catch the drops of water the candles ?? were causing. Inside was a figure of a woman standing on her hands on the back of a horse at full gallop and several other human ice figures. In the silk stores we passed we could see rows and rows of lanterns and on the fronts were the flat lanterns similar to those on the one we entered. A second store had the ice lanterns and much more elaborate ones. One was a tombstone in a circular summer home effect. The stone and pillars were of ice so were the lanterns some three feet high and the lion such as is used to guard all palace entrances. Opposite this was a pagoda about 5 feet high, two huge jardinières 2 X 1 ½ ft, a clock with a face 1 foot in diameter a tall pedestal with a small vase on it and an ice mountain side. On the mountain side stood a tiny pagoda, a bridge, miniature figures, idols etc. All were hollow except the mountain. That was illuminated by candles standing on it. The hollow figures are made on models made of grass. Parts of water are poured over them until the ice is thick enough to be strong. Then the grass is pulled out. All month long the store keeper occasionally pours water over the figurines. They are displayed for three nights- the 14th, 15th, and 16th of February.

Last Tuesday we had compound supper at Dr. and Mrs. Smiths. We teachers take regular turns now. Flora was busy on her report for Trustee Meeting so took my turn at home to get extra time to write. Dr. Smith lead and had special prayers for each and every phase of the work, our school included.

The Trustee Meeting was one of deep interest. We are delighted that they voted to continue the school as though nothing had happened also to give us a new teacher next year if possible. We think the ABCFM and Presby. Boards will give more largely rather than have the project fail.

Our book "No 13 Washington Street" arrived last week and we are at work dramatizing it. I have completed two scenes; Delnoce one and Katherine is working on another. We have to give it the second week in May so must hurry.

Yesterday was a holiday for us. All the Tientsin children and Tsing Hua ones went home. Two others went visiting so we have only seven girls left. They gave a play yesterday afternoon then we served tea for all- young and old- over here. We had a right good time.

Last evening I took supper at Mrs. Smiths and Mrs. Huggins home. They had expected guests who failed to appear so Grace and I went and ate a most delectable meal.

We are still knitting. I think I am almost through and some one appears with a skein or so more of yarn. I am tired of it and loosing my own enthusiasm so it is not easy to get the children to help.

I hope you are all keeping well. I do not know if Flora has written recently. If not this is the first letter in three weeks. We are busy and happy you see.

Lots of love

Mary.

[This letter, dated March 3, 1918, was written from Foochow, China by Willard to the folks at home. He mentions Gould being in the aviation corps and the pressure that young men must feel to go to war. College opened up with the usual number of students. Foochow China
March 3- 1918

Dear Folks at Home:-

This is the old name I used to address you by when I wrote from Oberlin and Hartford over a quarter of a Century ago. It gets harder for me to answer all letters, with each year. I say to myself that it is because of increased responsibilities and I can make out a pretty good case. When I was in Oberlin I had the one home letter to write each week. In Hartford I had the same until the last year when my sweetheart was added. And in China until I came out alone in 1912 I had only the home letter to my own people. But in 1912 I had two homes to write to and now I have the same and there are other friends that are pretty insistent and then I feel it a duty to write to- like Mrs. Bean and Raymond and Mollie Jewett of Mt. Vernon. Then on this side the globe, much of Mr. Hodous's work has fallen on me and it all helps to fill up the chink of time I used to take to write letters in.

The last mail that came yesterday morning brought good letters from all our dear ones in the U.S. , Elizabeth, Emma, Phebe, Geraldine, Dorothy and Mrs. Bean, Dwight Goddard, Will Garland and others. The mail before this one brought one from Oliver and one from Gould that told us of his success in getting into the aviation corps. He enclosed the service flag and I suppose he is now in a training camp from all I hear and read it must be very uncomfortable at home for a young man, if he does not join the forces going to war.

The letters are all full of high prices, coal shortage, scarcity of some food products. We are feeling it to some extent but not as you do. We have had the coldest winter since I have been in China, but it has been dry and clear and I have enjoyed it- so has Ellen and so have the girlies. We have all taken a cold bath each morning and have been quite well. We eat more wheat for economy and can get sugar and meat as usual. My garden is furnishing all the vegetables we want- cauliflower, cabbage- Chinese cabbage the seeds for which I am going to try to send you in time for planting in the Spring- lettuce, beets, turnips, carrots, celery and we have had peas twice. My early peas were injured by the heavy frosts just as they were in bloom. The later peas are as fine as I ever saw and will be good in a week or two. I wish father could have my gardener for his farm. He is strong and faithful. Seven hens laid three eggs to day.

Feb. 8th We all started for Ing Hok and got back home Feb. 20. We had a delightful trip and I got a lot of reports and letters written and had six days with no prosecuted[?] work to do. Then the rest of the days we were there I had Bible Readings and addressed at the Conference they were holding. The girlies had a fine time with Eunice and Margaret Smith. On the Wednesday we were there we went into the country about five miles to a feast. While at dinner there was as severe an earthquake as I ever experienced. It did no damage near here= except to topple over some old walls that were ready to fall. But in Swatau some thousands of people were killed by falling walls and the buildings of the Presbyterian mission were made uninhabitable.

College opened last Thursday with about the usual number of students. The most gratifying factor is the number of old students that return. They are practically all back. There is a very evident increase in the thirst for an education among the young of both sexes in Foochow. This is one of the most hopeful signs for the Chinese nation.

Red Cross and War Relief are after us from all sides for money and there has been a greater urge on the part of needy students for help than formerly. One boy has depended on a relative who is on a Chinese gun boat for help at the beginning of each term. He does not know where this relative is now and I have advanced him $10. Three or four others could not return without aid and I have given it, as it takes only $5 or $10 to make it possible with what he can get for him to continue his work. Now I must get to work and write letters to see if I can find the money.

I wrote you of the visit of Mr. Buchner and party last December. He is coming again the 15th of this month. Sherwood Eddy is also coming then for special meetings with men who have been prepared to hear him.

I wonder how Father will get along on the farm this year- can he find College boys who will put in his crops? I wish I could come home and do it.

You are wondering how I could write all this and not mention Miss Nancy Nichols,- I have thought of her much and after. What a lot of sunshine she will bring to the home. Does Stanley know how to hold her. He never had the experience in baby tending that the rest of us had. He only furnished in himself the baby for us to practice on. Did I write you that on the evening of my birthday as Ellen was surprising me with a little dinner party, Margaret Elizabeth Leger arrived at 7:40 p.m. and Kathleen said at once, "Why Papa you and she are twins."

Thank you Elizabeth for the Bank receipt for $30.00- interest on the $1000 note. As to the $100 from Ruth. Will you put it into the Derby Savings Bank for me. [Added later- If Liberty Bonds will be better buy $100 worth for me.] Exchange is so bad here that I will wait a while at least if that is all right. Do you want a receipt? In what form? How sweet the memory of Ruth is. Dr. Philips wrote recently and spoke very nicely of her as does every one.

Huntington will greatly miss Mrs. Hawley.

With love to all

Will

Foochow China
March 3rd 1918

Dear Stanley, Myra and Nancy Nichols:-

I congratulate you all in the happy arrival of Nancy. How I should have enjoyed seeing Papa try to hold her the first time. You see I had a lot of practice before my own babies got here- and the new papa furnished no small part of it. But Stanley had no one to practice on. Now you are a family of three and the third member is the center of the home and of the universe. Let it be so and enjoy it. God wants is to. What shall we do when Kathleen is no longer our baby with us. I cannot begin to express the joy I have taken in having the girlyies with us the past year and a half. We look forward to two years more of it and then in 1920 we plan to take them home and come back without them.

Gould is one happy boy- if he is as happy now as when he wrote on the evening of the day he passed his tests for the aviation corps. I have never known of his being so exultant over any thing. He is where he wants to be and where he believes God wants him to be and both Ellen and I are glad with him. The war is bringing the world together and by its demands is making every inhabitant think seriously. It does not yet greatly affect us. We buy almost nothing that comes from the U.S. and we eat almost entirely things that we can get here. Prices are higher but not seriously. A few things we cannot get- black darning cotton for instance. My garden is now in the prime and is giving us all the vegetables we can use. I have a lot of seeds just arrived from Burpee's- corn, beans etc that I shall plant as soon as it rains. The drought is getting very serious. Wells are dry and people are getting sick from using bad water. Our wells are as yet all right- some schools in Foochow City have been obliged to postpone opening for want of water.

The North and South are still fighting- over power-Foochow is full of soldiers. They say the South will take it in a few weeks. In the mean time we go on with all our work as usual.

The bell has rung for the students to go to bed so I will say good night and add a word sometime tomorrow.
March 5th

College is again in full swing or trying to get there. We are changing from 30 min. classes to 45 min. classes and teachers and students are a little at sea to know just what to do. But thus far there is a good spirit. About the usual number are here. We thought we could spread out a little and not be so crowded but the boys came and we are crowding them in.

The one secure feeling that I have now with the nations of the world at war and China, Russia and Mexico in the throes of internal war, is that God is on His throne and waiting till men get rid of these wicked minds to pour out blessings on them. May He bring peace in His own time.

With all love and praying the Father to give you the best things
Will.

Dear Aunt Phebe

Thankyou very much for the letter you sent me, and for sending Edith's too. Friday Mama Marjorie and I went over South side to a friend of our's. There is a school over there and we went to their exercises. Then we stayed over night and went home the next day.

I expect there are lots of signs of the war in America, but out here everything is natural.

I have heard of sugar famines do you have one? We don't we have as much sugar as any thing.

There have been a good many baby's this winter. There was Pricilla Belcher, Margert Elizabeth Leger, Margert Shippen Stors, and Kathleen Findley McConneaol. Three other babies are Charles Jorden Gillitte, Elizabeth Waterberry Beach, and Edwin Francis Jones.

Marjorie and I are the oldest children in the compound.

March 10 We are having rain today, This is the first rainy day that we have had for seven months. It is just pouring today. The Chinese were so in need of rain that they sold water in the City at three cents two buckets. Then they took an idol and paraded around the streets and took it in to the river and showed it how shallow the water was. I will tell you my height and weight. I am four feet four ½ in. height and 73 pounds. Could you please tell Edith that I thank her very much for her letter.

With lots of love to all the farm

Sunday P.M.

[March 1918]

Dear Ones at Home,

We can not complain of nothing interesting doing about us these days. Last week Monday six of us walked to Peking and had a most delicious Chinese feast at a native restaurant. We were ravenous but the food was plentiful and extra good.

Dr. Love was of the party and when we reached the Old Stone Bridge (some 2000 years old) he suggested cutting across by the dirt roads instead of following the stone road. We were ready for any suggestions and had all followed the stone road on previous trips so took the suggestion. Near the end of the walk it came out that there had been a suspicious death in a camp we thus avoided. We returned that evening by train and it was well we did, for we have been in quarantine until this morning when a regular passenger train visited us once more. We have had a special every day to bring mail, freight and depredations to investigate but we have not been travelling.

Whether the case was plague or no is uncertain as no others took the trouble and the few who did have some slight ailments or symptoms all recovered. No Case of plague has ever been known to recover. Dr. Love and Mr. Gordon have been on the road all the time watching the suspected camp, Doctor having been home once for half an hour in the week. There are other cases of these and one death in a camp two miles farther away but we are not quarantined as that takes the trouble some six or seven miles from us. Of course, this has kept us in quandry as to whether we could have any spring vacation. How things look hopeful and we will have it unless Dr. Love disappears.

On the 13th we started in practicing for a double quartet. Mrs. Porter and Jean are sopranos, Mrs. Corbett and I altos, Mr. Porter and Mr. Woodall, tenors, Mr. Beers and Mr. Wickes basses. We have great fun at rehearsals and to day made our first public appearance at church. Our hour of practice is 9.00 P.M. on Wednesday as it is the only time we are all five together. Miss Bostwick has been ill with a bad cold all week but is some better. She goes with the children on Thursday to TeChow to stay for the full ten days. I hope she gets rested for she is too worn out to do effective work and she will not go to bed and give herself a chance to recuperate. Perhaps a household with a doctor father and a doctor mother will make her do so.

Mr. Woodall who was leaving on a commission to escort coolies to France has of course lost that commission since no more coolies are being sent. He does return to America in June and will enlist. Mr. Beers has agreed to stay one more year. He is here, knows the work, has enough of the language to help and is doing good work apparently. Mr. Jordan is doing only relief work and has charge of the men on the stone road. Mr. Stelle returns this week from a months stay in the flooded district. Everywhere work is short two or more workers who are off for flood relief or plague work. Doctors are a scarce quantity with eight in Shansi and one at frequent intervals all along lines where there is, or was, or may be trouble.

Phebe's letter of Feb. 3 came this week and I stopped in the middle of school to read it for evidently we have lost one on the way and this was the first since a letter dated Dec. 23 sent by Willard and one Dec. 16 direct. The severe cold and the coal shortage must have made the winter hard. Sometimes I feel two luxurious here. Sugar is plentiful, wheat flour as cheap or cheaper than any other, coal in abundance and meat a plenty. So the meatless, heatless, sweetless, and wheatless days or meals are mere words to us. There was a clever poem on the subject in the Digest recently. Did you see it?

I hope that Father continues better and that the rest of you are well. May's illness, I was sorry to hear of. Please convey my love. Also please take a share to Uncle Dan and Aunt Ella and tell them I am glad to hear such good reports.

Mrs. Hawley will surely be missed in Huntington. She was rightly named "A good citizen."

Mr. Corbett gave Flora a pretty compliment. When she was in Shanghai he asked how things were going. Everything was apparently gliding smoothly and I stated as much. He replied, "It is a good manager who can leave his work and have it go on just the same in her absence."

I gave Phebe's message of love to Mrs. Corbett and she wanted me to send hers to you all. She is a dear lady.

Mon. Mar 25,-

It is almost Stanley's birthday and now for a few months he and I have only one year difference as we give our ages in years.

It began to rain Saturday evening and kept it up all day yesterday. When the rain ceased, the wind rose and has blown a gale all night and so far this morning. On the fourth floor we get the full benefit. It reminds me of "Rock-a-bye-Baby, In the tree top."

We do not need the rain this spring because so much water got frozen into the ground that it is very wet as it thaws out.

How I should love to see Nancy Nichols! The compound baby is getting old enough to be afraid of strangers and I do not see her often enough to cease to be a stranger.

We are looking for Willard to come up this summer but he has not yet set any date for us to expect him. I do wish Ellen and the girls were coming too.

A year from now we will be excited over the prospect of home in June. I hope we will not have the prospect of having our boat taken off for war usage that those booked on the Canadian lines have this year.

I must close this ramble with lots of love to you all. Flora's union suits came this week also 5 pair of stockings. The bills inside and out were different so we do not know whether a pair was taken for toll en route or left out. Phebe wrote to expect 4 pair so since there are 5 I suspect the later. As my stockings are holding out thus far, and Flora's are not, she is taking the stockings; so please change the charge at your end.

Lots of love to you all

Mary

[This letter, dated March 1918, was written from Tungchow, China by Flora to the folks at home. She discusses the pneumonic plague and its seriousness. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

[March 1918]

Dear folks at home:-

At last we have received a letter from you. It is the first since the one telling of little Nancy's arrival. I am sure we have missed one or two. Also my union suits came this week and I am glad to have them so that I shall not have to keep the other old ones over the summer. We have had a very kind winter with not more than one or two zero mornings. I have had to put my underwear on with unusual precaution for it has been so tender that my fingers went through like paper but the weather has been so comfortable that now for two weeks I have been wearing my summer underwear.

To-day we are have [having] a bit of quite unusual weather. At home it would be called a northeaster but it is now clearing off and it may end up in a Gobi dust storm. It has rained quite steadily for twenty-four hours and all nature has expanded its thanks. The grass is green and we shall have some blossoms in a day or two on our flowering almonds. The children have been bringing violets in for two weeks.

This is our week for vacation to begin and we are still on the anxious seat about the pneumonic plague. You doubtless have had rumors of it in your papers home- up in Shansi and near the Great Wall. All the Peking doctors have been out fighting it. There is no cure, so they have just established quarantine whenever there was a case- sometimes sealing up a whole village and leaving a guard of soldiers to guard the gates, which meant that the people had to be left to die by themselves. This may seem terrible but the disease is so contagious that it seems to be the only way to stamp it out.

Two weeks ago when I came back from Shanghai, I saw a huge square of Chinese all squatting on the ground at Pukow (across the river from Nanking). When I asked the coolie carrying my suitcase why they were there under guard, he answered that they were sick. The Chinese word for sick and soldier are so nearly the same that I did not think much about it, but upon reaching Peking, I found that a Shansi official has come down into Shantung and died. His wife had traveled with him, had taken the disease and still traveled on at every place she stopped she left trouble and now rumor has it that there were twenty-four deaths in Nanking last week.

We have been having our own private scare- about four miles from here. One of the men working on the stone road between here and Peking died very suddenly on his way in to the hospital. It looked very suspicious although there is not conclusive proof that it was more than pneumonia. However the whole camp of eighty men was put into strict quarantine and Dr. Love has been in charge now for five days. To-day he was letting all but a few men out. One man should have died yesterday, but instead he is getting well! The test is very much the same as with the eating of toad-stools. For five days we had no trains from Peking and our mail had to come down by donkey. The trains started again to-day so we hope our experience is over. The children could not get home to Peking yesterday so they went to-day, wearing masks over nose and mouth. There was probably no need of it, but perhaps it was wise.

With all these happenings we cannot tell whether we will be able to go home. Travelling is such a dangerous thing just now. Here in Tungchow we are safer than anywhere else, in our big open compound away by itself. We are all hoping for warm weather soon for that is death to the plague germ. Between the plague, floods, and politics, poor China is indeed hard pressed. Out of it is coming some good for the people in the submerged districts are so eager for the Gospel that all the educational institutions are sending many of their teachers (foreigners) and many of the Chinese instructors down to help out. Now there is a request for the whole Theological student body to go. It is certainly a wonderful opportunity. Several women (foreigners) are out itinerating- in boats, for some places, where there were villages, are now fifteen feet under the water, and the poor villagers are huddled in spots near by.

While I was in Shanghai, I met a man who had just returned from New York and he said United States was a very different place from what it had been, especially the East. He said the people there were seriously in earnest, but he spoke of the West as showing little change as yet- as though they had not yet felt the situation. I am sure you have suffered far more than we here. It has seemed almost luxurious to me to be living so comfortably as we have this winter, while so many others have been sacrificing so much. We have had all the wheat, sugar, meat, and everything else that we have usually to eat, in an abundance. It did not seem a wise move to have the children go without any of these for I am sure in this country and climate children's food should be plentiful and as pure as it can be gotten.

On another paper I have written one or two needs. I am sorry to trouble you, for I know you are busier than me, and I shall not need many more things with just the one more year to plan for.

Two weeks later:- I thought this letter had been mailed and I wonder what you did get in my last letter- probably one of Will's last letters to us.

Since I wrote the first three sheets we have gotten off all the children who were going home for vacation. It has been proven by the plague experts that we never had any cases of plague near us nor in Peking. The cases were plain pneumonia. Because of this Mary has taken six girls out for a week's camping at the Western Hills, and Mr. Beers has gone with six boys about six miles from Mary's place where they are camping in an old temple. Word from Mary yesterday was enthusiastic with its good time. They will all return to-morrow. The weather has been ideal- not too sunny- for tramping.

I have been here alone with the exception of little Clarkson Stelle, whose father and mother are attending the annual mission meeting in Tientsin. I see little of him except at meal times for he is out playing with his two small chums- Dudley Porter and Hunter Corbett.

I have been getting a lot of work done such as having ink wells put into 36 desks, getting our front porch screened for the summer, setting out over a hundred roses, and over fifty spireas, making the walks around the school building, setting out three trees, cleaning our two buildings, and a few smaller kinds of work in the line of spring cleaning. I am not going to get all done that I wanted but some things can wait until June, and some will wait for another spring. I am very anxious to leave the school established so that our successors can put on the fine touches. I have been acquiring properties all this year- paid for from gifts mostly. A letter from Dr. Bain (whose daughter I chaperoned to Shanghai) tells us that he is sending us a check of $50 to be spent for the children and teachers. We shall probably invest it in school ground apparatus and maps.

With love to you all-

Flora Beard.

P.S. Phebe's letter to me for my birthday is here and thank you for it. I shall feel relieved to hear the last of your cold winter. It must have been a fatal one to many who were not strong. William Fenn (one of last year's boys) wrote from Mt. Herman school that there had been so much snow that they had not been able to do anything for fun out-of-doors. F.B.

[March 12, 1918]

Dear folks at home:-

The calendar with the picture of Ben's garage came yesterday. Mary and I have been having quite a visit with Ben, Wells, and Daniel in it, but we can't quite place the house. I think the barn is Ben's but Mary thinks otherwise.

To-day the Sentinels came- one telling of the death of Mrs. Edward Hawley. I wonder what her husband will do for a home now?

Three weeks later (at least) - nearing Tientsin for Shanghai. - The paper and the calendar are the last news that we have had from home, so we do not know how you spent Christmas. I hope Mary will have some good newsy letters from you when I get back to Tungchou. I am returning from taking one of our girls to Shanghai to meet her parents who are coming up from Singapore. Her father has been called to Washington D.C. - I imagine to help Mr. Hoover, for he was one of the Belgian Relief Corps.

School has been proceeding on very pleasant lines as usual this year. We are adding to ourselves pupils, materials, and more missions in the union standing back of the school. The Rockefeller Foundation, the Y.M.C.A., and possibly the American Business Association are to be added to the three already- Methodist, Presbyterian, and American Board. This means added money for supporting the school. We have been getting a fine lot of advertising free and it is just the kind that we want- lately- and our number of pupils for next year will probably reach to fifty. We like this but just how we are to house them all is the problem before us. We are assured of our fifth teacher next year and we may have the sixth. We want to have large enough faculty to do all of our own teaching without having to call on the people in the compound.

Will is coming up to spend the summer with us and we are looking forward to a good visit with him. We hope to get in some trips on our way to Pei Tai Ho and also to do some entertaining while there. We have been very fortunate in renting a brand new cottage for 100 taels (about $140 silver) so our rent will be no more than Mary and I have had to pay for one room per season. Miss Dudley wishes to spend August with us and that will help. If we should ask to have any parcels sent to Pei Tai Ho, will you please assure the home postmasters that it is an office to which parcels and any other kind of mail can be sent during the summer months. There are over 2000 people there in July and August and we have all the usual concessions to a summer resort.

North China has had its troubles this year – first, the floods which are not yet gone, and now the fatal pneumonic plague which has spread over such a wide territory. The hot weather will kill the germ so it can't rage much longer as the sun is getting farther north every day. Now Peking is entering on her yearly revolution- a little earlier than usual. Pres. Feng wants to resign but he is at a loss to find the official to receive his resignation, since there is no Parliament and no Vice President. Some of the wealthy Chinese are leaving bag and baggage to get away from feared looting. I do not know what is to happen but I hope it may be as peaceful as the others have been. Certainly our Central Government has not been of such character as to command our respect and confidence, and if a change could put a little backbone into the affairs of state every one would welcome the change.

Please excuse the extra quirks in this letter. The lurching of the train have been to blame for them. Do you realize that a year from now Mary and I will be booked for returning home?

Yours lovingly-

Flora Beard.

Report of the Shansi Plague Prevention Bureau 1918

Charles W. Young, M.D.

Peking, June 5, 1918

“Bubonic plague is transmitted to man from the infected rodent by the flea, with which this animal is infested. The flea leaves the body of the rat dead of plague and attacks man in quest of food – that is, blood. The only method of clearing a region of bubonic plague is to stamp out the infection among the rodents, which practically means eliminating the rodent from that area. This is an extremely difficult problem.”

“Experience shows that in India about 3% of those suffering from bubonic plague develop a secondary pneumonia. It should be noted, however, that except those who have pneumonia, bubonic plague patients do not infect others. There have been several small epidemics of pneumonia. Most of these have occurred in warm countries and the victims were usually the doctors or attendants in the hospital where the patient was being treated.”

Experience in the Manchurian epidemic showed that in pneumonic plague, infection is from man to man through the fine droplets of saliva or sputum coughed out by the patient, and our experience in the present epidemic would seem to confirm the opinion that this is the only method of infection. The difference in the ease of spread of pneumonic plague in India and in Manchuria is due, according to Teague, to the more rapid dissipation of the droplets coughed out by the patient in the warmer climate. He has estimated that evaporation is thirty times more rapid in the hot Indian climate than it is at the mid-winter temperature in Manchuria.”

“As we may safely assume that infection is only through the breath of the patient, the rational method of prevention of the disease is the isolation of the sick, the quarantine of infected communities – that is, the prevention of travel and trade between such communities and the uninfected country beyond. The methods of dealing with an epidemic of pneumonic plague are, therefore, very much simpler than those necessary for stamping out bubonic plague.”

Missionary Home

Shanghai

April 18, 1918.

Dear Flora and Mary;-

Why could not Flora and I have so timed out visits to Shanghai that we could have met here? I came up, - starting a week ago today- April 11- arriving Sunday April 14th. I went to Nanking on the night train to attend a meeting of representatives from the Presby., L.M.S. and Am. Bd. Bodies in China to consider a union of these three bodies. We were all pleased with the steps taken on the unanimous vote of those present to ask the three bodies to appoint a comm. to draw up a basis of union to be submitted to the three bodies. - All the machinery is now in motion for the organic union of these three churches and as many others as will join.

I had a rich experience on the way up from Foochow. We have had a Circus in Foochow- a good one, with trained elephants, tigers, lion, bears, monkeys, zebra, Shetland ponies and horses. All these animals and the whole troupe- some 17 Europeans and a whole raft of Indians were on the ship. I came Chinese- the whole thing- could not get even a Chinese room- so I slept with all clothes and shoes on in the center of the Chinese quarters, and ate Chinese food,- got on all right too- "not a qualm" as Flora said on her return from Europe.

Tuesday evening- after the conference on Union in Nanking Dr. F.K. Sanders and I took dinner with Mrs. Thurston at Ginling College and from dinner went straight to the train for Shanghai.

Wed. I was all day in the Advisory Council of the China Christian Educational Association. To day I have shopped- looked over the Commercial Press and given two interviews.

To morrow the China Continuation Comm. convenes and holds until April 24th. Dr. Smith and Miss Miner are here.

Sunday I called on Mrs. Marin. Your visit with her did her a lot of good. She spoke of it several times with great interest and pleasure.

Gould was in Shelton according to the last letters- waiting for his call to go to the training camp.

All were well in Foochow when I left. Mr. Hodous has asked to stay at home 5 years. Ray Gardner and his fiancé Miss Thompson are appointed missionaries of the Board in Foochow. Miss Wiley has resigned from the mission to stay with her mother. A telegram came to Shanghai yesterday a.m. telling us that Mr. Graham C.M.S. Foochow funing[?] had been shot by pirates.

College closes July 3rd. I shall take the first boat after that for Shanghai. I have not yet decided about route from Shanghai to Peking 2nd class on the train from here to Nanking is all right for a lone man and is half the price of 1st class- I want very much to go one way by train- and do not greatly hanker after the steamer.

In these uncertain times- with the whole world at the most savage war ever known and with China in civil war it is good to know God and to know that He is at the head of things and will straighten out the world as soon as men will allow.

Lovingly Will

[April 21, 1918]

Dear Ones at Home-

Last week was my week to write but I let the time slip by and like the farmer's son, "the whole week is gone and nothing done." To go back to vacation, Flora wrote of her days here. I took a party of girls to the Western Hills. We had one servant and used the caretaker for cooks. The donkey or donkey boy carried lunch for all day picnics.

We got out there Wednesday noon and spent the rest of the day making beds, settling, exploring our hilltop etc and trying to get a fire for a hot dinner. The next day (Thursday) we went off to the west and followed the river valley for miles up to some limestone quarries and a most interesting cave. In the cave were stalactites and stalagmites beautifully formed. We entered near the top of a mountain and went down about 200 or 300 feet into its heart. Just below the entrance was a small temple kept by two priestesses. No priest was in evidence but four small boys acted as guide to see us about. One old woman beat a drum "to call up the spirits of the cave to see us safely down and back." She beat and called for several minutes before we were permitted to go through. On Friday we went off across the river, and over the plains to the south to a temple called Chieh Tai Ssu (Je Tie ssl) at the temple is a wonderful huge white barked pine. The temple was built in the 8th century and was used as a resort by Chien Tung. There we went into a second cave. This one was larger and had many passages, low and narrow leading off from the big hollow. We followed them until the smoke of the torches nearly suffocated us. We crossed the river on ferries and they are most unique. The current is very strong in the middle of the stream. The natives have only man power to propel the boat. So they have a cable stretched across the river. This presses against a rotating, upright wooden cylinder and the men pull on the cable to get us across. We all got on, girls, donkeys and donkey boys. Our fare (or rather what we paid) was 20 cents for the party of 19 counting two legged and four legged passengers too.

Written in album: "Trip to Cheih Tai Ssu – Ferryboat, Donkeys ride with us"
[Both photos from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

On Saturday we went in the morning over the hills to a big cave where we gathered some fine clear white crystals and loafed around to gaze at the views. We were home for lunch and about 4.00 started down the hill to visit a very old temple on a hill just across the railroad. Near the base of the hill are several door spaces built into the hill side. They were built by a eunuch many years ago. He had connived the idea of drowning out Peking to get out the reigning Emperor and putting himself in power. Two more girls joined us that night so we returned in time to wait on the embankment for the evening train. On Sunday we walked over to Wo Fo Ssu, or the Temple of the Sleeping Buddha. En route we stopped in the old Hunting Park which was demolished by the French and English in 1868, as a part of the punishment for mistreating English subjects. The grounds are still beautiful with the lovely old trees, winding paths, brooks and ruins. We next went to Bi Yun Ssu where there is a room containing statues of the 508 followers of Buddha who followed him from Tibet. One was a cripple and a friend carried him all the way. Some brought pet animals, cats, dogs, birds, etc. The three leaders hold positions of honor in the center of the room.

It is a regular maze to wander about the corridors. There we drank from a natural sulphur spring. We climbed to the top of the fine towered pagoda and had a fine view of the country. There were 104 steps. Wo Fo Ssu is rented for 99 years by the Y.M.C.A. so quite modernized and well repaired. It is quite a popular place for week ends or for a summer resort. We came in on Monday and had Tuesday to get cleaned up and tidied up for school.

Our double quartet still thrives. Last night we gave the Bridal Chorus for "The Rose Maiden" at a college stunt night and sang a round and popular sing for a second number. We appear in church again soon in a selection from Elijah.

Our Red Cross work grows apace. I have returned 8 sweaters, 6 scarfs and 1 pair of socks. We have 9 sweaters, 14 scarfs and 6 pair of socks largely done. This week we commence making pillows for convalescents by filling them with bits snipped from the left overs of the garments. Also those not already at work start on the colored squares for afghans for convalescents. I am nearly to the neck of my own third sweater. I have it at hand every where except in school, church and dining room. How Ruth would enjoy knitting and how well she could do it.

We have had a nice letter from Elizabeth lately. The Sentinels come occasionally and are most welcome.

Tomorrow we are up early to be off for a day of sight seeing- The British Legation with the story of the siege by Mrs. Stelle, Coal Hill and the Winter Palace. It is a full day but the places are near together.

How awful the war news has been. We pray that the lines may not break and that the end may be near. The paper that said we had had only the "honey moon" and the real fighting was to come, proved a true prophet. What do you hear from Gould. I hate to think of his getting into it, but love him the better for volunteering.

I do hope you are keeping well and that some help for the farm appears. The papers even mention importing help and I wonder if they will do it.

The people here are much upset in plans because the express boats are all commandeered. Now our only connection is by Japanese lines and small boats, 8000 tons or so. Dr. and Mrs. Love are forced to wait until July so are others we know. When will it end!

I must get into bed for my 6.00 A.M. rising. Already I am in my night robe as it will be a short process.

Lots of love

Mary.

April 22, 1918.

Dear Dot:-

I am again in "E" week. Things have been happening lately and work is piling up. Our school held a review last Saturday to which all the Parents, relatives, and sweethearts were invited. I would have invited Annie and some one of the Aunts but I have no dress uniform as yet and I didn't want to take anyone around here on such a day as that in these old togs.

I am getting a uniform made. It will cost me $55 for suit alone but will have to have it sometime anyway. I am sending a few pictures that a photographer took of us; the writing on the back of each explains it fully. I am also sending you a letter I just received from Mamma. Tell Phebe that I quite agree with Marjorie. You will see the point after you have read Mamma's letter.

I had hoped to be able to send you girls some money, but now with $33 per month I will hardly have enough for my own expenses.

Maude sent me a fine box of fudge the other day, I ate the last piece today.

I didn't study any yesterday, I was so tired that I slept all except at mess. My roommate was away on pass and there was no one here to bother me.

This week our squadron is five more smaller than last week. We had an hour exam in Military Law and a 2 hour exam in Motors besides the regular wireless exam. I got the motors pretty good but I rather think I just skinned by the Mil. Law. I knew the stuff allright but I just pulled a bone on two questions.

As my roommate says, this isn't studying, so good night.

Your loving brother, Cadet M. Gould Beard

Missionary Home
April 30th 1918

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

To night I am just going to begin this letter and hope to finish it tomorrow. I left home a week ago last Thursday just after lunch. A circus had been in Foochow and the whole thing – 17 European Performers- countless Indian workmen, two elephants, 7 horses, a dozen ponies, a zebra, 2 tigers, 1 lion, 4 bears, hyenas, dogs, monkeys-

all came with tent poles and pins etc. etc. I never saw a steamer full before. The China Merchants refused to sell a ticket, either Chinese or foreign. But I was due to attend three important committee meetings, and I decided to go. I found that a tea house had a room in the Chinese quarter to see and they told me they had one in the Chinese official quarters. So I bought two rooms- one for two Chinese who were with us and one for Mr. Eckerson of Amoy and myself, when we reached the ship the Chinese were all right, but the man could not produce our room, so we had to just lop down in the midst of everything and everybody. We each had a Chinese bed bottom and that was all. But we had a very smooth voyage- and the Chinese food was good and I got on all right, - did not feel a qualm. During the day I was up on deck in the open air and at night I slept well- what more could I ask?

Sunday morning: - Last night I had a good sleep and rest and awoke to see one of the most beautiful days. It seems like Sunday.

To begin where I left off- We reached Shanghai a week ago this morning at a little after 7 o'clock. I went to Mr. Evans and got breakfast- a little wash and a shave, attended church and saw lots of people that I knew- Dr. and Mrs. Lacy, Miss Bosworth who now is in Shanghai helping Dr. Lacy, Mr. Luce, Mr. Petters, Dr. Gamewell, Miss Straw etc.- promised Mrs. Lacy to take dinner with her in the evening. After Lunch I went and secured my ticket to Nanking on the night train to start at 11 o'clock. Then I tried to find Helen Smith but she was away. I called on the Mains. Mr. Main is now Treasurer for all the Meth. Missions in China. Florence is a young lady and George is the size of and just like Orrin was when you left Foochow.

Then I attended the American Song Service in the Palace Hotel- a recent thing to provide a place of worship for many people who would not go to a church, then to dinner and then I met some Chinese who came to see me and then took the train. That night I really undressed and went to bed for the first time since leaving Foochow Thursday morning. Had a fine sleep and woke in time to dress and get off the train at Nanking at 6:50 a.m. There Mr. W. R. Stewart of the Y.M.C.A. met me and a lot of others. We went to his home for breakfast and straight to the Committee Meeting where representatives of the Presb. London Mission and Am B'd churches had gathered to consider meeting. We held two sessions that day and two the next, and a sub committee, on which I served, held two extra sessions. The result I am enclosing. This opens up immense possibilities in the way of union in China.

Tuesday night I took the train for Shanghai. Arrived at 6:50 Wed. a.m. - Sat breakfast and went at once to the meeting of Advisory Council of the Education Association. Thursday I shopped all day. That is one of the penalties a man has to pay for coming to Shanghai.

Sunday afternoon: - Friday the meetings of the China Continuation Committee began, and they will last thru next Wed. Then I pull out for Foochow as soon as I can get a steamer.

This morning I preached in the Foochow dialect to the Foochow speaking church organized four weeks ago here. Mr. Main was there and I went home with him to lunch, and found Helen Smith there also. You would scarcely know Helen now. She is almost as tall as I am, and a very nice appearing young woman.

All was well in Foochow when I left. On Wed. morning last a telegram was received saying the pirates had shot and instantly killed a Mr. Graham, missionary of the C.M.S. in Foochow. His station was Zuhning about 90 miles up the coast from Foochow. Two foreigners are now in the hands of bandits who are holding them for a ransom- in North China.

I suppose Mama has by this time heard from Gould or from some of you as to where Gould's camp is. The last letter told us he was at Shelton waiting for the summons to go to training camp.

The last letter also brought from you the story of your "Romance." Mama and I talked it over and decided to suggest in case anything ever again came up in which you felt the need of wise counsel that you should go to Mr. Vander Pye or Mrs. Vander Pye. I feel sure you would find in them sympathetic counsellors, and wise ones. You were surely put in a very difficult position.

Mama is some concerned about your so-called outside work. She feels that you are doing too much. As I read your letters you do not profit much by the Y.W. work as treasurer. You feel that while you are in the Y.W. Cabinet and group you are not one of them. The work to you is somewhat irksome and you at times feel that your associates are appearing to be one thing while they really are another. Now under many conditions I should say stick to the job and influence the others to be what they profess to be. But this next year is your last in college. My strong advise is not to take too much work of any kind. You have had a strenuous year this year. I do not want you to graduate all tired out, and from your letters I should say without hesitancy- drop the Y.W. treasurers work.

How goes Dot's school work? Is she getting to the head of the class? I hear of her life in other lines but not much about the school.

Keep near to God, let nothing prevent you from getting a few moments alone with Him and His Book every day. With lots of love to you all, Your Father

Willard L. Beard

[This letter, dated May 5, 1918, was written from Foochow, China by Willard to the folks at home. He tells about his trip from Foochow to Shanghai on a boat full of circus people and animals. He mentions many missionaries he saw in Shanghai. They were all there to attend the China Continuation Committee meeting. He tells of the murder of Rev. H.E.C. Graham by pirates. Foochow China
May 5th 1918

Dear Folks at Home:-

I hope you have heard from me since I wrote direct to you for it has been a long, long time since I have directed a letter to Century Farm and I have done a lot of things since then, - among them has been a trip to Shanghai and Nanking. I went to Nanking to meet with representatives of the Presbyterian Church in China and of the London Mission Church and of the Congregational Church to discuss a plan of union. The results I am enclosing on a separate sheet. I was there April 15 and 16th.

I went from Foochow to Shanghai in Chinese steerage- did not take off my shoes or my overcoat all the way- was on the ship three nights. We had a circus in Foochow in April and the Circus got ready to go to Shanghai at the same time that I did. There were about 20 Europeans in the circus and they more than filled all the cabins on the little coast steamer. So I had acrobats and elephants and tigers, lions, bears, monkeys, leopards, trained dogs, ponies, horses, a zebra, etc. and a lot of Indians as fellow passengers.

I ate Chinese food all the way and was not seasick once. However I found a cabin in first class coming home and paid $36 for it. My ticket from Foochow to Shanghai cost me $11.50.

In Shanghai I saw all the old Foochow friends who have moved there to live. Mr. and Mrs. Mann, Florence and George, Dr. and Mrs. Lacy, Miss Bosworth, and Helen Smith. While I was there I stayed at Mr. Evan's= Missionary Home from Peking. There were at the same place Dr. Arthur H. Smith and Dr. Luella Miner, both of our American Board Mission. We had a table by ourselves. It is not necessary to add that I had good company and a pleasant time. [Smith and Miner were missionaries in Tungchow and went into the Legation for refuge during the 1900 Boxer Rebellion.]

The object of my visit to Shanghai was to attend the Annual Meeting of the China Continuation Committee. This Committee is composed of about sixty men and women from all over China, from all denominations and includes Chinese and missionaries. This year there were present 37 missionaries and 13 Chinese. The work of the Committee is done thru its committees. Of these there are about 15. Here are the names of some: Committee on forward Evangelistic Movement

- “ “ The Chinese Church
- “ “ Theological Education
- “ “ Christian Literature
- “ “ The Sunday School and Bible Study

These Committees are appointed this year and work on their report during the year and the report is mimeographed just before the meeting next year. The meeting next year will spend its time largely in discussing this report and adopting resolutions arising out of the report. This year we are sending to all churches in China asking all Christians to observe May 26 as a Day of Prayer for China. The last hour of our meeting was given to a special prayer meeting for China. At this meeting Mr. C.T. Wang Vice Chairman of the Chinese Parliament in Peking spoke. He is a member of the C.C.C. and was chairman of the Business Committee this year of which Comm. I was a member. He was exceedingly efficient. He said the present time was one of unprecedented peril for China. He did not know if China could survive. There were two sources of hope.

1. God still reigns over the race of men 2. There are among Chinese leaders several men who are true Christians-true men. Mr. Wong is now sympathizing with the South in the present struggle in China, but nothing that he said during the six days that I was with him conveyed the least hint that he was in the least mixed up in the present strife. His life is not safe outside of Shanghai.

The Girlies are writing Phebe and Dorothy. The last mail told us that Gould was in Princeton [military training in Princeton, N.J.]. The war comes nearer and nearer to us. One of the men active in both the Nanking meeting for union and in the C.C.C. = Dr. Gibson of Swatau, received a telegram as he landed in Shanghai telling him that his second son had been killed in action in the war.

As I arrived in Shanghai from Nanking a telegram had just come from Foochow to tell us that Rev. H.E.C. Graham of the English mission here, whose station was in the northern part of the province at Fuhning, had been shot by pirates. This was true. His body was thrown into the water. It was recovered only a day or two ago. The deed was done about 10 a.m. The pirate shot one of his boatmen. Mr. Graham stepped out on to the front of the boat and called to the pirates that it was a mission boat. But they shot him and he fell dead. The next day or two the Shanghai papers announced the holding up of a train in Honan, and the robbing of all the passengers of some $40000. This was on the road that my room mate, a Dr. McKenzie had come over and on which he was going home. The condition of the country is in part at least responsible for this.

There is now in China no government. There is no head, and this is felt everywhere. Lawless characters are taking advantage. Many see in the moves Japan is making, so many steps toward her complete command of China. Persistent reports declare that Chinese officials are continually selling out to Japan.

While I was away Ray Gardner, teaching in Foochow College and Adelaide Thomson were married= Apr 26th - Ellen and the Girlies went. I was to have married them, but as I could not be in two places at once Mr. Neff did the service. The wedding was a pleasant one despite a very rainy night.

To morrow is the anniversary of Ruth's home going. Every thought of her has brought joy with it. Hers was a life filled with the fullness of God. There is a great void here on earth. You at home realize it more than any others. But her spirit still lives and makes us better for her having lived. Within five months two men- workers in our mission have gone to Heaven. They were both graduates of Foochow College- one had been in charge of the boys school at Ing Hok for ten years or more. His Father used to travel thru Ing Hok field with me. This son was then in College and he had a younger son just entering the primary school.

He often said "I do not want my boys to try to earn a lot of money. I want them to be workers for Christ. This one has influenced many boys for good as they have passed under him in the school. The other boy graduated from Foochow College last January and has taken up his brother's work, with his brother's spirit.

The other young man graduated from Foochow College in Jan. 1915. He stood at the head of his class. He voluntarily entered the ministry at a salary of $17.00 per month while his classmates were getting $25.00 in other callings. His ministry was fruitful. The second year is a new place ten persons united with his church, and others were learning the truth. As I told of his death to a group of the students last winter one of them remarked at once, "all good men die young". I reminded him that for every good man who dies young many bad men die prematurely but they are not worth making remarks about while the death of a good young man is cause for regret and remark by friends and those whom he has helped far and wide.

The last time I wrote we were threatened with drought. The rain came the first of April and has continued steadily since- so now all the rice fields are looking finely with their little plants just set out in the water in rows about 9 in. apart. To day has been one of the most beautiful days I ever knew. Ther. at about 65 degrees, sun shining brightly and a gentle breeze blowing.

I spoke to a full church of nearly 900 this morning on the recent work I saw in Nanking and Shanghai. 17 were received to the church and one little boy baby about 4 months old, I baptized. The little fellow smiled most bewitching to me after I had finished.

College closes July 3. My plan is to start for Tungchow by the next steamer to spend a few weeks with the girl's at Peitaiho or on tramps as they arrange.

The world is upside down. It is now Good Friday. Easter must be coming. May God hasten its coming.

Under another cover I am sending you a photo of the delegates at Nanking from the Presbyterians, L.M.S. and Am. Bd. Churches who met to consider union [see following photo]. You will recognize me readily. Right in the middle on the lowest row is Dr. P.F. Price the chairman of the Committee. Behind him in the second row are Dr. Arthur H. Smith (full white beard) and Dr. Gibson (Heavy mustache). Behind and a little above and to the left of Dr. Smith is Dr. McKenzie, my room mate in Shanghai during the C.C.C. Just below me, seated a little to the left is our Foochow Chinese delegate Mr. Li (with glasses). These are all you will be especially interested in I think. The old gentlemen seated at the left on lowest row with hat in hand is Dr. Sydenstryker- how is that for a name. [This Dr. Sydenstryker is probably the father of Pearl Sydenstryker who married John Buck and became Pearl S. Buck, author of The Good Earth, published in 1931.]

Good night. The Spring weather makes me long to get home and plant corn and potatoes.

May God be gracious to you all

Lovingly

Will

The victrola records came perfectly and we all enjoy them greatly- Thank you.

Have I ever thanked you for the Christmas gifts. Stanleys gloves to me are just the thing. Ben's calendars are great and very useful. W.

I am sending some Chinese cabbage seed. Plant it at once and I think you will get cabbage all right. W.

Willard (top row far left) is pictured here in this photo of delegates at Nanking as mentioned in the previous letter. As Willard describes the photo: "Right in the middle on the lowest row is Dr. P.F. Price the chairman of the Committee. Behind him in the second row are Dr. Arthur H. Smith (full white beard) and Dr. Gibson (Heavy mustache). Behind and a little above and to the left of Dr. Smith is Dr. McKenzie, my room mate in Shanghai during the C.C.C. His hat is hard to see .in this photo.]

Foochow China

Dear Mother:

The last mail brought your good letter of April 8th. I note that the mortgage that Ruth held for me has been made over to you. She was putting the interest in the Derby Savings Bank for me. I would like this plan kept up.

To day I am sending to Burpee and Co. Phila. an order for garden seeds to the amount of $2.55. I am asking them to send the bill to Father. I am not sure that some of the prices of seed have not changed and there will be a charge for postage. To cover the charges I am enclosing four dollars= one $2.00 bill and two $1.00 bills. Keep the change to buy yarn for knitting.

Foochow Americans are in a Red Cross "Drive" for $10000. They are not likely to get it I am afraid. Altho we have done big things in this line.

By the time this reaches you I shall be getting ready to go north,- and I hope to start about the 6-10 of July. This has already compelled the girls to change their plans of certain trips they wanted to make. I am coming too late.

My garden continues to do well. We are now eating cabbage, string beans, lettuce, carrots. My Early Crosby corn planted April 1st is in tassel. How is that? The weather continues cold and for six weeks has been very wet with a big flood last week Friday- Sun. Sunday I went up into the mountains to visit a little church, which the mission is not helping at all this year. They are carrying on a little day school all their own with 30 nice bright boys. It is a stiff three hours and a half up there. I walked all the way up the mountain and half way across the plain, and all the way down the mountain. My calves are asserting their right to complain of lack of such exercise, but they are getting normal again.

Your letter makes me long worse than ever to get home and help on the farm. I had ten times rather do that than beg Red Cross money for the Chinese. Gould's letter from Princeton was full of enthusiasm.

We suppose Mr. and Mrs. Topping are in Japan on their way out to us. A little Topping is to follow in August so they say. Rev. and Mrs. Peter Goertz of the Church of the Redeemer New Haven are to sail Sept. 21- from San Francisco for Foochow.

My daily- hourly prayer is that God may mercifully look on this poor sin sick world and bring peace. May He be near and keep you all. We are all well.

Very lovingly your Will.

Ladies

May 12th 1918

Yesterday afternoon I made some thirty calls on Church members and learners of the Iong Gio Haeng church with Mr. Kiu Ging Nieng the preacher. It was one of the most interesting half days that I ever spent. We were all the time in the heart of the big city and calling on men of big business- not rich men but men who are doing the ordinary business of the city- making trunks- laquer ware- ladies dressing cases- brass manufacturer etc. But every one knew Mr. Kiu and were pleased to talk with him. The topic was always Christianity- and it was in every instance a welcome topic.

We called on the wife of a church member. Her husband was not at home. He united with the church a year ago. She was very angry. Every Sunday morning she hid his good clothes so he was obliged to wear his old clothes and he went to church. She scolded him. She tore up his Bible and burned his hymn book. In Feb. of this year while he was away from home the house caught fire. But the neighbors, among them a Christian, came in and put out the fire. The Christian was badly burned about the head. She said, "If that is what Christianity does for people I will not oppose my husband's being a Christian.." She talked most pleasantly with us. Think of the influence of one man like Mr. Kiu.

May 22 [1918]

Dear Ones at Home,

I wonder when I did write last- four weeks ago I think instead of two. These weeks have been full of work and play too. Flora and Miss Bostwick have taken the children to the Forbidden City on one Monday and to the Summer Palace on a Friday. Both trips were apparently successful. I stayed home and played guardian for the dozen or so smaller children. The first day we had a picnic lunch outside but it was rainy until 9.00 the second time so we ate within.

Our knitting is gaining. To morrow is an exhibit of all work handed in since May 1st. Our children have 8 sweaters, 5 scarfs, 4 pair of socks and over 60- 6 inch squares on their afghan to show for their handiwork. I handed in a sweater the 6th and finished another yesterday, so have two articles in. I hope I can go up to see the exhibit though. I do not know how I am to get away.

Jean gave the dress rehearsal of the last two acts of "The Merchant of Venice" last night and the final is tonight. The College Seniors were invited over last night. All the High School are in the cast.

Last week Thursday was the Red Cross Fete. Two friends in Peking gave entrance tickets for as many children as cared to go. Here were 21 besides these already provided for. We went at noon and returned on the 4.00 P.M. train. The children had a glorious time on the slide, for the first half hour when it was free, so as to get it well greased. They rode the camels and donkeys. They threw rings for canes and got about ten in the crowd. They ate ice-cream cones and drank ginger ale. They threw balls at the lines of dolls and won flags (since they do not smoke cigars). They threw balls at the three enemies in their trench and won more flags. They saw the 3 foot dwarf, the 8 foot 2 inch giant, the two legged goat, the six legged bull, the wild men and the bearded lady. The only things we did not do were get our fortunes told and see the Minstrel show. These did not open until four o'clock.

Flora and I were guests of Mrs. Felt last week Tuesday night to hear the Choral Club of Peking render "The Rue Marden" [?] It was very well done. The soprano was the same as in the Persian Garden in the winter so were the bass and the tenor, and all have excellent voices. The chorus work was excellent. We made them repeat "Wedding Morning" chorus.

May 27 Our school afghan is done. The children had the special privilege of knitting for an hour on Sunday to get it done for the exhibit today. I put it together and this morning crocheted a small scallop all around it. It was an article of many colors (12) but we had put them together to make a sort of pattern so it was quite pretty. The children thought it very elegant. Nearly every child had some part in the making. This is a repetition of the exhibit held last week.

I had a grand birthday. On Saturday we had a supper table all together. The children had written a poem and arranged for entertainment. We were most gay. I sat up very late to sew the afghan so slept until the rising bell Sunday morning. Really what wakened me was all the girls on the steps near my door singing "Come my Soul, Thou Must be Waking". It sounded very very well. Then I was given a tray with a cup of cocoa, ?? tart, a dish of fudge and a big bunch of roses. At night I had a cake with candles. There were only 16 so I had to have them all relighted once and 4 the third time.

We had communion at foreign service yesterday for the first time. Dr. Smith had the service and made it very impressive. Only six of the children are church members. We hope others may join this summer while at home. We who do not have the chance to attend Chinese church never go in communion but I hope this is only the first of many for us at foreign service. At the close of service Dr. Love read a letter from Dr. Young telling how very ill Mr. Murray Frame is with typhus fever. Tomorrow is the crisis. We had a special prayer then for him and the choirs are meeting this afternoon in prayer at 3.30. He has been ill since last week Saturday. They left for Tientsin to sail on Sunday morning and he had a fever of 102 degrees then. It goes to 105 degrees now nights. Dear Alice has had a most anxious – and sorrowful married life.

Mother's letter came yesterday. Mr. Beer's copy of the Christian Herald arrived in the next mail and got left here so I saw the picture of which she spoke.

There has been a lot of grippe about this last month. One of the girls has had rather a severe attack. I had a slight touch but one day in bed was enough to break it. Several girls have had a little. Often it takes the form of a headache only with them.

I am beginning to wonder if we have Jean Dudley next year. A certain man has been here most of the time for two weeks and things look serious.

I must close and comb my hair, just shampooed. There are some Birds of Paradise down by the mote and I want to go see them before they fly away. The latest report from the Union College school is very discouraging. They can not come to an agreement on the name. The one voted on does not suit all because in Chinese it is the same as that of the Government University and does not signify the union idea nor the Christian one.

I hope you are all keeping well. Mother you do famously on the typewriter. I shall look for my corsets soon.

Lots of love
Mary.

[This letter, dated June 9, 1918, was written from Foochow, China by Willard to the folks at home. Reports say that General Li's army in the South is being defeated. Many families will be moving up to Kuliang for the summer. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Foochow China
 June 9th 1918

Dear folks at Home:-

I have written a letter to Gould and Kathleen has written one to Phebe. I do not know where to send either so I am addressing the envelope to you. Will you read all letters not sealed and address and forward. Kathleen always seals her correspondence and leaves it on my desk for stamps and to be mailed. Gould's letter is not sealed- it may stick but you can open it, and read it.

I week ago today as we were coming home from the service of Prayer for America a very heavy shower caught us. The wind blew very strong nearly in our faces. The ricksha men turned about and set the rickshas back to the storm and we waited ten minutes or so until the fierceness of the storm was over. Of course we got some wet but nothing serious. Monday the water was ten feet deep on the rice fields and the only traffic between the city and South Side was by boats. It has been that way all the week till yesterday- sometimes at low tide men could wade thru but the boats have taken most of the traffic. Yesterday the sun came out in all his strength and to-day he has done the same. Now we must expect hot weather. Until now we have had it quite cool.

My garden keeps producing- we are now eating cabbage, string beans, swiss chard, lettuce, kale and beets, and I pick about 15 strawberries a day. Corn is getting ready- perhaps 10 days more.

To morrow the Sunday Schools of the city are planning to hold a picnic- all meet at the Y.M.C.A. and march out the North Gate to the Northern Altar and instead of worshipping heaven have a little lunch and tea with simple exercises.

Last week the students of Foochow were much agitated over the demands of Japan. Most of the government school students simply walked out of school and spent several days in trying to get the mission school students to do the same with, however, no success.

The report is that General Li's soldiers in the South are getting whipped. I think he is back in Foochow now and it is reported that he and his officers are afraid that the South will be victorious and the officers are sending their families way to the North.

This next week will likely see quite an exodus of people to the mountain. The ladies and children of the Belcher, Leger, and Newell families from our mission and some from the Meth mission are planning to go. The girls will likely go up the last of the week or first of next week.

I wonder how you are doing for farm help. It is still possible to get help so you can keep things going? Or have you rented the farm to some girls college for the season? The farmers near Foochow are very sad for the rice has been under water for five days and much of it is drowned.

To morrow is Stanley's and Myra's second wedding anniversary. It seems only yesterday, - and what lot has transferred in this two years? Can you send this down to them with our heartiest congratulations? Nancy of course is developing fast and is the sunshine of the home. Kiss her for Uncle Will when you see her.

Mr. Newell is thinking of going to Manila with a boy who is to take a course there in manual training preparatory to teaching it here in Foochow later on. He had a boy who was the choice of the faculty of the College and of us foreigners and the boys passport was all ready and the boat decided on when the Dr. found the boy had tracoma. The second choice was debarred for the same reason. The third boy has a clean health certificate and they will start as soon as the passport can be secured. We have a graduate in Shanghai preparing for teaching physical culture- to take care of the boys bodies.

The mail has not come from home for a long time. The last we heard was just as Gould had got to Princeton. George Hubbard is in the Aviation Corps. also. The war colors all things for us all

Very lovingly- to all
Will

On May 22 I enclosed in my letter to you addressed to Mother, $4.00 for seeds from Burpees and I intended to register the letter but forgot it. Did you receive it O.K.? Will

[This letter dated June 16, 1918 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his daughter Phebe. He wonders what his children in the U.S. are doing for the summer. There has been a lot of rain in Foochow and all rice on the plain is damaged. Previous Dean of Yale Divinity School, Dr. Frank K. Sanders arrived in Foochow and is the guest of Willard and Ellen. There are many illnesses in Foochow College and the cook of the school left. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Dear Phebe [daughter]:-

The years roll round so fast that I do not keep up with them. Day after tomorrow is your birthday. I am enclosing in this my check on the Putnam National Bank for $23.00. This is the amount this year. I do not know where to send it. Your letter by the last mail gives an idea of your summer address. So I'll just address it to 110 E. Coll. St. Oberlin, trusting that it will be forwarded all right.

I think of Oberlin as closed and you three are perhaps off already for the summer. Where? We hope you, Phebe, have the desired position in settlement work in Cleveland. It was interesting to learn that you had given up Kindergarten for something in the line of settlement work. It is all right. Trust God, keep close to Him. Be truthful and frank with Him and with yourself and honest with Him and yourself and you will make no mistake in your choice of a life work.

I was even more interested and greatly pleased at the changed attitude which you mention toward the Y.W. work. I tried to show in my last letter that I hoped you could stay on the job and my hopes are realized. More than a quarter of a century ago a man in Oberlin Seminary gave a talk on "Fret not thyself because of evil doers." I do not know what he said, but the injunction has always remained with me, and it has helped me to bear patiently with and to work with people who had ideas about things and whose practices were different from mine. In most organization the growth and development are not in a steady upward line. There are lapses and it looked to me as if this might be the case with the Y.W. in Oberlin last year. I sincerely hope the downward curve has now stopped and that the line is already taking an upward turn.

June 18. - A beautiful day- rare.

We have been in a continual state of flood for three weeks. All the rice on the plain about Foochow is dead, - drowned. We have had four days with sunshine in the last month and much of the time we have had to go in boats from here to Ponasang.

Sunday evening Mr. and Mrs. Topping arrived to be missionaries here in Foochow. On the same steamer came Dr. Frank K. Sanders formerly Pres. of Washburn Coll. and Dean of Yale Divinity School, now Secretary of the Board of Missionary Preparation. He is our guest. The Toppings are staying with Dr. and Mrs. Kinnear.

Foochow College is having a hard time of it these days. (1) A fever which some call "Port" fever- some "three days" fever has struck the students- so were ill yesterday. They are away from classes from three to five days. But it is review time and exams begin next week. (2) Last week the school cook ran away and left only his workmen to run things. They have been putting up poor food. The cook claims to have lost about $200 this term. The 5th of the 5th moon is a great reckoning day in China. He could not pay his bills on that day and so he is in hiding- and the boys are suffering for it.

In my next letter I will send you $60.00. This to pay the Life Insurance Premiums of you three girls. I have not written Gould any thing about his policy and he has not written me anything about it or his finances. But I think there is no doubt about his being able to carry it himself this year. It may be that his enlisting affects his policy altho I should think it ought not to.

The weather has been delightfully cool- we are still sleeping under two blankets. But the younger people with small children are getting the Kuliang fever. Mrs. Newell is going tomorrow. I suppose Mrs. Gillette and Mrs. Donaldson are there. Mr. and Mrs. Leger and Mrs. Belcher go up the last of the week. You knew Helen Smith was in the Shanghai American School. She is stopping with us next week when she comes down from Shanghai.

June 22nd – We have had three days fairly pleasant. Thursday before yesterday Dr. Sanders and I went to Kuliang. It was cloudy all the way up and rained gently all the way down - not a bad day- cool.

Belchers, Legers, Newells, Billings, Lacys, and a lot of others are up already. Two families from Shaowu, Riggs and McClure are here, - came Thursday. Riggs are off for Kuliang now. McClures go Monday. - Port fever is on the decline in this College. But Anglo Chinese Coll., C.M.S. College and Union College and several government Colleges are closing early- some before exams on account of the fever. May God care for and guide each of you-
With love, Your Father Willard L. Beard.

SOME collect stamps, others collect antiques but Mr. McClure's efficiency makes him a natural collector of treasurerships.

Mrs. R. W. McClure

CERTAINLY Mrs. McClure would be rated high by the Laymen's Inquiry standards for a missionary's wife. She finds a ready field for her talents in the home, school and business office. We find a ready use for her willingness to tackle sundry drab tasks in the mission community.

AGNES, 11, has won a reputation as dressmaker for paper dolls, and Joan, 8, has a way with babies which makes them stop crying and enjoy life.

Dear Sister [Phebe Kinney Beard];-

It comes to me at this time that it is your birthday today. Many happy returns of the day to you and take a kiss from me if you can imagine it.

I have flown. I was almost disappointed at first because to me it seemed perfectly naturell up there 4,000 feet up and I had sort of anticipated a good scare, however it began to be fun when the instructor told me to take the controls. We went bucking up and down to beat the band. When I just barely moved that joy stick the old shop would almost turn over. You know you empty you feel when you go down in a fast elevator, well it feels like a vacoume [vacuum] inside your stomach when you start to go down in a plane. Some of the fellows wouldn't look at the ground, but I'll swear, the higher I get the safer I fealt. The most fun I have had yet is landing rapidly from 2,000 ft. The instructor shut off the gas and just nosed down at about 60 degrees from the vertical. It seemed as if I was being pulled down and that the earth was just coming up to meet me. It was all great sport. Then when about 100 ft. from the ground we leveled off and went on a long glide. We settled gently until we struck the ground and bounced along a few yards. Landing is the hardest part of the game to learn. Yesterday we had 3 machines nose down into the ground with their tails in the air. One had its undercarriage and propeller all smashed to bits, but they had it flying within 4 hours again.

It will be about 8 weeks before I get out of here. The next week will be primary solo work, the 3rd advanced solo, 4th cross county, 5th primary formations, 6th advance formations and cross country work, 7th and 8th stunts. At the end of that time I hope to get my R.M.A. commission. We also have wireless, engines, gunnery, observation, and minature[?] range work, all of which we have to pass finals in to get our R.M.A.

I am living now in barracks with about 200 other men. The chow here is even better than it was in Princeton. It isn't served with the style and fussiness but the food is better. They have to feed us well, for we might keep over in the air from stomach trouble if we had poor food.

I am addressing this to Oberlin for I don't know where your summer address will be.

With lots of love,
Gould.

Dear Aunt Phebe;-

It is hotter here today than I have ever known it to be here in the U.S. We are supposed to have a half day off every Wed. so most of us fellows are lying around in the shade or on our bunks instead of going to town. I have been in the air twice, 45 minutes in all. Steering the ship comes naturel enough to me, although the first time I took the controls we went bucking and rearing around to beat the band. I tried to pull the ship above 4,000 ft. because the higher you get the safer you are, but the instructor left signaling me down so I had to come down to 2,000 ft and continue around the course at that height. It seemed naturel to be flying way up there and I was almost disappointed because it was so tame, but when I took the controls the real fun began. My next flight comes tomorrow at 6:30 A.M.

I have got to have two letters of certification before I can get my commission. They must come from men who know me well and who have known the family and can certify that I am an American citizen. I have asked Mr. Carpenter of Putnam for one and would like one from someone in Shelton. Do you suppose Dr. Shelton would give me one or could you suggest anyone better acquainted with me and the family. I can't think of anyone else just now. What are Dr. Shelton's initials and what is his address? Yesterday 3 planes stood on their noses. One was pretty well smashed up but the other two were flying this morning. Every time an accident occurs the "meat wagon" charges out on the field to bring back the pieces, but so far no one has been seriously injured. The wrecking crew are there generally soon after an accident also, and sometimes they have to pull the plane all apart to get it to the hangars and repair shops.

One hour of flying tires some men as much as half a day of work. We all are ready to sleep like logs, and it isn't any fun either to get up at 5:00 A.M. for Reveille. It is still pitch dark here at that time (and are on central time, the same that Oberlin is on.

The cotton is getting high and we are having corn already at mess. Chow is great here; egg-plant, tomatoes, wheat bread, watermellen, chicken stew, apple pie, roasted potatoes, lemonade, sliced onions, real butter; that was our lunch today and tonight we get ice cream. Good luck, lots of love and kisses to all,

Gould.

Dear Ones at Home,

What a long long time since I have written- four weeks! First I must say thank you for the corsets- which came all right and for the double handed holder. I shall take the latter to Pei Tai Ho so that we may have it to use if we wish to do any cooking. The next fall I shall use it in Chem. Laboratory and save some burns. I fear Tien Shi, the cook, would fail to appreciate it and we in the laboratories will find it very useful.

Our closing day was most successful. The day on either side were hot, damp and close but on Thursday was clear and a cool breeze blew all day. About seventy five guests came by the noon train. We had a picnic lunch on Mrs. Wicke's lawn as usual. Then many wandered over here to see the art books and laboratory books which were on exhibit. At 2.30 we were ready for the exercises. The other 5th [or 6th?] repeated the "Evangeline" which they had dramatized and staged last winter and the High School repeated their "Merchant of Venice". The primary children sang four little songs between the plays while the stage was being reset. Our outdoor "funny" was similar to the one we had for the play two years ago but a little improvement.

Two children, the Tuckers, were with us until the next Tuesday. The family were leaving on Wednesday night by rail for Japan en route home and did not want the expense of having the children go to TeChow and back.

This is a beautiful Sunday. A thunderstorm last evening cooled the air and has left enough moisture to keep things comfortable still. Dr. Porter surprised us by arriving last evening. She returns tonight. She has an offer to come to Tunghsien next year and give half time to the school. It is thought that the families in the compound will give her something for caring for their families and then afford her a full ?? I do not know her decision and think she does not either.

Mr. and Mrs. White, refugee missionaries from Turkey are to be here for the summer. The Yarrows, parents and five children, will be here next winter in the Love's home. Mrs. White is Holyoke 1915. They were over for a game of 42 last evening. This is the third evening Flora and I have spent playing games. It is a relief after school and knitting for every waking hour.

In spite of games, cleaning and packing, I have finished the last third of two sweaters, and one and a half pair of wristlets.

The Prices are already in our cottage since Thursday night. Mrs. Price has made the interior most comfortable and cozy. The Petter's came the week before and are about settled. They are having a "pung" put up to protect the home from the western sun. A pung is a frame structure covered with straw mats so as to keep out sun. We put them far enough from the home to not interfere with the circulation of air.

Both families want vegetables from our garden so we are to let them have what are so ready but can not be saved for fall usage, such as peas, string beans, radishes, beat greens (sugar beets but good when large) lettuce.

Since Thursday we have been eating with Dr. and Mrs. Smith. They and Mr. Wickes joined our family when the children left. They in turn have taken us in since we had to give up our dining room to the renters.

Miss Bostwick left Thursday night for Pei Tai Ho. We go next Tuesday or Wednesday. Our home is a new one and the owner goes home on Monday to put in the furniture. A card from Willard states that he leaves Shanghai July 13. His stay is to be all too short as he must start back August 24. We hope to get in some good times and a lot of rest for us all.

We had a fine letter from Cousin Carrie yesterday. It was very very nice to hear from her. Our last news from you was very good,- it was Phebe's birthday letter. That letter with the enclosures from Alzina Menger and Dr. Tucker was sent by me all right. There was a little slip saying that the letters were so interesting I was sharing them with you and that the first sheet of Alzina's was purely personal- and not of special interest. Dr. Tucker's told of interesting phases of the floods. There were two of them I think, which showed the development of the flood. [These letters are in the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

I shall await with interest ?? as to what Anna Beard is to do. I hope she gets a good position somewhere. This is such a good world to be useful in and so many useful things to do.

Our last German's General store in Peking is selling out. When Kieroff sold out I bought a large stock of paper. This is the last sheet of the last pad bought there. I shall have to pay more for what I buy now. That was three years ago so you see what a supply I laid in.

Have I written since Mr. Frame's death? He was ill for nearly three weeks with Typhus Fever. He had days and nights when we had high hopes and ones when we were very anxious. His heart never was very strong and could not stand the long strain. Alice is a wonder. They were married the spring or winter before we came out and have lost two children. Little Rosamond, a little over a year, is a darling robust child whom we all adore. Alice is not going home this year at all but will take up whatever work the mission wishes.

We were registering as American citizens at the legation this week and were asked if we had birth certificates. Would you please get a certificate for Flora also one for me. On our registration we gave Dr. Shelton and father to be referred to in care of a question as to our birth from American parents. We will need the certificates when we start to get passports next spring.

I enclose an address. Please send a check for $1.25 (one dollar and a quarter) to be deposited to said account. Miss Bostwick purchased a hat of that value for me and prefers to be paid in gold.

I must get ready for church. Just think there are 35 people in the compound inspite of vacation. I hope father and mother keep as well as the last letter stated. I hope for a letter that Mrs. Platt was better.

We are anticipating Mrs. Martin's return very much with first hand news from you by word of mouth.

Lots of love

Mary.

June 25, 1918.

Dear Grandpa;-

Things are going finely here for me. Each day I get a higher mark in flying and better compliments from my instructor. I don't mean that I am any better than anyone else, but I am working steady progress and that is more than some of the previous fliers in my class are doing. Today I took my first solo flight. I had made 8 landings in 40 min when the instructor suddenly stood up and said "You can make these landings as good as I can." Then he got out and motioned me to start her off and off I went. It was great to think that I was my own master and doing the thing absolutely alone. As I was landing, a ship suddenly shot out ahead from under my right wing. I had turned off the power and was gliding at a steep angle; I pulled out of the glide and gave her the gas and went on around the course again. When I got back and finally landed the instructor ran up and nearly choked me with compliments for quick action and good judgement. The ship had been flying about 200 ft below me just under my wing so that it was impossible for me to see it until I nosed over and had glided some 500 ft. Two days ago we managed to smash up 3 ships in landing on the dual field. I haven't had a single miss hap yet, but I am expecting one sometime. They usually get fellows in this game sooner or later.

We have some expert fliers here. Some of the students in the final stages can handle a plane as prettily as the men flying over the lines in France. I was watching four of them over the stunt field today. They went through about all the stunts possible. One of the prettiest is the "barrel roll" where the plane screws into the air horizontally. One fellow spun 7 times to the right and 8 times to the left on a long tail spin and ended up 900 ft off the ground.

We had some fun in Engines today. Six of us men working in pairs tried to set up the ignition system on a 7 ?? Aviation motor. The first two balled it all up. My partner and myself got it OK except that when we started the motor we had about 15 good hard explosions from the exhaust and when we investigated we found that we had timed it to explode on the exhaust stroke. The next two got it OK except that the motor would not run. The instructor finally had to show them that they had merely left the ground switch on, when he pulled that, she went finely. Those 8 cylinder, double ignition, V motors are great puzzles when you first come up against them.

I found out today something that makes me glad that I came down here instead of asking for a 10 day leave of absence when I graduated from Princeton [USSMA Princeton]. The other half of our class, that of June 15th, had to come down to concentration camp at Dallas, Texas, to wait until there is room at some aviation field for them to fly. Some of the fellows from our class who did get 10 days leave, and who took great pleasure in telling us that they would go to Riverdale[?] or Rockford[?], Ill. had to go with them to Dallas. I'll bet they never will finish kicking themselves for doing so. They may come rolling in here in about a month and then we will have the laugh on them. I don't know how or where any of you folks are. I haven't had a single letter yet.

Saturday I met two of my friends. One is Ivan ?? from Putnam and the other an old college house mate. I had no idea that I knew anyone here in San Antonio.

Texas goes dry today I believe. Most of it was dry anyway from the 10 mile radius law around Army camps. I can't even get soda water now, because of the shortage of sugar to make it. Coca Cola is out of the quarter[?]. I didn't mean that I drank any alcoholic beverage before, I just meant to comment on the dryness of this State.

I suppose the corn is now about 6 inches high, the grass is beginning to look like haying time, the oats are getting heads on the stalks, and now apples are beginning to form on the trees back there in Conn. There aren't many trees in sight from the ground here, but when you get in the air there are plenty of them scattered over the country.

Good luck to you all in all your work. Love to all,

Gould.

Dear Ones at Home,

Last week I wrote you and promised to enclose an address to send the $1.25 for Miss Emily Bostwick. Then I sent the letter in a hurry by Dr. Porter and forgot the address. I will enclose it this time also a draft for fifty dollars ($50). Please give twenty (20) dollars to the Shelton Congregational church. I meant to send five a year to my own home church and have not, so send the lump sum for the last four years. I will send or bring the contribution next year. The rest I may need for deposit with father. I am not quite sure how my accounts stand with him.

We are getting to be "money magnates" out here. We buy Chinese bank notes at 62 cent silver for $1.00 for railroad tickets so travel at low rates even through first class. We hope Willard can do the same in Tientsin.

We came down a week ago. We left Tungchow Wednesday morning and sent the servants straight through with the baggage. We stopped off in Tientsin to do some shopping and came in on the night train. Our new home is not complete so we are camping out in another home. We have the promise of the home for tomorrow so will probably celebrate the fourth by moving. We had Mr. Mather to lunch the first day after we had breakfasted with Miss Bostwick and Mrs. Sheffield.

Everyday, at least once, we walk over to see our house. Yesterday when some extra furniture arrived we had it taken directly to the home and today we send over the heavy pieces from here. As usual this place is full. One woman with two children arrived yesterday to find her home rerented. I knew the story. She had repeatedly failed to pay her deposit on the home and only a money deposit holds a home after June 1st. I hope she found a home but have not heard.

A letter from Dr. Galt tells us that Miss Parsons comes on the same steamer as he does but we know not when. Dates are contraband goods so confiscated by the censor.

The papers tell of rising waters in our flooded districts. One train was several hours late because of the water. In Tientsin, Mr. McCann, tells that there has been a gradual rise for some weeks. The heavy rains this spring certainly are redistributing the water to a much larger extent than usual.

Dr. Elizabeth Lems[?] who owns this home arrived last evening so today we move into one room instead of spreading our selves over two. There are 35 new homes here this year. Some people have built what will be the servants quarters later and are living in or renting those this year. It is an economical way to build.

I wonder if Gould can get home very often. You have spoken of one visit in his khaki. It is good he can take his practical work on Long Island and not have to go to hot Texas at this season.

Phebe's letter was here to greet us and the next day came Mrs. Barretts redirected from Shelton. We are waiting for another letter telling us who and how many of Willard's girls are to spend the summer with you. I can not realize that Wells is big enough to be Father's right hand man. Wait till I try a year as real farmer when I get home. The costumes in the fashion magazines look so attractive and so much better suited to the work than skirts. I am already used to bloomers for mountain tramps and skirts only half way to my knees for swimming. He have a garden even down here- a dozen heads of lettuce brought from Tunghsien.

On Monday we went to the Red Cross and folded our first gauze. I hope to get over again today for an hour. In the afternoons different ladies pour tea. We are invited to do so next Wednesday.

Flora had a new outside made for her bathing suit and has promised to go for a swim(?) with me today. I shall go even if I go alone.

There is a most peculiar dog outside that looks like two dogs running side by side. One side is black with small white spots and the other white with black spots. Even his tail is of two colors.

Phebe's letter told of Mrs. Platt's death and a Sentinel received the next day also told of it. Are both the Platt sons dead? I thought ?? was not living, but last I heard Nelson was in Texas or there abouts. I can't get my mind clear on the first at all. When was Ruth married? I think you wrote about it at the time but am not sure.

A new ruling at the station forbids the coolies from entering the gates until identified by their employees or called by some foreigner. Our boy is used to free access to our Tunghsien platform and resented being kept out. The police seized him, he escaped and ran. They caught him, kicked and beat him and took him to the police station. We were out for tea so did not hear of this at once. As soon as we reached home we started out and rescued him by the aid of Mr. Wickes. He was tied to a post with both arms behind him. The ropes were so tight that the circulation was stopped practically and the poor fellow was about sick for two days. He is recovered now. An article in the paper speaks of the thing having happened twice and the uselessness of such cruelty for so senseless a restriction. It is nice to have the rabble kept out but some means should be found for allowing servants to enter to get baggage quickly even though no foreigner is there to identify the servant. A ticket for one or two cents would solve the difficulty. Beggars are thick as hops[?] around now. I hope they may be excluded later. I would rather pay down a regular sen, in view of the flood devastation, than be pestered. That is a good deal for I never give directly to a beggar just from principle.

It is time to dress for breakfast since we are to eat at 7.30 instead of 8.00.

I hope you are all keeping well this summer; That Mother's knee is quite well and Father's stomach. Don't do too much anybody. I wonder if your weather is as cool as ours has been- if so it is delightful, altho a little damp in spells.

Lots of love to all-

We still look for Willard about the 15th and hope to be all settled.

Sunday afternoon

Dear Papa and Mama

We had a lovely tripe up. It didnt rain at all thought it springcled. The sun was out most of the way. My arms got sun burned and so Marjorie's. While we were going across the plain Helen's chair poles broke and they had to fix them of corse. Then on the mountain Mrs. Smith broke some chair poles. Marjories umbrella turned inside out twice, and mine broke so we have not a decent umbrella on the mountain. At one of the rest houses there was a spring and Margaret fell in and got her dress black and had to chang it. We gave both the letters to Mr. Belcher. There are so many flies here that I dont know what to do with my self. I realy dont feal very lonely and I am glad of it. I know the Belchers quite well alreddy. Yesterday we saw there little black goat, it is very dear. Yesterday Mr. Leger, James Ford, Miss McRanalds and Mr. Benet, came over to talk about forth of July. All the children over 8 are on the decarating commite and Marjorie is the head of the flag colecting on this side of the Mountain. Yesterday we held Priscilla and she was the darlingest little thing. Mrs. Belcher said you can pick her up Marjorie she was lying on our bed, so we took her up and played with her. Last night there was the end of a tifone. And it blew all night long. It woke me up a few times. We brush our teeth after every meal and are getting along very nicely with combing our hair and so forth. Yesterday afternoon while Mr. and Mrs. Belcher were talking thier we lay down on the bed and read and while we were lying there Francis woke up and began to cry ?? and his Mother came in to see what the matter was. He didnt say anything but just cept on crying then they went out and he went to sleep. I think he had a bad dream. I am going to make a list of the things I want you to bring up. Please bring up a big piece of scrap to make Daisy May a dress and my little kiwpi a dress. And please bring my stockings in the right hand back cornor of the second to last drawer in our bewrow. And please bring up our rubbers. With lot of love I hope you can come up on weddnsday, love Kathleen Cynthia Beard.

Read K.'s letter first.

Sunday afternoon.

Dear Mama and papa,

Kathleen is writing about the trip up so I'll write all about what we did today. What do you suppose? I wet the bed a little bit. Just about as big as this paper. But it must be all dry now. Mrs. Belcher didn't know anything about it. Well, Kathleen says that I must write about the things that happened from twelve o'clock, in the night on. Well, this morning when I woke I looked over to Charles Francis bed and saw him pulling the mosquito net. (Francis sleeps in the same room with us right across from us.) Well, I got up and tiptoed over to where he was and there he was all wide awake looking up at me with big eyes. I said good morning then went to the bathroom and went back to bed. Then K. woke up and she wanted to see Francis. So she got up and went over to his bed and talked with him for quite a long time. Finally she said, Do you want to come in bed with us? And just as he was answering Mrs. Belcher came in. She had over heard Punk and she asked him if he wanted to get in bed with us and he said yes so in he came. We had lots of fun with him untill we had to get up. Then we dressed and ate breakfast and then went out on to the piazza. We didn't see anybody going to Sunday-School and anyway it was too early. So we went in and saw Priscilla bathed. Then we went out onto the veranda again and watched for people Sunday School. This time we saw the Lacy girls with two men come around the horse-shoe. Then we saw another party from the Post Office way and both party went into the Club yard but they met and stood for a while and talked then they went home. Evidently they weren't going to have sunday school. Then we got into some old togs and went out walking. First we went up over the hill, where the wind blew so hard that it blew Punk and Mrs. Belcher and me over and blew Mr. Belcher's hat off and saw the Dennis family. Then we went to see the Smith's and found only Margaret and her father there. After a talk with them we went to the Newell's where we found the rest of the Smith family. Then we went home to dinner, and now I must get ready for Church. Charles F. was so tired after he came home from the walk that after dinner he went right straght to sleep. (I've forgotten how to spell straght.)

Your loving, and wishing you both were here, Marjorie

Det. Flying Cadets

Dear Grandma:-

We are in the midst of a good ripping snorter old storm. It is the first real signs of pep that I have seen in Texas. At 7 P.M. the sky in the north was dark and a haze of dust hung over the earth about 100 ft. deep. Half an hour later a strong wind sprung up and the dust came down in whole shocks[or shoals?] full. Our section had finished classes and were in the barracks. We closed every window and yet Texas came right in and we ate it and breathed it and it got in our eyes and every other chink of our bodys. It lasted like that for 15 minutes then came the rain, at first in large drops thinly placed, but now the lightning and thunder are having great fun and the rain is really coming down hard. When the sand storm began there were two formations of airplanes over head. I'd like to know how they got down and whether there were any wrecks. The last big sandstorm they had here, a cross-country man got caught about 25 miles out. He tried to land but instead went right through the side of a large barn and they raked his bones out of the hay the next morning. Today a plane had a wreck, caught on fire, and the man in the front seat burned to death. Two lieutenants were in it.

I am not getting along as fast as I want to in flying. I have been on primary solo for about 3 weeks and have only got in 3:30 (hrs/min) time. Some of the fellows have got in 10 hrs. in a week and a half. It is the system they use in sending us to gunnery that makes the difference. If they would change that we would all get an even amount of time. It is galling to say the least to see your classmates get ahead of you when you went half it. If I can only get by this stage the rest will go quickly.

The news in the papers about the Allies successes is nothing short of great. It is inspiring to know that the Americans are really getting into the heaviest of the fighting and better yet to hear about the undaunted courage and grit they show in fight. I just wish I had inlisted last summer: I might have been over there by now in the thick of it. I'm afraid I inlisted too late. The Americans may have the Huns licked before I can get over to help fight. If I had my commission now I would apply to be allowed to fly the first plane across the Atlantic. If I go over at all I hope to fly over. It would be somewhere about 30 hrs., that would be an accomplishment worth attaining.

Because of the scarcity of mechanics and riggers we cadets are working spare hours in the Erection and Repair Dept. We have already nearly finished setting up a whole plane. It will be the best thing in the world for us because we will know more than those before us do about the internal construction of a plane.

From Aunt Phebe's letter, haying is traveling right along. I'm glad it is and I hope it is a good season there for crops. I'm glad Aunt Elizabeth got my money in time. Have you had any communication from the government about my insurance and my Liberty Bond?

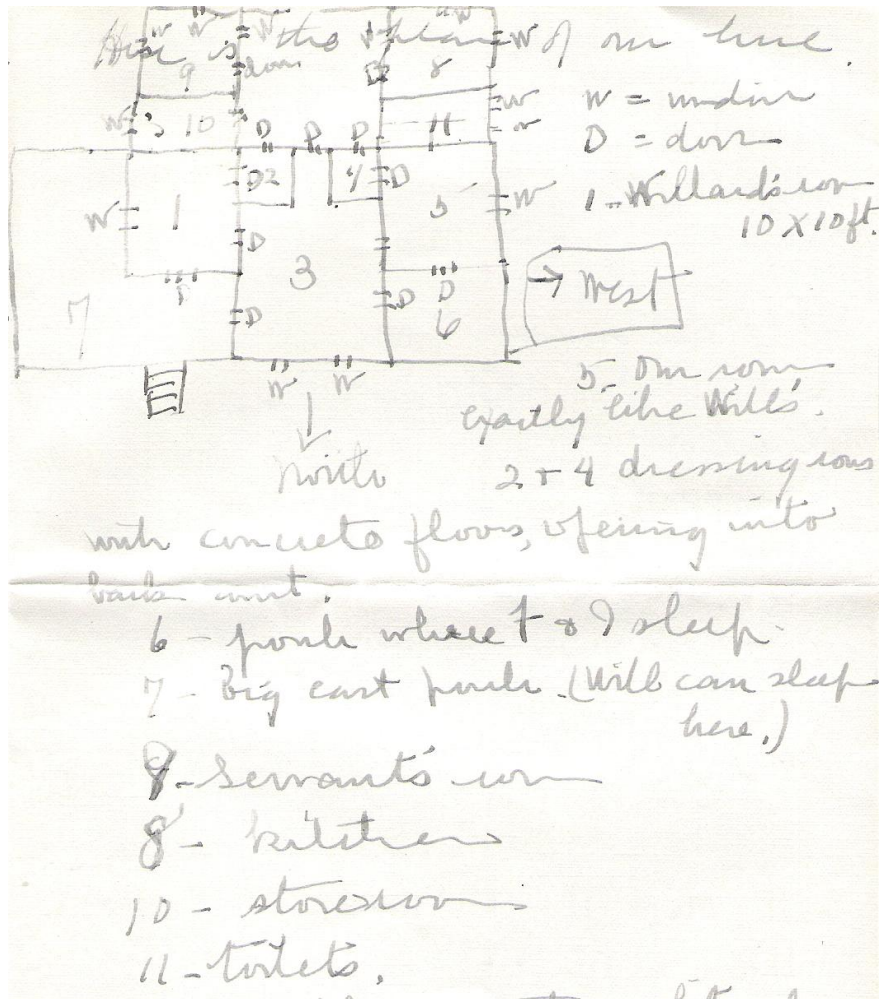

With love to all
Gould.

Dear Ones at Home,

We three Beards are together again. Flora and I began to meet trains last Monday evening as that was the earliest date for Willard to arrive if he came by train. We gave it up until some word should come on Wednesday. On Thursday came a card. He was coming by boat. Entering Tientsin harbor is an unknown problem always because of the bar which allows boats to cross at high tide only. We met the Friday night and Saturday morning trains and Saturday evening felt so sure we went to the next station. Sure enough Willard arrived. Our tongues have rested only to let another have a chance to talk. We stopped for introductions to the Porter's and Mrs. Frame last night, walked over past the Assembly Hall to the beach and home via the Stanley's. The Yarrows were there so Willard met quite a group before we got around home again. While we were off to Peitaiho Station (the one here is Pei Tai Ho Beach Station) the carpenters brought the book case and writing desk combined for our home. Did we write that our bath rooms and dining room were one until the cabinet for dishes and the writing desk were built in, as there these are to form the walls? With Flora and me only, it was not bad to have only loose curtains but we are glad of a real partition now.

We are reveling in the solitude and quiet since we have many callers and shall entertain frequently to give Willard an opportunity to meet people here.

We have invited Dr. and Mrs. Young over for tonight. They leave on Friday and sail soon for America.

Elizabeth's letter came this week. What an interesting visit Gould had and so fortunate a one in having Elbert down.

I was wondering how I stood with Father on the money question. Many thanks, Father, for paying the bills, and banking my checks.

Friday P.M. The Youngs did not get over Sunday P.M. so we walked over on Tuesday for a call. It is about 2 miles each way. On Monday evening we had Mr. and Mrs. Pitman for dinner. Willard and Mr. Pitman came out on the same steamer last time (1916). On Wednesday we and the Porter family had supper together on the rocks by the sea. Last night we dined with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley. Tonight we have Dr. and Mrs. Goodrich and Mr. and Mrs. Burgess for dinner. Mr. and Mrs. Whallen, Miss Bostiwick and Miss Dudley come for breakfast tomorrow and Mr. and Mrs. Ballon and Mrs. Sheffield for dinner. 'Tis a gay life we are leading!

Flora and I went to the Red Cross rooms several times and folded gauze packings. Since Willard came we have found it more sociable to sit at home and knit. We will have to go a few times because we have promised to serve tea once or twice more. We served once a week after we arrived. There are six Holyoke girls up here and Mrs. Evans has spoken for the reunion at her home. I rather wanted it but resigned in her honor or else invite them for a second gathering later.

Our view is glorious. We are on the edge of the settled hillside and back toward our neighbors. In the foreground (south) are acres and acres of millet, corn, beans, and goliang (A Chinese grain much like corn in appearance as it grows). Beyond are several ranges of mountains. At the left in the distance is the beach of East Cliff with Chung Wang Tao and the mountains beyond. To the east we see Light House Point and the beach near there. To the west we see the railroad and the Lotus Hills. Frequently we remark that the scenery makes us think of New England.

This morning Willard and I took donkeys and went to East Cliff to invite the Ballon's for supper tomorrow and home by Light House Point. At Light House Point we went to the Young's home which they left this morning to get two ducks. Mrs. Young bought three but the children forbid them to eat them because they liked them so well for play fellows. We dared not tell the children for what we bought them lest they brand us as cannibals.

We are wondering whether Gould is in Texas or on Long Island and how you are getting along on the farm this summer. Elizabeth's letter spoke of strawberries and we were just enjoying our last ones of the season.

We are looking for another home letter though I fear we do not deserve it. Phebe's ?? us on our arrival and Elizabeth's arrived just before Willard came.

Best of love to you all. I hope the farm is doing finely with Father and Wells as bosses. I can't think of Wells as big enough.

Lots of love

Mary

P.S. Thanks again father for the payment of bills also for the $100 from Ruth's accounts. Phebe, I think I had better start on Payment of my college debt to you. Please father give Phebe $25 of the last draft, the duplicate of which I enclose. (twenty five)

Mary.

Pei Tai Ho. July 22 – 1918

Just after breakfast

Dear Ellen, Marjorie, and Kathleen:-

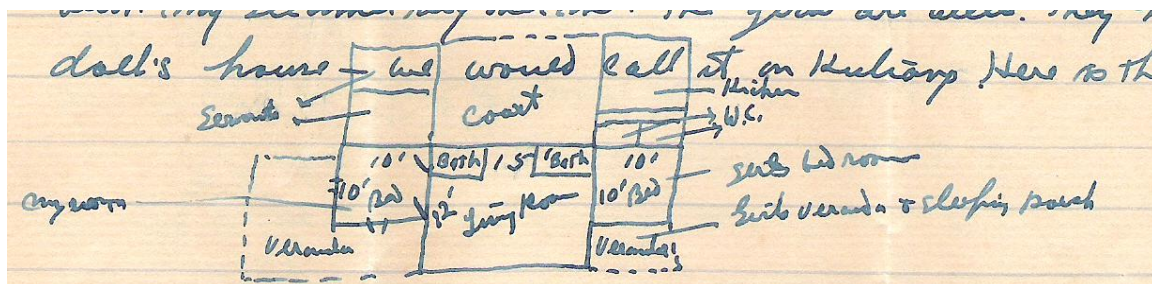

In Tientsin I mailed a letter to you written on the steamer between Tsingtao and Tientsin. I had a delightful trip all the way. We reached the bar at Taku Friday morning at day light. The pilot came aboard and waited till 11:30 then told the captain he could try to cross, altho it was apogee tide and he feared there would not be water enough. In a few minutes he ordered the anchor down. It lacked just 3 inches of being enough water to cross. The Japanese captain was disgusted and mad. But there was no help for it and nothing to do but keep on unloading flour and paper into the lighter to lighten the steamer and try again at midnight. About 6 p.m. we had a wind squall with quite a lot of rain and it came from off the sea. So it drove the water in and at midnight they got over the bar and went up the river. I was asleep and found my self at Tientsin in the morning. I tried to get ashore Friday and take the train at Tang Ku but there was nothing doing.

I went out to the Tientsin Y.M.C.A. before breakfast, found no one but coolies washing the floors, went back to the ship, got breakfast and went to the R.R., bought tickets to Pei Tai Ho Beach, and took the 9:50 train. At noon I bought 5 nice buns- fresh and light and delicious and two nice large peaches- at a station. This was my lunch. At 5 I was at Pei Tai Ho. Soon after I left the train I saw a lady running toward me and recognized Mary. Flora was a little behind. They had come down from Pei Tai Ho Beach to meet me. We reached their little cottage just in time for supper at 7 p.m.

The country between Tientsin and here is level,- much like the country round Geneseo, Ill- with some hills higher. Here at the Beach we see mountains in the distance. Corn and millet and a kind of brown corn that looks like corn growing, and beans are the crops. And they look good. It must be good farming land.

I looked forward with a little dread to the long train ride lest it be hot. But it was almost too cool- I have suffered with the heat in the U.S. travelling but the trip from Foochow here has been a very restful one. The heat has not been oppressive once. Between Shanghai and Tientsin the sea was like a river.

The air is very dry here and thus far it is very cool. I sleep with my steamer rug over me. The girls are well. They have a little doll's house- we would call it on Kuliang. Here is the plan.

But it is so dry here that the small house is all right. This cottage rents this year for 110 taels= about $1.45. It costs about $900 to build. A good investment, - no typhoons= no white outs= about 1000 people here. But the scenery- and general conditions do not come up to Kuliang. The country just about here is a little like the top of the hill up in Woodstock or perhaps Pomfret. The settlement is about 7 miles long- running along the shore of the sea- not high but all covered with green grass and rolling. The cottages are mostly low- one story- built of brick- with broad verandas- Rents are high. Our Kuliang Cottage would rent for $500. The girls took a cottage not yet finished and so get it cheaper. Next year this cottage will rent for $200.

Yesterday I went to church at 5 p.m. - much like our service on Kuliang. The church is no more ornate than our Kuliang church. They call it the Assembly Hall- not church. A moving picture show is held in the hall two or three evenings in the week. Flora has kindly promised to give me her Directory but I think I will buy one of my own. It costs $1.20 and this is the tax for all of the things that I use- roads, church etc. How you, Monnie and Kathleen would enjoy the donkeys here. The men come around with them soon after breakfast and they are on hand all day- for the children to ride. The donkeys are nice and sleek and fat.

This morning we went in bathing. There were 100 or more in. It seems to be the things to do for every one. I met Mr. Pitman there and his wife and little daughter.

My expenses have been from Foochow here:-

Ticket- Foochow Tientsin 2 nd class	$32.50
Lunches- .23, + .50 + .30	1.03
Ticket -Tientsin- PeitaiHo 2 nd class	6.25
Ricksha and train .15,.22,.30,.20,.50,.10	1.47
Coolies baggage	.18
Miscellaneous	1.00
	$42.43

If all goes well I shall get home on the same amount. I now plan to go fr. here into Peking, then to TungChow, then to Shanghai by Rail Road. I can buy my ticket Peking to Shghi for $32.80, with notes on the Bank of China that are worth at the rate of $1.00 Shgi for $1.60 B. of China. This makes the 32.80 only about $22.

I hope you have had as fine weather on Kuliang as I have found everywhere.

May God be near and dear to you

Lovingly Will and Papa

#168 Pei Tai Ho Beach, China, Sunday July 28- 1918.

Dear Folks at Century Farm;-

Just how many this includes I do not at this writing know. Phebe M's letter of June 16 arrived this morning. It brought the postal from Gould mailed at St. Louis wh. was fairly conclusive evidence that his flying field was to be in Texas. And it looked as if both Geraldine and Dorothy were then planning to spend the summer in Shelton. When in Shanghai in April I was at Dr. D.W. Willard Lyon's for lunch one day and they were just sending Scoville off for Yale and said something about his summer. I mentioned that you did not know how to get help and that you might like him. Mrs. Lyon was not very enthusiastic so I gave the matter no more thought until when coming thru up here I stopped again and was there at lunch and they spoke as if Scoville was going to apply, and your letter looks as if he was coming.

I left Foochow July 11- had July 4-10 on Kuliang, just time enough to get the family nicely settled on Kuliang. I took the "KeeLung Maru" fr. Foochow to Tientsin, and then the R.R. out here. My whole expenses were only about $40. I had Sunday in Shanghai and reached here for the next Sunday= a week ago last night, July 20. I plan to stay till July 21. Then the girls will go into Peking with me. We will see Peking and Tunghsien for four days or so and I will get to Shanghai for my boat- the same that I took coming up= "Keelung Maru" Aug. 31, and get home Sept. 2.

The girls are both looking very well. They had been here two weeks before I arrived and were seasoned and rested. The bathing here is all that could be desired. Nearly every one goes in daily at 11 a.m. except Sundays. Flora and I were going in this a.m. at 6. But I slept till 7:30 and she would not waken me so we did not go. The landscape reminds me much of parts of New England. One sees corn growing everywhere, and millet and a kind of brown corn. The land is rolling and in the distance there are small mountains. Donkeys are used for conveyances- I see a few carts drawn by mules.- Mules and little Manchurian horses are the work animals. Yesterday I saw an ox drawing a two wheeled cart. The carts are all two-wheeled and if two animals are used they are hitched tandem. And they pull enormous loads. The animals all look very well kept and they are not at all abused- as far as I have seen. How Monnie and Kathleen would enjoy the donkeys!!

On July 15 I mailed to Geraldine a letter containing a check for $100. on the National Bank of Putnam- check made out to Phebe- and also an order on the Derby Savings Bank for $100- in Geraldine's favor. I hoped these two checks would fix up the Life Insurance for you all and get you into college again for the fall term. I do not know but little about Gould's finances- in fact he has written only one fact i.e that he has insured his life for $10000 in my favor. I should like to know how much he receives per month. I should like to know also the conditions of the life insurance. He pays $6.50 for no premium I think. I have looked to see in the papers something more about this but do not find it. How long does he pay this $6.50 per month? What takes place after the war? - in case he returns uninjured or injured,- and any other facts. I will with him direct asking these questions but things are so uncertain that I am trying a double method of finding out.

Phebe M's letter contained a copy of "Oberlin in China". I guess it is a case of mutual helpfulness- Oberlin in Ohio helps Oberlin in China and Oberlin in China helps Oberlin in Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Martin of Tunghsien are sailing about the middle of August to return to China. I understand they have raised some $40000 for the Middle School in Tunghsien. I must get about that amount for Foochow College when I go home- or before.

I have had one copy of the Kuliang Register since reaching Pei Tai Ho. This is all the news I have had from Foochow since leaving. I hope they have not had typhoons.

It is hard to be patient when I have to wait to till into August before knowing where you all are for vacation. But it is after all only a trifle. God has wonderfully cared for us all and His goodness is beyond man's power to estimate.

We are all glad to see the advances made by the Allies on the Soissons-Rhein[?] front and hope it will continue.

This is a letter to all- the folks at Century Farm- Phebe K, Gould, and as many others as you care to send it to. I will address it to Phebe M. as a reply to her letter received this morning.

Very lovingly to all

Will and Papa.

Your letter contained the receipt for $30 from the Derby Savings Bank- Thank you- You know I hold Ruth's note for $1000 do you not. Is there anything to do about it? Will

Pei Tai Ho China.

Aug. 4th 1918.

Dear Ben and Phebe:-

We spoke of you yesterday and day before because they were August 2nd and 3rd. The first picture that comes to my mind is of you two riding down the lane- just starting for Grandpa Nichols: "Bennett and Phebe." This was the way the older people used to speak of Grandpa and Grandma Nichols. Ben's head rose just above the back of the old buggy seat. Phebe's did not go all above it. We could see about half of her head. As to room on the seat- you took up just about half the seat- but you have changed since then- it takes a seven seater now for you. This is to congratulate you on your forty (how-many years) - and all the good things which you have done and which you have acquired in those years, and to hope that each of you feels sure that you have the best job on earth- and just the job for you, and that no one else could do it quite as well as you.

Flora and Mary and I are having a very quiet time here getting a good bath in the sea nearly every day and I have a chance to write a few letters. Last week we took a trip into the mountains. I got a ride in a Peking Cart- the ox cart on the farm is a soft thing compared with a Peking Cart for comfort and ease. In the afternoon Mary and I took a good old mountain climb on the Great Wall of China. Mollie is game all right when it comes to climbing a steep mountain. The Great Wall-so-called, is on the top of the steep cliff, only three feet high and does not cut much of a figure. But I stood amazed at the prodigious amount of labor required in getting the bricks and lime up to these high places. The path is so steep in places that we had to go on all fours like cats.

I have heard little from Foochow since I left, - just enough to know that up to July 27 all was well, - no typhoon.

Just now a carter with his mule and empty cart got stuck in the mud a few rods from the house. The cart went down on one side until the axle rested on the ground, and the mule could not pull it out. I with a passer by- a Chinese gave him some suggestions and a lift (mine were in pantomime) and he put the mule in the shaft again and went on his way rejoicing.

The telegrams from Europe have been very interesting every since I arrived. It is a wonderful achievement to land 300000 men a month in France with Germany using every effort to sink ships on all water. Our Boys seem to be making good everywhere. Germany has certainly done some big mis-calculating from the very first when she seemed incapable of thinking of the possibility of little Belgium offering any resistance- again when she thought England would not enter the war and if she did that her army was insignificant and again in all of her thought of the U.S. Efficiency that has no room for other persons is not efficiency.

Sunday Aug 11th- The past week has been full of doing this and that so this letter did not get finished. There are over 50 members of the Am. Board here and about the same number of Y.M. and Y.W.C.A.s so I find plenty of points of contact. Then various conferences and meetings have been going on to take up the time. And I count it a big loss if I do not get into the sea every day. Mary and I went in this a.m. at 6 o'clock. The sea was very smooth. For the first time in my life I floated. You have heard me speak of a classmate in Oberlin= Geo. Wilder. He and his wife= also a classmate= arrived a few days ago with their youngest daughter Ursula. She reminds me of Dorothy.

Letters from Kuliang say that all was well there up to Aug. 3rd= What do you suppose Dr. Bement wants me to buy for her?= A 4 months old bull calf- imported stock that has already had rinderpest. It is some job to find such an animal and again some job to transport him to Foochow.

I have my schedule for seeing Peking and getting to Shanghai all arranged. I leave here Aug. 22 and the girls go with me. We stay in Peking that night and see Peking Aug 23 and 24- go out to Tunghsien for Sunday Aug 25- see Peking again on Mon. and start for TeChow Tuesday, spend Tues night there- go on the Tsinanfu Wed.- Leave Tsinanfu for Shanghai Thurs and arrive Shanghai Fri. at 9:20 p.m.- If the girls get me into Peking and awfully interested I may stay a day longer in the Big City as my steamer does not leave Shanghai till Sept. 1.

To day is Elizabeth's birthday so I am going to ask you to share this with her- and my best wishes go to you also Elizabeth for many more happy birthdays, and you may add all the words I said to Ben and Phebe above.

Yesterday Kathleen was ten years old,- she feels in most respects as big as Monnie.

Give my love, with Ellen's and Marjorie's and Kathleen's added to all the folks and help yourselves generously.

The war colors everything- even if this letter is not full of it God still reigns and He is working out His purposes as fast as the stubborn hearts of men will allow. May He keep you all in His love. Will

Kelly Field- Texas.
Aug 18, 1918

Dear Grandma;-

Today is a beautiful day, though a little warm for comfort. There are no planes droning away over-head; the barracks are almost deserted; and everything is so quiet here that it don't seem like Kelly Field at all.

I had hoped to clear advanced 8s on R.M.A. and get to climbing out of the field, but somewhere ahead there is a stoppage and we are held up until enough can be transferred from R.M.A. to acrobatics so as to give us room. However I have been up with 3 different instructors this week and the criticism of my work was not awfully severe, so I feel as if I were learning all the time.

I got Dot's belated letter. They often get mail mixed up here and send it to other barracks so that it doesn't get to me. Tell Aunt Phebe that I did not want her to buy goggles, I find that they are sold here at the standard price so that I can get them just as cheaply as you can.

Grandpa's crops seem to be doing as well as possible. Pappa in his letter wondered whether he was going to try to raise much this year. I think I shall tell him that Grandpa raised more this year than last. Has Grandpa used his loader all season, and have Colonel and Major proved to be competent horses for the heavy haying work?

I am sending a film that I shot in aerial gunnery. A regular Pervis Machine Gun is rigged up with a camera so that when you shoot, instead of sending a bullet, you take a picture. You will notice that I only got 20% on my shoot. It was my first trial and was not good. If you examine the film you will notice little scratches made in the longitudinal axis of the plane. If these pass through the crossing of the hairs it is supposed to be a hit; it would not be a hit if the cross was directly on the plane because by the time the bullet reached the position of the plane, the plane would have moved several lengths ahead. Of course this is not absolutely accurate, but it is the nearest they can come to the actual shooting of aeroplanes here at flying school without doing the real thing.

We have just got a hospital ship on the field. It is a Curtis R. with a Curtis Vx motor, is painted all white save for large red crosses on the bottom of each lower wing, the tip of each upper wing, and on each side of the fuselage. It will be used to bring back the cross country men who thought it fun to break their necks somewhere out of civilization in Texas.

Just lately Major Kraff has taken a notion to have Retreat Parade. I really like it. The marching to martial music is really fun even though we do have to stand at attention until our feet are numb.

Will you please send me Mr. Palmers address. I am going to ask him for the third of my three sworn affidavits about pappa.

I hope you are all well and that things are going smoothly on the farm. How I do envy you with all the pears and apples coming on.

With love to all,
Gould.

Cadet Flying Squadron
Kelly Field No. 2
San Antonio, Texas

[Sept. 1, 1918]

Dear Grandma:-

I got Aunt Elizabeth's letter yesterday. It gave a very good picture of what was going on there on the farm. I'm glad Grandpa got his grain in well and has it all threshed by now. I used to look forward to the day when we would thresh the rye, because there was always excitement and machinery running. Harold managed to write me one of his quarterly letters. He makes a regular epistle out of them though and they are good to receive.

We have tomorrow off, it being Labor Day. That makes 2 ½ days together that we are off. If I were anywhere near anyone I knew I would take a trip to see them. I am planning on taking an excursion ride around San Antonio and see some of the famous old Spanish missions that are scattered around here. I understand that San Antonio really has some very beautiful places about it, but I have not seen any yet. I have discovered a good place down town. It is the Community House, run for the soldiers by the people of the community. There are reading, games, music, and rest rooms, a large dance pavilion where well regulated dances are held twice a week, and an outdoor stage where entertainments are held on Saturday and Sunday for the soldiers.

Yesterday I went to the Royal Theater and saw a good show. That seems to be about all a cadet can do on Saturdays if we don't have any friends living in town.

If I progress rapidly in flying, I may get on to cross country by next week. That will be fun, although it is rather hard on a cadet's standing if he loses his way. The topography of the country is so monotonous that it is very easy to lose your way, there being few distinctive land marks. We have had only one accident this week. The cadet in the ship wasn't even scratched, although well scarred. I happened to be flying my ship home to the hangers from R.M.A. when it happened. The fellow was landing when all of a sudden I saw his tail shoot up in the air and disappear down in a cloud of dust. I landed just beside him a minute later. He had turned clear over on his back and broken the propeller.

I am sending a picture which one of my friends took of me. We went out in the mosquito [mesquite] about a mile and found an open spot to take them in because we are not supposed to have cameras around here. I will send others later when we get them printed.

Yesterday I found some fine looking pears in a small fruit store. So I bought half a dozen and Levitt and my self went to the park in front of the Alamo and lay on the grass and ate them. It is the first real grass lawn I have seen in Texas.

I hope things are continuing to go well on the farm. If Dr. Shelton has not spent too much time, and has not sent his affidavit perhaps you could tell him that I do not need it. I got five of them, which is 2 more than was necessary through the ambition of Mr. Carpenter in Putnam. I asked him for one and he got five. I don't know how to tell Dr. Shelton not to send one without possibly hurting his feelings, so I thought I would let him send it and thank him for it, unless perhaps you thought different.

With love to all,

Gould.

Pei Tai Ho-
September 1, 1918

Dear Ones at Home-

Such a long time since I have written! Vacations are not any more conducive to letter writing here than at home and I think you did better than me this year. I started a letter some weeks ago but can not find it.

We managed to let Willard see most of this region and of his friends. He and I with Mr. and Mrs. Danton of Tsing Hua College took a morning at the sand dunes. It was hot and Willard walked both ways. That together with several dinners and lunches out just before upset him a little so he had to lie off for swimming and long walks for a few days. He was fully recovered before we set out to see Peking.

Our last week was the busiest. Willard had the Y.M.C.A. picnic. I gave a Holyoke tea. We had the breakfast parties and two dinners. We were invited out for two lunches and two dinners. The Volunteer picnic was Monday night and Willard was the speaker of the evening. How is that for a full week!

We left here Wednesday morning August 21st for Peking on the train with Mrs. Wilder and Ursula. Mrs. Wilder had invited us there and we stayed two nights and were back for lunch one day. Our first day we spent at the Summer Palace and Tsing Hua College. It was just cloudy enough to save us the oppressive heat.

The next morning we went to the Temple of Heaven and stopped at Cook's Agency for Willard's ticket and at the banks. In the afternoon we went to see the Astronomical instruments and to the station via the Y.M.C.A. and Methodist Mission. That night we went to Tunghsien. The school was most upset but we found a bed for Willard and put up camp cots for ourselves.

We ate at Mr. Porter's because the Teachers Institute was on and Mr. Porter had had to take our work for the foreigners as the plans he had found failed to work out.

We returned to Peking early Saturday. First we went into the British Legation to see the spot where the foreigners were besieged in 1900. Then we went up to see the Union Language school. Mr. P?t? was there and showed us all about. Our big event for the day was the Museum and Central Park. For 2 1/2 hours we walked in the Museum seeing the wonderful porcelains, laquers, and precious items, bronzes etc. It is a wonderful sight but the hardest kind of "sight-seeing". We found an old well set on an elevation in the garden back of the museum buildings and ate lunch there. One little room was open that I had not seen when there before. It is the Mohamedan bath room. The room we enter had a throne chair with all the hangings. On the wall are fine[or five?] old pictures. At the rear is a winding passageway which ends in a round dome covered bath room. The well near which we ate was evidently the one which supplied the water. The fire box for heating the water was in a side room. One of the concubines was a Mohamedan once and this was fitted up for her.

The entrance to Central Park is very near the West gate of the Forbidden City where the Museum is, so we entered there. The Altar of the Five Earths is the most historic thing there. The wooden tea[?] homes with the rooms upon rooms of tables is very interesting. There are a few birds and a few animals for him[?].

Near the main entrance where we came in is a huge lotus pond. It was filled with huge pink and white blossoms.

As it was yet early when we came out we went out side the Tartar City into the Chinese City to see the shops. Alas we were not content with seeing and came away laden with purchases.

On Sunday morning we walked over to see the dairy, to the hospital and the artisan well. Willard spoke at foreign service at 5.30 and we had supper with Mr. and Mrs. Corbett. At 8.30 we had an informal song service at Mr. Porter's. Monday it rained hard all day so we stayed home and knitted. Willard got beyond the neck of his sweater so he had plane [?] knitting enough for the return trip. We had to omit the North lake and the Coal Hill because of the storm.

On Tuesday we saw the Presbyterian Mission, Confucian Temple, Medical College, and Union Woman's College. We lunched with Mrs. Ingram. It cleared so we rode all the way back to Tunghsien in rickshas over the new road. It was a novel ending and most enjoyable.

On Wednesday we all three came to Tientsin together. I stayed on the train. Flora was to stop in Tientsin and would have an hour for extra visit with Willard before his train was due. His plan was to stop a day in Tsi Nan. Today he leaves for Foochow. It was so good to have him here.

I am alone in my home. For one night Elizabeth Porter slept with me. Then I went down and slept on the Tenney porch to look after three baby boys (2, 3+ 4) whose mother was off on a trip. I shall be all alone tonight but tomorrow Miss Andrews comes to stay until I go. This is the loveliest time of all here but I have been as sleepy as when I first came up in June.

This does not sound like war times does it? Our daily routine is hardly touched by the war. Our daily papers kept us informed of all the splendid counter-attacks of the allies. I do wish that the right might conquer soon but the end does not seem so very near.

Last we heard Gould was running his own machine. I hoped for a letter telling of his sensations on his first flight, but he was too busy I guess.

We are glad to hear of the good work of the "boys" Father has to help him this summer. I hope you are all keeping well and not trying to do too much.

It is only 9.15 but I am so sleepy I must go to bed. I shall probably awake with the dawn as usual. Just think next summer I may be able to talk not write. I like to think about it.

With much love

Mary.

[Sept. 6, 1918]

Dear folks at home:-

It is an embarrassingly long time since I have written you, and I have kept the beginning of a letter so long that that has become ancient history.

We closed school last June in a fine flourish and I think we were all less tired than the end has usually found us. Mary and I got off to Peitaiho the last week of June but the house we had rented for the summer was not done and we sat around our unopened boxes for a week in another house and then celebrated the Fourth by moving into a house that had only walls and floors. It was a month before it was comfortably furnished and it was just the day before we left that the last work was done. However, we managed to get our kind of vacation and it was very good to have Will with us. I fear you had fewer letters than ever from us for we were so busy doing things and going places. We came back and had a week here in Peking sight seeing before Will left. I had word from him that he had reached Shanghai safely and was to get his boat to Foochow all right.

It was as good to have Phebe's letter already at Peitaiho to greet us when we arrived and later my stockings came safely. Thank you for the bother of getting and mailing them. I hope I shall not have to ask for much more shopping before I leave for home.

Our school building has been in such a mess for we have been digging an artesian well, installing modern plumbing, and making a septic tank all at once not to mention getting another school room ready and any number of repairs done. We are on the last days of our distress though and by Sunday I hope we are to be more in order. Next week school begins. We shall have a few more than last year but not many more. Exchange is so bad that many must economize.

In a week or two our new teacher arrives and we hope to find the sixth member of our faculty.

I am going to close here hoping to be able to write you again soon. I believe vacations are getting to be more and more demoralizing- especially as far as letter writing is concerned.

Yours lovingly-

Flora Beard.

Willard is back from Northern China and he found people running from Foochow for fear of southern soldiers and bandits, but all is quiet so far. The village at Upper Bridge, however, was attacked by 100 bandits. Willard talks to each daughter specifically of what is going on in their lives. Foochow, China Sept 8th 1918

Dear Phebe [daughter] and Geraldine and Dorothy:-

Last Tuesday Sept 3rd at 1 p.m. I walked into our fine compound again from my trip in North China. I took two rickshas for myself and baggage from the river to the Hospital. As I passed thru the Hospital I met Dr. and Mrs. Kinnear and learned from them that Mama was down from the mountain. It did not take me long to get up to our house. She was at Mr. and Mrs. Christian's for lunch and I posted down there. Were we glad to see each other? - Well Mama even hugged me and kissed me right before a half dozen others. She left at 3:30 p.m. for Kuliang. I went up Thursday afternoon Sept. 5th to celebrate our 24th wedding anniversary, came down again Friday afternoon.

As I came in from the river over the new road, I met more than 20 carriages full of people running away from Foochow, and I do not know how many rickshas filled with people and trunks. I was a conspicuous traveler- a huang giang- moving into the city while everyone else was moving out. The people were afraid that either the Southern soldiers or the bandits would attack the city, hence they were moving out as fast as they could get carriages, rickshas and sedans. They were simply scared wild. Chinese friends of some of the missionaries had come in and whispered that Tuesday night was the time for trouble to begin. Four or five families have moved into the College buildings. Over South Side I know of one Chinese who has rented his house for six months for $1200 cash in advance. Forty Chinese wanted to rent ½ of a small house over there for almost any amount of money. The people are afraid 1st of looters. These may be either bandits, of which China is full or they may be soldiers from the north who have not been paid for two months or so. 2nd they are anxious for their younger wives and daughters- especially if the northern soldiers start to loot and plunder.

Thus far all is quiet. There is a report that the Foochow Chamber of Commerce has offered the generals $300,000 if they will pay off and discharge these soldiers, this seems to give the business men hope that there will be no trouble.

This morning I went to Upper Bridge to conduct communion. The preacher said as soon as I arrived that he was afraid there would not be many people at ch. for just before midnight about 100 bandits attacked the village. There were only some 20 or more soldiers to protect the village. Each side fired 4 or 5 volleys and the bandits retired. The village elders telephoned to Foochow for soldiers but none came. I met about 40 soldiers, armed, going up as I came home. They were pulling one gun on wheels. The country all about is full of soldiers or bandits. Most of the missionaries are detained from going to their stations- all of our Shaowu mission who are down here and all the Ing Tai people cannot get back now. As to there being trouble in Foochow- no one can tell anything about it. I am going on with the opening of school as if all was as usual. I look for a much less number of students than in former years, - on account of the disturbed conditions.

Mama and the girlies are looking very well indeed. Both of the girlies are swimming nicely, and they are justly proud of their accomplishment. I took my bathing suit up to go in and went in with them Friday afternoon just before starting down. Kathleen has knitted some 8 wash cloths. Monnie about 6. What do you think of your old Dad? He has a sweater nearly done- one of the large ones- 80 stitches- sleeveless, - camels hair wool. I knit beyond the neck hole before I said good bye to Aunt Mary, and on the train ten [or two?] days and the steamer one day. I knit so that I have about 9 inches more with the pearling to finish it.

Phebe's letters from Cleveland are most interesting. I judge you have rather a hard job- but withal a fascinating one. I hope your work is not so confining that you will enter college feeling weary. The senior year ought to be less taxing than other years in study. You have quite enough outside work. I do not recall that you have joined a Literary Society. I wish you could have that this year. I was a mentor of Phi Delta for three years and no College study was of more practical benefit to me than my work in Phi Delta. I am glad you are to be in Talcott this year. I am trying to enclose an order on Treasurer Wiggin for $100. Let me know all about your finances and I will try to see that your needs are supplied. I sent $100 to you and $100 to Geraldine in July. These amounts were to be used as you and Geraldine needed them and for your life insurance.

Since your letter received in June Geraldine I have been praying daily for your full and complete recovery. I do not believe that our Father wants you to be continually handicapped. You may remember that every day I am talking with God about you and hoping that He will make you all right. You are of course doing the same and telling Him that all of your strength and all the talents He has given you are for His use in any place in any work He calls you to. My heart gave a leap as I read in one of your last letters a suggestion that you might be preparing to come back to China.

How I enjoyed your picture of the life at Century Farm Dorothy. Have I ever written of the pull at my heart strings every time I think of you as I last saw you, as we started off in the auto in Putnam to take the train at Worcester? It seemed cruel to me that you had to be left in that way. You were standing against the woodshed that was ours in 1904 and of course tears were in your eyes and in mine too. But that is all passed now, and we are looking to a happy reunion in 1920. How Mama and I would like to be in Oberlin next June when you graduate from High School and Phebe from College. We now plan to come home in July 1920. This will bring us there for Geraldine's graduation in 1921. In your next letter I shall look to see just what you did to "help" while Aunt Phebe was away. While in Peitaiho I received your letter about your most interesting trip home by way of the lake and the Hudson river. My trip this summer to North China was very interesting- both going and coming. I have written you about going up- steamer all the way to Tientsin- eight days,- stopping two days at Shanghai and waiting one day for water enough to get over the bar at Taku, the entrance to Tientsin then a ride of 7 hours on the train, and meeting the aunts up at Peitaiho junction. To come home I took the train at Petaiho Beach with the aunts and several other friends at 10:15 a.m. We reached Peking at 8:30 p.m. We were to stay with Mrs. Wilder- an Oberlin classmate. She and her youngest daughter, Ursula, that made me think of you- were with us all day. The next day Thurs, the aunts and I visited the Summer Palace- built by the Empress Dowager to spend her summers in. It is on the side of a large lake, all surround by a high brick wall. The palace is covered with yellow and green tile. There are halls and covered walks and underground passages and little summer houses and little temples and little bridges and big temples and a large boat built of marble in the lake and paved walks everywhere. The most unique thing is an octagonal summer house, well up on the hill of bronze. It is about 12 feet in diameter. The whole thing -except the floor is of solid bronze, - all the posts, the door and window frames, the table in the center of it, the roof- all are of bronze. Of course now nothing of this palace is used, and it is sad to see it beginning to decay.

We also went to Ching Hua College- the indemnity College- being built with money which the U.S. returned to China of that which she paid for the destruction of American property in 1900. Here we saw a $200,000 gold Gymnasium- a $190,000 Library- a $160,000 Science building, - a faculty of about 18 foreigners and as many more Chinese. They are training Chinese students to go to America for further study, and they hope that this will be so well equipped by the time the indemnity is all gone that the course here will be equal to a course in my American University. I met several of the young men who are teaching here and their families. They are five people.

Then we went to the Temple of Heaven and the Altar of Heaven, the oldest extant place of worship where there is no idolatry. The Altar is a most impressing place 100 ft. in diameter, with steps and railing- all of white marble. In the Temple to Heaven we saw the electric light features used by the men who a short time ago drafted China's new Constitution. This enclosure I should say is a mile square- and there are only these two structures and one or two other buildings on it. There are a few evergreen trees also. But the whole place is covered with a rank growth of weeds as high as our head. Then we saw the noted music room- spent two hours there. What did we see? Vases of porcelain- of bronze- of brass, of lacquer- of cloisnesse, of crystal. We saw large bells, sacrificial vessels of all designs - carved wood chairs and screens- tapestry of many designs, artificial flowers and fruit, - all in glass cases and miles of them, - No one after visiting this museum could call China uncivilized. Then we saw the compounds of the different missions. We saw the new Medical College being built by the Rockefeller Foundation- after the most modern plans, we saw the large Confucian temple, and the astronomical instruments all of bronze and parts taken away by Germany, and we saw a mule litter and I rode just once in a Peking cart. On Wed. Aug 28 the aunts and I left Tunghsien [the same as Tungchow/Tungchou according to a 1940 ABCFM newsletter] at 7:25 a.m.

went to Peking together, - changed cars and rode to Tientsin together. Mary went right on to Peitaiho Beach. Flora stopped at Tientsin to shop. I changed cars and came as far as Tsinanfu or Chinanfu- and stopped to see the Institute there- models of lots of interesting things that are of educational value, as well as photos- and drawings- a model of the U.S. White House- Temple to Heaven. - Red Cross work- Hygiene- Afforestation, Standard Oil products, etc. etc.- preaching all day., 5 times with an attendance of over 700 daily. Thurs. evening I took the train again and was in Shanghai Fri. night at 9. Stopped that night at Mr. Evans. - Sat. night with Mr. and Mrs. Main- took steamer Sun at 10 a.m. - for Foochow.

How shall I express the deep pride that both Mama and I feel over Gould's success in aviation? We pray God to care for him and use him to help all his companions to keep straight.

With lots of love your Father Willard L. Beard.

Foochow, China
Sept. 16- 1918

Dear Phebe (daughter), Geraldine and Dorothy:-

I am writing Gould, but as he is a bird of flight I do not dare address him in any place, so I am sending to you asking you to forward to him as soon as you have read it.

Sept. 22nd- Again I allowed something to call me away from my letter with the result that it has rested here for six days. The week has been very full as the first week of school always is. We are running full swing now with our usual number of students which is more than I expected, for the conditions have affected nearly every other school in Foochow. Some have not more than half their usual number.

Another week has gone and there is no trouble yet. All our work is going on as usual.

Mama and the girlies came down from the mountain last Monday. So we are in our own home again. Kathleen has grown fat a little this summer.

Mrs. Smith's sister- Miss Eunice Thomas is in Hong Kong on her way to Foochow, and the Ing Tai people are all waiting to see her before starting up river for their station. Monnie and Kathleen are of course glad for they see something of Eunice and Margaret Smith, who are staying at Ponasang. Charles Francis Belcher has a goat. Did we write of the one he had in July on the mountain that got hung? Well Mr. Belcher bought him another before he knew what had become of the first one.

This has been a perfect Sunday- a real cool, bright day and restful, altho I have already attended three services- and preached once.

We pray for you girls in Oberlin- and especially that Geraldine may be fully restored. We are all well. May God bring peace in His time.

Very Lovingly your Father Willard L. Beard

Foochow, China
Sept. 29th 1918

Dear Elizabeth:-

During the summer we have had two or three letters from you and the last mail brought Phebe M's letter. I am enclosing a letter from one of the students now in Shanghai- just to show you the English of a boy who has studied four years. I also enclose my letter to Ellen and the girlies- just after I got to PeiTaiHo.

I have written so that you all know I have had a delightful summer. It was both pleasurable and profitable and very restful. When I reached home Sept. 3rd I found Ellen here in Foochow to meet me. This put the climax on the summer's good time.

I have had two good talks with the teacher Sang Gaing where the school to which the King's Daughters- was it? or was it some other society of young ladies. The last letter received was from Mrs. Robert S. Little 23 Congress Ave Shelton. Aug. 18/1917. There came with this letter $20. The school is doing good work again this year. The two teachers are on their job all the time and the building is full of children – about 50. The head teacher wants very much to get married. But he must have more room, if he is to do this. The school building which is also used for the church is large enough. But at present only one side has the second story finished off. The building is arranged thus. [sketch] He must put in about $50.00 to finish off the 2nd story on the right side for his residence, and he does not have the money. I sympathize with him and I want to help him get married.

I have just subscribed for a Liberty Bond $50.00 (As I read this over, I thought-why did I not put the money into this sch? Because I have put enough into this already)

Tell Mother that her letter on the typewriter was good work. I wonder if she found it any easier than a pen. I am thinking it was no improvement in her mind. I use my machine for business letters and other letters that I write on week days, but thus far I have not opened it on Sunday.

Tell Mother also that I note that she now holds the mortgage for $1000 that Ruth had. I have indorsed the note with interest payments received as deposited in the Derby Savings Bank up to and including the last six months of 1917= Jan 1st 1918. The receipts from the Bank are not dated so I was not sure about the last one, but I counted all I had and there were enough to make it right if that was the last one. If I am mistaken and you have sent the receipts July 1, 1918 let me know and I will make the correction.

To day has been very warm- muggy and I have been wet with perspiration all day. A shower about 4 p.m. has cooled the air a little.

I was much interested that Scoville Lyon was with you this summer. I did write you about how you came to get him. I was at his home in Shanghai in April. He was just starting for the U.S. to take the exams for Yale, and his parents chanced to say they did not know what he would do all summer. I said that my father was only 10 miles away from Yale and that he was wondering who would help him on the farm this summer. Mr. Lyon seemed to approve of Scoville's going but Mrs. Lyon thought he was not strong enough. I said that she need not have any misgivings about that for you all knew students from an experience of 30 years or more with them and you would not injure them. She was so fearful however that I did not write. He must have followed it up and I am glad it has proved so happy. When the air ships make the trip from New York to Shanghai in 50 hours I'll come home and help you get hay.

Ruth was my correspondent or go-between for the SangGaing School and I imagine she used to read to the ladies what I wrote about the school. Two years I had a little talk with them about it when I was in Shelton.

I am trying to start my garden. It has been pretty hot thus far. My cabbage and turnips look weak. But lettuce is sickly and beets "beat it" back into the ground. I have carrots and parsnips sowed but not yet up. It may be too hot for them. My celery is trying bravely to grow- plants are about ½ in. high. I am trying tomatoes again. They are 3 in. high. It rained last night and has been cloudy today and I have had the tomatoes transplanted this afternoon. I have four Hubbard squashes. I tried some summer pumpkins but no success yet. The vines are all right and sets are all right but the little pumpkins drop off when they are as large as a good big hen's egg. I have a lot of another kind of pumpkins= some 12 or more. The largest ones will weigh 50 lbs. or more now and they are still growing. Burpee did not send me any peas- I wanted these most of anything.

News of the surrender of Bulgaria has just reached us. Oct. 3- It has seemed to me for some weeks that the end of the war must be in sight. The gains of the Allies are wonderful= I wonder if Gould will get over.

And what of peace? This will be a subject of unprecedented difficulties- not a country of any note in the world but has a share. It is also the first time that the question is almost purely a moral one. It is really Might vs. Right or Militarism vs. Democracy. I am praying for the men who have the responsibility of deciding on the peace terms. May God give them grace, wisdom and love.

Very lovingly
Will.

Kelly Field, San Antonio, Texas.
Det Flying Cadet,
Oct. 2, 1918

Dear Mamma;-

It has been two months since I have heard from China at all. I don't even know what that part of the family did this summer. I hear about once a week from the Farm, once in a week and a half from Phebe, once in two weeks from Maud Carpenter, once a month from Dot, and once in two months from Geraldine. I also keep up an occasional correspondence with a few other boys and girls. I find out though that I have to write first to get a letter in return, and if work becomes strenuous and I fall off the least bit the incoming mail falls off as the square of the decrease.

The date when my commission comes is drawing near, that is, if I am as successful as I have been, and I will have to spend some three hundred dollars right off the bat for equipment. However, if we get one back pay before then, I will have some $150 towards that sum. You know, don't you, that the old congress failed to make the appropriation for the Cadets pay before it adjourned, and we have been going on $33 a month which is the pay for private 1st class. Flying cadet's regular pay is supposed to be $75 a month, but we have had to wait until the new Congress opened and got to the appropriation and now we must wait another month for the necessary red tape and the making out of the pay roll. Every month I have gone "broke" from the 20th on to pay day, but I guess it has not hurt me at all and I have incidentally saved up some money which I would otherwise have spent.

Ever since I have been here I have contented myself on weekends by going down town with a couple of cadets and seeing a couple of the best shows, taking supper at a restaurant, and walking the streets between times. We get home about 12:00 P.M. Then on Sunday I generally take a long tramp in the morning and visit the Camp Library and the Y.W.C.A. Hostess house in the afternoon. Twice I have gone to church in San Antonio, once to the Baptist and once to the Episcopal, but mostly I go to the Y.M. Service in camp. The Cong'l church is merely existing here and they don't seem to be very cordial to strangers. Some of the churches even go so far as to serve dinner to all soldiers, since mess is served in camp before they can get back.

Week before last I had a great time in a civilian home. A Lieut. in Kelly #1 who knew me in Oberlin invited me to go with him to his friend's house. He took me to the show in the afternoon and then we went to the house for supper. The people are Mr. and Mrs. Sires; rich people who live in a large, yellow brick building in the aristocratic section of the city. When the camps were situated here, they opened their mansion to the soldiers and officers and took in four young school teachers for boarding to act as entertainers. The whole household, including the teachers are fine, well cultured people, and know the real needs of a camp stale soldier. We spent the evening in games and talked and singing, then went to bed about 12:00 P.M. After breakfast the Lieut. and myself took one of the young ladies to church. We took dinner there and then started for camp at 4:00 P.M. The whole time was enjoyable. It is the first bed I have slept in for a long time, the first real home meals I have eaten since I went to the Farm last, and the first time I have talked with ladies since that time. I am invited to drop in any time. I might add that both Mr. and Mrs. Sires are ardent Christian Scientists.

Kelly Field has been put in quarantine because of a Spanish Influenza scare and it may be 30 days before we can get to town. All the camps around here are likewise in quarantine.

Maybe I have said it before, but this bunch of cadets here is the jolliest and wittiest group of men I have ever been in. Hard luck and disappointments we have had in plenty and more loom up every day, but I have never seen a time, even while the whole bunch is cursing, when someone didn't crack a joke that set the whole bunch roaring. In the evenings after lights out has blown, wit is especially active. No one is exempted from receiving a pretty blunt knock once in a while for any peculiarity that he has, and it is the best thing for those who think they are better than anyone else.

The major in command of the Cadet Wing has made a new schedule for academic work and in it he has made all men attend engine classes until the 20th week. I am in flight 16 and our flight has already passed the finals in all subjects so we felt a little mean about going back to them. They gave us work on the engine blocks where we run the engines to practice "trouble shooting." In the regular course, the instructors taught us how to locate trouble, "trouble shooting" they call it; so this A.M. we started to put the engine on the blink ourselves. The instructor thought that the engine was O.K. and wanted to show us a good engine, but somehow it wouldn't work, and when he went to look for the trouble we would adjust what we set wrong on the sly and start her up. He soon became entirely discouraged and when he caught on to our stunt after an hour or more, he just sat back and let us fuss all over the motor.

Football practice has started. I am playing, but there is no danger of my ever getting on the first team. We have "all stars" from all over the country and ought to show some good work soon. The coaching is a little off, because of favoritisms and poor coaching, but I think we will be pretty successful after all.

I have been transferred onto Aerobatics now. That, you know, is stunt flying; tail spins, loops, Immelman turns, etc. The ships have the Duperdissen control system and it takes a little time to get on to it. I had my first ride this morning with the instructors. I did my 8 tail spins O.K. but my ordinary flying was absolutely rotten, so rotten that my instructor hesitated to turn me loose on solo work. I skidded on nearly every turn and very much over controlled the ship so that we were bobbing about all the time. Now that I have had time to go over every move I made, I think I will be able to show him what I can really do the next time he sends me up. There's one consolation anyway, I'm not so good but what there is something to strive for.

I am much amused at reading my letters to see the queer ideas people have about flying. Some think it would be grand to soar up above the clouds; well, it is, when you have confidence in yourself and your machine, but if you don't it would be torture; at least for the first time. Others don't realize that altitude means safety, the higher I get, the more possibilities there are of picking a good landing spot if your engine stops and the more possibilities of righting my ship if it goes into a tail spin. Gracie wants me to land in their back yard sometime; well, I would be lucky to get into a lot twice that size or out of it again if it was three times that size.

When I first enlisted, I sent you a small silk Service Flag. I can't remember that you said whether you ever received it or not; if you didn't I will send another.

Last Saturday I saw some persimmons down town, and you can be sure I bought and ate all I dared to. It is the first fruit I have tasted that was anything like the old Foochow fruit.

How are Kathleen and Marjorie? I haven't heard from or about them for a long, long time. Do they wear their skirts at knee height or below? Do they wear bobbed hair or long? Is Monny still bigger than Punk and which is the heavier? Is Monny still the reader that she used to be and is Punk still aggressive as she was when I saw her last? Maybe I am treading on precarious ground when I call them by their baby names, they may be young ladies now.

Best of wishes, greatest happiness, and love and kisses to you all.
Your brother and son,
Gould.

October 10, 1918

Dear People-

Today is supposedly Inauguration Day and I wonder how things went. The Western war front is still most encouraging with the last strong hold in the Hindenburg Line broken and the German peace terms unaccepted [According to Wikipedia.org, The Hindenburg Line was a vast system of defenses in northeastern France during World War I.] I have a Current Events class to conduct on Saturday afternoons so I am becoming a diligent reader of the papers. Our new American paper the "North China Star" is quite decidedly American in its "get up" and really gives the news.

Just think, we have been in session four weeks already. With five of us to run things we are not so burdened as in former years. Each of our schedules allows a little time to ourselves in the day's program. Miss Parsons proved to have had four years of college French so takes the two classes in French which were worrying us. She ?? ??, in that she has had class music, history, English etc. so we are getting along without outside help in teaching. Miss Willoughby came down for one week to help out. What a nice lot of messages we have had from home recently. Mrs. Martin was the first. Mr. Edward Lincoln Smith the second. Miss Terrill was the third. She had not seen you but brought a message from Dr. Shelton. It seems she visited the head nurse at Griffin hospital. Mr. and Mrs. Pye almost were messengers because they had visited her sister and a sister of Mrs. Hummel in Ansonia. Unfortunately she did not know of Helen or that you were so near. Mrs. Martin said she missed Ruth in the home altho she never had known her there. Her children are fine children and I am getting well acquainted now.

A week ago yesterday, Mr. Tarrin and Mr. Lieper left for Siberia for work under the Y.M.C.A. They were unable to get some warm things they needed so I volunteered to make a sweater for Mc L. with sleeves and collar. I was unable to get the wool until Saturday the 23rd. I started it Sunday morning and finished it the next Sunday before church. Mrs. Paterson and Flora did the sleeves and Mrs. P. helped sew it up by sewing the sleeves and putting them in. It was fun to race with time and succeed.

There is a wide spread epidemic of gripe abroad. We have had three cases, not very severe, and several bad colds. Another short siege of several cases came from eating some fresh tomatoe catsup one noon. I came in on that and took a two days light diet.

We have had a glorious Fall. No hot weather at all and now so cold that we started the furnace today. I have been for a good walk or two and played tennis several times. Miss Grace Parsons plays so we get out together. I am working on a course of gymnastics to give the children so as to encourage straighter standing and sitting.

We changed the rooming of the children for this year. F. and I have only boys here; the small ones are up here with me and the H.S. ones on the floor below with F. Miss Bostwick has the little girls and Jean and Grace have the High School girls. Our third house is next Wisteria Lodge and was occupied by the Stelles last year and the Galts in previous years.

We have fitted up another school room so now there is no sleeping room on the main floor. Flora, Miss Bostwick and Grace share in the charge of that room. Grace also has charge of the High School room with me.

Our system of plumbing is not all satisfactory but much better than the old arrangements. The fall of the water is so slight that we have very little force. The big porcelain tub is a joy. It is good to straighten ones legs in a tub once more. Just think I was not in a tub for June 24 to September 28. Don't you think I needed a bath!!

The girls, Margaret Smith and Alice Huggins, had a "home warming" over the week end, September 22, and I spent most of my time over there to keep the couples even. The weather was glorious and the party was a grand success.

I was in Peking for one night, September 30, to attend a banquet at the Y.W.C.A. They are having a campaign to raise $3500 for their work. I am helping a little by giving out slips for the Prayer cycle here in Tunghsien and being ready to receive any contributions offered.

The Salvation Army have opened work in Tunghsien this fall. They called once to ask aid; otherwise I have seen them once. That was when our class pledged a $10,000 fellowship and we wish to complete it by 1920. Only a little over half is in hand so far.

Willard sent us recently letter from Phebe and Gould. The former to ?? ?? and the later forwarded by you at Century Farm. These two are certainly making good in every way. I am wondering if Gould is still in America. He was progressing so rapidly that he would soon be graduated. I am proud to be aunt to two such young people. But I feel old to think of being aunt to such grown up young people.

Flora says that the Board of Trustees are going to suggest lengthening our term to seven years and then giving us a furlough year. I have not committed myself as to what I shall do about it. When the suggestion comes straight from the Board I shall have to give some answers. I can not tell you what it will be, for I myself do not know. My heart says go home but my reason says it is not fair to the school when it is so hard to get teachers out. An added argument on the last side is that there will be no missionary rates of travel after this October. That will make a big difference in our expenses. On the other hand, I could certainly find a sport for usefulness at home. To turn woman-farmer now would not be inappropriate. Just please give me a few arguments pro and con to help my indecision.

Please for Edith Louise's Christmas present from Aunt Mary Louise buy $2.00 worth of War Savings Stamps or if she has started on any other method of being patriotic put the money there. I sent nothing for last Christmas or birthday so especially want this for Xmas.

I took out my second bond of $50 a short time ago. Exchange was way down to 104.64 so it cost only $52.82. It is up to 107+ now.

It is nearly eleven o'clock so I must get to bed. I have tried every night to get this written without sitting up late and finally gave up the attempt and sat up.

Lots of love
Mary.

[This letter, dated October of 1918, was written from Tungchou, China by Mary to the home folk. The Spanish influenza has struck and Dr. Arthur Smith was hit particularly hard but he is recovering. Mary's chemistry professor from Holyoke is coming to visit. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

October [1918]

Dear Home Folk-

Letters are getting fewer in number both in leaving here and in arriving. I suppose that must be so, as we each get buried in the new duties that we must take up in these strenuous war times. I personally am not doing much more than last year. I have knitted three sweaters and 1 ½ pair of wristlets since school opened. I have done but little to get the children to work but they are many of them working just the same.

The Spanish Influenza has struck North China all right and it struck everywhere all at once. Our cases came in small numbers but have gotten up to seventeen all total. The Chinese doctor in charge of the hospital is very good and we have been using him.

Dr. Arthur Smith is in the hospital at Peking with a rather severe attack of influenza. Dr. Mak[?] was unwilling to take the responsibility of his care. It excited the children to have the ambulance in the compound at recess.

Dr. Goldthwaite, my chemistry professor at Holyoke, arrives in Peking tomorrow. I expect her down here next weekend.

Nov. 6- Dr. Smith has been very low with pneumonia but is some better now. On Monday I went to take him some flowers and was allowed to shake hands with him. He surprised me with the strong grip he gave my hand. Little Helen Corbett is just recovering from a three weeks siege of pneumonia. Both are results of the influenza. Mr. and Mrs. Edwards (Y.M.C.A.) lost their little boy with pneumonia and typhoid combines.

Dr. Goldthwaite is in Peking and on last Monday I was at lunch with her at Mrs. Stifler's. Susan Reed Stifler is Holyoke 1908. A 1904 girl and Miss Crane, Y.W.C.A. Secretary at Holyoke for two years, were the other guests. We had a most enjoyable time. Last Sunday was "Old Home Sunday" for the Tungchow church. Most of the foreigners who have formerly worked here and a lot of Chinese were back. They had meetings three and four a day beginning Saturday evening and ending Tuesday noon. We helped entertain the foreigners and had Dr. and Mrs. Wilder and Mrs. Sheffield as guests. Their last meeting was a memorial for Mr. Frame and must have been most inexpensive.

At last I have met Mr. Chen the head of the chemistry department in the Academy (Nov 11). He and I talked over the use of the laboratory and he is to give me my own places to use so we will not interfere with his boys hereafter.

Dr. Goldthwaite came down Saturday noon and stayed until Sunday evening.

On Saturday I let her have a nap immediately after lunch then she went to the Chemistry laboratory with me. It took all my courage and will power to say that her presence would not make me nervous and then not to let it do so. Mrs. Martin had invited everyone to tea that afternoon so we went.

For dinner we had Mrs. Martin, Mr. and Mrs. Stelle, Mrs. Yarrow and Mrs. Lieper in and we ate at 7.30. The children ate at 6.15 as usual so we had a real formal dinner and lingered as long as we liked. Of course we knitted and talked afterwards; so it was eleven before the guests all left. I hope we can do so again sometime because it was a very pleasant occasion for all concerned.

On Sunday morning we took rickshas and went to the east gate to see the chains put up to fool the river Gods into thinking the city a ship. Then we stopped to see how the malt candy is made and incidentally to buy some. They were not yet at work so we saw only the room and huge vat. Then we went to the pagoda and back home in the afternoon I got out all my curios for her to see then we visited the dairy and had tea here before going to the train. It filled the time but Dr. G. assured me she was not too tired.

This is the first Monday I have spent at home in several weeks. I have looked after my plants which I had brought in for the winter and have gotten some upstairs where we can see them. I shall take the children to the candy shop this afternoon. Isn't the news from the Western front thrilling these days. My pins on my National Geographic map go by leaps and bounds to the eastward. Mrs. Yarrow loaned us a map of Russia so we can keep watch of that front. My last Digest gives a good map of the Balkan states. We stop every thing for the paper these days. Our newspaper "The North China Star" is gotten up on the American plan and has headlines so a few numbers[?] will get the big items.

We are all well of the influenza and the news from Dr. Smith is most encouraging these days. The Doctors say now he might recover.

Our Red Cross work is concentrated on knitting here as everything goes to Siberia. Our men are not in town enough with the fighting forces for much hospital work but we are in touch with refugees who need warm clothing.

I must get this off. Here is a Merry Xmas to you all as this won't much ?? then reach you before that. Think of us as well and busy and so happy.

Lots of love

Mary Beard.

[Nov. 1918]

Dear folks at home:-

This has been a most quiet week end, for most every one is in Peking in order to participate in the Peace Celebrations. We got word on Wednesday noon. Then letters, telegrams, and autos began to arrive for the children to go to see the doings in Peking. The result was that we closed school Thursday noon and have been celebrating ever since. It was also the week for the big "War Work Campaign" for money and it is certainly marvelous how the Chinese are going down into their pockets for the dollars. Everywhere the proposed amounts are being over-subscribed. All the schools (Chinese) and colleges were out in the parade for it, on Thursday, and I am sure there must have been twenty thousand marching. It took an hour and forty minutes for the procession to pass us. The numbers of students made one realize that education is really going on. One sees so many boys at work in the shops and on the streets that it was a good sight to see so many thousands of students. To-day (two days later) the American children and we teachers have been helping our own city to celebrate. We went over to the building known as the "Town Hall" where there was a huge crowd filling all the enclosure- standing. Most of them were students from the several government schools of Tunghsien, and we must have made a "line of march" over a mile long. Our school was one of the music furnishers and we marched about a mile with the line. First we stood at the side of the road and cheered the standard bearers of each school and then we fell in behind the Academy boys of our compound. They answered our cheers and later they and we sang songs as we marched along. The numerous door ways of houses on the streets were so numerous filled that each looked as if it were either a school of children or a "ladies aid" society, according to the age and size of the crowds.

The next Sunday (Nov. 24)- This is during Sunday School and the voices of children and their teachers, with the piano and little kindergartners, are floating to my room, somewhat subdued by closed doors, but all are busy reciting their lessons.

We have been off on another trip this time to be received by Pres. Hsu. We closed school yesterday noon, and went by train in a reserved car. We were quite a crowd in our rickshas- forty of us- and we arrived at 1.45 P.M. at the President's gate. We walked all around the lake and out to the island when the late Emperor was imprisoned. Then we went through a beautiful enclosure which was full of wonderful rockeries and a little house, down to another garden in the middle of which was a plain marble house, looking exactly like a huge stone box, without any windows, and just one rather small, low door. Inside stands the gold(?) box in which Yuan Shih Kai placed the three names to choose his successor from I had always pictured to myself some small, beautifully adorned golden box, and my imaginings had quite a collapse when I saw a plain iron foreign safe enameled over with yellow paint. It wasn't even pretty.

Well, after leaving this part of the garden we went through a covered labarinth and at the other end found ourselves at the Palace doors. We entered, left our wraps in the places prepared for such things and then prepared to meet the president. He kept us waiting a few minutes but no one found it boring. The place was very warm- the heat being supplied by a foreign system of steam pipes. Finally the president came- an elderly, dignified, keen man. He was not dressed in military style but had on a beautiful dark blue brocaded silk gown- fur lined and with a darker silk over vest. He had grey hair and a grey moustache. He read his speech and his interpreter read his also. The President shook hands with the two of dignified Americans who stood in front, among whom was Will's college chum Dr. G.D. Wilder, who made the return speech to the President. Then we went to partake of the refreshments, which were ham sandwiches, small cakes and tea. The children were invited in behind the doors to see the apartments from which the president came. Two years ago I saw them. They consist of small rooms furnished with Brussels carpets, plush covered chairs and walls hung with silk draperies- just retiring rooms where men can sit for smoking and talking.

On our way out we went to see the throne room in which is the gold(?) chair that Yuan Shi Kai had made for his throne. This is in a large and beautiful building with its twin just back of it. Just now it is used as an art gallery and the president had all the wonderful collection of emperor portraits hung for us to see. There were dozens of them, painted on silk and all mounted on yellow brocaded silk. They included emperors from 1600 A.D. to 2753 B.C. They were remarkable for color and fineness of lines. I was so glad to see them for I have heard so much about them.

To the children the most exciting part of the afternoon was the ride home. We were too late to return by train so we came by auto. It took five to get us back, and the children enjoyed the ride even though it was rather cold. We arrived in time for our usual dinner home, though it was a fifteen mile ride.

Well, the Trustees of our school have asked Mary and me to stay out one year more, because it is impossible, on account of the unsettled state of the world, to get any one to take our places just now. We have not given our definite answer yet, but do not see how we can decline, unless we wish to leave the school in the lurch. Neither of us is keen to be away from home any longer than is necessary, and it will mean an entire change of our plans. Beside there is a wish on the part of the business men and some of the Rockefeller people to have the school moved into Peking. Both Mary and I feel that this is a serious mistake and neither of us will consent to stay if it is done. The way in which this plan has begun seems to the Trustees of this school a bit Hunnish as though it were "money vs. politeness." However, since Mr. Green, who is at the head of the Rockefeller Foundation takes neither side, it may all fall through. The idea of the business people really establishing a school seems to us an impossibility as none of them ever stay for more than a year or two before they are up and away promoted to some higher position, somewhere else- and thereby never here to fulfill their promises- as we have already experienced such results. It certainly is an interesting experience- if not always a stable proposition- to start a school out here. Before we ever came there had been a big tussle to decide between Tunghsien and Tsingtao. How fortunate the decision for this place was! Two years ago our lives were threatened when Yuan Shih Kai's unpaid troops (about 10,000 of them in our city at that time) threatened to disgrace him. Now the Shanghai American School is trying to swallow us up by insisting that there shall be only one High School for all of China, and this latest agitation! All this while we are going on with our every day duties and are planning for larger things in the future. I cannot feel that we are to be engulfed for the people of North China will never consent to send their children into the unhealthy climate and conditions of Shanghai, nor, I believe will the Peking project materialize, for it is so much cleaner and safer for children to live out here. Our number this year did not increase, but that can be laid to the war, and to furloughs, but our High School this year composes half our number, and this you see can be said to have a faculty, and we have spent a lot of time organizing. This last has meant most to Mary and me, for until this year we have shouldered every responsibility. Now to have only our fifth of it means that we have had the time to do a lot of the finer points. I think the children have been much more contented and have done better work than ever.

It is possible if we stay out that Mary and I may spend the summer in Japan. Mrs. Burgess's father and mother are spending a few weeks here with their daughter and her mother has invited Mary and me to spend the summer with them at Karuizawa, as I did with them years ago. It would be perhaps the most inexpensive summer for us, especially if exchange stays where it is now, as our dollar will buy nearly two yen.

We have had just two letters from you since school commenced, but Will sent us one so that we knew you were well. I still hope that you all escaped the influenza. It had a big sweep here and probably thousands of Chinese fell victims of it. They die so fast that coffins gave out. We had a lot of it among foreigners but I do not remember hearing of many deaths. Dr. Arthur H. Smith was at death's door for about three weeks but he is making a good recovery now. The practice out here of putting every one immediately to bed when anything is the matter, I think, was the saving treatment.

Wishing you all a Merry Xmas and a peaceful New Year I am- Yours lovingly-

Flora Beard.

We can't get mother's fur coat to her but hope we can in a few months. F.B.

Foochow China

Nov. 17, 1918

Dear Girls

How did you like the sugar I sent you. I like it better than the white. Today is a rainy day and we have not seen the sun for a week.

A week ago yesterday there was a concert at the church. The church was crowded with people. We sat up in the gallery. First the band played next came a prayer then one of the school boys told what the meeting was for then the Girls school sang, then a school boy played kind of a violin it was a Chinese one. It made an awful noise but he didn't mind it, he went sawing away and it screeched so loud it nearly made me deaf. Now if you don't mind I will write the rest of the program on another piece of paper. I have begun a sweater for the people up north. This summer I knit seven wash rags and last winter I knit a cap for my doll. Last Friday there was a wedding in the church. It was supposed to begin at two but the bride didn't come until four so some of the people had to wait over two hours. When she did at last come firecrackers went off and there were a hole lot of people at the door. Her sedan chair was all covered with flowers. They had a foreign wedding. She the bride was in foreign dress well as the groom. Friday night the boy scouts came in and showed the people over here what they could do. They showed how to tie knots that were easy to un-tie. They signaled with red flags and with a flag that had a white back ground and a blue stripe down the middle of it. The picture enclosed is my birthday picture. It was taken by the typhoon wall on the mountain. The baby in my arms is Margaret Leger. Mr. and Mrs. Leger boarded at our house this summer. With lots of love

Your sister Kathleen

They celebrated by having a 2 day vacation. Gould is disappointed that he did not get to go to Europe but happy the war is over. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Foochow, China.

Nov. 17th 1918.

Dear children:-

One subject engages the attention of the world today- the prospect of peace – the armistice. It is most interesting to note how it effects the Chinese I wrote you that nearly every Chinese in Foochow was pro-German until a year ago. A change has very quietly come over them, but it has not resulted in any outward demonstration. Some of the leading Christian Chinese here have been decidedly pro-German till this Summer. When the news came that the armistice had been signed there was little demonstration. The foreigners of course were almost hilarious. I had the College flag raised and of course read the telegram to teachers and students, and I listened carefully for any sign of a request for a holiday. Not a whisper till Wed. a.m. about 8:30- Three boys came very quietly and said, “We ought to do something to commemorate the armistice.” “All right”, I said. And at 10:15 all met and I asked them if they wanted a holiday and to have a procession. 11 or 12 raised their hands against it!!

But the majority ruled and we had a vacation of two days and a most happy and successful procession of 300- marching with banners and flags thru the principle streets of the city, and calling on the General- Governor. He asked the boys to sing and the College Board to play and then addressed them, - speaking of the joy everywhere over the cessation of fighting in Europe and lamenting that China was still in evil strife. Then he gave each one of us a paper flower to remember the occasion and asked the students to have tea and cake- the faculty were invited into his private sitting room. After chatting for 15 minutes we said good bye. Gen'l Li had his Yamen decorated with the flags of all nations and he was dressed in full military uniform to receive us. Of course the teachers, students and the President were mightily pleased. All but three or four of the boys who opposed the procession on Wed. a.m. joined it on Thursday.

On Tuesday evening all foreigners were invited to meet at the Foochow Club to celebrate the armistice. We all went. It was just a get-to-gether to let every one know how happy we were.

The articles of agreements are all here and we have read them. Two things stand out as I read them- 1. Their comprehensiveness 2. The absence of any vindictiveness. There is no vengeance. But it is perfectly clear that the Allies are not taking any risks. Germany has thrown away completely all things that could call for faith in her by any other nation or any other person.

Now my prayers are that God will direct the nations in the choice of the men who are to determine the terms of peace. What a conference that will be!! A whole world to reconstruct!!

Oh! may these men fully realize that the basis of an enduring peace is not in might, - whether it is force of material, industrial or commercial or educational might. The basis of an enduring world peace is Righteousness. And a peace with righteousness as its foundation will stand in China or Belgium or Germany. It will stand at all times and will endure all changes of material, industrial or commercial conditions.

The world seems able to learn only one lesson at a time. This is often taught by means of calamity- as God taught the Jews that idolatry was wrong- first by precift.[?] but at last by the destruction of the nation. And today an idolatrous Jew is unknown and other nations are re-arming. This week men all over the world are realizing what prophets have said for three thousand years- “Might is not right”. And it has taken a world cataclysm to make men realize it.

Nov. 4 I addressed a letter to Dorothy, enclosing a draft on Boston for $50. first of Exchange. In this I will put second of exchange in case the other was lost. This money is for Phebe or Geraldine as they need it.

We received letters from Gould Oct. 26 and from Geraldine at the same time. We are asking God to be with Gould. He is disappointed not to get to Europe, but his disappointment is balanced by his joy that the killing of men has stopped. And he will be led to do that thing which for him is right and best.

Every hour we ask God to direct him, and we continually ask that Geraldine may have perfect health to give perfect service to God and man.

We have been doing our own house work for three days. Our one servant got ill with an influenza that seems to have been going all over the world, and Mama has done the cooking. He is better and on the job again much to our delight.

Friday afternoon we plan to make a call on the General. - So to look- see his Yamen. A new interpreter whom he has recently employed is a Christian man from a mission school in Peking.

My garden is coming on some- not as well as last year. - I have radishes – all gone now- we have lettuce once- on the way are turnips- cauliflower- beets- cabbage lettuce- celery- tomatoes- Chinese cabbage- Swiss chard- peas. Yesterday I picked a bunch of fine bananas about 100.

The other day the girlies were talking as they played paper dolls- Monnie said “We will take 8 to 12 including”- “8 to 12 inclusive.” She got it right the second time. Lovingly Your Father

Willard L. Beard

Of course you know that 2nd of Exchange is good on if 1st of Ex. has been lost.

Foochow, China
Nov. 24th 1918.

Dear Elizabeth:-

I do not really know whether it is your turn to receive a letter or not. But I'm sending this to you just the same. Your good letter of Oct. 6- came day before yesterday. I was away at a Board of Directors meeting and got home after 10 p.m. and found a big home mail. At such a time there is but one thing to do- sit down and read it and go to bed when it is finished. It was a good mail,- from Gould- Geraldine, you, Mt. Vernon and Rose Wells and Mary. All letters brought good news, and this is conducive to a good night's rest.

Did you know that I began a sweater last summer at Pei Tai Ho. The yarn gave out when I had half the purling on the last end done and I had to wait for more from Peking. I finished it and sent it in a week ago last Friday. I suppose it will go to Siberia to help keep some poor fellow warm this winter. The report here is that 1000's will freeze and starve in Siberia this winter in spite of anything that can now be done.

How I should have liked to be home this past two weeks. The joy of the people must have been great. And the joy of the U.S. must have been greatest, and not as much chastened as that of Canada, England and France for in these lands most of the families looked forward to no reunion this side of Heaven. The loved one or loved ones will never come back to the home in Canada or England or France.

In the Congregationalist that came last week, is the notice that Dr. Wm. E. Strong's son Ellsworth was killed in the summer. We're praying that Gould will be able to rejoice altho he did not get over,- and that he will be led to find the best thing to do, now that the path in the direction of war is closed.

The foreigners had a jubilation here on Tuesday evening after the armistice was announced, and General Li invited all the men to his Yamen last Sat. 4-6 p.m. to celebrate the cessation of two days- Wed. and Thursday. Wed we had a grand procession thru the city. We called on General Li. He asked the boys to sing and the Band to play then he told them how glad every one was that the war had stopped and said he hoped China could have peace very soon. He asked about 250 students to set down to tea and cake, invited the Faculty to his private office, and he put on his military uniform complete to receive us. He also presented each of us with a paper flower to commemorate the occasion. Of course we all felt good.

All letters are full of the influenza. It seems to be all over the world. S. Africa seems to be hit hard. The girls write that it is in the north. It is in Foochow- but is not as bad here as in other places. Ellen and I have had touches of it. One cook has been in the Hospital three days. Mr. and Mrs. Scott were in bed yesterday. They are better today.- Goodnight- more later.

Monday evening,- another rainy day,- lots of rain this fall which is unusual.- I thought it would be good for my garden but it is no better this year than last. I have had lettuce once- am now letting it grow to supply the compound garden for Thanksgiving. The first radishes are all gone, and the second sowing are almost ready. But looking fine, turnips most ready to eat- cabbage fine, carrots and parsnips coming on. Celery fine. Cauliflower and Chinese cabbage are having a hard time between worms and birds.- Did you receive that Chinese cabbage seed I sent last spring? My strawberries are looking very good. I have four little yellow summer pumpkins- each about nine inches in diam. and one Hubbard squash. It is too hot here for these to do well.

Tell Edith her letter was very interesting. I hope she escaped the influenza. God has dealt very kindly with us. May He help us all to so live that He can continue to bless us-

With love to all Will

Rose Wells writes that she has given you $10- to be put in the bank for me and Mrs. B.J. Col?? Writes that she has given you $4- or rather that she has deposited for me in the Derby Savings Bank. I shall write these as soon as possible. Will.

Foochow, China.
Dec. 22nd 1918

Dear Folks at Home:-

On this beautiful, cheerful Sabbath morning- the Christmas Sabbath, I am starting a letter to you so it will be sure to get into the next mail. It is like an April morning at home- no fires, and a winter suit is almost too thick for comfort. We have had no cold weather yet this year, and we have built a fire only a few times.

Christmas is in the air all over Foochow,- every year the Christians are making more and more of it in their celebrations. And the upper classes are at least being appraised of the significance of the season. There was talk of a big parade on Christmas Day all thru the city by all the church members. But it was a little too new and involved several factors that were too unique. The College boys are to have a young city in the College grounds. They have printed a lot of paper money, $1.00, $2.00, $5.00, $10.00, $20.00, $50.00, $100.00, $200.00, $300.00, $500.00 bills. They will open a Bank and there will be all manner of shops with articles for sale. They have gone into the stores of the city and will be allowed to take from these stores, piece goods, fruit, shoes, hats, trinkets and all manner of things. The would-be-purchaser must first go to the Bank and purchase Foochow College Bank Notes with real money. Only these Bank Notes will be accepted in payment of the articles bought. This is one of the ways in which they are planning to celebrate Christmas. The money which they make will be given- half to Turkey half to a Chinese mission in Yunnan province- way down on the S. West of China.

Last Thursday Miss Hartwell received from the President of China and from the General-Governor of Fukien medals and boards with mottos in recognition of the good work she had done in starting and keeping up an orphanage here in Foochow. The Christian Herald first gave money for this ten years or so ago. That fund is now used up. And the officials are giving several hundred dollars a month toward the work. The occasion of the presentation was a big one. The General and the Foreign consuls and many of the gentry were there. I think this is the first time China has ever given a medal to any foreigner for philanthropic work.

A week ago today I had the great pleasure of baptizing and admitting to the church a mother, her two daughters and her daughter-in-law and of baptizing her youngest son, 9 years old, and her grandson 9 months old. The whole family are now in the church i.e. her husband, son and mother beside those admitted last Sunday. The father used to be in the army under the Empire and "ate the government". After the revolution in 1911 his stipend from the government ceased and the preacher helped him and encouraged him to start a rice shop. He paid strict attention to business and is now a prosperous merchant; with a Christian family.

A good letter came from Mr. and Mrs. Jewett of Mt. Vernon last mail. They greatly enjoyed the visit from the girls last Sept. Their letters were so full of the visit that they forgot to write anything about their own interesting pair of children.

The last mail brought a letter also from some of Etta's children to the girls. We do not yet know anything about Gould's whereabouts. It seems as if the war stopped a long time ago, and our home papers are still telling of war incidents and still giving the numbers that will be in France by next July. To read such news (?) when we know the soldiers are already beginning to return gives one a queer feeling- it's history.

The girlies are in great demand for singing. Thurs. p.m.-Friday p.m. twice today, and I do not know how many times this next week. All the churches want them to sing at their Christmas exercises.

I am wondering if the conditions now that the war has stopped will make it any easier for you to get help. I hope it will. Just now I suppose work is not quite as rushing as it was in the warmer season and yet I know there is always enough to do. My garden is just at its best to look at now. The restrictions due to the war, cut me out of peas from home and I ordered two packages from a nursery in Japan. I got enough to sow one row about 20 feet long. I ordered a quart at once and I expect them any day. I hope it is not too late. Beets, turnips, parsnips, carrots, lettuce, onions, cabbages, cauliflower, celery and strawberries are in bloom and many already set. This makes me think I must at once order sweet corn and string beans. The girls have been trying to send me down some corn and millet from Tientsin but regulations are so stiff that the grain is or was still in Tientsin. From the grain which I brought down with us last Aug. we are eating a combination of millet, gen liong= (brown corn or caffer corn rice and wheat ground in equal parts and it is good.

This is a unique Christmas- we have just left behind the greatest cataclysm the world has ever seen, and before us lies the most stupendous task men ever faced- rebuilding the world. But God has always found men equal to every task and there are men equal to the present task. I see Pres. Wilson is not to sit in the Peace Conference. But his wisdom will be there. Hughes is a good man. It is interesting to watch the growth of prohibition in the U.S. and in the world. What effect will the cessation of the war have on the movement against the use of liquor?

All send lots of love to Grandpa, Grandma, Aunt Phebe and Aunt Elizabeth and all the others- specially Nancy,

Will.

Foochow, China
Dec. 29- 1918

Dear Children:-

The last mail brought letters from Phebe and Geraldine. And both wondered what had become of our letter writing ability. I hope the letters have turned up ere this, for if not you must be getting lamentably short of money. My register says I have written as follows July 15 to Geraldine.

(The above I wrote in a tea house near the head of the long bridge last Sunday morning while waiting for Mr. Neff. We were to meet there and take a launch for the Arsenal where we were to visit a recently organized church. Just as I had the word Geraldine written, Mr. Neff came and the launch whistled. It is now Jan. 1st 8:30 p.m. 1919.)

We had an interesting time at the Arsenal village. The church had its Christmas exercises that day and the best men of the village were out. We had a happy day with them and had to take a sampan home. I got home at 8 p.m.

On July 15 I wrote Geraldine. I wrote two letters to Century Farm in August. Thinking some of you girls were there. Sept. 16 I wrote Gould thru Phebe. Oct. 5 I wrote Geraldine. Nov 4 I wrote Dot. Nov 17 I wrote Phebe. Dec 8 I wrote Geraldine. July 15 I sent Phebe $100. Oct. 5 I sent Geraldine $100. Nov 4 I sent Dot $50. Nov 17 I sent Phebe second of exchange for $50.

It is most interesting to read Phebe's letters re Mr. Bidwell. I know of him from a correspondence covering eight years. I received a letter from him when Mr. Frank Brewer and bride, a classmate of mine in Hartford Sem'y where [were] here two years ago, and read it to Frank for the fun. He asked one or two questions and it turned out that Mr. Bidwell was a cousin of his. He is cracked= a little off in the upper stores. He plays the organ in a Catholic church in Kansas City, and gives private lessons on almost any instrument. He sends me about the sins of the rulers of the world. He writes of his proposal to one of the girls in his choir and of her refusal. Take all the money he sends- be sure you tell me of each amount received. Acknowledge them to him at once. You do not need to answer his letters. Send them on to me and tell him you have done so. Thus far you have reported $10 received in Oct. I think he has sent you more since. Miss Preston has probably sent you $12.56 before this.

I am enclosing an order on the Derby Savings Bank for $100. I should like Phebe to take $50 of this to pay for board etc. at Talcott, and not wait on table the last term of her course. The other $50 use as it is needed.

I wrote so fully to Geraldine that she will- or rather has gone to Battle Creek [there is a sanitarium there] before this if it has seemed best. One of the hardest parts of our separation is the inability to be of much use in advising you at times like this. But we all know that God is a better adviser than either father or mother and every day many times we ask Him to help you to give yourself unreservedly to Him and to give you faith that He will make you all sound. You have several good advisers in Oberlin. We pray also that God will advise you thru them.

Your last letters were full of the hilarity over the armistice. We do want to hear what Gould will do. - What effect will it have on Oberlin's military course? Mr. Scott has the 1917 Hi-O-Hi [the Oberlin College Yearbook], - very interesting. We saw you in several places.

Last week we had 3 ½ days of vacation. The boys made a young city of Foochow College. They had shops- went to the street and got different shops to allow them to bring in goods for sale and they had a certain percentage on all sales. They had ready made clothes- underwear- toys- umbrellas- fruit, candy- cake- photo gallery- pawn shop, - police station, - Bank- second hand shop, etc. etc.

Have I written you about my knitting? In Nov. I handed in a sweater to the Red Cross here, that I knit in Pei tai ho and on the way down to Foochow. I have another started and about 19 long now. We are all knitting- sit about the fire and race. You would be interested to Kathleen. She gets her two knit first. Monnie gets thru next. Mama next and poor old Dad comes in last. Tonight Kathleen asked me to race to see if she could knit twice as fast as I. She knit twice across and six stitches while I knit once across.

The piano tuner is in town and is coming tomorrow to tune ours. The girlies are doing well with their music.

New Years Eve we all went to Black Rock Hill to see the Old Year out and the New Year in. We had a very jolly time and the Beard girls entered into it all and enjoyed it as much as any one.

The weather is cold. It has been quite warm till last Sunday. Today it rains and hail fell this morning.

There has been a lot more fighting in Ing Hok. The Northern forces held the place. They were driven out by the Southern forces, and among them were young men now in America- five fellows. Then the Northerners came again and drove the Southerners out. This is the present condition. All is now quiet there.

The troubles in Ing Hok have turned the minds of the people toward the church to a very large extent. Mr. Smith writes most enthusiastically about the way the people are turning toward Christianity.

Have we written that motor busses are running once in 15 minutes from South Gate to the big bridge? The time is 12 minutes and the fare 10 cents. How is that for Foochow?

I must close this now- lest if I leave it to write more, another mail will slip off and not take this.

I hope you have started my Diary for Foochow.

Very lovingly and with many prayers for your success and your happiness.

Your Father

Willard L. Beard

Jan. 3 [1919]

Dear Ones at Home-

Vacation seems to be a busier time than school time. Already we have had two weeks and it seems like a few days only.

School closed December 19th. The 20th was taken up in seeing the children off and tidying up after them. We had guests for supper too. On Saturday Flora, Miss Parsons and I gave the five boys of the compound a Christmas present of a trip to Peking. We took the early train; spent the morning in the foreign shops or the Tung An Shi Chang (Market outside the East Gate); had a Chinese meal at a Chinese restaurant; went to Lun Fo Ssl (A Temple fair) in the afternoon and home on the afternoon train. It was the first real cold day and every time we saw a stove we hugged it to warm our toes. It was great fun to help the boys in choosing their Christmas gifts.

Mrs. Stelle commissioned me to buy a present of a piece of brass or cloisonné priced $5.00. I had great fun doing it and purchased three brass articles in the effort. Every time I got the article short of the five dollars and on returning told her. I couldn't spend so much on one piece because the men were so eager to sell they took my offer too soon. On Christmas Day Flora and I were presented with a brass bowl by the Stelle family. How we laughed when we recognized the one I had especially admired of those I had purchased for Mrs. Stelle. Little did I suspect it was my own present I was buying.

Flora and I had to take another day in Peking to do our own shopping.

Christmas day was a full one and a most happy one. We started with a breakfast at Mrs. Martin's. All our gifts were these too, so after breakfast we hunted packages all over the two living rooms. Then we went down the line to see the trees and call a "Merry Christmas" to everyone. At Dr. Smiths's we stopped for a real call. We dressed again and went out to dinner at the Martin's or Leipers at 1.00 P.M. The afternoon was given over to getting ready for the children's party to be held at our home at 5.00. We had games until 6.30. Then everyone ate supper together in our school dinning rooms. Mr. Yarrow can pride himself on having kissed every woman present under the mistletoe.

Again we dressed for an evening party at the Leiper-Yarrow home. We had great fun with "pillow duck[?]", "blind man's bluff" etc. until 11.00. Then we ate some more and were home about mid night.

At our home we all pitched in the next day to help catalogue our library. We find that we have 750 books of all sort, novels, poems, histories, essays, Bible helps, reference works etc. On Thursday I went to Peking for supplies and got an invitation to go up for the Friday Club the next afternoon. I accepted with alacrity. Dr. Dennis spoke on "Territorial Readjustment after the War." It was well worth going to.

As I wrote Alice Frame, with whom I stayed, it showed that some of the compensations one could get if our school were moved to Peking are great.

The movement to move the school to Peking is on foot. Or rather the movement is to start another school in Peking and swallow us because of a lack of funds to compete. There are two sides and nearly the whole American population is lined up on one side or the other. We were quite worried for awhile but think the danger is lessening as the facts are being brought out. Both Flora and I have been earnestly requested to stay out another year because of the difficulty of getting anyone out to fill our places this next year. We have said "yes" if the school stays here but "no" if it moves to Peking. I have stated that I will return after a year at home if the trustees desire. If the school goes to Peking I ask for a raise of $100 because one of the chief arguments for moving us to Peking has been that the teachers might have the advantage offered[?]. In enumerating the advantages nearly every one requires from $1 to $12 annually to be able to enjoy it. Hence I think a special enumeration is due. Perhaps you guess that I am not desirous of making the move?

I bought a lovely new gown about Thanksgiving time. It is dark old gold in color, of soft silk and made with the new side pouch, braid and fringe trimming, the round neck etc. I will have a snap shot of that and my new big black velvet hat taken for you to see. My wardrobe of 1914 which I brought out is getting very low. This is the first new hat for winter and except for the serge dress you sent the first dress except wash dresses for summer. I am having my ?? that I brought out made over and already am wearing the brown serge remodeled with some brown velvet I bought in a Chinese store.

Jan. 6- To go on with our vacation. On New Years Day Flora received with Mrs. Corbett and I with Mrs. Porter. At our home we had 75 guests at least. I may have omitted a few from my list but surely not many. It was great fun especially as I had not done it for two years now. Flora and I went to Mrs. Burgesses for the night.

Mrs. Porter wanted us there but Flora does not wish to accept her hospitality to that extent. On Thursday we had the morning with Mrs. Burgess and baby David. We took lunch with Mrs. Edwards and were off at 3.00 to do a few errands on the way to the train.

We have been having tea here every afternoon this vacation for ourselves and all who can drop in. At least three or four come every day. On Thursday when we came from Peking we all went to Mrs. Martins for tea. Her tea was coffee and awfully good.

We tried to have a home party this week end and succeeded in getting two (2) guests. Four probably guests were ill at the last minute. Others were kept in town by a reception for the new pastor of Union Church, Mr. Beers, who reached Peking last Friday. He is father to Douglas Beers who is English teacher here in the Academy.

We had a dinner party Saturday evening of twelve. We invited people here to fill the places of out-of-town guests. Later every one was over for games. We served fruit punch and chocolate cake as "a sign that it was time to go home" and our guests left about 11.00.

Yesterday morning we took rickshas and went to see the chairs hanging on the wall outside the East Gate; stopped at the candy shop; and visited the pagoda. Two of us walked home from there but the others rode all around. We went through the hospital on the way home.

In the afternoon, altho it was Sunday, we went for tea to the Yarrows. Mr. and Mrs. Ackerman were there. He is correspondent for the New York Times. Mr. Yarrow met him in Siberia. He is on the way to France now.

We had a fine letter from Stanley and Myra enclosing several snap shots of Nancy. How I long to see her! I do not want to stay out another year but are no way out unless I am ready to see the work of five years go for nothing since no new person can be gotten this year. Jean Dudley goes anyway.

Phebe's letter of Nov. 4 was the last from here. I am eager for the one telling of the peace news. We have not been any more generous in gifts this year but everywhere there is a spontaneity and freedom that has been lacking the last four years.

We will be on the look out for the linen you mention, Phebe. I hope much of the restrictions of importing will be re??ed[relieved?] so we can bring more freely. We are still hoping to get Mother's fur coat to her somehow.

Stanley writes that Phebe did make her visit. We are glad to get the music. Others in the compound have all but the "Consecration Hymn" so I had heard it and knew some of it. Mrs. Martin introduced some. It got here several days before Christmas.

My "Line a Day" book for 5 years gets filled August 1st. I thought to be home to replace it but will not I fear. Please send me one. My old one is "Wards, A Line a Day." In the front it is stamped 20 and it cost 85 cents. If you can duplicate it I should like it, but do not try too hard. I forget whether I purchased it in Derby or New Haven.

How about our birth certificates? We may not need them a year from now but it would be best to have them probably. We hope to traverse at least a part of Europe on the way home and I imagine passports will be pretty important there.

A Mr. and Mrs. Packard of Stratford are in Peking this month. I have met Mrs. P. but it was before I knew who she was.

A Happy New Year and lots of love and God's blessing to you all
Mary.

[This letter dated Jan. 5, 1919 was written from Talcott Hall, Oberlin, Ohio by Phebe Kinney Beard to her Uncle Elbert and Aunt Emma. She thanks them for the Christmas presents. Geraldine is feeling better and getting stronger. Gould is in Texas and could not get leave for Christmas. She tells of the excitement at Oberlin over the Armistice. The flu has been a problem. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Talcott Hall,
Oberlin, O.
Jan. 5, 1919.

Dear Uncle Elbert and Aunt Emma,

One of the first Christmas presents we got was Uncle Elbert's letter with your check for all of us. We all thank you heartily for so remembering us, and so generously! With my two dollars I intend to get a leather loose leaf note book, something that I can use after I leave college, and something that looks nice and is much more convenient than the other cheaper sorts of loose leaf books.

We thought of all of our friends very often on Christmas Day. We wished you were near enough so that we could come and sing carols under your windows as we did at some of the houses here in Oberlin. It was cold in the darkness, and snow was sifting down quite fast; but we enjoyed it, and had a fine appetite for a grape fruit, coffee, and doughnut breakfast- our holiday breakfast at Tank.

Then came the tree, and all of us were very amply gifted. Geraldine and Dot gave me a pretty pair of spats; Century Farm people sent each of us one of the best studio pictures Gould has ever had, in his uniform [see photo inserted before this letter]; and other things were a blacking set, a blotter hand-painted, a set of crocheted panels with my initial for towels, a gab of balsam needles, a pretty calendar with an Oberlin scene in it, three handkerchiefs, a night gown from Aunt Molly, and money from Grandma Bean and Uncle Stanley. I hope you were well remembered, too.

I got Aunt Emma's nice long letter last night, but I'll answer that later. This time I'll answer Uncle Elbert's.

Geraldine is now much better, I think, both in appearance and in action. Perhaps she has written you that she is sleeping as late as possible each morning and getting her own breakfasts in her room, chiefly fruit. Her schedule is light, twelve hours, so she can retire early, and be out of doors a good deal. She has taken two treatments during the vacation, and feels better. I really think it will be better for her to take treatments here, and continue with a light schedule than to give up to special treatment unless she goes to a sanatorium. She has outside interests, enough to occupy her time progressively without strain, and association with college people, and the advantages of a college town in entertainments. If she stopped college, she would feel discouraged, I fear. She does not feel perfectly well, she says, and does not give favorable reports in progress of health; but I can't see that she is losing. I think she looks better than earlier in the fall.

Gould is still in Texas and is finding things since Nov. 11 very slow. He has moved two or three times because of crowded quarters or rats, during the vacation no flying was allowed apparently; so he had to amuse himself as best he could, since he could not get a leave permit. I imagine this was the dullest Christmas he ever spent. Almost any time now, we expect to hear that he has been transferred to San Diego, Calif. for special flying. Then he hopes to take the technical training in some tech-school. He says nothing of coming back to college. His letters have shown an interesting development, not at all for the bad. In many ways, I think his course of action is a very wise one for him. It has at least spurred him to his very best living and best effort- something that neither High School nor college ever did. I am sorry he did not have the satisfaction of active service; but he takes the disappointment like a man, and it merely transfers his aim a little farther on.

This fall has been one grand scramble to keep regular schedules going between special events. First came the S.A.T.C. [Student Army Training Corps] that took the men out, and threw on the girls all of the outside literary and social life of the college. Then came the Flu that stopped all work for a week, and left us in the middle of Nov. feeling that we had only just begun the semester. We had two Peace days, one a false alarm that gave us a pre-arranged schedule for celebrating the second real Peace Day. That meant two holidays within a week. In a way it seems as if we had been here for outside work, college coming in on the side when it could. But there is much value even in that sort of a year.

On the first Peace Day we were just sitting down to lunch when the fire siren started gnarring, shrieking and running scales. After several minutes of suspense we got the word that Germany had surrendered. Then we all started for the Campus, and with all the girls from other houses who came simultaneously, all running, all without wraps, we formed a snake dance line. Then we broke up and sang patriotic and national songs; and had another snake dance in which the S.A.T.C. took a little part, having by this time finished their lunch. We went to the center of town where they were firing the toy cannon they have for such occasions; and after singing and dancing with the throng for some time, most of us went home and had lunch almost one hour late. Some girls rode autos till two o'clock, and one of the matrons, a grey-haired lady, marched in the snake dance.

On the following Monday A.M. (the false alarm was on Thursday) we were awakened at 4:25 by the fire siren which blew 10 minutes. During that time we girls raced all over the house in kimonos, got the flag out, had a snake dance thru the parlors down stairs. Then when the next 10-minute silence came we began to think of dressing and going out. At five, after the next 10-minute blast of the fire siren we were ready. Going out on the porch we saw the dusky ranks of the S.A.T.C. standing just distinguishable in the street. Then they marched on to the center and the college houses bell in behind. We stood waiting in line till it grew light. Mrs. Lawrence, our matron got us a bun breakfast at a neighboring bakery, and marched with us when we finally started, nearly all the way round two big blocks. At the end we drew up on the chapel steps, and heard the "Star Spangled Banner" played. At 10 A.M. we all gathered in the chapel for a mass meeting. The Musical Union sang "The Hallelujah Chorus" without practicing it and got thru finely. Dr. Bosworth, Mr. Hutchins, and Dr. Williams of the Second Church spoke very well, all out doing themselves.

On the Saturday night before, there had been an entertainment for the starting of the Student War chest in which all the relief appeals and Y.W. etc. were included. At this each house had been dressed in different costumes national and symbolic, apropos of the war; so each house came that A.M. in those costumes. The S.A.T.C. sang, and it was a gala affair, a holiday of course.

We have had quite elaborate meals here at Talcott all this year. All meals are good; but on Sunday and at special banquets, of which we have had three, we serve after dinner coffee. I am one of the waiters- all the houses had girls, because the men are at the Barracks. I like the work, but it is rather binding, and takes me just at the time when I should be learning to know the girls. I am going to wait till April, the beginning of the last term. Then I'll sit at the tables and let this job go.

We hoped for some men after Xmas, but the news got round falsely that we didn't want them. So till the second semester we shall still be a girl's house.

At no time has the Flu been bad here. By quarantine and precautions of all kinds we have kept the epidemic down. One Missionary's family from India has had a long siege of it, losing a daughter of 12 or 13 on the evening of Christmas Day. It was very sad, but the beautiful thing about the whole experience is the way in which both town friends and other missionaries have just flocked to help by service or bearing expenses.

Many of the Turkey Missionaries are planning to go back by the first of February on a special boat. Some have already left Oberlin; the others are preparing, and every one is much interested. We are all so glad the war is over, yet it hardly seems possible. It seems in some ways to be the signal for a slump in everything, all walks of life; but now of all times we must help up in work and active in that.

We were very sorry to hear of the deaths from Flu etc in Putnam, and of Mrs. Barker's death. The personnel of the town will be quite changed when I get back.

I hope you will both keep well, that Aunt Emma can get help in her Library work- I'm glad you are able to work with the schools so much now,- and that Uncle Elbert can get help in the yards. They are very short of clerks out this way, too, as I found when I got my new coat this vacation. Thank you again for the Xmas gift.

Very lovingly
Phebe.

Foochow China
Jan 9th 1919.

Dear Folks at Home:-

Vigilating at a session of uniform examinations affords a good opportunity to write. I am sitting in the assembly room of our Girl's College at Ponasang- almost on the spot where we lived during the first seven years of our life in Foochow. The windows are wide open and it is uncomfortably hot at 4:30 p.m. Last week we had three fine frosts. The mosquitos crept into their holes and we slept without nets on the beds. But last night Ellen had to get up and put the nets down- so the mosquitoes would not carry the girlies off.

To celebrate Christmas the boys of the College transformed the grounds and buildings into a young city. They had all kinds of shops. They went to the streets and brought in things from the shops- toys, fruit, clothes, cakes, umbrellas, cakes, candy, tea, pictures etc. and a certain number of students were over each shop. Others arranged tea houses and served tea and cake. Two good restaurants did a thriving business. The geomancer was there- the pawn shop- the photographer, the street vender and the policeman- with the police station. In the evening the boys gave a play. There were at least 4000 people in attendance. This was in the open air, and with almost perfect order. Best of all, the people entered the grounds through the church yard. And they were directed into the church where we held a continuous service all the morning and afternoon.

The money used in the shops was all specially printed by the College=Foochow College Bank notes. One silver dollar purchased 133 of the $1.00 bills. Of course this made prices seem very high. An orange cost $4.00. The boys did a business of $17,000. and made about $30 actual money- half of this will go to our Turkey mission and half to a Chinese mission in Yunnan.

Last Sunday I had a very interesting half day. With eight students I went to a village on the plain, we walked out- one hour and a half. This village has been reported to have no Christians in it. I have found ten thus far. We went out Sunday morning to do pioneer work. First we stopped at the one big idol temple and asked if we could come in to "speak the doctrine". Consent was at once given. Then we went thru the main streets of the village inviting the people and calling on the Christians whom we had found. 48 men and 43 children came in to listen and we talked informally and in relays for two houses. Then we held a prayer meeting right in the temple and in the presence of the idols and four of the village Christians prayed.

Our home Christmas was a very quiet one. The great bustle all around made it seem all the more quiet. We had a tree and our few presents. Flora and Mary sent us down by Mr. Leger who was coming from Peking at just the right time 2 folding lanterns that you can fold up and put into your pocket.

Elizabeths letters enclosing the one from Gould came by last mail. Thank you awfully. It has been a long time since we have seen his hand writing- Thank you for his photos that came the mail before last. He is a fine looking lad.

I must close now to get this with today's mail.

With love from all

Will

She holds back in her opinions about the Japanese and Chinese because of censorship. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]*

[Jan. 12, 1919]

Dear folks at home:-

The new year is eleven days done and we feel that we are really off on another year's work. The children are back and lessons have begun with a zest that they never have showed before. It certainly pays to have a faculty of more than three. We are looking for some one to come out to teach music, drawing, household science, and a few other things. Miss Dudley goes home next year and we need some one to take her place.

The agitation about moving our school to Peking is dying out- from lack of fuel. It was such a piece of selfishness that I have always doubted the possibility of its achievement. When Mr. Green (of the Rockefeller Foundation) said that it would be necessary to have the missionaries approve of the change, and Dr. Tenney (of the Legation) remarked that there was no place within the walls of Peking, which did not have some objection, I felt the project was doomed right in the meeting. Now we are hearing from the up-country missions and so far they all are indignant at the suggested change. Probably the most cordial and most influential report was given me here in my office by one of the Presbyterian missionaries of Tsinanfu, Shantung. He said that he brought from the Shantung Pres. Mission the hearty appreciation for what Mary and I have done in founding the school- in sinking our personalities to make it what it should be- and that they had noted that the school should stay in Tunghsien, and it should have their united support. He said this carried some weight with it as three-sevenths of all the Presbyterians in China are in Shangtung. He said this not knowing where we stood. We know that the American Board is unanimous to have it here, so there is only the Methodist Mission left. We know they are split on the question but they have always been half-hearted in the project anyway and no one depends on them. Rockefeller is our only antagonist that has any might and when Mr. Green says what he did, we need not fear him. I think some of the ladies(!) of Peking already wish they had not done what they have. They act like naughty children who have been caught in doing something they knew wasn't nice. We can afford to forgive them, if they fail, for they have unwittingly done a fine piece of advertising for us. This "sifting" should result in a boom for us. We hope it may result in the Peking school enlarging its curriculum so as to keep the children at home up to the High School, so as to make this a High School, with boarders as fun as possible in the grades. We will have to receive the children (who live at great distances) in the Grammar grades, but we hope we have eliminated the primary for good. Now if the school does not move to Peking Mary and I have promised to stay out another year. We neither of us, are keen to do this but if we leave now we would be the greatest injury we could do the school and it would mean the throwing away of five years hard work. It means making new arrangements and the asking for a few purchases to be sent out to us, for we had planned our wardrobes, etc., to the leaving for home this summer. Our sheets, towels, etc. are going to last until this summer but Mary will need replenishing about every where. I presume she will write you just what if she decides not to buy here. Sheets are $8 per pair, and the most ordinary huck towels a dollar each. Talcum powder is seventy-five cents for a can, and so on for things that cost one third this price at home. With the price of silver so high it makes things very costly. - Mary and I are talking about spending next summer in Japan. Our summers here are very expensive and exchange stays where it is now, we could travel quite far and luxuriously in Japan for the same amount. If you want us to get some things for you just let us know and we can send them to you from Japan. As soon as we have decided we will tell you when to address letters to us for the summer. We have an invitation from Mrs. Fisher (with whom I boarded in Karuizama 11 years ago) to stay with her while we are in Karuizama but we have not thought so far as the itinerary yet. The February Trustee's Meeting will settle our doubts one way or the other and then we can definitely plan.

I wish you could see Tunghsien to-day. It is Fairy-land! There is a thin layer of snow all over the ground. (just enough to spoil the skating on the pond) and this morning there is a beautiful rime frost all over the trees, bushes, wire fences, etc., so that every thing is transformed. The sun has not come out enough to burn it off and I hope we may be able to get some pictures.

Dr. Arthur H. Smith is back from the hospital and is well enough to begin his Thursday morning chapel talks to our children again. He is still very thin and not strong, but I do hope he will not take risks during the winter but stay at home and get strong before he undertakes a trip on these rickety, drafty, trains, which have no fires in them, and expectorating going on, on all sides. One takes one's life in hand, when one travels here, and the only thing one can do is to keep well and keep as far away from the traveling millions as possible. There is little doubt but that Mr. Frame got his typhus fever from economizing on R.R. fares by traveling to Peitaiho and back 3rd class, when he was too physically worn to combat with the "louse" that he caught on that trip. It doesn't pay, yet we do take these risks continually.

I have regretted that mother's fur is not at home. The war restrictions have been such that I could not send it by mail and I did not know any one traveling home by who I could send it. I shall get it to you either by mail or by some one going this summer. We had it fitted to me around and to Mary in length. We could find nothing suitable for the outside so are sending it home for Mother to get that part herself. I do wish she had it this winter. I hardly stir out without my sheep skin (at home it would be Astrakan fur).

We were shocked (as I imagine the whole world has been) to read of Theodore Roosevelt's death. His removal from the Republican ranks will make them skurry around to find some one to take his place. I don't believe there can ever be another Theodore Roosevelt. And I wonder how much his absence will change the Republican ideals. China (or rather the missionaries and the thinkers among the Chinese) are getting much roused over the proposed exodus of American brewers[?] to these coasts, and I sincerely hope that this country is not to have its burdens added to while it is still struggling with German and Japanese propaganda. There is little doubt but that China, with the help of America, could straighten out her house if the Japanese would let her alone. I do hope the Peace Conference may be able to help out. I'd like to tell you some more things but I want you to get this letter and perhaps if I said all I'd like the Censor might find it so interesting that he keeps it for his scrap book! What a big one he must have! Some of my friends have had only a frame of their letters left when they arrived. However, we're loyal and have considered this as one of our "bits" for the war. Talking about doing our bit, our school (teachers and pupils) gave $127.50 S. to the War Worker's Fund, and in three other collections got together over $50 S. for the Red Cross, and besides the children have knitted dozens of articles for the Red Cross. I do not think this is a bad showing for three dozen kiddies whose average age is twelve and a half. Mary had been the one who has mothered this work. She has given hours to helping the children on their knitting, and every bit has been voluntarily done by them.

I am enclosing a paper with some business which I hope may not be too much for you to see to. I hate to bother you, for I know your time is now more than full. I wish you could have a few of our Chinese servants. At least you would have a new list of unendurables to exercise your patience. We have a faithful coolie but I think he takes "the cake" for stupidity. My sleeping room is on a corner of the house where the breezes come right through regardless of bricks, and windows, so I thought I'd try pasting up the cracks of the upper sashes of two windows and showed him where to paste the paper and left him to do it. Soon he said it was done and he wanted me to see it. I found he had carefully closed the outside edge so that they could not be opened, though the slats were untouched. Fortunately the paste was not dry, so I showed him again and pulled the lower sashes up and down to show him not to paste them, and even then he had the cross pieces in the middle of the window pasted up. We got it done correctly in the end. But once get a thing into his head and we can regulate our clocks by him.

Probably I'd better bite off my macaroni here for this letter is rather a big mouthful for me, and I'll write some more some day.

Yours lovingly-
Flora Beard.

[This letter dated Jan. 26, 1919 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his daughter Dorothy. They have had commencement exercises. Willard has ridden the Foochow busses. He describes Kathleen and Marjorie. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Foochow, China
Jan. 26th 1919

Dear Dorothy:-

Another Commencement season has passed with all the work incident thereto- and you dear children have had one letter written Jan. 1. We have had only one from you during the month- from Phebe Jan. 19. We look for more regularity in the mails now. The mail that came this morning was not censored at all. It brought good letters from Mr. Hodous. Mr. Goddard and Cousin Mary Stark. She is quite a regular correspondent.

I shall enclose a program of our commencement, and in a week or so I hope to send photos. The habit of getting a photo taken on all occasions is worse here in China than at home.

On Monday afternoon (Jan 20) came the Commencement of all the union institutions. I was honored with the chairmanship, and had my picture taken three times. On Tuesday there were no commencements. On Wednesday in the morning the Meth. schools held their graduation. I left our house at 10:20 and got over to hear much of the address and two songs- saw all the diplomas given out and got home at 12:10. I caught the Bus at South Gate just as it started and again at the head of the bridge just as it started to come in. The Busses make travelling very swift- when we are going their way. A Bus starts from S. Gate for the bridge once in 15 minutes. It take 11 min. to make the trip and costs 104. We had a good day for all. Foochow College graduation is from the College. The largest class ever graduated. You will find on the program the numbers in each group with a total of 78.

Tomorrow morning we plan to go to Diong Loh to spend a week. I want to spend the time in the country. Mama and the girlies plan to stay with Mrs. Gillette.

You would be most interested in Kathleen if you could see her now. Monnie has not changed so much. She is very even tempered, staid and ever the same. Kathleen is never luke warm. She is never fairly good or bad. She is all life and vivacity or wants to sleep, or she is most happy or in tears- happy mostly, good most of the time but naughty all thru when she is naughty. Sometimes she goes at a lesson and conquers it in no time. Again she does not even want to make an effort. She has been writing to Edith Child this p.m. and she has allowed nothing to turn her from the tasks.

The last letter from Aunt Elizabeth told us that the flu had taken away cousin Charlie Fairchild- in one day. This is the second time Edith has been left alone. She saw Elsie, her elder sister and her mother and then her Father go, and now husband and only child. [Edith is Edyth Nichols. She is the daughter of Nancy Maria Nichols Beard's sister, Hannah Nichols. Hannah married Charles Brinsmade Nichols. Edith married Charles Wentworth Fairchild.]

I must not write more now. It is 9 P.M. and we must be up at 6- before light tomorrow morning, and the clock has struck 12 most every night before Mama and I have got into bed for over a week. But we will all have a fine rest during the next week.

I see President King has been greatly honored by being asked to head the Educational Commission for soldiers in France.

Tell us all about your life in Tank and your life in school. What are your plans for graduation- any thing special?

Do you play Basket Ball?

May God keep and bless you all and make you all a blessing. We are very glad to see in Phebe's last letter that Geraldine was feeling better. May God make her all well.

Very lovingly Your Father
Willard L. Beard

[This letter, date February 4, 1919, was written from Tungchow, China by Mary to the ones at home. She has been very busy knitting for the Red Cross. She talks about the controversy of others wanting to start another school in Peking. Some of the school children have been pulling pranks lately. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Feb 4, 1919.

Dear Ones at Home-

Elizabeth's long letter has just arrived today. I have not much to say for it is four weeks since I last wrote. My excuse is that the call came for as many knitted artworks as possible for refugees before Jan. 30. I knitted nights and Sundays and in between appointments and studying for three weeks. The result was two sweaters, three scarfs, a baby sweater and help on other articles for myself. From the school and compound I took in 33 articles. Not all was done in that time but the last half at least was except in case of the afghan. Now we are using up the yarn left then we are to stop. I shall feel like a lady of leisure.

Yes, we are going to stay another year in spite of the home call. I get homesick at the thought sometimes but feel that my duty surely lies here another year. The faction in Peking got together and made all plans for a school in Peking clear up through the High School. Their chief argument is "We want it". They did it all secretly and when every thing was done announced that they were to run in conjunction with us and asked us to cooperate by moving bodily to Peking. The teachers, our ?ters and patrons (outside of Peking) feel strongly that Tungchow is by far the better location for the High School. Health, cleanliness, freedom for play and from distractions, economy, all speaks loud for Tungchow. Fortunately we (F and I) had already considered a sixth year and so were not overcome. The Peking contingent say openly this is an ideal time to move because three teachers are leaving and there are great difficulties in the way of getting new ones. In Peking there are more people to help out in case of shortage of teachers. They even wrote to our patrons and asked their support, and to the con??, Business Men's Association, Rockefeller, Methodist Mission and got them to vote support the Peking School. These have been exciting times, I tell you! When I am mad, nothing would drag me away next year. When I get over it I think of you all and shrink at the thought of putting off the home going. But, if we go the school would have to succumb to the pressure and I can not think of our work of five years being for naught.

I am glad you got to the Hartford meeting for a little while. Wish you could have seen Dr. Love and Mr. Elmer Galt. By the way, Mr. Galt was here for the meeting because of the postponement. Have you seen or written the Loves? Their address is 179 Park Place, Brooklyn, N.Y. Do try to see Carol Love and Doctor too if you can. They will make another link to bind us across the expanse of ocean.

I am glad for a bit of news from Emma and Elbert occasionally. How near you two families are now with your machines!

Will Father please pay my subscriptions to the Literary Digest and National Geographic Magazines for 1919. My bill from the latter was for two years because I neglected to send a reminder last year. If it has been paid since, you know. How about my life insurance? Do the bills come regularly to father? Since it was left to have every thing sent home, I forget about it in November and April.

Feb. 6- 10:00 P.M. I have gotten waked up getting undressed so will add a few lines. Your letters telling of Edyth's double sorrow we sent on to Willard at once. I will write her soon and my letter can follow her to the South wherever she and Mr. and Mrs. Fairchild go. We received the papers with the notices. I can hardly realize that Dorothy was fourteen [Does she mean eighteen? Or is she talking about a different Dorothy than Dorothy Beard?]. Four years does a lot for little girls. I often look at Ursula Wilder and try to picture Dorothy Beard as being grown too for they are very near the same age.

We had Mrs. Danton and Eleanor (age 6) here over last week end. Both Flora and I have been entertained there. Mr. Danton was away and ?? was to stay over Sunday as it was an opportune time for a visit. On Sunday morning she and I and Mr. Leiper and a visiting friend walked into the city. The friend, Mr. Moyers, is enroute for America where he will complete his theological ?? "union".

On St. Valentine's Day we faculty are entertaining the children at supper and for games in the evening. Mrs. Danton is clever with her pen and wrote the cutest invitations for us. It will be a real dress up affair with refreshments at the end of the fun.

Prices of food are almost the same with us. I should like to own a chicken farm at home now. The chickens ought to run a machine even with the high price of gasoline. We get less from home each year because of the excessive freight. Now that rates are going down we may indulge once more.

Feb. 7. I had a lovely long letter from Mrs. Mason of Monticello this week. This new term we teachers have a shift of duties. Jean Dudley and I stop leading chapel and say grace at table while Flora and Grace Parsons do the opposite. I am not quite used to it yet and the pause at table is a little awkward.

I may have to take over the Student's League again. I can at least keep order and that is more than the one now in charge can do. The children are up to pranks these days. One night a boy appeared in study hall with his "pompadour cap" on. That was a white tight fitting skull cap like tied[?] with various colored ribbons at the top. He studied apparently conscient of his headgear. I made him apologize to the girls for his rudeness. Another night he donned his pajamas over his suit and started to appear. The children had a laugh on me when I said "Good night" to one of the girls as she asked to be excused from her morning examination.

I must get at lessons. I decided to finish this first tonight lest it be another day. I may go to Peking tomorrow noon to the College Women's Club luncheon if I can get work to have an extra plate laid.

We had a newspaper this year right through Chinese New Year. It is unprecedented in history for the Chinese generally will not work then. Our servants stay by but most of the families in the compound were short handed that every employee might have at least a short holiday.

I must say goodnight. Cicero and Caesar are getting impatient.

Lots of love Mary.

[This letter, dated February 9, 1919, was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his mother. He and the family and Mr. Christian and Mr. Beach took a trip to Diong Loh and then Willard and the other two men went into the country to visit villages. One day it rained and hailed so they had to turn back. Envelope labeled "Examined by Censor No. 471." Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Foochow China
Feb. 9th 1919

Dear Mother:-

On Jan. 30th I thought of you very much. I wanted to write on that day but I was way down in the country by the sea about 45 miles from Foochow. I had about 20 miles to walk that day in the teeth of a cold north wind and about 7 a.m. it began to rain. We hoped to start at 8 a.m. but the rain delayed us so we did not get off till 9:30. It fortunately stopped raining and we had a good cold day for walking.

The whole family started for Diong Loh Monday Jan. 27th with Mr. Christian. The launch has a reputation for - "this schedule is subject to change without notification."

Feb. 16th and when we boarded her at 10:30 we learned that she would not start for two hours. What should we do? The delay would make us arrive at Diong Loh late in the afternoon. So Ellen decided that she could make a trip back home pay and Mr. Christian, the girlies and I would go to the Y.M.C.A. near by and get a dinner. The motor-bus that Ellen had to take delayed her and the launch left before she got back so I waited for her and sent the girlies with Mr. Christian, on the launch. Ellen and I fortunately found a sampan with four good rowers just about to start down river, for a little additional they took us on and we were off half an hour later than the launch. We could not take this boat all the way, but only to Pagoda Anchorage- and then we had to walk a good three miles to reach Diong Loh. As we neared that place I saw a cloud of white steam and recognized the launch coming in from the river. Our path lay along by the creek and the girlies saw us and crowed. We got to the landing before they landed. It seems that this was one of the two days in a month when the launch goes down the main river and has to lie at the mouth of the creek for over two hours, so we had the laugh on them.

Tuesday I was off with Christian and Beach for a country tour. Tuesday noon we lunched with one of our students that used to study in the Theological school 15 years ago. That night we staid at the chapel of another student whose son graduated from Foochow College in January and is to study for the ministry. The man has under his care the central church and a day school in the church and another day school in another part of the large village, a branch chapel about three miles away to the south with a day school connected with it, another branch chapel three miles away in another direction and 1000 ft. up on a hill. In this village there are 40 or 50 families. All idols have been thrown away and the villagers are becoming Christians. Then to the north of his church about 2 miles is another day school. When he went to this place 15 years ago, it was a village of desperadoes, with several murders a year. Now there are over 50 persons connected with the church as members and he has in day schools under his supervision some 200 children, all under Christian instruction and there has been no killing for 4 or 5 years.

Wed. night we reached a walled city on the sea coast, - Sung Ha. The preacher brought us each four deliciously poached eggs in hot water sweetened with white sugar. One of the marvels of the trip to us is what became of that dozen eggs. They slipped down our throats and we never saw or felt them afterward. I do not remember ever to have eaten four eggs at once and with nothing else. They were good. After eating we went out on the beach. Twenty children followed us and played with us just as so many American children would play. There were not at all afraid of us and they talked with us as Christians, - free and natural. After supper the preacher rang the bell and in ten minutes nearly one hundred men and women were gathered for worship. And such an audience to talk to - every one listening intently to every word. We walked out in the city with the preacher. On one long street every shop on both sides was kept by a Christian- they call it Christian Street.

The next day Thursday we covered about 20 miles. Friday morning it rained. We started for a 10 mile walk to the next place at 10:30. At 11:30 it began to rain hard and we left the stone road for a mud path on the rice fields. It is like nothing we have at home. The mud is like grease and we slipped about much. Our load man fell but did not get hurt nor did he spill anything out of his baskets. We at last reached a poor leaky, one roomed chapel at 2 p.m. We were all wet. I was wet way above the ankles. I was walking in a pair of old white canvas shoes. My coolie I had taken with me from Foochow and he was not used to such work on such roads. He was trembling all over. I at once took out my quinine and gave the whole party of five 4 grains apiece. Then we cooked and ate a warm dinner and at 3:30 discussed plans. Our proposed destination lay some 3 miles ahead over a mud road even worse than that we had just come over, and rain was falling fast and a stiff wind was blowing in our faces. In the other direction 4 miles away lay Diong Loh, home and family and warm fires and a good stone road. We started at 4:30 p.m. for Diong Loh. I was afraid the coolies would get tired out and sick if we went on.

We foreigners were immensely interested and amused to hear the coolies begin to grumble, after we had gone a mile or so and they had heard that if we had gone on the road was only 3 miles while it was 4 miles to Diong Loh. We could not explain the mental working- unless they thought they could make us give them more money.

Monday morning we started for home from Diong Loh. It rained hard and was cold. There were only about 30 people on the launch. We were kept warm by the engine and had a very comfortable trip up. I knit all the way. But from the launch to our home we took rickshas and Ellen said she never felt the cold worse in Foochow. Our feet were like blocks of wood. It hailed much of the way home and the lumps of hail pounded on our ricksha's tops and bounded on the sidewalks.

The Chinese Annual Meeting began Thursday Feb. 6, and lasted till Feb. 19.- Mr. and Mrs. Beach and Frances (6 yrs) Ethel (3 yrs) and Elizabeth (8 months) were with us from Feb. 5 to 14. We had a lively time. And as we had no coolie I had to build two fires each morning and keep our eye on them during the day.

To day has been a lovely day. I have been to our Water Gate Church. It is vacation time and the boys school, girls school, Woman's class and Kindergarten are closed. I expected a very small audience but the church was nearly full. I took dinner with the members after communion and then we had reports of the work of the church for the past year. Every part of the work had a good report to make. Those present were asked to subscribe to the preacher's salary for this year. They voted to increase the gifts of the church to his salary from $100 to $124, and they subscribed $75.00 on the spot- with only one out of 5 or 6 large givers present. Last year at this meeting only $40 was subscribed. They also plan to celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of the church this year.

Commencement passed off nicely Jan 22nd. I will enclose a program which will tell you- if you can read the Chinese- that 78 students graduated from all the Am. Board Schools in Foochow on that day. I shall also send you some photos.

The University held its first graduation this year. Five young men graduated-three of them plan to enter the ministry. I hope to send you a photo of this-showing General Li, Dr. Rawlin saw the commencement orator and myself with the Board of Management and Students and Faculty. I was Chairman at the Commencement exercises of the University.

This may be the photo Willard is referring to. Written on photo frame by Willard: "Lau Memorial Church Foochow City

Your Christmas remembrances came all right. I think you will excuse us for feeling a bit proud of our son as he looks in the most excellent photo you sent. Both the pictures are good, but the larger one is a little gooder. I will let the others write of their own presents. Thank you for the photos.

Mary succeeded in getting some corn and millet down to us in Jan.,- the first corn meal we had had in months- none could be gotten from the U.S. and hasty pudding and other things are awful good. I have been taking 1 part millet, 1 part rice and one part nature wheat and grinding them together for breakfast cereal. They are fine.

Your letters have come Jan. 10 from Elizabeth also Jan 19 from her. The former containing one from Gould which was most welcome. Cousin Mary Stark writes frequently- the last letter wants some tea.

God is good to us all- may He keep you all in peace. It must have surprised you to learn that the girls were to stay another year in China. This will bring them home at the same time we plan to come 1920 July.

Very lovingly

Will.

[This report, dated February 19, 1919, was written from Tungchou, China by Flora. It is the summary of the North China American School for the year 1918-1919. Report from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

[Feb. 19, 1919]

Report of 1918-1919.

N.C.A.S., Tunghsien

My report this year might be entitled "Snap Shots from Life at the N.C.A.S. During the Year 1918-1919."

Between the wishes of the children and the teacher's planning we have certainly had a variety of agreeable experiences, more or less valuable.

The impromptu Saturday night plays and the Sunday evening concerts gotten up by the children have more than once entertained us grown-ups and once explained why "Nearer My God to Thee", had engrossed a certain youthful violinist's interest to the embarrassment of his regular lesson.

If the usual games palled in the length of Monday's play time, it was fun to hike to Hsuang Chiao, and return by train with the rest of the children, or, if the time was winter, a few tunzers made some pisa propeller happy and a bunch of children rode to Pa Li Chiao escorted by several out-riders on skates. Perhaps it was a moonlight Saturday evening and some fine ice that lured us out for a skate on the moat in our own compound, or we were invited to join a walking party bent on seeing the noted ice-lanterns in the native city. If Mr. Gordon could accept an invitation to walk, the city wall made a fine boulevard, the narrow places providing thrills enough to make up the lack of other dangers. On Feb. 22nd fourteen of the children "hopped" to Peking- since the Old Stone Road had been turned on edge in its ancient bed of lime, leaving the stones just a good jump apart. You can imagine how bowls of rice, cups of tea and "chiao tzus" vanished when this company arrived in Chin Yu Hutung.

When we found several pupils stranded here in the spring vacation, my sister chaperoned the girls for nearly a week at the Western Hills where they trapped themselves daily into a state of mind to hail with gladness the retiring bell, and came back with glowing faces and tales to tell. Mr. Beers took the boys to Wo Fu Ssu and he loves to relate how their appetites exceeded by 10 cents per, what the bill of fare allowed.

May-day came. The wisteria was a bower. Just the spot to crown a May-queen. Miss Bostwick was captured, dressed as her subjects milled and placed in her coach to be conveyed to her throne. Had it been in the time of Cinderella, and the clock had struck twelve, you would have wondered why the wheel-barrow was littering up the front walk, and what was an arm chair doing up on the dining-room table out on the front lawn!

Written in album: "Crowning Miss Bostwick as May Queen 1919"

The children going to America got a preliminary taste of the troubles to come, in trying to measure up to the passport requirements, impressed by their comrades with many a joke and laugh at their expense.

Ours is the good fortune to own one of the finest pianos anywhere about and where week-end parties bring musicians to Tunghsien they gravitate to the N.C.A.S., and so our children have had the chance to hear such music as Mrs. E.O. Wilson, Mr. W.S. Young, Mr. G. Poteat give. It was also our piano that helped to give the "Cycle of Peter Pan" last May when the Mother's Club made its annual visit and a quartette sang.

When Mrs. Corbett wanted some money raised for the Red Cross the children collected a program of their stunts, invited every one, and we counted $16.75 as the result of their exertions. This fall our Hallowe'en fun netted $14 more for the same fund.

I think we all felt some what solemn as we escorted Mr. Leiper and Mr. Yarrow off for Siberia, and the youngest of us had to assure the oldest of us that they weren't going to kill people but to make them well. The flag with the two service stars made us feel Tunghsien had given its bit to the big war.

The news of Nov. 11 was received with a hush, and then came waves of hand clapping. In the evening all the foreigners joined us at Wistaria Lodge in a Thanksgiving feast, and then followed a Thanksgiving service, ending with the national hymns of the Allies, - and Chinese firecrackers outside. We took two trips into Peking to see the city's decorations and to watch the parades, and another day we did our part to help the Tunghsien patriots in their celebration.

Twice our High School girls have challenged Peking basket ball teams, one from the Y.W.C.A., and one from the Language School. Although their appointments were larger, our girls won in the first game, and the other was a tie because train time demanded a short "half".

There have been excursions- several of them, and thoroughly enjoyed, too. It was joyful to eat chicken sandwiches and munch ginger cookies up in the top Tinger of Coal Hill, while we guessed what the little Emperor might be doing down under the golden roofs of the Forbidden City. The climb to the Dagoba in the Pei Hai gave all the daring ones an opportunity to break their necks, and the grotto was voted to be the ideal place for Hallowe'en jokes.

One Monday we went to the Museum and saw its wonders. Some saw them to the seventh time before we older ones had finished our first. Then we ate our lunch under the roof which sheltered the well whose waters fed the Empress's stately bath, while near by was a trained grape vine from which a coolie was waving imaginary hornet thieves.

Our good times came thick and fast. The Red Cross Fete was advertised and we went. We had Mrs. Grant and Mr. Hitchcock to thank for the tickets. The slide needed to be worn smooth, and every one was invited to take a ride. When you multiply the N.C.A.S. by ten or more rides, you get satisfaction for both sides. Nevertheless the fete was richer by some fifty dollars, because the N.C.A.S. chose to show its patriotism that day. The next morning it poured at 6 o'clock, but we had packed our lunch the night before, and there was the promise of an auto ride out to the Summer Palace, and not a soul could be hired to stay at home. Good fortune was ours for by the time we had reached Peking, the rain had stopped and the day was perfect. It is still a mooted question as to which was the better the palace sights or the rides with the speedometer registering 37 miles. Perhaps the crowning trip was the visit to Pres. Hsu. The walk all through the grounds, the fun of the three bows to the President, the queer old portraits of the emperors, and then the procession of our five autos through the narrow streets of Peking, out the East Gate on to the new road down to Tunghsien. The joy of a breakdown and the wait for another auto was just the spice that will make the ride always memorable.

Except for Thanksgiving and Washington's Birthday we do not interrupt our studies to celebrate holidays, though the other dates seldom pass by without something special. A year ago on Feb. 27th the children gave in honor of Longfellow, a dramatization of Evangeline, which they had done in class. Last year Dr. Tenney gave our Memorial day address, and afterwards the children decorated Dr. Sheffield's grave. On Oct. 12th, Columbus Day in American and Founder's Day for the N.C.A.S., Dr. Galt gave the address. Thanksgiving Day was marked by the usual festal observance, and the Christmas season was made merry by our Carols, sung first to an audience in the school chapel and then repeated to Dr. Arthur H. Smith and Rev. W.B. Stelle, who were then ill in their respective homes. We mean to add yearly to our repertoire of carols.

Parties? Yes, we have them quite often. It so happens this winter that there are eight children living in the homes in Tunghsien, and they have birthdays, like all children- and usually attended by a birthday party. In the school, every natal anniversary is observed by a huge cake, with candles lighted, - and ice cream. This month we will have had six such joyful occasions. Then, too, our pupils receive invitations out to tiffin or suppers at the different homes in the compound, so we really have all the "social whirl" that is needed to keep us from mourning our books too much.

We teachers have regretted that hitherto our work has been too onerous to provide time to be something else than "teacher marms" to the children, but this year we decided to take time to be "ladies" and play hostess to a party for the children. Feb. 14th was decided upon for the date, and for days we had the fun of making hearts and Kewpies behind closed doors so that Valentine's Day was a veritable shower of tender tokens, - on the tables, on the menus, and in the evening's entertainment. Every one came dressed in his best and if enthusiasm is any sign, every one had a good time.

The Red Cross has been mentioned but our achievements deserve more said about them. Our school just failed of being a 100% Junior Unit. For a year the children have devoted much of their spare time to knitting. The diningroom, classes, and church services have been the only places free from it. On the ball ground some one heard a small boy shout to the pitcher, "Wait a minute till I get this stitch off the needle." Books were read, strolls were taken, Red Cross accomplishments or needs were told- all to the click of the needles. Twice a week an hour was set apart for knitting but much more was done outside of that time- and all given voluntarily. Miss Mary Louise Beard had the charge of the work and the following list of finished articles show what small hands can do when the heart is in sympathy- 13 pairs of socks, 34 sweaters, 26 scarfs, and 2 afgans. We tried a few weeks of shipping for comfort bags but the work was too slow, and too hard on the children's hands, hence the reason for raising money to pay amahs to do it for them.

During this last year the school has dispersed over $200 in money. Two entertainments netted over $30 for the Red Cross. Our Sunday School pennies have amounted to $30 for the support of a boy evangelist in the Tunghsien hospital. The "fines" box, in the three years, had accumulated enough tunzers to send $7 to the Flood Relief Fund, and to help towards the $5 for the Salvation Army's Christmas dinner to the poor children of Tunghsien City. Sugar money made up the rest. Some of the children wanted to go without sugar on their cereal in the morning and give their savings to some charity. The full sugar bowl was followed by an empty one into which their offerings were put. One boy remarked he'd have a second dish of "choe" so he could save the second spoonful of sugar. It was wholly voluntary and lasted as long as the children cared to do it. the War Worker's Fund is the only object for which any money collections have been allowed, and all gifts were to be from the children's allowances or private money. Their gifts with those of the faculty amounted to $127.50.

In our pleasures we have several times included our Chinese school neighbors. Our girls have been over to show their Chinese friends how to be good sports in playing basket ball, and when the teams came down from Peking, these same girls came to witness the games on our court. Their cheers for the successful goal shots were proof of our girls' success. The boys challenged the Academy boys to basket ball on our court, and were badly beaten, but not so disheartened but they wish to repeat the challenge. We invited the Academy boys over to entertain us with some of their stunts, and we are to return the compliment to them some other Saturday evening. They always ask us to give one, or two numbers on the programs for their concerts and the Chinese Sunday School wanted us to sing for them in their Easter service. When we gave the dress rehearsal for the "Casket Scenes" from "The Merchant of Venice" we invited the classes in English Literature from the college to witness the performance, and they certainly showed us a remarkable appreciation of the play.

We have received as guests at our table over 150 different people since last February. Adding to this number the 150 people who attended the May meeting of the Mothers' Club, and the 60 who came to our closing day's program, there must certainly be a net of 250 different people who have seen the N.C.A.S. during the year. None of us has ever heard anything but congratulations for having such a homelike school and such beautiful grounds. The committee from Peking which came to investigate the school, expressed in no undecided terms, their approval of situation and quality of work done, and as a result sent us a gift of $1000 Mex., and recommended to the Business Association to continue such support. The Rockefeller Foundation gave $300 G. and elected a member to our Board of Trustees.

Last spring Dr. Bain, the father of one of our pupils received an urgent cable to get to Washington, D.C., immediately. Since he was in Singapore and his daughter here, the best he could do was to ask some one to take her to Shanghai, which I did. As a token of his appreciation, he sent a check of $50 S., to be spent in giving the children a good time. The children were asked to send in suggestions for its expenditure where it would give a good time to the greatest number of people for the longest length of time. Their lists ranged from thumb tacks to a gymnasium, but the majority of notes decided upon a swing, a see-saw, parallel bars, and some maps for geography. Dr. Bain has since sent us by Dr. Reinsch two United States Survey maps, and has twice written his appreciation of our standards of school work.

The tools for manual training- a gift of the Stanley Rule and Level Co., of New Britain, Conn. - arrived this fall in perfect condition. The only reason they have not been put to immediate use has been lack of time to plan out the benches. There were no saws included in the tools, and perhaps some one can tell me where to get them here.

Twenty-five dollars were donated by some of the Shantung friends toward buying table silver for the school. Four dozen tea-spoons and one dozen dessert spoons were purchased, matching those we already had had given us. We hope eventually to own all our table silver and will be glad to receive more gifts.

Several people have given us their personal services. Mrs. Lyons of Peking, spent a half day each week introducing our high school and 8th grade to the pleasures of Household Science. Mrs. Love taught the grade physiology, and Mrs. Corbett had daily classes, besides finishing out Mrs. Lyons' work when the doctor asked her to give up her classes. This fall Miss Laura Willoughby acceptably taught Miss Parsons' classes until she arrived. Miss Willoughby refused any suggestions of remuneration. It might not be inappropriate to remark here, that she often spoke in commendation of our work and the conditions in which we lived- contrasting them favorably to the boarding schools she had attended as a girl.- The American Board gave us Miss Mickey's services for three days when we made a good start in the cataloguing of our library. We found we had eight hundred books on hand. The Rockefeller Foundation allowed us to borrow Miss Gilfillan, whose expert knowledge helped us out of a dilemma, and now there remains just the work of writing the cards. Mrs. Martin is helping out in that, and we hope to get the work completed in the spring vacation. We have a fully organized Sunday School this year with all of its teachers outside of the N.C.A.S. staff. Mrs. Martin is the superintendent and teacher of the high school class, Mrs. Yarrow has the upper grammar grades, Mrs. Leiper, the lower grades, while the kindergarten is cared for by a rotation of teachers chosen from Mrs. Martin's class.

We have had the pleasure of listening to twenty five different speakers since last February. Some of them we have heard more than once. Dr. Arthur H. Smith has given us one chapel talk each week that he has been at home. Mr. Martin during the academy's New Year's vacation gave a series of chapel talks on the Prophets of the Old Testament. On Sundays we have a regular church service, when the sermon is especially adapted to the interests of the children. Often there is special music. Mrs. May Corbett Smith held us fascinated one evening with the story of her visits to the Forbidden City in the days of the old regime. Mrs. Stelle told us about the Siege of 1900 as we walked on the Peking City Wall and later visited the British Legation. Mr. Yarrow put the Caucasus into our neighborhood by the illuminating description of the country and his work there during the war. I have already mentioned the addresses of Dr. Galt and Dr. Tenney. Some of our out-of-town speakers have been Dr. Goodrich, Dr. Fenn, Dr. Downey, Mr. Romig, Mr. Davies, Dr. Scott, Dr. Walter Lowrie, and Dr. E. Lincoln Smith.

We have improved our school plants largely and added to its size and efficiency in several ways. We have set out over 150 shrubs and rose bushes and transplanted two trees. Wistaria Lodge was rented during the summer vacation to a lady who loves a garden, as the beauty of the flowers and the lawn testified in September. We relaid all the brick walks in Wistaria Lodge yard. In The N.C.A.S. building, all the cement floors of our fire proof stairway were oiled, walls decorated, coat racks placed, one room turned into library, another changed into a classroom. More furniture was provided. In the basement a water system was installed, providing for modern toilets, a shower bath, a porcelain tub, and hot and cold water basins. This necessitated the sinking of an artesian well and the digging for grain pipes and a septic tank. Mr. Corbett took care of these improvements and their completion has provided the necessary conditions for ensuring the health of the school. Because we turned one of our sleeping rooms into a schoolroom, and because we have now five teachers living in the school it became necessary to open the second cottage for a dormitory, which is occupied by eleven high school girls and two teachers.

During the year we have been blessed with good health. The fees Dr. Love's hospital got from us last spring could hardly have provided salt for itself, and this fall, so far our continued health and Dr. Ma's skill, when needed, have kept us in fine spirits. Aside from several cases of the influenza made one pupil lose several weeks of school and another had to leave for the year. Both had complications which needed home supervision.

Up to this year my sister and I have carried the lion's share of responsibility for the detailed care of the children. Nearly every week this year the faculty has spent Thursday afternoon in systemizing and dividing if possible conditions to give times and seasons when each teacher can be off duty and yet providing properly for the welfare of the children. Some of the duties, we have planned for, are rotation of chapel services, saying grace at the table, being week-end hostess (to free the other teachers), seeing that bells are heeded, baths taken, arranging a code of table manners so that home training may be supplemented, and many other seemingly small things, which if attended to will make our school more homelike.

All the classes in the five school days are taught this year without outside help. The work has moved along very smoothly and our mid year examinations marked the highest point of scholarship in our history. Our vocal music is making steady progress, Miss Parsons taking the grades and Miss Dudley the High School. Miss Dudley has twenty two piano and violin scholars. The pupils have occasional opportunities to hear good music here and a few have been to Peking (as their parents have desired) to hear artists there.

It can be said that we have reached the High School age this year. We have been putting stress upon the foundational work in the grades in order that our high school could attain such a standard of scholarship that its graduates could, from the first, claim any privileges that the home colleges grant. Up till now furloughs and the war have taken children home before completing our course of study, so that this June we graduate our first class. We send one student to Wellesley and one to Oberlin. Half our school is now enrolled in the High School department. The third issue of "The North China American" is to be put into printed form. The members of this year's high school are managing both the literary and financial sides. They are depending upon one hundred subscribers at one dollar each, and are soliciting advertisements from Peking and Tientsin business houses to fill out. They offer a copy of the magazine to the one getting the largest number of subscribers. Here is an opportunity for some one!

We have secured certificate privilege for entrance to Pomona College, the acceptance of Chinese as a modern language entrance requirement by Hamilton, Pomona, and Mt. Holyoke Colleges, and have prepared, with no change of our course, one student for the Cambridge (Eng.) examinations.

These are not all the pictures that we could show, but they give some glimpses of the progress of the school and what we are planning for the future.

Stuck on the Min River
2 miles below Foochow in a House Boat.

9:00 Monday March 21 – 1919

Dear folks at Home:-

The whole family left Foochow last Friday evening- got onto a little house boat and started for Diong Loh. I had two objects in view- 1. to go to Diong Loh and go into the country about five miles to try and make peace between a church and a widow who is a member, and also a year and a half ago gave a large piece of land to put a new church on. The church is built and she says now that she wants part of the land back. I am on the Comm. to try and settle the quarrel and make her happy. 2. I wanted to attend church at the Arsenal church. Here I have a Higher Primary School under the direction of two Foochow College graduates with 20 pupils. There is a growing church here also.- Now for what I accomplished.

1. It rained all night Friday night, and the wind blew so hard that we hung up at 10 p.m. and lay quietly until day light Saturday. We reached Diong Loh at noon. It rained so that no one thought it wise to try to go into the country. It was so wet we could not do anything if we did go. So we sat down in Mrs. Beach's parlor and in a few minutes Walter Lacy, his wife, two children and his sister walked in to spend the Sunday. But Mrs. Beach fed us all and we staid there all the afternoon. Then at 6 p.m. we started back to the house boat. On the way we stopped to say "Hello" to Mr. and Mrs. Goertz. Then to Dr. and Mrs. Gillette coerced us into staying to supper and we got to our house boat at 10 p.m. Object #1, is still to be done.

Sunday morning we awoke with the sun shining and our boat tied up near the Steamer "Haeen" which we thought was leaving for Shanghai with Miss Bement of Shaowu on board. After breakfast we went on board to see Miss Bement and found another family- Mr. and Mrs. Nightengale of the C.M.S. mission, just off for England via the U.S. After a few minutes with them we went across the harbor to go to church and arrived just in time to hear them singing for the last time. We found that here at the Arsenal they have church service from 9:30-10:30 because of some Arsenal students who wish to attend church, so object #2 was partially lost. But we saw the audience and I said a few words to them and then I saw the schools.

At 12:30 we left for Foochow. Thinking to be there about 6 p.m. and discussing whether we should stay over night on board or go in to our home in the evening. But at 7 p.m. we were anchored and still in sight of the Arsenal with a good sized flood on that delayed the coming in of the tide for more than an hour and even then not much strength in the tide. But we weighed anchor about 8 p.m. and told the boatman where to tie up when he reached Foochow.

This morning we planned to get up and go home for breakfast and I planned to be at my 8 a.m. class.

But when I awoke I looked out and saw that we were still two miles down the river from Foochow. We are still there at 9 a.m. waiting for the tide to turn. The sun shines. Such is life on a house boat. The one thing we have got out of the trip is a good lot of sleep and we have not thought of classes and any other work.

What a shock Rose Well's death gave me! The Sentinel gave me the news. It will be a loss not only to her family but to all Huntington. Specially to the Huntington Church. A week ago I wrote Edith.

Gould wrote us by the last mail but one[?] of his leaving the Aviation and going to work in Cleveland in the Disell Engine works and Geraldine's letter corroborates all that Elizabeth writes about his not going back to College. With his active temperament I did not expect him to go. In fact I wrote him in 1917 that if he left College for the war it was not probable that he would go back. But while a College Course is desirable for everyone, it is not essential, and he can be a useful man without it.

Geraldine writes that she feels better, but is not normal yet. Phebe has not written us definitely whether she plans to study or teach next year.

Your last letter spoke as if the question of help had eased up a little. I hope it continues to be better. As the men return from Europe it is natural to think that it will not be so difficult to get men and women to work for you.

My garden is mostly eaten up. Lettuce is gone- so are parsnips and cauliflower. I still have some cabbage, carrots, turnip, beets left. Celery is gone- the first crop and the second is about 6 in. high. Strawberries are giving us a taste. Corn is 4 inches high and I'll plant again today or tomorrow. String beans are 4 in. high.

Churches are taking on new life this year,- many of them are full and overflowing every Sunday- some are definitely planning to enlarge- and planning to pay for the enlargement themselves.

I plan to be in Shanghai April 22-4—first two days as members of Advisory Council of the National Christian Educational Association, then for six days as a member of the China Continuation Committee.

We are now slowly moving up river and things are getting interesting to the girlies. They have seen a herd of buffaloe cows swim across the river to their pasturage and a little calf with them which greatly interested them.

To morrow is April 1st- You are plowing for oats. I wish I was there. Our furlough will likely allow us to leave July 1, 1920. The Newells are planning to start for home about July 1st of this year. The Gillettes will go earlier. Dr. and Mrs. Whitney and Mr. Neff are off on the summer. The Whitneys will not return. Dr. is blind and Mrs. Whitney is deaf, so they can still go if they go together.

We are on the way to Foochow now and there is a probability that we shall be home for dinner.

Your letters indicate that Nancy Nichols is as much of a curiosity as ever. And I judge the world in certain spheres revolves about her. The "flu" has not been as fatal here as at home. The last letters said that it was around for the second time.

What a joy to most people is the prohibition victory. But the victory must be followed up incessantly. The Brewers[beer brewers?] are planning to come to China and we are doing all we can to shut them off.

My prayers are continuous and earnest for the men in France who are charged with devising a plan for a world peace. May God help them to see that such a peace must be founded on righteousness.

May He keep you all in His love.

Yours Lovingly

Will.

[April 1919]

Dear Ones at Home-

Such a number of things have happened since I wrote that it's hard to know what to start with. The greatest event was vacation and the closing of school. The Saturday before vacation, March 22, Miss Dudley's music pupils gave a recital and everything went off nicely. We had invited all parents and so had a goodly crowd. Our sitting room was packed and several of us had to sit in the next row. Mrs. Stanley had invited Flora and me down for a part of the vacation and so accepted for the first weekend. Then both Mrs. S. and Mrs. McCann were skeptical over having ten children to Tientsin unchaperoned. The result was that I hustled about and took the children down Thursday afternoon. Mr. Davies met us at the Central Station and wanted all the Shantung children and the Stanleys and me to get off so we had a grand rush. Mr. Ballon was also there to take me to his home for the night hence Mrs. Stanley was to have her two children, Mr. Davies and the five Shantung children to put up. I did enjoy my little visit with Mr. and Mrs. Ballon and the sight of their boy now so healthy and well. Mrs. B. and baby were here a year ago and baby at 9 months weighed less than at birth.

On Friday Mrs. Stanley took me to the Stanley Club with her and we heard a most interesting paper on the "Geographical History of Palestine". The club is limited to 20 members and really most interesting. They have existed for 30 years or more.

On Saturday we shopped and went to Mrs. McCanns for lunch. Flora came in in time for lunch from Tunghsien. That evening F. and I went up to the Pei Yang University to dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Evans. Mrs. Evans was a Holyoke girl, 1904. She has two adorable babies. On Sunday we went to the Chinese church because Mary Helen Stanley was joining the church. Her father baptized her. In the afternoon we walked to Pei Yang so as to see by daylight the avenue lined with flowering plum trees all in full bloom. It was a glorious sight.

Monday morning we saw the kindergarten Girl's School and goats. In the afternoon I went down town with Flora to shop. She stayed down at the McCann's to be nearer the station for the early train Tuesday and I found my way back alone. One takes a ricksha to the trolley line, then the car to a certain corner then a ricksha again so you see it is some journey unless one knows the ropes. I surprised myself by meeting no difficulty. Tuesday morning I spent mostly on the floor rolling balls with John (aged 4) and Billy (aged 2) or trying to keep track of all the parts of my menthol stick which the boys loved to pull apart and put together. We had Mrs. Peck for lunch and almost immediately afterward Mr. Stanley, Mrs. Peck, Portia Mickey and I started for down town. I had an appointment with the dress maker to have a silk coat fitted. After that I made a few purchases, then took the train for Peking at 4.45. I spent the night at the Y.W.C.A. and in the morning shopped and called on Alice Rydin Holyoke '04, niece of Dr. Terry of the Legation.

Flora's first words after a greeting were that we were invited to the Martin's for lunch so I freshened and went. Mrs. Howard-Smith had invited us for tea at 4.00 so we had a gay society life. The next afternoon Dr. Smith gave us an invitation for supper so he (his wife was in Peking conducting some meetings) the two single ladies and me too had a supper fairly of the "left overs" as we called ourselves. Mrs. Huggins said it was such fun that she invited us to her home the next night. The next night I had two Y.W. girls down so we took them along. I celebrated that afternoon by making Divinity Fudge because I had only a few days before succeeded in getting some syrup. Saturday morning we spent picking notets. Then we had tea at Mrs. Martins and I saw the girls off on the evening train. Mrs. Smith came over for supper. O, yes, on Friday I took a chicken pox patient to Peking and handed her over to her mother and on Wednesday night I went to see the Academy boy's play. Flora was to follow me but waited for the coolie to return with a package and he delayed so long she went to bed instead. The two Smith children came over Friday to stay with us while Mr. and Mrs. Smith went to Mission meeting in Peking. They were here until after school opened. On Monday Mrs. Lieper and I went with a party of the College Club women to the Old Summer Palace. We lunched there and Mr. Malone read a paper he has compiled on its history. Then we took a walk around the compound containing the ruins of the foreign buildings and later through the oldest part where the Emperor really lived where the architecture is all Chinese. I stayed out all night with Mrs. Danton at Tsing Hua College and came in in a ricksha the next morning. I couldn't get home anyway Monday night.

Old Summer Palace

The Sunday before (April 6) was the Chinese "Spring Festival" when there is special ancestor worship at certain temples and the burning of offerings at the graves of the ancestors. To attain renown and success the ancestral graves must be put in perfect order before that day. Mrs. Yarrow and her children and I walked into the city to hunt for the temple where the worship would be. By dint of Sherlock Homes methods we found it. The crowds going and coming were great. The one carried incense bundles and the other gay toys and flowers. We joined the incense crowd and found the temple. (Mon A.M.) Two special Gods were out for the occasion. The gowns were of red and gold heavy brocade silk and the headdresses of gold with red crinkled pompons. Everyone was burnishing lighted bundles of incense and it was a wonder we did not all get on fire. After lighting his incense, the worshiper knelt and three times bowed to the ground swinging the burning branch up and down each time. The courts reminded me of the days of Jesus with the number of stalls for selling all kinds of wares- food, trinkets, useful articles, etc. Gay hair flowers and toy windmills stand out especially in my memory.

I am having a Chinese tailor make me two new dresses. These and a few undergarments will constitute my summer wardrobe. I shall need a few things from home and enclose a list. I thought I had just enough clothes to get me home but the extra year will make me pretty ragged for next spring I fear. Restrictions on cotton goods are removed I think. My bedding is also giving out but I am getting Chinese cloth and sewing it through the middle. It makes a pair of sheets cost $3.92 which I reckon is less than to have them sent out. I shall use Chinese linen for the pillowslips and I warrant you'll want to trade with me when I get them home. I have seen them used and like them very much, especially when they are hemstitched.

We had two nice letters during vacation, Mother's and Phebe's. What an exodus of friends there was to Florida. Miss Bostwick has letters that Florida had an exceptionally cold winter for Florida. I wonder if Father got his ice. We had a cold but not ice-making March. I use my fur coat all the time in Tientsin the last week of the month. I hope Mother has her fur coat for next winter. Jean Dudley is to take it to America for us and mail it from her home.

I must close and ask the noisy boys downstairs if they don't want to study their parts in the play for awhile.

Lots of love. I do hope you are all well and that you get plenty of help on the farm this summer. I would love to help garden.

Mary.

[This letter dated April 13, 1919 was written from Foochow, China by Willard to his children, Phebe, Gould, Geraldine and Dorothy. He tells about some of the visitors they have been having. Letter donated to Yale by family in 2006.]

Foochow, China
April 13- 1919.

Dear Phebe, Gould, Geraldine and Dorothy:-

The last mail brought good and interesting letters from Phebe and Dorothy, which told us about all of you.

We received a cable from a Mr. Miller Am B'd mission in India, last Tuesday say that "The Millers were arriving the next day. We did not know how many Millers there were so we prepared for a family of some children. But there were only Mr. and Mrs. Miller and a friend Mrs. Honegger. We took Mr. and Mrs. and Miss Perking took Mrs. Honegger. The Millers I think had a good time. They ate breakfast with us each morning but were invited out to the other meals all the time. I put them on the launch to go to Shanghai last evening at 7 p.m.

Their departure at just that hour cut me out of a wedding feast. I performed the ceremony at 3:30 p.m. Mama and the girlies went to the feast and got home at almost the same time that I returned from the launch.

Mr. Main has been in Foochow for a few days. You knew they have been living in Shanghai and that he is treasurer for the Met. Missions of all China- They have an organization called "The Associated Treasurers!" Several Boards have combined and each furnishes a man to do some part of the treasurer's work. Mr. Belcher sells all his gold bills that come from the U.S. thru Mr. Main. The selling rate in Shanghai is almost always better than in Foochow, and then we can usually take the Shanghai check and deposit it in a Foochow Bank at a premium, so we save several thousands of dollars a year over the previous method of doing all our banking in Foochow.

Mrs. Main had to go home last Fall on account of Florence's health. Mr. Main expects her back in a month or so.

Walter Lacy was on the launch last night going to Shanghai for dentistry and as delegate to the Advisory Association. I must go on the next steamer for this same meeting and remain for the China Continuation Comm. These two will help me in Shanghai April 22 to 30.

I wanted to enclose a Boston order for $50 in this letter but my Bank Acct. is so low I may not be able to do it. I will send next time if I cannot put in here. If I put it in there you three girls may use it as you need. I will make it out to Geraldine.

Very lovingly your Father.

With his blessing on you all.

Willard L. Beard

[This letter dated April 27, 1919 was written from Foochow, China by 10 ½ year old Punk (Kathleen) to her sister Phebe. She tells Phebe about a book with pictures of animals in it. She has real silkworms that are now spinning. Letter is in Jill Jackson's collection.]

Foochow China

Dear Phebe

Thank you very much for the garters, thou we have not recived them yet. I think probubly they will come on the next steamer. I will write you another letter as to the size and everything like that. I wonder if you have read Carpenter's Australia. It tells all about the people and what they do, and about the animals. It is all very intresting. If you haven't heard of it I'll tell some of the things to you. He tells about the animals, there was one the Parson bird, he is black all over except a touch on his wings and two little white feathers at his neck looking like a necktye. He looked this way. [see sketch below] This is not a very good illastration but its enough to show you how he looks. I guess. There was a fowl that had no wings about as big as a chicken. It says long ago there were big ones that couldn't stand in an ordinary school room they were so tall, and their eggs were as big as a football. He says they found their skeletons.

Friday Marjorie and I made candy. Marjorie made Molasses tafy and I made buttersckoch. We have made candy twice before. Marjorie had half of hers pull candy and half of it plan.

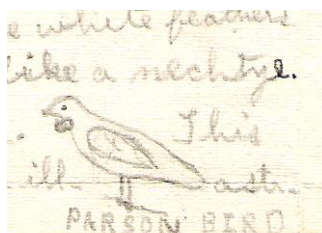

These days are very rainy and wet. Today we have a fire it is so cold.

Most of our silkworms are spining now every morning we find them craling out of their boxes. I am having mine spin quite a few little mats because I am planning to send some to Edith Child.

I hope you will axuse my for writing such a short and uninteresting letter.

Lovingly

[This letter, dated April 27, 1919, was written from Shanghai, China by Willard to the folks at home. He is in Shanghai for meetings on education and missions. Marjorie and Kathleen have silk worms that are spinning. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Shanghai, Sunday.

April 27-1919

Dear Folks at Home:-

Again the National Committees on Education and the Mission Enterprise in general are meeting in Shanghai and these call me here. The advisory Council of the China Christian Educational Association met Tuesday and Wednesday of last week April 22 and 23. I was asked to serve as chairman of two committees i.e. Nominations and Recommendations. This always means work between sessions and late into the evening. On Thursday I gave the whole day to a meeting on Theological Education and on Friday the China Continuation Committee began its sessions which are to continue thru this week Wed.=April 30.

I left Foochow April 17th. All were well then and letters by yesterdays mail brought only good news. Ellen is picking a quart of strawberries some days from my garden and the girlies are caring for their silk worms which are just beginning to spin.

April 30- 8:30 p.m.

All work is finished and most fortunately I have a steamer that is said to be starting to night. I have my ticket at any rate. This to me is grand luck.

It has been very delightful to meet here men and women from all parts of China- from all countries, from all denominations and of all ages. There were 36 missionaries and about 16 Chinese the total number of years in China of the 36 missionaries was 810 an average of about 22.

Altho the meetings are planned to work us hard yet there is time and opportunity to talk and visit. Many of us stay at the Missionary Home and then I am getting to know or have known many people who are in Shanghai. I have been out to lunch and dinner on an average nearly once a day since I have been here.

The prohibition news from home is old now but is great- may the ball keep rolling.

May 6th is the anniversary of Ruth's home going. She brought Heaven nearer Earth and made us all better because we were with her.

God keep and bless you all
With love
Will.

May 5- 1919-

Dear Ones at Home-

Two letters- one from Phebe of March 18 and one from Elizabeth Apr 7- need replys. Elizabeths got here today- very good time. The idea of inviting Edythe out pleases us both and she's sure to get two invitations. I imagine Willard will add a word for her to include Foochow in her itinerary.

We did not have a March blizzard but we have had winds all the time for April. Last week suddenly it turned cold and we started the furnace again for two days. We've had several cases of tonsillitis since vacation. Flora had to succumb for three days but was up for our Easter service. She seems quite recovered now. I have luckily kept out of it for I am working our play and every day counts. We are to give it this week Saturday for the Mother's Club and repeat it on the afternoon of June 5th. This time we omit two scenes as our time is more limited. We are using the Assembly Hall at the Academy instead of an outdoor stage.

May 12. Well- the play is over for the first production. The audience kindly say it was a success and have bestowed many congratulations on us. I tell you we worked. We rehearsed for one or two hours every day for three weeks. The last week I was in despair for Monday evening four of the cast were flat in bed. All but one recovered so we only had to break in one substitute. There were over 80 adults here and counting our children easily as many children. The large number of men pleased us. One man remarked "How could anyone consider moving a school from this environment to Peking?" He found us pleasing even on a cloudy, threatening day when the wisteria and yellow roses are just past their beauty. I wish he could have seen us the week before!

My silk coat which I ordered from Mrs. Yanogi during vacation came this week. It is entirely satisfactory and I feel better dressed just to have it in the closet.

It is not so very expensive either- $13.75 for the making.

I hear that the Ryders start for home in two weeks. They live in Stamford and I wish you could see them. They will give you first hand news. Mrs. Ryder was down for the play Saturday. Alice did not get here. She was in college when I was.

Mrs. Wilson was down for the play and sang some children's songs. She stayed and sang for us again in the evening. She was to be my guest till Sunday evening but some friends unexpectedly visited her so a machine ran off with her that night.

Mr. and Mrs. St. Clair (Foochow) did stay over Sunday. We had a nice visit with them. Sunday morning we all went to church because two of our children were joining the church. Dr. Smith baptized them and conducted the same in English. Four Chinese boys also joined and seven stood up to testify that they were trying to live Christlike lives. All Chinese have to go through the probation period before they can be baptized and received into the church. Several babies were also baptized.

We have had more wind this spring than ever since we have been out. But now we welcome it for the alternative might be heat. One week we had 4 very hot days and we wilted.

This week I am going to a wedding- Adele Tenny and Rowland Curr[?].

I have been having my National Geographic Magazines bound. So far I have 4 years done in 2 volumes per year. They are not very expensive- $1.60 for cloth with leather back and corners. I shall send to the printers for a few numbers which I lack so that my set from 1912 may be complete.

Elizabeth enclosed the letter about the 1900 fellowship fund in her last letter. I think I wrote sometime to ask Father to send $5.00 but if not please let him do it now. The address is Mrs. C.E. Buckelew

44 Washington Ave.

Plainfield, N.J.

I will try to get him to write Edna Smedley. Thanks Elizabeth for replying for me.

I took out another bond in this last War Bond.

The children are raising cane downstairs so I must say goodnight and go quiet them. Flora is in Peking.

Lots of love,

Mary.

[This letter, dated May 30, 1919, was written from Hoboken, N.J. by Gould to Marjorie (Monny). He updates her on his current work and education plans. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

702 Bloomfield Ave.

Hoboken, N.J.

May 30, 1919.

Dear Monny;-

I had a delightfull surprise just before I left Cleveland. I got your longest letter to me and the longest letter Kathleen ever wrote and a fine letter from Pappa, sort of a questioneer. I'm going to start right in and answer all the questions so as to be sure and get them all in.

1. Why I left Aviation.

I hav'nt left it; I only left the Army. After the Armistice was signed real work got stuck in the Army and all we had to do was to fly an hour, if we wanted to, and lie around or go to town for the rest of the day. After thinking things over pretty carefully I decided that I was just wasting my time sticking around in the Army, and that if I had any goal in life at all I had better get about it. So I got my discharge into the Reserves. I am only waiting for an opportunity to resume aviation in civil life.

2. Life Ins.

I am continuing both the $1,000 civil policy and the $10,000 Army policy. As soon as I see fit I will transfer my Army policy to some civil company. I would feel grateful if Pappa would make suggestions as to which company.

3. Schools

I am not preparing for any special school as yet. I have not and will not give up my education but am waiting until I find out what goal I am to aim for, then the school which gives the best preparation for that goal, and which is suited for the pocket book will be decided upon. You must'nt be alarmed if it is some two years yet. I'm a little different from most chaps who have squatted in one place for most of their lives, however I am training myself to set on one object and take the necessary time, pains and energy to reach it. I have found out that "nothing succeeds like success." When I pulled through ground school with the 32 out of a starting class of 165, and in the 1st 1/3 of the class. I gained confidence in my ability to achieve what I was after, and after I got my commission after completing my flying course the 10th in my class of some 120 and got my flying pilot's certificate and license, that confidence was greatly strengthened. I am now after the highest position attainable in either the Aviation lines or in Diesel Marine Engine lines and I know that the only way to achieve it is to get the education. So don't worry about college for me.

4. Connection with the Army.

I am now a commissioned officer in the U.S. Reserves. (flying status). Will have to and will be glad to spend at least two weeks in active flying duty with the Army each year.

5. Uniforms.

I can wear my uniform on all legal hollidays and when on active duty.

6. Flying.

I have flown only in the Liberty Loon drive since I left Kelly Field, but until I get some regular position as aviator will I take up flying as a regular thing.

7. I left San Antonio Jan 16, 1919.

8. My Sundays have been free with exceptions of one when an engine burned out a bearing Sat. night while we were testing her ?? and she had to go out Monday. I worked all day Sunday to get her in trim.

9. I did not give a letter to any church in Cleveland. There was a Christian Church near where I lived and which Mrs. Ross my boarding house mother attended. I went there one Sunday and the next Sunday they had me down teaching a class of boys 10-12 yrs old even though they didn't know I was a missionaries son. I have practiced the habit of not telling my life or history in any new place until the people around me have gained some measure of confidence in me by merely the way I lived among them. It surprised me some when the pastor asked me to take a class. Since the Christian Church is nearly like the Cong'l and Methodist, I stayed there but I couldn't join because they demand immersion and as I told them, I am perfectly satisfied that I have been baptised.

10. Position.

I have given up my position in Cleveland and have accepted a position as 3rd Eng on a small freighter going to So. America. She is the Mount Shasta of the Globe Line, and is equipped with a pair of Winter Diesels. Work in the shop are going slow and I wasn't earning enough to stay there for the small pay I was getting, so I accepted the offer of my present chief. I had planned to go to sea continually, though not quite so soon, because the actual sea operation is absolutely necessary in order to gain a full knowledge of what is required of the engine.

While in Cleveland I tried some four times to see Mr. Lewis but each time he was in some committee meeting or was out.

Papas letter gave the first definite information as to your coming home. I am glad, because now I may be able to plan my work according so as to see you all.

This afternoon I spent with a Cleveland friend who is here. We took in the aquarium and the Woolworth tower. The Woolworth building is 792 ft high, but it looks a lot farther down to the ground from its top than it does from 1500 ft up in an airplane.

Before I left the girls in Cleveland I took them to the Peacock Chinese restaurant and set them up to a good dinner. Then I took them up to see Mrs. Ross and daughters while I packed, but they packed with me and then went over. Mrs. Ross had a little goodbye spread for me, just her family and ours.

I don't think I have written you full particulars of my next escapade. The Mount Shasta is going to Brazil then to the Mediterranean and then back home. We may be gone 8 or 10 months in all. I will have to resign my Reserve Commission in order to make the trip, but will take it back as soon as I get back to the country.

I'm glad you like the dolls. I knew you would when I saw them. I hoped I did a good enough job in packing them so that they wouldn't get broken and from what you say I infer that they didn't. Maybe I will see something of the kind in Brazil to send to you or maybe I will keep it until you get home. My, won't it be great to all be together again at Century Farm! From Pappa's letter I should judge that the education work was getting to be the larger part of missionary work. At best it seems to be going faster and getting better results than the purely evangelical.

I must get to bed soon, so good night, stay tight, and don't let the buggas bite.

With love to all of you dear one.

Gould.

N.C.A.S.
[June 1919]

Dear Ones at Home-

How the days fly! Only seven more school days, then commencement and goodbye children. I am not as eager as I should be if it meant home too. But then I might be like the people who were to sail on the "Nanking". She has been taken from service and her passengers do not know when they will get off. Jean Dudley has the promise of a sailing September 14- instead of June 24.

Last week we started in on our reunion days, just on general principals not because of hot weather. Our one hot week in May stands out against a delightfully cool spring when sweaters are often comfortable in the morning. I find myself no less busy because of so many afternoon classes, laboratory periods and play practices. But there is no study hall to watch while conducting classes and we go out doors to a shady spot to recite. Caesar class is often punctuated with remarks about the birds that alight near us or that fly by.

On Tuesday Flora, Miss Bostwick and I went to Peking on the late afternoon train to attend a tea given by Dr. and Mrs. Tenney- as a farewell to Mrs. Ryder and her daughter. They left yesterday for America and live in Stamford so I do hope you can see them soon. We had a fun time at the tea. Mr. Lieper was to bring us back in his car so we were the last guests to leave. He came for us and had to come in for coffee and cake before departing.

We had a delightful ride down between 7.30-8.30. The clouds lifted in the west and gave us a glimpse of a long brilliant rich stretch of sky just on a few minutes. Mr. Lieper came over for supper with us after we got back. I had some snapshots of myself taken in my "very bestest" and hope they came out well. I want you to see how very "swell" I am when I go stylish calling.

On Friday we compound people planned a surprise shower for Jean as a goodbye party. After our plans were well on foot, she confided to some of us that she is at last engaged to the Vice-Consul Josselyn who has been working hard the last year. Hence we made our shower gifts, engagement presents. She gave us a surprise too by suddenly deciding to make it our commencement party. It made a very gay evening.

Last night we were night owls again for a Pastime Club meeting. Dr. Harlan P. Beach and Mr. Lieper were the victims for initiation and they gave us a gay evening. The best was when Mr. Lieper had to make a social blunder to every member of the club and Dr. Beach had to straighten it out. These are a few-
To a lady- "Is that the only wig you have?"
Dr. Beach- "He's just trying to wiggle out of it."

To a lady w/ whom he has supposedly just given his seat- "Oh don't thank me, it would have been a pleasure to a young and pretty woman."
Dr. Beach- "Then it certainly was a great pleasure."

To a woman who has just said 'Rubha', because he was staring at her baby,- "Excuse me, I thought it was real."
I don't remember the reply to this.

Dr. Beach is going to preach for us today and also to baptize the Lieper baby. Baby Lieper is a dear. I love to go over late in the afternoon and play with him. He chatters and gurgles, kicks and squeals in good healthy style. We had tea there yesterday and I tended baby in preference to drinking and eating. Afterward Dr. Beach and I had a swing on the new double swing of which I wrote you. He certainly is a good sport. We have him as guest for supper tonight.

Two ladies visited us on Friday as representatives of the "Church of the Brethren" in Shansi. Their mission has children coming of school age and are considering coming in to help support this school. The Sims-Lacy Co. of Peking has made us a gift of $400. The school in Peking solicited a contribution from them and got it. They duplicated it for us without any soliciting.

I think you must have gotten our letter regarding my magazines for my Digests are coming and the subscription is paid till 1920. But my 1919 Geographics are not coming at all. I enclose the last bill. If my other letter has arrived and the bill is paid, just start a grate fire with this one some cool evening.

I enclose some snap shots which I have explained on the backs. I must get some of our famous play "No. 13 Washington Square."

I do hope that Gould joins you on the farm this summer. It would do him and you all good. I wonder if some of you are getting ready to go to Phebe's commencement. I awfully hope you are for one's family means such at commencement time.

I have to stretch my imagination to see Daniel big enough to be his mother's maid. But he must be as big as our boys here and they take care of their rooms and do much that is helpful. I wonder if Well's cows will keep him off the farm this summer?

We are to have our first peas from our garden tomorrow also our first strawberries. The berries will probably be two or three on [or?] ?? for they will be few.

I must stop and dress for church. One can't have any face and be late when church is downstairs and the building one lives in.

It looks like rain again tomorrow. If so it will be the third time rain has hindered a trip to the Temple of Heaven.

Our Boy Scouts, with Mr. Lund as leader, have taken several tramps and are planning an all day one tomorrow. The boys are using the occasion well now they are over the first big head over being an organization. Mr. Lund is an excellent leader. He knows enough not to preach but to practice and guide unobtrusively.

Lots of love

Mary.

P.S. Last time I wrote on Ruth's birthday just after receiving ?? birthday letter from ?. Tomorrow I am 37- just think!

[June 15, 1919]

Dear folks at home:-

It's an age since I have written to you. I have known it for some time but my head has been so full of attending to a dozen or more irons in the fire that have had to be attended to, that many duties did not get done. The big things have gone through with an impressive success, and now we are attending to some necessary details concerned with winding up the year's work and getting ready for next year. In spite of a few people in Peking who interceded to put us out of commission, we closed our year with the most successful bang we ever have. The people in Peking (or rather the committee of the Peking school) are going on with their preparations for their high school, but as far as I can find out there is to be "nothing but teachers to it". The one boy they felt sure of has orders from his father to come back here, and I believe he wants to return. Mrs. Ingram (of the American Board) who has been one of the hottest for that school all winter, has suddenly veered around to us again. Her husband returned from Siberia for a few weeks visit before he was off for another Red Cross trip. I doubt if all this fuss would have come up had he and one other husband been at home this winter. This other woman has just sent a request to all the missions for prayer for one of the new missionaries who had just come out. He is a wonderfully fine fellow in every way, physically, educationally, religiously, and so on. She also has made all the people of her compound feel "on the ear" because she insisted on everybody's moving out of their houses so she could move and get her house settled, as her husband might return from Siberia. It resulted in two students having to leave the Language School as they could find no place to live. Several people had to pack their goods and get off to Peitaiho about three weeks before they wanted to. I don't think a few prayers for common sense would be amiss for her. Well, I can't see how the Peking high school can expect to thrive when founded on such morals as they have been exhibiting. Mr. Petters has been to Shanghai and coaxed one of the teachers to leave the Shanghai American School. On what grounds he has gotten him I can't guess, but I do guess that he will be one indignant man when he gets up here and finds that he has nothing higher than 7th grade to teach- that is if he is a real man. I saw him when I was in Shanghai a year ago. He has a very pleasing voice in song and I think gets quite a few invitations to sing, but he is quite effeminate in his personal appearance. Enough of gossip.

I hope Mary has kept you informed about our doings. It seems to me that my time has been spent much of it "on the road." I have been trying to get the way opened so that college entrance examinations can be taken out here, and I have great hopes that we are to succeed. The College Entrance Examination Board of New York City has sent on its blanks and we have returned them filled out properly to get the examinations to write here this year. We have found the home colleges to be very cordial in their responses and every college that accepts H.S. certificates has taken ours (as far as we have asked). Mt. Holyoke has consented to accept Chinese as an entrance count, and Wellesley consented to take our work in Med. History-which was a concession we shall arrange not to require again. Next year we may have the pleasure of fitting a young man for the Univ. of Virginia. His education has been in the schools at Petrograd. He is seventeen years old.

Well, I have had to ride out to Tsinghua College (the American Indemnity College) and consult, also, the dean of the Peking Union Univ. and found that either of them stands ready to help us out. I think it will be the latter as the most conservative colleges in America respect the New York State Regent Examinations and the Peking Univ. is incorporated by the State of New York.

We had to design our diploma which took some time and then Mr. Grant of the Government Bureau of Engraving did the work himself. It is exquisitely done and then he gave us the plates besides two dozen diplomas already engraved. Had we paid for all of this, it would have cost the school nearly a hundred dollars.

This spring- in March- we had the second piano pupil's recital and it was a fine one. Miss Dudley's scholars did her credit. Then there came the visit of the Peking Mother's Club in May when two car loads of Peking fathers and mothers and children came out here for a picnic lunch and our high school gave their own dramatization of No. 13 Washington Square. Every body went home in highest praise of the place and the play. The children really did it well, but when they repeated it on the closing day of school it was far better done. The evening of the Mother's Club visit we had a musical for the children with one of the finest soloists and pianists in Peking to give us the music. Then there was our Memorial Day address which was given by one of the Peking Y.M.C.A. men who had been to France on behalf of the Chinese coolies. He had had some rare opportunities to see affairs in France and also told us of some of the problems of managing the Chinese because no one understood them.

We had a christening in our chapel one Sunday when the youngest baby in our compound received his name- Dr. Harlan P. Beach doing the honors. The night before we had had a meeting of the Pastime Club, when we initiated Dr. Beach to the mysteries of our fun, and he had to "ride" our goat humbly named "Patient Patrick". We made him do all sorts of undignified stunts, which he thoroughly enjoyed doing.

There was a school trip to the Temple of Heaven which we had to set three dates to get in because of rainy Mondays, but we finally got it in.

The children had their final school party when we made those going to America perform for us and then came the graduation exercises. They began with the Baccalaureate service on Sunday, and then on Thursday morning the grade children lead the procession with their ringing. First came the graduates, then the speaker and myself, next the "Managers" of the school and lastly the other four teachers. The girls read their essays – one of Chinese Ritual Music, and the other on Ancestral Worship. Both were excellent and on subjects not hackneyed. Then Dr. C.D. Tenney the man next to Minister Reinsch gave an address on the meaning of an education. Afterwards the diplomas were awarded by Mr. Corbett in a very graceful manner. Our diplomas are the new style and every one was delighted with them. They are on vellum 6"X8", and then placed in a flat silk case made like a ladies' calling-card case. Ours were in blue with gold lettering- the school colors, and the lining was plain heavy white satin. I am enclosing a piece of the outside covering of silk.

Well, our graduation day was a fine one in every way. It was not too hot and a lot of people came. The Traffic Manager of the R.R. provided two fine new cars for our guests and they nearly filled them,- many more than I had expected.

Our new bulletins are very slow to come out, but I shall send you some when I get them. The High School got out an Annual, but that too has been in the hands of the printers for over a month. Some things have moved at a snail's pace but we certainly have not lived a life of stagnation. In all this list of doings, we have equipped and started the work of manual training. I wish you could see our benches! They are fine! and they even have the proper vises. The boys are entranced with it and now we are ready for regular work next Fall. Besides this we have formed a Boy Scout's Patrol. It's name is the "Panther Patrol". There are ten boys in it and next Fall we may have six more to join it. A Mr. Lund (a Dane) has really done the work, but it has taken time to talk over matters and to get in the lessons when there were so many things to be done. Rehearsals and plans took so much time that the last six weeks held no time for athletics at all for the children. Another year many of these strenuous days will be easier for the "first" things have been done.

Mary and I had planned to spend this summer in Japan, but we have tho't best to put it off for another year. I think I shall plan to go that far home with Mary. She will surely go home next summer – that is if she can get there- and I hope by then there may be more nearly a state of peace in the Orient- and all over the world. We have decided to go to Kuling [Not to be confused with Kuliang. Kuling is another summer missionary resort that is located inland- northwest of Foochow and southwest of Shanghai.] for two months, and shall be off by June 23rd. I do not think it is to be a very expensive trip even tho it is so far away. We shall write you from there. We shall see the Lovell's – the Plainfield, N.J. relatives of Oliver's Grace. I shall be very glad to see them again.

Do you suppose you could persuade Edith [cousin Edyth Nichols Fairchild] to come out next summer and meet me in Japan, and then spend the year with me, while Mary is at home? She would not necessarily have to stay here all the time for we could make arrangements for her to take trips away with people to the places which every one wants to see. I would be glad to go with her at vacation times. I know she would enjoy herself and do me a lot of good with her company. It would not be frightfully expensive to live here after she once arrives and there is no place on the earth where she could find more ancient and more wonderful things to see, or finer people to know. I am going to write her and hope the leisure she will have for deciding may help her see that it is possible for her to come. At last mother's coat is on its way home- started last Wednesday night. Miss Dudley is taking it as far as Wisconsin and then she will send it on by mail. Please let us know how it fits. We made it to my measures around and to Mary's "up and down". We tried for a long time to get material for the outside but could not succeed. Out here people have the outside made so that it snaps onto the lining and then when the warmer days come all they have to do it to unsnap it and put the fur away. It is undyed, so you can wear it with the most delicate color and it will not harm.

Will you please tell Miss Brewster that I have received her letters and shall keep her requests until next summer, when I hope we may get to Japan for awhile. I will be on the lookout for some of the drawn work that she wants though I cannot remember the pattern she speaks about. The display we used to have in Peking is no longer there. The lady went to America, and a Chinese lady took it but I don't know what has become of her or the drawn work. Perhaps at Kuling, we may find something.

I am enclosing a list of things I am very much in need of. If you can find the time to purchase and send them to me, I shall be very grateful. Please inform the Shelton P.O. that you can send parcels straight to Tunghsien. However, they reach me, if sent to Peking. I am more and more giving our address as Tunghsien, Peking, as there are several Tunghsiens in China, so if it is any comfort to the Shelton P.M., write Tunghsien, Peking on the parcels sent.

With love- Flora Beard.

[This letter, dated June 18, 1919, was written from Foochow, China by Willard to the folks on the mountain. He tells about going to South Street with Marjorie and Mr. Leger. They came upon soldiers and police whipping men and arresting students. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Foochow June 18- 19

Dear folks on the mountain:-

Things have been done. Yesterday p.m. about 2:15 Leger, Marjorie and I went up S. Street to make purchases,- We went via the General's yamen but all was quiet there. Just before we reached S. Street- on East St.- we came up with a big crowd and could see mounted soldiers and police and other soldiers. We left rickshas and walked on thru the crowd so when the mounted soldiers reached S. St. we were up with them. I saw them whipping men without mercy as they turned onto S. St., and when we got onto S. St. there were police leading students whom they had arrested and soldier using sheathed swords, whips and the butts of pistols on the students without mercy. With this going on right near us and horses prancing and police and soldiers on each side of the street tearing down placards- pounding the closed shops and shouting "open up". It was some melee. Marjorie kept tight hold of my hand.

Ing Siong who came down fr. Shanghai last week and was the cause of our boys not leaving school is in prison. I have not heard that any others of our students are nabbed.

The soldiers eventually got stationed in different parts of the city and rounded up all students on the street. 2 or 3 hundred were rounded up at S. Street. more at the Parliament buildings- The leaders picked out and the others told to go home- The authorities have control- One student slept in our college last night.

No authentic news about how many students were pulled- or if any were actually killed in Mong Chieng Hings shop Sat. night. His brother, Mong Chieng Ngo, was nabbed by students taken thru the streets by students with the police station by students- refused to- either the police were going to give him ??- then the students demanded 1. None of his friends could see him. 2. Three students must watch him. 3. handcuffed and feet in chains. 4. put with a common prisoner and no favors showed.

This in ?? is the present situation as near as I can get it.

If you have no water up there we can send up some.

Yours

[This partial letter dated about summer of 1919 was written by 11 year old Kathleen to one of her older sisters. The letter begins describing a wedding that she attended and may have even been in. The date of the letter is possibly determined by the "1919" that was formed by girls doing exercises on the ground. Beth and Edward Bliss attended these exercises with Kathleen and her sister Marjorie. This letter is in Jill Jackson's collection.]

...baskets were rather heavy and it was hard to stand there all the time holding those heavy baskets. The brides bouquet was a rather funny combination. It had red, yellow and orange cock'scombs and yellow and white chrysanthemums with a red ribbon tied around them!

Day before yesterday we went to Miss Lamburts exercises. Beth and Edward Bliss were down and we had them to dinner. We rode in the buss over. Beth and Edward liked it but it went to fast for me. When we got out of the buss we took rik'sha on across the bridges and over the hill. On one of the little hills Marjorie's and Edward's man lost control of his rik'sha and went smack into the head of a grave. Edward was thrown over the man but Marjorie jumped. After that we walked the rest of the way to Miss Lamburt's. The exercises were very nice. There is a big playground there that is convenient for that sore of thing. The girls first made or formed characters on the ground and they formed 1919. They had races and they did exercises with wands dumb-bells jumpropes Indian clubs. They played basket ball, tennis and volley ball all at the same time. After it was over we went in to see the industrial part of the school. The girls had made sweaters, socks mits, risters, caps and many other things. They made Japanese paper hats, we are going to have some made for us. On our way home we stoped and saw the chrysanthemum show. It was at the Y.M.C.A. There was also cockscombs and ferns there. Some of the chrysanthemums were very big. Mama counted about 44 different varieties of chrysanthemums.

Last night the boys of the Y.M.C.A. were out looting a shop. A Japanese man came along and shot one of the boys dead. Mr. Leak of the Y.M.C.A. was right there and saw it. Today they are having great doings. Papa is over south side now seeing about it.

I guess I better close now because bedtime comes pretty soon. With lots and lots and lots of love.

Hankow July 2 [1919]

Dear Ones at Home,

Flora and I left Tunghsien Monday night and have gotten this far toward Kuling, Kiangsu where we are to stay with Mrs. Butchard in Home 99. [On a map of Kuling from the book, Near to Heaven by Tess Johnson and Deke Erh, home #99 is at the corner of Northfield Rd. and Central Avenue.] We were a week later in getting off than we hoped so that Flora could get everything finished up. She did except for a few books which were left uncatalogued. The last ten days were very hot and dry, but fortunately on Sunday night a severe thunderstorm came up and broke the heat. So on Monday we packed and closed the home comfortably and yesterday on the train was quite cool; so were the two nights. We got in at 8.00 this morning and came directly to the C.I.M. home where we have layed all day. After tea at 4.00 we went out for a little shopping and have just returned. We take the boat at 9.00 this evening, get to Kukiang tomorrow morning. An auto bus takes us to the foot of the mountain and then we climb it in chairs. We expect to lunch on the mountain.

To go back to Tungchow. The Corbin and Hemingway families stayed with us until last week Friday. They had great times with telegrams, telephone calls and letters and visits to Cook's and the Legation. Finally, as we heard, they were to sail on a small transport from Chingwantao and transship at Nagasaki. They left us Friday to spend a few days at Pei Tai Ho, to get a sea bath or so. All the children were ill with one thing or another while in Tungchow but all on the mend on leaving.

The last Wednesday we took our lunch and went for a walk over to the canal. Then we ferried across and ate in front of a beautiful cemetery. It sounds strange to picnic in a cemetery but if one is to get shade one must, as only the graves are protected from the glare of the sun. It was a fine picnic. Coming back we took a little side path and had to walk several hundred yards on a narrow ledge with "wa zas" (a tall swamp edge like grass that has feathery heads later. The leaves are broad and rather sharp edged. We had to duck our heads and open the way between the tall stalks which were well over our heads. The wind blew hard and I felt like a fiddler crab with my very active right arm and still left one. For the children we had donkeys and the coolies carried the lunch baskets. Do you suppose I will be able to carry my own bag, parcels etc. when I get to America? I guess six years won't undo the habits of thirty odd.

I had a slight attack of dysentery from days before leaving so couldn't help Flora as much with the cataloguing as I had hoped. By going straight to bed and starving I got well quick. I lived on baby food until today when I branched out a bit. Everything agrees with me, so I am all right.

We rode along the Bund on our way home from the shop tonight. On the one side it is lined with beautiful residences, banks and office buildings mingled indiscriminately. On the other is a stretch of green lawn, a broad foot path, a rail, the river (Yang Ste). At the docks are many steamers of various sizes and nationalities and kinds. There is an American battle ship of the Mosquite[?] fleet anchored near shore. It makes one think of Shanghai very much and forget that we are so far inland.

We are really quite far south, for ?? grow in the garden out our window and a fine Trumpet creeper grows way over the front porch.

This is almost a bachelor's establishment or a "temporary widower" one for until we came there were one lady and ten men here. All the wives and families are at the mountains so the men eat here. The one lady is German but married to a C.I.M. missionary. She is very sensitive so we guard our speech.

Elizabeth that lace cap is a beauty. It came just in time for me to wear those few days I was ill. I told the people it was well I was ill or I would have had to make believe, to use it. It was so hot I kept it on the chair near by and made guests wait outside until I "dressed up" to receive them. It drew forth admiration from all.

July 4- At Hankow we got aboard to leave at 9.30 as advertised but 9 huge large loads of barrels of oil had to be unloaded after that. I never saw Chinese coolies work more rapidly or more efficiently as to division of labor. It was 11.30 before we were off. I was not sorry for that meant that we had several hours of daylight for the last of our sail instead of making the whole trip at night. We landed before 10.00. Mr. Chapin, brother of one of our party, met us and acted as buffer and manager for coolies so saved us a great deal. The system here is well worked out. We went to the "Rest Home" where we designated the baggage we should need at once and paid to have that sent "Express". Our trunks came by "freight" and are not here yet. We bought our tickets $1.00 which all residents on the Mountain have to have; also tickets for the auto trip and the chair. All the money is paid there and the coolies with chairs or baggage have to present the signed slips before they can draw any money.

Mrs. Butchard seems very nice and hospitable. Her four children are well behaved, neither too shy nor too forward. She is a widow and has been teaching in the Kuling School since Dr. Butchard died three years ago. We have lots of notes for comparison on schools. This is her home but now she has to move to the school buildings during term time so has just gotten into the home.

The ride up the mountain was most interesting and fortunately it was cloudy so not too hot. We walked part of the way up the very steep places. The valleys were filled with mist most of the time, but the views were glorious when it lifted. The Yang Ste Kiang [Yangtse River] was in sight for a long long time and even at our last view looked muddy and brown.

Today is the glorious fourth and we are to have a grand celebration. All the pent up feelings of last year as well as those of this year are to be let out. Many fireworks with an expert to set them off came up from Hankow yesterday with us. I can describe them better after seeing them altho Mr. Littell told us considerably about them at Hankow. [Mary is probably referring to Mr. Edward Selby Little, who founded Kuling in 1899. He named it to sound like a Chinese form of the word "cooling" according to the book, Near To Heaven by Tess Johnson and Deke Erh. Kuling is an inland resort, southwest of Shanghai and northwest of Foochow. Johnston, Tess, and Ehr Deke. Near to Heaven. Hong Kong: Old China Hand Press, 1994.]

I got to thinking of my life insurance policies recently. I suppose the due slips have been sent Father and paid last November and this April all right. They were to be sent direct to him to save a possibility of their lapsing. This is the end of my paper until my trunk arrives. This cool mountain air is wonderful after the heat of Tungchow so is the moisture in the atmosphere. Lots of love Mary.

[A missionary named Stella Marie wrote a letter dated August 23, 1936 to her friends and in it, she describes Kuling: "It is now so near to the time of my return to Ginling, that it scarcely seems worth while to head this letter with my summer's address. However I do want to tell you that I have been having two months away from the heat of Nanking up on the top of Kuling in the province of Kiangsi two-thirds of the way up to Hankow on the Yangtze River. Kuling is said to be the beginning of the foothills of the Himalyas. It is a peak over three thousand feet high, and rises above the plains which are not much above sea-level, and so it is quite impressive as well as beautiful in its green of many varieties of trees as well as flowers and bushes. There are many lovely waterfalls and mountain-streams which in no time become raging torrents in a summer shower." Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

July 5. P.S. I am enclosing these snapshots of myself which I had taken this spring. I wanted to show off my "calling costume" so dressed a little early the day we went to the farewell tea for the Ryders at Mrs. Tenney's. The draft for $25 is to help meet expenses for things I have sent for. I will send some more in the Fall. I had just bought a $100 Liberty bond and had to have my bank account with a sufficient margin for extras of the summer. But never yet have I exceeded the value of my checks for the summer months and I hope to keep to that rule.

Yesterday morning we went for a walk up to the Post Office and got caught in a rain. The rain is strange here. It did not get us more than damp altho it was rather a hard shower. One help is that the mountain side is heavily wooded and the path part of the way is overhung with branches.

In the afternoon we went to the exercises in Medical Hall. A Mr. Sherman was in charge and Mr. Brockman (brother of the ?? YMCA here) gave the talk. The children sang "Columbia the Gem of the Ocean" and we joined in the chorus. A Miss Napier sang "The Star Spangled Banner" and we came in on the chorus. Tea was served in a near by home and the children were sent over 20 minutes ahead of the grown ups to get first change. The children's sports and baseball game had to be given up because of the rain.

The fireworks are to come the first clear night. We met several old friends yesterday; People who had been in Peking for Language study or who had spent a summer in Pei Tai Ho. Harriet Bontelle Lacy is here with her baby boy but I have not seen her yet. I do not know of any other Holyoke people but she will if they are here.

If my bills with Father are not too large so five ($5) can be spared from this check, please give it to the Shelton Congregational Church. I want to do something for my home church altho it is little. I received the card but have left it at Tungchow.

Must close and fix my white dress ready to send to the wash.

Lots of love

[This letter, dated July 1919, was written from Kuliang, Foochow, China by Willard to his mother. The student uprising has quieted down. Cholera is very bad in Foochow and burial practices just as bad. They are on Kuliang now and Flora and Mary are in Kuling. Stanley and Myra have a new baby boy. Letter from the collection of Virginia Van Andel.]

Kuliang, Foochow, China.

Dear Mother:-

It is most nine o'clock on this busy Sunday but I must send a few lines before going to bed. I have written something of the student uprising. It has quieted down and as far as I can see the students are normal now. The results of their work are still apparent in the boycott on Japanese goods and in the deep patriotic spirit still in evidence.

For three weeks the cholera has been claiming nearly 3000 a week in Foochow. To day I have spent 2 ½ hrs. in Red Cross Committee meetings. We have $5000 from the National Red Cross to put into the work in Foochow. A sub committee of five are appointed to start a detention hospital. We have the foreign doctor and the foreign nurse volunteered. I go down to Foochow tomorrow to help find the building and equipment. The Y.M.C.A. is also active in the work. Conditions are almost unbearable. The Military General Li of whom I have often written has donated $1000 to be used in Idol processions, beseeching the idols to stop injuring the people. Soldiers are dying rapidly. Sometimes they are taken out and left on the hill side before they die. Some of the coffins are only half burned- the grave only 12 or 18 inches deep- practically no means are used to stop the disease- the officials do not know the cause of cholera and of course they do not know the remedy. If I can do anything to help teach them it will be the best kind of missionary work.

We have been on the mountain two weeks last Thurs. The weather has been superb. Tennis and bathing have been fine. Kuliang is full. In our house we have Dr. Bement and Miss Kentfield- a new lady in our Diong Loh field. Ellen was in Foochow this past week; going down Tues. morning and returning Saturday morning. Dr. and Mrs. Whitney left Foochow for good last Thursday. Ellen went down to let them sleep in a room in our house in which they slept the first night they spent in Foochow forty one years ago.

The girls Flora and Mary are in Kuling this year. They will know all the resorts in China and will know all the people = missionaries too.
