Letters to the Ludingtons at Bryn Mawr

Ardmore
May 16 -

Dear Leighton:

We were disappointed that Mr. Severinghaus did not see fit to make an appointment which would bring you here again. We hope there may still be a chance for that, as the short luncheon hour did not seem nearly long enough for even a glimpse of you when you were here ten days ago. I imagine events in China must make you even more anxious to be on your way back.

Many thanks for the book, "Rethinking Missions," which Townsend and I are very much looking forward to reading.

With affectionate regards from us both - Sincerely yours

Constance Ludington.
