My dear Mr. and Mrs. Wasserman:

I feel certain that Yenching University needs no introduction to you. At all times, something interesting and vital is going on there. You may know that Dr. Leighton Stuart, the president of Yenching, has just gone back to Peiping after several months in this country, greatly heartened by the interest in the recent developments at the University and by the plans for certain new projects. The trustees are anxious to have friends of the University hear about these projects, and for that
