Center for Methodist Studies

background

The Center for Methodist Studies at Bridwell Library was established in 1984 to encourage research, study, and reflection upon the Methodist movement, including the sources that influenced its origin, the forces that shaped its development, and the features that determine its character and influence. To foster these goals, the Center sponsors and supports a variety of programs, publications, and exhibitions. The special collections in Bridwell Library offer a wealth of resources for the study of the traditions that combine in and emanate from Methodism.
